The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 1 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1971

1970

1971

1972

A Look At UMass

See Page Two

Special Back To School Edition

Back To College
at
RADIO SHACK
of Amherst

Specially Priced at $99.95

*30 Watt AM/FM Stereo Nordmende TS410 Receiver

*2-SP520 Speakers, with Woofer and Tweeter

*Receiver has Ceramic or Magnetic Phono Inputs or Tape Inputs and Outputs.

* Free with this system one pair of Red Devil Stereo Headphones

AMHERST
318 College Street - Rt. 9
256-8368

Mon. - Wed. 10: 00 - 5: 30
Thurs. - Fri. 10: 00 - 8: 00
Sat. 9: 00 - 5: 00

For Your
Jewelry Needs
During The Year Ahead,
For-
PRESENTS
RINGS
REPAIRS
DIAMONDS - at moderate prices
WATCHES
SILVER
etc.
See Everyone's Favorite Jeweler
Baker-Winn
Jeweiers
31 South Pleasant St. Amherst

Editor's Notes

A Year Of Apathy

By RICHARD C. HANSON
Editor-in-Chief

This is going to be the year of apathy. So hold off you pressing issues of our times: students are having trouble getting their karma working.

Reports have it that the grass was scarce this summer, which means that thousands of students will have to restrain themselves for a couple weeks while their bodies build up a good residue of THC. Then, the summer can be viewed reasonably.

With all your worst delusions about how the country is run confirmed by everything from the Pentagon Papers to Nixon's big-business oriented economic policies, the job of living becomes increasingly a question of how solid you can build the walls of your own little world.

There aren't too many eloquent men trying to rally your political spirits. The push will be towards getting the student to vote, not only here in Amherst, but wherever a few votes will make a big difference. Presidential hopeful George McGovern might be on campus this October, but unless he is able to exorcise Curry Hicks Cage, he will be hard put to raise the political and spiritual attitudes of students towards national affairs.

There is the possibility that Amherst could receive quite a bit of national attention as one of the towns that could be heavily influenced by its student population. Amherst town officials have agreed to follow Atty. General Quinn's ruling on student voting and appear willing to risk their town to the student voter. There will be opportunities to register to vote here on campus at specific times and places which will be announced. The reasoning behind on-campus registering is, presumably, to keep the hordes of students away from the town hall. (Bad enough we can vote, no sense bringing us to town.)

* * * *

President Wood (President of the University of Massachusetts Wood) has been trying to ride herd on his still new three-campus sytem for about a year now. His influence can be seen emanating more from than towards the University itself. President Wood talked about a "Public University" at his inauguration last November. Since then he has been involved in aspects of education ranging from studies of public grade school education to the cooperation between state and private institutions in Massachusetts.

What seemed foremost in the President's mind last Spring was how the legislature would handle the economics of public higher education this coming year. The thing to watch this year is money, he said last Spring.

Speaking of money and the University, the Student Senate is seeking to make Nixon's "freeze" on rents applicable to UMass. Thus far, President Wood's office has been acting under the assumption that they would not be affected by the action. This means that inspite of the fact of raising the rent and fee costs for the student, he or she will have to go without an increase in his or her ability to pay.

A letter drafted by Attorney for the Student Senate Richard M. Howland and Senate President Lee Sandwen and sent to the Office of Emergency Preparedness seeks "a ruling that the University. . .must observe the restrictions of the "freeze"." The letter continues: "We cannot justify "freezing" students' and their parents' income and anticipations while allowing their cost of living to be increased."

Wood's office has reportedly received unwritten assurance that the University would be exempted from the freeze, while several verbal inquiries by representatives of the Student Senate have brought conflicting views.

The petition on the part of the Senate, if successful, would place the room rents at last year's rates.

* * * *

As chances for legalized marijuana in this country and others increases, the questions of enforcing drug laws becomes more and more a matter of conscience it seems. District Attorney John Callahan has been puzzling over the dilemma for most of his six months in office. Last year in response to a number of requests from school committees and town officials in the Amherst and Northampton area, the State police, working with Callahan conducted one of the largest drug raids in the history of the campus.

The raids were set-up by a State Police "under-cover" agent who simply came onto campus between his work in the eastern part of the state on two much larger investigations and purchased what he could. Callahan explains that he had directed the agent only to buy hard drugs (speed, LSD, assorted pills, Heroin), with the money Beacon Hill had given for the Amherst investigation. The agent successfully argued that marijuana had to be purchased in order to establish credibility with the campus vendors. The Agent bought more LSD than anything else and nobody even got a whiff of Heroin. The rest his history.

This year Callahan says that there will be "on-going investigations" but that he recognized drugs can only be controlled by the community. Contrary to rumors that seem to pervade this campus there are not large numbers of unserved warrants for local druggies floating around.

* * * *

There is a bit of controversy stirring in the Campus Center, surrounding the mid-summer appointment of Gerald Scanlon, now the Dean of Student's man in R.S.O., to head the entire Campus Center operation. The appointment was made without the Campus Center Governing Board's knowledge or approval. The Board has refused to accept the appointment until it has a chance to meet this September.

This is the second time in one year that the Administration has trampled on the only student authority in the student-owned building. The first was last Christmas when the administration tried to stuff the treasurer's office in an upper-floor office. The Governing Board was not notified of the plan but found out about it rather accidently. The Board said no.

The big question is still, "Who runs the Campus Center?" Last year, Asst. to the Chancelor David Clay made some unfortunate statements while attempting to procure space for the Treasurer implying that the administration could ultimately do anything it wanted with the building. Since then there has been a lot of talk about what the student's authority in the building actually is, but nobody seems to have resolved anything.

* * * *

The proposed University-wide Senate, which would replace the present faculty and Student Senates, is also bogged down. Nobody seems to be mustering the energy which will be required to initiate the thing.

What is happening now is that a Joint Faculty-Student committee was formed from the respective senates to resolve any differences. The lack of initiative on the whole proposal would seem to indicate that the people around here actually enjoy the ridiculous system we now labor under.

* * * *

Believe it or not the dining commons are going to be different this year. You'll receive a little booklet that tells what to expect, which includes: continues feeding someplace on campus from 6:30 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. People are making an effort to add a little more variety to the daily meals and what is most impressive, people in Food Service are trying to change their and consequently your attitude to the whole culinary complex on campus.

A consulting firm from Connecticut has been working all summer on a complete overhaul of the administration and organization of Food Service. They even used psychological tests to place people in the right jobs. (Though it might be difficult to imagine Joel Stoneham, who still is Directory of Food Service, placing the round peg into the round hole.)

Everybody seems happy about the changes, which are supposed to be implemented without causing an increase in the now $700,000 debt ($200,000 from last year alone) that the Food Services have accumulated. The reason for the debt seems in large part to be the result of years of waste in everything from administering the system to catering outside groups.

Vice-Chancellor for Administrative Affairs Thomas Campion who has ever seen the revamping still has his fingers crossed that too many people don't opt for the ten meal ticket plan. Precluding disaster (food poisoning, etc.) students won't have too much to complain about in the dining commons, this year.

(By the way, a group of food service administrators and such went nuts one weekend and repainted the Worcester Dining Commons snack bar. Just goes to show what a little sensitivity can do to psychologically tested people. . .or was it something they ate?)

* * * *

Enjoy the year, you are on this campus to build yourself into what you are. Sometimes you have to make institutions move in order to attain your goal, but there are no sacred institutions on this campus.

There is room for change and improvement in most every undergraduate department on campus. There is a need for greater flexibility in the departmental structure of the University, which at times strangles the progress of better forms of education. Action on academic reform all too often gets bogged down.

There will still be a crime problem on campus. More violence occurs on campus than any place in the whole county. People have to make the dorms more liveable. Get to know each other. Protect and help each other.

Welcome back to the University.

A Year In Review

Students Lack Unified Effort For Changes

When Student Senate President Glenn Elters declared war on the faculty Senate at the end of last year, he wasn't fooling around.

He berated the faculty at UMass for being irresponsive, for tokenism and for non-cooperation, and he was trying to be as polite as he could. His term had been a frustrating one, and this address, though directed at the faculty, could have been delivered to the Administration, the Board of Trustees and even the State Legislature with few changes.

"You have allowed a group of reactionary faculty members to inflict its views upon this University with increasing regularity," he said. "They have refused to recognize that education is now a joint effort between faculty and students. This body has refused to change the status quo in regard to student participation in any substantial manner...There can be no cooperation, there can be no peace under these conditions."

Chancellor Tippo

Specifically Elters was dissatisfied with the Faculty Senate's response to the proposed all-University Senate. It was the baby of the Special Commission on Campus Governance, but he was strongly committed to its principles. With 70 faculty members, 43 undergraduates, 12 graduate students, and 5 professional staff members, it would have allowed for proportional representation and interaction of all of the various Senates. But the Faculty Senate did not pass the proposal. Instead it moved to form a committee to seek an alternative. Elters viewed this move as the last straw.

"He said "The nature of the debate in this body (Faculty Senate) has shown that it is again willing to support the status quo and is not in any way in favor of involving students in the governance of this campus and in mutual, joint efforts to decide the problems and future of this University."

The statement summed up the underlying theme of UMass events in the academic year '70-'71-no unified effort to effect change. All year it was students versus faculty, students vs Trustees students vs. the State legislature, even students vs. students.

Chancellor Oswald Tippo stated last year that "present methods" of campus governance "are inadequate and even harmful to the University". In his declaration on the Faculty Senate Elters agreed, but went even further. He said that because no alternatives to present governance had been offered the Student Revolution had come to UMass. The events of last year proved it.

In an effort to reform at least student government, the Student Senate rescinded the Class Government Act of 1970, abolishing class government forever. Two committees were established in lieu of the voided system: (1) the University Concert Series-to organize and coordinate all popular concerts and (2) the Seniors Committee-to administrate all senior events.

The basic premise behind the motion was that "The concept as well as the practice and functions of class government are outdated. The officers of the class serve no real function as recognized representatives of their respective classes, and the class executive councils have not existed or operated in the manner prescribed in the class government act of 1970."

Reaction to the abolition was generally favorable, even among the elected class officers. Surveys indicated they were cognizant of their fading function and were rather relieved to be dismissed. Dave Poisson, one of the sponsors of the bill, was a class officer (VP '73). Jim Bouin (Treasurer '71) had in fact froze his class funds previous to the measure, refusing to finance operations under the advice of an illegal exec council. (He said the class of '71 had only 44 members on its council, when 50 were required.)

Only one officer vehemently opposed the measure, Juli-Ann Ierardi, President of the class of '72. She claimed the move was too hasty, that it wasn't a change but an eradication. She feared the increased power of the Senate--no other student body controlled student funds now--but the Senate did "all right".

Its Budgets Committee trimmed what might have been a $50 Student Activity Tax Fee to $35, much more agreeable figure for the Chancellor to approve. Tippo had warned Elters that a $14 dollar hike from the present $36 fee would doom the SATF if it reached his desk. His approval was won, however, even when a number of controversial groups were alloted funds, the Student Mobilization Committee (SMC) and the Student Homophile League for instance. (Despite a gay "confrontation" at a free Phil Ochs concert the Homophile League was entitled to funding for good reasons, as is any Recognized Student Organization).

Much to Concert Committee Chairman Russ Vieira's dismay, the Student Senate refused to appropriate fund for concerts or "big weekends" next year. In the wake of the Homecoming fiasco first semester, the students might have been more amenable to the veto, but the "free" concerts of early May, backed by the pooled resources of the former class governments, were too much of a success for them to forget. Whereas people were injured and property damaged in the disgruntled press of fans that night when Traffic appeared, the audience at the performance of Al Kooper, Boz Scaggs, Curtis Mayfield, Sea Train and Brewer and Shipley was relatively calm.

Glenn Elters
The War Is On

Dean of Students William Field had said of the Homecoming upset in the too small field house: "It's perfectly clear that we have to rethink the whole idea of major concerts being held in the Cage." The Student Senate rethought the whole idea of concerts, period.

Defending the Senate's refusal newly-elected Senate Vice President John Hogan said: "It is hypocritical of students to want to spend $75,000 on concerts while at the same time they are asking the State Legislature not to raise tuition."

The tuition concern brought all the parties together, for once. No student fought a trustee or an administrator. No faculty member supported the tuition hike. With Senate President Kevin Harrington's $1000 proposal staring them in the face, UMass had to present a unified front before the Legislature. Students, under the direction of

Continued On Page 4

Quicksilver
DOWNTOWN AMHERST
PRESENTS
ITS Beggar's Banquet (A GOOD FOOD TRIP)
OPEN 24 HOURS!
SERVING

ANY TIME AT ALL ...

Quickburger (cheddar cheese, bacon tct. tomato on ¼ lb. burger)	75
Hamburger	45
Filet of Fish on a Roll	45
Egg Salad Sandwich	40
Brown Rice with onions, peppers	35
Sautéed Vegetables	50
Onion Rings, French Fries	35
LATE RISER* (2 eggs, toast, home fries)	65

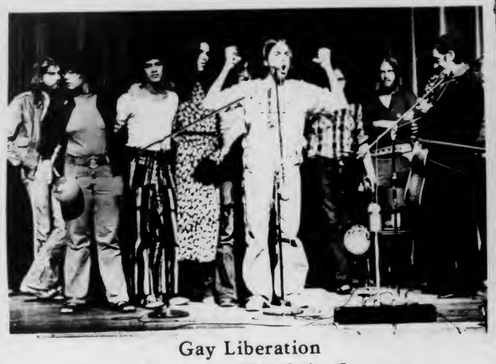
FROM 1 AM 'TIL 11 AM...

2 Eggs, toast, home fries	65
Griddle Cakes	65
French Toast	55
Side Orders:
Bacon, Ham	30
Sausage (3 Pieces)	45
Muffins	15
Bagel and cream cheese	30

(DAILY SPECIALS EVERY DAY)
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT TUE, THU, SAT NIGHTS

Confrontation Key Tactic

Continued From Page 3



the USCC (University and State Communications Council) conducted extensive letter campaigns, urging parents to voice disapproval of the proposed hike. They lobbied before the House and Senate in Boston. The effort was coordinated throughout the institutions of higher education in Massachusetts.

Robert Wood, newly installed UMass President, contended that even doubling the $200 tuition from the 24,000 students on the three UMass Campuses (Amherst, Boston and Worcester) would cull only 4.8 million dollars against a 75 million dollar University budget, and a 150 million dollar state tax gap this year. He opposed the increase. Chairman of the Board Joseph P. Healy said the trustees of the University would fight it also. Even the Board of Higher Education was opposed. When the bill was finally defeated in the Senate, it was with an odd kind of relief these figures returned to their various squabbles with one another.

Students went back to fighting students within and without the Student Senate. Initially under fire was a bill passed to pay a salary to the Student Senate officers.

"That Student Senate officers should be expected to devote an exceptional amount of time to the duties of their elected offices and that they should not be expected to be any more affluent than the average student" was the rationale behind President Elters resolution. He asked that the President of the Student Senate be paid $150 per month, and that the Vice President and Treasurer receive $125 compensation per month. (The Senate Secretary is already a paid professional) The pay should be retroactive to November, he also qualified.

The Senate voted itself the salaries, but a student referendum nullified its action. The legislation was passed again, in slightly altered form later in the year with provisions for both the executive and administrative Vice Presidents to be paid. But again the measure was put to a student referendum. Not before the officers collected their retroactive pay, however.

Gay Liberation
Center Stage At Phil Ochs Concert

The One Dealership
in Hampshire County where you can buy —

Guaranteed Used Cars

New Dodge and American Motors Cars and the world's most popular motorcycle . . .

Honda

Cahillane Motors Inc.

Dodge - American Motors - Honda

375 South st. Route Ten, Northampton

584-3792

House of Walsh, Inc.

Where good taste is never out of style!

Four Good Reasons For Visiting The House of Walsh, Inc.

1 The Men's Shop
Presenting the finest in men's wear...

2 The Ladies' Shop
Presenting the finest in imported and Domestic Fashions.

3 The Ski-Skeller
Everything for the ski-slopes, repairs.

4 The Tennis and Squash Shop

House of Walsh, Inc.
Amherst, Massachusetts
"ON THE VILLAGE COMMON"
Daily 9:00 to 5:30 253-3361

Professor Kindahl
Out Of A Job

Dr. Bromery
Into A Job

collected their retroactive pay, however.

President Elters, carefully observing the five day time limit on calling a referendum by the student body, forced Senator Bob Waters to collect the 3800 signatures he needed with lightening speed. Waters was successful despite the opposition and the students again defeated the bill, this time 1,264 to 284 but in the opinion requested of the General Court (the student judiciary) no judicial action was taken to recover the funds. The Court merely ruled that the Senate Treasurer was wrong in the disbursement of them before the student referendum.

The salary snafu was not the only bit of student legislation with which the student body in general became embroiled. When the perennial dispute over lodging non-resident students over extended vacations was finally settled, the girls of Calvin Coolidge Lower protested. Their dorm was chosen number one in the lottery which ordered the dorms in the sequence they would be inconvenienced by the short term residents.

Coolidge refused to comply with the arrangement as the vacation period approached, but ultimately it was forced to yield before Senate and Administration pressure. Victory for student administration in this round, but Coolidge's suggestion to commandeer the hotel in the Campus Center is being studied more closely in preparation for round two this year, when choice number two is expected to battle the lottery.

Similarly the Dickinson House-WMUA crisis which remained unresolved at the end of last year is expected to come up again. WMUA is the student owned and operated radio station at UMass. Last year it received the go-ahead from all the powers that be (Trustees, Administration, Student Senate and the Federal Communication Commission) to increase its power, but Dickinson House, a dorm on Orchard Hill, won't allow MUA to erect the new tower it needs on Dickinson's roof.

Dickinson is the ideal location for the tower, WMUA claims, because of its height over the campus. The dorm says that the seventh floor ironing room is more important to its residents, and the tower would interfere with its function. When Student Senate Vice President Pat Beharry attempted to mediate on the floor of the Senate, the dispute worsened. Dickinson vs. MUA was thus unresolved.

Disgusted with the disrepair of their

Continued On Page 6

" how long can you keep an ice cube frozen in your room ? "

3 cu. ft.
50% more space

rent a refrigerator !

only $22.50 a semester (based on yearly rates,)

The perfect solution for late night snacks, study breaks, and even a whole meal . . . save money . . . no more vending machines to gobble up your funds . . . save time . . . it's right in your own room . . . rent one for the whole year for only pennies per day . . . even less . . . when cost is split with your roommate . . . approved by the university for in-room use . . . compact . . . lightweight . . . handsome walnut exterior has a beautiful furniture appearance . . . doubles as a table . . . quick freezing . . . can freeze up a new tray of large size ice cubes in only 45 minutes . . . holds over 36 cans of canned drinks . . . if unit fails call representative for immediate replacement . . . free pick up and delivery included in rental fee . . . limited supply — call now to reserve your unit today!

creative conveniences, inc.
p.o. box 103 amherst, mass. 01002

call 586-3480 now
for free delivery

Alternate Rooms Still Just A Concept

Continued From Page 4

rooms and equipment, Central Area students did resolve to allieviate the ills of the oldest residential area on campus. Since the Physical Plant did not have a large enough work force to handle the task and maintain the University at the same time, approximately 65 worked over Spring break to "make the dorms livable." The University provided the materials and paid the students minimum wage.

Some of these same students were instrumental in developing security programs to augment the less than adequate arrangements provided through the University.

The rash of thefts, rapes and damages in the Quad and girl's towers in Southwest prompted some sort of action, but when residence heads met with Dr. Randolph W. Bromery, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, and Douglas Forsythe, Acting Director of Security, little progress was made. The University was remiss only through lack of funds, they were told. Volunteer student guards manned the teams until the funds were finally appropriated. Did someone say students don't fight for anything worthwhile?

Mohammed Ali
"Purpose Of Life"

Economics professor Michael Best became the Christ figure in yet another student Crusade last year, the struggle of the favorite teacher vs. the "publish or perish" ethic. The Committee to Save Mike Best did its best, but was thrown to the lions after somewhat less than a trial by fire and water. The tenure committee "fired" Best even though students wanted to retain him on the faculty. 95% of the 140 students who filled out questionnaires in Best's class rated him an "excellent" teacher.

"I was not aware it was essential for me to publish in my first year," Best said. "Instead I concentrated on developing a teaching style which would bring to my students a practical awareness of economics."

His supporters lost the battle when the department "terminated Best's contract" because of "insufficient creative research", but some found comfort in Professor James Kindahl's resignation from his post as head of the Economics department. Kindahl stepped down for reasons which he said "had no connection with the Best...controversy" but to many his move represented the beginning of the end of the conservative view in the Economics Department.

Conservative was hardly the word for the Board of Trustee's view in the Co-ed dorm department last year, though. The Board wouldn't even come out with a yes or no after its own sub-committee recommended that freshmen be allowed to live in co-ed dorms. Instead it delegated the responsibility for developing student living arrangements and social and academic programs within campus housing to the UMass Administration in Whitmore.

Mrs. Caroline Roland, chairman of the Student Life Sub-committee, had urged the Board to "formulate a general policy on student life instead of becoming mired in specifics.". The responsibility for the specifics ultimately fell to Dr. Bromery, who drew up guidelines for participants in co-ed dorms and promised to work to realize the value in offering a variety of living arrangements to students.

Bromery and a student committee also reviewed the numerous proposals submitted by dorms to "go co-ed" and they approved six. None were based on the alternate room concept, however, as that arrangement is still under consideration by the Student Affairs staff. (That staff is now in the process of redefining its role "in order to better know how we can work for the student", according to a task force spokesman.)

The Student Union Governing (SUG) Board is undergoing a similiar review. With the opening of the Campus Center last fall the question of its responsibilities and role became important, even vital to the status of student power on the campus as a dispute arose over office space in the building.

An administration attempt to acquire office space in the "Awful Waffle" during Christmas vacation, bypassing any effort to consult students in the matter, initiated the dispute. When one administrator pointed out to the SUG Board President Betty Pugh that "legally the Board can act only as an advisory body, and its decisions could be overruled by the Chancellor, the President or the Trustees," she appointed a task force to define exactly where the SUG Board stands. Just who formulates the policy in the Campus Center is uncertain. The task force expects to find out if it is the students or the Administration this year.

Continued On Page 7

Veterans For Peace
Minor interest in march

WELCOME !!

Whether you are returning,
or arriving for the first time remember —

When Car Troubles Strike

Come to

Triangle 66
Service Center

Tires - Batteries - Accessories
Complete Auto Service
Tune-ups
Inspection Station
Road Service

203 Triangle St.
Amherst, Mass.

Dial 253-9089

MDC

Classifieds

Pay.

Sell

just about anything.

Give them a try.

Rent a refrigerator for your room.

Just $4.44 a month.*

You can keep a complete supply of snacks and refreshments—including milk, fresh fruits and other perishables—right in your dormitory room with a Mini-Kool refrigerator. And the convenience of a Mini-Kool can be yours for just pennies a day.

Nobody can match these exclusive Mini-Kool advantages.

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Versatile—makes ice cubes, doubles as end table

EXTRA EXCLUSIVES

- Free pick-up and delivery
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Guaranteed—if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.

CALL 253-2494, 256-8488

mini kool

New Roles For Students

One thing is certain. It is the Administration that determines the price students pay for room and board. Last year the Administration asked "student leaders" to recommend the most agreeable alternatives for room and board from a list of options it had developed. Chancellor Tippo and Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services Thomas Campion briefed the students in great detail, so the bigger bill came as no surprise to most of the campus this year.

What may have surprised some people were the options offered for board. At the start of second semester Chairman Jessee O'Leary cancelled what might have proven to be an extensive boycott of the dining commons. The boycotters, who were protesting mandatory meal tickets in Southwest were told that they might be expelled for non-payment of their bills, so the movement lost support. But the administration came up with several plans in response to the furor raised—a sometimes uncommon outcome to a protest.

Then again, the academic year '70-'71 saw results from several demonstrations. As a result of the lettuce boycott, Joel Stoneham, Director of Food Services, agreed to at least label non-union lettuce if the price prohibited the buying of union lettuce; and Administrators promised to finance a play center for the children of students and staff after a group of mothers held a "party" in the Whitmore's main lobby.

Other reactions to UMass student activism last year ranged from drug busts to exaggerated headlines in the Springfield papers to advice on what to do about the world situation. Bernadette Devlin, the fiery heroine of the Catholic movement in Ireland, urged students to recognize the real problem in the world...the struggle of the working class. Mrs. W.E. Dubois, said to fight the color line. Bill Russell, basketball great, took a more general tact and asked UMass students to "make things right for everyone". Even Mohamjed Ali stopped "shuffling" for a moment and told the packed Cage that "the first knowledge we must achieve is of our purpose of life."

The words that echoed longest in the corners of the UMass campus were probably Dick Gregory's, however. He said students, UMies, were society's new "niggers". He said students were going to be bearing the brunt of criticism from now on. He said students were going to be the ones busted from now on. Looking back to the Mayday demonstrations and mass arrests, he was right at least once.

Mayday and the DC rally on April 24th were probably the biggest and most important political demonstration UMass students were involved in all year. The SMC (Student Mobilization Committee) did not attract much of a campus following to its periodic war protests and there was only minor interest in the Veterans for Peace march on Westover Air Force Base. The guerilla theatre interested a few people, but it performed only twice-once for the Dow recruiter and once to mock John D. Rockefeller when he came to give the Five College Area a grant.

When Tom Hayden of the Chicago 7 asked UMass students what was behind their "disinterested and cool attitude" toward the anti-war movement this year, they told him that the Student Strike had seemed "ineffectual", that it had accomplished little. It would have been interesting to see his reaction to the big deal Jim LaMacchia made when he ran for Winter Carni Queen, or the trouble the "Grayson 7" got themselves into when they tried to compete with the business run up by the Top of the Campus bar.

Enough said about the UMass versions of women's liberation and student suppression. A completely different political scene could develop this year, with the potential power of the student vote yet to be wielded. Last year, students at UMass and area colleges were turned away by Town Clerk Ester Dimmock when they attempted to register in Amherst. This year they must be allowed to register, per order of Attorney General Quinn. Amherst could plausibly be usurped by the students.

With that in mind, and now two student trustees on the Board, one each from the Boston and Amherst campuses, UMass could be harboring some people who could make '71-'72 quite an eventful year. The war Glenn Elters declared might ravage more than the Faculty Senate.

Dick Gregory
Who's The Nigger?

Robert Quinn
Who's The Voter?

Jim LaMacchia
Another Contestant

THE JOLLY BULL RESTAURANT

Rte. 9 Hadley

LUNCHEON-COCKTAILS
DINNER

LUNCH
Mon. - Fri. 11:30 - 2:30

DINNER
Mon. - Sat. 5 - 10
Sun. 12 - 8

NEVER ON TUESDAYS

Reservations Recommended

584-2769

Live Entertainment Friday - Saturday

U of M Desk Pads

U of M Blotters

U of M Stationery

College Course Outlines
95 Titles

Laundry Bags

Bulletin Boards

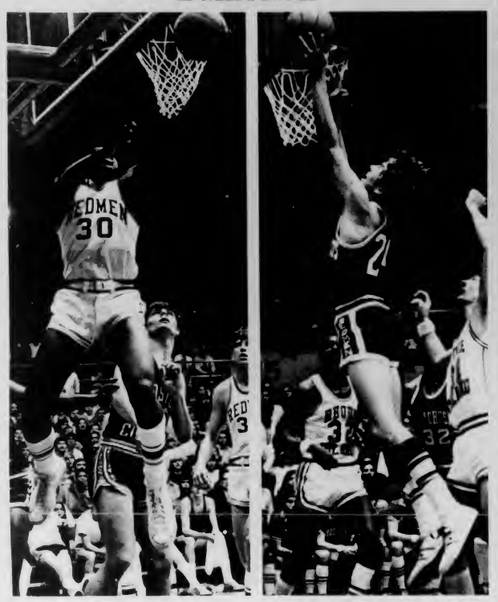
Crepe Paper

Sporting Goods

Typewriting Supplies

Pocketbooks, Magazines & Newspapers

A. J. Hastings, Inc.



NEWSDEALER & STATIONER

Amherst, Mass.

Open 5 a.m. - 9 p.m. Daily
Open 5 a.m. - 1 p.m. Sunday

Redman Sports Hit New Heights

Basketball

Frosh
17-1

Varsity
23-4

Support Your Local Dealer.

THE DEALER

A CLOTHING STORE

56½ Main St. Amherst, Mass.

Baseball Football

FENTON'S

Athletic Supplies

Wholesale & Retail

SOCCER
TRACK
SWIMMING
HANDBALL
SQUASH
BADMINTON
VOLLEYBALL
LACROSSE

Supplying the Amherst Area with the finest in Athletic Supplies and Equipment.

GOLF
TENNIS
SPORTSWEAR
TABLE TENNIS
JOGGING
SOFTBALL
RUGBY

Distributors of Rawling's MacGregor Spalding, Wilson, Cooper - Weeks, CCM, White Stag - Speedo, Ocean-Pool, also Adidas, Puma, Onitsuka - Tiger, Converse and Pro-Keds.

Replacement Supplies for U. Mass. and Amherst College

377 Main St., Amherst

253-3979

Basketball Hockey

Football

4-5-1

Track

Soccer

7-2-1

YOU do your THING -

I'LL do MINE

I like it when people come in here and say my pizza is the best they've had in years. I feel good when kids stop on their way out to tell me how comfortable they feel in my store and how they appreciate the warm way my wife and I treat them. I get a charge out of throwing a pizza in the air when kids ask me to.

Feeding my ego? - Probably. But don't knock me for it and I won't tell you how to get your kicks.

Bruni's Pizza

MAIN & TRIANGLE 256-6676

the Tripod CAMERA SHOP, Inc.

SONY & A R

STEREO COMPONENTS

Fine Photographic Equipment

By: HASSELBLAD, NIKON, LEICA, HONEYWELL, KONICA, MINOLTA, ROLLEI, CANON, YASHICA

"... It's service after the sale that counts!"

98 N. Pleasant Street
AMHERST, MASS. 01002
Phone 253-3039

219 Main Street
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 01060
Phone 584-6040

Hockey

13 Wins

ECAC Division II
Playoffs

Pat Keenan

P.J. Flaherty

Follow Redman Sports In The MDC

COUPON CLIPPING SAVES YOU MONEY AT THE LISTENING POST

The largest selection of Records, Tapes, Accessories and Stereo Components-at the best prices in the five college area headquaters for AR ★ BSR ★ DUAL ★ GARRARD ★ KENWOOD ★ KLH ★ SUPEREX ★ TANDERG ★ TANDBERG

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
ONE DOLLAR
off our regular price of any Diamond Needle

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
ONE DOLLAR
off our regular price of any set
Gibson Guitar Strings

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
ONE DOLLAR
off our regular price of any prerecorded
8 Track Tape

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
ONE DOLLAR
off our regular price of any
Pre Recorded Cassette

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
FIVE DOLLARS
off our regular price of any
Stereo Headphone

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
FIVE DOLLARS
off our regular price of any
AIWA or MILOVAC
Cassette Recorder

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
FIVE DOLLARS
off our regular price of any
AR Turntable or Speaker

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
20% Off Our Reg. Price of any
Pickering Cartridge

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For
ONE FREE
BASF Cassette
with the purchase of two at our regular price

VALUABLE COUPON
This Coupon Good For FIFTY CENTS
off our regular price of any Record In Stock

Coupons Redeemable Thru Saturday Sept. 18, 1971 At
THE LISTENING POST

25 SO. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST
Tel. 256-8376
Open Mon.-Fri. till 9 p.m.

186 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
Tel. 584-0015
Open Thurs. till 9 p.m.

Tips For Survival

If you are new to the University, you will learn to hate the Dining Commons by about this time next week. If you have been here for a year or two or three or four, you already hate the DC and have found one or several substitutes around the area. There are a number of very good restaurants around here, and there are even more not very good ones. So, with the help of a few of my friends, I've put together a list of as many of the restaurants in the area as we knew anything about. So here, in alphabetical order, are most of the restaurants, drive-ins, and what-have-you within striking range of the University. When an address is given with no town name, the establishment is in Amherst.

A&W - a drive-in with excellent root beer and the usual drive-in fare. Pleasant St., Northampton.

Alexander's - in back of the Miss Florence Diner (see below).

Amherst Tower - part of a chain of pizza and sub places. Caters a bit more to the high school group, and the menu, while varied, is not outstanding. 11 East Pleasant St.

Aqua Vitae - Whether you're going out just for pizza, or for a full Italian meal, AV is highly recommended. Their lasagne is especially outstanding. A good place to go on week nights, though Sunday afternoons bring enormous crowds. In Hadley on Route 9 almost to the Connecticut River.

The Bamboo Hut - the area's only Chinese restaurant as such, located in the Hotel Northampton 36 King Street.

Bay State Hotel - general American fare: steaks, chops, etc. 41 Strong Street, Northampton.

Bell's Pizza - what can one say about Bell's? The clientele is always interesting to watch as are the employees. Their oven cooked grinders are excellent, especially tunafish and roast beef, though the pizzas are nothing special at all. The only question is "To go, to stay?" 65 University Drive.

Bluebonnet Diner - on "The Strip", 324 King Street, Northampton. The food's not half bad.

Burger Chef - standard gut-bombs, fries, etc. Like McDonalds, at 229 King Street, Northampton.

Burger King - one tiny step above the normal drive-in, though nothing special, "Home of the Whopper." 330 King Street, Northampton.

Carlo of Naples - I've never known anyone who ate here. 45 State Street, Northampton.

Chequers - a popular embibing spot which also serves food. Hope you can find a parking place, the lot's often crowded. At the traffic light just south of the stadium.

Colonial Hilton Inn - well, if you've got LOTS of bread, or if your parents are taking you out for supper, this is one of the "fine" restaurants in the area. In Northampton at the junction of Interstate 91 and route 5. It's a Hilton.

Drummer Boy - Bummer Boy may be the worst drive-in in the world. They have tried serving a greater variety of things, but it ain't much at all. Between Chequers and Bells.

The English Pub - another popular libation emporium, a fun place, next to the Tower on East Pleasant St.

The Filling Station - 71 Pleasant St., Northampton.

Flavorland - an ice cream place not unlike Friendly's, at 8 North King Street, Northampton.

Flavortowne - also an ice cream counter. 94 North Pleasant St.

Florentine Room - Don't know anyone whose been here either, 324 King St., Northampton.

Friendly Ice Cream - a New England Tradition. I like Fribbles and Strawberry Royals. They also have hamburgers and sandwiches, though avoid their fish sandwich. Route 9 at the Amherst-Hadley line and 63 King Street, Northampton.

Gas Lite - there are two of these ice cream and light meal places in Amherst, at 36 Main St. and 168 North Pleasant.

Grist Mill - one of the best restaurants in the Valley, it's expensive, but the food is excellent. Route 116, about a mile south of Amherst College toward Hampshire College.

Hardee's - "Where the burgers are charco broiled" and that is about the only thing that distinguishes Hardees from any other similar place. Their fish sandwich is edible though. On route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst line.

Highway Grille - all kinds of food: pizza, chicken, steaks, and so on. On route 9 a mile east of Amherst College toward Belchertown.

Howard Johnson's - plastic food for plastic people in a plastic atmosphere. But they do have those all the chicken and all the fish you can eat days which, if you starve all week, can be a real bargain. On route 9 just west of the Hadley-Amherst line at route 116.

Hungry-U - one of a number of pizza and grinder places around. Not good, not bad, just pizza and grinders. 103 N. Pleasant.

Jack August's Original Seafood Restaurant - by far the best seafood place around here, reasonable prices, simple decor, damn good seafood. On route 9 in Northampton at the railroad bridge.

Joe's Cafe - perhaps one of the best Italian restaurants around, good inexpensive food, highly recommended. 33 Market Street, Northampton.

Kara-Mia - If you live in Southwest and are tired of the Little Hatch, you might consider going over to Kara-Mia. It is a pizza and grinder place, neither are outstanding, there's often a long wait for both food and the pin ball machines. Sunset Avenue and Fearing Street.

Kentucky Fried Chicken - The Colonel is your host for greasy chicken and all the fixin's. Recently expanded menu. 150 King Street, Northampton.

Kim Toy - This little shop has Chinese food to go in addition to a number of canned and packaged oriental foods which can be purchased. 32 Amity Street, next to Amherst Savings Bank.

The Lord Jeffery - Very traditional, now owned by Amherst College, there chef used to work for Cunard (Getting there is half the fun). Again an expensive spot, but apparently one of the best. Next to the Amherst Common on Boltwood Ave.

Lums - A big place on Amity Street near the public library. I've never been there.

McDonalds - just think, if you're lucky you may get to eat the 10 billionth hamburger, and it will taste like the 10 billionth. 221 King Street, Northampton.

James McManus - not a bad place at all. I like the Barn Door Special; they've got good ice cream, sandwiches, etc. Between Zayre and Stop-n-Shop at the Hadley-Amherst line.

Miss Florence Diner-this is absolutely my favorite place around here. Here is a bit of classic Americana-waitresses yelling out orders in their own peculiar jargon, delicious meals, and you can get a damn good dinner for under $2.00. There is often a line on Sunday Afternoon, so be patient, it is worth the wait. 99 Main St., (Route 9) Florence.

Mr. Burg-you will be stared at if you go in here, so be prepared because every sobering up red neck in the valley makes an appearance in the only 24 hour place around (other than Dunkin' Donuts). A real zoo Friday and Saturday nights. Slow service, poor food. 184 King Street, Northampton

Northern Food Shop-Specializing in Roast Beef dinners, this shop is in North Amherst at 1177 North Pleasant.

Notch Steak House-I've heard good and bad about the Notch, though I've never been there. On route 116, 5 miles south of Amherst on the way to South Hadley in the notch of the Holyoke range.

Rapp's-a deli with all sorts of goodies. Their grinders are enormous, the potato salad is good, but they serve terrible soda. 76 South Pleasant, behind the Peter Pan Bus station.

Rose's-Polish and Italian foods at 154 King Street, Northampton.

The Rustic-37 North Pleasant St.

The Town House-another chicken and steak house on Route 9 in Belchertown, a mile or so east of the Amherst line.

Wiggin's Tavern-Some say this is THE BEST restaurant in the area. It is expensive, the atmosphere is Old New England, and the food is supposed to be superb. At the Hotel Northampton, 36 King Street, Northampton.

Leftovers:

Bruni's-a new place with good (though expensive) pizza. The folks who run the place are friendly, you buy your soda from a machine. Main and Triangle Streets.

Hadley Pizza and Sub-Very inexpensive and very good subs. I haven't had their pizza. This place should have lots of student customers. On Route 9 between Hadley center and the river.

Jim Dandy Golden Fried Chicken-the chicken is crisp instead of greasy here, and its not all that bad. Owned by Friendly's, its on King Street near Dunkin Donuts in Northampton.

Well, there is a survey of the "eateries" around the Valley. Doubtless there have been some omissions, for which I apologize. But there is plenty of variety in this list, so if you don't feel like eating at the Dining Commons or cooking your own food, I hope this compemdium helps you.

You won't fully appreciate how well it's made unless it breaks down.

Lucky for you, the Volkswagen was designed by a bunch of dedicated perfectnuts. They spent a fantastic amount of time making it easy to fix.

For most engine adjustments, the mechanic simply lifts the rear hood and starts adjusting.

All the vital parts are right there out in the open where he can get at them.

So a carburetor overhaul, for instance, takes nearly half as long (and costs nearly half as much) on a Volkswagen as it does on a gizmomatic car.

If the engine ever needs major surgery, the mechanic just loosens 4 bolts and a few connections and pulls the whole works out where they can be worked on.

Even with complications, the entire operation has hardly ever taken more than 38 minutes. It takes at least 2 or 3 times as long on most cars.

So if your VW ever breaks down, the reason you won't wait very long or pay very much to have it fixed is that it's so well made.

But chances are it won't break down at all.

For the very same reason.

Northampton Volkswagen

584-8620 246 King St. Northampton, Mass. 534-0660 534-0791

Welcome Back, Students

Visit Our Store for a complete selection of all your Student Needs.

Pin Up and Desk Lamps	assorted colors	from	4.50 each
Wooden Clothes Dryers		from	2.49 each
Electric Alarm Clocks		from	3.98 each
Walnut Finished Bookcases		from	18.95
Zenith Transistor Radios		from	16.95 each
Sunlamps	with Clamp Reflector complete	only	14.39
Plastic and Metal Waste Baskets		from	98¢
Skirt & Blouse Hangers	Clothes Hangers Shoe Racks	from	88¢ each

PLUS - Gadgets - Extension Cords - Light Bulbs - Picture Hooks - Plugs - Outlets - Moulding Hooks - Hot Pots - Closet Accessories - Unfinished Furniture.

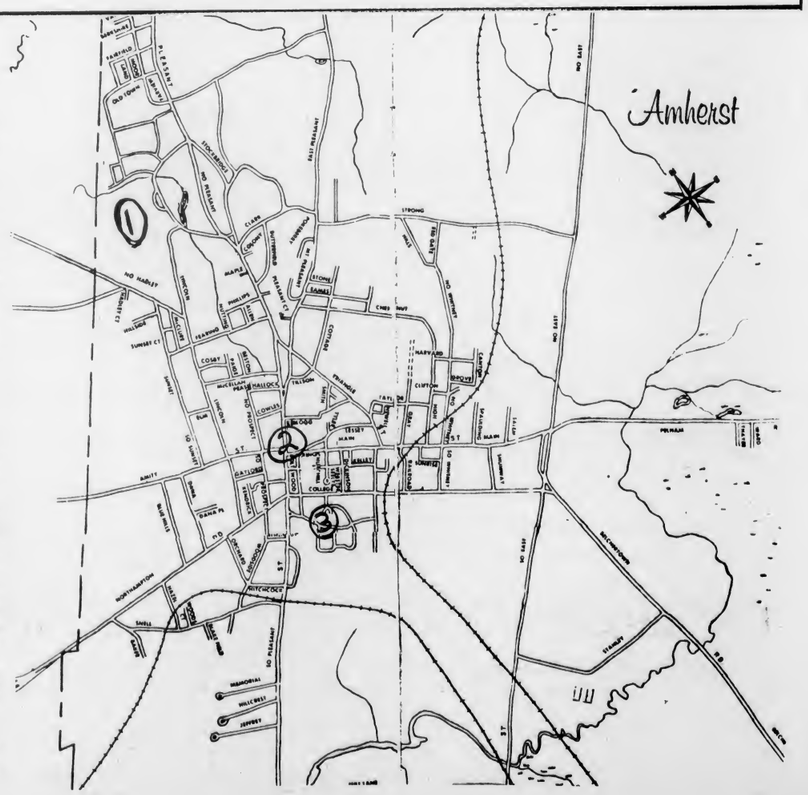
HAMPSHIRE COUNTY'S LEADING HARDWARE STORE

Foster-Farrar Co.

584-8811
162 MAIN ST.

Open Thurs. Eve.
NORTHAMPTON

three places to make your pad more exciting . . . .



dangling conversation borders of our lives superficial smile

pottery	bead spreads	posters
art paints	parsons tables	pants
jewelry	beaded curtains	jerseys
incense	furniture	records
cards	dinnerware	tapes
totebags	gourmet kitchen	pipes
candles	toys	papers

three unique stores on north pleasant street

open 9:30-5:30 mon.-sat. open fridays til 9

Welcome To Amherst

To your right you will see a somewhat useful (though somewhat more ancient) street map of your new home town. To help you get your bearings more easily we have dotted the map with tricky little numbers in a code most of you will be able to easily decipher. For those having a problem, hopefully you're new around here. Number 1 is, of course, the wonderful University of Massachusetts or, as we like to call it, home. Number 2 represents the sprawling business section of downtown Amherst while number 3, for those who are still lost, is that world famous bastion of liberal education, Amherst College.

There is a lot more to Amherst, though, than the three spots already mentioned, especially for historically-minded individuals. Probably the most well-known point of historical and literary interest is the Emily Dickinson House on Main Street which is now the property of Amherst College. In the same vein, former residences of Helen Hunt Jackson, Eugene Field, Robert Frost, Ray Stannard Baker, Martha Dickinson Bianchi and Howard Garis are also located in the city (if you really want to try to find them). Also, a plaque across the street from the Town Hall marks the site of Noah Webster's farm. The Strong House on Amity Street, owned by the Amherst Historical Society, is open to the public.

On the following page you will find another map as well as some more useful information about Amherst and the surrounding areas.

Are You Sure You Know Where You're Going?

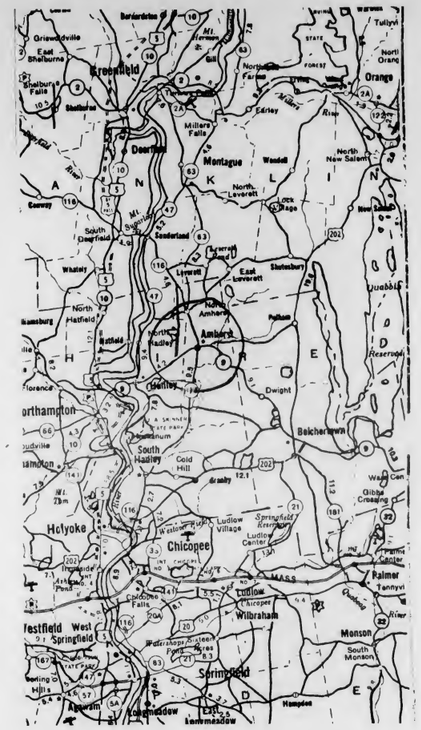
Going somewhere? Chances are that before long you'll be wanting to make some kind of journey so now is a good time to find out how to go. If you're new to UMass too, there are a few things you should know.

If you have a car, bus, bike or other means of non-pedestrial transportation, you are one step ahead of the game already, especially if you live in the New England - New York area (which includes about everyone). The completion of Route 2 makes Boston reachable in under two hours without bothering with the Mass Pike and tolls. Albany is also a two hour trek and Hartford is an hour away on Route 91. New York City is about a three and a half hour journey while Springfield is only forty minutes away along Route 91.

Besides the obvious advantages of being able to transport yourself to and from home easily, having your own vehicle has many other advantages. For the lovers of nature, Vermont and New Hampshire provide some beautiful sights all year round but especially in the fall. The area also offers a variety of fishing spots for the sportsmen. For the more practically minded, a car offers the opportunity of escaping the Dining Commons-Hatch syndrome on weekends (or anytime for that matter).

The Amherst area offers a wide variety of beautiful settings within easy driving or hitchiking distance. For picnics, there is Amherst's own Groff Park; the summitt of Mount Sugarloaf in South Deerfield; the Quabbin Reservoir, from Route 9 beyond Belchertown; the Mount Tom Reservation, from Easthampton or from Route 5; Skinner State Park, on Mount Holyoke in South Hadley; and Look Park in Florence.

If you're not lucky enough to have private transportation, there are, of course, other alternatives. You can get just about anywhere courtesy of Peter Pan Bus Lines if you're not in a hurry and you can scrape together enough money for a ticket. If you are planning to travel by bus, check the schedules ahead of time to find out when the express buses are running and, if possible, try to get on one of them. It sometimes is worth cutting a class for, especially just before vacations or long weekends. Always travel as light as possible and get to the bus stop well before the scheduled time of departure if you want a seat. Enough for Peter Pan.



If you're destination is only reachable by rail, you must take a bus to Springfield and make connections there. Railroads are one of the modern conveniences that have not yet reached Amherst.

For those few of you who need to fly to and from home, or are just hung up on planes, you've come to the right place. Private facilities are available at LaFleur Airport just seven miles away. If it's a longer trip you're interested in, the Amherst Chamber of Commerce brochure points out that "there is scheduled limousine service between Amherst and Bradley Field, providing jet service to the airports of the world." So welcome to Amherst, the metropolitan town.

Church Directory

For those interested in making arrangements for religious worship, we provide the following list of churches in Amherst:

AME Zion, Woodside Ave.
First Baptist Church, North Pleasant St.
First Congregational Church, Main St.
Second Congregational Church, Main St.
Hope Congregational Church, Gaylord St.
North Congregational Church, North Pleasant St.
South Congregational Church, South Amherst
Grace Episcopal Church, Boltwood Ave.
Wesley Methodist Church, North Pleasant St.
Saint Brigid's Roman Catholic Church, North Pleasant St.
Amherst Unitarian Church, North Pleasant St.
Mt. Toby Meeting of Friends, Route 63, Leverett
Newman Center, North Pleasant St.
Immanuel Lutheran Church, North Pleasant St.

Before the panic sets in . . .

take a study break —

the PHOENIX BOOKSHOP

has something for everyone to read and enjoy —

and if we don't,

we'll order

it for you.

Phoenix Bookshop

65 University Drive

(Next To Bell's)

Open Mon. Thru Fri. 9-9
Sat. 9-5

College Drug Store

Amherst, Mass.

Cosmetics Fragrances

"Love"
Yardley - Bonnie Belle
"L'Oreal"
Max Factor - Pure Majic
"DuBarry"
Revlon - Naturel Wonder
"Coty"
Al May - Hypo-allergenic

FRAGRANCES

Shalimar - L'air DuTemps - Caron
Christian Dior - J. D'Albret
Madame Rochas - Femme
Magriffe - Wind Song - Cachet
Maja - Intimate - Emeraude
Blue Grass - Chantilly - Kiku
Ambush - Tabu - Tweed
Heaven Sent - Dessert Flower

Men's Cologne and After Shave

Fragrances Cosmetics

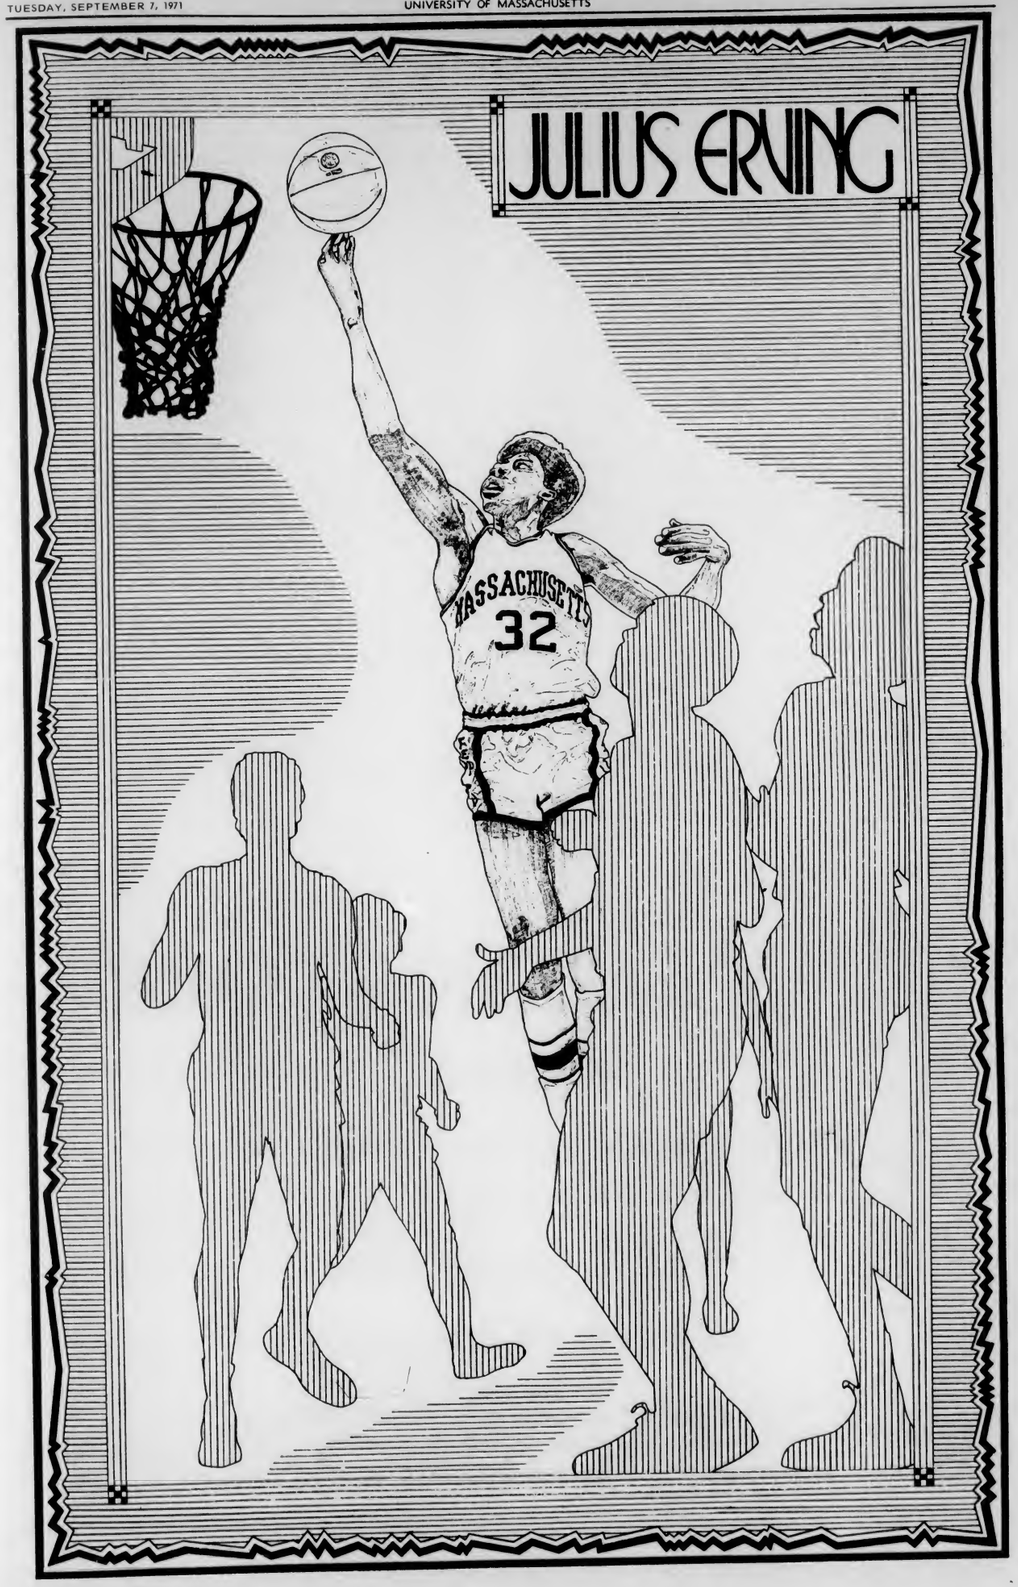
College Drug Store

Amherst

What A Difference A Year Makes

Vic Fusia

Jack Deaver



Yes, a lot of things can change in a year. New faces take the places of old ones and before you know it, the new ones seem old. Sometimes, however, a face sticks with you a little more than usual, probably because the man behind it is a little more than usual. Such is the case with the men on these pages. In one way or another, each of them touched almost every student on campus during his stay here and considering the size of this place, that is no small feat. The sad part of it is that these men have all passed from the UMass scene and new men have replaced them. Perhaps some will be better, some worse. But Jack Deaver of the Comp Lit department, Put Barber of the Sociology department, Vic Fusia, former head football coach, and Warren McGuirk, former Dean of the School of Physical Education and Director of Athletics will remain in our minds a little while longer. So will Julius Erving, perhaps the greatest athlete to ever don a UMass uniform, who has moved along to perform even greater feats. Who can forget having waited in line hours just to see him play and never having gone away feeling cheated? Yes, things change but sometimes you kind of wish they wouldn't.

Warren McGuirk

Put Barber

Intramurals Continue To Grow

More than any other activity on campus, intramurals can truly be said to involve people. Since its inception in 1867 when students played interclass Baseball, the intramural program has blossomed into a year round proposition involving approximately three out of every five male students on campus. With the recent addition of a women's intramural director, the girls will be getting into the act in greater numbers in the coming years, too.

Intramurals serve the two fold purpose of providing a structure for organized physical conditioning as well as giving students an opportunity to enjoy themselves while working together with friends, dorm mates or fraternity brothers. This year, 18 different sports will be available with Touch Football tentatively scheduled to kick the year off on September 20.

For the girls, powder puff football, a new event on the IM calendar, will begin on September 27. This program, as all other women's sports, will be supervised by Merrie Fidler, the new Assistant Intramural Director, who recently came to UMass from the Univ. of Cal. at Davis.

As always, the usual awards and trophies will be awarded to the superior teams and individuals in each sport. The Campus Champion in each sport receives a trophy as do the runner-up and third place finisher. Also, the team accumulating the most points in each division for the academic year is awarded with either the Olympus Cup, for fraternities, the Chancellors Cup, for residence halls, or the Provosts Cup, for independents. The unit receiving the most campus points out of these three also receive the Stephen Davis Award, emblematic of intramural supremacy. Also awarded is the Graduate-Faculty Cup to the superior team in that league. If you're interested in winning one of these trophies, make sure you get your team's entry forms in for Touch Football by Sept. 13, Tug-O-War and Badminton Singles by Sept. 15 and Cross Country by Sept. 21. For further information about entries or health forms, check your intramural handbook or with the Intramural Office in Boyden.

Eric Krohn receives Chet Gladchuck award as Outstanding IM Athlete of 1970-71.

Outstanding Athletic Chairmen of 1970-71 were (l-r) Dan Podgurski, Eric Krohn and Paul Leddy.

Civil Engineering - Winners of 1970-71 Graduate-Faculty Cup.

Visit The

NEW BOOK STORE

in Amherst

After nearly 40 years, The Jeffery Amherst Bookshop has gone through a complete reorganization.

40% more titles

66 subject categories

For The Books You Need-For The Books You Want

The Jeffery Amherst Bookshop

55 South Pleasant - On the Green

HILLEL AT U. of Mass. Rm. 420, Student Union 545-2525

Lectures' - Brunches - Religious Services - Picnics - Deli Suppers - Folk Sings - Coffee Houses - Israeli Dancing.

September 9 Picnic - Bowditch Lodge
September 12 Brunch - Campus Center Cafeteria
COME AND JOIN US!

"I Support The Intramural Program"
--Oswald Tippo
Chancellor

HARLOW'S

Fine Luggage and Leather Goods
Keys

Free Delivery on Trunks Repaired

18 Center St. NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
584-5233

The Olympus Cup And The Stephen Davis Award:

Phi Mu Delta

IM Award Winners Of 1970-71

The Chancellor's Cup:

Kennedy Panthers

A Head of Time Inc.

Add to your environment with Waterbeds, Bedspreads, Lamps, and Fur Area Rugs!!

Rte. 9 - Belchertown Rd - Amherst 253-5394

The Provosts Cup:

3 M's

IM Entries Due Soon

If you too would like to become an intramural athlete, the time to start working is right now. Touch Football will be under way in less than two weeks and unless your team has its entry and health forms in by September 13, it will lose its chance to earn valuable campus points. Tug-O-War and Badminton Singles entry deadlines are both on September 15. If you're interested in trying to win one of the trophies, it is important to enter as many events as possible so don't put it off. Check the Intramural flyers or the IM handbook for more information or go directly to the Intramural Office on the second floor in the Boyden Building.

Need Paint ??

For apartment touch ups, furniture, refurbishing, in all colors (as well as deep mixed colors), plus equipment for the job.

VISIT

Wright's Paint & Wall Paper

9 PRAY ST. AMHERST

Featuring Benjamin Moore Paints

WEAR-HOUSE

PANTS and TOPS

for

Men and Women

201 N. Pleasant St.

UPSTAIRS ↑↑↑

THINK PANTS

We carry thousands of

Blue Jeans

from $6.95

- ★ Landlubber — all sizes!
- ★ Seafarer
- ★ Wrangler — all models!
- ★ Male
- ★ Live-Ins — all colors!

We have the area's largest selection of

Corduroys

$6.95-$13.50

- ★ Pin Wales
- ★ Wide Wales
- ★ Button Flys
- ★ Brushed (no wale)

Just name the color - you'll be amazed at the selection!

We also carry

Brushed Denims! Double Knits!
Dress Flares! Knit Pants!

THINK JERSEYS

and Sweaters and Knits

from $3.95

- ★ Turtle Necks!
- ★ Skinny Rib Sweaters!
- ★ Long Collar Jerseys!
- ★ Imported Italian (Europecraft) Knits!
- ★ Jerseys (hundreds in stock always)!

We guarantee the largest selection!

Knits to match any pants around!

THINK COATS

- ★ Leather Flight Jackets
- ★ Motorcycle Jackets
- ★ Bomber Jackets
- ★ Denim Jackets (long & short)
- ★ Hunting Jackets
- ★ Corduroy Jackets

DOWNSTAIRS ↓↓↓

WEAR-HOUSE

Features everything left over from '70 (and then some) —

A Basement SALE

Corduroys (values to 13.50) now $5.95

Jeans values to 10.00 $4.95

Shirts, Jerseys & More!

LOWEST PRICES-If you prove a lower legitimate price (non sale) exists at the same time within 100 miles we will rebate or not charge you the difference.

Your satisfaction on all merchandise is guaranteed! If you have any problems return within two weeks with sales slip to immediate exchange. (All sales of sale mdse. final)

OUR GUARANTEES.

Open 9:30 - 5:30 Fridays till 9

DUNKIN' DONUTS

The donut that's so good it tastes as fresh as it smells.

132 King St. Northampton 586-1563

Paraphernalia

WELCOMES YOU BACK

Our policy is to offer the latest in New York and imported women's fashions at fair prices.

Come in and look around.

Paraphernalia at 63 North Pleasant Street, Amherst.

Freshmen, Upperclassmen, Transfers

You Owe It To Yourself To Join:

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

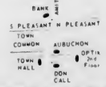
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

You Can Write:



- •sports stories
- •news stories
- •editorials
- •feature stories

or you can:

- •take pictures
- •do layout
- •just hang around

reopening september 13

CONTEMPORARY JAPANESE PRINTS

OPTIK GALLERY

1 cook-place, the alley, amherst, 12-6, tues. - sat.

Four Seasons

Party Headquarters

for

Imported and Domestic

WINES and LIQUORS

also BEERS - KEG BEER

Delivery Service

Route 9, Hadley Tel. 584-8171

More To Do.....

USCC For Better Understanding

The University and State Communications Council (USCC) is a student organization which works closely with members of the Massachusetts Legislature. The Council, composed of undergraduates, attempts to give both students and legislators a better understanding of each other's ideas and goals through the process of working together.

The Council deals with issues that are related to both Massachusetts legislators and UMass students. Last year, USCC mounted an intensive campaign against a proposed tuition hike. Their activities ranged from manning a booth in the Student Union to encourage students to write their legislators to attending the hearings on the tuition bill in Boston. The bill was subsequently defeated.

In addition to working with legislators, USCC maintains close contact with UMass administrators, faculty and trustees. The Council will be working extensively with Joe Cass, the UMass legislative lobbyist in Boston.

This year the Council will be comprised of five subcommittees and directed by co-chairmen. The External Legislative Affairs Committee will be responsible for filing any bills in the Legislature pertaining to UMass. Previously several bills have been filed by USCC including one asking the Legislature to appropriate money for library books and another, still pending, to have two students on the UMass Board of Trustees, one from Amherst, and one from UMass Boston. Currently there is only one student trustee, which is to come from the Boston campus this year. Basically this committee is responsible for keeping atune to all Legislative happenings that might effect either UMass or the Council. It will be working closely with Joe Cass and students from other state colleges within the Commonwealth.

During the Spring Strike, UMass was perhaps the only college in the nation to sponsor a Legislators Day. On this day, over a hundred legislators attended discussion groups and a rally by the pond. They were thus able to gain first hand insight into the UMass strike and the participating students. This tradition was carried on last year when members of the Joint Education Committee, the committee that deals with most of the bills affecting UMass, visited the campus for a day. This year, the Internal Legislative Affairs Committee will handle upcoming Legislators Days. Hopefully, the group will be doing more work with other student organizations to develop special programs at UMass which legislators could attend.

The Legislative Research Council is one of the more unique aspects of USCC. The chairman of this committee will be responsible for pairing UMass faculty, grads and students interested in a social problem or issue with a legislator interested in the same issue. In the past subjects have included housing, consumer protection, ecology, day care centers and rights that should be extended to the nineteen-year-old voter. Research on the subject will be done at UMass and then the legislator will be informed as to the results and conclusions drawn by the researcher. The end result may be the filing of a bill in hopes of ameliorating the existing situation.

A fourth committee, the Internal University Affairs, has an open agenda at the moment. The committee handles current problems of the student community and works closely with the Student Senate. Because there is no way of knowing in advance what matters will become important, this committee works on a day to day basis and is more crisis oriented than the others. Last year it spearheaded the State Colleges' drive to fight the tuition hike. If another hike should threaten this year, the committee will again take action.

In addition, these four committees are backed up by a media committee. It is responsible for publicizing Council activities, primarily through the Collegian. Also, press releases to home town papers for visiting legislators will be produced. Last year the media committee arranged several talk shows on local and commercial radio stations.

USCC has only been operating for two and one-half years. This year we hope to encompass more activities than in the past. In order, however, to achieve our proposed goals we need more people with an interest in legislative or media work. There will be open meetings of USCC held at the beginning of the semester. Any one interested is invited and encouraged to attend.

For Women Only

Mortar Board

"Recognized as concerned and intelligent young women, members of Mortar Board are selected to serve during their senior year of college. Membership signifies honor, offers challenge, and represents commitment.

"The challenge to the individual and to the group is to provide thoughtful leadership to campus and community, to create an environment of effective communication, and to move toward a meaningful goal. The commitment is to extend the ideals of scholarship, leadership, and service to the broader community."

This introductory statement of purpose well summarizes the aims of this honorary service sorority. Each year members of Mortar Board choose several special projects which they feel will be of benefit to the campus and surrounding communities.

A High School Visitation Program has been carried out in past years. Upon request, Mortar Boards would visit high schools throughout the state and answer any questions students had about different phases of college life.

Another very successful project was the Speakers Bureau. This booklet contains a list of people and topics upon which they would be willing to speak. Different clubs and organizations in the area have found the Speakers Bureau a quick and easy method of getting in touch with a variety of interesting speakers.

Although plans for this year are not yet definite, we fell that our proposed projects will be of benefit to both campus and community. We are trying to set up a course which would provide information for women on legal matters, insurance, taxes and different situations she may face after leaving college.

Mortar Board has also been promised considerable aid in setting up an effective program of ecology which will be of definite benefit at this time. We hope to be enlisting the aid of both campus and community with this project. Anyone interested in helping should contact Kathy Reilly, president, for more information.

If your club or organization would like any extra help with projects you may be sponsoring during the year, please call us-- we're here to serve you.

Dames

All student wives or married women students are welcome to come and meet new people and enjoy a night out participating in our varied events. Each third Wednesday of the month our meetings are held in Farley Hall featuring a business meeting, entertainment and a coffee hour which gives everyone a chance to mix and get acquainted.

In addition there are small interest groups such as Bridge, Gourmet, Reading, Baby Sitting, Coffee, Crochet, (and any other kind anyone may want to form) which are open to those wishing to participate.

During the school year fund raising projects are held to raise money to sponsor a scholarship to be given to a qualifying Dame or her husband.

Last, but not least, are the social events, which offer members a relaxing and inexpensive night out with their husbands. Dames is a great way to meet people and to become acquainted with life in Amherst and at the University. Sure hope to see lots of new faces! Anyone interested may call Laura Masson at 253-2990.

A Department Store in the Middle of Campus?

Yes!!

Your University Store in the Campus Center has:

Sweatshirts
Paperbacks
Records
Tapes
School Supplies
Engineering Supplies
Health and Beauty Aids
Typewriters
Adding Machines
Stereo Component Systems

All Textbooks available in the physical plant warehouse.

Extended hours during book rush.

Q. What's the best place in town for sidewalk superintendents to relax with a glass of beer and watch tax money's O'Connell put up two buildings at once.

Sidewalk Supers only open at 11:30 a.m.

A. The Top-of-the-Campus Lounge-11th floor

(Membership limited to Students, Staff, Faculty, their Spouses, and Alumni, over 21)

You may not have known it, but the Hatch was closed all summer just waiting for you to return.

And Now We Present

"The Super-Hatch"

Get your Hatch Buttons while they last.

Welcome back HATCH-RATS Application for new members available at Cashier.

The only place in the world with Marathon Bridge Games, instruction in Class-Cutting and Hatch-Ladies

Buy a Hatchburger not as pretty as a Centerburger (no watercress) but just as good and cheaper.

Open 7:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.

OPEN

Monday thru Thursday 11:30 a.m. — 6:00 p.m.

Friday 11:30 a.m. — 2:00 p.m.

Blue Wall Cafeteria

choice of

Hot Meals

and

"The Deli"

featuring

Pastromi
Ham
Roast Beef

and

side items

Breakfast thru Midnight Snack at

THE CONCRETE COFFEEPOT

Rumor has it someone won a prize for that name.

All kinds of
PANCAKES and WAFFLES
EGGS and BACON
and
BACON and EGGS

You've just spent $49.75 on books, why not spend your last quarter in the coffee shop?

Come over, bring $5.00 and take off your pants.

And we'll give you a pair of $7.50 Blue Jeans

This transaction is commonly known as a sale

WEAR-HOUSE

201 N. Pleasant St.
Open 9:30 - 5:30 Fridays till 9

Tradition Key Foe In NES Offensive

The Northern Educational Service tutoring program will have its Fall recruitment meeting Monday, September 13. All students wishing to participate in the program should attend this meeting and register to tutor. An explanation of the program and the plans for the coming year will be given.

The N.E.S. tutoring program in the past has been moribund by a state of traditionalism. N.E.S. tutoring has a program theme that has college students tutoring weekly children in economically deprived areas of Springfield. The rhetoric surrounding this activity always had a glowing appeal. However, too many questions were always asked by those who worked actively within the program.

The big question centers around effectiveness. Am I helping my tutee? What good am I doing? Shouldn't there be more outside activities? I don't see any progress! Is one session a week enough? The questions go on and become more personal as the tutor measures him or herself against the frustration hidden in the above questions.

These questions concerning effectiveness are as traditional as the tutoring concept. The questions won't change this year as they are a part of the educational process. What will change will be the format by which the N.E.S. program will operate.

However, to deviate from tradition you must first understand it. Thus, along with the regular after school tutoring program, students will be able to participate in a three credit course involving two tutoring sessions a week. One session will be conducted within a tutee's classroom under the supervision of his teacher while the other session will be conducted after school in a N.E.S. center.

From this point of involvement the total program will have a base to operate from-moving away from traditional approaches to tutoring in the N.E.S. centers. The point to be made is that college students are suckers for traditionalism. If given the chance to conduct a class nine out of ten so called sophisticated college students will give a traditional presentation.

This is where the N.E.S. tutoring program will change. By identifying a tutees classroom life by direct or indirect experiences a tutor can easily find an alternative. The tutor will also be provided with alternative ways of tutoring through the N.E.S. Tutor Resource Library which was started last year and is constantly growing.

However, the problems of tutoring or community service does not exist only in the N.E.S. centers. A good many problems are created and belong to the faculty on this campus and their classroom orientation. There are a lot of special functions that students in many departments could do within the N.E.S. program that would be both educational and productive as a service to the community.

An example of this would be having students majoring in sociology working in some full time capacity (much like a student teacher) with the N.E.S. counseling service or as a case worker with some other social service organization in Springfield. The point to be made here is that this idea was flatly turned down last year by the sociology department and was even refused support out of fear of rocking the boat by those so called liberal professors within that department.

In any case attempts will be made to develop Special Projects for group activities with the N.E.S. centers for the coming year. Hopefully we will be having activities in art, drama, writing, music, and other practical activities such as instructions on filling out application forms for colleges and scholarships. We feel this would make the N.E.S. center an alternative educational focal point for the neighborhood where educational support is given instead of traditional instruction.

The program will have more to offer this year for tutors and tutees but that is the product of experience and an increase of tutoring resources. However, the program will have traditionalism as its real enemy. Traditionalism within ourselves and our environment. With a little self evaluation and discipline to pull away from the status quo the battle should be easily won within ourselves.

This is the key question because until the battle is won within the body of the student the professor continues to keep his greatest ally and remains hiding behind his books. The professor's comrade in arms is that same grade point conformity he knows traditionally exists in his students.

N.E.S. invites you to try and fight for an alternative. Attend the recruitment meeting Sept. 13, 1971. The time and place will be announced.

Some Fly While Others Try

Flying Club

June 14, 1971

Barry Rubenstein, Exec. Ed.
Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Student Union Univ. of Mass.
Amherst, Mass. 01002

Dear Sir:

The Collegiate Flying Club is comprised of approximately 80 faculty and students from the Five-College community. It is a member-oriented organization whose activities are arranged and conducted by the members with the assistance of the elected Club executives. The goal of the Club is to bring the sport of flying within the realm of the possible for all those in the college community, rather than an elite few. Through the Club, a student is able to purchase the necessary aviation equipment, undergo certified ground instruction, secure the use of aircraft, and obtain a private pilot's license, all at the lowest possible cost.

Activities include fly-ins, picnics, trips to aviation facilities, movies, speakers, and bombing contests. Monthly meetings are held for all our members, including those who are, as yet, ground-pounders, at which time Club matters are discussed and entertainment is provided.

Membership is open to anyone in this community, whether he be a pilot, navigator, someone interested in aeronautical science and meteorology, or ground lovers who are merely intrigued.

Heymakers

The name of the Club is The Heymakers Square Dance Club of the University of Massachusetts, Heymakers for short. The purpose of the club is to enjoy, teach and promote Square Dancing. The activities of the club are open dances, lessons, visits to other Clubs in the area, and a few money raising projects to raise money to pay the caller for lessons which are free. The criteria for membership are paying dues and knowing or learning how to square dance.

We give lessons in square dancing every Tuesday night at 7:30 in a place announced in the Collegian every week, usually the Campus Center Auditorium. At these lessons the people learn 75 basic movements of square dancing and "graduate" with a diploma and these people then can go out with the other "club" dancers (club dancers are graduates) to visit other clubs in the Springfield area.

Anyone interested in Square Dancing and any one that is interested in learning or is already a graduate of another club are welcome to join us in the fall.

Hillel Offers Enrichment

The Hillel Foundation at the University of Massachusetts, sponsored by the B'nai B'rith, is organized to serve the cultural and religious needs of the Jewish students on campus, to help represent Jewish interests on the campus and to enrich the extra-curricular atmosphere of the general campus through its programs and services. It includes a student organization to help determine and carry out a schedule of lunch and dinner programs, concerts, speakers, folksings, Israeli dance groups, social interest and action groups and non-credit courses in Jewish studies. We have a library and lounge, a kosher food service for those observant of Jewish dietary law, a full time Director, Rabbi Martin Kowal, for advice, counselling and information, and a full schedule of religious services for Sabbaths and holidays. The Hillel Center is located in room 420 Student Union Building. All Hillel activities and services are available to the whole campus community. Those contributing $5 for and academic year ($15 for four years) will be entitled, in addition, to membership in the student government, discounts on events for which charges are made, and special mailings on prospective programs.

em-sec
SERVICES, INC.

If your office is overloaded with work, bring it to us.

Students, If when the fun is over, papers, a thesis, a dissertation or plain notes pop their heads up, call on:

em-sec
SERVICES, INC.

Licensed Employment Service
Professional Secretarial
Copy Service (IBM copier)

29 Pray St.
Amherst, Mass.
Tel. 549-6220

Rent a refrigerator for your room.

Just $4.44 a month.*

You can keep a complete supply of snacks and refreshments—including milk, fresh fruits and other perishables—right in your dormitory room with a Mini-Kool refrigerator. And the convenience of a Mini-Kool can be yours for just pennies a day.

Nobody can match these exclusive Mini-Kool advantages.

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Versatile—makes ice cubes, doubles as end table

EXTRA EXCLUSIVES

- Free pick-up and delivery
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Guaranteed—if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.

CALL 253-2494, 256-8488

mini kool

Work for a great cause and have fun doing it!

Join the staff of the Massachusetts Daily Collegian

New England's Largest College Daily Newspaper.

Sign up at our office in the Student Union Building.

You, Too, Can Become A Student Leader

(Reprinted from University Directions)

Want something special out of your four years at UMass?

How about a fifth year?

Join a student activity and break away from the every day trivia of going to classes and studying. Do something to broaden yourself-spend 16 hours a day in the Student Union. Be a super senior.

Just kidding of course. It's a fallacy that participation in a student activity necessarily means poor academic achievement. In fact, many of the officers of some of the major student groups at UMass have excellent cumes.

But, more important, the thousands of students who are active in the hundreds of student activities across campus find their college lives righter, more exciting and more worthwhile than those who trudge wearily from class to dorm each day, with no outside interests.

And there are a lot of side benefits connected with membership in a student activity that most people never think about. For one thing, you'll get to meet many of the administrators who run this place, and talking with them casually is, to say the least, illuminating.

Someday, you'll be walking back from town and Chancellor Tippo will drive by in his big black car and give you a ride home. And this is just one of the surprises that you can look forward to when you become a student leader.

You'll be on a first name basis with the janitors in the Student Union (John and George and the new guy Willie), and you'll be able to spend quiet afternoons joking with the lady who sells bus tickets in the Union (Sarah).

The months of March and April will take on a special meaning as your group battles with the Student Senate over your budget proposal for the next year, and you'll get to know the secretaries in R.S.O. by name (Edna, Judy, Katie, Betsey), not to mention the entire student activities staff (Jerry, Bud, Shiela, Jill, Potts and Jim).

One of the greatest benefits that participation in a student activity brings to a student is the wealth of excuses he has for getting out of academic work. "Spent an all nighter working for the Collegian" is a surefire excuse guaranteed to get you a make-up quiz every time.

And through your work on student activities, you'll become identified with the worthwhile projects that your group undertakes. In no time a professor will ask you if "you had anything to do with those idiots painting the walls in Herter yesterday?" This kind of notoriety is good for you.

But there are a lot of little side benefits which many students involved in student activities don't ever realize they are getting. Take for example the dining commons. Now, the commons aren't all that bad-the food there won't kill you-but three meals a day, five days a week can get on one's nerves.

The student intimately involved in an activity has a ready made excuse not to eat in the commons-he doesn't have time to get from class to activity to commons and back in time to eat.

The great advantage of student activities, of course, is what they do to your nights. They make them busy. You'll be free from the horrible life of studying until 11:00, watching the Springfield local TV News and then going to bed.

Once you become involved in an activity you'll be assured of at least one or two nights a week with something to do. A planning meeting, a speaker, a coffee hour-what ever it is-it will at least occupy your time with people who have similar interests in discussions.

This break from constant worry about English 125 and Math 100 can save your sanity.

And, obviously, it is through student activities that you have the greatest opportunity possible to meet people with

Continued on Page 25

For a Hair Cut
the way you want it —

Whether it is a trim, long hair reduced to regular, or any other desirable fashion,

Visit us at

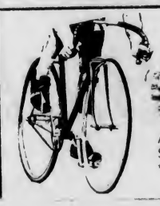
COLLEGE TOWN BARBERS

183 North Pleasant St. Amherst

THE SALT BOX

16 Main St., Amherst
241 Main St., Northampton

All the swinging Jr. Look in Sportswear and Dressy look!!



Crafts -

Smith Glass & Mirror Co.

ART SUPPLIES for all classes
REPRODUCTIONS
MIRRORS
CUSTOM FRAMING

Opposite Academy of Music

279 Main St. Northampton, Mass.

Northampton Bicycle

8 Pleasant St., 584-9623

HIGH GRADE BICYCLES

Authorized Raleigh Dealer
Selling One, Three, And Ten Speed Bicycles
* Atala 10 Speed Italian Bicycles
Repairs On All Makes

FACES OF EARTH

General Merchandise at Reasonable Prices

159 NORTH PLEASANT STREET, AMHERST
Next to the Post Office

10 A.M. to 10 P.M. Monday thru Saturday

HOME FURNISHINGS
Bed Spreads
Indian Rugs
Lamps
Glass Tiffany Shades
Paper Shades
Pillows
Hammocks
Indian Tables
Blankets
Candles
Posters
Graphics

CLOTHING
Army Surplus
Overcoats
Field Jackets
Peacoats
Chino Shirts
Wallace Beery Shirts
Jackets
Flight Suits
Used Jeans
New
Jeans
T. Shirt Silk Screen & Print
Ribbed Tank Tops
Chambray Shirts
Moroccan Shirts
Tunics
Hats

CAMPING EQUIPMENT
Knap Sacks
Shoulder Bags
Leather Pouches
Ruck Sacks
Tents
Ponchos
Sleeping Bags
Knives
Machettes
Canteens

JEWELRY
Hand Made Silver
Rings
Earrings
Bracelets
Necklaces
Wooden Beads
Indian Rings

ACCESORIES
Belts
Scarfs
Appliques
Patches
Leather Bags
Cloth Bags
Bandanas

INDIAN MERCHANDISE
Purses and Handbags
Hand Painted Boxes
Wooden Boxes
Scarfs
Jewelry

● Also on our Premises
Fretted Instrument Workshop • Guitars, Banjos Sold and Repaired
THE GEODE SHOP • Fine Cut Gem Stones, Geodes and Jewelry
FREE PAPERS

Publications Require No Ability

Continued From Page 23

similar interests, to make friends with people who you genuinely like. In this respect, involvement in a student activity can become the most meaningful aspect of your college life.

THE STUDENT SENATE

Wednesday nights, a surrealistic spectacle occurs in the Campus Center. Student power, embodied in the Student Senate, is at work. To the outsider (and to many insiders as well) it is not an impressive sight. Somebody is speaking. A few people are paying attention. The majority, however, are either gossiping, studying, knitting, doodling, or something. Most likely, the matter being discussed is a financial category change, cut and dried. It is not always like this, but this is the predominant impression.

Composed of some 100 members (aboutone for every 150 students) elected in October from the residents halls and other living areas, the Student Senate is the central student government on campus. All other student organizations are chartered by the Senate. It passed the basic student judicial code and sets the student tax. These official powers of the Senate keep it a vital organization.

What keeps the Senate going? What keeps people in the organization? The potential for improvement does. As the central student government, it is the agent for negotiations with the centralized University administration. It is the organization that can supply campus-wide services that University cannot or will not provide. For example, the Senate funds, in part, the student newspaper, and the radio station. It operates a campus bus shuttle, schedules and information on which can be obtained at the Senate office. It grants short-term book loans.

The record of success in the past has been impressive. For example, the elimination of curfew, co-ed dorms, a rational alcoholic beverages regulation, and self determination of student social policy all came about, in part, because of Senate action.

But there is still more change ahead that is necessary, such as further improvements in co-ed dorm policies and the vast frontiers of academics and services.

If you ever come to a Wednesday night spectacle, and come away with the impression that you don't quite see it, just remember there is more to it than meets the eye.

Information about the Student Senate can be obtained by visiting the Senate offices in the first floor of the Campus Center or calling 50341.

PUBLICATIONS

Campus publications always need help. It probably doesn't make sense, but while publications have grown dramatically in size, the staffs haven't expanded so quickly. Thus, it is an undeniable fact that freshmen can help.

Now, the work isn't always glamorous. In fact, sometimes it can be absolute drudgery. There will be that midnight Collegian deadline coming, and you'll be there with nothing to fill the page. There will be the sudden realization that you are a month behind putting together Index, and you're the only person around.

Oh, but it can be fun. Well, maybe it can be fun. There is the satisfaction of seeing your finished produce, alive and in print. Well, maybe not satisfaction, but relief. And the fact that you are reaching 20,000 people with your production. Of course, a lot of them will always complain.

Publications are a big business, and a big job. They are, despite all the inevitable hassles, snafus, frustrations, and sleepless hours, one of the most exciting areas to get involved in. You don't need professional ability, or even amateur ability. If you feel like working, there will be something you can do. And maybe, just maybe, you'll find yourself sitting around one of the offices, one rainy afternoon, and, Praise the Lord, you'll learn something, while (and this is the clincher) having a good time.

DAILY COLLEGIAN-The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published five times a week, Monday through Friday, during the school year, except during vacations. It is now the largest collegiate daily in the New England, and the ninth largest in the nation.

The Collegian went to a daily format four years ago and has since grown at a rapid pace. It averages around 16 pages a day, and in addtion to attempting to keep up with the campus, also includes world and national news thru its use of the Associated Press wire service and syndicated national features.

The on-campus paper is delivered each morning at all dining commons, the Student Union, Campus Center, and several academic buildings. It is probably going to be your main source of information. It is the only place students may find times and places of meetings, events, etc.

The Collegian holds recruiting meetings each semester and usually has openings for just about anything anyone wants to do. The offices are located on the second floor of the Student Union.

SPECTRUM-Spectrum is, for lack of a better name, the general interest magazine. That is a rather nebulous tag for anything.

What Spectrum attempts to do is to provide the campus with an open forum of campus information and creativity. The magazine accepts material in fiction, poetry, art, and photography, as well as non-fiction. The last category encompasses philosophical and political essays, book, movie, and music reviews, and in-depth studies of campus affairs. Its advisers, which include several professors, and the editors are more than willing to discuss and share knowledge with contributors.

The magazine is published two or three times a year, and is one of the largest college literary magazines in the country. It employs high quality printing processes, which necessitates creative talents in its production, another area that someone may get involved in.

The Spectrum office is located on the second floor of the Student Union.

YAHOO-Yahoo is the campus humor magazine that was banned in Boston, revived, and now flourishes periodically.

Yahoo is a forum for most any and all types of humor. It employes anyone who wants to contribute writing, cartoons, drawings, satire, etc.

Offices are on the second floor Student Union.

INDEX-Index is one of the largest yearbooks in the nation, with a book that has been almost 500 pages long. It is distributed to all undergraduates so that it is not just a senior class yearbook. It is designed therefore to be one of a set of four books, the sum total hopefully to tell the story of the four-year university experience.

It takes over 100 people to put out Index, most of whom work directly on the pages, choosing pictures, laying out the pages and writing copy. Also the book staff takes its own pictures, except for senior portraits, and usually goes through a massive volume of film.

Index offices are located on the second floor of the Student Union.

AREA PAPERS-There are presently two area publications that come out periodically. The Hobbit is produced from Orchard Hill, while the Central Voice is produced in the Central Area. Both concern themselves mostly with area issues and problems. Information about them can be found at the Area Coordinators office.

THE DRUM-The Drum is a quarterly creative expression of the black community. It is published as a positive means of bringing the black community closer together and also demonstrating to the campus at large the talents of black students at the University.

Continued On Page 27

"Specializing in our own Leatherworks"

Pottery
Crocks
Casseroles
Mugs Cups
Bowls
Tea Pots
Planters
Hunting Hills Pottery
Montague, Mass.
New Ipswich Potters
New Ipswich, N.H.
÷ Stoneware ÷
Ruth Bereuson
Yonkers, N.Y.
Stan Zuskowski
S. Montrose, Pa.

-Stephen Rogers-
N. Leverett, Mass
-Bob Chamberlin-
Hatchville, Mass
Silver
Pins
Necklaces
Bracelets
Earrings
-Cindy Suter-
Northampton Mass.

Candles
By -Peter Curtis-
The Leverett Craftsman and Artist
Leverett, Mass.

By Dick Muller
Jean Valent
Doug Muller
Clothing Pouches Accessories
Leather
Moccasins By "Mario"
Bags Belts Sandals

All things Handmade
The Leather Shed
#1 The Alley Amherst
Open daily 10:00 – 5:30

PIZZA-RAMA
356 College St. RT. 9
PIZZA HOT OVEN GRINDERS
Tel. 253-3808
Call your order in-ready on arrival
Open Daily 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.
Sunday Noon to 11 p.m.
Closed Monday

HOMOSEXUALITY
Is Nothing To Be Ashamed of all gay women and men invited to
THE STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE
Wednesday, Sept. 15, 7 p.m., Campus Center, Rm. 917 get your head together · together with us

PHONE AREA 413 - 253-7615
FOWLER INC Jewelers
WATCH CLOCK and JEWELRY REPAIRING
66 NORTH PLEASANT STREET AMHERST, MASS. 01002 DIAMONDS WATCHES SILVERWARE CHINA
PEWTER & LEATHER MUGS

Headquarters for such famous names as:
Dunham's Bass S.R.O.
Hush Puppies Florsheim Dexter
Converse Keds
Amherst Mathews SHOES Mass.

Whole Wheat Trading Co.
ORGANIC & NATURAL FOODS.
Honey, raw cheeses, cereals, grains and fresh stone ground flours, goat's milk'n honey, ice-cream and other delights.
181 N. Pleasant St. 253-5169

The Attorney General's Ruling

So You Want To Vote In Amherst?

By RICHARD M. HOWLAND
Senate General Counsel
Attorney for Students

During the summer hiatus, the Attorney General of the Commonwealth rendered his opinion that students should be permitted to register and vote (as well as run for office) in the town where they attend school, if they wish to. There is no impediment to a student making the decision, therefore, to vote in Amherst despite his address in a dormitory or the fact of substantial parental monetary support. Indeed, the substance of the Attorney General's opinion is that a student shall be treated exactly as any other person for purposes of voting without regard to where he lives (so long as it is in the town) or where he makes or acquires his money or even what his parents might prefer. The Attorney General grounds his view in the words of the twenty-sixth amendment that no law shall prohibit a person of eighteen years from voting.

It is very easy to register in Amherst and all that is required is for the potential voter to appear in person at the Town Hall or at any special registration booth as established from time to time, and identify himself or herself and his or her present address. The registrant must also demonstrate that he or she has lived in Amherst for the preceding six months to the next election day by, for instance, showing a telephone listing, a lease, rent payment check or other proof that shows that he or she has lived in Amherst for the statutory period. Subsequent to Attorney General Quinn's ruling, his office has stated that summer vacations by themselves do not constitute a lapse of continuous residency for students any more than they do for any other members of the community. The six months requirement therefore applies through the summer to persons resident in Amherst continuously not necessarily at the same address within the town.

The foregoing substantially covers the way in which any voter exercises his right to vote, and the ruling that Attorney General Quinn has made. However, any legal right has, in theory, a complimentary responsibility. For the right to vote it is easy to see that the responsibility is to exercise the franchise thoughtfully in the way you deem wisest for those ends that you support. In a democracy there are two principles that dominate in the area of exercise of the vote; self-interest and compromise. A vote should, ideally, be cast in your own self-interest as you conceive it. Thereby government becomes the sincere collective will gather in the most expedient manner. Self-interest does not necessarily mean self-aggrandizement or enrichment, however. It probably can be safely stated as that expression of your interest which you feel best improves the condition of your environment at the most sensible (not necessarily lowest) cost to the community and which embraces the needs of those around you most competently. Even if you do not agree that this view of voting is the most efficient, the Attorney General's ruling necessarily carries with it another less obvious right for which there is another set of responsibilities. That is the right to claim Amherst as your residence. By claiming Amherst as your voting residence, you should also claim it on the census roles. Your vote is exercised over the expenditure of finds in the town treasury to pay for programs you support and indeed you must pay in to that treasury by living in Amherst. You do this in the form of sales taxes and rents paid to either state, town or through your landlord and you do it indirectly by purchasing goods and services in the community from which others derive their income. But, as a resident it is incumbent upon you to pay the annual excise tax on certain items, most obvious being automobiles, by registering them at your claimed address. Indeed, failure to notify the registry of a change in your residence is a punishable offense and should not be neglected when you have registered to vote in Amherst.

If you are from out-of-state and you register to vote here file a Massachusetts Resident Income Tax Return if you earn income in the state and not an out-of-state return. In the long run it won't make much difference in dollars to you as state taxes split among states are generally deductible in other states, but it does make a difference to the town and state you adopt by registering in accordance with the Attorney General's ruling.

There are many ways in which your decision to vote in Amherst will require changes in past practices but few of them mean much change to you economically but they do make a difference to the town and the revenues it has to operate its services and programs. So the message is that if you determine to register to vote in Amherst, or any other of the surrounding communities, please be sure you register all the way and join the town you choose completely as one of its full-time citizens. Join the political and public-oriented groups and committees that interest you. Become involved in the problems of the whole town, not merely your slice of it. Be watchful that the officials, whoever they are, conduct the town's business in a manner you approve of. Run for those offices for which you feel you can supply the time and interest sufficient to do the job and remember that it is a job for the whole town you are running for. If the town has problems don't be a fair weather friend, get into solving the problem. Attend the hearings, make your feelings known. If you have special information, tell it to the town officials responsible for using it. Mostly, participate completely, not merely by marking your ballot.

You can't lawfully be made to do all of these things as a precondition to voting. Many older voters certainly don't do them; You will agree, I hope, that its a lousy excuse. I also hope that you do see that the responsibilities quite beyond the fundamental right to vote.

Action Lab For People

Jails are no place for starry-eyed revolutionaries, toting copies of Soul on Ice, and believing that every prisoner is wronged by society. Such people simply do not contribute anything to a situtation that can best be described as 19th Century, nor do they help in least the prisoners.

Action Lab, founded last year by UMass undergraduates, is trying to prove that even within antiquated institutions, some change is possible while waiting for the proverbial revolution, and that the change encourages not the institution, but the people caught within the institution.

For the second year, Action Lab is running a tutorial program in the Hampshire County House of Correction in Northampton. Most of the work done will be toward preparing inmates for the General Educational Developement Test (GED) and high school equivalency.

All tutors, if they desire, will receive 45 modular credits from the School of Education. Selection of the tutors is dependent on the time available, past experience and future plans, sensitivity, interest, academic and teaching ability, an interview and formal application.

A general meeting of Action Lab will be held on Wednesday, September 15, at 8:00 P.M. in the Campus Center, Room 174-176. Any one interested in Action Lab and the tutoring program should attend.

Optical Goodies

Always Available

at

Amherst's First Optician

Gold Eye Wires

Sun Glasses

Prescription or Non-Prescription

Contact Lens Supplies

Binoculars

Magnifiers and Specialties

High Intensity Lamps and Bulbs

SPARE GLASSES (recopied from your present pair)

In case of breakage, bring in the pieces for exact duplication fine eyewear doesn't cost - it pays.

don call
GUILD OPTICIAN

56 Main St. 253-7002 Amherst

Those who want goods must come to
THE BASEMENT SALE

WEAR-HOUSE

201 N. PLEASANT ST.
Open 9:30 - 5:30 Fridays till 9

IMPORTS LTD.

255 Russell St. Rt. 9 - Hadley Mass.

SATISFACTION SERVICE

MG FIAT PORSCHE SAAB DATSUN

Tune-ups
Brakes
Alignment
Carburation
Electric

TRIUMPH RENAULT A-HEALEY VOLVO TOYOTA

Volkswagen

PARTS — Castrol Brake Fluid.
PARTS — Brake (Shoes Disc. Pads)
PARTS — Bosch Plugs, Bremi Ignition, Dist. Caps, Rotor, Points, Cond.
PARTS — Wiper Blades, Radiator Hoses, Radiator Cap, Thermostats and Air and Oil Filters PARTS — Quaker State Oil

SHUMWAY'S

Wallpaper & Paint Store Inc.

320 COLLEGE STREET
AMHERST
256-6753

Open 8-6
Thurs. 8-8
Frl.

Ample
Free Parking

We have

Deep & Accent Color

Paints

in Latex and Oil

$8 gal. & $2.75 qt.

also

New Latex Enamel

Fluorescent Colors

$10 gal. $4 qt.

University Committees Open To All

Continued From Page 25

The Drum uses quality printing composition in its production, and features poetry, short fiction, art work, photography, and some non-fiction.

Its offices are located in the Mills House Black Cultural Center.

CAMPUS RADIO

WMUA-WMUA is the student-owned-and-operated radio station of the University. It is situated at 91.1 mc on the FM radio dial.

The station is in the midst of increasing its power, and after the power increase, will be able to be heard throughout the Valley. And its vastly improved equipment set-up makes the station one of the most modern and well-outfitted in Western Massachusetts.

WMUA has a wide diversification in its programming. It has music shows of all varieties. It has a news staff that prepares reports throughout the day, and also features in-depth news analysis. There are interviews with campus leaders, and a black program department. And the WMUA sports staff broadcasts all Redman football and basketball games here and away, plus other sports contests of special interest.

The station is completely student-operated, from announcers, broadcast people and management to writers and technicians.

The station is located on the first floor of the old Engineering Building.

CAMPUS CENTER/STUDENT UNION GOVERNING BOARD

The Campus Center/Student Union Governing Board is a joint committee of undergraduate and graduate students, faculty and staff, which is responsible for a composite social, cultural, and educational program within the Student Union and the Campus Center. The SUB board sets all policy for operation of the Student Union and the Campus Center.

The Student Union/Campus Center Program Council, a standing committee of the SUG Board, carries out the administration of the social program sponsored by the Student Union/Campus Center.

There are two freshman openings for the SUG Board and unlimited openings on the Program Council. Inquire at the SUB Board office on the first floor of the Campus Center.

UNIVERSITY COMMITTEE PARTICIPATION

There are student representatives on virtually all University-wide committees, from search committees for new administrative personnel, to committees concerned with long-range planning. Most are appointed though the Student Senate, although some may be by department.

The distribution of student participation varies on many of the committees, from a small taken number to a controlling number.

Basically, students have a large voice in many University matters. Ask in the Student Senate Office how you can become a member of a University committee.

SERVICE ORGANIZATIONS

There are several service organizations that participate in community activities. These groups work in different areas, and are welcomed by the people they serve. Some of the major groups are below.

CAMPUS CHEST-An on-campus group that annually raises money for charitable projects. They sponor dances, movies, etc., to obtain funds.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA-GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA-The service fraternity and sorority that serve as ushers, and also hold on campus tours for disadvantaged children in the area. They also assist residence areas during moving in and out days, with traffic, and directions.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS-A group that travels to the Belchertown State Mental Hospital and serve as aids to staff personnel. They visit with patients, bring gifts and serve them any way they can.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM

The Distinguished Visitors Program is the University speaking program. It is entirely student-funded and student-run, and annually brings about 20 speakers to campus. Among speakers in the past year have been former Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, former Boston Celtic basketball immortal Bill Russell, Dick Gregory, and Bernadette Devlin.

The program also works with other groups in planning speakers programs. Membership to DVP is by application. Information is available at the RSO office, in the Campus Center, level 1.

Nielsen Hits UMass

By DIANE HOULE

Do girls really watch more television than boys do? How about here at UMass? According to A.C. Nielsen, women in households across the U.S. watched more TV in the year 1970 than men did.

In a survey conducted in the spring semester of 1971 among 50 Orchard Hill residents, the average viewing time per week was lower for the girls than for the guys. However, the girls who took part in the survey named more TV shows in all than the male students did. That may seem funny at first glance, but then who bothers to count how many hours you spend watching TV, anyway, right?

Predictably enough, there were four times as many boys as girls who said that they watch sports programming often. At the same time, however, 40% of the boys in the survey said that they never watched sports programming, which may come as a surprise to some, while a slightly higher percent of girls, 48%, replied in the same way.

As far as talk shows go, for the girls surveyed, the favorite was Dick Cavett, with Johnny Carson only one step behind, and David Frost almost out of the running, with only 8% of the total vote. Carson came out on top with the boys in the survey, Cavett close behind, and Frost showing a more substantial percent of the male vote, 20%.

The top five dramatic programs, among the girls questioned, were, in order, as follows: Marcus Welby, Mission: Impossible, Mod Squad, Medical Center, and The Bold Ones. Among the males surveyed, the top five dramatic shows were, in order: Mission: Impossible, Name of the Game, Mannix, Mod Squad, and Marcus Welby. The preference from the guys' replies in this category is clearly for shows with lots of action.

The top five situation comedies were, for the girls, in descending order: All In the Family, Courtship of Eddie's Father, Love American Style, That Girl, and Mary Tyler Moore. For the male sample of the survey, the top five comedies were: All In the Family, Bill Cosby, Love American Style, Arnie, and Courtship of Eddie's Father.

The highly-acclaimed TVcomedy series, "All In the Family" is the most popular with both groups, yet it is also clear that the girls tend to watch and enjoy comedy series starring females, while the boys prefer to view those comedy series starring males.

My sample was made up of 25 girls from a corridor in Field House and 25 boys from a total of three corridors in Grayson House. For this reason, it cannot be a random or large enough sample to be very precise in its ratings of specific TV programs, but it may be useful in giving viewers some trends to think about.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

TODAY'S STAFF

SPECIAL EDITION EDITOR — Barry Rubenstein
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen
CONTRIBUTORS — Anne Stadnicki, Lloyd Adalist, Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Budweiser

Michelob

Lowenbrau

Schaeffer

The English Pub

15 EAST PLEASANT STREET AMHERST

Happy Hours ••• DANCING ••• Entertainment

TUESDAY	• Ladies' Night Most Mixed Drinks 55¢ Entertainment 9:30 til 12
WEDNESDAY	• Pub Night Entertainment by various groups all night - 9 til 1
THURSDAY	• Charlie Bradshaw At the Piano 9:30 til 12
FRIDAY	• Happy Hour 3-6 Beer 25¢ Most Drinks 55¢ At Night D.J. Sing-A-Long - Dancing 9:30 til 12:30
SATURDAY	• After the Football Games D.J. At Night Dancing and Concert Entertainment 9:30 til 12:30
SUNDAY	• Budweiser Happy Hour Beer 25¢ 3 til 7 girls pour the beer - dancing oldies but goodies played continuously

The Pub's Steak Specials

1 lb. T - Bone
Hearts of Lettuce Rolls & Butter
Baked Potato
$2.99

1¼ lb. Porterhouse
Hearts of Lettuce Rolls & Butter
Baked Potato
$3.89

- Kitchen Open Every Night -

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: As we were saying...

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 1A UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 197

SUDDENLY LAST SPRING-State and local police swept onto the campus the morning of May 11 and arrested 52 students on an assortment of drug charges. District Attorney John Callahan hints that we can expect more investigations and busts this year. Rich Hanson talked with the DA at length the other day. His story and more photos are on page six. This photo was taken as the suspects were being led into District Court in Northampton for arraignment.

Something New-"The Meatloaf Concept"

By BOB CALLAHAN

After years of student gripes, the Food Services Dept. has undergone a "mini revolution." The need for change has been recognized and the time is now. According to the University Food Services Dept. brochure, changes will be apparent from your first meal this semester until the day you leave the campus.

Early this summer, the University Food Services hired a consulting firm and it now appears that the work being done by the consulting firm is in the best interests of the student population.

The Food Services Dept., which has been around this campus for some fifty-two years, has come up with a striking new and impressive concept in menu planning: the Meatloaf Concept! If this new name sounds rather strange to you, what it means is that the meals from now on will be more varied. The idea is that a personalized touch will afford variety, and hopefully less tiresome dining for all.

For those of you who are still not satisfied with the new changes, there are a couple of ways of having student's gripes heard other than mass student prayer rallies and food riots. One of these is the Food Service Committee. Established by the Student Senate, this committee is comprised of members of the Food Service Dept. and one representative from each dormitory. Last year's attendance at these meetings was poor but if these meetings are attended by more people they could be most effective in instituting change.

A second avenue of communication is in the direction of food selection. All food is tested and evaluated in the Research and Development Test Kitchens before being served in the Dining Commons. Located on the third floor of Worcester Commons in the quad, membership is limited to ten people, five of whom are students. In addition to this, many random samplings will be conducted during the year in the dining commons to gauge student opinion.

A third and possibly faster course of action available for airing gripes would be to consult with the Unit Manager of a dining commons.

It has been announced that for those who are true vegetarians or those who require a special diet, there are selections of natural foods presently available in Southwest Hampden and/or Worcester Dining Commons.

Besides the meal tickets which most students are required to purchase, there are also meal tickets for students who are not required to purchase one, such as commuters and all others who are exempt from the ten and fifteen meal plans. This is a five day lunch or dinner (not both) ticket which is available on a weekly basis. The cost is $6.75 for lunches and $9.25 for dinners, and the ticket is non-refundable. And as in the past, the University Food Services invites friends and family to dine on a cash basis. This breaks down to $.95 for breakfast, $1.50 for lunch and $2.00 for dinner.

As in the past, students may purchase meal tickets for weekends which are priced at $100.00 a semester and are non-refundable. These can be used at snack bars and the Campus Center Coffee Shop.

Good news for those who would like to spend more time in the Dining Commons than that allowed for dining. To get a job it is advisable for you to get in touch with the Food Service Department for further information.

As in the past, the same S.O.P. or standard operating procedures are in affect. Unlimited seconds are still available but it is required that the food be eaten on the premises. It is asked that you bus your own trays and PLEASE no ripping off of Dining Commons property. Last year over $30,000 worth of flatware, china and other stuff was ripped off the dining commons.

On The Inside:

- Room, Board Increases Challenged See Page Three
- Voting Guidelines Listed See Page Two

Dye Departs UMass; Returns To Home Town

By JIM GOLD

Former Director of Security William Dye resigned after a short time at UMass this summer because he was offered the job of Chief of Police in his home town of East St. Louis, according to Douglas Forsythe, Interim Director of Security.

"You have to understand that East St. Louis is a problem area and that it has lost over ten thousand residents in the past ten years" Forsythe explained in a Collegian interview. "Bill Dye wanted to do something for his town", said Forsythe. He called Dye's action laudatory.

This puts the problem back to the beginning. A new search committee for this critical position is now being formed, said Forsythe. "We want a well qualified man, and we'll just have to spend the time on it," he said.

Forsythe indicated that a new interim director may also be appointed, replacing himself.

Describing the job of director, Forsythe said that it takes a unique person. He said the job should be preventative of crime.

With the tight job market, Forsythe feels that the committee should find a new director within a reasonable length of time. The new search committee will surely use some of the talent of the old committee, he said.

As director of planning and training in East St. Louis, Mr. Dye is responsible for the training of 112 officers, coordination of division planning, budget preparation and personnel management. In addition, he is assistant director of public safety, directs all federal grant programs and supervises police community relations and police cadet programs.

In 1968-69, he served as assistant to the executive director of the St. Clair County Crime Commission in Belleville, Ill., recommending improvements in the justice system, organizing programs for citizen participation, and advising the St. Clair-Madison County Chiefs Police Association. He also began a law enforcement educational program for elementary schools.

For 11 years, from 1957-1968, Mr. Dye was an Illinois State trooper, four of those years as a detective. He has lectured at the State Police Training Academy in Illinois, and has taught law enforcement and criminal justice courses at the State Community College at East St. Louis.

He is secretary of the Planning Cabinet for the City of East St. Louis, a board member of that city's Community Center Development Commission, and a member of the executive committee of the Metropolitan Drug and Substance Abuse Council. He is also a member of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission and a member of the Board of Directors of the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

A graduate of Southern Illinois University, with a major in sociology-psychology, Mr. Dye is currently enrolled in graduate school.

Dr. James Shawe, newly-appointed CASIAC Dean, counsels anonymous freshman. Student advisors will supplement the usual counseling program at Registration and Add-Drop. (MDC Photo by Steve Schmidt)

CASIAC Implements Student Advisors

By Don Glickstein
MDC Staff

CASIAC's newly-established counseling service will utilize student advisors to supplement its pre-existing academic counseling. This will enable students to speak with their peers about courses and requirements.

For the first time in recent years, CASIAC, i.e. the College of Arts and Sciences Information and Advising Center, under the direction of its new Dean, Dr. James Shawe, and its student counselors, will move its entire operation to Boyden Gym for Registration Day and Add-Drop Day. There, it will provide advising services, and, in the words of one of its counselors, will "serve as an oasis in a frightening, franetic, bureaucratic desert."

"We hope that upperclassmen, as well as freshmen and transfer students, will take advantage of CASIAC," commented Dean Shawe. "Requirements, courses, and special programs are constantly being altered, added, and deleted. Too many students rely on the advice and 'information' that their friends provide. Unfortunately, friends do not always have the up-to-date knowledge that we try to have."

An English professor coming to UMass from the University of Michigan, Dr. Shaw's specialty is the 18th Century novel. This semester, he will teach a section of the Shakespeare course. Shaw's duties as Dean of CASIAC will be similar to those he performed as Assistant Dean of the U. Michigan College of Arts.

The CASIAC student counselors will be manning a table in Boyden gym today and tomorrow. A "outline" will be also available for any student who has academic questions or problems at 5-1583, 24 hours a day for the next two weeks. The permanent office for the CASIAC student counselors is E-24 Machmer Hall, right next to the main CASIAC office.

Voter Guidelines Set For Amherst Residents

In compliance with the opinion of Atty. General Robert Quinn, the Board of Registrars of Amherst presents the following guidelines to all prospective voters of Amherst.

Qualification for registering:

1. Citizenship-U.S. citizen by birth or naturalization.
2. Age- 18 years or older.
3. Resident of Amherst for six months. In the case of students, proof of residency must be presented at the time of registration. This could be a letter from the student's Dean, Housing or Registrar's office, or rent receipts.

The Town Clerk's office is open for registering Monday through Friday between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

The next election in the Town of Amherst will be on February 22, 1972. To qualify to vote in this election registration must have taken place at least 20 days prior to that date (February 2, 1972).

Attorney General Robert H. Quinn's ruling on student voters has brought mixed reaction from students and Amherst town residents. The subject was so big that the New York Times and Time Magazine sent reporters here over the summer to find out the implications of students voting in Amherst.

Most officials from the town have stated that not too many students are expected to register here, and if they do, they will probably be responsible.

Merle Sheldon, chairman of the town's Board of Selectman, stated in July that students have served on town committees and "have made quite a contribution to the town."

Student Senate President Lee Sandwen anticipates that most students will register in their home towns in order to take a greater part in local affairs.

Senate General Counsel Richard M. Howland, Attorney for students, pointed out this week that the student who adopts Amherst as his residence, should also take on full responsibility for his actions. He described this as paying taxes here, registering your car here, knowing what you are voting for.

Hamlin Turned Over To CC Hotel

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU

Hamlin House in the Quad has been given to the Campus Center Hotel for use by "transient" students, guests of students, visiting conferences, and graduate students. It is scheduled for renovation during second semester.

Victim-students of dormitory overbooking are being temporarily housed at Hamlin House, also. Donald Witkoski, manager of the Campus Center Hotel, described the nature of these "accommodations" as "till they find other dorms." However, unsuccessful searchers will receive help from the Housing Office.

These "overbookings" are the by-product of the 999 List, a system used by the University's Housing Department. Those listed are expected to fill the vacancies created by people who didn't show up. This semester, however, the system met with an "overflow".

Last year's residents of Hamlin, who had voted in favor of co-ed living, have been transfered to Crabtree. This displacement has further contributed to the dormitory-overflow.

Sandwen Confirmed Student Trustee

The state legislature last week passed a bill with an emergency preamble confirming Lee Sandwen, president of the Student Senate, as student trustee from the UMass-Amherst campus.

Two student trustees will be seated on the Board as the result of House Bill 4778, signed by Governor Sargent August 31st. The bill allows for two student trustees, one from each of the Boston and Amherst campuses. It designates the Student Senate President as the student trustee.

Before the bill was passed, the student trustee from each campus was to alternate yearly as representatives to the Board. UMass-Boston was to have the responsibility for this academic year.

The new bill was submitted by Rep. John W. Oliver, on behalf of the University and State Communications Council, a campus group advocating greater student involvement on the board.

The new bill was submitted by Rep. John W. Oliver, on behalf of the University and State Communications Council, a campus group advocating greater student involvement on the board. The USCC previously lobbied at the State House against last year's threatened tuition hike.

UWW Trial Starts

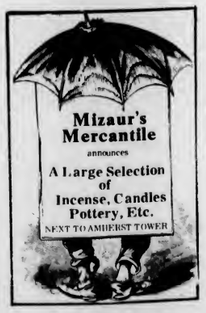
The University Without Walls will begin a pilot concept in education at UMass this fall as 30 students start bachelor's degree programs tailored especially for them.

Programs are designed to serve students with highly individualized and flexible approaches to learning. The 30 entering students, aged 18 to 55, have all had some experience in college--one as a freshman in 1928--but circumstances have prevented them from returning until now.

About 80 persons applied for the program, but enrollment was kept to 30 for this trial year.

In keeping with the flexibility of University Without Walls (UWW), students will not have traditional majors, but most will probably focus their studies on special areas of interest, according to Asst. Prof. F. Thomas Clark, director of UWW. The first 30 students have shown interests in education, social service, and the creative arts.

Prof. Clark defines UWW as bachelor's level study with a "completely negotiated program." Each program is decided by student and faculty, and each involves a wholly individual curriculum which could span several departments at UMass and other institutions involved in University Without Walls. In addition to classroom work, a student's program could include internships, field experiences, research assistantships, and independent study. Some students will also have tutoring, and none will have a time schedule to complete work for a bachelor's degree.



Of the $815,000 which the Ford Foundation and the U.S. Office of Education have funded, UMass has so far received $40,000 for its planning.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor)

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Need a Personal Locker?
Rent by the Semester
Deposit $2.00 (Returnable)
Fee $1.50
See Mrs. Margola — SU Games Area

GET THEM WHILE THEY LAST... Dean William F. Field lauds the new, the latest, the one you've all been waiting for: Student Handbook. (photo right) Thousands of anxiously awaiting Freshmen wait to get their hands on this new book, bound to be a bestseller on this campus by this afternoon. MDC photos by Steve Schmidt)

Improvement Urged At Convocation

Student initiative to improve the University of Massachusetts-Amherst community was urged by speakers yesterday at the annual freshman convocation attended by about two-thirds of the 3,600-member Class of 1975.

Percentage-wise it was one of the largest turn-outs for a freshman convocation in recent years. Chancellor Oswald Tippo welcomed the new students.

Main speaker at the morning session was Robert L. Gluckstern, vice chancellor for academic affairs. He encouraged the approximately 2,500 students to become involved in life on campus, and explained how UMass-Amherst has responded to student questions on academic, financial, and dormitory issues in recent years.

"We need feedback from you about the successes and failures in existing programs, and we need your unique perception regarding new programs," Dr. Gluckstern told the freshmen.

He noted that a faculty-student committee has been working on teacher evaluation and improvement, and said, "Before long we hope to institute a regular evaluation procedure for teachers and courses, and to provide a means for teachers to improve their skills."

Lee H. Sandwen, Student Senate president from Annandale, Va., asked the incoming students to acquire a "purpose for your lives."

In the coming years at UMass, he said, "Don't be processed. It's so easy to drift through four years here fat and comfortable. Don't proceed quietly to your degree and then plump yourself securely into the machine that runs this country today. You'll be worthless in attempts to change it, and left facing a dismal life....

"The easiest way to begin using the University to help you grow and develop the skills that we can't together use to change this country is to question it."

Howland, Sandwen Fight Board, Rent Increases

Student Senate Counsel Richard M. Howland and Senate Prsident Lee Sandwen are seeking a ruling from the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) to extend President Nixon's wage-price-rent control freeze to University fees. The increased room and board fees paid by UMass students are the issue.

The exemption is sought from the apparent ruling of the Cost of Living Council (August 29, 1971), which suggests that if one person has paid pursuant to an increase, (for instance a paid bill for increased room and board prior to August 14, 1971), the increase is already established and must be paid by all, in UMass' case 20,000 students. In a letter to the OEP, Howland and Sandwen said only some fourteen (14) percent apparently paid prior to the President's announcement.

"We are seeking to extend the benefits of the President's freeze to students who, together with their parents, are subject to the burdens of the "freeze" upon salaries, wages and other sources of income," the letter said.

According to Howland and Sandwen, any reading of the philosophy of the "freeze" which supports either the view that one person or fourteen percent may burden all others with an increase that is counter to national policy, or the view that national policy does not apply to students, is grossly inequitable.

"We cannot justify "freezing" students' and their parents' income and anticipations while allowing their cost of living (not education) to be increased," they said in their petition.

"Whether or not any student has paid should be irrelevant. The University has experienced the highest number of withdrawals prior to registration since the President's in its history, as we understand it. Surely the President did not intend to victimize all students by this freeze."

Further developments are pending the petition which opposes the exemption to the freeze granted to the University.

Few Salaries Affected At UMass

A study of the potential impact of the national wage-price freeze indicates that it will have no effect on most salaries of UMass faculty and staff, since a cost-of-living increase was given to all employees in January and merit increases for faculty and professionals were awarded in February. Step increases for approximately 500 non-professional employees, due to be paid during the 90 day period, will have to be delayed, however, and about 25 faculty members will not receive scheduled increases.

The salaries of no other employees wil be affected unless the freeze is extended.

There will be no significant saving in labor costs in areas paid for by student fees, such as board, room and the campus center. The study shows a 10 cent saving per student on the campus center, 14 cents in the residence halls, and 30 cents in the dining halls as a result of the freeze on step increases of employees working in those areas.

This is more than offset by non-labor cost increases which went into effect before the freeze, and by the fact that almost 60 percent of all foods used in the dining halls are perishable and therefore not subject to the freeze.

Increases in the costs of utilities, materials and supplies initiated prior to the freeze were at a substantially higher rate than budgeted for. Coal, for example, was budgeted for an 8 percent increase, but actually increased more than that last April. Electric power was budgeted for a 6.5 percent increase, but went up more than that on July 1. Materials were budgeted to increase by an average of 9 percent, and while a few fell within this figure, most others increased a good deal more than that (fir and spruce lumber 31%, wax 26%, cement blocks 20%, etc.)

One area of saving for all members of the University community will be in the freeze on parking fees--but at the expense of improved security and lighting.

Continuing Education Offers Many Courses

The one-year old Division of Continuing Education at UMass will offer a potpourri of interesting courses this fall. Dr. William C. Venman, program director, announced this week that approximately 70 courses in 29 subject areas are scheduled.

High school graduates, or those who have certificates of General Educational Development, are entitled t

High school graduates, or those who have certificates of General Educational Development, are entitled to enroll in courses offered by the UMass Division of Continuing Education. Students may elect to take credit courses either on a credit or audit basis, but enrollment in Continuing Education courses does not mean regular University enrollment or degree candidacy.

In-person registration will be from Monday, August 30, to Friday, Sept. 3, at the Division of Continuing Education, 920 Campus Center. Late registration will be Sept. 7 through 9. An information catalog with a complete listing of course descriptions may be obtained by writing the Division of Continuing Education, or calling (413) 545-0965.

This fall's courses will be in such subjects as: philosophy, psychology, anthropology, art, rhetoric, sociology, speech, English, German, government, history, accounting, civil engineering, finance, forestry, library science, social history of the United States, Italian, linguistics, music, math, agricultural engineering, forestry, home economics, and teacher education.

The fee for a three-credit course offered on the Amherst campus is $75, in addition to a five dollar registration fee and, for certain courses, a laboratory fee to cover the expense of field trips, computer time, or special materials. Three-credit courses offered off the Amherst campus will cost $84 in addition to the registration fee and possible laboratory fees.

Draft Bill Readies For Return To Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)-The battered draft-extension bill returns to the Senate Monday beset by a new filibuster threat and a new question: What effect will the presidential wage freeze have on its military pay-boost provision?

President Nixon pleaded in vain for Congress to pass the bill so he could sign it before the beginning of the month-long congressional vacation, now ending.

The most controversial point in the long-embattled bill remains an antiwar amendment added by the Senate and modified by a House-Senate conference.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has said that while he cannot accept that modified conference amendment urging the President merely to negotiate a deadline from U.S. military withdrawal from Indochina, he will not himself obstruct Senate action on the total bill.

But other senators, notably Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, have said nothing short of the original Senate-passed Mansfield amendment is acceptable and that they will once again filibuster the bill which would extend the draft for two years.

Developments of the past month in Saigon, which saw President Nguyen Van Thieu emerge as the sole candidate in next month's South Vietnamese presidential elections, may give fresh ammunition to opponents of the draft extension.

The Mansfield amendment would declare as U.S. policy a nine-month withdrawal date for U.S. troops, provided all U.S. prisoners are freed, with Congress setting the date. The compromise leaves that to the President's discretion.

Gravel and some others also object to the extension of the draft at all and seek the creation of an all-volunteer armed force.

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

1960 MGC-GT, excellent car, must sell, will sacrifice, $1900 firm. 546-4836. tf9-13

Triumph TR4A 1965, good mech. cond., rebuilt eng., repair papers, needs some body work. Around $550. Call Paul 665-3126. tf9-10

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sel, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or Jumbo $49.95. Immed. deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst. tf9-7

Lamps! Turn on your room with handcrafted originals. — Assorted styles, colors and shapes. Glass with all brass parts. Plus shade and bulb. 665-3093. 9-8

Tag Sale — Clothes, books, furniture, funky stuff. Saturday, Sept. 11th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., 34 South Whitney St. in town. tf9-11

BABYSITTER WANTED

Student's wife will child to babysit full time (8-4) with professor's 1 and 3 year olds in our big house and yard in Amherst. Transportation provided, salary negotiable. Call 548-2217 before 5, 253-7360 after. tf9-5

MISCELLANEOUS

Learn Silver Jewelry making! New course for beginners starts Sept. 15. Call 253-5017 for details now. tf9-10

FALL SEMESTER — ISRAEL

Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study in Jerusalem, Israel/July-December, 1971
(40) students from 25 universities enrolled in 1970)

Juniors and Seniors eligible

Four courses/Hebrew not required/Earn 16 credits

Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Some financial aid available.
Write today for information/application deadline March 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

In The Nation And The World

Nixonomics Topic With Congress, Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon is seeking support for his new economic policy at home and abroad Thursday with a personal appearance before Congress and a U.S.-Japan trade conference here the same day.

Nixon met for two hours Tuesday with Cabinet officials who will field expected Japanese objections to Nixon's new 10 per cent surtax on imports, and the White House announced the President will address a joint session of Congress at 12:30 p.m. EDT Thursday.

The White House also released a report of the National Commission on productivity that said "We must rekindle this American spirit" to produce more goods at less cost to become more competitive in foreign trade.

The report by the commission of business, labor, public and government members echoed Nixon's Labor Day radio broadcast calling on the nation to revive the American competitive spirit.

Congress reconvenes Wednesday after a month-long recess and Nixon is expected to press the legislators to enact tax proposals he requested as part of his new economic package along with the 90-day wage-price freeze and the 10-per-cent surtax on imports.

Organized labor, claiming the new policy favors big business over workers, has served notice it will lobby hard against Nixon's request for a 10 per cent business-investment tax credit, but will support his proposal to repeal the 7 per cent excise tax on U.S.-made automobiles.

Labor and some Democrats plan to fight in Congress to speed up proposed cuts in individual income taxes. And labor unions have demanded that profits and interest rates be included in any new economic restraints after the freeze.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon discussed with his Cabinet Committee on International Economic Policy the need for encouraging investment in new industrial plants and equipment to make this country more competitive in international trade.

Ziegler said the discussion included the scheduled Thursday and Friday meeting of the U.S.-Japanese Cabinet ministers on trade and economic affairs.

Japanese officials, whose country does much of its foreign trade with the United States, have objected to the 10 per cent tax on their exports to this country, and also reluctantly let their currency float upward in relation to its value to the dollar. The floating of the yen had the result of making Japanese goods more expensive when sold in the United States.

The dollar's value edged up slightly Tuesday on the Tokyo market, but still represented a devaluation of more than 6 per cent since the yen was floated free of an officially pegged value.

On other foreign money markets, the dollar value had dropped about 3.9 per cent under the French franc, 2.3 per cent below the Swiss franc, nearly 8 per cent below the West German mark and 2.4 per cent less in relation to the British pound.

Cabinet Forms Panel On Narcotics Traffic

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House disclosed Tuesday the creation several weeks ago of a Cabinet committee on controlling the international narcotics traffic.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, the chariman, said there have been three meetings with pleasing results and some successes.

"In my opinion," the secretary told reporters, "it is the most important step that has been taken in the field of control of drugs in the international sphere."

In terms of initial successes, Rogers mentioned control efforts in Turkey-which has been the biggest source of opium flowing into the United States-Thailand, Laos, Burma and Mexico. And he said that the U.S. ambassador to Cyprus, David H. Popper, has gone to more than 20 other nations to round up support.

Rogers briefed reports at the White House after press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said President Nixon signed a memorandum setting up the Cabinet committee shortly after leaving Washington Aug. 17 for a speech-making trip across the country and a sojourn at the Western White House.

There was no explanation of the delay in announcing the action, which Rogers said followed a meeting with top people in the government and ambassadors from some of the nations chiefly involved.

On the committee with the secretary are Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, United Nations Ambassador George Bush and Director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Congressional Joint-Session Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon moved Tuesday the take the initiative in the resumed session of Congress with a personal appeal for his broad new economic program.

Congressional leaders disclosed that Nixon will speak to a joint session of Congress at 12:30 p.m. EDT Thursday on the many actions and proposals he unveiled while the lawmakers were on a month-long vacation which ends Wednesday.

Some of his key moves, especially in the field of taxation, will require legislative implementation. And even on moves he can make by executive authority, support from the Democratic-controlled Congress would be valuable.

Collaterally, political significance is seen in his effort to take and hold the initiative on the economic issue which seems certain to be a major one in 1972 presidential and congressional elections.

With the wage-price freeze portion of Nixon's program set to expire Nov. 13, Congress is expected to keep in session until well past then instead of winding up its work in October as some leaders had hoped.

A variety of other business also must be acted on before the end of the session, including the long-stalled draft-extension bill and five appropriations measures including defense and foreign-aid bills.

Even before Nixon speaks, the House Ways and Means Committee opens hearings Wednesday on a package of tax proposals recommended by the President, including repeal of the 7 per cent automobile excise tax, and a speedup in increased personal income tax exemptions.

Chairman Wilbur Mills, D—Ark., has pledged prompt action but has made clear Democrats may amend the President's proposals to provide a greater tax break for low-income individuals.

The Senate votes Wednesday on a treaty aimed at curbing international air hijackings and then launches debate on a $7.5-billion, two-year extension of the antipoverty program.

With its two leaders, Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Hugh Scott, of Pennsylvania heading a delegation to a Paris interparliamentary meeting, resumption of debate on draft extension was put off until Monday.

Antiwar senators have pledged a fight against the action of Senate-House conferees in watering down a Senate amendment, sponsored by Mansfield calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in nine months if American prisoners are freed.

The month's developments in Saigon, which have left President Nguyen Van Thieu unopposed in next month's South Vietnamese presidential elections may bolster opposition to the two-year draft extension.

Few Problems As Pontiac Busing Begins

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Pontiac's federally ordered school busing got under way Tuesday with much shouting and picketing but with only a few minor incidents marking the day. Attendance was low in some schools.

Nine women, several of whom had chained themselves to a school bus parking area in an effort to keep the buses from rolling were arrested.

Bitter feeling of the busing opponents, which surfaced Aug. 30 in the bombing of 10 school buses, were still evident in the attitude of many of the pickets, mostly women.

Pontiac school Supt. Dr. Dana Whitmer said the first day's operation, in line with orders from a U.S. District Court, indicated "there was no compromise of the safety and welfare of our kids. We feel good, for that is our No. 1 job."

Mrs. Irene McCabe, a leader of the National Action Group (NAG) contended that more than 50 per cent of the 9,000 pupils who were to have been bused did not attend opening day classes, but her figures were disputed by school officials.

They said the opening day turnout of white students was not as good as they had hoped, but that the number of blacks who reported to classes was very satisfactory.

At an afternoon news conference, however, Whitmer said attendance in city high schools was 80 per cent of that expected, junior high attendance was 63 per cent and, among elementary pupils 45 per cent. Whitmer said he had no racial breakdown on attendance.

U.S. District Judge Damon S. Keith of Detroit ordered the controversial busing plan which required that about 9,000 of Pontiac's 24,000 public school pupils be bused to achieve racial balance.

NAG has taken the lead in opposing the order and says it will appeal it Wednesday to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati. One appeal to that court by the school board was rejected.

Mrs. McCabe said her group was going ahead with plans to set up privately operated "Freedom Schools" to provide a substitute for public school education.

About 300 demonstrators who objected to the busing staged a mid morning rally outside Board of Education offices.

Buses arriving at the various schools went through picket lines of parents, but there were no incidents among students until Pontiac Central High School was dismissed for the day.

James Lafnear, a juvenile officer for the Pontiac Police Department, said three white students were assaulted as they were entering buses to be taken home.

The three were treated for injuries suffered when they were struck with fists and a cane. Witnesses told police, "Four or five black youths jumped them".

My Lai Sergeant Has "No Comment"

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)—A sergeant who saw dead civilians at My Lai testified Tuesday he replied "no comment" when Col. Oran K. Henderson asked him two days after the massacre whether he felt troops had acted properly at the Vietnamese hamlet.

First Sgt. J.A. Buchanon, a platoon sergeant in the assault company, told Henderson's My Lai coverup court-martial that the colonel met him and five or six other GIs as they returned to their home base March 18, 1968.

"Col. Henderson stopped us and asked us a question," he testified.

"He said: 'Men, do you feel you have conducted yourself in a manner so that the Vietnamese would say the next time they see you come, here come our friends, here come our buddies,'" the sergeant related.

No one in the group responded or nodded his head, said Buchanon, now stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

"Did he then ask anyone individually," a prosecutor asked.

"Yes, he pointed at me and said 'How about you?' I said I have no comment, sir. He said, 'okay,' We then continued down the helicopter pad," Buchanon said.

Buchanon appeared at the start of the third week of prosecution testimony against Henderson, who is accused of willful dereliction of duty`failing to properly investigate atrocity reports.

The 51-year-old colonel also is charged with failing to report actual or suspected war crimes and with twice lying to a Pentagon inquiry into the handling of reports of events at My Lai.

The day's second witness, Ronald D. Grzesik, a riflemen at My Lai testified he saw from 110 to 150 civilian casualties around the village but answered "no" two days later when asked if he had witnessed any atrocities.

Grzesik, 27, now a student from Holyoke, Mass., said the interrogation was conducted upon his return to Landing Zone Dottie-Where Buchanon was questioned-by a senior officer whose identity he could not recall. "He asked us a question, if we had seen any atrocities," Grzesik said. "I replied no."

Q Why did you answer no?

A. Because I did not see any atrocities. I saw the end result.

The defense got Grzesik to agree that his memory might be somewhat hazy after three years. But Buchanon, asked similar questions about his memory of events at the landing zone, said: "That's something I remember."

British-Irish Summit Held

LONDON (AP) - The prime ministers of Britain and the Irish Republic ended their summit Tuesday in chill disagreement and miles apart from any joint action to end the chaos in British-ruled Northern Ireland.

Britain's Edward Heath and the republic's Jack Lynch ended their two-day meeting deeply divided on almost every issue they considered, political sources said.

The basic stumbling block confronting them was the 50-year-old issue of Ireland's partition.

Lynch insisted that a United Ireland was the only way to permanent peace, Heath contended Northern Ireland must remain part of the United Kingdom while the majority of its 1-1/2 million population wants it that way.

Both British and Irish officials, however, were anxious that the talks should not be seen as total failure.

They stressed the meeting was intended mainly as an exploration of minds and that more talks will follow. Lynch is due back in London to meet Heath this fall.

" how long can you keep an ice cube frozen in your room ? "

3 cu. ft. 50% more space

rent a refrigerator !

only $22.50* per semester

The perfect solution for late night snacks, study breaks, and even a whole meal . . . save money . . . no more vending machines to gobble up your funds . . . save time . . . it's right in your own room . . . rent one for the whole year for only pennies per day . . . even less . . . when cost is split with your roommate . . . approved by the university for in-room use . . . compact . . . lightweight . . . handsome walnut exterior has a beautiful furniture appearance . . . doubles as a table . . . quick freezing . . . can freeze up a new tray of large size ice cubes in only 45 minutes . . . holds over 36 cans of canned drinks . . . if unit fails call representative for immediate replacement . . . free pick up and delivery included in rental fee . . . limited supply — call now to reserve your unit today!

*based on yearly rates

CREATIVE CONVENIENCES, INC.
Post Office Box 103
Amherst, Mass. 01002

call 586-3480 now for free delivery

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jim Gold
NEWS STAFF — Jeannette Martineau, Bob Callahan, Earle Barroll
SPORTS — Barry Rubenstein
EDITORIAL — Gib Fullerton, Steve Schmidt
DARKROOM — John Mullen
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Free Advice

Welcome back. For those of you who have been here before, you know what to expect and for those who are new, you'll find out soon enough. This place has a way of getting to you and, if you don't take some action to prevent it, it can really overpower you. However, our business is not to preach to you about your duty to the University community but rather to hopefully educate you about what that community is.

Last year had its own triumphs and catastrophies, not unlike any other year. The entire University pulled together in an uncommon effort to stop the tuition hike, for a while anyway. Perhaps the pocketbook holds the common denominator to men's minds after all. Then again, though, some other worthwhile causes reached successful conclusions with the completion of a day care center and the alterations in the meal ticket plans. So there may be hope left yet.

On the debit side, the student-faculty relationship was strained even further than usual over the University-Senate controversy. Former Senate President Glenn Elters even went as far as to declare war. Beneath this belligerent rhetoric lies an unquestionable truth that students and faculty can not exist as mutually exclusive bodies relying upon their own resources to reach what must be an inevitable goal, a real campus-wide governing body. We must have hope that in the end reason and not some sort of misguided pride will finally settle the whole question.

As Senate President Lee Sandwen stated in his Convocation address, "Pessimism is the most blatant form of cowardice." It is not for us to look back upon past events and blame the flaws in man's character for the ultimate failure and demise of the human community. Rather we must look forward in hope in the human spirit and not foolish optimism or pessimism based on individual's goals.

The best way to accomplish this, and the best advice we can give to you, is to become part of something, not necessarily a leader or follower but a vital segment of some group or cause which you feel needs you. In this way, you can more easily become aware of the realities of not just campus life but of your own goals and abilities and perhaps less concerned with selfish thoughts. That might just be the fate Mr. Sandwen had in mind.

"What Do You Mean, What Have We Been Fighting For? Here's An Example Of A Vietnamese Determining His Own Future, Already"

Richard C. Hanson

The Liberal D.A.

The local District Attorney would like to see all drug traffic stopped on campus. With local school committees and town officials hounding him because high school students trek to campus to buy drugs, law enforcement people like D.A. John Callahan have tried to react; they had a piecemeal "undercover investigation" and arrested more than 50 students here at UMass last Spring.

Callahan knows that he isn't breaking the back of any drug scene around campus. He is happy that some of the people arrested in last Spring's early morning raid were hard core pushers with reputations for associating with high schoolers. He admits with gestures indicating resignation that the question of drugs and their illegal use is ultimately a matter to be handled by the community.

Talking with him in the Northampton District Court House, the young nicotine-hooked D.A. was not quite sure about how the law relates to the reality of this campus and how he should be enforcing the law. Callahan is of a different generation and readily admits that he doesn't understand why people at the University are so willing to take acid etc. But he says that if he was here at UMass now he too "would probably be smoking marijuana."

Callahan is a politician. While serving as D.A., he has committed himself to serving the best interests of the "defendant". Since he became D.A., those arrested for possession of marijuana have been prosecuted with kid gloves; usually a one year suspended sentence followed by a dropping of charges and no record

Callahan had instructed the agent not to purchase marijuana. The agent insisted that he had to establish credibility and could only do so by copping an occasional kilo or lid. (Perhaps the agent was a marijuana addict.) He spent $2750.60 over a two month period making five marijuana buys (largest quantity-one kilo), three of MDA, three of Amphetamines, three barbituates, three hashish, one syringe, and 23 of LSD (Largest single buy $85.00).

Because the cases of those arrested that fateful Friday morning are still being continued, Callahan declined to comment in more detail on the individual cases. But it is known that several of those arrested had been under surveilance previously and that they did deal regularly with high schoolers.

Perhaps because there is no real legal answer to UMass' drug problems, Callahan has taken on a rather awkward posture for a D.A. He is passive about Room to Move's plan to analyze drugs on campus. He says "It's the lesser of two evils..better than having bad drugs on campus." He would still like to see "drug traffic on campus stopped."

For a man entrusted with responsibility for enforcing the laws of the State, there can only be two courses. The first is to play by the books and enforce whenever possible. The other is to act out of conscience and common sense, in spite of the law. Callahan tries to walk the tightrope between the two.

There will be "on-going investigations" says Callahan, half-heartedly. There are three state police troopers assigned to investigate drugs in Western Massachusetts, including Springfield. The resources for attacking drugs around here are at a minimum. Some will be pleased to hear that State Trooper Deleva, the man who has conducted most of the drug raids in this area, is no longer the head of the narcotics squad.

What is clear to Callahan is that even though there is no way of stopping drugs here, the students themselves must recognize and reject the people in this community who do ply the high schools and junior high schools with drugs. Somehow the community must stabilize itself into a decent place to live, without the sporadic incidents of violence and gun play that have haunted UMass dormitories as part of the tremendous volume of drugs circulating the campus.

Perhaps there will be an end to the threat of drug arrests on campus. But that will happen only after the students here take some positive action. Right now, the campus is lucky to have a "liberal" D.A.

Callahan is described by his observers and even his co-workers as a "liberal". The "liberal" side being reflected by his softness on marijuana. His treatment of marijuana offenders is something he holds to the public as "liberalness". My response to this was "but you still arrest them."

Slowly, Callahan, who is still hovering around his thirtieth golden year, has been adjusting his views on marijuana, possibly to the extent that he wouldn't mind legalized grass for those over 18. He spends time reading the latest findings and recommendations on drugs. He has the recent Canadian Government report that recommends legalization. One observer noted that the D.A. while favoring legalized grass still is having difficulty with the idea of legalized hash and THC.

Why the big bust last Spring? Remember the last week of classes. The Collegian had just stopped publishing. The police, in force, swooped down on the campus just after 4:00 a.m. and within twelve minutes it was all over...at least for the 52 students nabbed.

There was much irate and critical student reaction to that intrusion into the lifestyle of UMass. Most of the administrators on campus reacted with a resigned "You do that sort of thing, that's what happens.

Two days after the raid the policemen from campus and the area, including Callahan, played a softball game with the people from Room to Move, the local drug drop-in center. It was tagged "The Pigs versus the Freaks". The freaks beat the pigs.

The raid was long in coming as any cop or University Administrator will admit. Callahan went to the State legislature at the beginning of last year to request money to conduct a narcotic's investigation. He got the money---nearly $3000.00---to purchase drugs. He was out after hard drugs.

Callahan was under pressure from local school boards and town officials to stop the drug trafficing between UMass and the local high schools. School officials reportedly went as far as naming rooms at UMass where their own youthful addicts bought drugs.

The State Police came up with an "undercover agent to conduct the investigation and purchase the drugs here on campus. The "undercover agent", according to Callahan, was working two other larger investigations in the Eastern part of the state and could only devote a minimal amount of time to UMass, coming to campus perhaps one or two evenings a week.

Freshman Convocation

Sandwen Asks For Courage

If there is one thing I can suggest about your stay at UMass, it is don't be processed. It is so easy to drift through four years here fat and comfortable. Don't proceed quietly to a degree and then plug yourself securely into the machine that runs this country today. You'll be worthless in attempts to change it and left facing a dismal life somewhere in suburbia. You've got to do something more than this. Surely you have a view of a higher purpose for your lives.

The easiest way to begin using the university to help you grow and develop the skills that we can together use to change this country, is to begin to question it.

Question why we stood up in homage to the flag that has been carried by men in your name committing genocide in Indo-China since before you were born. Question why classes are big, food bad, or why freshman convocations are held. Question why during a national wage-price freeze the university can raise rents and fees. And, of couse, question why I stand before you. There are many questions that need to be asked and many actions that need to be taken here. The central point is you must take an active role in directing and changing your lives now!

Many, I suppose, especially administrators and faculty, wonder what I feel that forces me into pressuring you at this time. Why should 17 and 18 year olds be forced into hastened preparation for Armageddon? Shouldn't college be an enjoyable period during which one can sow wild oats before buckling to the pressures of marriage, family, and the eight hour work day?

In 1776, Tom Paine wrote that, "these are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country." The country he was talking about was not the British Empire it had no name; it was more a spirit. It was echoed in the call for "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." And now as America stumbles toward its 200th year celebration, these words ring true again. There are so many crises that the modern American faces it would take me hours just to list them. Ecologic madness even in western Massachusetts; a race war, now shaping up in Cairo, Ill., Philadelphia, and elsewhere; poverty; hunger; lingering war and growing judicial fascism all exist.

Just think about the summer of 1975--the time when many of you will be leaving here. Will you be capable of dealing with American life then? You don't have to be crazy to predict Richard Nixon will be completing his second term as President, and Spiro Agnew will be a Supreme Court Judge. The world famine predicted by several authors will have begun in Asia. And surely the U.S. will be further along toward landing a man on Mars, then toward making life humane in our major cities--a life now so humane as to drive 100,000 to attempt suicide last year. Am I an extremist, a communist, or a paranoid to imagine these events? I think not--it will be part and parcel of the world we will each face in 1975.

I do not ask you, however, to be pessimistic--to turn up your stereo and to light up. Pessimism is the most blatant form of cowardice in Nixon's America today, for the U.S. is now in the locus of world history. Can the richest and most powerful nation in history face and solve the age-old problems of poverty, racism, and community, is the question we will answer through our very lives. And if we fail, the species homo sepians fails and the world may well be destroyed. Is there no greater burden or greater opportunity than that which confronts us in the rest of the 20th century?

"I know that the great tragedies of history often fascinate men with approaching horror. Paralyzed, they can not make up their minds to do anything but wait. So they wait, and one day the Gorgon devours them. But I should like to convince you that the spell can be broken, that there is only an illusion of impotence, that strength of heart, intelligence, and courage are enough to stop fate and sometimes reverse it. One has merely to will this, not blindly, but with a firm and reasoned will." Can the University help develope these qualities within us? My greatest fear is that there will be few Dan Ellsbergs, Thoreaus, Ghandis or Dellingers in my graduating class and this is why I feel so sad and hurried. If America is to resist its destructive fate there will have to, be far more developed here--men and women of courage willing to fight for the dignity and humanity of all.

It is a burden. In that there is no question. And a struggle. But it is one we can not avoid, and I hope it will begin to be faced here today in the university.

So while you're here don't beg or wait for an education--grab for it! and don't let even a degree get in your way. The time is shorter than most of you realize.

If you should need any help as an individual, legal, moral, or academic, or if you have any questions or suggestions about Student Government services do not hesitate stopping to see us on the 1st floor of the Campus Center.

I wish you luck in your stay at the University and all of us luck in confronting fate as we must.

Art Buchwald

Crawl, Buzz Or Bite

WASHINGTON — This summer four of the big movie hits have been "Willard," "Blue Water, White Death," "The Andromeda Strain" and "The Hellstrom Chronicle." The first picture is about rats, the second picture is about sharks and the last two are about bugs.

Whether it is a sign of the times or not, Hollywood once again is panicking and the word is out at the studios to buy anything for films that crawls, buzzes or bites.

A friend of mine just returned from the film capital and reported that he was in the office of one of the major producers when the following took place:

The assistant came in. "B.J., I just got word from London we can have Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton for $1,000 a week and no expenses."

"I don't want Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, you dummy," B.J. shouted. "I want snakes."

"I've got the story department researching snakes now. Oh, William Morris Agency just called. They said they have a hot property that could make a bigger picture than 'Love Story.' In the end both the girl and the boy die."

"I don't want to make a love story. That's old hat. We need something that the public is clamoring for. Maybe roaches."

"Roaches?"

"Why not? People are afraid of roaches. We could have them infected with some horrible disease and they take over the town..."

"No, it's not scary enough."

"What about boll weevils, Chief?"

"Boll weevils don't do anything for me."

The phone rang and the assistant answered it. He held his hand over the mouthpiece. "It's Ann-Margret. You told her to call here today after you saw a screening of 'Carnal Knowledge.'"

The producer took the phone. "Ann, baby, you were beautiful. Those scenes in the apartment in the guy's bedroom were out of this world.

"No, I don't have anything for you now, but I'm trying to develop a story for the present market. Say, if I can get a good script would you have any objection to working with barracudas...Yeh, that's what I said, man-eating barracudas...Ann...Ann?...She hung up on me?"

"B.J., John Wayne called and wants to know if you're interested in making a sequel to 'The Alamo.'"

"John Wayne doesn't mean anything. The public wants ants, buzzards, coyotes, wolves--mosquitos. That's what they're buying. The other day I asked my own son if he wanted to see 'Le Mans' with Steve McQueen and he said no, he'd rather see 'Escape From the Planet of the Apes.' He won't go to a movie any more unless there is an animal or a germ in it. These are the people we must appeal to."

"It's hard to find properties, Chief. Paramount outbid us for a picture about 'Yellow Fever,' MGM is working on a film about the plague and 20th has just made the chief doctor of tropical diseases at the National Institute of Health head of the studio." The story editor walked in. "I think I've got it! I think I've got it!"

He threw a script on the desk. "It's what we've been looking for. This thing will scare the hell out of everyone."

The chief ruffled through the pages. "What's it about?"

The story editor smiled. "Vichyssoise."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Letters To The Editor

As in previous years, the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letters will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

Editorial Points

You can always tell when school is about to begin at UMass. All the damn students come back.

* * * *

Students are coming back to a lot of new and exciting changes in the Dining Commons. But you still have to eat there. Now that Food Service has opened its MacDonald-like "fast food" area in Hampden Dining Commons, maybe a lot of the clowns around here can find a job (Ronald MacDonald-Admonished Administrator or maybe Fat Faculty)

* * * *

Jack Littlefield who is a high Whitmore Administrative Officer in charge of building things around campus has announced that for the next couple of years the University is going to be laced with the biggest ditch this campus has ever seen. The moat-like passage will contain the steam pipes and paraphenalia of the new Physical Plant to be built near Tilson's farm, on the other side of East Pleasant Street. Jack says that the ditch will be on the edge of campus. Jokingly he comments: "You're lucky I didn't run it right through the pond."

Before Attorney General Quinn's ruling on student voters Amherst was experienced its own Dimmock-rac in action.

* * * *

Maybe this damn feature wouldn't be so bad if some of you tried to do them once in a while.

* * * *

Starting classes on a Friday is one of the great ideas of out time. It rates right up there with the President's wage freeze.

The President As Dictator

(Reprinted from the NY Times 8/31/71)

CLEVELAND—To one who has survived all the financial panics of this century, has known all the Presidents and has been privileged to participate in building up American industry and agriculture, the disgrace of the dollar in world financial centers is sobering.

Who has the main responsibility for this economic debacle?

In effect we have a Presidential dictatorship sustained by the greatest propaganda machine in history: nationwide prime-time television. The President ignores Congress, rarely consults his Cabinet, bypasses the United Nations and announces his decisions over the air to the unsophisticated. In contrast to democracies such as Britain and Canada where members of cabinets must be either Members of Parliament or the Upper House, and where Premiers and their advisers are always available for public questioning by their fellow elected representatives. American enterprises are carried on by our President in secrecy except for several cronies in the pertinent departments.

The President has determined our disastrous financial policies and international relations. As Commander in Chief of the armed forces, a position of power strangely out of place in a democracy, especially in this nuclear age when one man's fanaticism could end the human race, he carries on illegal foreign wars with the aid of thousands of spies in all nations.

Three Wall Street lawyers, Nixon, Mitchell and Rogers, are spending the taxpayers' money around the world like drunken sailors. Now without warning, advice or consent, let alone consultation, they have overnight adopted sensational policies offensive to all other nations. These lawyers have no inventories to liquidate, they have lucrative Wall Street practices waiting where their services will be especially in demand in view of the recent additions to the Supreme Court. But many American corporations will have to struggle against the crushing burden of taxation, the high cost of money, and formidable competition from foreign corporations that have been subsidized by American funds.

The most obvious move to help the dollar is to cut out the expense of maintaining American troops, wives and children in the style to which they have become accustomed all over the world

Future historians may use such epithets as dictator and demagogue to describe the President. Philosophers may assess his intellectual depth in terms of his association with Billy Graham, for while scientists and astronomers seek an answer to the riddle of the universe, Mr. Nixon apparently accepts-or wishes to give that impression Dr. Graham's naive theory on the origin and destiny of man. It, too, lends itself to distribution by television.

No other man I have met has such an accurate and complete understanding of Richard Nixon as Premier Pham Van Dong of North Vietnam. He said to me, "There will be no end to the war in Vietnam while Mr. Nixon is President. He will use many pretexts for renewed military attacks on us. The war will end only when Congress refuses to provide the money for further participation."

The time has come for the Congress to accept its responsibility and to act vigorously through the appropriate committees, bearing in mind in this time of our financial humiliation the injunction of the ancient prophet to "do justly, love mercy and walk humbly."

Plea For Funds

On April 29, 1971, the Faculty Senate voted the following motion:

"That the Faculty Senate endorse the principle of financial support by the faculty for the CCEBS program, and recommend that faculty and staff members pledge $1.00 or more per week through payroll deduction for one year beginning September, 1971; the proceeds to be awarded to the CCEBS program for 1971-72 and that the Rules Committee be given responsibility for soliciting these pledges."

I strongly encourage the faculty and staff members to participate in supporting this critically important program. You will receive with your paycheck on September 17 a pledge card on which you may authorize a payroll deduction beginning October 4, 1971.

It should be added that our undergraduate students have contributed $40,000 a year for the last three years for this program designed to give young people from minority and low-income groups an opportunity for a university education.

I hope you will support this program as generously as possible.

Oswald Tippo
Chancellor

Rent a refrigerator for your room.

Just $4.44 a month.*

You can keep a complete supply of snacks and refreshments—including milk, fresh fruits and other perishables—right in your dormitory room with a Mini-Kool refrigerator. And the convenience of a Mini-Kool can be yours for just pennies a day.

Nobody can match these exclusive Mini-Kool advantages.

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Versatile—makes ice cubes, doubles as end table

EXTRA EXCLUSIVES

- Free pick-up and delivery
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Guaranteed—if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.*

CALL 253-2494, 256-8488

mini kool

Small-town Sheriff

"There Oughta Be A Law"

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (AP) - Rock festivals that lure thousands of fans to small towns should be banned, a sheriff said Tuesday after a Labor Day rock festival ended in violence, with one motorcyclist dead and 10 more wounded.

About 3,000 youths had listened all day Monday to music in an apple orchard just outside this coastal farming town 75 miles south of San Francisco.

At dusk, some 19 motorcyclists and 250 youths began fighting with knives, wooden boards, chains and bottles, deputies said.

Cyclist Peter Montera, 26, Long Beach, Calif., died of stab wounds in the heart. Deputies said nine other cyclists were injured and a woman was treated for a drug overdose.

"I think if we banned this type of activity this young man could have died a natural death," said Santa Cruz County Sheriff Douglas James.

He urged the county Board of Supervisors to tighten the ordinance that now allows audiences of 5,000 at outdoor festivals. There should be a long list of strict new controls, James said, and only several hundred should be allowed as a maximum audience.

Detectives still were trying to figure out who started the brawl and why. There were no immediate arrests, said one investigator, because there were no officers at the scene when the fight broke out.

Witnesses told deputies that about 30 cyclists drove up around 7 p.m. and refused to mingle in the crowd that had been listening to the Sopwith Camel, Commander Cody and Festival of Light rock groups.

The riders, men and women, said they belonged to a "weekend family" that gathered for short trips and had just come from Yosemite National Park.

Police said they parked their bikes and refused to let anyone near them. A witness told deputies one youth shouted, "Let's get the riders!"

The cyclists formed a circle and reportedly swung chains and boards, and the fight was on, witnesses said.

About 70 deputies, police and highway patrolmen arrived, armed with a machine gun, carbines, shotguns and with dogs. Using tear gas, they separated the motorcycle band from the youths and took some 150 persons in for questioning. Youths meanwhile hurled apples at police, said Sheriff's Lt. Marvin Gangloff.

The injured were taken to Watsonville Community Hospital, where two remained in serious condition and eight were treated and released, Gangloff said.

"Both sides say the other side started it," he said. "All we know is that they the youths wanted to get the bikers."

The sheriff's officers said it had not been able to determine who were the promoters of the rock fest or who owned the land where it was held.

Red Ship Heads For Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—An unmanned Soviet spaceship swung into lunar orbit Tuesday and prepared for a soft landing on the moon's surface.

The exact profiles of the Luna 18's mission were being kept secret, as usual, but Western experts anticipated the craft would either deposit another remote-controlled moon buggy, like Lunokhod 1, or would improve on the soil-scoop operation of last September.

The Luna 18 experiment is the first major Soviet space effort since three cosmonauts perished on return from a record breaking space endurance flight in tandem with the salute space station in June.

Launched last Thursday, Luna 18 made a close approach to the moon on Tuesday, braked on command from earth and pivoted into a circular orbit about 60 miles from the lunar surface.

Tass said the vehicle is laden with scientific equipment which was functioning normally.

Almost simultaneously with the announcement that Luna 18 had entered orbit, Tass revealed that Lunokhod 1 was continuing experiments into its 11th lunar day.

It said the moon car was roving the Sea of Rains taking photographs of the lunar surface to fix details of the terrain as accurately as possible.

At the same time, Tass announced that another satellite in the top secret Cosmos series had been hurtled into earth orbit.

It was orbiting at an angle of 74 degrees from earth's equator. There was no apparent connection between the Cosmos shot and the Luna 18 millions.

Viet Troops Push Into Laos

SAIGON (AP)-Thousands of South Vietnamese troops pushed toward the Laos border south of the demilitarized zone Tuesday on the second day of a new "spoiling operation" but reported no contact with the North Vietnamese.

Some of the Saigon force advanced to eight miles or so of the frontier. Officers said there was no plan to cross into Laos in force.

Objectives of the new sweep are to destroy North Vietnamese supply bases and to stem troop and supply movements into the northwest corner of South Vietnam over outlets of the Ho Chi Minh trail.

The South Vietnamese force, totalling about 12,000 infantrymen, marines and rangers, is backed by U.S. helicopters, artillery and B52 bombers.

The operation is centered to the northeast of Khe Sanh, a major U.S. operating base in the drive by the South Vietnamese into Laos last February and March. It was abandoned in April after the South Vietnamese pulled out of Laos.

In the 24-hour period up to noon Tuesday, U.S. B52 bombers flew 18 combat strikes to the northeast and northwest of Khe Sanh, dumping more than 500 tons of bombs on suspected North Vietnamese bunker complexes and supply depots.

Ambassador Escapes Death

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)-A bomb set to assassinate U.S. Ambassador Emory C. Swank was sent careening on a bicycle into his limousine Tuesday but it failed to explode and tumbled harmlessly to the street.

Police said the riderless bicycle, carrying a 13-pound plastic charge hidden among loaves of bread behind the seat, was shoved from an alleyway as Swank rode to work.

Cambodian police said the bicycle-bomb was designed to explode on impact with the limousine, but only bounced off and fell to the street.

The defective explosive was discovered when Swank's Cambodian bodyguard stopped and ordered military police to inspect the bicycle and the bread-laden basket behind its seat, police said.

Embassy spokesmen said Swank continued to his office unaware of the attempt on his life. He learned of the assassination try only at midmorning, they said.

Eat Lunch Today
at the
RICE-MOBILE
Organic Restaurant
Mon. - Fri. 11:30 - 2:30
No. Hadley St. (Near Southwest)

FOOD SERVICES
CAMPUS CENTER
Hours of Operation

Coffee Shop: 7:00 a.m. - 2:00 a.m.
Hatch: 7:00 a.m. - 10:30 p.m.
Cafeteria: 11:30 a.m. - 6:30 p.m. Closed Weekends & Holidays
T.O.C. Restaurant:
Luncheon 11:45 a.m. - 1:45 p.m.
Tues. - Fri 5:30 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.
Sat. 5:30 p.m. -10:00 p.m.
Sun. 4:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.
Lounge:
Monday 11:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m.
Tues. - Fri. 11:30 a.m. - 1:00 a.m.
Sat. 5:30 p.m. - 1:00 a.m.
Sun. 4:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.
*these hours are subject to change.

Bookstore Hours

September	Campus Center Store	Textbook Annex
7	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
8	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
9	8:45-9:00	9:00-5:00
10	8:45-6:00	9:00-6:00
11	10:00-2:00	10:00-2:00
12	CLOSED	CLOSED
13	8:45-9:00	9:00-9:00
14	8:45-5:30	9:00-9:00
15	8:45-5:30	9:00-9:00
16	8:45-9:00	9:00-9:00
17	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
18	10:00-2:00	10:00-2:00
19	CLOSED	CLOSED
20	8:45-9:00	9:00-5:00
21	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
22	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
23	8:45-9:00	9:00-5:00
24	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
25	10:00-2:00	10:00-2:00
26	CLOSED	CLOSED
27	8:45-9:00	9:00-5:00
28	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
29	8:45-5:30	9:00-5:00
30	8:45-9:00	9:00-5:00

For reasonable and convenient access to both stores, use the Campus Center garage or the Shuttle Bus.

50 Picked For ACTION

University Year for Action is a full year, full time program for undergraduates in which students work full time in community anti-poverty agencies and at the same time gain normal college credit.

The University Year for Action is sponsored by ACTION, a new federal agency which combines Peace Corps and Vista and other more specialized federal volunteer programs. The University of Massachusetts/Amherst is one of ten universities and colleges throughout the U.S. who will be starting the program this semester.

Fifty undergraduates--mostly juniors--from eleven different schools and departments have been selected to participate in the program. They will live in Springfield, Worcester, Pittsfield, North Adams and Holyoke and work in a large variety of community agencies ranging from community centers to legal assistance programs, housing projects, welfare rights nd welfare rights organizations, correctional institutions and educational projects.

Students will receive a subsistance allowance from ACTION during the year (12 months, September-September). They will work out an academic program related to their work experience together with a faculty supervisor from their major department. During the first semester the following schools and departments will be participating: School of Business Administration, School of Education, School of Physical Education, College of Arts and Sciences (Departments of English, Psychology, Sociology, Government, Speech, Afro-American Studies), Department of Public Health, School of Nursing, Department of Forestry and Wildlife Management and the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration.

The University Year for Action program represents a new model of education that may be expanded in the future to numbers far exceeding the fifty presently selected.

Anyone interested in joining The University Year for Action Program -- should contact Patrick Sullivan at the School of Education, Rm. 205 on Wednesday and Thursday for further information and interviews, or call 545-1559 immediately. Deadline - Thursday, September 9 noon.

MUNCHY'S
on Campus in
Worcester Commons (North)
&
Hampden Commons (No. 7)
hours 10 A.M. to 10 P.M.
PACKAGED CALORIES
OF MANY KINDS FROM
AARDVARK MILK TO
ZIG NEWTONS
The "New" Food Service Dept.

Student Government Works By Involvement

(Editors note: The Student Government Association of the University of Massachusetts consists of all undergraduate students of the University and the Stockbridge School of Agriculture. The working branches of this Association are the Student Senate, a number of area governments and a judiciary. The following article details their functions.)

STUDENT SENATE

The Student Senate is the representative assembly of the student body. Composed of approximately 80 Senators, each representing a dorm, sorority or fraternity, or commuter, the Senate studies and makes recommendations concerning academics, campus food, housing, and health services, security and budgets.

The background work is delineated among several permanent standing committees, each of which is responsible for a specific problem area, for example, academics, rents and fees, etc. While each senator is required to sit on at least one committee, non-senators are also welcome to join the committees and are given an equal and full vote in committee.

The network of committees is the most important structure of the Senate for here the real research is done and the groundwork laid for future Senate floor action. The dedication and persistence of committee members are responsible for, among other things, the new 10-meal plan, the 8 point grading system, alternate room coed housing, new parking security and decreases in the administration proposed increase in rents.

It takes a minimum of 12 hours a week. The Senate itself meets every Wednesday night in the Campus Center, usually between 7-12 pm. Each Senator is also expected to be active on at least one standing committee, which will also meet at least once a week. It should be noted however that the committee meeting itself is only the culmination of many hours of individual research and subcommittee hearings on the part of hall but within a residence area. Each area judiciary has five members selected in the spring by a committee composed of presiding justices and an equal number of students appointed by the President of the Student Senate. However, vacancies do occur during the year and if you are interested it is advisable to contact your area coordinator.

The Greek judiciary hears all cases involving offenses of individuals occuring on Greek property. The five members are selected in the same manner as is described above for the area judiciaries.

The General Court is the supreme court in the student government system. It acts as the final appeals court, reviews cases involving student government elections and may act as a "Supreme Court" to review student government legislation for constitutionality when requested. The General Court consists of nine members including a Chief Justice, who are selected in the manner described above.

AREA GOVERNMENTS

The area government is the newest branch of the student government association. As the legislature for that area, an area government handles problems peculiar to that area as well as having control over the area budget. Like the Student Senate, the members of each area government are elected from the dorms in that residence area. For further information, it is suggested you contact your area coordinator. In place of an are government,

In place of an area government, commuters are represented in what is termed a Commuter Assembly. Members of this Assembly are elected-at-large from the commuters.

This is the student government in brief. It is your self-government. It will only be as good as you decide to make it.

Each residence area-Orchard Hill, Southwest, Central, Northeast and the Sylvan Complex-has its own area judiciary. This judiciary hears cases refered to it from residence halls, acts as an appeals court from lower courts, and hears cases occurring ouside a residence all members.

Just as important as the formal meetings is the contact each senator is expected to maintain with his or her constituency. After all, a senator is elected, not chosen and he or she is therefore responsible for seeking opinions, being aware of the constituency's needs and special problems as well as for the decimination of information to them.

Student Senate elections will be held around the first week in October this year. Nomination papers will be made available outside the RSO office and should be returned no later than a week before the election. Notification of the exact dates will be posted in the Collegian as soon as all the arrangements have been completed.

Students who can't run for the Senate, can still get involved in the decisions by joining a committee. Members of the committees are appointed by the Senate President upon approval of the Senate. Applications for these committees will also be made available outside the RSO office.

JUDICIARY

The judiciary at UMass is made up of four court systems: 1) lower courts 2) Area judiciaries 3) Greek judiciary and 4) the General Court. The lower courts are a network of house judiciaries. The structure of these judiciaries are varied as each house judiciary is set up under methods outlined in that residence hall's constitution. These constitutions, in turn, are drawn up and approved by the members of the house. The lower courts hear all sorts of cases, some very petty-some quite important-but all stemming from problems in the residence hall.

Dr. Roberts Wins Award For Parasitology Research

Dr. Larry S. Roberts, associate professor of zoology at UMass has received the 1971 Henry Baldwin Ward Medal for "excellence in research in the field of parasitology."

Awarded annually by the American Society of Parasitologists in recognition of contributions made by young research scientists, the medal is named in honor of a pioneer in the field of parasitology. The presentation was made during the society's recent annual convention in Los Angeles.

According to Dr. Roberts, "My main research efforts have been directed to the study of the development of tapeworms in their vertebrate host. Tapeworms are highly specialized parasites that live in the intestine of nearly every kind of vertebrate, including man. Intestinal infection with tapeworms does not usually produce serious disease, but the worms have some unique characteristics which make them very interesting as models for the study of development.

"In many species the infestive juvenile is very small, and when it reaches the host intestine, it begins to grow extremely rapidly. The rat tapeworm (Hymenolepis diminuta) may increase in weight up to 1,800,000 times during the 15 days it takes to become an adult. My research has concerned the factors which influence development of these worms, how their growth and differentiation are controlled, and manipulation of these factors in the hope of learning more about development in general. It is possible that some findings may be applicable to other animal systems which develop very rapidly, for example, cancerous tissues and embryos.

"I have also worked on the identification and structure of the different species of Ergasilus. These are copepod parasites that live on the gills of fish. They are tiny crustaceans, related to lobsters and shrimp, that infest most fresh-water and some marine fish all over the world. They can be a very serious pest, especially in hatcheries where the fish are crowded."

Dr. Roberts is a native Texan, born in 1935. He received his B.S. degree at Southern Methodist, his M.S. at University of Illinois and his Sc.D. at Johns Hopkins University.

Prof. Kittrell Heads Pollution Study

A federally-financed study to find better ways of removing pollutants from plant smoke stack gases has begun at UMass.

Associate Professor James R. Kittrell of the chemical engineering department will direct the research under a $94,597 grant from the Air Pollution Office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

According to Dr. Kittrell, "Air pollution caused by nitrogen oxides and sulfur oxides has become a major environmental problem, particularly in metropolitan areas. A major portion of this pollution comes from large stationary sources such as electrical power generating plants."

He explained that one of the most promising means of removing nitrogen and sulfur oxides simultaneously is through catalytic converters. Such a process converts nitrogen oxides into the harmless constituent of air and sulfur dioxides to elemental sulfur, which is an easily stored and marketable byproduct.

"However, the catalysts presently available for use in these converters are unable to sustain conversion over a long enough period of time to represent an economically feasible means of removing these pollutants. The purpose of the present research is to develop new catalysts for this purpose, and to mathematically model their behavior to allow full exploitation of their unique properties in the design of converters to eliminate nitrogen and sulfur oxide emissions," he said.

Dr. Kittrell's research areas include kinetics and catalysis, mathematical modeling and applied statistics and optimization. He was a research engineer for the Chevron Research Company and worked for Standard Oil of California before joining the UMass Amherst staff a year ago. He holds 11 patents and has eight more patent applications pending, all in the catalyst field.

Money Found

CREMA, Italy (AP)—Antonia Righetti, 47, was bicycling along a country road near this northern community when she found a package containing 10-million lire, or $16,000. On a priest's advice, she turned the bundle over to Police.

BUS SERVICE SCHEDULE

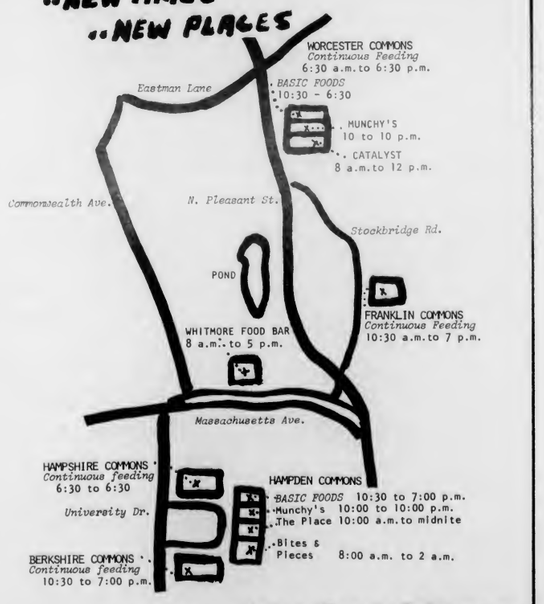
LV. U-Mass. for No. Amherst - 8:24 a.m., 11:54, 12:54 p.m., 3:56, 6:01

LV. U-Mass. for Amherst Center, Hadley and Northampton 7:31 a.m., 8:36, 10:01, 12:06 p.m., 1:06, 2:01, 4:09, 5:04, 6:14.

Connections at Northampton for Easthampton, Florence, Leeds, Haydenville and Williamsburg

LV. U-Mass. for Worcester, Belchertown, Ware, Brookfields, Spencer and Leicester

Fridays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 4:50 p.m.
Saturdays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m.
Sundays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 6:25 p.m.



For Tickets and Information
The Lobby Shoppe, Student Union Bldg. Tel. 545-2006

CHARTER A BUS

call our office for rates and arrangements Tel. 584-6481

Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.
Northampton, Mass.

..NEW TIMES
..NEW PLACES

WITH THE NEW FOOD SERVICE

Program Council Notes

See It, Hear It, Feel It, etc...

See it, hear it, taste it, touch it, smell it. The Campus Center Program Council starts off its year of student activities by allowing you the chance to use all of your senses with OR without the aid of external factors(!).

What can be seen? Movies-every Thursday and Sunday night in the Student Union Ballroom. Great movies for a low price. Movies like Andy Warhol's "Trash", Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?", "Anne of a Thousand Days", "Joe", "The Fixer", and a star-studded cast in "The Madwoman of Chaillot", and it still costs only 50¢" Sounds great, huh? Well, sit down and prepare yourself-there's more to come! In addition to those movies, we are also proud to present, for the first time ever to be shown on this campus, two more movies, what we call the Program Council specials of the month: A two-day, six show, special -- "Woodstock"; and a one-day, four show, special -- "MY FAIR LADY". For just 75¢, how can you go wrong??? A full schedule of movies for the fall semester are available at the Campus Center Scheduling Desk, or in the Student Activities Office, 1st floor, Campus Center. Hurry on down and get one while the supply lasts!

What can be heard? Music, music, and more music. Groove to the music of recording stars "The Wildweeds" in the Campus Center September 8 and 9 at 8:00 p.m. But remember to bring your student I.D. or we can't let you in. Groove to the music of "Woodstock" on September 18 and 19. Groove to the music of our unannounced artists in the night club setting on September 25. Groove to the music of the girls drooling in unison as they ogle over the fall fashions at a unique fall fashion show on September 29. Need more be said??

What can be tasted? The Campus Center Open House on September 9 offers a variety of things that can be tasted, and that taster go-o-o-o-od. Like fudge brownies a' la mode in the Hatch, hot fudge sundaes in the coffee shoppe-both only 29¢-- and booze, booze, booze at the Happy Hour--Top of the Campus-- for reduced prices. Yum, yum, eat 'em up!

What can be smelled? See paragraph above! But add to this the smell of hair-grooming products at a 10% discount in the Campus Center Barbershop, and of drying ink on personalized embosograf signs at 25% off in the Campus Center Print Shop. These bargains are also part of the Campus Center Open House specials on September 9.

That can be touched? Touch a billiards stick as you play pool in the Student Union Games Area (next to the New Hatch) for just 3/4 of a cent (.75¢) a minute. Feel at least one shiny dime in your hand when you leave the Campus Center Parking Garage after your first hour's parking for free. These are also part of the Campus Center Open House specials on September 9. Feel the pen tingling in your hand as you sign up for a Student Activity on Student Activities Night, September 22.

See it, hear it, taste it, touch it, smell it. Haven't we already given you enough to make your senses go wild? Well, we've got one more thing to offer you--a monthly Program Council calendar. Touch the heavy paper, see the lovely color-of-the-month, smell the fragrance of ink on paper, hear your friend as he reads aloud to you the events (both Program Council and Campus wide) of the month, and taste...the...well, four out of five isn't bad!!! September's calendars are now available at the Campus Center Scheduling Desk or in the Student Activities Office, 1st floor, Campus Center, or at the Collegian boxes in the Student Union and Campus Center. Use your five senses, and pick one up while the supply lasts.

Melley, DeNyse Get New Titles

Daniel M. Melley, news director at UMass since 1964, was named Director of Public Affairs recently.

Joseph S. Marcus, who agreed to head public affairs, alumni, development, and continuing education for one year during the campus reorganization of the past year, will return to the School of Engineering as Associate Dean.

In his new position, which begins immediately, Mr. Melley will be the public relations adviser to Chancellor Tippo, and principal liaison between the campus and outside media. On campus, he will be in charge of the news, publications, radio and television, photographic and cinematography services, and special events.

Mr. Melley earned his bachelor of arts degree in English from UMass in 1955 and his master of science degree in public relations in 1961 from the Boston University School of Public Communication. Between those years he was with the United States Army Counterintelligence Corps in Tokyo, Japan, and the First National Bank of Boston.

From 1961 to 1964 he was assistant news and publications editor at UMass. In 1964 he became news editor, and that year coached the UMass College Bowl Team which retired undefeated after five wins on the national television quiz show, "

John L. DeNyse, personnel director at the University has been promoted to the new position of Director of Personnel and Financial Services.

The appointment, effective Sept. 1, was announced by Vice-chancellor Thomas B. Campion. The new position is part of the ongoing reorganization of the administrative structure of the campus.

Mr. DeNyse, who will work with Mr. Campion, will be responsible for the departments of personnel, accounting, and administrative data processing, and for the bursar's office.

A 1950 graduate of UMass, Mr. DeNyse has worked for the University since 1953 when he began in the cashier's office. He also worked for the auditing department, and then transferred to the personnel office in 1958. He became personnel director in 1965.

The DeNyses live at 4 Clifton Ave., Amherst. Mr. and Mrs. DeNyse are the parents of Philip, Diana, and Mark. Mr. DeNyse is a member of the Town of Amherst Personnel Board.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

When it comes to sympathizing with problems of others, Cancer leads the way. If you are seeking a human crying towel, look for an individual born under Cancer. Natives of this zodiacal sign cannot always cope with their own troubles, but seem almost eager to listen to woes of associates and friends.

• • •

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on money, paying and collecting of debts. Get rid of financial burden not rightly your own. Draw line. Refuse to be used. Assert your own needs. By so doing, you gain respect. Goal is closer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle is such that you enjoy success through fresh contacts. Emphasize independence, original approach. Personal magnetism attracts opposite sex. Creative endeavors succeed. Initiate projects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Secret is revealed. There may be repercussions involving child, loved one. Maintain dignity. Remain calm under possible emotional fire. Play cards close to chest. Hold something in reserve.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis is on socializing, adjusting to new conditions, making friends and influencing people. Nothing stands still; be ready for change and variety. Horizons expand. Take overall view.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Thoroughness now is a requisite. If you don't know, ask questions. Answers are obtainable. Professional superiors are impressed if you go directly to source. No need to be overly modest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good lunar aspect now coincides with added knowledge, more confidence in future communication from one at a distance. Gain indicated through written word. Spotlight on advertising, publishing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some start out to do you a favor but end making special requests. Realize you will get nothing for nothing. Best to have agreements in writing, especially where money is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Weave through maze; avoid self-deception. Be positive before issuing statements. Check legal ramifications. Accent on marriage, partnerships. Lie low. Play waiting game. Don't rush. Study potential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on health, work, basic services. Be practical, especially where financial responsibilities enter picture. Heed voice of experience. Don't play games with emotions. Capricorn is involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Good lunar aspect coincides with romantic interests. Change, variety are featured. Relations with opposite sex are intensified. Study Sagittarius message. Nothing new occurs halfway.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Home, family, basic issues tend to dominate. You may be drawn between old ties and new opportunities. Key is renovation, not abandonment. Find out what can be salvaged. Greater understanding is due.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spotlight on dealings with neighbors, relatives. Ideas abound; key is to be selective. Choose quality; avoid scattering efforts. You can learn from Aquarius. A visitor could buoy spirits.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are capable of learning from experience. When you agree to do something, you enter into fray wholeheartedly. You are dynamic, attractive to opposite sex. You appreciate value of money - you strive for proverbial good life. If single, marriage could occur before year's end.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Units of energy
5 Label
8 Flat bottomed boat
12 Harvest
13 Tierra del Fuegan Indian
14 Domesticate
15 Injure by overexertion
17 Prohibited
19 Temporary shelter (pl.)
20 Condescending looks
21 Lampreys
23 Seeds
24 Possessive pronoun
26 Choice part
28 Cry
31 Part of "to be"
32 Exist
33 Pronoun
34 Permit
36 Beef animal
38 Encountered
39 Male sheep (pl.)
41 European
43 Woodworker's tool
45 Director's stick
48 Ranges of hills
50 Colonize
51 City in Russia
52 Definite article
54 Girl's name
55 Existed
56 Still
57 Hind part

DOWN

1 Formerly
2 Nerve network
3 Gather
4 Freshet
5 Measure of weight
6 Indefinite article
7 Idle talk
8 Scatter
9 Embrace
10 Hebrew measure
11 Marries
16 Small island
18 Century plant
22 Narrow, flat boards
23 Precipitous
24 Lubricate
25 Employ
27 Anger
29 Be in debt
30 Wager
35 Dealer
36 Pintail duck
37 Loose garment
38 Courage
40 Sharp corner
42 Anon
43 Bow of vessel
44 Unit of Italian currency (pl.)
46 Spanish pot
47 Approach
49 Pigpen
50 Place
53 Pronoun

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

NOTICES

AMHERST STAMP CLUB:
Monday, September 13th., Public Health Bldg., Rm. 344, at 7:30 p.m. there will be a slide show with commentary, #1s of the World". Interested visitors welcome.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST:
Coy Three-Multivisions Jesus Rock Show with New Rock Band in Mahar at 7:30 Thurs., Fri., & Sat.

GORMAN HOUSE:
Babysitting Service Do You need a babysitter? Available names and their telephone numbers registered in Gorman House Lobby.

HILLEL:
Executive Board meeting at 7 p.m. in Hillel Center Attendance mandatory.

SCHOOL OF NURSING COFFEE HOUR:
Thursday, Sept. 9th., from 2 to 4 p.m. in the School of Nursing Conference Room. All Nursing Majors are invited.

Berryman, Gaudette New Redman Mentors

On May 6 of this year, official announcement came from the Coast Guard Academy that UMass head soccer coach and freshman basketball coach, Peter Broaca, had been named Assistant Professor of Physical Education and head basketball coach at the Academy.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Broaca's departure ignited an intensive search which came to a positive and most optimistic ending with the announcement from the office of Warren P. McGuirk, Dean of the School of Physical Education, of the appointments of Jack Berryman as an instructor in physical education and head soccer coach at the university and Roland F. Gaudette as an assistant athletic coach at UMass working primarily with the intercollegiate basketball and golf programs.

A native of Lewistown, Pennsylvania, Berryman is a graduate of Lewistown-Granville Senior High School and received his B.S. degree cum laude from Lock Haven State College (Pa.) where he was a member of the varsity soccer and baseball teams for four years and captain of the latter squad in his senior year. He received hi M.S. degree from UMass in June majoring in Physical Education.

In commenting on the appointment Dean McGuirk said, "Jack Berryman is an energetic and enthusiastic young man who has much to contribute to the physical education and soccer programs at the University of Massachusetts. As the third head soccer coach in the University's fourty years of intercollegiate competition, I look for Jack to add to the many accomplishments of his predecessors, the late Larry Briggs and Peter Broaca."

Roland Gaudette

Jack Berryman

Gaudette is a native of Worcester and a graduate of David Prouty High School in Spencer and Clark University where he received his B.A. degree and also lettered in basketball, baseball and soccer.

Following his graduation from college, Gaudette has had coaching and teaching experience at Dudley Junior High School, St. Louis H.S. (Webster), Nichols College, and his alma mater where he has served as head basketball, baseball, and soccer coach for the past four years.

The new member of the Redmen coaching staff will also be assigned collateral teaching duties in the required physical education program to go along with his coaching position.

Gaudette, his wife Lois (Ross), and three children are now residing in the Amherst area.

Ashe Wields Hot Racquet at Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) - Arthur Ashe Jr., his service blazing, strode into the men's quarter-finals with three unseeded dark horses yesterday and became the prime favorite for the $20,000 top men's prize in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

The slender, black athlete, winner of the naugural Open in 1968, showed only one brief lapse in crushing 20-year-old John Alexander, the newest Australian hope, 4, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4.

"I'm playing as well as I ever have," Ashe said. His serve was hitting the corners at 112 miles per hour and, when he needed a point, he put the ball away with a killing volley or one of this topspin backhands. He gave a devastating performance.

Ashe's quarter-final opponent will be Manuel Orantes of Spain, the clay court specialist who outlasted Jim Osborne of Honolulu 2-6, 6-2, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

If he survives that one, he must face the winner of the match between towering Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, the flashy giant-killer from behind the Iron Curtain.

The quarter-final bracket will be filled Wednesday when second-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., plays Milan Holcek of Czechoslovakia, fourth-seeded Tom Okeer of Holland meets Roger Taylor of Britain, fifth-seeded Marty Riessen of Evanston, Illinois, faces Nicki Pilic of Yugoslovakia and Clark Graebner of New York City, goes against Ray Moore of South Africa.

Meanwhile, in the women's division second-seeded Rosemary Casals and Australia's Kerry Melville, No. 4, made the semi-finals, where they will meet, and a 22-year-old North Carolina College co-ed, Laura duPont of Charlotte, upset seventh-seeded Nancy Richey Gunter of San Angelo, Tex., in a delayed third-round duel.

FOOTBALL'S AROUND THE CORNER-Redman head football coach Dick MacPherson (center, and his co-captains, Dennis Keating (left) and John Hulecki (right), will lead the 1971 UMass football team into the fall schedule opening on the road at Maine on the 18th of September. For a complete look at the team and the year ahead look for the football special in next Friday's Collegian.

Ali Turns Bikey!!!

Yancey Durham, Manager of heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, was shopping around Montreal for an opponent for the champion last week. It might be that Durham has heard that Muhammad Ali has taken up driving a motorcycle-and not well.

Angelo Dundee, Ali's trainer, announced recently that Ali had taken a spill on the motorcycle and needed two stitches in his right hand to mend the damage. "He was bragging to me about his motorcycle," Dundee said. "He was going to give me lessons. I don't think I'll take lessons from now on."

Howe Ponders Rink Future

DETROIT (AP) - Gordie Howe, holder of more National Hockey League records than any other player in history, was reported yesterday to be retiring after 25 years with the Detroit Red Wings.

The 43-year-old forward told The Associated Press he had made a decision on his future, but insisted, "nobody other than my immediate family knows what my decision is."

He said he would make it public at a previously announced news conference Thursday, and meanwhile was "trying to be honest with everybody and not say in advance what it is."

Regarding reports by the Detroit News and Toronto Star that he was quitting hockey, Howe quipped at first: "How do they know something that I don't know myself?"

Then he confirmed what Red Wing General Manager Ned Harkness had said earlier that he is to announce at the news conference whether he "will play or not play."

Almost yearly since Howe passed the 20-year mark as an NHL player, there have been premature reports that he would not play another season, but he has kept going and starring. He holds the NHL record in career goals with 786.

He has been bothered in recent seasons by an arthritic left wrist and right elbow, and recently was quoted as saying "hockey is no longer fun" to him.

Bosox Castoff Wood Shoots For 20th

CHICAGO (AP) - Early this season, a somewhat irked Wilbur Wood demanded from the depths of the bullpen that the Chicago White Sox "play me or trade me."

Little did the knuckleballing relief specialist know that new White Sox manager Chuck Tanner was going to play him, and how.

Tanner didn't give Wood a look the first five games of the season. Then, with veteran Joel Horlen on the injured list, on April 12, Wood made his first major league start in 2-1/2 seasons, against the California Angles.

Wood lost that game, 3-2, but allowed only three hits in 7-2/3 innings, and a new White Sox first-line pitching star was born at the age of 29.

Tonight, Wood will face the Minnesota Twins here seeking to become the first 20-game White Sox winner since Gary Peters in 1964.

Wood, a slightly portly, slightly bald southpaw, has a 19-10 record which doesn't really reflect his amazing rubber-armed durability.

Tonight's start will mark the 11th time this season Wood has pitched with only two days rest.

Furthermore, he will carry a string of 22 1-3 scoreless innings against the Twins.

Wood already has pitched 274 innings which more than doubles his past two seasons of heavy bullpen work. He is far ahead of his peak relief season of 159 innings in 1968 when he set an American League record by pitching in 88 games and posting a 1.87 ERA while achieving a 13-12 record.

Serenely munching a cigar in the Sox clubhouse after a 2 hour, 31-minute, rain-interrupted, 8-0 victory over Kansas City Sunday, Wood explained pretty much why he is such a tireless mound performer.

"When you have spent as much time getting up and down in the bullpen as I have, you get used to pitching right now or after waiting a long time," said Wood.

Lions Tighten Ranks After Pre-Season Setbacks

DETROIT (AP) - This is the fifth year of the five-year building plan under Coach Joe Schmidt and that would seem to mean the year the Detroit Lions cash in their talents for a National Football League title.

But the optimism that the Super Bowl is certain to be the last game on their schedule has been jolted by a couple of exhibitiion season losses. These losses, however, might be the best thing that could have happened.

Runaway confidence has mellowed into tempered hopefulness. It appears as if Detroit has an excellent chance of beating Minnesota for the Central Division crown of the National Conference and quite possibly going all the way thereafter.

"The Lions have climbed a long way up the hill the last two seasons to come close to the top, Schmidt says. "But the last stride sometimes can be the toughest."

Just three seasons ago Detroit wallowed in the standings with a 4-8-2 record. In 1969 it climbed to 9-4-1 before the 10-4 mark last year which was good for second in its division and a berth in the playoffs as the best runnerup team.

Dallas blanked the Lions 5-0 in the playoff in a game that caught Detroit at probably its flattest of the year.

"You have to be able to execute when the chips are down and we weren't able to do it," Schmidt means when asked about that loss.

Schmidt, former all-pro linebacker with Detroit, and the Lions front office concentrated on drafting to improve the defense-particularly the pass rush. The once heralded Detroit front four, spearheaded by Alex Karras, only got to the opponent passer 23 times in 14 games.

Tackle Bob Bell, the No. 1 draft choice from Cincinnati, could develop quickly in aiding the problem and even win a starting berth ahead of Dan Goich.

Karras, in his 13th season, has apparently fully recovered from knee troubles which hampered him last year and that could mean a world of difference.

Detroit was No. 1 in the NFC last year in stopping opponents rushing games, giving up an average of only 82 yards. That might even be improved this year and a prime reason is the linebacking of Paul Naumoff, Mike Lucci, and Wayne Walker-as able a trio as can be found.

Lions defensive backfield specialists, burdened by a poor pass rush, gave up 2,296 air yards last year more than 1,000 more than was gained on the ground.

Offensively the Lions finished eighth in total yards gained 3,984 but tied for first in touchdowns with 41. They were 13th in passes attempted, 12th in passes completed, yet second in points scored and third-in-first downs.

That indicates a standout running game. It should be better this year if Mel Farr stays healthy. Altie Taylor and Steve Owens plus durable Bill Triplett join him as good runners.

Schmidt says Greg Landry is his top quarterback, but early faltering would bring on Bill Munson. Landry is more flashy and a running threat while Munson is fairly conservative.

They have some of the fastest receivers as targets: Earl McCullouch, Larry Walton, and rookie Ron Jessie.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Beware of the frizzies, frost on the frogs, and sweat on the brow.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 2 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1971

ANOTHER PICTURE OF ANOTHER LINE BEGINNING ANOTHER YEAR— It was hot, crowded, and frustrating. It was the old "hurry up and wait"cliche. It was screwups, nerves, and every so often the success of the back door, and the cool of a 96-degree day. It was as routine as it was different. It was a helluva mess to clean up. And it was only a prelude to today's festivities in the two-ring circus that is registration/course change time. (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton. See story below.)

On The Inside:

- Day Care Center — See Page Three
- Room-Board Survey — See Page Three
- Draft Counselor's Corner — See Page Seven

Learning To Love It

What can be said about registration? That the lines seemed a bit longer, Boyden somewhat smaller, and it rained-but it's all been said before. It's also been said that the registration officials didn't know any more than the most ignorant of freshmen and were sadly unprepared for the onslaught they should have expected.

Yesterday's registration was a little differet. True, it rained, there were lines, and Boyden was an inferno. However, according to Registrar Jones, yesterday was a landmark of sorts. Out of an expected 16,300 students, approximately 16,000 registered. The other 300 tied up the Cashier's office so badly that it had to close at 3:30 because of its inability to process all the students who neglected to pay their bills till the last minute. According to Jones, the failure of such a number of students to pay their bills was unprecedented and unexpected. Jones said, however, that the late registration fee of $5 would not be charged until Friday so that as many students as possible could register without being penalized.

Of the 16,300 expected to register, approximately 1,600 were incoming freshmen and 1,100 transfers, said Jones.

It wasn't the sheer weight of numbers that fouled up the proceedings entirely. New policies regarding the distribution of meal tickets and ID's also added to the general confusion, making it a bitter, trying day for some-especially the inexperienced.

Next semester's registration promises to be different from past ones, also. Registrar Jones is looking to make registration day less hectic by refusing to let groups such as CCEBS, Casiac, etc., have information booths in Boyden on future registration days. Jones feels that such information centers only add to the general confusion and that their place is with the other groups which have information booths open on course change day.

Innovations must have their trials and proofs; if the Registrar's plans for future registrations work out, who knows? Students could almost learn to love it.

NES Tutor Prospects Will Meet Sunday

The Northern Educational Service tutoring program will have a tutor recruitment meeting this Sunday in the Campus Center Auditorium at 7:30 PM. All UMass students are invited to attend this first of a series of orientation sessions to be held this fall.

The NES tutoring program sends college students to Springfield to tutor in economically deprived areas of that city. The Northern Educational Service, Inc. of Springfield operates several storefront tutoring centers in which this educational activity takes place.

In the program UMass students are expected to tutor one or more times a week on a one to one basis. Tutoring takes place Monday thru Thursday with two tutoring sessions per day. A volunteer can choose between two time periods. Generally, the tutoring bus will leave Amherst at 2:45 PM and return at 6:00 PM. The second session has the tutoring bus leaving Amherst at 6:15 and returning at 9:30 PM.

There is a new option in the NES program students should keep in mind when they add or drop a course today. NES will be participating in a tutoring course for 3 credits. Tutors taking this course will be expected to tutor two times a week and participate in a program evaluation.

The course is called Special Problems in Education with course numbers of NO1 and NO2. NO1 will meet on Tuesday and Thursday and NO2 will meet on Monday and Wednesday. The tutors involved in this course will have to have the afternoon free Wednesday or Thursday to tutor in the Springfield schools involved in this program. The second tutoring session will occur during one of the regular scheduled after school NES tutoring sessions.

All students interested in tutoring either as a volunteer or as a three credit course should keep NES in mind. There will be people located in Boyden Gym to answer questions and to register students for the course. Anyone interested in participating as a volunteer with the possibility of getting modular credit should attend the recruitment meeting being held this Sunday.

Through both these programs students are offered the opportunity to make a constructive committment in a urban area. The response in the past has been excellent and it is hoped that student support will make both programs a success.

CASIAC Working With Action Program

By JAMES GOLD

The curriculum committee met with Dean James Shaw of CASIAC yesterday in South College to help with the development of a course for the students in the University Year For Action Program, Community Decision Making. Also up in the air at that time was whether or not to accept the funds turned down by U Mass-Boston under the same program, which starts here on Monday.

40 students from eleven different schools and departments will work in community anti-poverty agencies while receiving up to 30 credits for the year, September 71-September 72, under the program.

According to Shaw, the committee critiqued the tentative course proposal and came up with several suggestions. The course is inter-disciplinary and will be offered by the Faculty of Behavioral Sciences.

The suggestions consisted of a breakdown of "who will teach what", consulting other departments, and defining the "final knowledge", or aim, of the course.

The course will be taught by members of the An ...opology, government, psychology, and sociology departments. Shaw said that the first phase is tentatively set but that after October, everything is very indefinite. "We want to consult with everybody we can," he said.

Federal Commission

"Alcohol Worse Than Pot"

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal marijuana commission, still months away from its first formal report, is proceeding on the hypothesis that drunks are a far worse social problem than pot smokers.

"We do know this: The most severe drug-abuse problem we've got in the United States is alcohol," the commission executive director, Michael Sonnenreich, told the Associated Press.

"Does it marijuana turn you into a foaming maniac? No. Is it physically addicting? Well, all the indications we have right now is, no, it is not. We know that alcohol is. But that isn't the criterion of a danger. The danger is social impact.

"We know certain things about alcohol. We know about loss of time on the job, break-ups of families, impact on our medical facilities. We know a greater range of the problems of alcoholism. Nobody's really tried to assess, effectively, the impact of marijuana."

Sonnenreich, former deputy general counsel in the Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, discussed the first seven months work of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drub Abuse.

The commission, set up by Congress to investigate all forms of drug abuse and to recommend new laws as needed, is to report on marijuana next March with findings on other drugs due a year later.

President Nixon has said he will ignore any recommendation to legalize marijuana use, but the commission chairman, Raymond P. Shafer, Republican former governor of Pennsylvania, says Nixon's views won't influence the commission.

So far the commission has held public hearings in Washington, Chicago and San Francisco. In closed sessions it has heard confessions from marijuana users.

The commission has let contracts with pollsters conduct a nation wide survey of what 2,500 Americans think about marijuana. Other researchers have contracted to study the medical effects of jail terms on young pot smokers and other aspects of the problem.

The 13-member commission has come to no conclusions yet. Sonnenreich said, adding that Shafer has discouraged the other commissioners from taking firm stands that they might later find hard to change if contrary evidence turns up.

But some things already seem clear to Sonnenreich. "We probably will not discover that marijuana absolutely makes your eyeballs fall out and your nose quiver, nor at the same time are we going to find that it is a harmless drug. So the point is it falls in a gray area."

NOTICES

ED MAJORS
Jr. and Sr. Ed majors interested in Action program contact Patrick Sullivan, Rm. 205 School of Education, 545 1559 immediately. Deadline Thurs. noon.

GOLFERS
A meeting will be held Monday evening, Sept. 13, 1971 at 7:00 p.m. in Boyden, Rm. 250, for all those interested in trying out for the Golf Team. This includes freshmen.

HILLEL
Hillel picnic, 5:00 p.m., Farley Lodge by F lot. Bring guitars.

MOBE
The first meeting of the UMass Student Mobilization Committee will be held on Monday, Sept. 13, at 8:00 p.m. in rooms 174 6 of the Campus Center. The guest speaker will be George Kontanis, coordinator of the Greater Bostonian Peace Action Coalition (GBPAC). Everyone invited.

Oxford Scholarships Now Available

Rhodes and Marshall scholarship competitions for 1972-73 has officially opened, according to Mrs Barbara B Burn, Director of the Office of International Programs.

A Rhodes scholarship provides for two years of study at Oxford University, England, with a possible third year if the scholar's record and plan of study warrant it.

To be eligible a candidate must be male, unmarried and a U S citizen with at least five year's domicile, be between 18 and 24 years old at the time of application, have at least junior standing at the time of application; and receive official endorsement of the university.

Selection is based not only upon the applicant's academic ability and achievements, but upon his moral character and physical vigor. "Quality of both character and intellect is the most important requirement for a Rhodes scholarship," the official program announcement states.

The Marshall scholarship program is designed to enable qualified men and women to study for a degree at any university in the United Kingdom. Awards are made for two years, but may be extended for a third.

To be eligible a candidate must be a U S citizen, under 26 years old on October 1, 1972, and a graduate of an accredited college or university.

Marshall scholarship selection committees look for distinction of intellect and character as evidence both by scholastic attainment and other activities and achievements.

Rhodes and Marshall Scholarship application forms are available at the Office of International Programs. Students interested in learning more about the scholarships should talk with Mrs. Burn. Completed applications must be received at the Office of International Programs, 229 Whitmore, by October 8. The applicants are then interviewed by a campus committee. Applications endorsed by this committee are transmitted to the state and regional Rhodes and Marshall Selection Committee by October 31 and October 22 respectively for their review.

Push Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)-The push to add more individual tax relief to President Nixon's economic package came to the fore Wednesday as the administration's proposals were placed formally before Congress.

"I think there is need for some additional incentive to individuals to buy more," Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee said.

Local Boy Makes Good

A call for musicians of all types string, brass, woodwind and percussion to form groups that would be willing to perform for exposure only has been made by a 22 year-old city resident who has worked as a promotion manager for a large recording company.

Harold Koltin, who recently completed his senior year at the University of Massachusetts, has created Rockreation which involves getting musicians who aren't members of rock groups as well as those who are already grouped but are willing to regroup themselves, working together.

The aim at first would be to play for free at concerts such as those put on by Re-Creation 71 with an ultimate goal of "making it on a big label," according to Koltin.

He said he has talked to James Wilcox, the city's summer program coordinator, about the project, and "he said it was a good idea. He agreed to help us find places to rehearse."

Koltin noted that many famous groups are not much different in age or talent from the rock musicians in the area.

"The one big difference is luck," he added. "Maybe we can help some people in the community to get lucky."

Anyone interested in participating in the project may write Harold Koltin at 84 Kenwood St.

TONITE!!
CHARLIE
AT
The English Pub

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Friday's Follies Presents
...new waves and old raves
Man and a Woman
Friday 6, 8, & 10:00
S.U. Ballroom
Admission $.75
Series Tickets Available
Butterfield Productions

FALL SEMESTER — ISRAEL

Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study in Jerusalem, Israel/July-December, 1971
(40) students from 25 universities enrolled in 1970)

Juniors and Seniors eligible

Four courses/Hebrew not required/Earn 16 credits

Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Some financial aid available.
Write today for information/application deadline March 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

New Day Care Center Readies For Opening

By ANNE STADNICKI

Where are all the children? queried one tot when her mother went to Bowditch Lodge to enroll her in the University's new Day Care Center, yesterday.

The center was open for a two hour orientation period and will keep the same hours (9:30 to 11:30 am) today and tomorrow in order to acquaint its "students" with the premises and enable more parents to register their children.

"We feel that a lot of the parents believe there are no spaces left at the center," Miss Pelz said. She wanted to invite applicants to come down to the lodge this week before regular sessions begin.

Children are accepted to the pilot program on a one semester basis. A choice of morning or afternoon shift can be made by the parent, but only in special cases will enrollment for full time care be accepted. Children already enrolled will have priority for acceptance to second semester.

The resources of the center are available to the children of full time undergraduate and graduate students and non-professional employees at UMass. Parents must pay a tuition fee of $100. per semester, however. This figures down to $1 per hour, 4 hours per day, 5 days per week, according to Miss Pelz.

She said that the Center is also financed by both the University and the student body. Combined, the Graduate, Undergraduate and Commuter Senates contributed $10,000 to the Day Care Center, while the University donated the use of Bowditch Lodge and renovated it.

"The University's committment is really significant because the building is worth so much," Miss Pelz said. (The concept of a University Day Care Center came about after irate mothers held a "party" for their children in the lobby of Whitmore Administration Building last May to point out the need for University support in the project.)

Four staff members will care for the children. In addition to Miss Pelz, the core includes Constance Hayward, assistant director, and two teaching assistants, Joe Sylvia and Shari Stutzel. Additional staff up to 10 volunteer adults will maintain a 5 to 1 student- teacher ratio. Parents are also requested to volunteer their services.

"The open classroom principle will be employed at the center," Miss Pelz explained.

She said four "interest" areas will allow the students to learn at their own pace. The teachers will make sure the child gets enough exposure to the areas, which are reading, puzzles, painting and blocks.

The Day Care Center, with its innovative classroom technique is experimental but is anticipated to go on, as this year promises to be a great success, Mizz Pelz predicted.

Changing Courses Is Easier

Course changes for undergraduates have been simplified. Starting this year there is no longer extra burden on the undergraduates in changing courses, whether it be adding or dropping them. Only one step is required of the student, and that is to go to Boyden Gym at the designated hour. The hours run the same as they did on Wednesday, and the student should go to the gym on the time shown on the blue information sheet according to the first digit on his student number. Students must not come earlier as material will not be ready until the designated hour. Read the directions on the given sheet and then pick up the course change card. One card is needed for each subject whether it is to be added or dropped. Write in the subject wanted and walk over to the table designated for that subject. Once there, just hand the card to the advisor, who will answer any questions and the course change is complete.

Talk on Black Repression Saturday

By STEPHEN FINE

Professor Jean Wiley, the former information officer for SNCC, H. Rap Brown, and Stokley Charmichel, and now professor of English at UMass, will speak at Thompson Hall this Saturday at 1:00 PM. Her topic will be the repression of Blacks in America, specifically as related to the trials of Angela Davis, Ruchell Magee, and the "Soledad Brothers".

Concerning these trials she said, "I don't feel it is possible for any political Black person to receive a fair trial in this country, indeed any Black person at all."

She believes the acquittal of the 13 Black Panthers in New York to be an accident. "The acquittal of the Panthers doesn't prove anything about getting a fair trial. They were put on trial because they were members of the Black Panther Party rather than having committed a crime."

Professor Wiley is not a member of the Black Panther Party but says she will fully fight against any repression of the party. "Political repression isn't new to Black people in this country. It began with the rape of America. What it has come to is that the American Judicial System has become a major arm of that repression. Before it appeared, the legislative and executive branches practiced the most repression, but now the courts are taking a more active part in repressing Black people."

In commenting about the killing of George Jackson, she strongly feels the details surrounding the case released by prison officials were fraudulent.

'LA

"Any clear reading of those official statements at San Quentin indicate fross contradictions and absurdities," she said. "The events surrounding George's death couldn't have happened. I, like Mrs. Jackson and most Black people in this country, believe Fleeta Drumgo and John Cluchett (the surviving Soledad brother). They said in court that George was gunned down by San Quentin guards, who afterward created the rationale that he had been trying to escape."

"People should doubt official reports hy the government and understand political repression in this country is a fact." Professor Wiley maintained. "Repression is escalating at an alarming extent," she said, "and it just ain't limited to Black folks anymore."

Few Favor Room-Board Increase

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU

Room and board increases were found generally unfavorable by UMass students yesterday in a Collegian survey. However, faith in efforts to have the increases refunded was very low.

Responses were predictably, overwhelmingly, and, in some cases, unprintably negative. Some of the milder reactions included "I don't like them", "I can't afford it", "So what are ya gonna do?" and "You've gotta be kidding!!!"

When reminded of the wage/price/rent freeze, most students became more vocal:

"I think the universities and the large corporations knew about the freeze ahead of time...so they could raise their prices."

Most students said that they support Student Senate Counsel Richard M. Howland and Senate President Lee Sandwen in their efforts to obtain a ruling from the Office of Emergency Preparedness, on the legality of these increases. Still many feel that the attempt is futile.

However, one Thatcher resident commented: "At least someone is taking advantage of this means of getting heard. I don't like the increase in rates either, but they should sink some of that money into fixing up some of these dorms...or more financial aid to students."

Finally, almost in summary, one student remarked: "Ours is not to reason why..."

CEQ Needs Help

A meeting open to everyone interested in conservation, ecology, or environment as a social reform movement will be held by C.E.Q. (not the Presidential Council on Environmental Quality, but the Coalition for Environmental Quality) on Tuesday, September 14th at 6:30 p.m. in Room 174-176 of the Campus Center.

There will be discussion and planning for the fall semester's activities. Most will probably be continuations of last year's projects: speakers' programs, recycling, newsletter, on-campus education, bike club, etc. Anyone may come, propose a project, and carry it through if enough other like-minded people become commited enough to help. There are also some pretty die-hard C.E.Q. people who push on with a project even if they don't get a large response. To a large extent, C.E.Q. operates to help self-motivated people actively pursue their environmental concerns-it can also be an educational experience. If you're at all interested, mosey on down: you may get hooked.

Crowds Stone Troops After Irish Funeral

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP)-Crowds stoned British troops in Londonderry on Wednesday in fierce rioting after the funeral of a 14-year-old Roman Catholic girl killed in a cross-fire.

Throughout Northern Ireland, troops braced for a new terrorist offensive as the outlawed Irish Repuhlican Army issued an ultimatum that internment of suspected terrorists be stopped and the Protestant-dominated provincial parliament be dissolved.

In Londonderry, the Roman Catholic crowds in the Bogside quarter had been angered hy charges that the girl, Annette McGavigan, was shot by British marksmen as they battled terrorist gunmen.

Annette was the 100th victim of Northern Ireland's two-year wave of blood-letting between the warring Roman Catholic and Protestant communities.

Soon after she was buried, roaming bands of up to 1,000 attacked troops who fired volleys of riot gas grenades and rubber bullets-which can break limbs but are not lethal-to fend them off.

Only One This Year

As student enrollment has increased so drastically, distribution of the Student Directory has rapidly become a more complex and expensive matter. Therefore, for the year 1971-1972, there will be one edition of the Student Directory.

It will he distributed at no cost to the dormitories, according to the number of telephones. All other on-campus or off-campus interested departments or individuals may purchase copies at the Campus Center Book Store commencing September 8, at a cost of 75 cents each. Departments wishing to order a bulk amount of directories by department should bring an encumbered purchase order to the bookstore.

BUS SERVICE SCHEDULE

LV. U-Mass. for No. Amherst - 8:24 a.m., 11:54, 12:54 p.m., 3:56, 6:01
LV. U-Mass. for Amherst Center, Hadley and Northampton 7:31 a.m., 8:36, 10:01, 12:06 p.m., 1:06, 2:01, 4:09, 5:04, 6:14.

Connections at Northampton for
Easthampton, Florence, Leeds, Haydenville and Williamsburg
LV. U-Mass. for Worcester, Belchertown, Ware, Brookfields, Spencer and Leicester

Fridays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 4:50 p.m.
Saturdays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m.
Sundays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 6:25 p.m.

For Tickets and Information
The Lobby Shoppe, Student Union Bldg. Tel. 545-2006
CHARTER A BUS
call our office for rates and arrangements Tel. 584-6481
Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.
Northampton, Mass.

S. W. Patriots presents 2 biggies on Thursday, Friday, & Saturday
8:00 P.M. Getting Straight
10:00 P.M. The Owl and the Pussycat
Admission: 75c for both films
FRIDAY MIDNIGHT SPECIAL
The Blob
Admission: 25c
In Berkshire Dining Commons, Southwest

ACADEMIC INFO & ADVISING

Visit the CASIAC student counselors at Boyden today or call 5-1583 anytime
Permanent offices E-24 Machmer

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Emory Rounds
NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti, Bob Callahan, Jim Gold, Don St. Pierre
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
DARKROOM — Steve Schmidt
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Where Danger Lies

The conversation reported on yesterday's Editorial page between the local District Attorney John Callahan and the Daily Collegian Editor Richard Hanson concerning drugs and drug arrests should cause students at UMass to reflect upon one fact; if you use drugs you are a criminal in Massachusetts.

In spite of the "liberal" leanings and semi-enlightened practices of the District Attorney, people are still apt to get arrested for marijuana.

The results of having drugs illegal have been viciously negative. Drug use does not seem to be inhibited but the growth of illegal activities, up to and including violence, has been encouraged. There is large profit to be had from dealing drugs, just by ignoring laws which are ignored by millions anyway.

We are recommending the legalization of all non-addictive drugs simply because through legalization the real dangers of taking drugs can be dealt with rationally.

The real dangers we speak of are 1.) using drugs that may have been made with dangerous impurities and 2.) getting arrested.

Legalization of marijuana and other drugs which have THC as an active ingredient should become a reality before one more person is arrested. The evidence is overwhelmingly in favor of legalization: the report which came out of a commission appointed by the Governor of California recommended legalization; a Canadian government commission just last month reached the same conclusion and urged national legalization.

All of the people here on campus who are of voting age and who use drugs should exercise their right to elect politicians who won't maintain laws that could arrest them.

We urge people to write to District Attorney Callahan at the District Court House in Northampton to express your feelings on drugs. He is very interested in hearing from students and he has never smoked dope.

Drugs have made their way into our modern society, it is about time we started recognizing that fact.

COMMITTEE FOR BETTER UNIVERSITY HOUSING

FOUR BEDROOM APARTMENTS

"within walking distance of central campus"

ONLY $544 a month

All these benefits:
NO KITCHENS
NO PARKING
NO APPLIANCES
NO RECREATION FACILITIES
NO PRIVACY
NO GUESTS
NO INDIVIDUAL HEAT CONTROL
SHARE THE BATHROOM
CLOSET SPACE DOUBLES AS LIVING ROOM
NO CHILDREN
NO PETS
NO MARRIEDS
NO AIRCONDITIONING

Planned occupancy: 7 persons.

Collective damage responsibility-"All play you pay"

Five months rent required Aug 25th

AS WELL AS $700 in deposits

Available now: University Housing Office the people who made the "Southwest Complex" a communicable desease

(Just ask for "Sylvan" with a big check)

"Month" does not include many National, State or religious holidays— we are not required to help you relocate at these times except at your expense.

Don Glickstein

More Than Hot Hell

Ralph D. Jones and Joel Stoneham did it again by turning what is at best an untenable situation into a degrading, disgraceful fiasco. Especially for freshmen and transfer students, the two groups most unable to cope with insensitive people in the bureaucracy, Registration Day was more than the usual hot hell of lines.

It began early in the morning, when Jones, the Registrar, refused to let CASIAC set up a general academic counseling table on the main floor of the gym. Such a table, according to Jones, would have created a "bottleneck" of people on the main floor. CASIAC was assigned a distant room on the second floor of Boyden, thus denying many students the opportunity to get unconfused by the only general and knowledgable academic advising service around. (By the way, the Housing Office, CCEBS, Parking Authority and Veterans all have tables on the main floor.)

The climax of the day was not the traditional rain, but the closing of the Cashier's Office at 3:30, which stranded hundreds of students who were not allowed to pay their bills. At this writing, it is not known whether these students will have to pay the $5 penalty fee for the poor coordination between the registrar and cashier.

In past years, freshmen who had their ID pictures taken during the summer received their ID cards in their registration packets. Not so this year, and the lines from the ID distribution office stretched at one time to a remote stairway on the other side of the building.

In a real innovative move, the validation stickers for ID cards were reduced in size by more than half, resulting in their constantly falling out of packets. The miniscule stickers were often lost or forgotten.

The Dining Commons, for all their noble efforts at meatloafs (and the meal in the basic food lines was (no kidding) good), still have organizational problems.

Freshmen in the September Orientation and Counseling Program were often turned away from the Dining Commons on Tuesday, because no one told anyone that their special meal tickets they had been given were a year old.

The biggest fishbone that the Food Services fed students was the distribution of meal tickets. No longer could students pick up their meal ticket at their local dining commons, Wednesday through Friday. Instead, all students on the meal plan, whever they lived, be it Sylvan or Southwest, were herded into the Hampden Dining Commons in Southwest, for only two days (Wednesday and today, most upperclassman not being here on Tuesday). Some ticket takers would not let anyone in without an ID or a meal ticket, which created difficulties for students with neither.

At the best, there were upperclassmen who breezed through Registration, cut into the Dining Commons line to get their ticket, and left to go swimming at Puffer's Pond, all by 9 A.M. But there were those students, who waited for an hour in a needless ID line, who waited an hour and a half in a centralized meal ticket line, who got dropped from three of their courses, and who skipped breakfast and lunch because they didn't know or couldn't get into the Dining Commons.

Any University with the resources this one has surely can do a little better than destroy the attitudes, enthusiasm, and state of mind of hundreds of its citizens.

Art Buchwald

The Reason Why

WASHINGTON–The "Why Are We in Vietnam Committee," otherwise known as WAWIVNC, held its monthly meeting at the State Department last week, and for the first time there was an air of pessimism in the room. As everyone knows, WAWIVNC was set up many years ago to provide Presidents of the United States with solid reasons for American involvement in Vietnam.

Some of the reasons the committee has come up with in the past are: A. To halt Communist aggression from the North. B. To let Red China know we mean business. C. To prevent Southeast Asian countries from falling like dominoes. D. To keep American boys from having to fight on the shores of Hawaii. E. To prove to Hanoi we are not a helpless giant. F. To make sure the South Vietnamese people can choose their own leaders in democratic elections.

This last one was everyone's favorite. President Nixon kept repeating it in every speech about Indochina. Secretary of State Rogers, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Saigon and Ambassador David Bruce in Paris all said the same thing: "The United States wants nothing for itself. It is only in South Vietnam to assure that the people there can decide their own fate."

You can imagine what happened at the WAWIVNC meeting when they were informed that President Thieu would be the only one on the ballot in the presidential elections on October 3.

The chairman of the committee said, "Gentlemen, I have just heard from President Nixon. He is very disappointed that no one has chosen to run against President Thieu and is once again hard put to explain what the United States is doing in Vietnam."

"Well, it isn't our fault that Vice President Ky wouldn't run against Thieu, or that Gen. Minh bowed out of the race weeks ago," an assistant secretary of public affairs said.

"How did we know that Thieu would rig the elections so badly that even the opposition would see through him?", a USIA psychological warfare expert said.

"Thieu should have warned Ky and Minh that they either had to run against him in democratic elections or they would be shot," a CIA man said.

"That's not the point, gentlemen," the chairman of the committee said. "The fact is that Thieu is running alone. This is not our concern except that since it's now difficult for President Nixon to defend the American presence in Vietnam to guarantee free elections, we have to find him another reason to explain why we are still there. Now think."

"Suppose," an AID man said, "the President says the reason we are in Vietnam is to protect the American dollar?"

"I don't follow you."

"Well, we all know every high official in the South Vietnamese government has a secret Swiss bank account where he has stashed away millions of dollars. Now, if these officials traded their dollars in Switzerland for marks or French francs while the dollar is floating, it could hurt us badly.

"But as long as we remain in South Vietnam these officials will have faith in us and will keep their dollars in Switzerland."

"It's too complicated," the chairman said. "I want something simple."

"Suppose we say we're in Vietnam because we must protect freedom wherever it is found," a Pentagon man said.

There was dead silence in the room.

Finally the chairman said, "There has to be a reason that no one has yet thought of."

A State Department man scribbled something on a sheet of paper and then raised his hand. "This is it. The President must go on television tomorrow night and tell the American people the only reason we are in Vietnam is because it's there."

The Habitual Relaxer

He sits on his mountain watching each day pass believes less and less and likely to say
will always do so.
Releases his mind
and so easily done
surprises me.
(as does most perceived difficult things which turn out to happen easily).
His eyes penetrate me and I unable (though willing) to look away meet his steady gaze.
And so tells me of myself;
"Your mind goes on little trips and with each trip becomes more dissociate and incoherent".
And I already knowing that nod my head in agreement.
"Each day becomes more confusing and so you're depressed."
Looking hard at me
he tells me;
"You're a clenched fist
taking life too seriously"
And so my revelation began.
He treated me to an ultimate trip that raised my mind
above my condition
And so found Life was ridiculous and so should I be to flounder in her currents.
I don't even know why I'm here trying to figure out each piece of my existance
and expect them to fit together.
And he told me quietly;
"Through some mutant gene evolved a thinking man who cannot be happy without trying to find out why he's here. Be like the dog who knows not his next step.
Without your habit of anxiety perceptions change. You find time to live life fully and love without asking always:
"Why do you suppose he said that?""
And now floating easy speaking....stopping people
one...after...another breathing..deeply
I look back at their eyes steadily
..not looking away
.....easy.....
what a way to live.

Lee E. Bishoff

A Look Ahead

Issues For The Fall

One of the most frequently asked questions I've received is, what do I think the major issues of the coming semesteer will be? The following is an outline of different issues certain to appear on the front page of the Collegian this fall.

UNIVERSITY HOUSING

Despite Nixon's Wage/Price Freeze the University appears to be trying to "sleaze by" with rent and fee increases announced last May through the use of legal loopholes and political power. You and your parents incomes must remain stable, and University employee wage increases negotiated before August 14th are "delayed", giving the University the look of the competent businessman who plays the situation both ways to his advantage.

The further tightening of University Housing exemptions should also spark student interest. If the University is really meeting student needs, many will ask, why, in this period of massive housing shortages, must the University force the unwilling to live in its facilities. Something somewhere is very wrong.

UNIVERSITY GOVERNANCE

The issue of how students and the Student Government will formally plug into the campus governance structure, especially Faculty policy making bodies, remains unanswered. Someone will probably ask for an answer.

ACADEMICS

Three basic issues will probably bring Faculty and Student interests into conflict during the coming year. The implementation of the 8-point grading system and the fundamental desire on the part of Faculty to avoid a decision on a single policy for student evaluations is one subject sure to appear. The student role in Faculty promotion and tenure decisions has been an issue for the past several years and will be of note. An extensive system of student departmental councils seems to be one proposal for more fully integrating students within the departments governing structure. Finally the procedures for campus wide Teacher Evaluation will also focus debate on the relationships between Faculty and students.

PARKING

Its still a pain in the ass, and the master plan proposed last year to make some fundamental changes was shot down by Faculty and staff protests. A proposal to dramatically expand University Bus services and to work out a system of peripheral parking has been sent to the Federal Department of Transportation for funding.

VOTING

Arrangements are in the works to provide the opportunity of easy registration in Amherst, as well as the easy access to information and the voting records of incumbants around the state. Danger and opportunity are the "watchwords". Everyone interested in a voter registration drive in Western Massachusetts should prepare.

WAR AND PEACE

The War continues. Planned by a coalition of SMC, PAC, and PCPJ are an Oct. 13 Moratorium, National Student Strike on November 6, and a Mass Regional Demonstration in Boston on November 13. Consult your local peace worker.

CO-OPS

Because of high interest, numerous inquiries, and because of success at home (with the Peoples Community Union) and abroad, there will be an attempt early this year to establish a more broadly operating system of CO-OPS. Keep your ears open, it will need your support.

CAMPUS CENTER

The Campus Center Governing Board this summer refused to accept an administrative reorganization of the center and is contesting the University's right to appoint its top administrative officers. The battle has long range implications and will gather as much attention as the latest expose on the Centers activities, now due out in October.

ECOLOGY

A new project that will be seeking broad-based student support is a regional attempt to put into practice one of Ralph Nader's ideas called the Public Interest Research Group. The idea is to get students to tax themselves $2 a piece in order to support a professional staff that would deal with consumer and ecology issues through direct action (lawsuits, research, demos and ads). It will also have a student arm. Ralph himself may kick it off here.

ADMINISTRATIVE

"Student Affairs Office", "Food Services", and "Security" reorganized their operations this summer. What this really means to the average student is not obvious. The Security Dept. changes initiated by William Dye, the new Director of Security who arrived sometime around the beginning of July, ended when he resigned September 1 to take another job.

FINE ARTS COUNCIL

The student subsidy of Faculty interests in the Fine Arts program will be explored this Fall. One estimate is that undergraduates who make up 50% of the audience, pick up 75% of the tab. But then that's not so unusual.

WOMEN AND SEC

Women's status in our community will be explored by both the Faculty and Student Senates. Abortion loan arrangements will probably be talked of. Someone should put together a good sex info book for both men and women this semester.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL

The Faculty control of the $30 student athletic fee, will be a point of contention early this fall. The push is to put it totally in student hands.

Editorial Points

The brochure put out by the Food Services Dept. promises a lot of improvements but we've noticed that they've substituted water for milk in the hot chocolate.

* * * * *

District Attorney Callahan will have a lot more to worry about with all the new grass growing around the Campus Center.

* * * * *

Registration Day must be an exercise in the old idiom, "Everything comes to those who wait and wait and wait."

* * * * *

One irate student reports that they're now still serving the same old food for longer periods of time at the dining commons. Now, don't you wish you were a senior?

* * * * *

While we're on the subject, not only is the dining commons taking more from you this year, you end up giving more of it back.

* * * * *

For those of you who are new around here, if you liked Registration Day you'll love Course Change Day.

* * * * *

After a brief tour through some of the dorms in Southwest recently, a good piece of advice might be not to burn yourselves out too early. It's a long year ahead.

* * * * *

With all those New Testaments being handed out at Registration Day yesterday, it almost makes you wonder where the guy is when you need him.

They gave the boy
a gun to kill with and fil led his head with vain glories and deep commit ments barely up on the down ward curve of the hill his body exploded in the red burst of shells they dug the boy
a shal low grave and err ected him
a cross to grant etern al peace.

Kare Karvonen

What The Freeze Means To You

By RICHARD M. HOWLAND
Senate General Counsel
Attorney for Students

A great many people are concerned about the present "price, wage, rent freeze" and how it particularly applies to them. As a general proposition every increase in prices, wages and rents is not lawful under the President's executive order.

According to the most recent information that I have been able to obtain the following exceptions apply:

1. Private rental housing that is federally-funded may increase rents if the rent is tied to the income of the tenant under the federal program. There is no housing of this type in Amherst to my knowledge.

2. If there has been a substantial renovation by a private owner, he may, upon application, be granted permission to increase rents. Again, I do not personally know of any rental units in Amherst to which this may apply.

3. A college or University may increase tuition, rents and/or fees if ten per cent or more students have actually paid the increase prior to the date of the President's announcement. This must be evidenced by bank deposits.

4. It is not an "increase" under the "freeze" if rates are returned to pre-summer or seasonal rates. A landlord in Amherst, therefore, can't be held to a summer rate, but he should not collect rent inexcess of the previous winter rate.

5. Execution of leases to the contrary does not permit an increase on a date after the President's announcement (August 14 or 16). The lease will be valid in every respect but rent and that figure will be in effect when the "freeze" is ended.

6. A new rental of an apartment or house not previously rented has no base rent to revert to and therefore the owner may set the rent at any level without violating the "freeze". Apparently, a "new" tenant has the right to pay the "old" rent lease or agreement to the contrary not withstanding. The "new" exception applies only to a new unit not recently rented or one that is so substantially renovated as to be considered new.

7. Wages are frozen except for persons who receive a raise or are (were) due to receive a raise in a job with new or increased responsibilities or duties.

8. Prices are frozen except for raw agricultural produces wich seems to mean only products that are absolutely not processed. As I understand it if the carrots are put in a bag, the price may be raised, but if the tops arecut off first, then the price is frozen. This is a tough rule to work with.

No payment to the contrary of national policy is lawful. Payments that will be held "on account" or "in escrow" or any other device that means that a person is paying the increase even if it will later be credited to him is specifically unlawful according to both Boston and Washington, D.C. offices of the Office of Emergency Preparedness as of September 2, 1971.

Please understand that this entire area is uncertain. Before filing a complaint, confront the alleged violator and see if it can't be worked out. If you wish to file a complaint students may see me and anyone may write to: Office of Emergency Preparedness, Director, P.O. Box 9084, JFK Post Office, Boston, Massachusetts 02203 with complete details.

Very truly yours,
Richard M. Howland

Letters To The Editor

As in previous years, the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letters will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

A Human Computer

One coed at Registration seemed baffled by the seemingly endless flow of multi-colored IBM cards asking useless questions which were placed before her. Many ended up where they belonged, in the trash. (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton)

Films

Sexual Exploits Of A Supremacist Male

By BOB NESTI
MDC Staff

Carnal Knowledge-screenplay by Jules Feiffer, directed by Mike Nichols; starring Jack Nicholson, Arthur Garfunkel, Candice Bergen, and Ann-Margaret

Carnal Knowledge is a poison-pen letter to the educated, urbane American Male. Filmed with utter contempt for its subject, it, at times, is hysterical and laughable. Yet the film remains a compelling experience, due mainly to the meshing of three essential elements: an intelligent (if not a bit overly-self-righteous script, taut direction, and some of the finest ensemble acting in quite some time.

The film concerns the sexual lives of two diverse men, Jonathan and Sandie, from their college days at Amherst to the present. Jonathan (Jack Nicholson) is the epitome of the male chauvinist. He sees women merely as pleasure objects or as feed to his ego. Jonathan has an affinity for women with "big boobs" and makes his life a futile and endless search for them. (The film ends with the ironic situation of he being impotent and with a whore). Juxtaposed is Sandie (Arthur Garfunkel) who claims his interests are more noble yet in the end he's as unhappy as Jonathan.

The film opens with the two at a college mixer back in the late forties. With the music of Glenn Miller in the background, Jonathan goads Sandie into meeting a lovely Smith girl, Susan (Candice Bergen). Sandie and Susan date and have casual sex. Sandie reports this to his roommate with an uncommon fervor, and Jonathan begins to date Susan behind Sandie's back. They sleep together until Jonathan demands that she tell his roommate; she refuses, they part, and Sandie marries Susan.

The time changes to 1961. Jonathan is now a successful lawyer, although he isn't quite as successful with his sex life as he suffers from mild impotency. Sandie, now a doctor, lives a model married life with Susan yet finds it unfulfilling and looks elsewhere for completion.

Jonathan meets Bobbie (Ann-Margaret) "the sex symbol on the airline commercial" and they shack-up together. She eventually wants marriage, he doesn't, and their relationship descends steadily until she attempts suicide.

The final portion of the film takes place today. Jonathan prides himself in showing friends a slide show of his sex partners yet needs the assistance of a prostitute (speaking his carefully-arranged paean to his masculinity) to achieve an erection. Sandie, now paunchy and looking slightly absurd in "hip" attire, has found solace with a homely young flower child about half his age.

The film looks upon its characters and their sexual behavior with a stark and clinical clarity. Director Mike Nichols has used the static style of repeated close and medium range shots of Feiffer's one-dimensional characters to achieve a bleak and powerful effect. This film complements Feiffer's cartoon-like script so much so that it, at times, resembles that artists famous cartoon of harried urban dwellers mouthing witty cynicisms.

The acting is superlative. Nicholson has never been finer, despite the fact that in the college scenes he seems a bit young. Arthur Garfunkel proves himself to be one of the leading young actors today with his low-keyed Sandie. Candice Bergen redeems her puerile showing in films thus far and is simply stunning as Susan.

The best performance, though, is Ann-Margaret's Bobby. She brilliantly captures the pathetic emptiness of the beautiful sex object in a role which evokes the memory of Marilyn Monroe at her best.

Carnal Knowledge has proven to be a film not for everyone's taste. Its effect upon its audience is to make them too self-conscious of their own sexual roles (which was probably intended). They, in turn, recoil in casual dislike. Yet despite its flaws, Carnal Knowledge is unquestionably one of the year's better films and remains an intelligent, imaginative piece of American filmmaking.

Hillels Opening Events

Sept. 9 — 5:00 p.m. picnic Farley Lodge
by F Lot - bring guitars.

Sept. 12 — Lox & bagel brunch 11:00 a.m.
Campus Center Cafeteria

(free to members)

UMass Rugby Football Club

OPENS
The Fall 1971 Season
with
A Traditional Rugby Party
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10
4:30 p.m. — fields west of Boyden
FEATURING
Rugby and Refreshment
First Practice Session — Saturday, Sept. 11
10 a.m., Rugby Field west of Boyden

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

1969 MGC-GT, excellent car, must sell, will sacrifice, $1900 firm. 546-4536. tf9-13

Triumph TR4A 1965, good mech. cond., rebuilt eng., repair papers, needs some body work. Around $550. Call Paul 665-3936. tf9-10

1963 Chevy Belaire. Good condition. Best offer. Call Pat. Days: 5-7551, evenings: 253-3796. tf9-10

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life, 8gl, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or jumbo $49.95. Immed. deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 417, Amherst. tf9-22

Tag Sale — Clothes, books, furniture, funky stuff. Saturday, Sept 11th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., 34 South Whitney St. in town. tf9-11

Excellent new FM Tuner, $15.00; 18 inch portable TV, $30.00; new electric Presto Broiler Bake Oven, $15.00. Call 256-8322. tf9-11

Dorm size refrigerator. 2.3 cu ft., 4 months old. Why rent when you can own one? $75 (new $95.) Call 665-3944. 9-9, 10

BABYSITTER WANTED

Student's wife with child to babysit full time (8-4) with professor's 1 and 3 year olds in our big house and yard in Amherst. Transportation provided, salary negotiable. Call 548-2217 before 5, 253-7386 after. tf9-9

MISCELLANEOUS

Learn Silver Jewelry making! New course for beginners starts Sept. 15. Call 253-2977 for details now. tf9-10

APARTMENT WANTED

Sr. girl needs room desperately. Will share expenses and help w. furn. Contact Ruth c/o Lisa Eldlin, 401 Melville. tf9-15

PERSONAL

Anyone in the Amherst area interested in some life call 665-3003. Ask for Carl. 9-9

Rent a refrigerator for your room. Just $4.44 a month.*

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Free pick-up and delivery
- Guaranteed— if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

CALL 256-8488, 253-2494

mini kool

*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.

Draft Counselor's Corner

Student Deferment Lives-Maybe

By GILBERT J. SALK

Welcome--or, welcome back. I hope you enjoyed your draft free summer. Unfortunately, the weather forecast calls for heavy gusts of hot air to begin soon in the Capitol Hill area of Washington, D.C., to be followed quickly by a recurrence of a strong draft affecting the entire nation.

If you are troubled by this draft, the Student Senate has provided some relief for you. Draft Counseling Services, with an office in Room 923 Campus Center, will provide you with free information, advice, and counseling on your hassles with the Selective Service.

It's usually a good idea to get the SSS out of the way as early as possible--like now. So far, I have never met anyone who could not qualify for some deferment if he knew what his options were, how to apply, and how to present his strongest possible case. The system provides many legal alternatives to the draft--if you check them out, you may find that you qualify for more than one.

In the future, this column will deal with many aspects of the draft. It will be dedicated to enlightened freedom... to giving you the information you need to take control of your own life--at least as it relates to the draft--without having to resort to the system's games of deceit and manipulation. It's your life, baby. Live it your way, not theirs.

A special note for freshmen and anyone else who has not had a II-S student deferment. It may not be too late to get your II-S, if you act immediately. Like, today.

Write a letter to your local board telling them that you are a full-time student here at the Univ., and that you want a II-S student deferment. Do this regardless of any prior communication with the board. Make, and keep, a copy of the letter--a practice you should follow with all of your correspondence with your board. Send the letter Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested. (There's a Post Office on the Hatch level of the Student Union.)

When your board receives the letter, they will have to sign a receipt for it, and the post office will send the receipt to you. Staple it to your copy of the letter, and store it in a safe place with all your other draft board correspondence.

There's a hassle you should know about. In all probability, the new draft law--when it gets passed--will do away with student deferments. It is not clear whether ending the deferment will be made retroactive to June, or if it will take effect on the date the bill is passed. If it's retroactive, only those who had a II-S before the end of June will be able to retain the deferment. (On the other hand, if it is to take effect on the date of passage, any request for a II-S received in writing by a board before passage of the bill should be honored.

THIS IS WHY IT IS URGENT THAT YOU SEND IN YOUR

This is why it is urgent that you send in your request before the bill is passed.

If you have any questions about this procedure, visit our office or stop by the info table we have set up in the Campus Center near the Bookstore for the remainder of the week. But do it soon. The life you save may be your own. And pass the word on to your friends so that they can act before it's too late. Dig it.

SHORT NOTES:

For both men and women: if you want to help your brothers free themselves from the oppression of the draft, become a draft counselor. Draft Counseling Services will run a counselor training program in a couple of weeks. Watch this column for details.

All experienced counselors--please contact us and let us know if and when you will be able to counsel as soon as possible. We need you. (Ain't it nice to be needed?)

PEACE.

SEE
D.J.
SAT., SEPT. 11, FROM 8:30 P.M. TO 1:00 A.M.
APPEARING AT
NUMBERNINENUMBERNINENUMBERNINE
(Berkshire Dining Commons, Southwest)
★ ★ SPECIAL ADDED ATTRACTION ★ ★
featuring
NATALIE COLE
BLACK MAGIC
ADMISSION: 50¢ PER PERSON
Sponsored by Southwest Patriots

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

A wondrous quality of Aries is ability to put aside past mistakes and to forge ahead into future. The Aries native does not cry over what might have been. It is now and tomorrow that is significant where Aries is concerned.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mixing money and friendship now creates needless obstacles. Realize this and pull in financial reins. Fresh viewpoint would be advantageous. Act accordingly. Leo can lead way. Avoid hasty decisions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): One you respect may be unduly influenced by outside sources. Keys is to set your own pace. You will be told about progress of another. Refuse to be engulfed in emotional trap. Adhere to factual information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Obtain hint from Uranus message. Beware of one who claims you can have something for nothing. Accent on piecing together messages that may be garbled. Correct communication flaws.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Check details in any financial transaction. If thorough you can win confidence of key people. Some friends now may battle among themselves. Don't get caught in middle. Strive for impartiality.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't rush into legal agreement. Contract will wait. Take time to examine various aspects of commitment. Marriage, other partnership may be rocky. Ride with tide. Look before leaping. Tel caution be key.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Light touch should be advocated. Obtain valid hint from Leo message. What you desire is near, yet unfair. You will have to depend on traveling relative or friend. Know this before proceeding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Important to perceive difference between actual needs and mere desires. Accent on frivolity connected with children, affair of heart. Give full play to creative resources. Protect self in emotional clinches.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't overlook basic needs including health checkup. Slow pace. Do plenty of listening, observing. Recognize potential. Get money's worth. Obtain opinion of expert in any real estate transaction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some relationships are put to test. Those worthwhile will withstand pressure. The others really do not count. Strengthen inner beliefs. Look beyond the immediate. Hurts will be revamped.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be in too much of a hurry, where home expenditures enter picture. Young person may be making unreasonable demands. Realize this, don't be anyone's door mat. Establish new policy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Put ideas to practical use. Express yourself. Don't fear ridicule. Your hunches apt to be correct. Conflict may arise with older family member. Stand your ground. You have life of your own to live.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finances may be tied up by secret agreement. Stress versatility. Have alternatives at hand. Some skeletons could rattle. Don't permit possible embarrassment to hamper progress. Step forward.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have ability to graphically illustrate emotions. You are drawn to medicine, law, the arts. You are capable of interpreting universal feelings. You possess dramatic qualities which make you a fascinating and, at times, a controversial individual. You survived recent emotional setback. Very soon, you will be relieved of burden. There will be greater freedom of thought, action.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Algonquian Indian
4 Simpletons
9 Grain
12 The self
13 Rubbish
14 Anger
15 Ship of the desert
17 Followed closely
19 Unemployed
21 Noise
22 Mislead
25 At no time
29 Note of scale
30 Wants
32 Ireland
33 Bitter vetch
35 Cuts
37 Period of time
38 River islands
40 Sliver
42 Hypothetical force
43 Repasts
45 Rubbers on pencils
47 Beverage
49 Pertaining to an era
50 React
54 Report
57 Guido's high note
58 Balance
60 Before
61 Obscure
62 Ancient chariot
63 Rodent

DOWN
1 Dry, as wine
2 Mohammedan leader
3 Laughable
4 Foolish acts
5 Preposition
6 Frequent (poet.)
7 Fat of swine
8 Killed
9 Lubricate
10 Exist
11 Man's nickname
18 Paradise
18 Arrow poison
20 Smooths
22 Vision
23 Weird
24 Roman official
26 Contend
27 Mistake
28 Peruses
31 Steeple
34 Music: as written
36 Marked by old wounds
39 Strike
41 Brother of Jacob
44 Incline
46 Man's name
48 Man's name
50 Communist
51 Man's name
52 Man's nickname
53 Underworld god
55 Anglo-Saxon money
56 Soak
59 Compass point

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ERGS TAG SCOW
REAP ONA TAME STRAIN BARRED
TENTS LEERS
EELS SOWS
OUR ELITE SOB IS ARE WE
LEI STEER MET
RAMS POLE
PLANE BATON
RIDGES SETTLE
OREL THE ELLA
WERE YET REAR

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

MENTAL HEALTH UNIT CLINICAL SUPERVISOR

Nurse with Masters Degree in Psychiatric Nursing to work within a comprehensive Community Mental Health program as clinical supervisor of a 28 bed Mental Health Unit functioning in the therapeutic community concept. Apply Miss Elizabeth Mott, Director of Nursing, Franklin County Public Hospital, Greenfield, Ma. 01301.

Pipes of Peace
for family use
MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE
9 E. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
NEXT TO AMHERST TOWERS

Jasmin Enjoyed Every Second Of His Life

By EARLE BARROLL
MDC Staff

The wreckage told the story, a story that left those who knew the victim and his companion in shock, a story that left the UMass cross country program with a gaping hole.

Tom Jasmin, who would have been the captain of this fall's cross country team was killed along with his girl friend, Patricia Thompson, July 28th, while driving on Belchertown Road in Amherst when their car met head-on with a ten-wheel dump truck. Jasmin was dead at the scene. Miss Thompson dead on arrival at Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

It was an untimely death for one who lived life to its fullest like Jasmin did. His UMass cross country coach, Ken O'Brien, commented, "Tom was the type of kid who enjoyed every second of his life. He worked as hard as anyone I've ever seen to get the most out of himself, he did it by hard work, and he enjoyed doing it."

This was his lifestyle, to enjoy everything he did. O'Brien related, "When Tom was a freshman he was one of the boys I felt I'd have to look over to see that he did his school work. But Tom liked to study and going into this year he had a 3.2 cum. During last summer he ran over a 100 miles a week alone, in the heat of the day. This was addition, this was extremely hard work, but he enjoyed it.

Jasmin was the "keep loose" guy for the Redman harriers. "As a sophomore he tried to give the impression that certain races weren't pressure packed," remembered O'Brien, "but deep down inside these were the races that meant the most to him."

"By keeping himself relaxed, he kept the rest of the team loose and alert for the race."

Unselfishness was one of his memorable qualities. His coach reflected, "Jas had an intense dedication towards the team and never once did he express interest in himself and not his team."

He ran with a goal, to make UMass the best in cross country and many a time he reached back in the face of adversity to keep going when others may have stopped. Like the time two years ago at Franklin Park when he was a freshman and set as his goal for the frosh to win the New England title.

A stiff downpour and a cold wind made conditions unbearable, and after a mile of the 3.5 mile race Jasmin lost one of his shoes in a mud hole, but ran the last two plus miles barefoot, finishing fifth, with the team title secure, and a pair of feet that didn't have feeling in them for the next three hours. "I just wrapped his feet in towels and waited for them to thaw out," O'Brien recalled.

TOM JASMIN

Or the time last season when he ran against Boston College on a likewise cold and dreary day, this time with a bronchial infection that should have kept him out of the race. But he ran and stayed with the leaders until he was practically out on his feet and came to the finish line weak and sick and frothing from the mouth.

Or at the Yankee Conference championships last fall when he came back after six weeks of suffering with the persistent bronchial infection to run his best race of the season in a record UMass performance.

Tom had his sights set on the '76 Olympics with his real future lying in long distance running. Two years ago he ran the Boston Marathon for the first time with only regular track training for the two mile and broke three hours by sixteen minutes. This year he and his girl friend ran together and finished in five hours.

He held the freshman indoor two mile record of 9:24.6 and was headed in the direction of establishing himself as one of UMass' finest cross country runners of all time.

This was Tom Jasmin, a dedicated athlete and scholar who enjoyed every aspect of life. The "keep loose" guy who ran for the team first, then himself. An outstanding runner with a bright future ahead. And for all this and for everything else about Tom Jasmin, his teammates chose him to set the example and leadership for them in the coming season. This will only be a memory for these athletes, now.

Teenage Wiz Advances To Semis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)-Sixteen-year-old Chris Evert, the exciting little court princess from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., extended her winning streak to 46 matches yesterday by beating Lesley Hunt of Australia 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 to gain the women's semi-finals in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

The big tournament brass at the West Side Tennis Club breathed a heavy sign of relief. With the absence of many leading pros, including defending men's champion Ken Rosewall and Rod Laver, the meticulous tyke from Florida has been the gate-saving attraction.

A crowd of 10,000 including television crews of the major networks and leading sports columnists, poured into the concrete horseshoe stadium to see if the 105-pound tennis dynamo could do it again.

She did.

Now she must go against the indominable top-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., the three-time Wimbledon winner who advanced with a 6-3, 7-5 victory over Laura DuPont of Charlotte, N.C.

"I don't think I can win the next time," the astonishing Miss Evert said. "Billie Jean looks awfully tough. I'll try to keep her in back court. But I think this may be the end. I never expected to go this far."

Miss Evert defeated Billie Jean in the spring in three sets on clay in St. Petersburg, Fla., during her phenominal streak of victories which has covered 12 tournaments dating back to Feb. 21.

The two will meet in the semifinals tomorrow.

The other semifinal sends second-seeded Rosemary Casals of San Francisco against Australia's Kerry Melville.

In the men's division, seventh-seeded Clark Graebner of New York looked the most impressive of the seeded players who blasted their way into the quarter-finals as he smashed long-haired Ray Moore of South Africa 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Graebner was joined in the round of eight by second-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., who was leading Milan Holocek in the second set 7-5, 3-2 when the self-exiled Czech had to retire because of a pulled hamstring muscle on the left side, and flashy Tom Okker of the Netherlands, who won over lefthanded Roger Taylor of Great Britain 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Graebner will play Okker, seeded No. 4, in the quarter-finals Friday and Smith will meet the winner of the match between Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and Nicki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

In the other bracket, to be played today, third-seeded Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., meets Manuel Orantes of Spain and 6-feet-5 Frank Froehling III of Fort Launderdale faces Jan Kodes, the Czech who eliminated top-seeded John Newcombe in the first round.

Gordie Howe Hangs 'Em Up

DETROIT (AP) - Gordie Howe, a legendary sports hero who has dominated hockey as much as Ty Cobb did baseball or Joe Louis did boxing in their day, confirmed yesterday night his plans to retire.

Bruce Norris, owner of the Detroit Red Wings, had invited newsmen to a news conference this afternoon.

But Howe said he "couldn't hack it once they sent out the invitations," and begin telling reporters he was definitely finished after 25 years as a Red Wing.

He gave a number of reasons for retiring. "Age for one," he said. "I'm 43 and it's a young man's game ... some wrist trouble and my legs aren't what they used to be.

"One thing I've stuck to pretty much throughout my career-when it becomes more work than fun I've had it. I've found practice extremely difficult and I just don't get up for a game any more."

The only thing arguing against his retirement was "selfishness," he added. "Maybe go for 800 goals but I don't think that's as important as being honest with the fans."

Howe confirmed he would be staying with the front office of the National Hockey League club, but said he was leaving the announcement of his specific new duties to Norris.

Howe holds 22 NHL records outright and shares three others, and for 21 of his 25 years was chosen on the league's All-Star teams.

His league tenure is a record and in recent years every time he scored, assisted or did practically anything else on the ice it extended a record he already held. He won the Hart Memorial Trophy as the most valuable player and the Art Ross Trophy as the top scorer in the NHL six times each.

Mild mannered, almost shy, Howe was a deceptive figure on the ice, one of the roughest, toughest players of all time in the NHL. He participated in some of the game's more memorable fights.

The Pack May Be Back; In A Few Years That Is

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - When Dan Devine was lured from the University of Missouri this year to try to halt the Green Bay Packers' three-year decline, comparison with the late Vince Lombardi was instant and inevitable.

Devine's 16-year coaching record at Missouri and Arizona State was 120-40-8, not too far behind the 141-39-4 the Packers achieved under Lombardi in the 1960s, when they won six divisional and five National Football League titles.

But Devine has no illusions that the Packers can improve much on their 6-8 record of last year, when their 196 points were the third lowest in the NFL and their defense was pierced for 293.

"I think eventually that we're going to be a good team," Devine said. "But we're not going to overpower people. We'll have to play almost perfect football. We'll be winning by 13-10, scores like that."

Green Bay lacks overall speed and depth, but quarter-back easily is the most serious problem.

Brilliant veteran Bart Starr, hurt much of the last three years, aggravated his sore passing arm during the first week of practice and since has had two operations. Officially, the Packers say Starr could be back by late October, but Devine is not counting on him.

Devine has Zeke Bratkowski, Starr's super-sub relief pitcher of the 1960s, but Zeke will be 40 Oct. 20 and has been an assistant coach and inactive player the last two years. Scott Hunter, the No. 6 draft choice, has shown exceptional promise but typical rookie inconsistency as well.

Green Bay has enough talent at running back and receiver to move the ball, if the quarter-back situation improves.

With Starr unable to throw deep last year, opponents ganged up to stop the run. Still, Donny Anderson rushed for 853 yards, while gaining another 414 yards catching passes. Anderson's backup, speedy Dave Hampton, missed eight games in 1970 but has had a fine pre-season.

Anderson and Hampton should be even more effective outside if John Brockington, the Packers' first established power runner since Jim Taylor, comes through at fullback. Brockington, the No. 1 draft choice from Ohio State, has had trouble learning the audible system but has been highly impressive. Behind him is the capable Perry Williams.

Devine has said he would like more speed among his receivers, but thinks as much of Carroll Dale as any in the league. Dale may have lost a step since his rookie year of 1960, but is superbly skillfull at getting open and has gained at least 814 yards receiving four of the last five years.

Green Bay is solid at tight end with veteran John Hilston and second year man Rich McGeorge, considered a future star.

The offensive line is young and still improving. Gale Gillingham is an all-pro at right guard and lines Bill Lueck at left guard, Dick Himes at right tackle and Francis Peay or Bill Hayhoe at left tackle.

Green Bay has had inadequate placekicking since Don Chandler retired three years ago. Dale Livingston had the job last year, but will have to fight to keep it.

Devine is generally satisfied with his defense, which should improve if the offense can give it more rest than last year.

The line is solid with Clarence Williams, Bob Brown, Mike McCoy, and Lionel Aldridge. End Alden Roche, acquired from Denver, should help.

REDMAN BRAINTRUST-The 1971 Umass Football coaching staff sets for Saturday's scrimmage with Cornell at Ithaca, N.Y. (left to right)-Head Coach Dick MacPherson, Ken Conaster, Bob Harris, Bill Maxwell, Bob Pickett, George Flood, Larry Pasquale.

Crew

Upperclassmen, returning people and newcomers are invited to organizational meeting for the UMass crew team tonight at 7 p.m. in Room 253, Boyden. Fall schedule of activities will be discussed. No experience is necessary for new comers.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: We're all suckers in this game.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 3 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1971

STICK UP YOUR HEAD IN HERE, BABY-Keeping the body cool has been the paramount concern these past few days, but food rots if you leave it out. These niniconvenient items are appearing all over campus as the administration relaxes its rules on appliances. Bob Callahan explains whys and wherefores below. (Photo by Steve Schmidt)

Keepin' The Sunshine Cool

By BOB CALLAHAN

No longer do students have to suffer through a warm beer or go without a late night snack while studying for exams. For only pennies a day, according to the ads seen daily in this paper, a refrigerator can be leased for dormitory use.

Refrigerator rentals are a new thing on this campus, having only been around since the spring of 1970. Already the numbers of units rented is quite large and growing every day. This semester, the owner of the first company to service this campus, "Mini Kool," reports that he has taken orders for 600 units and that he has a supply of 1,000 on stock. He estimates that the total rented for this year, including second semester and summer school, numbers close to 1,500.

Last year, "Mini Kool" was the only large distributor to serve the campus but this year as you have probably noticed there is another company trying to make a buck in this area. "Creative Conveniences," a New York based firm, has come into the picture and is offering a slightly larger unit.

For years refrigerators have been banned from dormitory rooms by the Administration but were made legal a few years ago when the local representative for "Mini Kool" asked the University to permit these small units to be installed in student's rooms. This proposal was then discussed by the Health Committee which was in favor of the idea. Things weren't all too easy, the representative of Mini Kool reported in a Collegian interview because the change in policy was never included in the student handbook and as a result he had to "chase" down people in the Administration to get it included.

The competition is tougher this year with two large distributors in competition. When this reporter called Creative Conveniences, (the newcomer on the rental scene) he was greeted with "Are you calling from Mini Kool?" when he asked how business was doing. Only after assuring them that it was a reporter from the Collegian would the girl on the phone divulge any information.

In the interview that followed she said that although they are a little outclassed by Mini Kool they have had a fairly good response, but there are no figures to compare business with because this is their first year on campus.

Walk into any dormitory on campus and you'll be sure to find a large number of these new comers to the campus scene. They're great for keeping beer or wine cold for that week-end party and a refrigerator eliminates the hassle of going downtown or to the Hatch to buy ice and does away with the problem which a leaky cooler can create the morning after a party.

Some even use them to store food and tonic for late night study snacks. The "Mini Kool" rep reported that girls are as likely to stock up on food as the guys are to stock up on beer. He added that when repairing broken units he has noticed that quite a few girls have been stocking up on Metrical.

The "new" University Food Services Dept. has come to the aid of students with rented refrigerator units. No more walking downtown for groceries, for they have just opened two new mini super markets called "Munchy's". One is located in Worcester Dining Commons and the other at the Hampden Commons. The hours are from 10-10 daily. Although not fully stocked they will be in a few days reports Mr. Arthur Warren of the Food Services Dept. Munchy's when fully stocked will carry milk, tonic, bread, sliced bread chips, candy along with a full line of health and beauty aids.

On The Inside:

• Course Information
See page two

• Strikes Hit Schools
See page four

"The Game Plan was Made-up This Summer"

By BOB CALLAHAN

"The game plan was made up this summer and now we're in the process of trying it out," reported Mr. Arthur Warren of the University Food Services Department in a Collegian interview yesterday afternoon. Mr. Warren spoke about the meal ticket situation and the progress of the Food Service Department.

He said that both the staff and students have worked all summer to create a better Food service for the students of the University. He added that this move is not staff oriented and is intended only with students in mind.

At this moment, the department has no confirmed estimate concerning the number of students in each meal plan but they feel that those in the fifteen meal plan outnumber those subscribing to the ten meal a week plan.

Warren said that the dining commons which have been closed for breakfast were closed because the department felt that with the ten meal plan many students would be going without breakfast.

Speaking about the new basic food line, Warren said that this new innovation has been accepted very well by the students. He added that the SIMS conference on campus this summer was very instrumental in teaching the Food Service Department how to prepare food for the basic food line.

Hampden Dining Commons is now the Southwest Student Union and will contain a store (Munchy's), a deli, fast food line, and special catering for groups in the area. The reason for conversion is the new policy which gives a student exemption from purchasing a meal ticket if he is 21 years of age or over.

In closing when asked if there will be any more increases in meal ticket costs, Warren said that this will be determined by the food price situation and the overhead costs of the Food Service Department.

FBI Arrests Klan Members For Conspiracy

DETROIT (AP) - The Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested six Michigan men, Thursday, including the former grand dragon of the Michigan Ku Klux Klan, on charges of conspiring to dynamite school buses in Pontiac, Mich.

The Aug. 30 bombing destroyed 10 school buses and damaged others on the Pontiac Public Schools bus lot. The buses were to be used in a court-ordered school desegregation plan which went into effect Tuesday.

Among those arrested was Robert E. Miles, 46, of Howell, Mich., who recently announced he had stepped down as grand dragon of the Michigan Realm of the United Klans of America, Inc.

A complaint filed by the FBI charges the six with conspiring to bomb the buses, to obstruct the court-ordered busing and to violate the civil rights of black students.

Neil Walsh, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office, refused to say whether the use of an undercover agent or informer contributed to the investigation. He did say the government did not have advance information which could have prevented the destruction of the buses.

The complaint charges that the six first discussed action against the desegregation plan at a July 4 meeting of the United Klans of Michigan at Lake Odessa, Mich., and planned details of the bombing at subsequent meetings.

It also said the men met Wednesday "and discussed additional acts of violence and destruction against the school-owned buses."

Welsh said several of the men were armed with hand guns when arrested.

All six men are to be arraigned Friday before U.S. Magistrate Paul Komives in Detroit. Welsh said all the men were in custody, but declined to say where they were being held.

All are charged with conspiracy, which carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. None, however, was charged with the actual bombing.

Pontiac Police Chief William Hanger expressed confidence that the arrests would help calm the volatile racial situation in Pontiac.

Welsh refused to say whether any of the men charged other than Miles were directly connected with the Klan. However, Hanger said all the men were known to his department as Klansmen.

In addition to his Klan affiliation, Miles also has been active in the American Independent Party. He was the party's 1970 candidate for Michigan secretary of state.

Closed Courses and Changes

All students who pre-registered for EDUC NO 1 and EDUC NO 2, Special Problems in Education-NES Tutoring, must report to room 165 of the Campus Center on either Monday or Tuesday of next week, according to the section for which they signed up. Any student who signed up for the course in the spring, but did not pre-register for it, must add the course officially. Check the course list with an NES representative in the NES office (105 CC) by Monday at noon.

Room changes:

Comparative Literature 386/703-Literary Criticism 11-Don Levine
Tu 19:30-22:00 will now meet in Herter 118

Comparative Literature 203-Sensuality and Death in the European Novel-Don Levine TuTh 1:00-2:15 will now meet in Chenoweth 227

First Meeting:

Comparative Literature 387/707-Vico & Antirationalism in Literature Robert Bongiorno
First class meeting (for the purpose of schedule arrangement) will be held Monday, September 13th in the 3rd Floor Lounge of Herter Hall at 4:00 p.m.

New Courses:

Linguistics 385 Special Problems: Elementary Conversational Yoruba

This fall the Department of Linguistics will offer a course in conversational Yoruba. Yoruba, a language of Nigeria in Africa, is spoken by over 10 million people, who have a rich oral culture of poetry, proverbs, and tales which will become accessible to students taking this course. To speakers of English Yoruba is sung rather than spoken, because of the way in which the language makes use of musical pitch, and Yoruba differs strikingly from English in a number of other ways.

The class meets MWF at 2:30 in Herter 116. It will be taught by Fred Englander, a Teaching Assistant in Linguistics who has taught Yoruba at UCLA. A speaker of Yoruba, Tim Fadayomi, will assist him and will be present at most class sessions.

The following is a list of courses closed to further enrollment.

Bio Chemistry 220
Chemistry 160, 165, 167, 261, 263
Art: 115, visual audio courses, 101, 121
Rhetoric 100, 140
Botany: 100, 126
Economics: 211, 221, 232, 241, 281
English: (incomplete list) H61, 268, 271
Comp. Lit: 202 (sect. 1)
Zoo: 101, 221, 223, 281, 283
Wildlife: 261
Food Science: 101
General Business: 260, 262
Spanish: 110 (sect. 3, 4, 8, 7, 11, 12) 126 (sec. 1, 2) 140 (sect. 1)
Classics: 225
Hebrew: 110
Sociol: 101, 247, 251, 255, 257, 262, 266, 272, 275, 278, 282, A85, E 90
Psych: 331, 101, 325, 261, 260, 231, 282, 270, 263, 290, (short waiting lists on some)
French 120 (sect. 1, 2, 3) 123, 130 (sec. 1, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 17) 132, (sec. 1) 142, (sect. 1), 2, 3, 4), 144 (sect. 4, 5, 6, 7,) 161 (sect. 1, 2, 3) OH 269, 270, 385, (sect 2) 388, 389, 392, 395, 397, 390, 385 (sect. 1)
Micro: 310
Afro-Am 131, 132, 152, 223, 251
Hist: 151, 185, 216, 231, 234, 214, 320, 390
Statistics: 121(One section open) 231, 315 (One section open)
Georgraphy: 155, 240, 250, 260

Chancellor Hosting Freshman At Garden Party

The home of Chancellor and Mrs. Oswald Tippo will be the scene of an outdoor reception tomorrow for new students of the University, on Saturday afternoon.

The event this year is moved from the Campus Center to the Chancellors Garden to provide a more personal atmosphere in which new students can meet Dr. Tippo.

To eliminate the possibility of a massive wave of visitors, students are requested to use the following schedule:

2:00PM Dickinson, Grayson, Webster, Lewis
2:15 J. Adams Lower, J. Adams Middle, J. Adams Upper, J. Q. Adams Lower, J. Q. Adams Middle
2:30 J. Q. Adams Upper, Coolidge Lower, Emerson, James, Kennedy Middle
2:45 Coolidge Middle, Coolidge Upper, Kennedy Upper, Mackimmie, Washington Middle, Washington Upper
3:00 Cance, Crampton, Melville, Moore, Washington Lower
3:15 Patterson, Pierpont, Thoreau, Thatcher
3:30 Baker, Greenough, Van Meter South, Johnson
3:45 Brett, Gorman, Hills North, Hills South, Van Meter North, Dwight
4:00 Brooks, Butterfield, Chadbourne, Wheeler, Brown
4:15 Cashin, Knowlton
4:30 Field, Crabtree, Leach, Mary Lyon, McNamara

Commuters, Fraternity and Sorority residents are welcome to come at any time.

In the event of rain, the reception will be held on Sunday, Sept. 12, during the same hours.

Refreshments will be served during the reception.

Digitalis Batch Recalled

DETROIT (AP) - Parke-Davis & Co. is recalling 106,000 digitalis tablets on orders of the Food and Drug Administration-even though the drug company says its scientific tests show no consumer health hazard.

A Parke-Davis spokesman said Thursday the recall, begun Aug. 23, was triggered by "an honest, scientific difference of opinion."

The tablets, in lots numbered KL215 and KL216, were distributed last November, but the FDA warning that they might harm heart patients did not come until spring. No illnesses from the tablets have been reported by the FDA.

Consumers cannot tell if they have received the recalled tablets except through checking with their pharmacy.

Priesthood Threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Roman Catholic priesthood as it is now known is threatened with extinction in the United States by the current rate of departures from it, a new study concludes.

The findings, made by an American priest-socialogist, the Rev. Eugene Schallert, and presented to the Vatican last spring, were reported by the National Catholic News Service.

They depict the priesthood in this country as losing the battle "to survive as a viable force in our society."

If You Dig Music Read On!

Special Offer

8-TRACK TAPES
$2.50 - $3.00
anything from acid rock to country western
Tremendous Savings
8-TRACK PLAYER
PORTABLE AC-DC
under $30.00

Plus much more - TVs, Radios, the works.

FOR INFO CALL 546-5648 and ask for Paul Brown 204 B

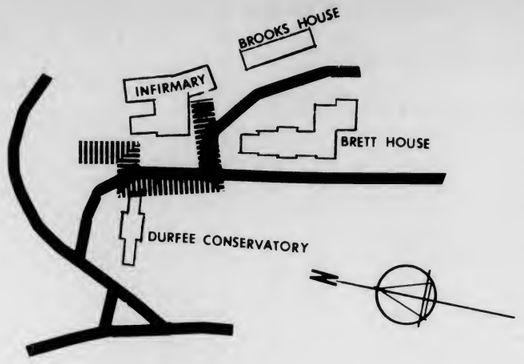
TONIGHT
D.J.
at
The English Pub

You already know we're New England's Largest
That much is true.
Then we said we were New England's Best
Help make our dream your reality....
Join the MDC
TUESDAY
(Time and place to be announced)

Student Senate
BOOK LOANS
Now Available
Student Senate Office, Level 1
Campus Center

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).



Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Big Ditch To Disrupt Campus

The Big Ditch is coming. It will be with us in one part of campus or another for 18 or 24 months, and then it will conceal 32,000 feet of pipe for steam distribution throughout campus.

In the fall of 1973, a new boiler plant will begin operations at Tillson Farm in the Northeast corner of campus. Steam generated there will be sent 10,000 feet through two 20-inch-diameter pipes to the present boiler plant which will have been limited to steam distribution. Two 10-inch condensate pipes will return water uphill to be recycled in the steam generation process at the new plant.

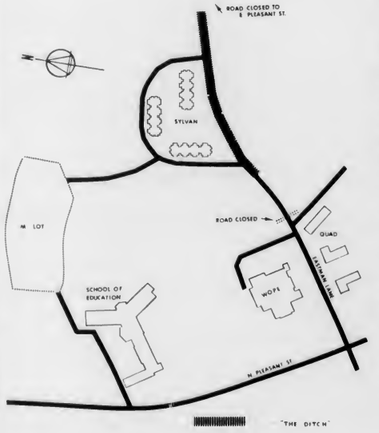
So, The Big Ditch will cause about two years of digging from Tillson Farm to the present boiler plant in the area of the Campus Center Garage. Excavation will begin on or after Monday, Sept. 13, on Eastman Lane from below Cashin, Brown and McNamara Sylvan Residences up to East Pleasant St. Vehicular traffic to those residences will be rerouted though parking lot M, behind the School of Education. See map for details.

The contractor (Holyoke Valve & Hydrant Co.) will dig and complete the route a section at a time. The University Project Engineer will issue progress reports of the job, so that members of the UMass Community will know in advance what portions of campus will be involved in the construction. Some access will be provided at all times to the Women's Physical Education Building, the Sylvan Area residences, and other buildings along the way.

The present coal-burning boiler plant will be phased out beginning in late fall, 1973; and the new oil-burning plant will take over generation of steam for heating the entire campus. From then on, coal-fired boilers will be used for steam generation only on an emergency, stand-by basis.

Steam-carrying pipes will be at various depths along the two-mile route, so that the gravity steam line will have fairly constant pitch. Depths will vary from five to 20 feet. The width of the ditch will be about 10 feet at the bottom and from 15 to 18 feet at ground level.

When the need for more power generation became evident, University planners and utility system consultants checked the possibility of expanding the present plant. They decided against this for two main reasons: there is insufficient room for expansion in the area; and a new plant would enable an easier switch-over from coal to oil. If the present plant were converted to oil--for lower sulphur content and thereby less air pollution--the two smokestacks of 185-feet each would have to be changed to a single stack of 350 feet, to keep smoke at a safe level away from campus. A changeover from coal to oil is also desireable for economic reasons.



Steam from the University power plant provides heat throughout campus. It also supplies air-conditioning via steam absorbers and supplementary eletric power to keep utility costs down. The steam also operates special equipment for laboratories, dining commons, and the infirmary.

There will be some inconveniences during construction of The Big Ditch, but University engineers hope to keep these at a minimum. Wherever necessary, there will be bridges across the ditch. Access to buildings will be maintained, though traffic may have to be rerouted. A section of Eastman Lane by the Women's Physical Education Building will be completely blocked off during one phase of ditch construction, but this is expected to be next summer so that a minimum of people will be inconvenienced. This phase includes the intersection of North Pleasant St. and Governor's Drive.

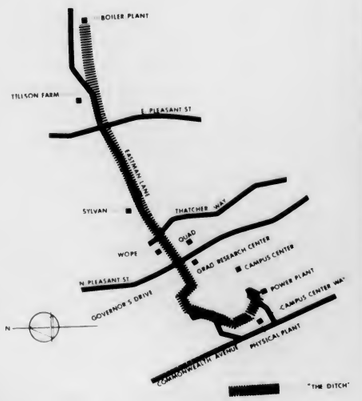
The Big Ditch will also carry electric and telephone lines from the Sylvan Area to the new boiler plant, and a sanitary line from East Pleasant St. to the plant.

UMass administrators have asked members of the University Community to observe and leave in place all safety warning lights at the ditch construction. Cooperation will help prevent accidents and may also help minimize the duration of the $2,988,000 project.

Light Is Coming! Whitmore To West Experiment Station

"Give me a light that I may tread safely about the campus." apologies to Minnie Louise Haskins.

From the ramp at Whitmore to the West Experiment Station to the Physical Plant there will be abundant light for pedestrians. And more lights will be installed to illuminate a third athletic field.



Electrical work began in August. And when it is completed, night-time campus walkers will see their way more clearly in the center of campus, which includes Goodell Library, Herter Hall, and a portion of Commonwealth Ave. near Campus Center Way.

The area, with 232 new lights, will be at least as bright as the Southwest Area is.

All wires will be underground.

A minimum of digging will be necessary for the pedestrian lighting, and it will cause only short-term inconveniences to the University Community.

More digging will be necessary for other electrical work--installation of a few new duct lines to bring electricity from the switchgear building near Orchard Hill to the new boiler plant to be constructed at Tillson Farm, and to provide for a new addition to the Infirmary. While work is being done near the Infirmary, the road will be disturbed. But access to the Infirmary will be maintained. The three-story Infirmary addition, expected to be completed in six to eight months, will add 22,000 square feet to the building.

In The Nation And The World

Strikes Force School Closings Across Nation

(AP)—Scattered strikes have forced the closing of schools in several cities across the nation as teachers seek more money, smaller classes and procedures for airing their complaints.

Schools were shut down completely in communities in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island, while others struggled to remain open with nonstriking and substitute teachers.

In Levittown, N.Y., about 600 teachers defied a court order and stayed off the job for the second day. Ten of the city's 16 public schools remained open with 260 nonstriking teachers and 160 substitutes, but many of the 17,000 elementary and secondary pupils reported to classes, signed in, and left.

The Levittown Teachers Association, without a contract since June 30, demanded a 20 per cent pay increase and voted to strike when the school board offered a 6 per cent increase.

Teachers' salaries under the old Levittown contract ranged from $8,000 to $14,000.

However, an attorney for the teachers' group said the chief issue was what he called the board's failure to "bargain in good faith."

No meetings were scheduled, and school officials said they didn't know what their next step would be.

A 16-day strike in Decatur, Ill., has kept all 38 public schools closed, but the school board says it will fire all first-year teachers who don't report to work Monday. In addition, the board has asked the Circuit Court to void the contracts of striking teachers with tenure, and is advertising for replacements.

Two hundred of the 950 Decatur teachers did not join the strike and the school board sought to open three elementary schools but was stopped by a court order. The court ruled all or none of the 38 schools must open, on the grounds that opening only a few schools would discriminate against the pupils who could not attend classes.

The striking Decatur Education Association is demanding a limit on class sizes, binding arbitration of grievances, and higher base pay.

In Ann Arbor, Mich., striking teachers agreed Thursday to turn over the salary and class size dispute to a fact-finding group. Classes were scheduled to reopen Friday for the 21,000 pupils and 1,000 teachers.

Schools in three other Michigan cities remained closed by strikes. In Lansing, 32,000 pupils were out of school for the third straight day Thursday as their 1,000 teachers demanded more money and smaller classes.

In Waterford, Mich., the same issues cancelled the scheduled Wednesday school opening for 34,000 pupils in elementary and secondary schools.

Pupils and bus drivers joined teachers on the picket line in Findlay, Ohio, where the one public high school and all 10 public elementary schools are closed. Both the teachers and drivers have failed to reach wage agreements with the board in the 10,000-pupil system.

In Rhode Island, contract disputes kept schools closed for all 4,800 public schools pupils in North Providence, and for all 2,000 in North Smithfield for the second day.

In eastern Pennsylvania, strikes shut down classes for all 18,000 pupils in Allentown and for all 15,000 in Bristol Township. The Allentown School Board requested an injunction against the strike Thursday, and a hearing was set for Friday.

Guns and Tear Gas Used To Quell Prison Riot

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP)—About 1,000 tough, long-term convicts rioted at Attica state prison Thursday, pitting fists and makeshift clubs against guns and tear gas for control of the red-brick, maximum security institution. Thirty-three guards were reported taken hostage. Others were bloodied in pitched battles.

Late in the day, with the sun sinking through a haze of smoke and tear gas, State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald went before the massed, shouting inmates in a prison yard attempt to end the revolt.

Oswald's confrontation was said by an aide to have had a calming effect on the rioters.

At an earlier point, state police paired two by two and under orders to give no quarter stormed into the prison and recaptured three of four inmateheld cellblocks. They moved beneath a pall of smoke from the chapel, carpentry shop and other areas put to the torch by the rioting felons.

Then, in late afternoon, the rioters launched a counter-attack in an effort to retake the cellblocks from officers. Gas masks, a submachine gun, a rifle with telescopic sights and tear gas grenade launchers were included in the lawmen's armory. The rioters' only known weapons were their fists and their clubs.

A Wednesday night attack on a guard which landed a prisoner in solitary was believed to have sparked the riot.

Tough Bargaining Ahead For Nixon With Labor

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers said Thursday labor leaders plan some tough bargaining with President Nixon Friday in return for any pledge to cooperate with White House economic controls.

"I don't think they are going to call us in and say, 'You write the ticket'," Woodcock said.

He said he and other union chiefs will try to win back frozen wage hikes for their members and insist that any continued controls after the wage-price freeze also include profits.

Woodcock spoke in an interview after President Nixon announced in a speech to Congress that the 90-day freeze will end as scheduled Nov. 13 and that he will call in labor, business, agriculture and congressional leaders for consultation on a new plan to curb inflation.

Also invited to the White House meeting with Nixon Friday were AFL-CIO President George Meany, AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland, Kirkland, President Frank E. Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters union and presidents of four AFL-CIO unions-I.W.Abel of the United Steelworkers, Joseph A. Beirne of the Communications Workers, Floyd Smith of the International Association of Machinists and John H. Lyons of the Iron Workers. Smith's office said he was out of town and probably wouldn't make the White House meeting.

Labor leaders have criticized the wage-price freeze and other new Nixon economic policies as favoring big business and being unfair to workers.

Woodcock said Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson assured him labor will be consulted continuously, along with business, agriculture and congressional leaders, until the Nixon Administration drafts a final plan to succeed the freeze.

Woodcock has urged a permanent wage-price review board with subpoena powers to question officials of major corporations and unions about large price or wage hikes, but with no power other than that of public opinion to curb such increases.

Meany said last week he would accept a labor-management-public board of control inflation if the board were allowed to make up its own regulations, rather than simply handing down government edicts.

Loan Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon administration formally approved Thursday a $250-million loan guarantee for Lockheed Aircraft Corp. to help build a TriStar jumbo jet plane.

The company will pay the equivalent of an 8 per cent annual interest rate with more than 2 per cent of that going back to government in the form of a guarantee fee.

Congress recently approved the loan guarantee for Lockheed on the recommendation of President Nixon, who said the nation's largest defense contractor would be forced into bankruptcy without the government guarantee.

RUGBY
1971

Practice - Party Today

4:30 — Boyden Fields
1st practice tomorrow

FALL SEMESTER — ISRAEL

Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study in Jerusalem, Israel/July-December, 1971
(40) students from 25 universities enrolled in 1970)

Juniors and Seniors eligible

Four courses/Hebrew not required/Earn 16 credits

Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Some financial aid available.
Write today for information/application deadline March 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

DANCE

TO THE

DESATATIONS

SATURDAY NITE

50c Cover 9:30 - 12:30

AT

THE ENGLISH PUB

MUNCHY'S

on Campus in

Worcester Commons (North)

&

Hampden Commons (No. 7)

hours 10 A.M. to 10 P.M.

PACKAGED CALORIES
OF MANY KINDS FROM
AARDVARK MILK TO
ZIG NEWTONS

The "New" Food Service Dept.

Colonel Testifys He Saw 15 Bodies From Air

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)—An officer who hovered above My Lai in a command helicopter with Col. Oran K. Henderson testified Thursday that he saw a group of about 15 bodies on the ground but thought the attack was only a routing operation.

Col. Robert B. Luper, then the artillery officer in Henderson's 11th Brigade, said he did not point out the bodies to Henderson as the chopper descended to pick up two Viet Cong suspects just south of My Lai.

Luper, who had to be formally directed by the military judge to testify at Henderson's My Lai coverup court-martial, said he saw the bodies outside the left window of the helicopter.

The witness said that Henderson, accused of willfully failing to properly investigate atrocity reports, was sitting beside the left window.

Maj. Carroll Tichenor, the prosecutor, has said the government would prove the March 16, 1968 massacre was clearly visible to Henderson's command and control ship.

Luper, one of 13 officers originally accused in connection with an alleged coverup of the massacre, asked the judge, Col. Peter S. Wondolowski, to be excused from testifying because of administrative discipline pending against him in the My Lai case.

Wondolowski directed Luper to testify.

The witness, now stationed in Huntsville, Ala., said he did not know in Vietnam that anyone suspected a massacre or was questioning the general conduct or ground troops at My Lai.

Previous testimony stated that Thompson, who flew a support ship over My Lai, returned from the mission with angry complaints about two incidents involving ground troops and civilians.

Luper said Thompson and Henderson went into a van and that he did not know what they discussed. He related however, a conversation in the field between Henderson and Capt. Ernest L. Medina, the My Lai infantry commander who is standing trial for allegedly murdering 102 civilians.

Tippo, Gluckstern and Allen To Address School of Ed.

By DON GLICKSTEIN

Addresses by Chancellor Oswald Tippo, Provost Robert Gluckstern, and Dean Dwight A. Allen will highlight the School of Education's 1971 Convocation. The welcoming meeting of the School, open to the University community, will be held this coming Monday at 8:00 PM in the School of Education Auditorium.

At last year's convocation, Chancellor Tippo commended the School of Education by saying that it "challenged the past, challenged all traditions". This past academic year continued to prove the Chancellor's pronouncement. The Education School completely revised and expanded its teacher training programs. It received a grant from the Carnegie Foundation to implement the abolishment of all existing course structures at the School in favor of a completely modular curriculum, beginning one year from now. Its former Assistant Dean, Robert Woodbury, was acclaimed as he became the new Associate Provost of the University. Undergraduates found themselves facing the alternatives of student teaching in Mexico, Quebec, Louisville, Boston, England, and other sites.

Because new faculty as well as some old ones will be introduced at the Convocation, undergraduate education majors are especially urged to attend.

ARVN Follows 52's Towards Laotian Border

SAIGON (AP) - Behind a blanket of bombs from U.S. B52s, South Vietnamese infantrymen pushed to within two miles of the Laotian border Thursday without resistance.

By nightfall of the fourth day of their new drive below the demilitarized zone, the Saigon troops had yet to report major contact with the retreating North Vietnamese.

Hanoi's forces, estimated at up to 18,000 in the northwestern sector of South Vietnam two weeks ago, were now believed to number between 6,000 and 10,000 men.

Allied intelligence reports indicated the North Vietnamese were still pulling back into Laos and North Vietnam in the face of incessant U.S. aerial pounding and allied artillery bombardments.

In the latest advance of the South Vietnamese sweep, American helicopters ferried 1,000 fresh troops Thursday to jungle-cleared landing zones two miles from the Laos frontier.

Before the helicopter assault, U.S. B52 bombers mounted their heaviest raids in three weeks in the much-bombed northern sector immediately below the DMZ and inside of it. About 25 of the eight jet-bombers dropped 750 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese positions from the southern half of the DMZ to points 20 miles south of it below Khe Sanh.

Associated Press correspondent Richard Blystone flew to two forward bases northeast and east of Khe Sanh where U.S. artillery units had moved in to support the South Vietnamese operation.

In all, about 1,000 U.S. artillerymen and 24 guns were spread out on the five bases.

U.S. officers told Blystone American forces would go no farther west toward Laos than Camp Vandegrift, 10 miles from the winding Laos frontier at its closest point.

The B52 raids that struck in the southern half of the demilitarized zone were aimed at catching North Vietnamese troops who were reported to have pulled back ahead of the South Vietnamese offensive which was launched Monday.

The drive opened with 8,000 to 10,000 troops committed initially and has since grown to 13,500 men with another 7,000 in reserve.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, only small and scattered encounters were reported.

Both the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands, in their weekly casualty summaries, reported a small decrease in casualties last week compared with two weeks ago.

The U.S. Command's summary listed 16 American combat deaths last week, three fewer than the previous week and the eighth straight week that U.S. battle deaths fell below 20.

The command said 84 Americans were wounded last week, 13 fewer than a week earlier, and that 15 Americans died from accidents or illness last week, an increase of 11 in that category.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 230 government troops killed and 579 wounded, compared with 269 killed and 585 wounded in the previous week.

Both allied commands claimed 1,741 enemy killed during the seven-day period ending at midnight last Saturday, an increase over the previous week's claim of 1,264 enemy killed.

Man Lives To 106

Mr. Tommy Chiclets of Dunway, Wisconsin professes to know the secret of life. Mr. Chiclets who is celebrating his 106th birthday today says he owes his longevity to good clean living and eating worthog meat for breakfast every morning.

Mr. Chiclets, a tall lean man, lives alone on his farm in the country. He is the great, great, grandfather of 43 children, 27 of which are surviving today. He is also the father of 25 children himself, none of which are surviving at the present time. When asked about the difficulty of being the father of so many children, Mr. Chiclets replied, "It comes easy."

President Nixon has sent his personal congratulations for a "job well done."

You already know we're New England's Largest That much is true. Then we said we were New England's Best Help make our dream your reality.... Join the MDC TUESDAY

(Time and place to be announced)

Come to the

Amherst Folklore Centre

for good Folk, Rock and Country
MUSIC

Open Fri. - Mon. 8 - 1 a.m.
Behind Grace Church, Spring St., Amherst

Open Hoot Mondays — Organic Snacks

Students' Educational System Lecture Notes Program

Student Union Lobby, Room 318

Telephone 545-2683

Do you have to compete for information in your lecture hall?

Are you incapable of recording as well as a machine?

Try this the next time you attend a lecture:

LISTEN,
THINK,
ASSIMILATE,
QUESTION,
CHALLENGE.

Maybe you will understand and learn more.
S.E.S. provides lecture notes for 28 different academic courses.

Information, subscription tickets, and a complete course list are available at the S.E.S. office. The office is open Monday through Friday, 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon and 12:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m.

Soft Touch CARDS SAY WHAT YOU FEEL.

American Greetings The Fresh Idea Company

THE UNIVERSITY STORE

CAMPUS CENTER

Transit Service Begins Operations Today

The Student Senate Transit Service begins its third year of operation today with three buses in service.

Due to the scheduled reconstruction of Eastman Lane there will be no service to any buildings along that street. Three separate routes will exist however and will be labeled as follows:

V- Puffton: operating between V lot and Puffton village.

Orchard Hill: operating in a modified figure 8 around the central campus, and,

Southwest same as Orchard Hill.

Bill Perkins, last year's manager of the transit service, emphasized that these routes are slightly different from those of last year, and advised that students become acquainted with the new bus stops in order to avoid confusion. Initial schedules and routes appear on this page. Permanent plans will appear in the Collegian next week.

As of Monday, September 13, 1971, Eastman Lane will be closed to the general public for vehicular traffic or parking at a point east of of Thatcher Way, according to parking co-ordinator Robert Ferriter.

Any vehicle parked in the area under construction will be tagged and towed.

The roadway to Sylvan Complex from "M" Lot, and the interior peripheral Sylvan Road is completely closed to all parking, except for designated authorized personnel.

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
7:39	7:40	7:41	7:43	7:44	7:45	7:47	7:49	7:52
8:11	8:12	8:13	8:15	8:16	8:17	8:19	8:21	8:24
8:44	8:45	8:46	8:48	8:49	8:50	8:52	8:54	8:57
9:16	9:17	9:18	9:20	9:21	9:22	9:24	9:26	9:29
9:49	9:50	9:51	9:53	9:54	9:55	9:57	9:59	10:02
10:21	10:22	10:23	10:25	10:26	10:27	10:29	10:31	10:34
10:54	10:55	10:56	10:57	10:58	11:00	11:02	11:04	11:07
11:26	11:27	11:28	11:30	11:31	11:32	11:34	11:36	11:39
11:59	12:00	12:01	12:02	12:04	12:05	12:07	12:09	12:12
12:31	12:32	12:33	12:35	12:36	12:37	12:39	12:41	12:44
1:04	1:05	1:06	1:07	1:09	1:10	1:12	1:14	1:17
1:36	1:37	1:38	1:40	1:41	1:42	1:44	1:46	1:49
2:09	2:10	2:11	2:13	2:14	2:15	2:17	2:19	2:22
2:41	2:42	2:43	2:45	2:46	2:47	2:49	2:51	2:54
3:14	3:15	3:16	3:18	3:19	3:20	3:22	3:24	3:27
3:46	3:47	3:48	3:50	3:51	3:52	3:54	3:56	3:59
4:19	4:20	4:21	4:23	4:24	4:25	4:27	4:29	4:32
4:51	4:52	4:53	4:55	4:56	4:57	4:59	5:01	5:04
5:22	5:23	5:24	5:26	5:27	5:28	5:30	5:32	5:35

1. Prince House
2. Patterson House
3. "M" Lot
4. Boyden Gym
5. Campus Ctr. Way
6. "G" & "H" Lots
7. Grad Research Ctr.
8. School of Ed.
9. Ellis North
10. Hasbrouck
11. Ellis South
12. Hills North
13. Chadbourne House
14. Dickinson House
15. Fraternity Park
16. SDE House
17. Fearing & N. Pleas.
18. SBA - Maher

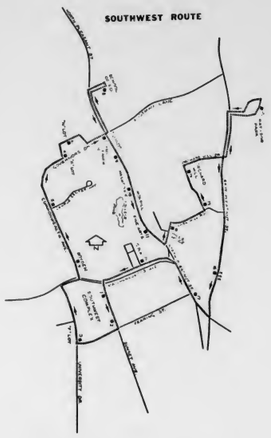
10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
7:54	7:55	7:56	7:58	7:59	8:02	8:05	8:08	8:09
8:26	8:27	8:28	8:30	8:31	8:34	8:37	8:40	8:41
8:59	9:00	9:01	9:03	9:04	9:07	9:10	9:13	9:14
9:31	9:32	9:33	9:35	9:36	9:39	9:42	9:45	9:46
10:04	10:05	10:06	10:08	10:09	10:12	10:15	10:18	10:19
10:36	10:37	10:38	10:40	10:41	10:44	10:47	10:50	10:51
11:09	11:10	11:11	11:13	11:14	11:17	11:20	11:23	11:24
11:41	11:42	11:43	11:45	11:46	11:49	11:52	11:55	11:56
12:14	12:15	12:16	12:18	12:19	12:22	12:25	12:28	12:29
12:46	12:47	12:48	12:50	12:51	12:54	12:57	1:00	1:01
1:19	1:20	1:21	1:23	1:24	1:27	1:30	1:33	1:34
1:51	1:52	1:53	1:55	1:56	1:59	2:02	2:05	2:06
2:24	2:25	2:26	2:28	2:29	2:32	2:35	2:38	2:39
2:56	2:57	2:58	3:00	3:01	3:04	3:07	3:10	3:11
3:29	3:30	3:31	3:33	3:34	3:37	3:40	3:43	3:44
4:01	4:02	4:03	4:05	4:06	4:09	4:12	4:15	4:16
4:34	4:35	4:36	4:38	4:39	4:42	4:45	4:48	4:49
5:06	5:07	5:08	5:10	5:11	5:14	5:17	5:20	5:21
5:37	5:38	5:39	5:40	5:41	5:43	5:46	5:49	5:50

*Return to Garage

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
7:33	7:34	7:36	7:37	7:38	7:39	7:41	7:42	7:43	7:45	7:47
8:06	8:07	8:09	8:10	8:11	8:12	8:14	8:15	8:16	8:18	8:20
8:38	8:39	8:41	8:42	8:43	8:44	8:46	8:47	8:48	8:50	8:52
9:11	9:12	9:14	9:15	9:16	9:17	9:19	9:20	9:21	9:23	9:25
9:43	9:44	9:46	9:47	9:48	9:49	9:51	9:52	9:53	9:55	9:57
10:15	10:16	10:18	10:19	10:20	10:21	10:23	10:24	10:25	10:27	10:29
10:48	10:49	10:51	10:52	10:53	10:54	10:55	10:57	10:58	11:00	11:02
11:20	11:21	11:23	11:24	11:25	11:26	11:28	11:29	11:30	11:32	11:34
11:53	11:54	11:55	11:57	11:58	11:59	12:01	12:02	12:03	12:05	12:07
12:25	12:26	12:28	12:29	12:30	12:31	12:33	12:34	12:35	12:37	12:39
12:58	12:59	1:01	1:02	1:03	1:04	1:06	1:07	1:08	1:10	1:12
1:30	1:31	1:33	1:34	1:35	1:36	1:38	1:39	1:40	1:42	1:44
2:03	2:04	2:06	2:07	2:08	2:09	2:11	2:12	2:13	2:15	2:17
2:35	2:36	2:38	2:39	2:40	2:41	2:43	2:44	2:45	2:47	2:49
3:08	3:09	3:11	3:12	3:13	3:14	3:16	3:17	3:18	3:20	3:22
3:40	3:41	3:43	3:44	3:45	3:46	3:48	3:49	3:50	3:52	3:54
4:13	4:14	4:16	4:17	4:18	4:19	4:21	4:22	4:23	4:25	4:27
4:45	4:46	4:48	4:49	4:50	4:51	4:53	4:54	4:55	4:57	4:59
5:18	5:19	5:21	5:22	5:23	5:24	5:26	5:27	5:28	5:30	5:32

1. "M" Lot
2. "M" Lot
3. Prince House
4. Patterson "
5. Lincoln St.
6. Fearing & No. Pleasant
7. Stockbridge Rd.
8. Morrill North
9. Arnold House
10. School of Ed.
11. North Vil. (No. Bound)
12. Puffton Village
13. No. Village (So. Bound)
14. Fairfield St.
15. Grad. Research Center
16. Ellis North
17. Hasbrouck
18. Ellis South
19. Fearing & No. Pleas.
20. Lincoln St.
21. Patterson House
22. Pierpont House

12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
7:50	7:53	7:54	7:55	7:56	7:57	7:58	8:01	8:02	8:03	8:04
8:23	8:26	8:27	8:28	8:29	8:30	8:31	8:34	8:35	8:36	8:37
8:55	8:58	8:59	9:00	9:01	9:02	9:03	9:06	9:07	9:08	9:09
9:28	9:31	9:32	9:33	9:34	9:35	9:36	9:39	9:40	9:41	9:42
10:00	10:03	10:04	10:05	10:06	10:07	10:08	10:11	10:12	10:13	10:14
10:32	10:35	10:36	10:37	10:38	10:39	10:40	10:43	10:44	10:45	10:46
11:05	11:08	11:09	11:10	11:11	11:12	11:13	11:16	11:17	11:18	11:19
11:37	11:40	11:41	11:42	11:43	11:44	11:45	11:48	11:49	11:50	11:51
12:10	12:13	12:14	12:15	12:16	12:17	12:18	12:21	12:22	12:23	12:24
12:42	12:45	12:46	12:47	12:48	12:49	12:50	12:53	12:54	12:55	12:56
1:15	1:18	1:19	1:20	1:21	1:22	1:23	1:26	1:27	1:28	1:29
1:47	1:50	1:51	1:52	1:53	1:54	1:55	1:58	1:59	2:00	2:01
2:20	2:23	2:24	2:25	2:26	2:27	2:28	2:31	2:32	2:33	2:34
2:52	2:55	2:56	2:57	2:58	2:59	3:00	3:03	3:04	3:05	3:06
3:25	3:28	3:29	3:30	3:31	3:32	3:33	3:36	3:37	3:38	3:39
3:57	4:00	4:01	4:02	4:03	4:04	4:05	4:08	4:09	4:10	4:11
4:30	4:33	4:34	4:35	4:36	4:37	4:38	4:41	4:42	4:43	4:44
5:02	5:05	5:06	5:07	5:08	5:09	5:10	5:13	5:14	5:15	5:16
5:35	5:38	5:39	5:40	5:41	5:42	5:43	5:46	5:47	5:48	5:49*



*Return to Garage

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
7:41	7:43	7:44	7:47	7:50	7:53	7:54	7:55	7:56
8:13	8:15	8:16	8:19	8:22	8:25	8:26	8:27	8:28
8:46	8:48	8:49	8:52	8:55	8:58	8:59	9:00	9:01
9:18	9:20	9:21	9:24	9:27	9:30	9:31	9:32	9:33
9:51	9:53	9:54	9:57	10:00	10:03	10:04	10:05	10:06
10:23	10:25	10:26	10:29	10:32	10:35	10:36	10:37	10:38
10:56	10:58	10:59	11:02	11:05	11:08	11:09	11:10	11:11
11:28	11:30	11:31	11:34	11:37	11:40	11:41	11:42	11:43
12:01	12:03	12:04	12:07	12:10	12:13	12:14	12:15	12:16
12:33	12:35	12:36	12:39	12:42	12:45	12:46	12:47	12:48
1:06	1:08	1:09	1:12	1:15	1:18	1:19	1:20	1:21
1:38	1:40	1:41	1:44	1:47	1:50	1:51	1:52	1:53
2:11	2:13	2:14	2:17	2:20	2:23	2:24	2:25	2:26
2:43	2:45	2:46	2:49	2:52	2:55	2:56	2:57	2:58
3:16	3:18	3:19	3:22	3:25	3:28	3:29	3:30	3:31
3:48	3:50	3:51	3:54	3:57	4:00	4:01	4:02	4:03
4:21	4:23	4:24	4:27	4:30	4:33	4:34	4:35	4:36
4:53	4:55	4:56	4:59	5:02	5:05	5:06	5:07	5:08
5:23	5:25	5:26	5:29	5:32	5:35	5:36	5:37	5:38

1. Hills No.
2. Chadbourne House
3. Dickinson House
4. Fraternity Park
5. SDE House
6. Fearing & No. Pleas.
7. Stockbridge Rd
8. Morrill North
9. Arnold House
10. School of Ed.
11. Grad. Research Ctr.
12. "M" Lot
13. Campus Ctr. Way
14. Boyden Gym
15. Prince House
16. Patterson House
17. "M" Lot
18. SBA - Maher

10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
7:58	8:00	8:01	8:02	8:03	8:05	8:06	8:07	8:09
8:30	8:32	8:33	8:34	8:35	8:37	8:38	8:39	8:41
9:03	9:05	9:06	9:07	9:08	9:10	9:11	9:12	9:14
9:35	9:37	9:38	9:39	9:40	9:42	9:43	9:44	9:46
10:08	10:10	10:11	10:12	10:13	10:15	10:16	10:17	10:19
10:40	10:42	10:43	10:44	10:45	10:47	10:48	10:49	10:51
11:13	11:15	11:16	11:17	11:18	11:20	11:21	11:22	11:24
11:45	11:47	11:48	11:49	11:50	11:52	11:53	11:54	11:56
12:18	12:20	12:21	12:22	12:23	12:25	12:26	12:27	12:29
12:50	12:52	12:53	12:54	12:55	12:57	12:58	12:59	1:01
1:23	1:25	1:26	1:27	1:28	1:30	1:31	1:32	1:34
1:55	1:57	1:58	1:59	2:00	2:02	2:03	2:04	2:06
2:28	2:30	2:31	2:32	2:33	2:35	2:36	2:37	2:39
3:00	3:02	3:03	3:04	3:05	3:07	3:08	3:09	3:11
3:33	3:35	3:36	3:37	3:38	3:40	3:41	3:42	3:44
4:05	4:07	4:08	4:09	4:10	4:12	4:13	4:14	4:16
4:38	4:40	4:41	4:42	4:43	4:45	4:46	4:47	4:49
5:10	5:12	5:13	5:14	5:15	5:17	5:18	5:19	5:21
5:40	5:42	5:43	5:44	5:45	5:47	5:48	5:49*

*Return to Garage

Hurricane Fern Heading North; Nearing Galveston With 90 mph Winds

(AP) - Hurricane Fern, on the prowl again Thursday after hours of stalling, howled up the Gulf of Mexico toward Galveston, Tex. Hurricane warning flags flew over a 100-mile stretch of the Texas coast from Freeport to Port Arthur.

As the storm approached, spinning 90-mile-an-hour winds around the center and possibly spawning a few tornadoes, the National Hurricane Center at Miami, Fla., warned residents of low coastal areas to evacuate before escape routes are cut by rising tides.

Southward in the Caribbean, Hurricane Edith fell on Cape Gracias, on the Caribbean border between Honduras and Nicaragua, and built up such strength forecasters feared she would remain alive many days and strike other coasts.

At Galveston, an island city of 62,000 on a densely populated stretch of the Texas shore, businesses were boarded up and residents taped the windows of their homes. Residents of Bolivar Peninsula, connected with Galveston by a ferry boat, was evacuated.

There was a run on gasoline stations at Corpus Christi, Tex., and other cities in the threatened zone, indicating that thousands of residents were getting ready for flight inland.

Hurling gale winds 150 miles to the north and 75 miles to the south of the center, Fern was forecast to move inland early in the evening near Galveston, bringing tides as high as six feet above normal. Gale warnings were in effect from Corpus Christi to Vermillion Bay in Louisiana.

The low-lying Sabine area on the Louisiana-Texas border was being evacuated. In Cameron, La., where in 1957 Hurricane Audrey ran up a huge death toll when she struck the coast from a path parallel to that of Fern, Civil Defense authorities were huddling.

An emergency communications network was being set up in Houston, Tex., to give reports on the hurricane's movements and direct rescue operations.

Winds of 160 miles an hour, rising much higher in gusts, shrieked around the tightly formed eye of Edith as she pushed storm tides 10 to 15 feet above normal into the thinly populated coast. Battering rains were expected to spread over the mountains of Honduras, triggering flash floods.

Friday's Follies Presents

. . . New Waves and Old Raves

"Man and a Woman"

Friday 6, 8, 10:00

S U Ballroom

Admission 75¢

(series tickets available)

Butterfield Productions

UL—Approved Heater!

SAVE 20% NOW!

Enjoy the exotic new experience of water-beds! Feel better with less sleep! Order NOW and save more than 20% on complete water-beds and kits! Top quality 20-gauge clear vinyl mattress, heat-sealed for durability . . . vinyl safety liner with fitted corners . . . best available heating element and thermostat . . . wood (2x10) frame covered in crushed vinyl (black, white, red, blue) or dazzling reflective mylar (silver, gold), assembles in minutes with wrench or pliers, disassembles easily for moving. Or buy the kit and build your own frame—all hardware and instructions included. Patch kit and algaecide FREE with every order. Mattress sizes: double 54x75, queen 60x80, king 72x80. Satisfaction guaranteed, two-year guarantee on all parts.

Order today!

Mail to Merchants Industries, 1732 Blair, Phila., Pa. 19125

Send me type and size Cat's Cradle for which I have circled the price below. I enclose check or money order (payable to Merchants Industries) for full amount of bed, plus $1 for kit or $10 for complete bed to help pay cost of shipping and handling. (Penna. delivery: add 6% sales tax.) Deliver my bed within 2-3 weeks.

	Double	Queen	King
WATER-BED KIT (without heater) (mattress, liner, hardware)	$39 (reg $49)	$39 (reg $49)	$44 (reg $55)
WATER-BED KIT (with heater) (mattress, liner, heater, hardware)	$69 (reg $89)	$69 (reg $89)	$79 (reg $99)
COMPLETE WATER-BED (without heater) (maitress, liner, frame)	$79 (reg $99)	$79 (reg $99)	$89 (reg $109)
COMPLETE WATER-BED (with heater) (mattress, liner, heater, frame)	$109 (reg $139)	$109 (reg $139)	$129 (reg $159)

Check color: ☐ black, ☐ white, ☐ red, ☐ blue, ☐ silver, ☐ gold

Name

Address

Zip

☐ I'd like more information. Send me free brochure.

Education Through Involvement

NES Recruitment Meeting

7:30 p.m. Sunday Sept. 12

Campus Center Auditorium

Special Projects

Tutor-Tutee development of group activities in N.E.S. Centers.

Arts & Crafts

Drama

Music

Doing your thing with kids.

Tutoring

One-to-one.

One or more times a week in economically deprived areas of Springfield.

Tutoring done in N.E.S. Centers.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John E. Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Stephen Schmidt
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — Marjorie B. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti, Bob Callahan, Don St. Pierre, Dan Kamal, Steve Fine
SPORTS — Fred Rosenthal
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Gib Fullerton
AD LAYOUT — John & Margie Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Barry Rubenstein

The Voting Verdict

A lot has been written about Attorney General Quinn's decision on student voting both chastising and defending it. However, the important point is not whether the decision itself was merited or not but rather how that decision will manifest itself in the upcoming elections.

In past years, a small percentage of new voters were added to the rolls by virtue of their having achieved the legal age. Due to its minuteness, this group was unable, even if it had been unified and directed, to become an independent political force. Each individual was concerned with his own enfranchisement and dwealt little on the fact that his peers were also joining him as voters. This aspect made it easier for each individual to become ingrained into the political system.

The situation in 1972 is completely different. The amount of new voters affected by the ruling is too large to be ignored, especially in the towns with a considerable student population (i.e., Cambridge and Amherst). It is difficult to predict how this group will react to its new political environment especially in light of the power it may wield. The obvious conclusion would be that this hand of youths will find unity amongst themselves and with or without a formal political structure, will vote, for all intents and purposes, as a block. This is what most Amherst residents fear most.

This Amherst paranoia may indeed be well-founded if students take into consideration all the trouble they were given in Amherst before the Attorney General's decision was announced. Past issues of the Collegian are full of stories about UMass students not being allowed to register in Amherst because Town Clerk Esther Dimmock ruled that this was not their legal domicile. Also, the residents of this town remember well back to May 1970 when students banned together for a common cause and many probably feel that the common cause of 1971 may be to elect students to run the town.

The ruling by Quinn was obviously not designed to put towns and cities in the hands of students but merely to give these same students a voice in the affairs of the town in which they spend nine months out of the year. It is the college community which is on trial and unlike in the American legal system, it is they who must bear the burden of proving their capabilities.

They can best achieve this by being rational. The goal of voting is not to elect as many of your own kind as possible, except in a few special cases, but rather to get the best people into office. If the best people happen to be students, for instance, all the better. Yet it is very possible that many of the best candidates will not be from the University and these people deserve our support. Voting for students because they are students can only serve to alienate many people who are still sympathetic to the college element. This is not a typical town and though students may be powerful here they are less strong in the country at large. So let us not be so overwhelmed by our new privileges that we forget the ideals in which we believe. The jury is still out.

Mercy, Mercy

A lot has been said about what an impersonal, sprawling, and stultifying place the University is. And it seems that, unfortunately, this reality never seems to improve. Year after year changes are promised but nothing, really, is ever done to alleviate the situation.

Witness, for example, a senior government major dropped out of a government course, or a freshman who lucks out on five out of five courses. But stories of atrocities commited in the name of education at Boyden during the biannual madhouse down there are a dime a dozen. Hardly a bargain considering the time and effort it takes to correct largely avoidable human errors.

The tales of woe do not come solely from the Boyden-Whitmore, Registrar's office, Cashier's office circuit that so many people are becoming familiar with. You hear wild stories coming from every corner of campus, concerning everything imaginable. People wandering around without a place to stay, people who are having trouble with the dining commons in spite of itself and its new 'image.'

UMass reactionaries will no doubt blame the 'computer in Whitmore' or Dean Field, but the blame goes much further than that. 300 people can't register because the cashier's office is overflowing with late payments. Well whose fault is that? Are you going to blame the lady who processes your check or are you going to remember that your bill was dated? So you lose a course you really wanted- did you have the instructor's permission (if you needed it), did you take the pre-requisite? Are you sure the English department knows you want a degree in English, or are you still on the botany department rolls?

We're not about to defend the University either. It has a responsibility to students that should be re-evaluated constantly. Some signs of life and mercy (a ten meal meal-ticket!) are beginning to show through the layers of bureaucracy that UMass envelops itself in. The University is a living thing. It is not an unfeeling blank. You as a student are as much to blame for the conditions here as the people who run the place. Remember that the next time you have to wait in line-someone has to sit there and listen to you.

Gus Szlosek

A Book Review

THE HEXAGON PAPERS, by Pen Pittsburg

The title of this surprising little book is based on the charges offered in the opening chapter. Here the author reveals that building contractors defrauded the government of millions of dollars in constructing the National Defense Building, but that administrators hushed it up to avoid political enbarrassment. The author says the fraud would have gone unnoticed if an alert government draftsman hadn't decided one night to help his son with homework. His suspicions aroused by a group of geometric definitions, he investigated further and discovered that an entire wing had been omitted from the building known as "Project Hexagon". The book further reports that this official was soon after transferred by "high government officials" to the Food and Drug Administration, where he mysteriously died while investigating an unnamed soup-manufacturing plant.

The author of THE HEXAGON PAPERS was himself an official in the Pentagon for twenty-seven years, being chief latrine orderly for the last twnety-five. In this position, he was privy to many of the behind-the-scenes events which were shielded from the eyes of private citizens. Although General Pittsburg was retired last year from government service, it was not before he had come across many other noteworthy secrets. Among them is the surprising fact that Barry Goldwater actually won the 1964 Presidential election, but was cheated of his victory by a conspiracy involving Chicago's Mayor Daley, Raymond Patriarca, and the entire United States press corps. The general public and most government officials took for granted the accuracy of press reports on the election returns, but General Pittsburg asserts that rigged government computers were used in the election result projections which provided the official figures on the race. The computer figures were favored over actual voting results, although voting ran 5 to 1 in favor of the Senator from Arizona.

This episode unfortunately did not end with the election. Through a simple oversight, the rigged computers were returned to government service without being repaired. It was these computers which were used by military advisors to predict a complete American victory in Vietnam by the end of 1965 at the latest. In his account, Pittsburg charges that

THE PENTAGON PAPERS, as damning as they may seem to be, were entirely manufactured (by kidnapped writers of the READER'S DIGEST staff) to cover up the even more shocking events of this period.

In his chapter on contemporary events, the author suggests that President Nixon had better be wary of high officials in his government (mostly these are thinly-veiled allusions to Vice-President Agnew). He states that the actual reason Nixon is seen on television so often is that "an unnamed government figure" has obtained the full cooperation of the networks in maintaining constant surveillance of the President. He also leaves the reader to decide whether it is more than coincidence that Spiro Agnew has hit so many people with golf balls. Probably without realizing it, he reveals a touchingly sentimental side of our Vice-President when he describes a photograph still hanging in the Pentagon's secret Spiro Agnew Menorial Stall. This photo shows Agnew playing golf with a friend, and is signed, "to my best pupil, from Lee Harvey."

Further accounts seem to deny widespread reports that President Nixon will drop Agnew as his running mate in 1972. His dedication runs deep, as is shown by the fact that Nixon personally dedicated the Memorial Stall, "in a rather unorthodox fashion".

In his concluding chapter, Pittsburg attempts to quell fears expressed by Spiro Agnew's psychiatrist as to what might happen if he were to succeed to the Presidency. The author assures his readers that it would make practically no difference in the conduct of government affairs, since J. Edgar Hoover "is as firmly in control of its operation as in any year since World War II" (which, incidentally, was won by Japan. But that is another chapter).

Pittsburg said in a recent interview with TRUE CONFESSION Magazine that he is beginning to lose faith in our government as a result of its attempts to suppress his book. The manuscript was rejected by eleven major publishers, three greeting-card companies, and a subsidy press, before it was finally brought into print by Ill. Fame House of Chicago, a major supplier of pornographic novels to public libraries. The author praised the company for its bravery. Claiming that this has always been his policy, chief editor Joseph Valachi said, "Our public wants to know what's up in government circles, and we have never been afraid to show them."

All in all, despite its rather mundane subject matter of everyday government operations, this book should prove to be of more than passing interest even to those readers not directly involved in national politics.

ALSO RECOMMENDED: BAWL FORE! by the staff of NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC. This is the exciting account of Vice-President Agnew's round-the-world golfing tour With actual coroner's reports on Agnew's golfing partners, and color photographs of the elephant mating which the Vice-President witnessed in Kenya.

Adam's Dream

Weeping mothers
Stand by open windows;
Open to the wind and rain,
Waiting for their sons

To war;
Brought home in ashes
Draped in flowers and pearls
And silent
Mothers will beat the brides their sons left
Mothers will stand upon their sons
In the cool ground

And bless the rain that cools them
Bless the dead moss on their foreheads
And the wheat lying upon their boneless ashes

Blessed be God that lays us out together
Blessed be Jesus;
It is always the cross
Blessed the clean sand that buries
The astonished and anointed flesh of the sons
Blessed be the tears
That choke the roots of screams

Karl Avdek

Letters To The Editor

More Issues To Think Of

To The Editor:

There are two major issues returning students should make a special effort to take time to consider, outside of the normal "Who am I...Where am I...What is life? questions so often considered late at night in the basement of Chadbourne House.

The first is the University's decision, coming loud a clear out of the President's Office in Boston, to raise rents, board, and fees during the period of National Emergency known as the Wage/Price Freeze. Their claim is that the previously announced raise if paid by one student before August 14th (the Day of Tricky's announcement) then all must pay. Some legal observers have indicated the folly in this argument by pointing out that the services being paid for wouldn't start till almost one month later--so there was no "substantial exchange" as needed to satisfy Office of Emergency Preparedness guidelines. Other observers were quick to point out the University was halting wage raises negotiated prior to the freeze to 565 non-professional employees and 42 Faculty members at the same time it is holding firm for rent increases.

The University's Philosophy Department was heard mumbling about the issues morality (they use the word loosely over there). If the President's economic policy is to be fair at all, then it must effect everyone equally. Students, and their parents will not be able to gain additional income under Nixon's policies to meet this rent increase which is based to a degree on 6 to 9% salary increase projections that presently can not take place. Whatever political muscle (and gall) the University has to raise fees for services that take place smack in the center of the whole 90 day freeze, the action is certainly immoral in the way its used to meet only institutional and not student needs.

The second issue students should confront is whether you and your motorcycle gang are going to register to vote. Many of us "voted with our feet" in 1968 and find it psychologically difficult to get too excited around election time. An opportunity exists now, however, to make some fundamental changes throughout the state. I believe our emphasis should be with local, and not national politics in trying to end the hold the 19th Century seems to have on Massachusetts politics. I also think each of us should make some decision as to where we intend to vote--although many of us plan to register here, remember the bastards who need to be done in at home!

Joseph Renan

Four Courses Per Semester?

To The Editor:

The arguments for the adoption of a four-course-per-semester plan center around the increased efficiency that its proponents see it offering in the employment of both student and instructor time and the consequent gains in educational quality that may be achieved with a given number of staff, and a given number of semesters. The proponents of the four-course plan would argue that five courses per semester divide the student's attention into too many small pieces. It therefore tends to re-enforce any inclinations toward superficiality and casualness that there may be in the student's approach to his classes. From the teacher's point of view, there is, assuming that the fourth credit represents not additional contact time but additional out-of-class preparation, reason to expect that the student will come to each class better prepared, ready to listen to lectures that assume a better knowledge of the subject and therefore ready to move more deeply into the subject in his reading and in his written work than would reasonably be expected under the five-course system.

Any proposal for change, would, however, have to go beyond these considerations to answer certain other questions. How would graduation requirements be affected? How would teaching loads be computed? If we decrease the number of courses taken by the average student in an average semester, what will this do to enrollment figures in various courses? How will the decreased number of courses being taken by the average student affect the smaller or newer programs? Will this decrease restrict student opportunity for varied educational experience? Would the standard adjustment be in the direction of making one-semester courses out of the present one-year courses? All these questions finally bring us to try to grapple with the most basic questions, questions most illuminatingly taken up in "How long is a credit? When is a course?" an article by Robert F. Grose, registrar of Amherst College (College and University, vol. 46, Fall, 1970, pp. 20-32). As Mr. Grose makes quite clear, credits, courses, and degrees all tend to be circularly defined in terms of each other. At the same time there is now a basic challenge from many quarters to the idea of credits. The course rather than the credit is being proposed as a basis for evaluating student work. Yet the course itself is also under challenge from those who favor the granting of credit or other forms of recognition through standard examinations.

In view of the circularity of definitions of all the terms such as credits, courses, degrees, etc. with which this committee will be working in carrying out its charge, there is danger of an infinite regress into the more rarefied reaches of educational philosophy. We must strike a balance between complete refusal to consider these important questions and becoming so completely taken up with them that we cannot complete our charge.

Professor Marvin Swartz

Editorial Points

The changes in procedure employed yesterday at Whitmore were very successful and made life a lot easier for those who had to endure it. But when are the big wheels in Whitmore going to do something about the weather.

****

Some people may be glad to get back to school but I'll bet the first thing most people looked at on the University Calendar was when the first holiday came. It's October 11.

****

During the summer months you almost forget how to stand in line. But I guess it's like riding a bike. You never really forget.

****

If the lines down at the Parking Office in Hampshire House are any indication, Anderson's should be in for another big year.

****

The only thing that bothers me about construction on campus is that by the time they finish building, they'll have to start rebuilding.

Jim Moran

Things To Know

To all you new students on campus, welcome. You will discover living in this area is similar to living in any other university area where the natives wish to shaft you with the green weenie.

Abandoning the purpose of this column, I would like to make a few suggestions to those of you new in the area. One is do your shopping outside the area. You'll discover that individual food articles will be 3 or 4 cents cheaper, and clothing a few dollars cheaper. If you wish to see a good movie take a run out to the town of Orange off Rt. 202 where the Cinema costs $1.50 for an evening show. Here, in this area, you'll pay $3.00 for the same thing and sit in a barn besides.

If you wish to have a checking account have one at a bank in your home town. Here the green weenie is used quite extensively in the cost of maintaining a checking account. Your personal checks from your home bank can be cashed in either the Hatch, Whitmore, or the Campus Center And any bills that have to be paid to the local yokels can be paid by check through the mail.

If you have a toothache take it home. To have one cavity filled and the remainder of your teeth cleaned will cost you $35. You'll also hear a long lecture on how all your fillings were put in backwards or something and have to be replaced.

If you need financial assistance see your old man. Most people at the financial aid office at Whitmore, more commonly called Witless, have great difficulty understanding whole sentences.

If you are renting an apartment you'll have to pay an unreasonable deposit on an over- priced, delapitated unit.

If you've paid your deposit, kiss it goodby. Most places have a little gimmick. When it comes time to leave your domicile you have the option of cleaning up your own place and never having it pass, or hiring the resident vegetable to do it for a sizeable portion of the deposit. Local land lords get upset if you do not use this help that they provide.

Also if they hit you for a nail hole and demand a few dollars to have it repaired pay a visit to the next tenant and see if the hole was ever repaired. Most likely it never was.

*****

Well they have finally completed the married student housing at North Village in Amherst. No sooner had they finished hammering the final nail home than they announced an increase in the students' rent.

At the present time the rent is $135 for a single bedroom apartment, and $155 for a two bedroom apartment. This rate is scheduled to increase by $23 this coming March. The married student housing committee managed to lop off a few dollars from the original increase.

A few residents in the new housing unit are talking about a renter's strike.

While the North Village complex was being built the mentally agile fathers of the foundation managed to spend $18,000. per unit on the low income student housing project. Of course in the spirit of the Amherst area the cost was passed right on to the students.

It makes you wonder what the idea is behind having a contract go out to bid. As the law requires the contract is advertised and the lowest bidder is awarded it. But the state being the state and the wealth being common the contractor and the architect is allowed to make changes on the plans, which naturally cost money. A low bid of three million dollars is usually changed to a high bid of six million dollars. And all after the contract has been awarded. Perfectly, and lawfully done.

Sincere Apologies

As a "line-stander" of considerable experience, I wish to take this opportunity to extend my sincere apologies to those students who valiantly endured the monumental lines for ID Cards at Boyden Wednesday. In an attempt to update both the ID Card and ID Card System, certain alterations in the method of distribution were necessary. As must have been apparent, we grossly overestimated our ability to successfully cope with such alterations. Please be assured that the poor planning evidenced Wednesday will not be repeated at subsequent Registrations.

Again, my apologies.

Randall W. Dahl
Dean of Students Office

Weekend

By BOB NESTI

Theater

What The Butler Saw
Joe Orton's hilarious black farce. A free-wheeling perverse comedy which involves mistaken identities, leching old man, nymphomaniacs, and a liberal dosage of transvestism. This production by the Amherst Masquers will be performed Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 8:30 at Kirby Theater, Amherst College. General Admission is $2.00.

Films

Films are divided into two distinct categories in this area: those shown on campus and those shown off. Generally first run films are shown in the odd assortment of commercial theaters. These theaters range from the old-fashioned home town variety to the more recent cinema complexes. Prices range anywhere from $1.50 to $2.50.

Films shown on campus range from film classics to more recent commercial successes with an occasional emphasis on a particular genre, director or star. These films are shown usually anywhere where a 16 mm. projector and screen can be set up. Films shown in the larger auditoriums on the campuses are provided with a professional set-up. Prices are usually fifty cents to a dollar, but some may be more or less. Occasionally a commercial film will be previewed on a campus. Weekly this column will list the film fare found in the area.

Al Pacino looks at Kitty Winn with tenderness and guilt when he discovers that she has become a junkie due to his influence in this scene from PANIC IN NEEDLE PARK.

A Man And A Woman (Friday, SU Ballroom, 6,8,10)
Claude Lelouch has filmed this lush, if slight romantic entertainment about love and auto racing. It moves at a swinging pace and is filled with some glorious photography. Anouk Aimee and Jean Louis Trintignant take a back seat (so to speak) to Lelouch's camera and Michel Legrand's score.

Anne of A Thousand Days (Sunday, SU Ballroom, 6:45 and 9:45)
An old-fashioned, enjoyable historical drama that tells the story of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn. Hal Wallis mounted this handsome production which features excellent performances from stars Richard Burton as Henry and Genevieve Bujold as Anne.

Carnal Knowledge (Academy of Music, Northampton; Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
A stinging look at the sexual mores of Americans which, at times, resembles throwing salt upon an open wound. The performances, though, are great from a cast which includes Jack Nicholson, Arthur Garfunkel, Candice Bergen, and Ann-Margaret. The pat script by cartoonist Jules Feiffer is effectively handled by director Mike Nichols making it a film you may not like but have to respect.

Doc (Showcase Cinemas, W. Springfied)
The West as it was, or as political columnist Pete Hammill thought it was. An unfortunate film for all involved and they include such good people as performers Stacey Keach and Faye Dunaway and director Frank Perry.

Joe (Thursday, September 16, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9:30)
This ugly piece of social commentary seemed dated when it was released last fall, by now it should seem archaic. Hippies vrs. Hardhats done with all the subtlety of a wounded hippo. Joe Boyle in the film's title role is its own saving grace but he is little consolation for what remains.

Klute Campus Cinemas, Hadley
Jane Fonda gives her finest performance to date as an upper class call girl plagued by a mysterious killer in this taut thriller. Fonda and the script are excellent but a rather mild performance by Donald Sutherland in the title role and some silly direction keep this one from comparing to Hitchcock's best.

Music on campus will be at a minimum until Wednesday evening, September 22 when two Bach cantatas will be performed in a Chamber Music recital. Featured in the concert, from left to right, will be Charles Lehrer, oboe; John D'Armand, bass; John King, organ; and soprano Donna Harler will be assisted by the Madrigal Singers. A Stravinsky cantata is also on the program.

McCabe And Mrs. Miller (Amherst Cinema, Amherst; Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield.)
By general consensus, the best American film of the year. Robert Altman's gritty and evocative look at the Old West with Warren Beatty and Julie Christie in the title roles.

The Omega Man (Showcase Cinemas, W. Springfield)
Charleston Heston as the last man on earth in this mindless piece of science fiction. It's been done before and done better, although this one occasionally has its moments.

On Any Sunday (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Bruce Brown ("The Endless Summer") has made this valentine to motorcycle racing. It is a visually stunning documentary but suffers from a hackneyed script mouthed in a cornball fashion by Brown. Steve McQueen is featured as one of the racers.

Panic In Needle Park (Showcase Cinemas, W. Springfield)
Kitty Winn and Al Pacino are the people to watch in this "Hollywood takes on the drug culture" documentary--drama. Adapted from a series found in New York Magazine, the film follows the spiralling descent of two junkies, Helen and Bobby. The story occasionally gets in the way of the graphically presented drug sequences. The performances of the two leads make up for 'Panic's shortcomings.

Summer of '42 (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
Or how I lost my virginity to Michel Legrand's lush strings. A valentine to a period long gone about a one-sided love affair between a teenage boy and a twenty-five year old war widow. The most hypnotically effective film of the year.

Films On Television

Love Me Or Leave Me (Friday, 11:25 PM, Ch.3)
A colorful musical biography from the 1950's chronically the career of famed Thirties singer Ruth Etting. It specifically looks at her relationship with the flinty gangster Martin Snyder and how it plagued her rise. Doris Day and James Cagney have the leads and Doris sings a number of Etting favorites in fine style (if you're interested).

The Solid Gold Cadillac (Saturday, 6 PM, Ch. 18)
Judy Holliday sparkles in this generally ordinary romantic spoof on Big Business. She plays a most candid small-time stockholder who hassles its directors in her own charming style.

Two Weeks In Another Town (Saturday, 11:25 PM, Ch. 3)
A cheap yet solid and entertaining Hollywood--Behind The Scenes film. It contains perhaps the nastiest group of characters in the history of Hollywood. The film reaks of nearly every other film which chronicled "chic" life and much of it is overripe yet it is campy and diverting. Also The Female Animal. A Heddy Lemarr comeback attempt.

Sons Of The Desert (Saturday, 12:30, Ch. 22)
Laurel and Hardy as French Foreign Legionnaires in perhaps their funniest and best known feature film.

Cat People (Saturday, 12:30, Ch. 30)
One of the legendary "sleeper" films of all time. More atmospheric than frightening this 1942 fantasy about a woman thinking she was becoming a cat revolutionized B feature horror films.

Jane Fonda plays Bree Daniel, a high priced call girl in KLUTE, the excellent mystery thriller now playing in this area. (See column for details.).

The Quiet American (Sunday, 4:30 PM, Ch. 40)
An early film (1953) dealing with Free World intrusion into Southeast Asia. Filled with a cynicism that went unheeded, it tells the tale of an American (Audie Murphy) who optimistically and naively crusades his later day White Man's Burden to some Asian peasants. Despite a cop-out ending, an interesting film.

Shake Hands With The Devil (Sunday, 5 PM, Ch. 8)
The Irish Revolution and a most engrossing, strong drama with James Cagney, Don Murray, Michael Redgrave, and Dana Wynter.

Jane Eyre (Sunday, 9 PM, Ch. 20,22,30)
A handsome, well-acted version of Charlotte Bronte's brooding classic with George C. Scott and Sussanah York.

The Strangler (Sunday, 11:30 PM, Ch. 8)
A quickie made to cash in on the Boston Strangler hysteria of the mid-Sixties features Victor Buono and is hardly worthwhile.

Harvey (Sunday, 12 AM, Ch. 3)
One of the theater's fondest-remembered comedies was made into a highly enjoyable film. It tells the tale of a middle-aged lush and his invisible best friend--a six foot, three and one half inch white rabbit. James Stewart is excellent as is Josephine Hull as his proper sister.

'Catch 22' Author To Speak

Joseph Heller, author of the wildly hilarious and deeply poignant anti-war novel "Catch-22", will speak at the Student Union Ballroom next Tuesday, Sept. 14, at 8:00 P.M. This "Evening of Joe Heller", is the first of a series of presentations sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program.

Heller is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of New York University. He received his M.A. from Columbia and later studied under a Fullbright Scholarship at Oxford University in England. During World War II, he was a B-25 bombardier and flew sixty missions over Italy and France.

In 1953, he began writing "Catch-22" while still an advertising copywriter, and working after office hours and on weekends, finished it eight years later. His play "We Bombed in New Haven" has been called "the most powerful play about contemporary American irrationality an American has written".

Heller now occupies his time writing articles and film scripts, working at the same time on his second novel "Something Happened". He has also taught courses in fiction and dramatic writing at Yale and the University of Pennsylvania.

There will be a coffee hour following the talk

JOSEPH HELLER

The Great Marijuana War

By David Williams

Part I

Electric Eric used to go up to the Hill a lot last spring to visit and would always wind up under a desk. I thought that was strange until I realized he didn't think anything was unusual about it at all. All it meant was that there was better dope up on the Hill than there was in Southwest, a sad blow to the collective ego of Pierpont.

You see, up until then, having the best dope on campus was something to be proud of and certain people and places got a reputation for dealing good stuff. But then came the raid and that sort of knocked the wind out of everybody's sails for a while. Everyone had to go home and figure out his own way to stay high during the summer.

Eric and I decided we wouldn't take any chances. We went to Mexico. That sounds like a very rash thing to do, go to Mexico. It's not as if dope were impossible to get near Boston, there's plenty of it. All Eric and I wanted to do was go someplace we'd never been before and have a good time and try to stay out of too much trouble. Mexico being Mexico we figured a dozen keys each wouldn't be too much trouble. You know all those stories you hear whenever you go to someone's place to cop an ounce... They're bullshit, man.

Being adventurous, or crazy, we decided right off that we wanted to bring the stuff across ourselves. But there were a couple of problems with that idea, one of them being Customs and the other being that we were too chickenshit to discuss the entire idea seriously. I finally decided one night that if we just couldn't score through someone in Mexico or if we were burned and given 2 keys of really dynamite grass and 22 of donkey shit and corn silk, then we'd try to make it through Customs as a last futile gesture. Sort of a giving-the finger-to-the-world type of thing and completely useless as far as we were concerned.

That put a crimp in our planning. It meant we had to find someone to deal with who was reasonably un-sneaky looking since I like to avoid sneaky looking people. One of Eric's contacts knew someone in Texas so we packed up and took off in Eric's Duster.

We agreed unanimously not to go through the South. Two freaks in a bright red car with Massachusetts plates would never make it through the South alive, which says something about the problems some Southerners have with hate. We went straight West and dropped down to Texas, getting off on all the corn and wheat fields along the way. Texas was a dull state with a lot of sand. It seemed like the whole fucking state was light brown, about the color of a Lorna Doone cookie. Cookies and milk are ruined for me. I'll never be able to eat any kind of light brown cookie again without having a sand-colored shitflavored flashback. Don't ever go to Texas if you don't have to. I was ok by the time we got crossed the Rio Grande and met our contact, who turned out to be a duplicate of the Frito Bandito, only skinny and with slits for eyes. Really sneaking looking. I got the creeps just thinking about what we were going to do to ourselves. His name was Carlos and he always had a joint in his hand.

He climbed into the front seat of the car and sat there between the two of us, sucking on this incredibly long, skinny joint and generally ignoring us except when he wanted Eric to make a turn. We would up in front of a sleazy looking hotel called La Cucaracha. Carlos stepped out of the car and sort of sauntered into the lobby, flipped a hand at the desk clerk, and disappeared up the stairs. We had to go through this whole hassle paying the guy in advance for a couple of nights but we were so blown he kept trying to burn us with the change. He may have, but we couldn't have cared at that point. It took about 2 seconds to find Carlos' room once we got upstairs, we just followed the smell. But we were really 'ired, coming off a long trip, so the first thing we did was fall into bed and sleep.

Carlos had one rolled and ready in the morning for us, and after doing that up and taking a shower and cleaning up and having breakfast, we felt like going out and wallowing in a marijuana field, which is just about what we did.

Carlos packed us into this very unlikely looking jeep he had and drove to the outskirts of town and then took a diving left into a dry river bed. We lurched and bounced up the river bed into some low hills for about an hour, Carlos firmly gripping a joint only this time he was passing it around. Pretty soon we were crawling over the skin of some weird animal on the back of a large noisy insect. I was its right eye. It was a really weird insect. Carlos was the left eye and the brain because he was driving. Eric was just sitting back there watching. He couldn't be an eye because I was already an eye so we had two and Carlos was the brain. But I didn't have too much time to worry about what part of the bug Eric was because I had to keep a lookout because I was an eye. Carlos was really cool about being a brain. He was opening up all his sensors and letting information flow in. Then he would sort out what he needed to know to keep the insect moving and the rest he would forget without ever knowing he knew it. The insect crawled on and on up into the hills without any trouble. Finally Carlos stopped and got out of the jeep.

I opened my mouth to speak and managed to croak, "Are we here?"

"Si we here. Follow me," replied Carlos. He scrambled out of the riverbed and began to push through the underbrush into the forest. Eric and I followed him. We made our way through maybe one hundred yards of trees and bushes and suddenly spilled out into a tremendous clearing, every square yard of which was filled with six foot high maijuana plants. They weren't really plants. They were almost like small bushy pine trees. I could see where they would flower shortly, the branches had clusters of red-green buds. They were very close to being ready for harvest. Another week and the plants would blossom and the seed pods would pop.

Sue Bergeron

Carlos watched me as I stood examining a branch.

"Is good looking dope, no?"

"Bet your ass, pal," I said.

"Come," he replied, "We find Manuel, the boss."

We had to walk the length of the field, something I was only too happy to do. Someone had put a lot of care into keeping the field clean and neat. All the weeds were gone, the ground was all neatly hoed and watered. And the plants. Weak ones were held up with sticks and string, strong ones all neatly lined up in these straight rows, all evenly spaced. I looked back at Eric. He seemed to be having trouble controlling himself.

Carlos was delighted with the whole thing.

"You like the grass, boys, eh?" He was bouncing along letting the longer branches brush against him.

"We will find Manuel. He will sell you good smoke."

We were still trudging through the field. Manuel, where are you? Hey! Manuel! I'm lost in the forest. Come get me.

"Yoohoo! Carlos! Over here, pobrecito."

We must be getting close.

"Oh, Carlos. I see you, you little puta, you."

Manuel was large and fat and had a thing of hair on his chin like Zappa. He minced over to Carlos

"Carlos, you silly mestizo. Why didn't you tell me you were bringing company?" He leered over at us. Eric and I pretended to be doing something.

"Well, Carlos. How much do these boys want?" Manuel asked.

"Veinta y cuatro," sighed Carlos.

Manuel shrugged. "Is not an awful lot. Come."

Manuel began to prance towards some white sheds that looked like giant beehives. That fool! We'll be turned into honey! He stopped in front of one. Maybe if I set the field on fire the smoke will drive them away. I fumbled like a madman for matches. Manuel opened the beehive. It was full of dope, all sprinkled out on these slide out trays that were piled up to the top of the beehive. Manuel began to pull out tray after tray, look, sniff, and open another one. At last he found one that suited him.

"Here. Take a look. It was picked the day before yesterday. Is a little wet still but I have none drier. Maybe you like to smoke some, eh?"

His hand swooped down and grabbed up a handful of leaves. He reached into his pocket and drew out a Sherlock Holmes pipe. Then he stuffed a good fistful of leaves into the bowl and lit it with a fat silver lighter.

"Ahh. Is very good," he said between mouthfuls.

He passed the pipe over to Eric who nearly couldn't hang on to it. Two hands, Eric. He got a big hit. Me next. I inhaled. Give the pipe to Carlos. Exhale. Good, Dave, good.

We finished the bowful, barely. Well, at least Eric and I barely finished it. Manuel and Carlos were busy piling grass into large plastic bags. Manuel weighed the bags on a rusty metal scale that stuck out from the side of the beehive.

When he finished weighing the bags, Manuel tied the tops of them and placed them side by side in front of us. He stood there expectantly.

"How much?" asked Eric.

Manuel pulled at the thing of hair on his chin and looked up into the sky.

"Well," he said, "Maybe we make a deal, eh?"

"Uh, wait a second. What kind of deal?" asked Eric.

Manuel began to snigger a really dirty sounding snigger.

"Oh, you don't trust me, eh? I don't have to sell you the marijuana, you know." Manuel was mad.

Continued on p. 12

The Great Marijuana War (continued)

"I don't think he thought you meant any kind of a deal that wasn't cool, Manuel," I said. "It's just that this whole trip has been kind of a hassle and to have something go wrong now would really flip us out."

Manuel mulled it over and looked up.

"Ok. I tell you what. Seventy-five dollars a key. OK with you?"

Eric didn't say a word. He reached into his pocket and pulled out our bread, counted off the money and gave it to Manuel, picked up a bag and began to walk away. I grabbed the other bag and followed him. He began to mutter when I caught up to him.

"That fat bastard had a lot of nerve wanting to 'make a deal', whatever that means. We had the price all set before we even left Newton. You know what we ought to do is wring Carlos' neck on the way back. That'd fix the little greaser."

"Watch it," I hissed. "Carlos is right behind us. He'll hear you and then we'll be in real trouble. Know what they do to people they don't like down here? Take all their bones out, squish what's left into bricks and sell them for hash. You wouldn't want to end up as a six dollar street gram, would you?"

"Wonder if I'd be any good. As hash that is," Eric said. "Hand me your bag and I'll lay it into the jeep."

Carlos came sauntering up to the jeep, climbed in and we began the drive back down the riverbed. Eric got to be the right eye this time only he didn't pay a hell of a lot of attention to what he was doing because we had a flat tire on his side. Carlos got really pissed. He jumped out of the jeep and began swearing his ass off in Spanish. He walked around to the flat tire and kicked it and called it all kinds of names. Then he told us that we'd have to fix it because he had a bad back and couldn't bend over. Eric and I were so blown we had no idea how to fix a flat, especially on some crazy kind of Mexican jeep. But we got it figured out, it took us awhile, and while we worked in the hot sun, Carlos was lying on the edge of the river in the shade smoking a joint. Carlos looked funny smoking his long, skinny joints. For one thing, his eyes just about disappeared when he got high. I don't know how he even managed to walk without bumping into anything, let alone drive a jeep.

He knew we were watching him and talking about him because when we got the tire fixed he flipped a quarter at us as he climbed into his seat. Eric went into a slow burn when Carlos did that. I sat back and waited for something funny to happen, because I was sure something would.

Something did. Carlos stopped at a junky little gas station on the way back into town, and while the guy was pouring the gas in, Carlos went to take a leak. This was all Eric needed. Now, just about everyone around there has a horse, and this gas station guy was no exception. He kept his in a stall that hung off the side of the station. Eric leaped out of his seat, bounded over to the stall, grabbed a handful of horse shit and jumped back into the jeep before you could say 'Acapulco Gold.' Horse manure is nice and soft and you can practically mold it. Eric rolled a joint out of it.

Carlos came sauntering back to the jeep from the men's room and hoisted himself up into the seat. He paid the guy, and we drove out of the yard. Eric pulled the joint out of his pocket and held a match to the end of it to light it. Carlos glanced over at the way Eric was trying to light the joint, made an impatient move, and snatched it out of Eric's hand and put it into his own mouth. Eric had a match to it almost before Carlos got it to his lips. Carlos took a big suck on it and made a horrible face. He began smacking his lips and spitting. When that didn't seem to help he stopped the jeep and grabbed a handful of leaves off a tree and munched on them. Finally he threw up and passed out.

"Christ," I said. "Suppose you hurt him?"

"I doubt it," replied Eric. "He's probably only sick because he finally realized what was in the joint. Come on. Let's drive him back to the hotel."

We put Carlos in the back with the dope and drove the rest of the way into town. We left him in the jeep and put the dope in the Duster. Then we got out of there.

To be continued

THE
DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM

announces the beginning of its 1971-1972 season and presents

its first speaker

Mr. JOSEPH HELLER

author of Catch-22 and We Bombed in New Haven

"An Evening with Joe Heller"
will be presented

Tuesday, Sept. 14, S.U. Ballroom, 8:00 p.m.

Coffee hour following the lecture in the Colonial Lounge

University Library Hours

Schedule of Library hours, September 10-December 21, 1871

Goodell Library
Monday-Friday	8:30 a.m.-12:00 midnight
Saturday	8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Sunday	2:00 p.m.-12:00 midnight
Exceptions: October 9	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
October 10	Closed
October 11	2:00 p.m.-12:00 midnight
October 23	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
October 24	Closed
October 25	2:00 p.m.-12:00 midnight
November 24	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
November 25	Closed
November 26 & 27	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Business Administration
Monday-Thursday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. 7:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Friday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday & Sunday	Closed
Education
Monday-Thursday	8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Friday & Saturday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday	2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Mark's Meadow Children's Library
Monday-Friday	8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.
Saturday & Sunday	Closed
Labor Relations Research Center*
Monday-Thursday	9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m. 7:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Friday	9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
Saturday & Sunday	Closed
Landscape Architecture (Beginning Sept. 13)*
Monday-Thursday	9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. 7:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Friday	9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday	Closed
Sunday	7:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Morrill*
Monday-Thursday	8:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
Friday & Saturday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday	2:00 p.m.-11:00 p.m.
Music*
Monday-Friday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. 7:00 p.m.-9:30 p.m.
Saturday	9:00 a.m.-12:00 noon
Sunday	2:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m. 7:00 p.m.-9:00 p.m.
Physical Sciences*
Monday-Saturday	8:00 a.m.-12:00 midnight
Sunday	12:00 noon-12:00 midnight
Physics*
Monday-Thursday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. 6:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Friday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday & Sunday	Closed
Plant & Soil Sciences*
French Hall, Bowditch Hall, and Stockbridge Hall
Monday-Friday	8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday & Sunday	Closed

Evening service in French Hall will be announced at a later date.

*Holday hours to be announced later.

AND A ONE, AND A TWO, and the UMass Marching Band parades across the intramural fields across from Boyden gymnasium every afternoon. They drill daily to prepare for the shows they put on at home football games. If anyone wants to get in step, band director Larry Weed encourages them to join the line.

Football Band To Explore Air Pollution At Halftime

By STEPHEN FINE

Anyone unfortunate enough to be changing their schedule at Boyden Gym yesterday undoubtedly mistook the UMass marching band for the football team. For under the blazing hot sun of the afternoon, the band counted cadence, systematically and performed their manuevers.

Under the stern direction of Larry Weed,the 100 piece band drilled in preparation for UMass's first home game on September 25. In the two years he has directed, Dr. Weed has tried to make the band's halftime appearances more exciting.

"We are working on original marching innovations that encompass a very fast "razzle dazzle" style," he said. "Our performances are becoming more relevent as well as entertaining. For example this year we're planning halftimes on air pollution, and songs from Jesus Christ Superstar. There's no band better than us in New England."

It is unfortunate that due to budget cuts, the band can't attend away football games. "We play a very important part in the morale of the team," Dr. Weed maintained. "Last year the football coaches said we won the Holy Cross game for them. If we had gone to Buffalo with them, we probably would have beaten them too."

According to Carl Gordon, manager of the band, students are always welcome to join. "We need the moral and physical support of the student body," he said.

Marvin Daehler, assistant to Dr. Weed, added, "The biggest advantage of marching is the sense of unity and responsibility one gets, as opposed to individuals in class. It is a good social experience too, since students with many different interests play here."

Despite financial difficulty the UMass marching band is planning to spend 3 weeks touring Europe this summer. The highlight of the trip will be appearing on national television in Sweden. To indicate the dedication and determination of the band, it is interesting to note that the entire trip will be financed by its members.

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

Death Being Investigated

Investigation is continuing into the death Tuesday of Joseph W. Pelis, Sr., 55, of 204 Riverside Dr., Hadley, who died of a crushed chest and other injuries when a tractor flipped over as he worked alone in the coal yard behind the Student Center garage.

At the time of the morning accident he was driving a loader carrying coal from a freight car to a storage bin. He was working at the East Pleasant St. sites a spokesman said. The accident is under investigation by UMass police and the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Pelis was born in Montague and had lived in Hadley and Amherst for most of his life. He was an equipment operator in the maintenance department.

Munchy's

One of two new stores on campus selling food, stationery and various other odds and ends to students. They are in Hampden and Worcester dining commons.

ACADEMIC INFO & ADVISING

Visit the CASIAC
student counselors,
E-24 Machmer,
or call 5-1583 anytime.

SOUTHWEST PATRIOTS presents TWO BIGGIES on FRIDAY and SATURDAY

8:00 P.M. "GETTING STRAIGHT"

10:00 P.M. "THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT"

Admission: 75¢ for BOTH FLICKS!

FRIDAY MIDNIGHT SPECIAL

"THE BLOB"

Admission: 25¢

Berkshire Dining Commons, Southwest

Democratic Reform Com.- No Favorite Sons; Roll Open

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Democratic party reform commission issued a packet of proposals Thursday aimed at streamlining the presidential nominating convention in 1972.

The Democratic National Committee, which meets here Oct. 13 and 14, will take up the commission's proposals to revise pre-convention committee activities.

Other proposals would eliminate strictly alphabetical roll calls at the convention and bar "favorite son" presidential nominations. These will go directly to the convention's Rules Committee next year.

Rep. James G. O'Hara of Michigan, who heads the commission that developed the proposals in two years of public hearings and meetings, predicted they would be adopted. Party sources said National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien supports them.

Some controversy is likely, however, over proposals that would cut representation of small states from two to one on convention committees while increasing that of the larger states from two to possibly 10.

Last February the national committee, which has two members from each state, overturned the commission's delegate apportionment formula taking many votes from small states and giving them to large ones in favor of one making a less drastic change.

The action is now being challenged in the courts and until the case is settled the states won't know how many votes they will have in the 1972 convention.

Although it altered the O'Hara Commission's apportionment proposal, the national committee did approve its proposed credentials procedures, strengthening the rights of challengers, and the broad reforms in delegate selection developed by Fraser's commission when it was headed by Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota.

IRA Leader Arrested On Rejection From U.S.

DUBLIN (AP) - Irish Republic police arrested Joe Cahill, the mild-looking leader of Northern Ireland's rebel army, on his return Thursday from a frustrated attempt to enter the United States.

His arrest for interrogation appeared to herald a new get-tough policy on the illegal Irish Republican Army in the Irish Republic, long a haven for IRA terrorists operating in Northern Ireland.

The regular Irish army held one of its own officers and questioned others on the religious and political troubles which have wracked neighboring Northern Ireland for two years.

The developments touched off immediate speculation that the apparent crackdown grew out of Prime Minister Jack Lynch's two-day visit to London this week for talks with Britain's Edward Heth.

Heath has recalled the British Parliament from summer recess to talk over the Irish issue. The House of Commons will debate Sept. 22 and 23, the House of Lords Sept. 22.

Dublin police said Cahill, picked up as he stepped from his plane, was being held under the Offenses Against the State Act.

The law permits police to hold the 51-year-old republican for 48 hours of questioning.

Cahill heads the IRA's extremist Provisional faction, which advocates the use of violence to reunite the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland, now ruled as a province of Britain. He was refused admittance to the United States on grounds he failed to report a 1942 conviction for killing a policeman.

While legal maneuvers over his arrest went on, another British soldier died in Hannahstown, Northern Ireland, a village six miles outside Belfast. The soldier was defusing a bomb planted in the doorway of a gospel hall.

The dead ordnance captain was the 101st victim of the fighting that has beset Northern Ireland for the last two years. He was among British troops dispatched to restore order.

The British troops moved cautiously Thursday, awaiting the outburst of intensified guerrilla warfare threatened by the republicans. IRA Provisional ultimatums gave until midnight Wednesday night for dissolution of the provincial government of Northern Ireland, saying terrorism would be stepped up if the government remained in place.

Cahill predicted to newsmen aboard his jet from New York that escalated terrorism would come.

Back Page News!
Unemployment to Drop-Dick

WASHINGTON (AP) - The administration expects unemployment to drop substantially in the coming months-but it is budgeting about the same amount for unemployment compensation this year as last, Budget Director George P. Shultz said Thursday.

His testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee left Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and other members saying they were confused.

"How much improvement in employment can we really expect as a result of what we are doing?" Mills asked. "If we are going to spend so much on unemployment compensation, then is it that what we are asked to do is only to prevent a worsening? ... If we are merely going to maintain the present level, is this really enough?"

Shultz replied that President Nixon's proposed repeal of the automobile excise tax, speedup of personal income tax exemptions, and restoration of the investment credit would all be stimulants and summed up: "I would expect unemployment to be below 5 per cent by next July 1."

The latest figure, for Sept. 3, was 6.1 per cent.

Under questioning by Mills, Shultz said the unemployment trust fund paid out about $6.1 billion in benefits for jobless workers during the year ending last June 30. He said the administration originally budgeted about $1 billion less for the present year, but that it is making a supplemental request to bring the figure back to last year's level.

READ US!

Open meeting for entire News department and anyone interested in radio. At our studios in Marston Hall 7:30 Sunday night.

WMUA 91.1 FM

free form / informative radio

PROGRAM COUNCIL presents

"ANNE OF THE THOUSAND DAYS"

SUNDAY 12 SEPT.

S U BALLROOM

DON'T LET IT BRING YOU DOWN... YOU CAN STILL GET TO SEE

!! D.J. !!

(even if you're not 21)

TOMORROW NIGHT FROM 8:30 – 1:00

appearing in Southwest at NUMBERNINENUMBERNINENUMBERNINE

(Berkshire Dining Commons)

★ ★ ★ SPECIAL ADDED ATTRACTION ★ ★ ★

BLACK MAGIC featuring NATALIE COLE

AND, AS IF THIS WASN'T ALREADY A GREAT DEAL, THE CHARGE IS ONLY 50c A PERSON COME ON DOWN AND JOIN US FOR AN OUTASIGHT TIME!

Singing ● Dancing ● Snacks ● Liquid Refreshments

SPONSORED BY S. W. PATRIOTS

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

1969 MGC-GT, excellent car, must sell, will sacrifice, $1999 firm. 546-4836. tfp-13

Triumph TR4A 1965, good mech. cond., rebuilt eng., repair papers, needs some body work. Around $500. Call Paul 665-3256. tfp-10

1963 Chevy Belaire. Good condition. Best offer. Call Pat. Days: 5-2584, evenings: 253-5794. tfp-10

For Sale, 67 VW Bus. Excellent cond., no rust, 48,000 mi. $900. 253-7438. tfp/10-15

68 V.W. Kombi. Good condition. Lights need fixing. Want $300. Contac Charlie 546-5255. tfp-10,13

65 VW Beetle. Excellent condition 256-8230. tfp-17

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sel, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or Jumbo $49.95. immed. deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst. tfp-22

Tag Sale — Clothes, books, furniture, funky stuff. Saturday, Sept. 11th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., 34 South Whitney St., in town. tfp-11

Excellent new FM Tuner, $15.00; 16 inch portable TV, $70.00; new electric Presto Broiler Bake Oven, $15.00. Call 256-8432. tfp-14

Dorm size refrigerator, 3.3 cu. ft., 4 months old. Why rent when you can own one? $75 (new $96.) Call 665-3944. 9-9, 10

Small kitchen table 24x36 w/2 chairs. 24 inch kitchen sink on metal base. Jacobson reel mower, self propelled. 323-7046 after 6 p.m. tfp-16

Tag Sale - East Walnut St., Belchertown, moving. 323-7829. Furniture, household, toys, baby, etc. 10-4 Saturday, September 11. 9-10

One Hollywood couch and matching sofa, both in excellent condition, $65 or best offer. Call Garr 5-9081 or evenings at 367-9513. tfp-13

Dorm or apartment size refrigerator, brand new; gorgeous Empire waisted wedding gown, Princess style. Best offer. 104 Pufften Village. tfp-14

Rogers drum set, 4 pcs. plus cymb. plus hdwre. $250 or best offer. Good condition. Call Jim 586-1654. tfp-11

Sleep on a waterbed tonight. All sizes and all frames. $19.95 and up. 5 yr. guarantee. Call anytime Jerry 256-8370. tfp-16

DUMP NIXON '72 - lg. red, white and blue decal (emphasis on "DUMP") $1. Dump Nixon '72, Box 97, Colleez Park, MD 20740. tfp-15

MISCELLANEOUS

Learn Silver jewelry making! New course for beginners starts Sept. 15. Call 253-7977 for details now. tfp-10

APARTMENT WANTED

Sr. girl needs room desperately. Will share expenses and help w. furn. Contact Ruth c/o Lisa Hollin, 401 Melville. tfp-15

ROOMMATES WANTED

Couple wanted to share large new two bdrm. apt. in Belchertown, Woodsy location. Leave name and number in Machmer E-21. tfp-11

MUSICIAN WANTED

Singer needed to front versatile group (rock, ballads, old standards.) Must be experienced. Call Steve 256-8061 tfp-12

No Surprises In Nixon Speech; Profit-Taking Surges

NEW YORK (AP)—Renewed profit-taking took its toll on the stock market Thursday when President Nixon's economic address to Congress failed to include any surprises for investors.

Brokers said investor attitude continued to be positive and that profit taking was normal and constructive. They said the market appeared to be slowly digesting the good gains of the past three sessions.

Profit-taking developed in sessions earlier this week, but the Dow Jones industrial average managed small gains anyway.

Thursday, however, the Dow average of 30 industrial stocks gave in to the pressure and closed down 5.04 at 915.89.

Trading in most issues was fairly quiet, but a large number of big block transactions helped boost volume.

Big Board turnover of 15.79 million shares compared with Wednesday's volume of 14.23 million shares, while declines outpaced advanced 926 to 575 among the 1,681 Big Board issues traded.

The New York Stock Exchange index of more than 1,300 common stocks closed down 0.28 at 55.76.

The Associated Press 60-stock average lost 1.5, closing at 334.9. Industrials were down 2.3, rails were off .4, and utilities dropped 1.3.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index dipped .03 to 25.66. Volume of 4.2 million shares was a touch higher than the 4.1 million shares traded Wednesday. Of the 1,153 Amex issues traded, 513 advanced.

Gillette, down 7/8 to 41 1/4 on 456,000 shares, was the most actively traded Big Board stock.

Notices

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST: Multivision Jesus rock show-- Mahar Auditorium 8 PM Friday and Saturday. Light show and rock band, Newine from Ithaca, NY.

HILLEL: Sunday bagel and lox brunch at 4:00. Campus Center Cafeteria. Friday evening services will be held at the Hillel office tonight at 7:30 PM, rm 420 Student Union.

INTERNATIONAL FOLK DANCING: First meeting for the new year will be at the UMass Campus Center 3rd level, Friday, Sept. 10 7:30 to Midnight. Beginners welcome. Teaching till 9:30.

MAROON KEYS-SCROLLS: Schedule problems? Step by our counseling desk outside the bookstore between 10 and 11 AM and 1 to 3 PM Monday--Friday, sponsored by the Maroon Keys and Scrolls..

REVELERS: The Revelers will sponsor a dance-concert tonight in the Campus Center Aud. at 8 PM featuring "Rush". Donation: 25c.

ROADRUNNER FILM FESTIVAL: Roadrunner Film Festival, Saturday, Sept. 11, Gorman House Backyard, 8 PM.

ENGAGEMENTS: Mara Becker '73 of Coolidge to Matthew Fine '71 State University of New York at Oswego.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Capricorn appears to grow younger as years progress. These persons often succeed late in life; some seem to have discovered proverbial fountain of youth. The Capricorn woman adds to her charm as she attains maturity. The Capricorn man realizes many of his hopes, ambitions as he advances in age.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't act out of desperation; means if you are not sure--do nothing. Accent on mixups connected with neighbors, relatives, short journeys. Key is to gather additional information. Evaluate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money affairs may appear to have lead feet. Means transactions, deals, agreements are slow, delayed, postponed or canceled. Utilize contingency plans; put alternative methods to test. Don't hang on to lost cause.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't take others for granted, including marriage or business partner. Keep weather eye on public relations. Means be sure to protect and enhance image. Those with opposing views apt to be very vocal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Work procedures subject to radical change. Gemini, Virgo individuals are involved. Be flexible; stress versatility. Give free rein to intellectual curiosity. You get answers by asking questions. Do so.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be diplomatic in making requests. Hopes, wishes are emphasized. But you attain them through gentle approach. Forcing methods now will not suffice. Taurus, Libra persons play key roles. Harmonize domestic relationships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Business duties may conflict with home responsibilities. Pace yourself. Avoid making foolish commitments. Some who promise advancement do so without authority. Pisces figures prominently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Hold off on long-range commitments. Journeys should be delayed, if practical. Current responsibilities need attention. Distant opportunities should not be permitted to obscure current view.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish rather than begin; complete projects, assignments. Study Taurus message. Don't permit freeloader to get you into financial dilemma. Listen sympathetically, but take care of yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): See in light of reality. Romantic notions are fine--if you are not led up the garden path. Message should become increasingly clear. Leo is apt to be involved. Do some personal investigating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): One who confides problem merely is asking rhetorical questions. Avoid becoming inextricably involved. See all sides of controversy, but strive to remain detached. Keep recent health resolutions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Activities expand; social opportunities are on upswing. Lunar emphasis is on how you cope with emotions. Member of opposite sex expresses needs. Make conciliatory gesture. Display humor.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Recent move, change proves beneficial. Now you can evaluate ambitions, goals. Be aware of details, clauses. Check apparent minor points. Take time to be thorough. One at top is a close observer.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you will find that stance of greater independence now pays dividends. Leaning on advice of others doesn't wear well; take initiative. You are an original, creative thinker. You usually are confident; members of the opposite sex find you fascinating. You love to entertain--you are, in fact, a better host than a guest. New starts in new directions are featured. Don't permit past errors to block current progress.

Name one thing that hasn't gone up since 1950.

1.

Try. Try hard.

The only thing we can think of is what we make. The Swingline "Tot 50" Stapler. 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

And it still comes with 1000 free staples and a handy carrying pouch. It staples, tacks and mends. It's unconditionally guaranteed. It's one of the world's smallest staplers.

And it's the world's biggest seller. Could be that's why it hasn't gone up in price in 21 years.

If you're interested in something a little bigger, our Cub Desk Stapler and Cub Hand Stapler are only $1.98. Both Tot and Cub Staplers are available at Stationery, Variety and College Bookstores.

The Swingline "Tot 50" 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

If you can name something else that hasn't gone up in price since 1950, let us know. We'll send you a free Tot Stapler with 1000 staples and a vinyl pouch. Enclose 25¢ to cover postage and handling.

Swingline®
Dept. F
32-00 Skillman Ave., Long Island City, N.Y. 11101

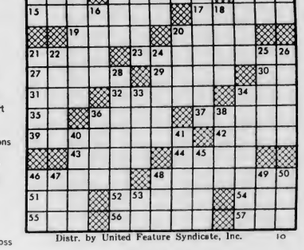
Government Proposes Mattress Heat Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government proposed its first flammability standard for mattresses Wednesday in a move to reduce death, injury and property destruction caused by smoking in bed.

The standard is based on the ability of mattresses to withstand the heat of lighted cigarettes. Testing would be largely self-administered by manufacturers, although noncompliance complaints from consumers could bring the government into play.

Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans set the proposed standards of evidence gathered by the National Bureau of Standards that mattress fires are a main cause of many hotel-fire disasters.

Comments from the public will be received on the proposal for the next 30 days. It could be near the end of the year before the standard becomes effective.



Under the proposal, three cigarettes would be burned on specified mattress locations both on the bare mattress and between two sheets on the mattress. If a mattress ignites during the test, it fails.

COLLEGETOWN Shape Up BARBERS 8:00-5:30 DAILY ON YOUR WAY UPTOWN 253-9884

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

SAC FOOLS OAT
EGO OFFAL IRE
CAMEL TRAILED
IDLE DIN DECEIVE NEVER
RE NEEDS EIRE
EARS SNIPS ERA
AITS SLICE OD
MEALS ERASERS
ALE ERAL RESPOND RUMOR
ELA POISE ERE DIM ESSED RAT

ACROSS

1 Likely
4 Pry nosily
9 Definite article
12 Weight of India
13 Might
14 Beam
15 Enlisted man
17 Wipe out
19 Poison
20 Imitated
21 Stupefy
23 Intrigue
27 Fork prongs
29 At this place
30 French article
31 Man's nickname
32 The ones here
34 Edible seed
35 Note of scale
36 District in Germany
37 Lance
39 Pacts
42 Limbs
43 River in Asia
44 Tip
46 Generate
48 Cloy
51 Everyone
52 Choice part
54 Irritate
55 Cravat
56 Transactions
57 Brood of pheasants

DOWN

1 Snake
2 Through
3 Roman official
4 Reach across
5 Memoranda
6 Be in debt
7 Faroe Islands whirlwind
8 Makes ready
9 Barter
10 Possesses
11 Organ of sight
16 Weather indicator
18 Nerve network
20 War god
21 Begin
22 River in Italy
24 At that place
25 Flash
26 Periods of time
28 Laws
33 Filament
34 Have reference to
36 Identical
38 Buddhist dialect
40 King of birds
41 Declare
45 Suffix: adherents of
46 Flying mammal
47 Man's name
48 Yellow ocher
49 Attempt
50 Piece out
53 Note of scale

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 10

Gridders Set For Cornell

By MARTY KELLEY
MDC Staff

A couple of weeks of hard work will hopefully show their worth this Saturday afternoon in Ithaca, N.Y. as the UMass gridmen dress rehearse for the Maine game with a scrimmage at Cornell at 1 p.m.

For the Redmen it will be their first test of outside competition following scrimmages on Saturday and Wednesday. "We're very excited about playing Cornell in the first game on their new poly turf," reiterated Coach MacPherson. "It's always a challenge to play against the caliber of Marinaro. This will be a dress rehearsal for the Maine game only we'll have paying customers in the stands."

To put it mildly, rookie mentor Dick MacPherson was quite worried early in the week. First of all Saturday's "scrimmage" was labeled the worst he could have expected. Besides poor field performance, the former Denver Bronco coach has been saddled with a host of costly pre-season injuries that may cast a threatening shadow on the opener at Orono, Sept. 18th.

However, Coach MacPherson was quite pleased with the progress made Wednesday. "Our line play was much crisper and sharper, noted MacPherson. "We're beginning to work our way towards a cohesive level that we'll so desperately need before we get to Orono."

The Daily Collegian
SPORTS

Injuries to key players have left the football staff in a bind. Co-captains John Hulecki (sore ribs) and Dennis Keating (internal bleeding) along with Angelo Dinardo (pulled hamstring), Dennis Gagnon (thigh operation) and Paul Metallo (hyperextension of the knee) have all been on the shelf.

When you consider that the starting halfbacks are none other than Dinardo and Metallo, you can bet coach MacPherson has reason to worry. At any rate the forenamed will be in the starting line-up at Ithaca and both Keating, Hulecki, and Gagnon will be ready for service.

MacPherson noted that those who are going to play at Maine have performed well to date. "But we'll be going with our "Maine" lineup against Cornell except for the parts that are still at Vic Keedy's shop," exclaimed the rookie coach.

Another reason that has prompted the team toward its preseason cohesiveness is the fact the Redmen are rested. With the start of school, the gruelling grind of double sessions has been abandoned. "The fact that the boys can now relax and watch the girls in the mornings, has helped a lot" quipped MacPherson.

But if anything has helped to make things more relaxing, it would have to be the poise, desire and potential of starting quarterback Piel Pennington that takes preference. The 6'5, 195 lb. Soph transfer from New Canaan, Ct. resembles former UM great Greg Landry in quality and quantity. It's a consoling thought to have Pennington to start your program for he has a three term license being only a Soph.

"He's like a thoroughbred," claimed the new coach. He's just going to get better and better.

The curtain on the MacPherson era in UMass football is soon to be drawn. The prelude at Ithaca should offer all types of forecast, but when the initial whistle at Orono starts it all, you know the Redmen will make the newcomer a winner.

Redman Ramblings--After the Cornell scrimmage, MacPherson should be positive on his starting lineup for Maine. "Starting lineups are made on the field, not in the football office," told MacPherson. After a workout Friday morning, the squad will bus up to Ithaca at 11 a.m. and practice at 6:30 p.m. in New York...The running of Junior Paul Metallo and the punting of Jack Onell have been early season plusses...Baseball star Marc Palau has just joined the football squad as a kicking specialist... MacPherson was pleased at his initiative and willingness to help the football team...Most Ivy League schools have wealthy alumni and Cornell is no exception...The truth of the new poly turf can be traced to a generous grad who thought Marinaro should have a nice backyard to operate in, so he promptly purchased the product.

BREAK-NECK SPEED—Shown here in action against Boston College the University of Massachusetts Redman football team will travel to Cornell for an exhibition on Saturday. Head coach Dick MacPherson hopes the scrimmage will help prepare the team for the season opener at Maine on September 25th.

Howe Bids NHL Farewell

DETROIT (AP)-It was hard to tell whether they were tears welling up in Clarence Campbell's eyes or just the television lights glistening in them.

But the president of the National Hockey League would not hide his gloom at the crowded, noisy but sorrowful luncheon Thursday at Olympia Stadium that formally marked the retirement of Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings.

"Inevitably it will be treated as a sad day," Campbell said prior to the introduction of Howe at a head table filled with the Who's Who of hockey.

"It is a sad day.

"Never in the history of hockey has there been such an obvious and dramatic loss.

"...Hockey can never repay its debt of gratitude to Gordie Howe."

Bruce Norris, president and owner of the Red Wings wasted little time introducing the legendary No. 9-the man called "Mr. Hockey."

Gordie came to the mass of 10 microphones and a dozen tape recorders and said, smiling into the 10 television newsreel cameras: "I'm usually a calm individual but I'm nervous as hell right now."

Howe, 43-year-old right wing who owns pages of NHL records, had revealed Wednesday night to The Associated Press that the scheduled news conference was to announce his retirement. But the luncheon formalized it.

"I like to use the word retired rather than quit," he said smiling.

"The wildest dreams I ever had would never have equalled what's happened to me over the past years," he said.

Howe had one year remaining on a two-year contract calling for a salary of $100,000 a year. That second year "is kicked out the window," he said.

"I will be making considerably less now than what I made as a player," he said, but added that a major factor in accepting his new role as a vice president in Norris' insurance company is that his wife will be able to travel with him on business trips and "I really wanted my weekends."

His capacity as vice president gives him responsibilities in some of Norris' interests outside the realm of hockey.

"I scored my last goal here in Detroit against Chicago," he recalled. "Nobody knew it, but I took that puck and gave it to Colleen. I told her this is the puck from my last goal."

Contributing reasons for his retirement were an arthritic left wrist and a wish from his recently deceased mother that he quit the game.

Howe's children and brothers were present at the Olympia Room Lounge as was Sid Abel, long-time friend of Howe, and former Wings' Coach and General Manager Ted Lindsay, who was a member of the famed Production Line which included Abel and Howe and Bill Gadsby, former Wings' coach.

Ironically, if not deliberately, Thursday was the ninth day of the ninth month.

Final Exhibitions On Tap for NFL

(AP) - American Conference teams head into the final weekend of exhibition action Friday night leading in head-to-head clashes with their National Conference counterparts-a rivalry that still is tinged with the flavor of the old AFL-NFL battles.

Those old NFL teams currently trail in inter-conference action with nine out of the 13 windup games crossing conference lines. The AFC goes into the final weekend with a 25-23-2 won-lost record after winning eight of 11 games last week.

The week's action brings the curtain down on the second exhibition season involving interconference action. The NFC won the pre-season series 28-21-1 last year and posted a 27-12-1 record during the 1970 regular season.

Green Bay plays Buffalo in one of two inter-conference games scheduled for Friday night. Cleveland, AFC, is at St. Louis, NFC, in the other. The third game matches the New York Jets and New England at Memphis, Tenn.

Four out of five games Saturday night and three out of four games Sunday also spotlight inter-conference action.

Saturday it's Atlanta, NFC, at San Diego, AFC, Cincinnati, AFC, at Washington, NFC; Kansas City, AFC, at Dallas, NFC, and Miami, AFC, at Minnesota, NFC. Sunday its Denver, AFC, at Chicago, NFC, Pittsburgh, AFC, at New York, NFC, and Houston, AFC, at New Orleans, NFC.

The other two games are Baltimore vs. Oakland at Jacksonville, Fla., Saturday and Detroit at Philadelphia Sunday night in a game that will be nationally televised by CBS starting at 9 p.m., EDT.

The week's action began Thursday night with San Feancisco meeting Los Angeles.

The surprising Bills, who upended Detroit in inter-conference action last week, have built a 3-2 pre-season record behind the quarterbacking of Dennis Shaw and the running and pass-catching of O.J. Simpson and could wind up with the best record in the AFC East by beating the Packers.

Dan Devine's Packers have won only one of five but against Cincinnati last week put together their best offensive display with Dave Hampton gaining 99 yards on the ground and Denny Anderson 83. Green Bay, however, has been slowed this week by flu attacks that curtailed practice for several players.

The Browns are coming off their first victory, achieved with Bill Nelsen starting at quarterback over sophomore Mike Phipps. Nelsen hit on nine of 14 passes for 193 yards in a 13-7 victory over the Giants. Phipps had been handed the No. 1 job but has been erratic during exhibition action.

The Cardinals, with a 1-2-1 record, have allowed just 73 points but have been unable to mount a consistent offense and have scored only 67 points. Jim Hart is expected to start at quarterback but Pete Beathard should see action too.

Al Woodall, held out for one week with a chip fracture of the left wrist, will be back at quarterback for the Jets. Jim Plunkett should see considerable action for the Patriots after completing 17 of 29 passes for 187 yards against Atlanta last week.

1971 Football Schedule

Sept. 18 at Maine
Sept. 25 Dartmouth
Oct. 9 at Boston University
Oct. 16 Rhode Island
Oct. 23 at Connecticut
Oct. 30 Vermont
Nov. 6 Holy Cross
Nov. 13 at New Hampshire
Nov. 20 at Boston College

Redmen On Radio

Amherst, Mass.—University of Massachusetts athletic director Warren P. McGuirk today announced the formation of a state-wide radio network which will broadcast the nine game Redman football schedule this fall. According to McGuirk this network will be one of the most comprehensive state networks in the East encompassing the entire state's population.

WTTT in Amherst will originate the weekly broadcasts with Ted Peene doing the play by play narration. Participating stations that will provide the blanket coverage of the state include WCOP, Boston, WNEB, Worcester, WACE, Springfield, and WBRK-FM, Pittsfield.

Sport Notices

Intramural touch football rosters and health forms must be received by the Intramural Office no later than 5 p.m. Monday, September 13.

*****

Anyone interested in officiating touch football contact the Intramural Office.

*****

Candidates for the Women's Field Hockey team should report to the WOPE field for tryouts on Sept. 13, 14, and 15 at 4:00 p.m.

Hatfield Supports Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Mark O. Harfield, R-Ore., announced Thursday his support for legislation to permit merger of the two major professional basketball leagues.

The bill by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., and John V. Tunney, D-Calif., is pending before the Senate Judiciary Committee where hearings have been set for Sept. 21. Hatfield joined as a cosponsor.

Merger of the National and American basketball associations, Harfield said, would increase the growth of the sport and "bring an end to the current rookie salary wars."

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather:
The hurricane season is upon us.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 4 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS Monday, September 13, 1971

Tippo - Where Are My Freshmen?

(Editor's note-The other afternoon we (the editors) were sitting around the office listening to a short-wave radio when we picked up the audio portion of a CBS news broadcast by Walter Cronkite which was originating from Chancellor Tippo's garden where our esteemed Chancellor was holding his annual Freshmen welcome. Following is the transcribed report filed by Cronkite.)

Jeremiah M. Allen

Cronkite-It's a beautiful day here in Amherst, cloudy, but cool. We're here for University of Massachusetts Chancellor Oswald Tippo's annual freshmen welcome, where Tippo throws open his world famous gardens and greets the freshmen as they prepare for a tough year at the University. My partner at the scene is Ronaldi Pondhaven, who is with our mobile camera at the campus pond, waiting to flash word to us when the freshmen start on their way to Tippo's house from Southwest.

Ronaldi, are you there?

Pondhaven-Yes, Walter, I'm here by the gorgeous campus pond with its world famous swans. These swans, as you know, are the only swans in the world that are able to polka. Right now though, they are blissfully circling the pond, oblivious to the hustle and bustle of this burgeoning University. Over here to my right you can see the new University Library, the tallest library in the world. And back there is the controversial Campus Center. Directly in front of us is the new Fine Arts Center and the Littlefield Memorial Bridge which the freshmen will have to cross on their way to the Chancellor's house. Walter...

Cronkite-Thank you, Ronaldi. The atmosphere is electric up here on the Hill, as Chancellor Tippo and his staff await the first flood of freshmen to pour in. The Scrolls are busy handing out name tags, I can see various student leader types roaming around. The Student Activities people are sitting in a circle, apparently not paying too much attention to anybody else. Vice-chancellor Campion and his wife are making the rounds, obviously having a good time. With them are Dean and Mrs. Hoopes, new to the Amherst campus. Dr. Bromery is here, as well as Seymour Shapiro, just back from a year in Europe. We've gotten a signal from Ronaldi. There may be some action by the bridge. Ronaldi--

Pondhaven-Yes, Walter it looks as if the crowds may be on their way. Four freshmen just came across the bridge and crossed North Pleasant St. I'll keep you posted.

Cronkite-Thank you, Ronaldi. Well, the dignitaries who are assembled here are fairly buzzing at the news that four freshmen are apparently headed this way. Joel Stoneham and a crew have unloaded the first of four tons of cookies and 900 gallons of punch. I've noticed various MDC people wandering with a dazed look on their faces. The excitement is obviously too much for some of them. Wait a minute, it looks like those four freshmen have finally arrived. Here they come now. They're shaking hands with Tippo and Mrs. Tippo. The crowd is giving them an ovation. I'll try to get a word with them. Excuse me, girls. How does it feel to be the only freshmen to come to the welcome?

Freshmen-What welcome? We're trying to find our way back to the Quad.

Dean of Students
William F. Field

Directors of Public Affairs
Daniel M. Melley

On The Inside:

- SUG Board Upset See page three
- Jean Wiley On Angela Davis See page three
- Steal This Newspaper See page ten

Hampshire Committed To New Directions

By BOB CALLAHAN

The directions which Hampshire College is taking this year, along with an explanation of the college's more significant new programs, were discussed at a press conference held at Hampshire last Friday morning.

Speaking before the local press were Dr. Charles R. Longsworth, Hampshire's new president, and members of the faculty and student body of the new institution which opened its doors last year. Hampshire College, an institution committed to new designs for learning, is an independent, experimenting, co-educational, liberal arts institution located on Rte 116 about three miles from Amherst Center.

President Longsworth, successor to Franklin Patterson Hampshire's first President, told the local press that Hampshire values it's programs very much. At Hampshire, the students are of great importance and they participate heavily in the creation of the college's programs. "What we have and will have is a result of devotion of the faculty and students." Longsworth said. In continuing, he cited the devotion and work of Franklin Patterson who contributed greatly to the development of Hampshire.

Speaking about Hampshire's faculty, Longsworth said that it takes second place to none in the valley. "They have a profound interest in college exploration and the under graduates," continued Longsworth.

Next on the morning agenda was a discussion of Hampshire's new programs. Jeff Maguire, Hampshire student, discussed the college's unique Environmental Quality Program. In this program, Hampshire students are pursuing a goal of the school: combining education with public service. The programs' first project was a trip down the historic Concord River, following the course taken by Henry David Thoreau. The group, which was accompanied by Dr. Coppinger, who designed the program, charted and checked plant and animal life along the river as compared to the time when Thoreau lived. Water samples taken by the group indicated a high bacteria count as a result of the dumping of human wastes into the river.

This year the group is pursuing a larger project in the city of Holyoke in cooperation with the Model Cities Program of Holyoke. Holyoke, like many of our cities, is facing many economic and environmental problems. The Environmental Quality Program is working with the residents of Holyoke to try to solve the problems facing the city.

Dr. Coppinger explained that students, when working in a project such as this, begin to realize that they can be an energy source to help solve problems-and members of society rather than a thorn in the flesh.

The students will participate in such programs as Clinical and Public Health Problems, waste disposal and Urban Ecology. Already, Holyoke has been provided with a $10,000 grant to assist the program conducted by Hampshire.

Another unique program conducted by the progressive institution of learning is called "The Red Barn Project." This project, which grew out of Professor Norton Juster's course on Man Made Environment, is giving students a chance to design and create their own environment. This course is perfectly suited to Hampshire's "learning through doing" philosophy and those taking part were given an introduction into the whole problem of architecture. The Red Barn is a century old barn on the campus which will be converted to a student union. The plans have been finalized, but due to financial problems the conversion to the student center has been held up.

The third and final program discussed was the Law program at Hampshire. It was described by the originator and director of the program, Lester Mazor, Hampshire's Henry R. Luce Professor of Law, as an unusual program. This summer five students of Hampshire's Law Program have participated in some phase of law. He plans to get together these people to share with others their experiences. Mazor said that this would probably be unusual in any other college.

In continuing, Mazor said that there are two law courses which are now being shaped by students. In closing he said that this program is the largest on campus due to external funding and it's large range of activities.

In the closing part of the conference, student Wendy Boullard told the group that she took a course in the history of punishment and as an outgrowth she wanted to find out what is going on today. She told the group of her experiences while working at the Hampshire County Jail. She said that this year the law Program at Hampshire will consist of three parts - seminars, work in prisons and speakers from prisons such as prisoners and corrections officers along with films and plays on prison life.

Friday morning's press conference showed that Hampshire is indeed a unique school and is a step in the right direction of continuing education.

Loader Says New Phone Books Are Coming

Registrar William Loder announced Friday that nearly half the local addresses and phone numbers in this year's Student Directory are incorrect.

He said that because of this, a supplement containing corrected addresses and phone numbers will be printed and should be available in about a month.

A lack of communications between the Registrar and the Housing Office was the cause of this error, according to Loder. At the time the directory was being compiled, the Housing Office files still listed last year's addresses and phone numbers. Consequently, the directory now reflects this error, Loder said.

Loder added that the supplement, which will contain only current addresses and phone numbers, will be a "sufficient solution" to the problem. He noted, however, that although $2000 of the $3180 printing costs of this year's directory was funded by the Resident Halls Telephone Trust Fund, it now appears that there will not be enough money left to distribute supplements to the resident hall phones.

The supplements will be available only with the directories sold at the University Store. The cost of the directory and supplement is tentatively set at $.75.

In the past, directories were published twice a semester to insure that addresses were updated during the year. These were published by the University Printing Facility, which was slower though less expensive Loder said. Directories were usually a month late in distribution. Loder said that one complete directory, printed faster at a higher cost would be more beneficial to students during the first few weeks after registration.

He also said that this year's problems will be eliminated in the future.

BUS SERVICE SCHEDULE

L.V. U-Mass. for No. Amherst - 8:24 a.m., 11:54, 12:54 p.m., 3:56, 6:01

L.V. U-Mass. for Amherst Center, Hadley and Northampton 7:31 a.m., 8:36, 10:01, 12:06 p.m., 1:06, 2:01, 4:09, 5:04, 6:14.

Connections at Northampton for Easthampton, Florence, Leeds, Haydenville and Williamsburg

L.V. U-Mass. for Worcester, Belchertown, Ware, Brookfields, Spencer and Leicester

Fridays: L.V. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 4:50 p.m.
Saturdays: L.V. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m.
Sundays: L.V. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 6:25 p.m.

For Tickets and Information
The Lobby Shoppe, Student Union Bldg. Tel. 545-2006

CHARTER A BUS
call our office for rates and arrangements Tel. 584-6481
Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.
Northampton, Mass.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545 2550 (news), 545 0344 (sports), and 549 1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods. Three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Soft Touch CARDS SAY WHAT YOU FEEL.

American Greetings The Fresh Idea Company

THE UNIVERSITY STORE
CAMPUS CENTER

SUG Board Upset Over Scanlon Affair

By JIM GOLD

So far as the Student Union Governing Board is concerned, "any conception of power is wrong" said Rocky Hodgson at a task force meeting to review the administration's reorganization of the Campus Center last summer that placed Gerry Scanlon as Director of the Campus Center, without the SUG Board being consulted, claims the so-called ruling board of the CC.

Saying that the move violated its constitution, the SUG board moved last summer to nullify the administration's actions and appoint the task force to make recommendations on the motions.

After an hour of discussion on what the role of the Board is and what it should be, the task force decided to investigate the following questions as its agenda: 1. Do we need/want reorganization? 2. What is the definition of the CC Director, Business Manager, student activities director, and Campus Center? 3. How should the CC reorganize and why did the administration reorganize the way it did? and 4. Who's boss?

On the task force is Hodgson, Bob Nims, Lisa Mandell, Guy and Vida Ross, Paul Bigelow, Sheila McRevey, Ed Rudner, Mike Curran, and John Barbaro. Early in the meeting, Curran was elected Chairman.

The feeling of being powerless permeated the meeting. Several times Hodgson emphatically stated that it is "time to stop asking for power" and start demanding it.

Lee Sandwen, President of the Student Senate observing the meeting, said "If the building is paid for by students, students should run it."

Nims pointed out how powerless the SUG Board is by stating that "the nullification of Gerry (Scanlon) does nothing."

Suggested, but not fully accepted at the meeting, was sending a letter stating the temporary acceptance of Scanlon while the Board reviews the reorganization. No one was sure what would happen if the Board rejected it.

Bigelow, who is also a full time employee at the CC, pointed out that the administration has never acknowledged that students run things which they pay for. He cited the University Health Services as an example where students pay a fee but don't run the operation.

What seemed agreeable to the committee was defining its role as a policy setting board not actually involved with the day-to-day operations of the center.

Planned for next week's meeting in answer to question one is a presentation by Miss McKevey and Bigelow showing the present and past structures of the Campus Center and Student Union.

They are also hoping that the administration will present in some form how the CC fits into the general University structure and the fiscal breakdown of its operations.

Bob Nims

Jean Wiley Speaks On Angela Davis

By JERRY LAZAR

Clearing up several misconceptions surrounding the trials of Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee, UMass English Professor Jean Wiley spoke before a predominantly Black audience at Thompson Hall Saturday. Prof. Willey has spent months documenting the trials and defense of Angela Davis.

One common misconception which Professor Wiley discredited was that there is money "pouring in" to be used to defray the expense of Angela Davis' defense.

"This is not true," she said. "There is absolutely no money in any fund for Angela Davis."

Another widespread misconception is the image associated with Ruchell Magee.

"Ruchell Magee is not the idiot the white media projects," asserted Professor Wiley. She claimed that the white press has used "subtle and devious tactics" to contrast the images of Angela Davis, the intellectual, and Ruchell Magee, the incompetent moron.

"Ruchell is adept in U.S. Law, and is known as the jailhouse lawyer." Professor Wiley continued. "He often lends advice to lawyers, including Howard Moore."

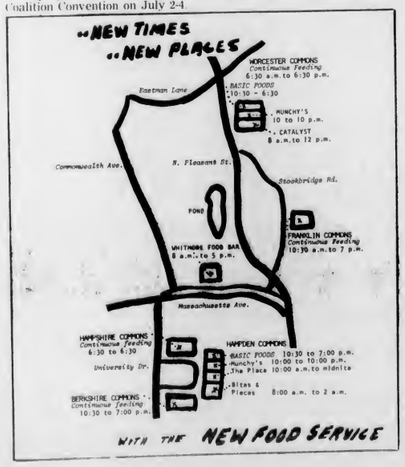
Professor Wiley also pointed out that Ruchell knew enough law to disqualify five judges on grounds of prejudice and racism, and unpresedented feat..

Last June, Miss Wiley was asked to go to the San Francisco Bay area by Angela Davis' chief defense attorney, Howard Moore. Her purpose was to compile and document the trials from the Black perspective. She went in mid-June, assuming the trials would be completed by this fall. However, she will continue working with Howard Moore, and has taken a temporary leave of absence from UMass this semester.

In discussing the progress of the now famous trials, Professor Wiley said that separating the trials of Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee was "a politically bad move. To sever them seemed on one level nonsensical, and on another level naive."

The severance of the trials was unintentional according to Professor Wiley. She said Ruchell was perturbed at the judge for ignoring his legal claim, which stated he could not be tried in one court while appeal was pending in another. He moved for an immediate severance of trials, not actually believing the motion would be carried. Professor Wiley explained, the motion was passed and the trials of Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee were severed, however.

"Ruchell is determined to expose the California penal system." according to Professor Wiley.



"But Ruchell's life is in serious jeopardy, every bit as much as George Jackson's was."

Mobe Meets Tonight

The Student Mobilization Committee holds its first meeting tonight in the Campus Center at 8:00 in room 174-176. The guest speaker will be George Kontanis.

Mr. Kontanis has taught two courses on European History at the University of Illinois. Formerly a student at Leeds University, he has been an anti-war activist since 1965. He is now on the staff of the Greater Boston Peace Action Coalition.

Other topics of discussions will be a number of national anti-war actions, proposed and accepted this summer at the National Peace Action Coalition Convention on July 2-4.

Good Readers Make Good Leaders!

Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics was the method taught to the staffs of Presidents Kennedy and Nixon; to Senators Ted Kennedy, Proxmire, Ribicoff and Symington. It has helped hundreds of thousands of people in politics, the theatre, business and professional life, as well as students throughout the U. S. We guarantee to refund your tuition if we do not at least triple your effective reading speed.

NOW A FREE MINI-LESSON
WILL SHOW YOU HOW IT WORKS

After one Free Mini-Lesson your reading speed could increase substantially — right then and there. There's no cost or obligation for this free hour of fascinating instruction. After that, the decision to continue is up to you.

SCHEDULE OF FREE MINI-LESSONS
UNIV. OF MASS., CAMPUS CENTER RM. 908
One of these dates:
Mon., Sept. 13 at 4 p.m. or 7 p.m. or 9 p.m.
Tues., Sept. 14 at 4 p.m. or 7 p.m. or 9 p.m.
Wed., Sept. 15 at 4 p.m. or 7 p.m. or 9 p.m.
Classes begin Thurs. Sept. 16 at 7 p.m.
PAUL MURPHY 253-2425

Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics

In The Nation And The World

Medina Court-Martial

Calley's Lawyer Won't Let Him Testify

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP)-A civilian lawyer for Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., said Sunday he will advise Calley not to testify Monday at Capt. Ernest Medina's murder trial.

The defense in the Median trial plans to open its case by calling as a witness Calley, convicted earlier this year of slaying My Lai civilians.

George L. Latimer of Salt Lake City, Utah, reached by telephone after his arrival at Ft. Benning, Ga., where he conferred with Calley on Sunday, said, "from what I know at the present time, and from what I have before me I will advise him not to testify."

Latimer, who represented Calley at his trial, said he may alter his position if the military judge in the Medina trial orders the lieutenant to testify. A soldier's refusal to testify when ordered to do so by a military judge, said Latimer, can make him liable for a five-year jail sentence.

"If we get an order to testify tomorrow we would have to take another look at the situation," said Latimer.

Calley was sentenced to life imprisonment for his role at My Lai, but the sentence was reduced recently to 20 years. He has been confined to his quarters at Ft. Benning since his conviction.

The defense had already indicated that it believed Calley would invoke the Fifth Amendment right against self incrimination as grounds for not testifying. Defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey says he has learned, through a source he refused to name, that Calley's version of what happened at My Lai has changed since his court-martial.

The lieutenant testified at his trial that he was acting at My Lai under orders from Medina to destroy the Vietnamese village and kill everything in it. Medina denied ever giving such orders and said he was unaware of his troops killing civilians until the operation was almost over.

Medina, 35, of Montrose, Colo., who was awarded a Silver Star for his gallantry in Vietnam, was the commander of Charlie Company when the American Division infantry unit attacked My Lai on March 16, 1968. Calley was one of three platoon leaders who served under Medina at My Lai.

The captain is accused of shooting one civilian as she lay wounded in a rice paddy, ordering the shooting of a small boy as he fled across a trail, and choosing not to intervene upon discovering that his troops were committing mass murder.

Medina is additionally charged with assaulting a Viet Cong suspect by firing his rifle over the man's head into a tree during an interrogation.

The government rested its case against Medina last Thursday after its 31st witness, Robert Brisentine, an Army polygraph examiner, testified about remarks the captain made to him during 14 hours of interviewing. Brisentine was not allowed to testify about the actual results of the lie detector test, which the defense claims would show that Medina has told the truth about My Lai.

Brisentine's account of the interview closely paralleled the testimony that Medina gave when finally called as a witness by the jury in the Calley trial.

Medina testified that he shot the woman because he thought she was armed and that the shooting of the boy was an accident. He insisted that his first knowledge of the murder of large numbers of civilians came when he discovered 20 to 28 civilian bodies on a trail, about three hours after the assault began.

The defense hopes that Calley will testify that his only radio communication with Medina came when the captain ordered a cease-fire after finding the bodies and the lieutenant and his platoon, suspecting that it was the work of

China Quiet On Khrushchev Death

AP—Communist China, whose relations with the Soviet Union deteriorated sharply when Nikita Khrushchev was premier, maintained silence after his death.

North Vietnamese and North Korean broadcasts, monitored in Tokyo, made no mention of the former Soviet leader, who died in a Moscow hospital Saturday at the age of 77.

Communist Poland gave only sparse news coverage Sunday on the death of a Khrushchev.

The official Polish Communist Party paper Trybuna Ludu in a 30-word statement said Khruschev had died and listed the political posts he once held.

Poles in the street took the news with interest but one remarked "there was a time when this man could command headlines here just for sneezing."

The Albanian news agency ATA in a terse report Sunday headlined Khrushchev's death by saying "The Renegade Nikita Khrushchev Died."

ATA attributed the report on his death to other news agencies and explained that Khruschev "for years led the Soviet revisionist clique of traitors of Marxism-Lenninism to re-install capitalism in the Soviet Union."

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram eulogized Nikita Khrushchev Sunday as the man who "broke the Western arms monopoly in the Middle East and laid the foundations of Soviet-Arab friendship."

The paper said Khruschev will best be remembered among the Arabs for giving the green light in 1955 to a Czech-Egyptian arms deal, "For supporting the Arab liberation tide" and for helping Egypt build the giant Aswan high dam.

Khrushchev was also responsible for ending "the era of Stalinist repression" in the Soviet Union, for beginning the policy of coexistence with the West and for launching the Soviet moon program ahead of America, Al Ahram said.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India described former Soviet Premier Khrushchev Sunday as "a man of the people" and said "his friendly attitude to India at a crucial time reflected a deep and abiding friendship between the two countries and people."

"Have I Got A Girl For You"

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Laurie Lea Schaefer began her first full day as Miss America 1972 Sunday, outlining conservative views on politics, fashions and morality she believes are shared by most young Americans.

Miss Schaefer, 22, of Bexley, Ohio, was crowned Miss America at Convention Hall here Saturday night.

At her first formal news conference she said:

"It would be good to end the war but I believe we have a right to be in Vietnam."

She also said she didn't believe in pre-marital sex; that marijuana use leads to "hard drugs;" abortions should be illegal; and that women aren't discriminated against in America.

"I think the majority of young people think the way I do on just about everything," she said.

Miss Schaefer, an auburn-haired green-eyed University of Ohio graduate, replaced Phyllis George of Texas as Miss America. At Saturday's selection ceremonies before 19,000 persons, Miss Idaho, Karen Herd, was named first runner up. Second runner up was Miss Massachusetts, Deborah Ann O'Brien; third runner up, Miss Pennsylvania, Maureen Victoria Wimmer, and fourth runner up Miss Maine, Allyn E. Warner.

Miss Schaefer said she hoped it wouldn't be necessary but that she looked forward to making a tour of Vietnam to entertain troops. She said President Nixon was doing a good job of trying to end the war.

She said she was active in a conservative youth group that holds mock political conventions, but declined to name the organization.

"People will think, well, she is close minded," she said of herself

She said she likes to dress conservatively and doesn't own a pair of blue jeans.

As for pre-marital sex, Miss America said, "It's not for me."

Miss America contestants, she said, help support women's liberation because the pageant gives women a chance to develop their own views and goals.

The pageant has been the target of feminist protesters for three of the last four years. On Saturday, about 30 women picketed calmly outside Convention Hall before the pageant began.

How long had she hoped to be Miss America.

"It goes back to when I was four," Miss Schaefer said. "My sister was always telling me that some day I'd be Miss America."

She has one sister and two brothers. Her father is deceased. When asked to name the person she admires the most, Miss America replied, "Mom."

ARE YOU

A business man or woman?
Not easily put off??
Interested in a challenge??
$ $ $
Interested in making money
$ $ $ $ $ $
As much as you want,
on your own time??

SELL ADVERTISEMENTS
for the
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Find out more at the RECRUITING MEETING
TUESDAY, SEPT. 14th. Time and Place will be announced in Weds. paper.

dvp
THE
DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM
announces the beginning of its 1971-72 lecture series
with its first speaker
MR. JOSEPH HELLER
author of CATCH 22 and WE BOMBED IN NEW HAVEN
"An Evening with Joe Heller"
will be presented
Tuesday, Sept. 14, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.
An open coffee hour in the Colonial Lounge will follow the lecture

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

Tutors Being Sought

Credit May Be Available For Jail Toutoring

Credit for tutoring in the Hampshire County House of Correction may be available for any interested undergraduate. A student organization designed to encourage closer community-student relations through student work in nearby communities, Action Lab is sponsoring for the second year the tutorial program leading to high school equivalency for inmates in the jail.

Student tutors will be chosen on the basis of the amount of time they have available, their past experiences and future plans, sensitivity, interest, academic and teaching competency, and a formal application. For their efforts, the tutors will receive 3 credits.

A general description of the program will be given this coming Wednesday evening at 8:00 PM in Room 174 of the Campus Center. The selected students will then attend training meetings throughout the rest of the month, and they will meet with the Deputy Master of the jail and other officials, psychologists, and experienced teachers. Actual tutoring will begin in October.

The jail itself, located in Northampton, is almost 200 years old. It holds men whose terms are no longer than two and one-half years. Thus, the population of the House can include anyone from a student waiting trial for possession of grass to a murderer serving out the last couple years of his sentence before parole. Many of the inmates are ex-junkies, convicted for stealing to support their habit. Some have college degrees and are goal-oriented; others read on a third grade level and would come to a tutoring session only to get off the cell block for a couple of hours.

Essentially two skills are needed for the General Educational Development Test (GED) or high school equivalency: reading and math. The Action Lab tutorials will concentrate on these skills.

Part of the difficulty of any tutorial program is inadequate followup. An ex-con is released to the world from a County Jail with only enough money for local bus fare. No jobs are provided, no place to crash. Although the officials in the jail are working with many community groups, their chief handicap is lack of money from the State.

Although, as one resource person for the program says, "We can claim little virtue for the fact that we're here and they're there." Tutors should remember that not all prisoners are hip Eldridge Cleaver types. Some of the inmates are in jail for very good reasons, and the tutor training sessions will try to present not only the inmates point of view, but the guards.

Hopefully, the Action Lab tutorials will help to lessen the distance between the truly alienated and the socially accepted.

Special for students

REPRINT FREE
What are some American companies and associations doing about our environment? A special advertising section in this month's Reader's Digest gives many of the answers. Get a free reprint, by writing
P.O. Box 5905
Grand Central Station
New York, N.Y.10017

Weather Watch

Heidi Heading Towards Carolinas

MIAMI (AP)-A mushrooming tropical storm named Heidi took aim on Cape Hatteras, N.C., Sunday. Elsewhere harried hurricane trackers watched storm Edith predicting it would scavenge strength in the warm Gulf of Mexico and spring back to life.

"For the immediate future the most dangerous storm is Heidi," National Hurricane Center Director Dr. Robert Simpson said. "The storm's just gotten started and it's hard to say what it's going to do in the next 24 hours.

"But we can say it's heading straight for the U.S. coastline and it will be near hurricane force when it gets there," he said.

The small but potent storm was about 325 miles south of the North Carolina cape and moving at about 10 miles per hour at noon Sunday. Its latitude was 30.7 North, its longitude 74.2 West. Heidi's 45-50 mph gales huddled in a semi-circle on the eastern edge of the storm as it plowed north northwest at a steadily increasing speed.

Simpson said its steering currents were likely to take it over or near Hatteras and northward toward the Delaware coast by Monday evening.

Meanwhile, Tropical Storm Edith, downgraded from a hurricane after a bombardment of Central America's east coast, was a sprawling disorganized mass idling in the Gulf of Mexico about 200 miles west northwest of Merida, Mexico.

But the Atlantic season's worst hurricane was expected to suck new punch from the warm waters of the Gulf and speed up on a 12 mph north northwesterly course Monday.

Forecasters who had spent most of last week at their radar and satellite tracking monitors were concentrating on Heidi and Edith Sunday. They said a minimum of effort was being devoted to Hurricanes Ginger and Fern and a depression born Saturday night about 350 miles east southeast of Barbados.

Student Senate
BOOK LOANS
Now Available
Student Senate
Office, Level 1
Campus Center

Nixon: 'Chou-En-lai Insidious'

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon was told Sunday by a visiting Chinese Roman Catholic cardinal to beware of Communist Chinese Premier Chou-En-lai because he is "an insidious man."

Paul Cardinal Yu-Pin from Taiwan was among 380 guests at the first White House Sunday worship service of the fall season. He told reporters he gave that message to the President as he went through the receiving line.

The cardinal said also that Chou-En-lai "is a professional liar" and "I do not believe any good can come from that meeting," referring to Nixon's plans to go to Mainland China for a summit session with Chou.

The cardinal is president of the University of Formosa and said he knew Chou-En-lai before he left Mainland China in 1948.

Rent a refrigerator for your room. Just $4.44 a month.*
• Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
• Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
• University-approved for dormitory use
• Free pick-up and delivery
• Guaranteed—if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
• We pay interest on your deposit
• Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
• Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.
CALL 256-8488, 253-2494
mini kool
*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

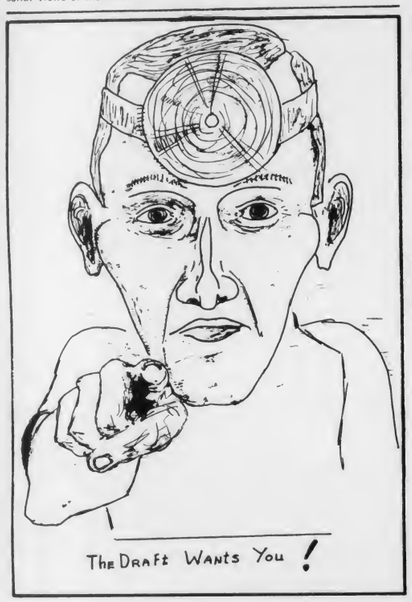

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — John E. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — David Williams
NEWS STAFF — Anne Mayer, Bob Callahan, Steve Fine
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen
DARKROOM — Gib Fullerton, Steve Schmidt
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Richard C. Hanson

In Private Chambers

The presiding judge at the county district court grants a private arraignment for the son of a well-known Judge. The son, a prosecutor for the biggest University in the area, appears in the Judge's private chambers on charges of drunkedness, operating under the influence and driving to endanger. With him, his father, the Judge, and his brother, the mayor of the county's largest city. The arraignment is not announced to the press, but two days later the word is out.

Sounds a little sleazy doesn't it. But its all true. The story builds as a local newspaper asks the Chief of District Courts for the State whether the private arraignment was legal. The reply of circuitously said yes there was "no question" of the Judge's integrity.

Atty. Donald Dunphy is UMass's prosecutor. His father is Edwin P. Dunphy, a special Justice Hampshire County District Court. His brother Sean M. Dunphy, the youthful mayor of Northampton. The private chamber was that of Judge Luke F. Ryan, Hampshire County Court.

Donal Dunphy was arrested on August 5. A month later he was fined for his reckless driving. Police testimony failed to convince the Court of Dunphy's alleged drunkedness.

The Holyoke Transcript-Telegram had made the inquiry into the propriety of Judge Ryan's private family style arraignment, to Judge Franklin N. Flaschner of Newton, Chief Justice of the state's district court system. Flaschner's first reply stated that he would "look into the incident" and that he had "never heard of arraignments taking place other than in open court."

After receiving a letter for Judge Ryan the Chief Justice made a second reply which claimed that under Massachusetts' law Rule 7 of the Initial Rules of Criminal Procedure in Massachusetts "a judge may conduct a hearing in a room other than where court session is customarily held if in the discretion of the judge he deems it necessary or desirable in the interest of the defendant or the public."

Flaschner excused Ryan's discretion, saying that he could "understand" why Ryan honored Dunphy's "request" for a private arraignment.

The whole affair seems to be lifted from the script of an afternoon soap opera. Obviously it was somewhat unorthodox for Judge Ryan to grant Dunphy's request, but that is what makes life interesting.

One can imagine that this well-known Northampton family had friends in the right places and for any number of reasons decided to proceed along what was finally interpreted as a legal path. The question remains is whether the court would be inclined to follow the precedent set by Judge Ryan and affirmed by Chief Justic Flaschner, in cases other than those involving sons of judges and brothers of mayors. To a student perhaps.

It is not difficult to imagine the reasons that an ordinary man or woman would have to merit a private arraignment. There are many legal questions which would unfairly damage an individual's reputation in the community, if even ordinary attention was paid to it by the media.

The cases of University students charged with possession of marijuana, it could be argued, do more damage to the individual and to the reputation of the institution than is warranted.

The question of whether or not Judge Ryan acted reasonably in the family style arraignment of Dunphy will be left open in the minds of the many around Hampshire County, for some time. But as much as it might pain anyone to take advantage of the precedent set for a man accused of reckless driving (a charge that should be treated as attempted manslaughter) the Dunphy case does offer one more loophole for anyone who deserves it.

One rather cyncical opinion on the whether a student would receive a private arraignment if requested was voiced by a local Amherst legal tycoon: "Sure, if you can buy three judges."

Don Glickstein

On boys & nuts & Alice

In everybody's life, there's a summer of '71. It can be a harrowing experience, so the Massachusetts Daily Collegian is pleased to present to you your own "Guide to the Summer of '71".

Boys' State-These embarrassed high school boys, wearing red tee shirts not unlike those of Mao's red guard, terrorized the campus during June with cries of "C'mon, men!" and "I pledge allegiance..." and "Can I bum a cigarette?". Boys' State was described by one "citizen" as "sitting around, saluting the flag, and praying a lot." Sponsored by the American Legion.

Maharishi Mahesh Yogi-As Ed Sullivan once said, "It was a really big shew." Polluting the Cage during July and August were thousands of transcendental meditators, burning rancid incense, buying FTD flowers, and outsmiling anyone who smiled in their path. Leader of the meditators was the Maharishi, affectionately called "Maharishi". He proved conclusively that any legitimate scientific phenomenon can be draped over the eyes of a white, middle class, suburban population, provided that the leader of such a movement rides around in a green Mercedes Benz, wears a cute little Marx Brothers-type beard, hiccups soprano every few words, and comes across as naive. And that's shrewd. The dining commons ladies are not looking forward to next year, when the meditators may return with more nuts, berries, and tomatoes.

The Patriots-Known by many names. Known by swingshift girls very well. Known by their 10PM curfew. Many of them have muscular bodies and drive around in sports cars with swingshift girls before their 10PM curfew. They eat a lot. Quite correctly, their summer camp was housed in James House. They lose a lot, too.

Dining Commons-Infamous for having served ham and cheese sandwiches for breakfast, lunch, and dinner one day this summer. Parents up for freshman orientation were slightly pissed. It was in the Dining Commons that the quote of the year was heard: "Alice, Alice, come here. This counselor called me 'fuck-nose'." Joel Stoneham receives the Studebaker Managerial Award for consistently making sure that only one breakfast line was open for 400 freshman, 400 Swingshifters, 1000 summer school students, and 5-6,000 conferees.

Psycho-karate-A technique invented by Brian, a freind of Jack Deaver's Comp Lit replacement, Elizabeth Martin. When laying a girl and surprised by her husband and twenty other irate rednecks, go into a fake epileptic fit or tickle your throat and begin to vomit. They're scared shitless, and you've come a long way...from getting your head busted.

Pinballs-Four Queens is no longer popular, as you can get more free games from Roller Coaster, Dinosaur, Space Rocket, and Spin-A-Card. The only thing in the entire 24 million dollar Campus Center Complex that is making money. Ken Johnson, take note.

Reorganization-Bob Wood once said, "When you want to appear to be making progress, but you really don't want to, reorganize." Well, John Hunt can no longer be called "Massa Hunt". He's now an Area Dean. Area coordinators have been abolished. No one ever knew what they really did anyway, except sign meal ticket exemptions. Ho hum.

Albert Schweitzer Award for the Arts-Howie Bresner, now Program Council Chairman of the Student Union, wins this award for consistently presenting (with a little help from a decent budget) the most amazing fine arts presentations and movies ever seen on this campus, including Paul Winter Consort, Bill Staines, James Cotten, Trinidad Steel Band, "The Strawberry Statement", W.C. Fields, "I Love You Alice B. Toklas", and a myriad of other events. His only bummer was a non-Disney version of "Snow White", which sickened the hearts, stomachs, and eyes of hundreds.

The Baptists-The Seventh Day Baptists were here. See entry under Maharishi for more information. They're all the same.

Project 10-Moving from Central's Greenough to Southwest's Pierpont is like moving from Westchester County to the East 80's. Yes, it's a new Project 10 and very seriously, I'm proud to say, we have finally gotten our shit together. It's been a long time, and it took a Summer of '71 to do it.

"I Don't Know Much About 'Work Ethic' — I Just Wish I Could Get A Job"

Editorial Points

It is rumored that one high Student Senate official is working as a soda jerk in the Hatch. Now isn't that a conflict of interest.

* * * *

Judging from the lines around the Peter Pan bus stop on Friday, UMass must not have made a very good first impression on a lot of people.

* * * *

Now is the time for all good students to go to the book store to get mangled, shoved, pushed and stepped upon and to wait in line hours for books that most of them will never even read.

* * * *

Due to the wage/price freeze, the new parking plan had to be shelved. So lock your cars, take your keys with you. You may keep some college kid from going bad.

* * * *

Nikita Khrushchev is dead. He said that he would bury us. Let's hope his physical burial does not foreshadow ours.

* * * *

Tippo's tea party was turgid because no one was tipsy.

* * * *

Whether you call it Bites and Pieces or Munchy's or the Place or the Little Hatch Upstairs, they still serve Ratburgers. And we're paying 88¢ for a 55¢ salad. That's real innovation.

* * * *

Rumor has it that WMUA will be going on the air Wednesday. With their new voltage, we should be able to hear it as far away as Southwest.

* * * *

It's the new year. You know it because you have to wade through the liquid debris in the tower elevators.

* * * *

Van Meter had its first party ever Saturday. All girls.

Art Buchwald

Achoo!

WASHINGTON--A new cure for the "common cold" couldn't hav come too soon. Last week two Israeli researchers announced they ha been able to cure nose colds by chilling the big toes of patients' feet. Tl Israelis claimed that the sudden temporary chilling of the big toes almo immediately brings about a lowering of the normal temperature with the nose. And lowering the nasal temperature dries up the nostril thereby curing the cold.

At the time the story appeared on the front pages of newspapers and c television I was in bed with a severe nose cold and my wife said to m "Let's try it. What have you got to lose?"

The Israeli researchers said they had developed a special indire cooking apparatus adapted to the shape of the big toe. It uses refrigerant chemical called dichloro difluoromethane, which can chill toe in less than a minute. Since we didn't have this chemical available n wife decided to tape an ice cube on each toe.

I lay there with my feet sticking out of each side of the bed and ice cub on my big toes.

"How do you feel?" she asked.

"About the same."

"Then why are you laughing?"

"The water trickling between my toes makes me ticklish."

The ice cubes kept melting and I kept sneezing and giggling, so my wi said, "Maybe ice cubes aren't the answer. Would you consider putti both your feet in the refrigerator?"

"You have to be kidding," I said.

"You have everything to gain," she said, taking the ice cubes off r toes and handing me a bathrobe.

I sat on a kitchen chair while she removed the food from the shelves the refrigerator. "We'll try it in this part of the fridge and if it does work we'll put your feet in the deep freeze."

"I'd just as soon drink plenty of liquids and take aspirin."

"There," she said, "put your feet on the third shelf and read a book Five minutes later she said, "Do you feel anything?"

"Nothing at all," I said.

"Then your cold is gone?"

"No, my toes are frozen. I can't move them."

"They are sort of blue. Maybe you better take them out."

"Where should I put them, in the oven?"

"There has to be some way of freezing your toes without giving y frostbite," my wife said.

"Maybe I could put them in the mashed potatoes of a frozen TV d ner?"

"Perhaps," she said, "if you stuck your feet against the a conditioning vent."

"I'd rather put them out the window."

"I know. I'll make two frozen daiquiris and you can put a big toe in ea one. Thay way they'll freeze but you won't suffer."

She made two double daiquiris (banana) and inserted a toe in ea glass. I relaxed as nature took its course. My body temperature slo went down and in half an hour my cold was gone. Now if I can just get of this hangover.

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Letters To The Editor

A Stoned Soul D.A.

To the Editor:

In your editorial dated Sept. 9 you advocated that "people who use drugs should...elect politicians who won't maintain laws that could arrest them." Really? This sounds like good advice to potential lawbreakers of all sorts. Selection of a politician in this way would become a supermarket-style choice, relying on impulse buying; read "grass" for green stamps.

I know of very few politicians who would risk their careers and their reputation by simply running on an issue of defiance of laws. This is realism, not idealism. The one politician that I know of that did maintain marijuana as an election issue was Dr. Timothy Leary, who ran for Governor of California. At the present time, I should add, he agrees completely with your editorial. It's too bad the Swiss Police didn't.

What would seem to me, after reading your editorial, that those in power had not only that power, but the responsibility to evaluate, not demand, the legalization of grass. "Where Danger Lies", ipso facto, is not so much getting arrested, but instead clouding genuine election issues in a veil of smoke. Elect your government officials for what they are, not because they will make it easier to turn on.

Urging District Attorney Callahan to listen to students is a good idea, but I'm not so sure urging him to light up is. If he ever did get stoned, I am fairly confident that he couldn't have written a better editorial than you did.

Randolph Litchfield

The Rose Still Bleeds

To the Editor:

Last year I attempted to start a "free school" for high school people. Due to many financial and legal problems the project fell through.

This year I am teaching private courses in Philosophy and Religion. These are non-university non-credit courses which are designed to help people toward greater self-awareness. I am hoping to reach those people who believe that philosophy is too unintelligible or too boring or whatever, because I believe that philosophy has many exciting things to say about the basic questions of human existence such as who am I, what is real, does God exist, etc. I am a grad student in philosophy myself.

The courses will cover areas such as: Eastern-Western Religions, Humanistic Psychology and Existentialism. Topics will include: Freedom, Death, Sex, Meditation, Drugs, Male-Female Liberation, Astrology and the I Ching which is an old Chinese book which can foretell the Future.

I will use a multi-disciplinary approach which will involve novels (Hesse, Doestoyevsky etc.) music (Incredible String Band, Dylan, Ravi Shankar) and poetry. In the last few years, I did many poetry readings on campus-reading Ferlinghetti ("Tyrannus Nix?") Ginsberg Patchen and Lenore Kandel. We will study the works of these poets.

I will be charging a small fee (depending on the size of the group) because I wish to do this full-time as my life's work.

I will be glad to work with individuals or groups. Even in a group I want to stay in touch with individual people to see what's happening with them.

This Tuesday night Sept. 14 I will be holding a free meeting on the 9th Floor Lounge of the Campus Center. If you can't come to the meeting, please leave a message for me at Hamlin Dormitory on Campus Room 402.

Bob Zelman
C/O The Bleeding Rose

Letters to the Editor must be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letters will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

English 221, Sect. 91

"This play is a domestic tragedy. It is about bed and sex."

This was the explanation given last week by Sir Bernard Miles, director of the Mermaid Theater in London, for a decision that Desdemona should be nude in the final scene of his company's production of "Othello." The decision went against theater practice and caused quite a stir.

Sir Bernard said the idea had come in a flash of inspiration and he couldn't understand why nobody had thought of it before. It was, said, clear in Shakespeare's te Act 4, Scene 3, where Emilia, t nurse, asks "Shall I fetch yo nightgown?" Desdemona repli "No, unpin me here."

"That is obvious justificat from this fantastic m Shakespeare that she is go to win her husband back t night," concluded Sir Bernard. (reprinted from the New Y Times, 9/12/71.)

Photo credits, page 6:
Jim Nelson, SIMS and Dave Williams, MDC

New England's Largest Needs Help! Here's How You Can Y Join:

Add Up All The Letters In Your Last Name and Divide By Your Mailbox Number. Put Your Finger On The End of Your Nose, Turn Around Slowly 3 Times, And Get On Over To Room 163 Campus Center Tuesday Night at 7

SEE YOU THERE!

1971 SORORITY RUSH INFORMATION

The following schedule of rush functions is being made available for the convenience of all women interested in the possibility of joining a sorority this year. All the houses will be looking forward to greeting you on the nights of their scheduled gatherings, so please come down when you can, and as often as you can!

Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
Sept. 12	Sept. 13 AXΩ XΩ ΣΔT ΣΣΣ	Sept. 14 ITY KKT KAT ΣK ΛΔΦ *ΤΤΒΦ	Sept. 15 ΛΔΦ ΤΤΒΦ AXΩ ΣΔT KKT	Sept. 16 ΣK KAT XRΩ ITY ΣΣΣ	Sept. 17	Sept. 18
Sept. 19 ΤΤΒΦ AXΩ ΣK ΣΔT ΛΔΦ	Sept. 20 XR ΣK ΣΣΣ	Sept. 21 AXΩ ΛΔΦ ΣΣΣ KKT	Sept. 22 ΣK ΣΔT KKΩ ΤΤΒΦ	Sept. 23 XΩ AXΩ ΣΔT ΛΔΦ ΣΣΣ	Sept. 24	Sept. 25
Sept. 26 ΣΔT	Sept. 27 ΣK	Sept. 28	Sept. 29	Sept. 30 Preferential Bidding 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. Student Affairs Office Whitmore Bids out at 3 p.m.

*TT BΦ Rush Parties will be held at Beta Kappa Phi, 401 North Pleasant St.

Each sorority will hold two short parfies, one from 7:00 - 8:00 p.m. and the other from 8:15 - 9:15, the week of the 13th. - 16th., to give you the opportunity to visit as many houses as you wish. If you have any questions or problems concerning rush, do not hesitate to ask them. A Panhellenic representative will be on duty in Room 108 of the Campus Center every weekday afternoon until September 30, so feel free to drop in, or call 5-2957, between 1:00 and 4:00 p.m. We'll do our best to be of help!

Joseph Heller Speaks Tomorrow

Novelist-playwright Joseph Heller achieved enduring fame with his run-away best-seller Catch-22. The wildly hilarious and deeply poignant anti-war novel

JOSEPH HELLER reflects yet only a facet of the mind that created it and sparked the imagination of millions.

Seven years later with the same wild and moving vision of man against war, Joseph Heller produced his first play on Broadway. "Newsweek" acclaimed We Bombed in New Haven as "very likely the most powerful play about contemporary irrationality an American has written, with a natural cathartic jolt that comes from the genuineness of Heller as a moral comedia."

A Phi Beta Kapa graduate of New York University, Mr. Heller received his M.A. from Columbia University and later studied under a Fullbright Scholarship at Oxford University in England. During World War II, he was a B-25 bombardier and flew sixty missions over Italy and France.

In 1953, he began writing Catch-22 while still an advertising copywriter, and working after office hours and on weekends, finished it eight years later. Since its publication he has written articles and film scripts--working at the same time on a second novel Something Happened.

The Distinguished Visitors Program will kick-off the new year with Joseph Heller, author of Catch-22, on Tuesday evening, September 14, at 8:00 p.m., in the Student Union Ballroom.

Students' Educational System Lecture Notes Program

Student Union Lobby, Room 318

Telephone 545-2683

Do you have to compete for information in your lecture hall?

Are you incapable of recording as well as a machine?

Try this the next time you attend a lecture:

LISTEN,
THINK,
ASSIMILATE,
QUESTION,
CHALLENGE.

Maybe you will understand and learn more. S.E.S. provides lecture notes for 28 different academic courses.

Information, subscription tickets, and a complete course list are available at the S.E.S. office. The office is open Monday through Friday, 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon and 12:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m.

A Scene from "Hour of the Furnaces".

Latin American Films Set

A Latin-American Film Festival will open the 1971-72 season of the Fine Arts Council of the UMass-Amherst Thursday and Friday, Sept. 16 and 17, at 7 p.m. each night in Herter Hall, rooms 227 and 231. Tickets are priced at $1.00 for UMass Undergrads and all others $1.50.

Designed to bring aesthetically important films representative of foreign film movements, the Festival will feature four Latin-American films seldom screened outside major urban areas.

The first day of the Festival, Thursday, will feature the Brazilian film "Black God, White Devil," and the Mexican film, "Yanco." Directed by Glauber Rocha, "Black God, White Devil" has won international recognition and numerous prizes. The film explodes the plight of the little people, the desperate poor who constantly and predictably, and in vain, search for something that will transform their lives.

This film is part of the Brazilian Cinema Novo movement, a unique expression of a relatively small group of intellectuals who have formed themselves into what has now become a repertory theatre of film. In less than a decade, this group has garnered 40 international awards--Cannes to Acapulco, Pueretta-Terme to San Francisco.

"Yanco," which will follow, was directed and written by Servando Gonzales. Winner of 16 international awards, "Yanco" tells how a youngster is taught to play the violin by an old man who dies, leaving music to the lad as his legacy.

The Mexican film, "Mexican Bus Ride," and the Argentinian film, "The Hour of the Furnaces," will be shown Friday, Sept. 17, the second day of the Festival. Directed by Luis Bunuel, "Mexican Bus Ride," is a film of delicate irreverence. With perfect comedy timing, Bunuel records the misadventures of an innocent young man sent over the mountains to the next town to fetch the family lawyer to his dying mother. In this affectionate and earthy lampoon of human weakness, unique among Bunuel's more "serious" films, we get an intimate glimpse of the great director's credo: a deep faith in man founded in the imperfections of the individual. The film was awarded the Grand Prix du Film d'Avant-farge at the Cannes Film Festival, 1952.

"The Hour of the Furnaces," directed by Fernando Solanas is a controversial film in the form of a documentary essay, told in the form of "notes," on violence, the necessity for change in Argentina--and, by extension, in Latin America. Tickets for each night's showings may be obtained at the Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, telephone 545-0202.

If You Dig Music Read On!

Special Offer

8-TRACK TAPES
$2.50 - $3.00
anything from acid rock to country western
Tremendous Savings
8-TRACK PLAYER
PORTABLE AC-DC
under $30.00

Plus much more - TVs, Radios, the works.

FOR INFO CALL 546-5648 and ask for Paul Brown 204 B

Fine Arts Council
presents

Latin American Cinema Festival

4 FEATURE FILMS

THURSDAY, SEPT. 16

"Black God, White Devil"
directed by Glauber Rocha
and
"Yanco"
directed by Servando Gonzales

FRIDAY, SEPT. 17

"The Hour of the Furnaces"
directed by Fernando Solanas
and
"Mexican Bus Ride"
directed by Luis Bunuel

HERTER HALL

Rooms 227/231

Festival Begins Each Night At 7:00 p.m.

UMass Undergrads	$1.00 (each night)
Others. . .	$1.50 (each night)

Tickets available: Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall - Tel. 545-0202

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

1969 MGC-GT, excellent car, must sell, will sacrifice, $1900 firm. 546-4536. 119-13

For Sale, 67 VW Bus. Excellent cond., no rust, 49,000 mi, $900. 253-7138. 119-15

62 VW Kombi. Good condition. Lights need fixing. Want $300. Contac Charlie 546-5753. 119-16,13

63 VW Bettle. Excellent condition. 256-8330. 119-17

1970 Camaro, must be seen. Call 584-2733 (m. f. aft. 6). 119 17

1969 Triumph Tiger 650 cc, excellent condition. 256-8687. 119 17

1963 Corvair - Corsa, 4 spd., 4 carb., good condition. Best offer. Call 253-3880 after 5 p.m. 119 15

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sml, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, runnl or jumbo $49.95. Insured. deliv., 5 yr warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 457, Amherst. 119-22

Excellent new FM Tuner, $15.00; 18 inch portable TV, $20.00; new electric Presto Broiler Bake Oven, $15.00. Call 256-8432. 119-14

Small kitchen table 21x36 w/2 chairs, 54 inch kitchen sink on metal base. Jacobson reel mower, self propelled. 253-7046 after 6 p.m. 119-16

One Hollywood couch and matching sofa, both in excellent condition, $65 or best offer. Call Gary 5-6981 or evenings at 367-9913. 119-13

Dorm or apartment size refrigerator, brand new; sorcerous Empire waisted wedding gown, Princess style. Best offer. 104 Puffton Village. 119-14

Rogers drum set, 4 pcs., plus cymb. plus hihats. $250 or best offer. Good condition. Call Jim 586-1654. 119-11

Sleep on a waterbed tonight. All sizes and all frames. $19.95 and up. 5 yr. guarantee. Call anytime. Jerry 256-8379. 119-16

DUMP NIXON '72 - lg. red, white and blue decal (emphasis on "DUMP"). $1. Dump Nixon '72, Box 57, College Park, MD 20740. 119-13

Double bed mattress and springs, single bed frame. Price negotiable, call 549-6981 after 6. 119 11

1971 Honkia Trailbike, excellent cond., $325.00. Call 253-3710, ask for Jerry. 9-13

1 yr. old Sears Coldspot refrigerator with freezer and ice cube trays, approx. 9 cu. ft. Price negotiable. Call 253-7464 after 5. 119 17

APARTMENT WANTED

Sr. girl needs room desperately. Will share expenses and help w. furn. Contact Ruth c/o Lisa Fiallo, 404 Melville. 119-15

ROOMMATES WANTED

Couple wanted to share large new two bdrm. apt. in Belchertown Woodsy location. Leave name and number in Mailbox E-24. 119-11

One girl or couple only. If you need a place to stay until Oct. 31. Call aft. 6, m-f 584-2723. 119 17

Two Grad to Ed. Sch. seeks rumi for 2 bdrm., 2 fl. apt. in rec. loc. on farm, triple c. area. 3 mi. $175.50 mo., 13 Middle St., Holyoke, 586-3784, Judy. 119 11

MUSICIAN WANTED

Singer needed to front versatile group (rock, ballads, old standards.) Must be experienced. Call Steve 256-8681. 119-17

HELP WANTED

Students to deliver Boston Herald Traveler in Orchard Hill, Central and Quad. Pretty good salary. Call Pond at 549-6611. 119-15

Person to work Sats. for faculty family - housework, babysitting, odd jobs, 10 to 5, $1.50 hr. Own transportation. Call 549-6157, 8 to 10 p.m. 9-13

ROOM WANTED

Male needs room immediately — is willing to share apt. with others — in Amherst if possible. Call 546-6331 ask for Bob. 9-13

PERSONAL

Happy Birthday Ed, Luv Paula. 9-13

WANTED

Experienced Black Belt in Karate for sparring practice. Call Ron 546-6823, 1009 John Adams. 119-13

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted from Campus to Longmeadow or Springfield, Mon., Wed., Fri. to leave 12:15 p.m. or somewhat soon thereafter. Will pay. 567-8317. 119-13

Books

Steal It, But Don't Read It

By BOB NESTI

Steal This Book by Abbie Hoffman; Pirate Editions, distributed by Grove Press. $1.95.

Steal This Book is something of the prodigal son of underground books. While Richard Brautigan seems to be glaring at you from every paperback book stand and Jerry Rubin's Do It is treated regally by Delta Press, poor Abbie Hoffman's ode to free living in America has faced some hard times in coming to print. It was rejected by some thirty--odd publishing firms before Hoffman finally published it in conjunction with the mortally ailing Grove Press. One publisher exclaimed that "this book will end free speech" in his rather cowardly dismissal.

When finally published, the book faced further complications as major bookstores (Lauriat's in Boston, Doubleday in New York) placed an embargo on selling the book. The book was then denied ads in every major American newspaper (except the San Francisco Chronicle) and a goodly number of underground journals as well. Hoffman was forced to sell his book through "head shop" distribution and ads in little known radical journals, no way to make it a best seller. It was, as ironically pointed out in a rave review in the New York Times Book Review, an obvious case of intra-publishing censorship, perhaps the most blatant in recent history.

It seems there was much ado about nothing as Steal This Book takes on the distinct feel of the cry of a carnival barker: it is all veneer; there is such little substance that if someone be dumb enough to follow some of Hoffman's scatterbrained ploys to free living, they deserve to be sent up.

Tease Number One: Hoffman opens his book with a chapter on survival (free food, free housing, etc.). How do you eat for free? Find yourself a wedding reception or bar mitzvah and gorge yourself silly. Big deal. Then there's always ripping off supermarkets, but if you need a book to tell you how that is done you're really in trouble. Hoffman even assumes the role of the Julia Child of the counter-culture with recipes like "Rice and Cong" or "Hedonist's Deluxe" (the latter involving two lobsters, not the least inexpensive of cullinary delights, but what the hell--steal a few so what if they have nasty claws.)

Living isn't exactly as free as it may seem (Tease No. Two). It seems if you are going to live in the city, the best Hoffman can suggest is that you do not seek an apartment in June and September. Then as far as communes go, nine are listed. There are probably nine communes within shouting distance of this campus.

As far as travel, Hoffman suggests some very common methods (hitching, freighting) which are probably unknown to all but the very few walled up in a monasteries. When he gets daring and suggests ways of free airline travel, he approaches the ridiculous. His method: Just walk onto the plane holding an empty ticket envelope and you'll be sure to fly the friendly skies free of charge.

The book can be informative. For instance if you are waiting for the revolution you could always practice up and follow the directions in making Molotov Cocktails. Also I suppose if you never learned the rudimentaries of first aid then some of these tips will help you through those first riots.

Unfortunately too much of this is nonsense. Anyone who has any knowledge of the areas Hoffman claims to be so knowledgeable in realizes that too much of it is bull. His information about dope is aimed at a rather naive thirteen year old. It would also be a joy to read the sort of "underground" newspaper Hoffman describes how to make. But that's the Counter Culture--unlimited capabilities.

Hoffman often indulges in wonderful radical (RIGHT ON) rhetoric. He even, unabashed yet, embarrassingly, tells his disciples not to steal from his fellow counter-culturists. After all a brother's a brother, no matter if he's royally ripping you off behind his greasy whiskers in the grand spirit of "Pig Amerika Capitalism."

Steal This Book is occasionally diverting, like a Borscht-circuit comic on the Carson show. As far as information though, either steal a Chamber of Commerce handbook in any given community, use some common sense, or talk to your friends, but leave Abbie Hoffman to the publishing houses. They deserve each others paranoia.

Eating Out

Cue The Obit

By DAVID WILLIAMS

FLORENCE-The Miss Florence Diner passed away this weekend. She's been sick for a long time, but Saturday night she just keeled over and died. Medical examiners attributed her death to a severe attack of swellheadedness.

In a way it's a shame that Flo's is no longer a good place to get a meal, because it used to be the best place around. But Flo was only human and you can hardly expect her not to change if people keep saying good things about her. People said too many good things about Flo and she took it to heart.

One of the good things people used to talk about was the food. But the food now just plain ain't what it used to be. Behind that, though, is the real reason why Flo is to be shunned. The people who work for Flo are without a doubt the most arrogant, discourteous, unfriendly people you could ever hope to find in a place that supposedly caters to the public. You have to repeat orders four and five times, you have to wait an inordinate amount of time to get your meal, sometimes you never get things that you asked for, and everything is just dropped in front of you. The silverware is slippery, the water has little black things in it, the help have arguments behind the counter, they seem to be so caught up with being efficient that the whole operation suffers. Don't ever ask for a rare steak because it will mos when you try to cut it.

In short, Flo suffered from a very fatal disease that is still at work. Sure, you can still go to Flo's and get a meal, it hasn't closed or anything. But that meal will be cold when you get it, you have to take a chance that you will get your rolls or your salad and won't get your steak, you have to wait in line, put up with the help, ad nauseam. I almost can't say enough bad things about the place. The last four times I've been there it's been lacking in any number of areas. Four out of four is a lousy average. From now on I'm sticking to the Hatch.

FALL SEMESTER — ISRAEL

Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study in Jerusalem, Israel/July-December, 1971
(40) students from 25 universities enrolled in 1970)

Juniors and Seniors eligible

Four courses/Hebrew not required/Earn 16 credits

Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Some financial aid available.
Write today for information/application deadline March 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

"Withdrawal of our forces now would result in a bloodbath"

OUT
SMC
Meeting,

Monday, Sept. 13th

Room 174-176, 8:00 p.m.

Campus Center.

NOW!

PLAN THE

FALL OFFENSIVE

Speaker:

GEORGE KONTANIS

Coordinator of Boston Peace
Action Coalition.

If You Liked 'Willard,' You'll Love Stanley

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) An Oklahoma City scientist has nurtured a rodent strain that he says may be the rate to end all rats.

The animal is healthy and sexually vigorous, but he carries in his body a gene of sterility. On his forehead is a distinctive white spot marking his breed.

Dr. Allen J. Stanley, a physiology professor at the University of Oklahoma medical center, says he has capitalized on a genetic flaw to breed a strain of the common brown rat that carries the seed of his destruction of the species as a problem to man.

"It's a sterility gene that--paradoxically-can be bred into the rats to reduce their number of offspring drastically," he said in a recent interview.

Stanley said the United States could reduce its rat population of 90 million to nonproblem levels in less than eight years.

The federal government has budgeted almost $60 million for rat control since adoption of a huge program four summers ago, but the results so far are disputed. The nation's big problem is the common brown ratrattus norvegicus or the Norway rat.

Stanley calls it "the perfect parasite on man because it has learned to thrive on man's food and luxuriate in man's house. It has no natural enemies, is too smart for traps and poisons, and has been too prolific to control.

Stanley's male rats are sterile and can produce no offspring.

The females can have offspring if they mate with a wild rat, but they will pass along the dead-end gene to half of the baby rats. Half of the males will be sterile, half of the females will carry the gene on to the next generation.

The gene occurs naturally, Stanley said. But "the gene in the wild state occurs infrequently and so sporadically that it doesn't amount to anything.

Despite their sterility, the males are sexually active. And they induce in the female a false pregnancy that takes her out of circulation for 17 days, nearly the full time necessary to produce a new litter.

The genetic qurk that sterilizes the rat also leaves a distinctive white stripe or dot that does not appear on normal rats.

The mark makes it possible for even a layman, with only brief training, to breed the rats. Thus, says Stanley, a community could develop its own rat-control program.

Through years of experiments and breeding, Stanley has created a reserve of thousands of rats with the gene, both sterile males and the carrier females who will breed more like them.

Stanley now is experimenting to combine a second gene with the first, which would pass the defect to 75 per cent of each new litter. Ane he knows of a third gene which, he believes, when combined with the other two, would raise the sterility rate to 87-1/2 per cent.

Notices

AHEA:
Home Ec. Majors; AHEA invites you to a "coffee chat", today at 3:30-5:00 p.m. in Skinner Lounge to meet the new dean and new Home Ec. students. See you there!

APO GSS BOOK EXCHANGE:
Monday is the last day to turn in books to sell. Books will be sold all this week in the Dukes Room (first floor of Student Union) from 10-4 p.m. Get books cheap!

BLACK CORRIDOR:
There are several vacancies on the Black Corridor, 5th floor Grayson House (Orchard Hill). Any brothers that are interested in living on the corridor contact John Davis, Room 508 or call 546-6985. See What We're About.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
We need flight and ground instructors. Come to meeting 7:30, Rm. 165 C.C. Wed., Sept. 15th.

FENCING CLUB:
Men and Women Formulative meeting Sept. 24th at 7 p.m. in Activities Bldg. Rm 178.

FINE ARTS CONCERT ASSOC:
There will be a meeting for ushers & Fine Arts personnel on Tuesday, Sept. 14th at 7 p.m. in 125 Herter Hall. All interested please come.

IOTA GAMMA PUSILON:
Iota Gamma Upsilon cordially invites all University Women to a fashion show by Paraphenalia at 7:30 pm at 406 N. Pleasant St. Tuesday, September 14.

JAIL—TUTORIAL PROGRAM:
All interested in participating in a tutorial program in the Hampshire County jail for credit should attend ACTION LAB's first meeting, Wed., Sept. 15th at 8 p.m. in Rm 174-6 Campus Center.

RECREATION DEPT.:
Attention Rec. Majors Tues., Sept. 14 from 7-9 pm in Rm 163 (complex) of the C.C., the entire Recreation Dept. will meet for a coffee hour. We will discuss the events of the semester with our professors.

REVELERS:
Northeast Area Residents! Tues. & Wed. nites 7-9 pm in lobbies of Cashin, Brown & McNamara Dorms. Come meet others in your dorm. Refreshments. Sponsored by Revelers.

SCIENCE FICTION SOCIETY FILM:
Sex Starved Silicate Cells Seize Starlet! Peter Cushing in ISLAND OF TERROR, Hommer film in color, tonight at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. in Mahar.

SIMS:
There will be an introductory lecture on Transcendental Meditation Wed., Sept. 15 at 8 pm and again on Thursday, Sept. 16th at 2 pm. Both lectures will be in C.C. Aud.

STUDENT SENATE BUS:
Drivers needed for campus shuttle service must have Class II license. Call R.S.O. Office for info 5-2351.

STUDENT SENATE NEEDS:
A Part time secretary. Contact John Hogan 5-0341 after 2:30 p.m.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN:
Sorority Rush parties to be held today are: Sigma Sigma Sigma "Paper Flower Party", Alpha Chi Omega "Happy Holidays", Sigma Delta Tau "Welcome Party", and Chi Omega "Reflections". All parties are from 7-8 pm & 8:15-9:15 pm. All are warmly welcome!

VETERANS:
Veterans interested in playing I.M. Sports, football, tug o-war, badminton, soccer, etc. Call Pete 253-7851.

WHIST TOURNAMENT:
All welcome to Whist Tournament Sunday, Oct. 3rd, Gorman House Backyard. More details to come...

WOMEN'S DEPT. OF PHYS. ED.:
Two dance accompanists (one classical pianist, one percussionist) needed for classes; Call Mr. Crescione at 5-0027 or 5-2323.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

The Libra woman is an outstanding hostess; she perceives needs, desires of guests. She has a gentle touch and is expert at application of tender, loving care. This lady, when entertaining, is a combination of sophistication and childlike enthusiasm.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Conditions that appear settled may require some double checking. Be especially wary in connection with contracts, leases, property arrangements. Mate, partner may not be easy to understand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Dispute involving neighbor, relative can be successfully resolved. Be diplomatic. Realize an agreement is a two way street. Hold off on short journey. Give idea time to develop. Avoid rushing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Utilize innate ability to perceive story behind the story. Avoid tendency to rationalize. See persons, situations in light of reality. Applies especially to money transactions. Pisces may be involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Practical issues dominate. Changes due in home planning. Break away from routine. Study Gemini message. Don't take family member for granted. Budget controversy should be brought into open.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are reminded of past commitment. Finish what has been started. Seeking excuse for delay would be negative. Aries figures prominently. Look beyond immediate; be aware of fine potential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Surprise dividend due. Applies to work efforts. Emphasize originality. Creative research could uncover something of value. Proceed accordingly. Friends act in manner suggesting instability.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Join forces with creative individual. One born under Aquarius could fill bill. Accent now is on career. Chance for advancement, greater standing in community. Trust hunch. Explain views.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Family member may be working behind scenes. Be prepared for suprises. Emphasis is on journey, long distance communications, special correspondence. Sagittarius figures prominently.

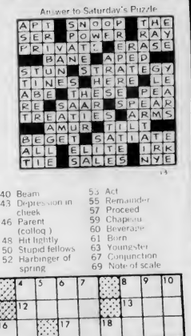
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check apparent minor points. Friend who is involved in extra-curricular activity tries to draw you into whirlpool of intrigue. Be cautious. Protect your own interests. Study Scorpio message.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appears to be a stalemate soon will be rocked into activity. Know this; be prepared. Establish more reliable lines of communication. Gemini and Virgo are involved. Ask questions; get answers.

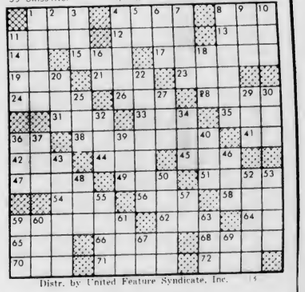
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Gentle approach is best; steer clear of needless arguments. Taurus, Libra individuals could play key roles. One who performs special services may be in transit. Check messages, calls. Be available.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Perceive personal needs. Don't permit yourself to be dissuaded from obtaining essentials. Emphasis is on children, romantic interests. Not wise now to play games with emotions. See in light of actuality.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you can be determined, at times stubborn, but you usually get job done and even those who criticize must grant you grudging admiration. Next month, new opportunities open. Recent emotional hurt will be forgotten as adventures occur which make you come alive.



Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Music: as written
4 Short talk
8 Vessel
11 Mark left by wound
12 At this place
13 Erst
14 Note of scale
15 Cravat
17 Tangled
19 High mountain
21 Algonquian Indian
23 Small rug
24 Trinket
26 Definite article
28 Strip of leather
31 Armed conflict
33 Conjunction
35 Expire
36 Pronoun
38 Wander aimlessly
41 Printer's measure
42 Ancient
44 Make lace
45 Small lump
47 Send forth
49 Communist
51 Distance measure
54 Deface
56 Canine
58 Female deer
59 Occur
62 Parcel of land
64 Exist
65 Everyone
66 Chair
68 Dry
70 Golf mound
71 Girl's nickname
72 Lair

DOWN
1 Weighing device
2 Symbol for tantalum
3 Skill
4 Defraud
5 Pronoun
6 Limb
7 Athletic groups
8 Stroked
9 Native metal
10 Spread for drying
11 Thick slice
16 Exists
18 Flap
20 Animal's foot
22 Intoned
25 Obstruct
27 Finish
29 Falsehood
30 Number
32 Soak
34 Condensed moisture
36 Sorrow
37 Shade tree
39 Swiss river
40 Beam
43 Depression in cheek
46 Parent (colloq.)
48 Hit lightly
50 Stupid fellows
52 Harbinger of spring
53 Act
55 Remainder
57 Proceed
59 Chapeau
60 Beverage
61 Born
63 Youngster
67 Conjunction
69 Note of scale

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Dan Kamal

In case you were wondering*

* * * *

Carl Yastrzemski should be playing for Calvin Griffith.

* * * *

Carl Garrett should wear football shoes with longer spikes.

* * * *

Joe Kapp picks the Patriots to finish last in the NFL this season.

* * * *

UMass voted Ed Marinaro the player of the century yesterday.

* * * *

Eddie Kasko scratched Bill Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli from his Christmas card list.

* * * *

Mike Taliaferro should put a rangefinder on his face mask.

* * * *

Patriot fans would do better testing the new plumbing facilities than watching the games.

* * * *

UMass will miss Julius Erving....tremendously.

* * * *

How about Carl Yastrzemski for Chico Ruiz?

* * * *

Or maybe Don Pavletich for Johnny Bench?

* * * *

Reggie Smith will definitely play for the Red Sox next season....IF he can have weekends off.

* * * *

Jim Lonborg is NOT back.

* * * *

Where the hell is Buddy Hunter?

* * * *

Is Jim Plunkett looking for loopholes?

* * * *

How about Eddie Kasko for Wally Cox?

* * * *

Who is Bob Orr?

* * * *

Luis Aparicio is not over the hill, he fell off.

* * * *

Doug Griffin IS a ballplayer.

* * * *

If Cal Koonce had stayed, would he have been a holdout?

* * * *

Is Ken Tatum REALLY the best righthanded reliever in the American League?

* * * *

UMass is losing football players faster than the New York Giants.

* * * *

Is Don Pavletich gaining weight?

* * * *

Carmen Fanzone is alive and well...somewhere.

* * * *

Boston College's heralded defense gave up seven touchdowns this week.

* * * *

Was Luis Tiant a good pick-up?

* * * *

Will Ken Brett ever make it?

* * * *

Would Eddie Kasko make Vida Blue a reliever?

* * * *

How about Sparky Lyle for Jim Bouton? (At least Jim can write.)

* * * *

Or what about Carl Garrett for Duane Thomas?

* * * *

Will Tom Yawkey sell his team to the Gerber Co.? (After all, it is their only business.)

* * * *

Is Aparicio as fast as they say?

* * * *

Rico Petrocelli is taking lateral movement lessons.

* * * *

Yaz is definitely worth $165,000....on a 10 year contract.

We needed to fill up space.

U.S. Swimmers Dominate

MINSK, U.S.S.R. (AP)—American swimmers almost completely dominated the first day of a U.S.—Russian-British meet Thursday, winning nine of 10 events and cracking the world record in the women's 400-meter freestyle relay.

The relay team capped the day's competition in the final event by flashing across in 4:00.7, bettering by one-tenth of a second the record held by East Germany.

The U.S. team was composed by Linda Johnson of Lakewood, Calif., Deena Deardurff of Cincinnati, Shirley Babashoff of the Phillips' 66 team and Kim Peyton of Portland, Ore.

Miss Johnson also led a 1-2 U.S. finish in the 100-meter freestyle, winning in 59.6 seconds to 59.7 for Miss Peyton.

It was just one of five 1-2 finishes for the Americans in the eight individual events as they ran up a point score of 119 to 73 for the Soviet Union and 48 for Great Britain. Russia had the only other winner in Galina Stepanova in the 100-meter breaststroke.

Giants Fall Again

(AP)-The Pittsburgh Steelers nailed the New York Giants with their sixth straight exhibition loss with a 20-3 decision in Yankee Stadium Sunday. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw completed 20 of 32 passes for 227 yards and one touchdown, and rookie linebacker Jack Ham intercepted three of Giant quarterback Fran Tarkenton's passes to lead the Steeler attack.

Jack Concannon and Kent Nix rallied the Chicago Bears to a 33-17 victory over the Denver Broncos. After trailing Denver 14-0, quarterback Concannon and Nix both hit receivers for TDs. Mac Percival kicked four field goals for the Bears.

Houston played New Orleans and Detroit was at Philadelphia in a nationally televised night game.

Sport Notices

Candidates for the Women's Field Hockey team should report to the WoPE field for try-outs on Sept. 13, 14, and 15th at 4:00 p.m.

Golfers-there will be a meeting Monday, Sept. 13th at 7:00 p.m. in Rm. 253 Boyden. Attendance is important.

Lacrosse-there will be a meeting of all Varsity and JV Lacrosse candidates for Fall Lacrosse Tues., Sept. 14th at 4:30 p.m.; Rm. 251 Boyden.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Redmen Tie

It was a bittersweet performance. Taking advantage of seven Cornell turnovers, UMass was able to gain a 27-27 tie despite a 500 yard offensive performance by the Big Red in front of a hometown crowd of 8000.

UMass broke out to a 14-0 lead on touchdowns by quarterback Piel Pennington and split end Steve Schubert. Pennington opened the scoring by sweeping two yards around end and then connected with Schubert on a 33 yard touchdown pass. The other two Redman scores came in the third quarter when linebacker Joe Sabulis recovered one of seven Cornell fumbles in the Big Red endzone, and Marty Evans hit Frank Wocanske with a 51 yard scoring strike.

Meanwhile, as might be expected, Cornell's All-American fullback Ed Marinaro was eating up ground yardage in big gulps. The big guy busted through the UMass defensive line consistently for sizeable gains and finished the afternoon with an amazing 244 yards on 37 carries. He scored all four Cornell TD's.

Coody Holds Off Nicklaus

AKRON, Ohio (AP)-Masters champion Charles Coody rebounded from the loss of four strokes on a single hole, held off Jack Nicklaus and won the $50,000 first prize in the World Series of Golf Sunday.

The rangy, red-clad Texan had a second round 73 for 141, one stroke over par on the 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course.

Nicklaus, who once held the lead but watched it slip away, had a final 71 for 142 and claimed the $15,000 second prize.

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton matched par 70 with the day's best round and finished at 143, three strokes in front of Lee Trevino. Trevino, still on the mend from a recent appendectomy, struggled home with a 74 for 146 and last in the four-man field.

Trevino, who insists he is completely healed from his operation appeared to be less strong than usual. He scrambled all day, in and out of traps but never abandoning his chatter with the galleries.

Coody, the first-round leader by three strokes, made it four with a birdie on the first hole.

But on the second, Nicklaus hit a six iron seven feet from the flag and made it for an eagle three. Coody was in the rough near an adjacent fairway on his tee shot, put it in the right rough on his second, bunkered his third and then three putted for a double bogey.

He bogeyed the fourth and Nicklaus had it alone-but couldn't keep it.

Jack bogeyed the fifth to drop back in a tie. Both bogeyed the eighth, then Nicklaus skidded with bogeys on the ninth and 11th, one on a three putt and one from a fairway hunker.

Revson Wins DonnyBrooke

BRAINERD, Minn. (AP)—Peter Revson chased down and caught world driving champion Jackie Stewart of Scotland on the third lap and then roared away to victory Sunday in the Canadian-American Challenge Cup road race at Donnybrooke Speedway.

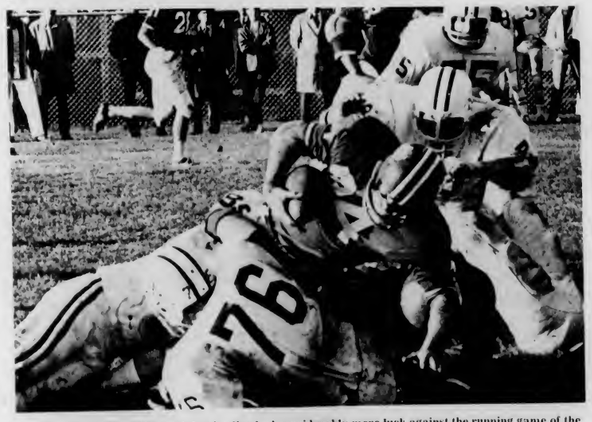
Revson, half of the Gulf McLaren driving team, charged by Stewart coming out of corner No. 4 and averaged 119.137 miles per hour around the winding three-mile course.

Revson, commanding leader in the Can-Am point standings after his fourth victory of the series, won $17,000 in the 90,000 race. Stewart ran into mechanical problems and finished sixth.

Denis Hulme of New Zealand finished second in the second orange-colored Team McLaren car despite having engine problems that nearly cost him second place in the late stages of the 210-mile race. Hulme won $13,000.

Vic Elford of England pulled to within 3.8 seconds of Hulme with just 10 laps to go but his left rear tire went flat, causing him to pull into the pits.

Elford wound up fourth behind Gregg Young, who won $9,300 in a Paul Newman-sponsored McLaren.



Young became the first driver in Donnybrooke history to break the 200-m.p.h. barrier by having his crew give his car an extremely long third gear, enabling the driver to take a 10 m.p.h. edge on the 1,000-foot front straightaway.

Joe Siffert, in a Porsche 917 Spyder finished fifth after spinning twice in the final eight laps because of engine problems.

Stewart made two pit stops, both for what he termed excess vibrations in his Lola T260.

Milt Minter, Porsche; Bob Brown, McLaren; Horoshi Kazato, Lola, and Bob Nagel, Lola, rounded out the top 10 finishers.

Three major contenders-Jackie Oliver in the Shadow, Lothar Motschenbacher in a McLaren and Jerry Hansen dropped out while running in the top five.

NO MARINARO: UMass' defensive line had considerably more luck against the running game of the University of New Hampshire than they did against Marinaro and company yesterday.

Nagle Leads Oldies

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) - Kel Nagle of Australia surged into a five-up lead over America's Julius Boros in the World Professional Seniors Golf Championship Sunday before a driving rainstorm forced a suspension of play after 13 holes.

The scheduled 36-hole match will be resumed at 9:30 a.m. EDT Monday from the 14th fairway, both players having hit their tee shots there before play was halted.

Nagle, 50, played the 13 holes in one over par on the 7,100-yard, par 72 Bide-A-Wee course.

He went out front immediately sinking a six-foot birdie putt on the first green while Boros, 51, was two-putting for a par five.

They halved the next three holes in par and then Nagle went two up at the par five fifth hole where Boros three-putted from 30 feet.

The Australian moved three ahead on the par three seventh hole with a par. Boros missed from six feet for a bogey.

Nagle turned in par 36, Boros in 40.

Both were lying four on the green at the par five 10th hole when play was interrupted for more than an hour by another downpour. After the long wait, Boros three-putted for a losing bogey six.

Fish Story?

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, St. Thomas (AP)—A world record 448-pound blue marlin was reportedly caught on 12-pound test line by a New York attorney in Virgin Islands waters on Labor Day.

The Virgin Islands game fishing club announced the catch made by Frank L. Miller is being submitted to the International Game Fishing Association for certification as a world record.

The current world record blue marlin catch on 12-pound test line is only 224 pounds and was made in 1960 in the Bahamas.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Rain, rain go away. Kill the whole day, go down and register to vote.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 65 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1971

"DEALING WITH RACISM is an everyday routine, and as long as it exists, it must be dealt with...Every individual will live out his life fighting racism."—Dr. Gloria Joseph, Co-Chairman of the Education School's Committee to Combat Racism speaking at the School of Education's Convocation. For more details, see page two.

Senate Issues Challenge To Campion

By ANNE STADNICKI

The Student Senate Executive Committee voted last night to hold off calling for a federal investigation of the room and board increase, pending the appearance of Vice-chancellor Thomas Campion before the Senate next Wednesday.

Questioning the University's rent increase in light of President Nixon's economic "freeze", the committee drafted an invitation (see this page) to Campion, asking him to "explain the actions which the University has taken in this area". If the Senate is unconvinced that the University legally established the increase prior to the August 14 deadline, they may call for the investigation, after the meeting.

Student Senate Counsel Richard Howland received a letter from the Office Of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) which provoked the challenge to Campion.

Late in August, Howland and Senate President Lee Sandwen had petitioned OEP, concerning the legality of the room and board increase. OEP responded that "if there were substantial transactions (10% or over of total) during the thirty day base period ending August 14th, 1971, confirmed by deposits, the increase could (sic) be charged". (The Cost of Living Council determined this criteria.)

Since the University claimed deposits by 14% of its students, the OEP ruled that the room and board increase was allowable. Regional Director A.D. O'Connor suggested that Howland submit a complaint to the OEP if he doubted the validity of the University's claims and they would "institute investigation action".

Howland is convinced, according to Sandwen. Howland believes that in the confusion over the freeze guidelines, the University did not deposit the fees until after August 14, even if they were received, Sandwen said.

Sandwen reported to the exec committee that Vice Chancellor Campion had refused to produce records of the accounts upon Howland's request. The invitation to appear before the Senate was a result of his information.

If a federal investigation is called, the University could be fined $5000 if it fails to return the students' money Sandwen said. He felt the university would comply if an investigation proved them in the wrong, however. This would mean a $25 return to each student.

The exec committee was concerned with what the proposed federal investigation and possible return would mean.

It was the general feeling that a return now would only mean a raise again later, because all the material increases were budgeted prior to the freeze. To offset the $250,000 it would lose to the students in returns, Senator Nick Apostola said the University might have to make cuts in extra benefits to residence halls, for example in renovations.

Just who has the responsibility to make the decision about the investigation was not determined at the exec council meeting. It is expected that the Senate will again go into the executive committee to decide.

Text of Letter To Campion

Mr. T.-B. Campion, Vice-Chancellor for Administrative Services
Whitmore Hall
University of Massachusetts

Dear Sir:

After communication with the Office of Emergency Preparedness, the Student Senate Executive Committee has become concerned as to the legality of the increases effected by the University in the area of room rents and fees.

With these considerations in mind, the Executive Committee, on behalf of the Student Senate, cordially requests your presence at the Student Senate meeting to be held at 7:30 pm on September 22, 1971, to explain the actions which the University has taken in this area, and to answer questions from the Student Body. We also hope that you would present all the necessary documentation of University action, conformance with federal wage and price controls, and to show cause why the Office of Emergency Preparedness should not commence an investigation into University fees.

Sincerely,
Lee H. Sandwen
for the members of the Student Senate Executive Committee

School of Ed Convocation

Racism, Modules, and Gluckstern

By DON GLICKSTEIN

The combatting of institutionalized racism was declared one of the most overriding committments of the School of Education by the Dean of the School, Dwight Allen. "To be alive in an age of transition is to be controversial", Allen at last night's School of Education convocation. "We must deal with the problems of education not in the 19th century that we now have, but with the problems of education in a new century."

The Dean introduced Professor Gloria Joseph, who outlined the first steps that the Ed School had undertaken to combat institutionalized racism. These included a weekend seminar on racism to be held on September 17th and 18th beginning at 8:30 AM, and open to the Education community including undergraduates.

Gluckstern Names Myths

The featured speaker at the Convocation was the Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, Robert Gluckstern, who parodied a recent article by Dean Allen in Psychology Today entitled "Seven Myths of Education". Gluckstern first acknowledged Allen's myths, by saying that the Ed School's priorities were not the subordination of affective factors, the perpetuation of a stable body of knowledge, and the beliefs that learning only took place in schools, that the educational bureaucracy will solve all educational problems, and that teachers are interchangeable parts.

The Vice Chancellor then related his own "Seven Myths About the School of Education", the first myth, being that Chancellor Tippo was going to speak at the Convocation, as erroneously advertised by the School and by the Collegian.

Gluckstern's other myths were:

-that Whitmore sets up "administrative obstacles" to the programs of the Ed School. Gluckstern explained that the obstacles arose because "each personnel appointment seems to set a new precedent," although the quality of the appointments is rarely questioned.

-that the resources of the University were unlimited as believed by the School. The former physics teacher also said that he enjoyed the aggressiveness of the Education School, because he knew that what resources were given to the School were usually used wisely.

-that the rest of the University has little to offer the School. Gluckstern decried that there were not more cooperative programs with the rest of the Campus.

-that all the resources of the University go into the School of Education, that the School is the administration's favorite. What the administration has done, Gluckstern explained, was to support the autonomy of a particular school. The Ed School is just as subject to the rules and regulations of the University as any other department. If anything, he added, the administration is more "watchful and cunning" with Education.

-that the School of Education's standards were low, that there were many gut courses, and that degrees were cheap and easy. School of Education programs, Gluckstern said, are "most challenging, interesting, and exciting, but assume a high degree of motivation and independence." The School should be measured, he asserted, by "the high quality of the best, rather than the low quality of the worst."

-that the State Auditor was so impressed by the budget and financial records of the School that he was going to use the School as a model. (The reference was to a state audit last summer which raised some questions as to the coordination of the Schools budget.) Dr. Gluckstern did say, however, that the Dean for Administration at the School, Phyllis Roop had done an admirable job in straightening out the figures.

Gluckstern finally urged that the recommendations of the Faculty, Senate evaluation of the School (which urged the curtailment of many Education innovations-ed.), although not necessarily right, were "well intended" and that they were worthy of serious consideration and response.

"Your ideas seem to echo in other institutions around the country", the Vice Chancellor concluded. "We're glad you're here. We're glad you're on campus. We're glad you're provoking us with new ideas."

Abolishment of Courses

Another featured speaker at the Convocation was Philip Christenson, a graduate student and director of the Completely Modular Curriculum (CMC) project. A CMC would break down and loosen the structure of existing course structures and individualize learning to an extent never seen before, according to the Dean who introduced Christenson. The Carnegie Foundation provided an initial planning grant, Allen added with a smile, because they couldn't believe that a major department in a major University would even attempt a CMC, and they couldn't believe that a graduate student (Mr. Christenson) would head the program.

Christenson explained that the results of the planning period would be presented to the School of Education Council for approval in November, and a request for approval for implementation would be given to the Administration in February, 1972. Christenson emphasized that the CMC would be implemented in a way that would not "turn Whitmore upside down, that will not involve a restructuring of the entire University."

Allen's Goals

With the aid of audio-visual equipment, Dean Allen summed up the Convocation and the goals of the School:

1) Combatting institutional racism.

2) Using structure to lead to freedom, not compete with it.

3) A dedication to competence, diversity, juxtaposition, creativity, and unity.

4) Social change through education. Transmuting, not transmitting culture, but in a legal, non-violent way in accordance to the intents of those educators should serve.

5) Alternative methods of education, including those evidenced by the current teaching training programs for undergraduates.

6) Questioning every issue in education. "We start with too many givens."

7) Exploration, experimentation, evaluation. "Our contingency plan is our people."

8) Freedom to fail. "You can't experiment and be right every time."

9) Rapid, thorough educational change. "A little bit of change hurts, but a lot of change doesn't hurt a lot more."

10) Viable urban education.

A last announcement of the Dean was that the School of Education catalogue, consisting of a collage of materials and packaged in a pizza box, would be available in a couple of weeks, free to all education graduate students, free on request to all education undergraduates, and costing $2.00 to all others.

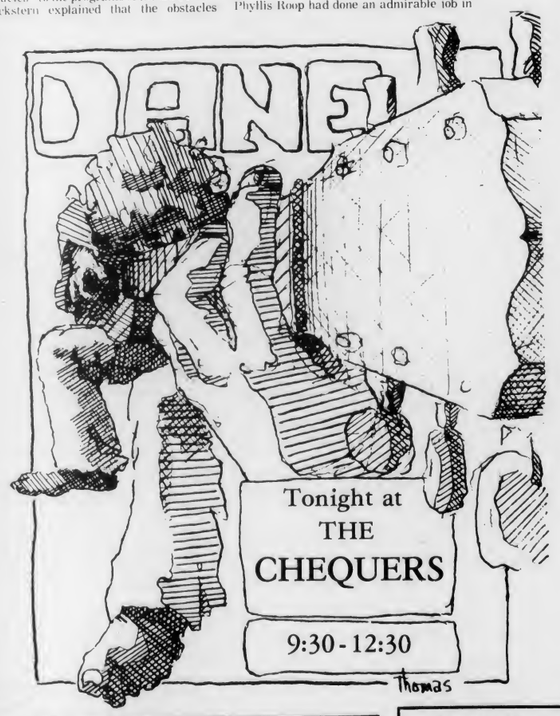
Ellsworth Barnard: The Student's Friend

By STEPHEN FINE

Ellsworth Barnard is waiting for you patiently in room 921 of the Campus Center from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. every day. He's UMass's ombudsman in residence, who can help you settle most of the bureaucratic problems you're encountering on campus.

Ellsworth Barnard

The ombudsman office was created to handle grievances or problems pertaining to the University. Dr. Barnard "'rouble shoots" for students, faculty, and administrators. He deals with complaints in housing, administration, and sometimes academics.



"I don't like to deal with academics because I can only help if it's something to do with procedure," he explained. "Last year for example, I helped a student who had a legitimate excuse for missing a 1 hour test.

In this job I always find 2 points of view, not that people are basically dishonest, but they usually see things in a different light", observed Dr. Barnard.

Dr. Barnard isn't new to the University circuit. He graduated in 1928 from UMass and taught here from 1930 to 1933. (Incidentally he knew Chancellor Tippo at the time, and remembers him as being very shy and skinny. He was known as "Tip".) After receiving his P.H.D. in English from the University of Minnesota, he taught at the University of Wisonsin, Alfred University and Bowdoin College. He has also written three books and edited two others. That's about a book every decade.

Ombudsman Barnard was appointed to his position last year by President Wood. He feels there is more need for an ombudsman today than when he was a student. "We just accepted the position we were in. We accepted our grades and courses without resistance. Students today are more involved."

"I think the faculty and student body should work together," Dr. Barnard said. "I see no need for conflict. That is what I'm trying to do here, I'm bringing people together to settle their disputes"

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

FALL SEMESTER — ISRAEL

Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study in Jerusalem, Israel/July-December, 1971
(40) students from 25 universities enrolled in 1970)

Juniors and Seniors eligible

Four courses/Hebrew not required/Earn 16 credits

Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Some financial aid available.
Write today for information/application deadline March 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

Town Recruits For Auxilary Fire Dept.

By BOB CALLAHAN

Starting this morning, a fire engine parked out in the front of the Student Union Building will mark the opening of the Town Of Amherst's Auxiliary Fire Departments Recruiting Drive on campus. It is hoped that the drive will add about fifty students from all classes to the forces dwindling ranks, and will be under the direction of UMass Grad Student Jack Watts and Amherst Deputy Fire Chief Homer Coles.

Watts, a graduate of the Fire Protection School at the University of Maryland and presently pursuing his Doctoral studies at UMass, is the Deputy Chief of the campus fire fighting contingent. Due to graduation last year there are only eight members of last years force returning. Therefore added emphasis is being placed upon this years campus recruitment drive.

A fireman's lot is a busy one.

When interviewed about the program, Amherst Fire Chief John Doherty said that he feels that this is an excellent opportunity for a young man to get involved in an excellent and worthwhile community service. He noted that an individual by taking part acquires a knowledge that is universal in it's application.

The training program which is tentatively scheduled to begin September 24th will be a program of four weeks duration. During this period of intensive training students will be trained at the Amherst Fire Department headquarters and at various locations around the town fighting simulated fires. According to the Chief, at the end of the training program the volunteer department will go into full operation.

At present, the town of Amherst has two fire headquarters which include five fire engines, one hook and ladder and two ambulances. Manning them are a staff of 24 full time men and all call force of eighteen.

Chief Doherty remarked that when the populations of Amherst and UMass is considered, the Amherst Fire Department is very small. The Chief added that the Town of Amherst provides the only fire protection on campus.

"They are not second class firemen," Doherty said in emphasizing the fact that a tremendous amount of responsibility is placed upon the student branch of the fire department. In carrying out their full fire-fighting responsibilities the group will have one engine in their command at all times which they will drive, pump and keep in working order. Officers will be appointed who will be responsible for the direction of the company.

The Fire Department will furnish all of the protective clothing needed; helmets, boots, masks, and coats. It was also noted that a great percentage of the students are always in radio contact with the fire department headquarters.

The students involved will be given permission to leave classes early in case of a fire alarm and also receive a sticker for their cars which permits them to park anywhere on campus. This makes it possible for them to assist anywhere an alarm sounds whether on or off campus.

No Word Yet On Voting

The Amherst board of Registrars of Voters met with the Board of Selectman last night and reached no firm conclusion about the time and place for the registering of students and other new voters. They repeated the guidelines for new registrations. All that is required is for the potential voter to appear in person at the Town Hall or at any special registration booth as established from time to time, and identify himself or herself and his or her present address. The registrant must also demonstrate that he or she has lived in Amherst for the preceding six months to the next election day by, for instance, showing a telephone listing, a lease, rent payment check or other proof that shows that he or she has lived in Amherst for the statutory period. Subsequent to Attorney General Quinn's ruling, his office has stated that summer vacations by themselves do not constitute a lapse of continuous residency for students any more than they do for any other members of the community. The six months requirement therefore applies through the summer to persons resident in Amherst continuously not necessarily at the same address within the town.

Rathskellar's Future Unsure

By ANNE GURNETT

In a continuing attempt to bring people into the Campus Center by presenting programs with appeal to the entire University Community, SUG Board has come up with Rathskellar- a type of night spot with a "pub" atmosphere. The aim of Rathskellar is to provide liquor and entertainment suitable for all students, regardless of age.

According to Bob Nims, president of SUG Board, the Rathskellar concept was provided for in the Top of the Campus budget but was never approved by the Trustees. It was also included in the liquor license granted the T.O.C.

Scheduled to open in the Southeast corner of the Blue Wall Cafeteria this Fall, the program ran into unexpected problems. Although the management in the Blue Wall was told to prepare for the opening of Rathskellar, the Trustees have refused to allow liquor to be served there. The problem will be brought before the Trustees at the October 8th meeting.

The Top of the Campus, Inc., passed a recommendation July 26th, 1971, recommending that Rathskellar be allowed to serve liquor. This motion was submitted to the Trustees for consideration pending their decision October 8th.

Meanwhile, the SUG Board has been laying the groundwork for the program in the hopes that it will be approved. Contacts have been made with beer and liquor companies but, according to Nims, negotiations have not proceeded far in case approval is not granted.

Musical entertainment on the 'Three Penny Opera' idea will be presented at the Rathskellar. There will also be television for sports fans.

SUG Board hopes that Rathskellar, if approved, will be able to handle the overflow from the T.O.C. and will become a place where those over or under 21 will be able to gether and pass time in a pleasant, relaxed atmosphere.

Mobe Set For Fall

By JERRY LAZAR

Resolutions which were adopted at last night's meeting of the Student Mobilization Committee (SMC) were to organize an October 13th student moratorium, and participate in a November 6th massive rally in Boston.

SMC is an issue group which has as its present objective the immediate withdrawal of all American troops in Southeast Asia.

The group's constitution, informally approved at last night's meeting, states that the SMC "welcomes and encourages the participation of everyone who opposes the war and is willing to work with the SMC on its projects....Anyone who agrees with the need for an immediate withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Southeast Asia is eligible for membership."

The group employs non-violent tactics for communicating its message to the people, particularly mass demonstrations. George Kontanis, of the Greater Boston Peace Action Coalition, spoke at last night's meeting, on the development and history of the peace movement.

Play at
THE WEDNESDAY NITE
Coffee House
call Ed at 545-2090
between 1-3 p.m.
BLUEWALL CAFETERIA EVERY WED.

If You Dig Music
Read On!
Special Offer
8-TRACK TAPES
$2.50 - $3.00
anything from acid rock to country western
Tremendous Savings
8-TRACK PLAYER
PORTABLE AC-DC
under $30.00
Plus much more - TVs, Radios, the works.
FOR INFO CALL 546-5648
and ask for Paul
Brown 204 B

dvp
THE
DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM
announces the beginning of its 1971-72 lecture series
with its first speaker
MR. JOSEPH HELLER
author of CATCH 22 and WE BOMBED IN NEW HAVEN
"An Evening with Joe Heller"
will be presented
Tuesday, Sept. 14, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.
An open coffee hour in the Colonial Lounge will follow the lecture

In The Nation And The World

HOT RATS. The white streak on the head of the left rat foreshadows his doom as he is one of the new strain which carries a selective sterility gene. He is being held by the strain's developer, Dr. Allen J. Stanley of the University of Oklahoma.

Prison Rio Quelled, 37 Dead

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP)-Massed forces of the state shot their way into Attica State Prison Monday to put down a four-day riot by mostly black convicts. Thirty-seven persons-nine white hostages and 28 prisoners-were killed.

Twenty-nine other hostages were liberated by 1,000 heavily armed state troopers and sheriff's deputies, backed in reserve by 70 truckloads of secretly deployed New York National Guardsmen. Twenty-five of the captives suffered injuries.

A spokesman for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said some of the hostage guards and civilian prison employees had been killed hours before the all-out assault on a lone cellblock still in convict hands. The governor called them "cold blooded killings" by revolutionary militants.

Only one death had been recorded prior to the final storming of the prison yard. A guard injured in the early hours of the riot last Thursday died Saturday.

A state spokesman said several of the hostages "had their throats slashed."

However, amid the rampage involving about half of Attica's 2,284 inmates, one of the hostages, E. Huehen, found his life spared by a convict assigned to kill him, who whispered instead:

"I don't have the heart to do it. I'm only going to prick you."

Huehen said the prisoner nicked him enough to draw blood, then lay down on top of him so other convicts would not notice he was still alive.

About 85 per cent of the convicts in the 40-year-old prison 40 miles east of Buffalo are Negro or Puerto Rican. Their guards are white.

With Rockefeller's approval, State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald gave up efforts to negotiate the hostages; release after nearly four days of trying. He said the mutineers "callously herded eight hostages within our view with weapons at their throats."

Oswald said the demand for total amnesty was out of the question.

When Oswald's ultimatum to release the hostages was ignored, he unleashed the state's armed forces. They were armed with shotguns and rifles, and had helicopter support.

The prisoners, driven back early in the riot to Cellblock D and its adjoining yard, had started out with only clubs and their fists as weapons. But they had since fashioned homemade knives and a state spokesman, Jerry Houlihan, said later:

"We found some had tear gas guns. They had erected barricades and had electric wire fences."

Behind volleys of gunfire, the massed force of troopers, deputies and corrections officials rushed the convict-controlled cellblock at 9:45 a.m. A heavy downpour lashed the prison, its red brick buildings spread over a 54-acre compound behind gray, 30-foot walls.

Above, their rotors pop-pop-ping, National Guard helicopters dropped can after can of tear gas into the yard, their crews ordering the prisoners over loud speakers:

"Place your hands over your heads and surrender to the nearest police officer. You will not be harmed."

It took about 90 minutes to break the riot.

News In Brief

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)-Col. Oran K. Henderson's former radio-telephone operator testified Monday that only hours after the My Lai assault he was told at Henderson's brigade headquarters that 160 persons, including women and children, had been killed in the operation.

Michael C. Adcock, Roanoke, Ala., said he received the body count on an unofficial basis from an unidentified enlisted man at the 11th Brigade operations center the night of March 16, 1968.

The witness' report of 160 victims was the first direct testimony at Henderson's My Lai cover-up trial of any discussion of dead at the defendant's headquarters.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)-Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told the nation's governors Monday that rising corporate profits are good for the average and poor American and should not be limited under the Nixon administration's proposals to spur the economy.

Several Democratic governors criticized Agnew's comments as a revival of Republican "trickle down" economic theory and polished a policy statement criticizing Nixon's tax proposals and calling specifically for limiting profits along with wages and prices.

Residents of the Northeast battled rivers and rains Monday in an effort to keep rampaging waters out of their homes.

Forecasters promised no immediate relief, although Tropical Storm Heidi's 55-mile-per-hour winds swerved away from land and appeared likely to continue out to sea and away from the eastern seaboard.

"It's one great big mess," said a spokesman for Parsippany, N.J., police.

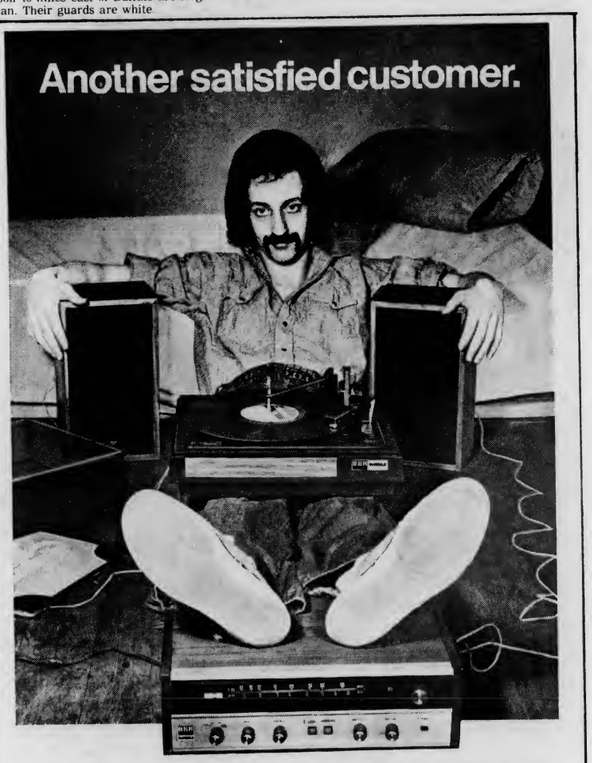
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-A fleet of 130 school buses rolled without trouble Monday but peaceful classroom boycotting was extensive as San Francisco became the nation's largest city to start court-ordered integration by busing.

Many of the new yellow buses assigned to carry some 26,000 of the city's more than 48,000 elementary school pupils to 97 schools stood empty at schools.

WASHINGTON (AP)-Business and labor union spokesmen veered off in opposite directions Monday on how to manage the post-freeze economy.

AFL-CIO President George Meany called for an excess-profits tax while Archie K. Davis, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said profits are at such a low level that controls are not needed.

James Roche, chairman of the board of General Motors, and Davis both rejected Meany's proposal that management of anti-inflation controls be turned over to a tripartite labor- industry-public panel when the current wage-price freeze ends in mid-November.



WASHINGTON (AP)-Two chemists reported Monday development of a new system of water treatment which they said may prove to be "the greatest breakthrough in water-treatment technology of this century."

Dr. A. P. Black, University of Florida consulting engineer, and Dr. C. G. Thompson, consulting engineer of Montgomery, Ala., said the new process-which uses magnesium carbonate in place of traditionally employed alum to soften or clarify water-should enable some of the nation's largest cities to reduce substantially the costs of water treatment.

It should enable them also to simultaneously alleviate their sludge-disposal problems, the chemists said.

WANT TO BECOME YOUR OWN
DEALER
We're looking for representatives to sell
RECORDS - TAPES - STEREO EQUIPMENT ON YOUR COLLEGE CAMPUS
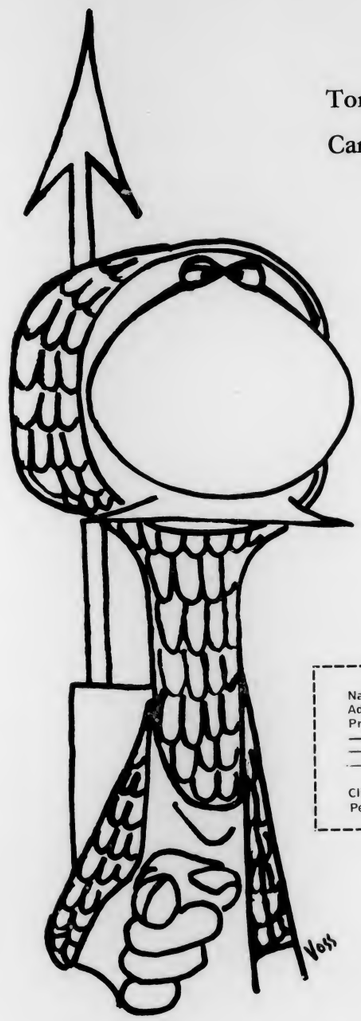
write or call: JEM RECORDS
P. O. Box 1167 Union, N. J. 07083 (201) 964-7947
This Offer Will Not Be Repeated

Another satisfied customer.

By the time Phil got through paying for tuition, late registration, student fees, books, and an outrageous deposit on his apartment, he didn't have a whole lot left for a stereo.

BSR McDonald makes the RTS-40A for people like Phil. It's a complete AM/FM/MPX Phono component stereo system. The receiver delivers an honest 50 watts and boasts excellent sensitivity and separation specs. The turntable is our best-seller, and comes complete with a matched base, tinted dust cover, and Shure magnetic cartridge. The speakers are true two-way sealed acoustic suspension, with amazing bass response.



We invite you to see the RTS-40A at your nearest BSR McDonald dealer. If you think it sounds good on paper, wait'll you hear it.

BSR McDONALD

BSR (USA) Ltd.
Route 303, Blauvelt, N.Y. 10913
Please send full-color catalog of your stereo component systems and automatic turntables. I enclose no money whatsoever.

Name
Semi-permanent address
City
State Zip

The Daily Collegian

Tonight At 7

Campus Center 162

Name
Address Phone
Previous Experience (if any)

Clip this out and bring it with you. Win a trip to Pelham.

United Features Syndicate Inc.

Wants You

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — John E. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti
SPORTS — Fred Rosenthal
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Gib Fullerton
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Join Up

There comes a time at the beginning of all semesters when campus organizations, be they Greeks, clubs or societies reach out to capture all they can from the incoming crop of freshmen. In this respect, the MDC is no different.

Any organization, in order to retain its vibrance and vitality, must continually replenish itself with new members willing to add fresh dimensions to old structures. Anachronistic groups often meet their doom by their inability to attract new members while other organizations profit. A lot of the clubs around here offer an opportunity to expend energy zealously for short periods of time in order to accomplish some desired end.

The Collegian has been around more years than most organizations because it has been able to bend itself when the situation has demanded, yet remain firm enough to establish itself as a fundamental part of this University. Unlike many other groups, the MDC offers a chance to expend energy zealously for long periods of time.

It is mandatory, we think, that a new student become involved in an activity early in his college career before the sediments of apathy are given a chance to fall in place. If nothing else, it provides an opportunity to get away from the narrow confines of the dormitory corridors. That the Collegian provides the best opportunity in this regard we firmly believe, yet we realize that others might have different preferences. Still, we urge you to give us a try tonight at 7 p.m. in Room 162 in the Campus Center and find out for yourself what New England's largest college daily is all about.

On a closing note, let us just remind you that Convocation will be held tomorrow morning. Though it may not be worth getting out of bed for, it does provide an infrequent opportunity to view in person Chancellor Tippo as well as some other lesser dignitaries. If you're in the area, drop in. Perhaps the Chancellor will give more attention to the direction of the University than to dogs.

"Got To Teach 'Em The Value Of A Dollar"

Art Buchwald

The Truth About Book Reviews

WASHINGTON--The average newspaper reader may wonder how a book editor goes about selecting someone to review a newly published novel or work of nonfiction. Except for the few books that the book editor chooses to review himself, the editor usually assigns the job to:

(A) A college professor.

(B) Someone who has written a book on a similar subject.

(C) A reporter friend who can use $25.

Now, each one of these people can cause trouble for an author.

The college professor usually doesn't review the book assigned to him, but uses it as an opportunity to discuss everything he knows about literature. His review may start off "Murray Slotnick is no Marcel Proust. When Proust was a boy..." Slotnick is lucky if the professor mentions his book even once in the review.

While the college professor is always getting sidetracked in his review, he is usually not malicious about Slotnick. If he ignores the book, he does it because the professor knows the reader is much more interested in his knowledge of writers of the 20th century than in Slotnick's latest work.

The second category of reviewer is the most dangerous. When the book editor turns over a newly published work to an author who has written on the same subject, the writer of the book is sunk.

Let us assume that Stump has just written "The Definitive History of Staten Island." The book editor assigns the work to Carstairs who two years ago wrote "The Definitive History of Staten Island." Carstairs has no intention of letting Stump's history replace his own and so he lacerates Stump in the review for factual inaccuracies, lack of depth, shoddy writing, poor illustrations and outdated street maps.

In fiction the situation is even worse. When an editor asks one fiction writer to review another writer's new book he is signing the latter's death warrant. There are very few writers of fiction who are capable of reviewing another writer's book without slashing off an ear.

Brubaker, the author of "Sit" starts off his review of Templebar's new novel "Big Toe" as follows: "Templebar, who showed so much promise in the Fifties with his first novel, "Postage Due," has once again disappointed his readers.." What nobody knows is that Templebar reviewed Brubaker's last book in a similar manner, and Brubaker is finally getting his revenge. (I know from personal experience that book editors operate this way because every time Russell Baker comes out with a new book I am asked to review it, and every time I come out with a book, Baker is asked to write about it. Since I have nothing good to say about Baker and he has nothing good to say about me, we have a deal. We each write our own reviews of our own books and sign each other's name. This is the only reason we've been able to remain friends for so many years.)

If the author had his choice of reviewers, he would probably choose the third category-- the editor's reporter friend who needs the extra $25.

The reporter, who is more interested in the money than he is in criticism, doesn't have time to read the book so he just types up everything printed on the inside book jacket and hands it in as his review. Publishers know this and that is why most inside book jackets read like favorable book reviews.

What of the blurbs that appear on the back cover and in the advertisements recommending the book in glowing terms? Those, dear reader, are written by friends of the author who haven't read the book but owe the poor guy a favor.

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Drug Laws - A Giant Step Forward

by Neil L. Chayet

The Massachusetts legislature is about to consider a major recodification of the state's drug laws. As it does so, we might pause to consider the catastrophic failure of our present laws. While we have by no means learned what to do about the drug problem, perhaps we have learned what not to do from the experience of the last decade.

Our present laws are entrenched in the criminal law and yet these laws have failed in nearly every sense to do what the criminal law is supposed to do. It is clear that they have failed to deter drug use. The figures of arrest and convictions, which of course represent only a tiny fraction of actual drug use, show the extent to which we have failed to deter. In 1966, the District Courts of Massachusetts handled 1000 drug cases. In 1968, there were 5000; in 1970, 12,500; and this year the figure will exceed 20,000. Last year there were 24,000 defendants in felony cases. Preliminary results of a study which I am now conducting show that 43.3 percent of these cases involved drugs other than alcohol.

The law has also failed to rationally distinguish between substances; that is, it punishes the possessor of marijuana as harshly as it punishes the possessor of heroin; it punishes transfer of marijuana (even when no money is involved) with 5-10 years in prison while the sale of amphetamines, far more dangerous, carries a penalty of only one year. The irrationality of these laws is further illustrated by the fact that to merely be in the presence of marijuana carries a penalty of 5 years in the state's prison, while to actually possess the drug carries a penalty of only 3-1/2 years.

The criminal law is supposed to punish aberrant behavior which is harmful to others. Drug use is so widespread that it raises the question of just what is and is not aberrant behavior and it may well be that it is only because the drugs used are different (i.e. marijuana rather than alcohol) that the act is punished as it is. Furthermore, drug possession in itself is not harmful to other persons and should thus not be the subject of the criminal laws.

The criminal law prides itself on punishment and yet overt punishment rarely follows conviction, with probation or continuances being the rule rather than the exception. Thus, the youngster who may be facing 30 years of combined penalties often walks out of court with his case continued as in a minor traffic violation. This makes a mockery of our system of administration of justice.

In addition to the drug laws not serving their purpose, these laws have been costly beyond belief. Although many young persons feel that they have beaten the system when they are placed on probation and not jailed, they soon find that the life of a convicted felon, even one who hasn't spent any time in prison, is not an easy one. The driver's license is quickly lost, and the felony conviction may prevent admission to law school, to medical school or many kinds of employment, activities which are already so competitive that persons with criminal records may simply be rejected out of hand.

And so, without achieving any of the goals of the criminal law, we have nevertheless criminalized thousands of young people in Massachusetts, and hundreds of thousands throughout the nation. The tragedy of criminalization is far more subtle than the criminal record which may result. The arrest, fingerprinting, photographing and dehumanizing of the individual is a process which can never be forgotten and which leaves on its victims an emotional scar as indelible as the felony record itself. Most tragic of all, through the force of law we have created an entire sub-culture which exists only to subvert and mock the law. Hundreds of young people, far removed from environments where criminal activity is rampant, have experienced the questionable "thrills" of evading the law and the accumulation of the fast money, so that we have lost to productive society even those who are not apprehended by the police.

In addition to the impact on the user and the seller, we cannot ignore the impact on an already sick system of administration of justice. The courts just cannot afford to spend almost half their time dealing with the futility of drug cases. The same youngsters keep returning to court: there are virtually no really successful treatment programs for the sick. As for those who are sick, the law still deters them from seeking treatment, because of the requirement which forces the doctors and hospitals to report them. If the doctor does not report, and many do not, he is placed in the difficult position of having to commit a crime to protect the sacredness of the physician-patient relationship.

The recodification will not end the drug problem in Massachusetts. It will not end the degradation and dehumanizing of the enforcement, arrest and trial and it will not immediately ease the burden on our courts because the recodification continues to utilize the criminal law. What it does do however, is to begin to apply some degree of logic and rationality to the problem.

For example, it would be the only statute in the country which ranks drugs for penalty purposes in terms of the harmfulness of the substance involved. Unlike the new Federal law, where marijuana is still ranked with heroin in Schedule I, the recodification places heroin in the highest schedule, but marijuana is ranked three schedules below. It would be the only statute in the country which would prohibit the jailing or fining of a first offender charged with possession of marijuana. The maximum punishment would be probation not to exceed one year, and at the end of the probationary period, the conviction would be expunged and for all intents and purposes, it would be as if the individual had not been convicted of a crime. In addition expunging would be discretionary in cases of first possession of all other drugs. Massachusetts would thus avoid what is happening in other states - marijuana possession penalties are reduced and a harsher result occurs, because judges will send people to jail for the shorter period of time.

And at last, some distinction is made with regard to types of pushers - so that someone who

Continued on p. 7

Letters To The Editor

It Happened One Spring

To the Editor:

Your editorial of September 9, contained an understandable but nevertheless serious error. It is not unlawful to use drugs of any sort, kind or description in either the United States or the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Perhaps it simply appears to be sophistry or subtle legal philosophy to point this out, but it is more complex than that.

You cannot be lawfully arrested for having smoked a joint, dropped a tab of acid, injected anything, any more than you can be lawfully arrested for having taken a drink irrespective of your age. You can still be lawfully arrested for doing any of the foregoing to the point of allowing yourself to become a hazard to the general public or to yourself in the judgement of a police officer or judge. The reasons why use by itself is not made unlawful include difficulty of proof, difficulty of identification of what has been ingested and several constitutional protections. Indeed, use to the point of addiction is a defense to certain criminal acts and areas of civil responsibility.

What has been made unlawful is the possession and sale of or traffic in the many proscribed narcotic drugs and implements associated therewith. Also being knowingly present where they are kept or used is a crime. The maximum penalties range variously from two and one-half years to ten years for first offenses depending on the precise charge and the drug involved. As has been pointed out the practice locally is to treat marijuana offenses "gingerly" with continuances, dismissals or probation. Second offenses mostly carry mandatory minimum sentences of five years without probation.

The crime is proved by the possession of the illegal substance or device. The evidence is obtained either by a police officer at the time of your arrest, or through a search conducted with a warrant, or by the testimony of third party witnesses (including police informers).

Obviously in the course of use of an illegal substance the user probably participates in a sale, and always is both in possession and knowing presence of the substance. You may argue that use is therefore criminal, but strictly speaking it is not. Anyone arrested for a drug or drug-related offense will be given the opportunity to request a medical-psychiatric examination to determine whether he or she is a drug abuser or addict. If determined to be either, criminal prosecution is stayed and therapeutic procedures are followed. Since this decision may result in non-penal incarceration, in a mental institution for several years, anyone faced with the choice should consult an attorney before making it.

Since use is not the crime or even a legal element of a crime, those students who persist in commiting the offenses of possession, presence and sale should remember that one incident has the same result in criminal law as a thousand. In other words one transaction in narcotics as middleman, runner, seller or whatever is worth the same five year term in prison. I have seen no evidence of leniency by any prosecutor in "sale" cases. I suppose if one is going to engage in this activity it is futile to emphasize that he probably is selling to an informer a certain percentage of the time-like last Spring.

Richard M. Howland

Correct The Record

To the Editor:

May I offer some comments relative to the Belchertown Volunteers section of the "University Committees Open to All" article (p. 31, MDC 7 Sept. 1971).

First, to correct the record, Belchertown is not a mental hospital as was stated, it is an institution for the mentally retarded.

Second, Belchertown Volunteers can serve not only as aids to staff personnel, or bring gifts to residents, but can serve in other ways. For example, UMass work parties have, in the past, contributed much productive labor. There are many projects underway. Help is needed now! If interested, please contact me at Boyden 2, or phone 545-2480.

Benjamin Ricci

Proliferating

To the Editor:

The "Reading Dynamics" signs are proliferating, and many students who wish to improve their reading speed may well hand over many dollars.

Any student interested in a speed reading course should be aware of one offered at no charge by the School of Education (and for no credit.) It will begin in October. More information about it will be forthcoming from Dr. David Yarington, director of the Reading Program at the School of Education. Last semester, more than 300 students participated in this service.

Don Glickstein

Mastering The Draft

Copyright 1971 by John Striker and
Andrew Shapiro

Are you making satisfactory academic progress this spring? If not you may be drafted next fall. Continuation of a student's II-S deferment depends upon his "satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction." Unsatisfactory progress is a legitimate ground for denying a future II-S.

The draft board must decide whether you made satisfactory progress during this academic year before renewing your II-S for the next academic year. Draft boards follow a key regulation that purports to lay down an iron-clad definition of satisfactory progress: "A student shall be deemed to be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction' when, during his academic year (i.e., the 12-month period following the beginning of a course of study), he has earned, as a minimum, credits toward his degree which, when added to any credits earned during prior academic years, represents a proportion of the total number required to earn his degree at least equal to the proportion which the number of academic years completed bears to the normal number of years established by the school to obtain such degree."

Mercifully, this legalistic formula concludes with its own built-in illustration: "For example, a student pursuing a four-year course should have earned 25 per cent of the credits required for his baccalaureate degree at the end of his first academic year, 50 per cent at the end of his second academic year, and 75 per cent at the end of his third academic year."

Suppose, however, that you are several credits shy of 50 per cent at the end of your sophomore year. Can you be denied renewal of your II-S for your upcoming junior year?

A negative response was recently handed down by the Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit (covering Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North and South Carolina). The Court held in Coleman v. Tolson that a student might still qualify for a II-S, even though, technically, he has not made satisfactory progress.

Coleman, himself, failed to earn 50 per cent of his credits by the end of his second academic year in a four-year program. He was just seven credit hours short of being a full-fledged junior.

The deficit was not Coleman's fault. Instead, it resulted from a school policy of requiring certain freshmen to pursue three semesters, rather than the normal two, before qualifying as sophomores. Consistent with this administrative policy, Coleman was a student in good standing in the eyes of the school. The school so informed Coleman's draft board, stating that he would fulfill all his necessary credits within the two years left before receiving his degree.

But the school's affirmation did not satisfy the draft board. Following the definition of satisfactory progress to the letter, the board reclassified Coleman I-A at the start of his third academic year and ordered him to report for induction. Finally, when Coleman's case reached court, the Fourth Circuit ordered the draft board to classify him II-S.

"Whether a student is 'satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction,'" the Court declared, "is a question of fact. In resolving that question the source of information and evidence is obviously the college administration. So long as a college certifies that a registrant is expected to graduate on time, and it appears reasonably probable that he can do so, he should be entitled to retain his II-S classification. When a college cannot certify that the registrant is expected to graduate on time, certainly a local board would have a basis in fact for terminating the deferment."

The Fourth Circuit by no means mandated that a draft board's determination of satisfactory progress must always be controlled by the school's certification. Quite to the contrary, the Court was careful to point out: "Even where the college certifies that the registrant is expected to graduate on time, in a given case a local board may nevertheless conclude otherwise, e.g., where the registrant is not passing the assigned work and has fallen further behind, there may be a basis in fact for discontinuing deferment."

Letters

As in previous years, the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letters will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

Editorial Points

According to Dwight Allen, A hole is never greater than the sum of its parts."

* * * *

Convocation provides a rare opportunity for many to catch a glimpse of what a Chancellor really looks like in person. But don't expect too much.

* * * *

Convocation also offers a chance to miss your 10:10 on Wednesday and not feel guilty.

* * * *

Recent Gallup and Harris polls show that President Nixon is gaining on Democrats Muskie, Humphrey, Kennedy and Lindsay. Well, since he's not doing many things right, they must be doing a lot of things wrong.

* * * *

Speaking of Nixon, he was recently told by a visiting Roman Catholic priest from Taiwan that mainland Chinese Premier Cho En-lai is "an insidious man", a "professional liar", and the priest went on to say that he did not believe any good could come from Nixon's forthcoming trip to China. It makes you wonder where he gets the rest of his information from.

* * * *

A "gut" course is a 100-level course in which the majority of those enrolled are seniors.

* * * *

The MDC is holding its first recruitment meeting of the year in Room 162 of the Campus Center tonight at 7 p.m.. Well, it beats going to Convocation.

Drugs - The New Law

Continued from Page 6

gives away less than one ounce of marijuana for no remuneration would not be charged as a seller, but treated as a possessor. Gone at last would be the laws making it a crime to be merely in the presence of a substance and gone also would be the statute requiring the reporting of drug users by physicians and hospitals. In addition, badly needed research could go on without fear of harassment and undue red tape.

Many will say that the recodification goes too far in easing the punitive posture of our existing laws; many others will say that it does not go far enough because it still allows arrest and trial of persons who use drugs. What is important is that it is a giant step forward to a more logical means of dealing with this great problem which all of us — parents, teachers, lawyers, doctors, police officers, judges — must face almost every day of our lives in one way or another. And almost as important as the recodification itself is the process by which it was achieved.

The long sessions held in secrecy and the total cooperation of the Governor, Attorney General, House Speaker, Senate President, Dist. Attorney Burke, working with Sen. Jack Backman and Reps. Michael Flaherty and Martin Linsky is a tribute to these men and illustrates that when we must deal with a problem as challenging and complex as drugs, such cooperation is possible.

Lastly, and most important, we have perhaps turned the corner and are headed toward a change of attitudes about the drug problem which, in reality, is not a drug problem at all, but is instead a problem of people. Perhaps we will soon realize that drug abuse is a symptom of boredom, of despair, and of estrangement of a whole generation who question the corporate state, the war, and the abyss in which we find ourselves in September 1971.

Perhaps we will be able to soon spend our time not in the costly futility of police stations and the courts, but rather in developing meaningful ways of treating those who have succumbed to addiction, and even more important, working to change our society so that for our young people it will once again be an exciting challenge to live within society rather than without. We have failed in our homes, in our schools, and in almost every institution we have developed to keep our young people "turned on" without drugs.

Let us begin now, before it is too late.

(Reprinted from the Boston Globe 9/13/71.)

Join The MDC

"What Do You Mean, Try It On Our Top Officials? That Would Be Insulting!"

Campus Films

Film Study Series Schedules Eighth Season

By HAL DASH

On Sunday evening September 19th at 7 and 9 P.M., the UMass. Film Study Series begins its 8th season. This year's series offers a wide range of films and genres. The series will cover the works of such noted directors as Cecil B. DeMille, Ingmar Bergman, Billy Wilder, Francois Truffaut and Michael Curtiz. From the golden thirties of Hollywood to the French New Wave to the macabre works of the German Expressionists, this group of films represents some of the classics of the wide screen.

There are ten films in the series with all screenings in Thompson 104 at 7 and 9 P.M. on Sunday evenings. Subscriptions and single tickets will be available at the door.

Folllowing is a short rundown of the individual films:

Sept. 19

"Male and Female" (1910) That masterful Hollywood showman C.B. DeMille rocked post-war America with lavishly set films depicting high society and the sexual revolution of the new "Jazz Age." The era of "bedroom and bathroom" scenes in film had arrived. "Male and Female" with Gloria Swanson and Thomas Neighan was "loosely" based on J.M. "Peter Pan") Barrie's The Admirable Crichton.

The adventures of a shipwrecked English upper-class family on a desert island offers an interesting and often romantic and amusing look at the changes in status between the family and their staff.

Sept. 26

"The Student of Prague" (1913) and Variety (1925) The series dramatically changes gear for its second program. The world of the German Expressionist film predominates in this double bill with Paul Wegener starring in "Student" and E.A. DuPont directing the great Emil Jannings in "Variety".

The Expressionist film was the product of a highly talented group of writers, technicians, actors and directors who employed the interplay of light and shadow among weird, often grotesque sets to explore the dark corners of the minds and souls of tormented characters.

Wegener as the "Student of Prague" sells his soul to the devil, and the soul eventually returns to cause horror and tragedy in the Student's life. The film was shot on location in the old section of Prague to increase the grim overtones of the main theme.

"Variety" with Jannings again centers on an inside glimpse of the workings of the tortured mind. In this case the main character, a circus performer named Boss Huller must deal with the romantic intentions of a fellow performer, Artinelli, toward his mistress. This triangle and the tensions within it lead to murder in the end.

Oct. 5

"Le Million" (1931) Comedy, music and light melodrama are all ingredients of Rene Clair's sparkling film. The search for a lottery ticket takes both heroes and villains on a madcap chase through the streets, theaters, businesses, and police stations of Paris.

Clair throws satire, burlesque, slapstick, romance, witty dialogue and songs into this celluloid stew which The New York Times called "scintillating entertainment."

Oct. 17

"The Private Life of Henry VIII (1935) For those of you who enjoyed the CBS series on Henry's wives, this Alexander Korda film should be just as interesting and entertaining. With 5 of the wives appearing in the film along with Charles Laughton as the gluttonous Henry there will be plenty of court intrigue, beheadings, plotting and fine character portrayals. Few of Laughton's performances were better.

Oct. 31

"Captains Courageous" (1937) It's back to the Hollywood of the Golden Thirties era for Spencer Tracy, Freddie Bartholomew, Lionel Barrymore, Mickey Rooney and John Carradine in the film version of Rudyard Kipling's tale of the Gloucester, Mass. fishermen.

Victor ("Gone With the Wind") Fleming directed and Hal Rossan photographed some of the finest action of the stormy Atlantic ever seen. The fine performances by many in the cast helped prove why MGM was called "The Home of the Stars."

Nov. 7

"Mission to Moscow" (1943) Undoubtedly one of the greatest propaganda films ever to be made in Hollywood, Warner Bros. "Mission to Moscow" helped rally the American public behind the position that the Russians were reliable and friendly allies.

The story revolves around U.S. Ambassador J.E. Davies' diary of his experiences in Russia with Walter Huston in the lead role.

Director Michael ("Casablanca") Curtiz combined actual newsreel footage along with authentic studio sets of Russia to make even the atrocities of Stalin's Purge Trials seem justified and necessary.

Nov. 21

"Summer Interlude" (1950) Ingmar Bergman's 10th film reveals a struggle many go through in life. Having lost a loved one during a beautiful summer love affair, Marie (May Brett) retreats into a shell, barely existing in any sense. For 13 years she only looks forward to the warm rays of the summer dream world where her memories are stored. She shuts out and despises all other seasons.

Much of this film is autobiographical. Bergman, as usual, has a lot to say about love, communication and memories. He utilizes his native Sweden and the symbolism of nature's presence to reflect the emotional and psychological make-up of the characters.

Dec. 5

"Sunset Boulevard" (1950) A fading film star (Gloria Swanson) trying to make an impossible comeback, her ex-husband (Eric von Stronheim) now acting as her servant and an aspiring devious young scenarist (William Holden) constitute the principals in Billy Wilder's "Sunset Boulevard."

This film took a hard cold look at Hollywood as a town and movie-making center with the old guard resisting the rise of the new wave of talent.

Praised by almost every critic, "Sunset Boulevard" boasts a grand supporting cast which includes C.B. DeMille, Buster Keaton, Jack Webb, Fred Clark and the venemous Hedda Hopper.

Dec. 12

"The 400 Blows" (1958) Francois Truffaut's first feature length film is largely autobiographical. 12 year old Antoine has experienced a turbulent and shaky home life. He is driven into a world of fantasy in which a statue of Balzac becomes Antoine's God. In school he cheats, and in town he is a petty thief. Yet he is sensitive, intelligent, and he possesses an independent spirit.

Truffaut's mobile camera captures both landscape and buildings and creates some highly visual metaphors. He uses the freeze frame in interesting ways as he takes a long, hard and condescending look at the world of parental authority. Childhood is seen in a contrasting perspective and the audience can decide the degree of validity in Truffaut's statements.

Dec. 19

"Privilege" (1967) The final film in the series, Peter Watkins' "Privilege" throws light upon the contemporary rock music scene and the PR men, manipulators, big capitalists and fringers who successfully use singer Steve Shorter (Paul Jones) to rip off young audiences.

In an almost documentary style the singer is seen performing before his frenzied screaming audiences. When his managers think of a new gimmick and turn the naive singer into a religious figure, the fans once again shower their loyalty to Steve. They also shower the managers with great sums of money.

This pointed study of how people fall for illusions instead of reality makes "Privilege" a bold, sometimes amusing, but mostly stark film. Jean Shrimpton also stars.

Joseph Heller To Speak Tonight

Novelist-playwright Joseph Heller will open this year's Distinguished Visitors Program this evening at 8 in the Student Union Ballroom. Entitled "An Evening With Joseph Heller," the program will present the author reading from his acclaimed works Catch-22 and We Bombed In New Haven along with discussing current issues of the day.

The lecture is open to the public free of charge and a coffee hour will follow in the Colonial Lounge.

Rent a refrigerator for your room. Just $4.44 a month.*

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Free pick-up and delivery
- Guaranteed—if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

CALL 256-8488, 253-2494

mini kool

*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.

Albums

New Groups And Some Old Favorites

By FRANK JOHNSON

Gypsy: In The Garden
Metromedia KMD 1044

"Well the gypsy in me...(is) OK, so I think it's safe to say, I'm gonna make a play."-Jimi Hendrix

"Went to see the gypsy, staying in a big hotel..."-Bob Dylan

"She was a gypsy woman..."-Curtis Mayfield

As the above quotes illustrate, the gypsy preoccupation, like the concurrent interest in voodoo, is on the minds of everyone-including big name stars like Hendrix and Dylan. There is clearly something enigmatic about that Eastern European ethnic group, some of whom use a crystal ball instead of a computer.

My crystal ball (or computer) says that this new rock group, Gypsy, has a bright future if they continue to produce material such as is featured on their album, In The Garden. Gypsy is a talented foursome consisting of Enrico Rosenbaum, guitarist and chief songwriter; James Walsh (not to be confused with Joe Walsh of the James Gang) on keyboards; William Lordan on drums, and Willie Weeks on bass. By its very nature, Gypsy has an ideal balance of instruments. They offer something extra as opposed to a potentially monotonous trio, yet they are a group simple enough to avoid the crowded, uneven sound of a too-large group.

Gypsy, like many groups of its kind, is not totally innovative, and therein we can make a few preliminary judgements. Enrico Rosenbaum's song are not atonal, nor do they have complicated chord changes and structure. Because Gypsy is not innovative, their style almost sounds familiar the first time the album is played. Aha! You say: Santana! However, Gypsy is very unlike Santana. They do not go in for South American music the way Santana does, and their sound is much more varied. Santana is so big these days that their music is practically a cliche, partly ipso facto, and also partly because of overexposure.

Musically, Gypsy has a style all its own. Rosebaum's songs include a dominance of sevenths and ninths performed by the organist, James Walsh. Weeks' bass counterpoint is not restricted by this dominance, which lends a beat eligible for many watts on the stereo rig. Gypsy's vocals are very harmonic-not a raw, visceral Morrison-type solo that pervades the music, nor a growling, Claptonian predominance. Their improvisation is well thought-out on all instruments, especially Rosebaum's guitar. All of the songs modulate considerably, but in the final analysis return to sevenths and ninths, a style preferred by Gypsy.

The opener, "Around You", has all the performers playing in about equal balance (few solos), and was the one song with which I was familiar prior to playing the album for the first time. Enrico Rosenbaum's guitar took over in the next song, "Reach Out Your Hand", and the vocals were featured strongly. "As Far As You Can See....", the song following, features an interesting instrumental improvisation, and is also the longest song on the record, running a little over 12 minutes.

I was particularly impressed with Part I of the title song, "Here In The Garden", beginning Side II. The soft acoustical guitar and the even harmonics, played in the interesting D sharp key, stand out in the entire album. The second half of the same song, unfortunately, is given over to a boring drum solo, presumably included to let you know that Willie Lordan is still alive. Guitar counterpoint was superb on "Blind Man", another standout. Here both acoustic and electric guitars were blended together in an unforgettable fashion; the chord changes and modulation also impressed me greatly. James Walsh wrote the last piece, a piano work entitled: "Time Will Make It Better"; his solo and interesting chords end the album with a subtle reminder-if what Walsh says is true, then I look forward to Gypsy's next album. I might add in the words of the late Jimi Hendrix: I think it's safe to say that Gypsy will continue to play well.

New Zappa And Airplane

By STEVE FELD

BARK-Jefferson Airplane (Grunt Records)

It's been almost 1 1/2 years since "Volunteers", the last new Airplane album has been released and the music on "Bark" is similar to its predecessor. The opening cut "When the Earth Moves Again", is comparable to "We Can Be Together". The chord changes, melody and harmonies are similar, yet it is still outstanding as a separate piece of music. "Crazy Miranda" has Grace Slick commenting on Women's Lib:

"Crazy Miranda lives on propaganda. She believes everything she reads."

Two of Paul Kantner's songs "Rock and Roll Island" and "War Movie" are in the same vein as the songs on his solo album. Once again, the prevalent theme is one of isolating masses of freaks to start their own world.

The absence of Marty Balin, once leader of the group, goes virtually unnoticed on record, while the addition of Joey Covington provides for some good drumming but definitely inferior songwriting.

"Bark" marks sort of a standstill for the Airplane. But it still makes for some good listening.

STEREO COMPONENTS

A purchasing co-operative has been formed to sell equipment at people's prices - 3 to 4% over cost. Scott, BSR-McDonald, Sony, Marantz, AR, Dual, Akai, Rectilinear, Dynaco, etc. Most top brands.

Call 546-8902 9 A.M. to 9 P.M.

Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics

Take a free Mini-Lesson and increase your reading speed on the spot!

Take a Free Mini-Lesson

In 60 minutes, over 80% of our Mini-Lesson audiences increase their reading speed. Just a little, but enough to know what it's like. At the Mini-Lesson, you will find out how the Evelyn Wood technique handles difficult textbook material. How it improves memory and concentration. And, how it makes reading a pleasure instead of a chore. The Mini-Lesson is one hour that could change your life, too!

UNIV. OF MASS., CAMPUS CENTER RM. 908

One of these dates
Tues. Sept. 14 at 4 p.m. or 7 p.m. or 9 p.m.
Wed. Sept. 15 at 4 p.m. or 7 p.m. or 9 p.m.
Classes begin Thurs. Sept. 16 at 7 p.m.

PAUL MURPHY

253-2425

Another Stereo System

from Amherst Audio that our competitors are sure to say nasty things about.

Here is our newest modestly priced ($300.00) system

Harman-Kardon 230 FM Stereo Receiver (45 watts IHF at 80 HMS)
2 EPI Model 50 Loud speakers
Garrard SL55B Automatic Changer w/Base and Dust Cover
Grado Magnetic Cartridge with Ellipticall Diamond Stylus.

Amherst Audio warrants this system to be free of defects for two years, including the changer and needle.

We know of no other stereo system under $340.00 that will reproduce music as faithfully.

AMHERST AUDIO

197 No. Pleasant St.

Draft Counselor's Corner

Pay Attention, This Could Be Complicated

by Gilbert J. Salk

There seems to be a great deal of misinformation about the lottery floating around, so let's spend some time talking about Uncle Sam's answer to "You Bet Your Life."

As most of you probably already know, your lottery number is drawn the year you turn 19. However, you cannot be drafted until the year you turn 20. In other words, if you received your lottery number in this year's drawing, you cannot be drafted before January 1972. If you got your number last year, then this year is your first chance to serve in the U.S. diplomatic corps. The year in which you are eligible to be drafted is called your liability year.

Okay, pay attention now, because it starts to get complicated. You begin serving your liability year only when you do not have any deferments, but you always retain your original lottery number. A liability year runs from January 1 to December 31. If you do not have a deferment on Dec. 31, then you are considered to have been eligible for the draft for the entire year--even if you only spent that one day without a deferment.

Time for an example or two.

Little Johnny turned 19 on Aug. 5, 1971. Let's assume that his lottery number is 250. Even though his number will probably not be called this year, he will still not be free of the draft, because he cannot serve a liability year until the following year. He should hold onto his student deferment until December 1972.

Joe Cool (alias Snoopy) turned 19 on June 5, 1969. Let's say his number was 225. On December 20, 1970, he wrote to his board to tell them that he wanted to give up his student deferment and be reclassified I-A. (Of course, he kept a copy of the letter for his own records, and sent it Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested.) The board got his letter on Dec. 24. Joe was automatically reclassified I-A, and on Dec. 31 he had served out his eligibility year. Because his board had not reached his number, Joe was dropped into the Second Priority Pool, and was safe from the draft.

If the board had reached Joe's number, then he would have been placed in an Extended Liability Pool, and would have beencalled up before the board started drafting any of the people in the 1971 liability pool.

Confused? Good. That's exactly what the lottery is all about. It also serves to cut down on anti-war protests because people with high numbers don't have to worry about themselves, and few of them seem to worry about their brothers with low numbers. However, let's run through it once more.

If you got your number this year, get and keep your student deferment at least until December of next year. If you got your number last year, or earlier, keep your deferment until this December. Early in the month, check to see what number is being called. If you number is higher, drop your deferment. If it is lower, keep your deferment at least until next year. Hopefully, the numbers will be lower next year, (after all, it will be an election year) and you will stand a better chance.

If you are still confused about what course of action you should take, visit Draft Counseling Services in 923 CC for free advice and expert counseling.

A note of interest. The United Christian Foundation is sponsoring a coffee hour on Friday from 1:30 to 3:30 in the Student Union Colonial Lounge. Featured will be a very heavy tape by Father Daniel Berrigan. Berrigan is currently in prison, with his brother, for destroying draft records to protest the destruction of babies in Vietnam. The Government has also claimed that he conspired to kidnap Henry Kissinger and blow up steam pipes in Washington. Berrigan was supposed to deliver a sermon at Smith College when he was indicted for burning the draft files. He was forced to go underground, and sent the tape in his place. Dig it, folks. It's got a lot to say to you about how you relate to the draft and the rest of the death machine.

I'll be there with some other folks to rap after the tape. See you there.

PEACE.

Blacks Working Toward Organization

The Black Community met saturday prior to Jean Wiley's talk to "give direction toward further work and organization" in the words of Mike Thelwell, Director of t Mass Black Studies.

"If we Blacks can't organize on a local level, in a University community, how can we possibly organize on a national level?" Thelwell said. "If the Black population is not organized, it is impossible to confront the white community or the Administration."

The consensus of the group was that no central Black organization exists on this campus. Members of the group expressed a growing need for one which would unite the Black community at UMass, however.

Almost a dozen autonomous organizations act with and for the Black community at present. They range from the Black Cultural Center, responsible for bringing activities to Black students, to DRUM, a Black campus literary magazine. The Community plans to meet again to map out action.

Convocation Ceremony Tomorrow

Opening Convocation, the ceremony marking the formal beginning of the 1971-72 academic year at the UMass will be held tomorrow at 10:10 a.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Chancellor Oswald Tippo will give his opening address to the academic community and present the annual Distinguished Teacher Awards. Student Senate President Lee Sandwen will speak. All members of the University community and the public are invited.

The traditional academic procession of robed faculty and staff will begin the convocation. The procession will be led by the bearer of the University Mace, William H. Ross. Traditionally, this honor is given to the faculty member who has held the Distinguished Teacher Award for the longest time. Dr. Ross, professor of physics, won the award in 1962.

Three Distinguished Teacher Awards will be given for "Manifest excellence in the art of teaching and outstanding devotion to the cause of education." The awards are made by an all- University committee and carry a $1000 stipend.

Presiding will be Dr. Robert L. Gluckstern, vice-chancellor for academic affairs. The invocation will be by Rev. Arnold M. Kenseth, minister of Amherst's South Congregational Church and an English department faculty member. Larry Weed will direct the University Band.

Classes beginning at 10:10 a.m. Wednesday have been cancelled to enable faculty and students to attend the convocation.

Bleeding Rose Strikes Again

A grad student in philosophy, Bob Zelman will be teaching private (non-university non-credit) courses in philosophy and religion in the Amherst area. The courses will cover areas such as: East rn-Western Religions, Hum nistic Psychology and Existentialism. Topics will include: Freedom, Death, Sex, Meditation, Drugs, Male-Female Liberation, Astrology and the I Ching which is an old Chinese book which can foretell the future.

Zelman will be using a multi-disciplinary approach which will include work with novels, music and poetry. Last year Zelman did poetry readings on campus of poets such as Ferlinghetti ("Tyrannus Nix") Ginsberg, Patchen and Lenore Kandel.

When asked who the course would appeal to, Zelman replied, "I am hoping to reach those people who are curious about philosophical questions but who, for one reason or another, believed that philosophy was too unintelligible or too boring to study. I believe that philosophy has many exciting things to say about the basic questions of human existence such as: who am I, what is real, does God exist, etc. However, the courses will also be interesting for more advanced students."

Zelman will be charging a small fee for the courses "depending on the size of the group."

Tonight Sept. 14 at 8 o'clock p.m. there will be a free first meeting on the 9th floor Lounge of the Campus Center. If you can't come to the meeting you can write to Zelman, c/o Bleeding Rose at Hamlin, Dormitory Room 402.

"Paraphenalia"
Fashion Show
at
IOTA GAMMA UPSILON
Tues. Sept. 14, 7:30 p.m.
406 N. Pleasant St.
All Women Welcome

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

For Sale, 67 VW Bus. Excellent cond., no rust, 40,000 mi. $900 253-7438. tfp/10-15

65 VW Beetle. Excellent condition 256-8730. tfp-17

1970 Camaro, must be seen. Call 584-2273 (m. f. aft. 6). tfp-17

1968 Triumph Tiger 650 cc, excellent condition. $250 or best offer. 256-8087. tfp-17

1965 Corvair - Corsa, 4 spd, 4 carb., good condition. Best offer Call 253-3886 after 5 p.m. tfp-15

67 Mustang, A.T., V8, good condition, $900. Call Jeff 256-6726. tf 9-17

1962 VW, fair body, rebuilt engine, gas heater, sun-roof, excellent tires, $250 or best offer. Call 665-4002 after 5 p.m. or keep trying tfp-20

'68 Fiat, red, 850 Spyder 33,000 miles, good cond. Call 549-1161 evenings after 6 p.m. tfp-22

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sal, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or jumbo $49.95. Immed. deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 417, Amherst. tfp-22

Excellent new FM Tuner, $15.00; 18 inch portable TV, $20.00; new electric Presto Broiler Bake Oven, $15.00. Call 256-8437. tfp-11

Small kitchen table 21x36 w/2 chairs, 24 inch kitchen sink on metal base, Jacobson reel mower, self propelled. 323-7046 after 6 p.m. tfp-16

Dorm or apartment size refrigerator, brand new; gorgeous Empire walnited wedding gown, Princess style. Best offer. 194 Puffton Village. tfp-11

Rogers drum set, 4 pcs plus cymb. plus hdwre. $250 or best offer. Good condition. Call Jim 586-1654. tfp-11

Sleep on a waterbed tonight. All sizes and all frames. $19.95 and up 5 yr. guarantee. Call anytime Jerry 256-8370. tfp-16

DUMP NIXON '72 - lg. red, white and blue decal (emphasis on "DUMP") $1. Dump Nixon '72, Box 97, College Park, MD 20740. tfp-15

Double bed mattress and springs, single bed frame. Price negotiable. call 549-6961 after 6. tfp 14

1 yr. old Sears Coldspot refrigerator with freezer and ice cube tray, approx. 9 cu. ft. Price negotiable. Call 253-7464 after 5. tfp 17

2 Matching quilt bedspreads for sale $3.00 each. Call Donna at 546-1164 or Deb at 546-6372 tfp-18

GE portable stereo, excellent condition, ideal for dorm or small apartment, make offer. 549-6565. tfp-16

APARTMENT WANTED

Sr. girl needs room desperately. Will share expenses and help w furn. Contact Ruth c/o Lisa Fiallo, 404 Melville. tfp-15

ROOMMATES WANTED

Couple wanted to share large new two bdrm. apt. in Belchertown Woodsy location. Leave name and number in Machmer E-21. tfp-14

One girl or couple only. If you need a place to stay until Dec. 31 Call aft. 6, m-f 584-2273. tfp 17

Fem. Grad in Ed Sch seeks rmmt for 2 bdrm., 2 fl apt in ren. hse on farm, triple exec. oil. $132.50 mo., 13 Middle St., Hadley, 586-3781, Judy. tfp 11

Commune for 2 female housepartner, 21-up wanted. La rent but very rough. Working male Con Ed. student 253-7273 after 5 or Box 792. tfp-17

2 Roommates wanted to share room in 3 bedrm furnished apt. $70 - $75/month Colonial Village, Amherst, Apt. 100. tfp-15

MUSICIAN WANTED

Singer needed to fromi versatile group (rock, ballads, old standards) Must be experienced. Call Steve 256-8864. tfp-17

HELP WANTED

Students to deliver Boston Herald Traveler in Orchard Hill, Central and Quad. Pretty good salary. Call Paul at 549-6614. tfp-15

Any UMass student with Class II drivers license to drive Campus Shuttle Bus. Call RSO Office 5-2351. tfp-17

If you are CPI or Grad. Instr., please see us at next Collegiate Flying Club meeting, Wed., Sept 15 at 7:30 p.m. in rm. 163 CC. tf 9-15

WANTED

Experienced Black Belt in Karate for sparring practice. Call Ron 586-8855, 1600 John Adams. tfp-15

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted from Campus to Longmeadow or Springfield, Mon., Wed., Fri. to leave 12:15 p.m. or somewhat soon thereafter. Will pay. 367-8317. tfp-15

RIDE OFFERED

Travel from Framingham to UMass on Tues. and Thurs. and would like a rider. Call 617-875-1035. tfp-17

FUNK

Join the staff of the Daily Collegian. Recruiting meeting tonite at 7:00 p.m. in 162 of the Campus Center!! 9-14

LOST

Reward - 10 week old Doberman-shepherd, long flea collar in large knot. Name Gus. 549-6190 tfp-16

The No compromise Record Player for the Compromised Budget

(A Reduction in Price on a Demonstrator)

Pioneer SA900 Stereo Amplifier (60/60 watts RMS into 40 HMS both channels driven simultaneously from 15H2-22KH2)	$259.95
EPI Model 202 Floor Standing Console Speakers 4-16 OHMS 26-18,000 H2	398.00
Pioneer PL41A Studio Type Transcription Turntable (Belt drive 1/8 H.P. Motor)	220.00
Bang and Olufsen SP12 Magnetic Cartridge (EPI Endorsed)	70.00
List	$947.95

$552.00 Complete

All units fully guaranteed and are in nearly perfect condition.

AMHERST AUDIO
197 No. Pleasant St.

Notices

ANGEL FLIGHT
Meeting 7:00 pm Tonight in 210 Dickinson Hall

ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY
Meeting 7:00 pm in Dickinson Hall, Room 210

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
Try something new. Hear how others use Christian Science on an everyday basis to solve problems. Everyone is welcome to attend our weekly meeting Tuesday, 6:45, Room 803 CC.

C.E.Q.
Anyone interested in environment and ecology invited. Old warriors please show up also. Fall plans and projects discussed.
All officers and project leaders from last year are required to attend this meeting.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Meeting 6:30 p.m., Rm 805-9 CC. All must attend, even if going inactive. If impossible to attend, call Clair (52412, 52413) after 9 p.m.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
There will be an organizational meeting held Tues. in the Campus Center Aud. at 7:30. Will all club members please attend.

HILLEL
Meeting of all those interested in participating in the Kosher meals plan at 6:30 in the Hillel office.

INTER—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Prayer meeting everyday from 12 to 12:30 in 177 Campus Center. Come, pray, no talking please.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON
Iota Gamma Upsilon cordially welcomes all university women to attend a fall fashion show sponsored by Paraphenalia of Amherst, Tues. at 7:30 pm at 406 N. Pleasant St.

ITALIAN CLUB
First meeting of Italian Club at 7:30 pm, 3rd floor lounge of Herter Hall tonight. Anyone interested in organizing this semester's activities please attend.

JAIL TUTORIAL PROGRAM
Afi interested in participating in a tutorial program in the Hampshire County Jail for credit should attend Action Lab's first meeting, Wed. September 15, 8 pm in Rm. 174-6 CC.

JESUS PEOPLE
"Where is He when we need him?" Call the following numbers and talk about it: 549-6149, 549-6726, 253-9773. We'll be glad to rap with you.

LATIN AMERICAN STUDENT
Our first meeting is on Tuesday, Sept. 21 at the Campus Center, Rms. 811-815, starting at 7:00 pm. For more information: Luis Manuel Medina, Kennedy 2110 Nuestra primer reunion es el martes, 21 de Septiembre. A las 7:00 pm en los salones 811-815 del Campus Center. Para mas informacion vea a: Luis Manuel Medina, Kennedy 2110.

POLYGLOTS SOCCER
Soccer players in search of action can find some every Saturday morning, 10:30 a.m. west of Boyden Gymnasium.

SPECTRUM
For all old staff members, there will be a meeting in the Spectrum office Wednesday at 7:30 pm.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE
Coffee hour for general information, discuss past events and decide our future. All gay people invited. Wed., Sept. 15, 7:00 p.m. in 917 CC.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN
Kappa Alpha Theta has an open house Tuesday from 7-8 and 8:15-9:15.
Open parties are being held at these sororities tonight: Pi Beta Phi, "Hawaiian Night", Kappa Kappa Gamma, "Mini-Pizza Party", Sigma Kappa, "Future in Fortunes", and Lambda Delta Phi, "Folk Night". All parties will be from 7-8 p.m. and 8:15-9:15 p.m. Everyone is warmly welcomed.

U.S.C.C.
Legislative research, USCC all those concerned with this project come to Rm 811 CC on Thurs. 7:30 p.m. for important meeting.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

I feel the literary efforts of Gertrude Stein represented a tearing down of barriers, opening the way to greater freedom of expression through the written word. In that sense, she was a true Aquarian. Natives of this zodiacal sign have a way of achieving much through unorthodox methods.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Way is cleared for creative efforts. You gain co-operation in quarters previously marked by opposition. Love triange is settled to your advantage. Welcome chance for change of scenery.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on home base, need for study of details. Puzzle pieces can be put together. Steady application is a requisite. Don't delegate duties. Build on solid base. Pisces person can figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on messages of importance, short journeys, special dealings with neighbors and relatives. Capricorn figures prominently. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Be alert to new opportunity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Complete financial maneuver, transaction. Leave no loose money ends. Take advantage of chance to get in on ground floor. Add to possessions; be aware of potential. One who advises now appears on target.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle coincides with time to get started. Encourage new contacts, challenges. Express yourself in creative way. Personal magnetism draws opposite sex. You are appreciated. You feel good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Association with special group, organization is emphasized. Follow hunch about behind scenes activity. All is not in open. Do some personal investigating. Friend confides money dilemma. Remember current commitments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasize your desires to friends. Some of your wishes can be transformed realities. Know this; proceed with greater degree of confidence. Socialize; see and be seen. Shake off lethargy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Steady approach is a necessity. Be aware of details, subtle nuances, gradual changes of policy. Accent is on how you achieve goals. One at top is willing to lend helping hand. Ask.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect now coincides with added knowledge, ability to get message across. Look beyond immediate indications. Strengthen philosophical concepts. Message from a distance is important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid involvement if interested only in halfway measures. Cycle now is such that what you do should be all the way or nothing. Straighten out domestic misunderstanding. Clear decks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Whatever you do, do it with moderation. Strive for inner answers. Avoid rushing, pushing, cajoling. One who chides you is merely testing. Let others take initiative. Retrench. Play for time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be ready for special assignment, overtime work. Applies to both professional and personal areas. Capricorn plays significant role. Accent is on health, basis chores. Strive for realism.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you could succeed as writer, reporter, one who translates, is abreast of current events. You are are active, vital, capable of bursting those with excess of pomposity or hot air. Some claim you are too sure, one-sided in views. However, in fact, you are dedicated, not always right, but most of the time you are sincere and well meaning. December may be outstanding month of 1971 for you.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Upperclassmen

If you haven't picked up your copy of the '71 INDEX yet, bring the blue card from your registration packet to the truck in front of the Student Union, near Machmer. It will be there all week, after which you may pick up your copy in the INDEX office.

Student Senate
BOOK LOANS
Now Available
Student Senate Office, Level 1
Campus Center

Stan Cobb To Speak Here

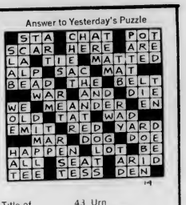
Stanwood Cobb, distinguished writer and educator, will speak at the Campus Center tonight at 8:00 P.M. His subject will be, "The Spiritual Prerequisites of World Peace."

A second lecture will be given at the Campus Center on Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 P.M., which will probe the educational picture. His topic will be, "Does the Present Age Call for Reconstruction of Education?"

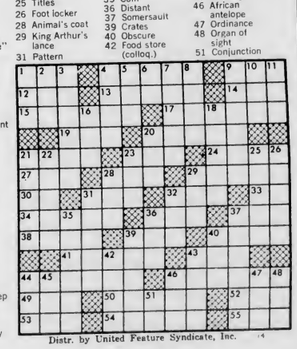
Cobb is a graduate of Dartmouth College and took an advanced degree in Philosophy and Comparative Religion from Harvard University. He taught for three years at Robert College in Constantinople, and experience which produced his first book, The Real Turk. Since then Cobb has written some twenty books, including philosophical thought embodied in the Chinese verse form, political ideas and explorations of education for the young.

A pioneer for innovative education, Cobb founded and headed the Progressive Education Association and started the Chevy Chase Country Day School in Washington, D.C. to implement these ideas.

Many years of travel and living in the Near and Far East and in Europe have given Cobb a universal outlook. Years before the nuclear age impressed upon us the need for a one-world concept, he was expressing this theme. His familiarity with a variety of races, religious concept, he was expressing this theme. His familiarity with a variety of races, religions and cultures have given him an appreciation of diverse life styles which is reflected in the philosophy and wisdom which permeate his writings.



This will be the first time that the Amherst community will have the privilege of hearing Cobb speak. He is being sponsored by the Baha'i community.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Cut of meat
4 Swift
9 Place
12 Artificial language
13 Semi-precious stone
14 In favor of 15 Vegetable
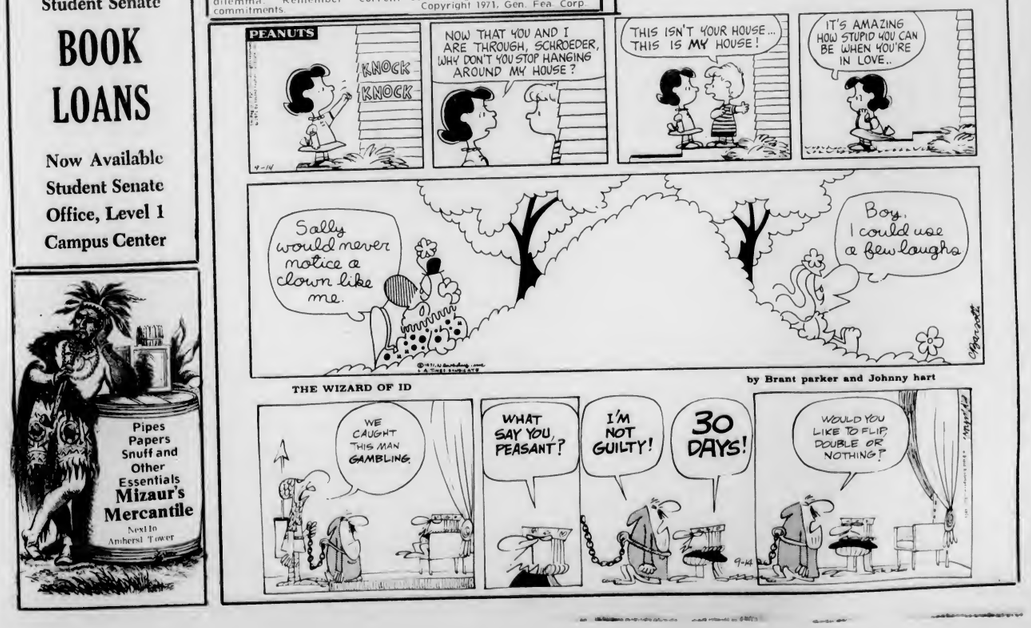
17 Concern
19 Hasten
20 Change
21 Winter vehicle
23 Attempt
24 Lease
27 Pronoun
28 Obese
29 Warning device
30 Part of "to be"
31 Mire
32 The sun
33 Greek letter
34 Giver of gift
36 Fish limb
37 Number
38 Wife of Geraint
39 Vehicle
40 Moderately dark
41 Evergreen tree
43 Vigor
44 Part of leg (pl.)
46 Wager
49 Cravat
50 Inclines
52 Deposit
53 Cloth measure
54 Send forth
55 Female sheep



DOWN
1 Part of body
2 Fuss
3 Parent
4 Evaluate
5 Time gone by
6 Parent (colloq.)
7 Country of Europe
8 Clever
9 Refrained from using
10 Silkworm
11 Rocky hill
16 Succor
18 Savage
20 Skill
21 Tint
22 Citrus fruit
23 Youngster
25 Titles
26 Foot locker
28 Animal's coat
29 King Arthur's lance
31 Pattern
32 Title of respect
35 Coin
36 Distant
37 Somersault
39 Crates
40 Obscure
42 Food store (colloq.)
43 Urn
44 Devoured
45 Nothing
46 African antelope
47 Ordinance
48 Organ of sight
51 Conjunction

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"Mac" Pleased With Gridders

By Earle Barroll

Dick MacPherson

The tenth floor of the Campus Center resembled a coaches locker room following a football game when the "brass" of Western Massachusetts collegiate football got together yesterday for the first football coaches and writers luncheon of the season.

While most of the coaches and writers exchanged the regular "how was your weekend scrimmage", UMass head football coach Dick MacPherson, got the irregular for this conclave. He was beseeched by a multitude of questions, more so than the others, for his Redman had the biggest clash of the weekend, one with Cornell and it's one man All-American wrecking crew, Ed Marinaro.

MacPherson's gridmen battled the Big Red to a 27-27 standoff at Ithaca over the weekend in the first competitive encounter for "Mac" and his staff at UMass.

Marinaro played the entire game, rushed for 244 yards, ran for four touchdowns and as MacPherson put it, "I couldn't believe someone could run so well against us."

In his first post game analysis as "a Monday morning UMass coach" MacPherson said of his team's attitude following the game, "Our initial reaction was disappointment with the 27-27 tie, but after a couple of hours we recognized what our game plan was and who we played against and were satisfied with the performance."

"The objective for the game was to give as many people as much experience as possible to carry us through the season if we needed them to step right into the lineup in case of injuries.

"We showed we believed in these players by having the confidence in playing them against a team of Cornell's calibre."

With the de-emphasizing of pre-season scrimmages in college football recently, MacPherson was all in favor in commenting, "playing Cornell and seeing the mistakes we made is why we like to have a scrimmage. We hoped that some of the first game kinks came out in the scrimmage and we'll be polished for the opener."

The biggest problem lied in the offensive line where offsides hurt the balanced attack that UMass was looking for. Instead of first and ten these penalties resulted in longer yardage and less of a ground attack to open up the air routes.

On the plus side MacPherson cited three areas in which his Redmen showed good signs. "We took advantage of opportunities, the defense stopped Cornell when it had to near the end of the game and then the offense kept the ball away from Cornell in the last minutes with a sustained drive. These three areas make for a good football team."

For the remainder of this week leading up to the Maine game MacPherson sees his teams greatest needs for improvement in "tackling, quicker reaction to the run, cohesiveness on offense and a better communications on defense."

INJURED-UMass co-captains Dennis Keating (l) and John Hulecki (r) were injured in action last weekend at Cornell. Hulecki may be able to play in next week's season opener at Maine, and Keating is listed as "doubtful."

HASH MARKS-Seven Redmen were hurt during the scrimmage including co-captains John Hulecki and Dennis Keating who may not see action against Maine....Tomorrow the Varsity M Club kicks off its football luncheons at the Newman center with Coach MacPherson and his co-captains the featured guests...There will be a scouting report on Maine and an action film on the highlights of the Cornell game...Admission is a $1.50, season tickets can be purchased at the door...the luncheon gets underway at 12:15 p.m.

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Notices

All freshmen interested in crew should attend a meeting which will be held Wednesday night, Sept. 15th at 7:00 p.m. in Boyden (for room check MDC tomorrow). No experience is necessary but freshmen should be 5'11 and taller.

****

Candidates for the Women's Field Hockey team should report to the WoPE field for try outs on Sept. 13, 14, and 15 at 4:00 p.m.

Booters Out For Second Title

By MARTY KELLEY

Filling in the shoes of former UMass soccer coach, Peter Broaca, won't be an easy job for rookie mentor Jack Berryman, but one of the strongest supporting casts in the school's soccer history will help as the Redmen open defense of their first Yankee Conference crown at Maine, September 25th.

Gone from last season's 7-2-2 success story are such defensive mainstays as Rick Matuszczak, Tony Nunziante, Dave Piccus and the second and third leading scorers, Duane Brown and Marc Cantor. However, Coach Berryman can take delight in welcoming back a trio of All Yankee Conference selections that will form the nucleus of this fall's squad.

Heading the list of a dozen experienced lettermen are co-captains Lindo Alves and Augie Calheno, both seniors from Ludlow. Alves, one of the most exciting forwards in New England, is in contention for six state honors. The diminutive frontliner led the Redmen in scoring last fall with 17 points on ten goals and seven assists.

Calheno, the hard nosed hustler in the middle, played most of last season with a groin injury, but still was second in assists with five. His persistence led to his selection as the team's most valuable player.

The other involved in All Yankee Conference honors is senior fullback Joe Czerniaski. The former along with the likes of returning seniors, Paul Slack, Dick McCarron, Gary Hart, Bill Grom, and juniors, Dave Oullette and Todd Buck, give UMass a capable goal mouth defense.

Offensively, the loss of Brown and Cantor will hurt, but the calibre of Alves along with Tunisia's Abdu Thraya, a senior, and Jeff Hague, a junior, should keep the Redmen knocking on the door. Thraya, a magician with his footwork and dribbling artistry, was limited last season with an injury and scored but two goals. Hague is a junior and untested to date.

"The success of the offense will rest with people helping us out and doing the job although they haven't played very much previously," noted Berryman. Also very much in the picture is soph Mark Tyma from Levitan, Pa. who scored the lone goal in Saturday's 1-0, five quarter victory at Amherst College. Steve Blanchette, a junior and former All Yankee Conference honorable mention, looms as a scoring threat.

One of the most stabilizing factors in last season's championship was the netminding of Bill Leary. With five shutouts and four one goal games to his repertoire last fall, Leary could have been set for his year but Coach Berryman has neither seen nor heard from him.

That leaves the goalmouth in the hands of John Kiah, a junior who spends the winter as P.J. Flaherty's backup goalie. Kiah looked impressive this past Saturday as he blanked Amherst for four quarters.

Concerning the squad's personnel, Coach Berryman feels he has a strong working nucleus. "I have about fifteen really excellent soccer players," noted the new coach. "A lot of these men can do different things, it's just going to take a while for them to jell."

The rest of the roster includes linemen Peter Bwell, a senior, and sophs, Herman Rodrigo, Brian McKenney, and Bruce Gibson, and Walt Rowe, a junior. Backing up the fullbacks will be sophs, Bob Merrill and Kurt Syer, and junior, Art Terzakis.

Checking the strengths and weaknesses, you'd have to say that defense will be the stronghold. "I think last year we allowed only nine goals all year. If we can keep pace with that statistic this season, we'll be in good shape," exclaimed Berryman. With the likes of Oullette, Slack, McCarron, and Cerniawski, it certainly seems possible.

You can't put any limitations on this year's soccer edition which should provide the campus with one of its finest brands. At any rate, first objective for Coach Berryman is defending that first Yankee Conference title that was won outright with a 3-0-2 record last year.

"Coach Broaca did a wonderful job recruiting and building a championship team. It's going to be a challenge, but we'll be after that title again," reiterated Berryman. He also pointed out that all the conference games on the road, Maine, UConn, and New Hampshire, will be tough. This fall's imposing schedule also lists arch rival Springfield and WPI, both division playoff representatives and victors over the Redmen last Autumn.

The Redmen swing into live action this Wednesday at home with a four p.m. scrimmage against Amherst College before competing in the Westfield Jamboree this Saturday morning at ten a.m. (Westfield, AIC, and Springfield.

BOOTERS IN ACTION-After defeating Amherst College in their scrimmage, the Redmen will be in action this Wednesday at four p.m. with another exhibition against Amherst.

Join MDC Sports

Recruitment Meeting Tonite

Room 162, Campus Center

At 7:00 p.m.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Fewer frogs will croak as it becomes clearer and colder.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 6 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1971

HELLER PACKS THE BALLROOM. They came from the Quad, Sylvan, Central and Southwest to spend "An Evening With Joe Heller. (insert). There was little room to move and little air to breathe, but the crowd enjoyed every moment as Heller brought the audience through a full spectrum of his, and their, emotions. For a full report, see page three. (MDC Photos by Gary Alpaugh).

"Hostages Died of Gunshot Wounds"

Attica Death Toll Reaches 41

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP)-A county medical examiner's report Tuesday contained the finding that hostages slain in the storming of riot-torn Attica prison died of gunshot wounds. State officials for 24 hours had attributed most of the deaths to slashed throats.

"There were no cut throats or any kind of mutilation," said Monroe County's medical examiner, John F. Edland. He examined eight of the bodies after a ninth hostage already had been established as a gunshot victim.

"All eight cases died of gunshot wounds," Edland later told a news conference. "There was no evidence of slashed throats. There were two types of missiles found in both the inmates and the hostages. Some were buckshot. Some were larger caliber missiles."

The nine hostages were among 14 persons within the prison who lost their lives during the four-day rebellion, according to a revised State Corrections Department assessment of the bloodiest prison riot in New York's penal history.

"I'm not familiar with prison garb, but it appeared that all the hostages were wearing prison garb," Edland declared. There had been reports during the riot that the hostages had been stripped of their regular clothing.

Officials had reported after the riot was put down Monday that some of the hostages appeared to have been killed in advance of the furious assault by state forces.

But Edland said: "The hostages all died about the same time-I would assume yesterday morning some time...Some were shot once, some were shot as many as nine, 10, 12 times."

One Corrections Department statement said in part:

"We have confirmed reports that the inmates had bombs in their possession which had roofing nails protruding from them and other fragments of metal and foreign projectiles."

"There were various types of armaments in the possession of the inmates that could have inflicted bullet type wounds."

Later, however, Deputy Corrections Commisssioner Wim Van Eekeren said in Albany that there were witnesses to throat slashings of hostages. And for the first time, he claimed that rioters had zip guns in their arsenal of homemade weapons-guns fashioned from pipes, their firing pins powered by rubber bands, able to dispatch regular bullets.

"This is definite, these weapons were found," Van Eekeren declared.

But in Attica, without being told of Van Eekeren's statement, but after it was made, the Corrections Department public relations chief, Jerry Houlihan, was asked by newsmen if any firearms were found in the rioters' cache of weapons.

"No, no firearms have been found," Houlihan replied.

The confusing revelations came as officials ordered all hostages, witnesses, and police officers involved in the Attica situation not to talk to newsmen.

The slain hostages were among 38 guards and other prison employes held captive four days while 1,200 of Attica's mostly black 2,254 inmates mutinied. Throughout the uprising, state officials described the rioters as armed only with clubs, makeshift knives and spears and tear gas launchers seized from a storeroom.

A few of the hostages who escaped the prison bloodbath had even described how their lives were spared by sympathetic inmates, who failed to carry out orders to execute them by slashing their throats.

Edland said some of the slain hostages were shot in the head, others in the chest and back. Some appeared to have been beaten, he added, one in the back and buttocks, others about the face.

The Attica death figures constituted the greatest U.S. prison toll since 1930, when disgruntled convicts set a fire in the Ohio penitentiary which took 320 inmates lives.

The first Attica fatality stemmed from the initial convict seizure of four of the prison's five cellblocks last Thursday, when fires were set and hostages taken. The victim was a guard, who died 48 hours later of head injuries.

In Monday's assault by more than 1,000 state troopers and sheriff's deputies following a tear gas drop by National Guard helicopters, nine hostages and 28 prisoners first were reported killed, presumably in the course of the assault, although state officials said some of the hostages had been slain hours earlier. Later the number of inmate dead was raised to 31.

During the day, a Buffalo federal court order barred Attica officials from questioning the rioters, until they had been given a chance to consult with lawyers.

Later, the order was rescinded after the state argued it would be dangerous to allow outsiders into Attica this soon after the riot.

Meanwhile, state Appellate Justice Harry D. Goldman was designated in Albany to name a "distinguished panel of impartial visitors to observe and report on this transitional period at the Attica state correctional facility so that the public may be assured that the constitutional rights of the inmates are being protected."

Herman Schwartz, a lawyer, argued in the U.S. District Court that virtually an entire cellblock of prisoners faced possible criminal prosecution. New York State has abolished capital punishment except in rare cases-one being the slaying of a prison guard at the bands of an inmate.

A controversy continued to swirl around Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who brought the National Guard to Attica and approved the bloody, all-out storming of Cellblock D, last bastion of convict resistance.

Rockefeller's West 55th Street office in Manhattan had been picketed Monday night by critics of the Attica assault. On Tuesday, tighter than normal security was established, with 10 policemen on duty. Telegram and telephone calls about Attica reportedly poured in but there was no word on the views expressed.

During the uprising, Rockefeller refused a convicts' demand to meet them in the prison yard, saying he felt no purpose would be served.

The governor also said he could not constitutionally grant a rebel demand for total amnesty, in return for freedom of the hostages. When an ultimatum for release of hostages subsequently was ignored, the police forces were unleashed against the rioters.

Before the riot, Attica's inmate population was 85 per cent black or Puerto Rican. All the guards are white.

Rockefeller was upheld, however, by President Nixon, a group of Republican congressional leaders, many of the nation's governors meeting in annual conference in Puerto Rico, and leaders of various law enforcement organizations.

Rockefeller had attributed the tragedy to "the highly organized revolutionary tactics of militants," and said he would seek to determine "the role that outside forces would appear to have played."

Attica Teach-In Here Tonight

The Attica Prison tragedy will be the subject of a teach-in tonight at 7:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

The teach-in, sponsored by the United Christian Foundation, will include discussion of the dynamics of the situation leading to the killings, the similarities between Attica Prison and other prisons throughout the nation, and the steps which, if taken, could preclude a recurrance of such prison outbreaks.

Three speakers are scheduled. They include Acklyn Lynch, a professor in the Black Studies Department, a well-known authority on correctional institution literature and teacher of a course entitled "Voices from Prison; Gil Salk, the coordinator of the Draft Counselling Services and who writes "Draft Counselor's Corner" and "Culternatives" for the Massachusetts Daily Collegian; and Sidney Kraus of the Speech Department, who will present factual information and background dealing with the events leading to the deaths.

Other representatives being sought to speak at the teach-in include a Civil Liberties spokesman, a former inmate of a correctional institution who might be able to speak in the first person about what prison life is like, a psychologist who might give insight into the dehumanization of prison life, and members of the Black Community on campus.

The Reverend Sam Johnson of the United Christian Foundation will moderate the teach-in. An audio tape recording of the police assault on the prison and an interview with a former Attica inmate will be included.

The United Christian Foundation has requested that those wishing to aid in the publicizing of the teach-in may stop in at the United Christian Foundation Office to pick up leaflets. The UCF office is located in 317 Hampshire House, between Southwest and Whitmore. Leaflets will also be available in the Draft Counselling Office in 923 Campus Center.

SUG Board Constitution OK'd

(Ed. Note: Following are the salient points of the new SUG Board constitution, which was formally approved by the Board April 1, 1971. It was approved by Chancellor Tippo late in August, 1971. The document is the culmination of three months work by a task force consisting of Betty Pugh, then chairwoman of the Board, Vice-Chancellors Campion and Bromery, Bob Nims and Rocky Hodgson, presently officers of the Board, Assoc. Director of Guidance and Counseling Douglas Forsyth, and Sheila McRevey, Asst. Coordinator of Student Activities.

Coordinator of Student Activities.

This is important to the student body in light of the Board's refusal to accept the appointment of Gerald Scanlon to the post of Director of the Campus Center-Student Union Complex. Scanlon was appointed this summer without SUG Board's approval.)

ARTICLE II: PURPOSE

It is the purpose of the Board to insure that the Campus Center-Student Union Complex (hereinafter referred to as the Complex) is responsive to the varied needs of the University community through the provision of appropriate facilities, activities, and services.

ARTICLE III: DUTIES AND POWERS

Section 1. The Board shall establish all policies for the Complex and shall communicate all policies to the Campus Center-Student Union Manager or the Coordinator of Student Activities for implementation, as appropriate.

Section 2. Any action of the Board shall have full legal force and effect five (5) days from the date and time of its adoption by the Board except that any act may contain a preamble stating that urgency requires that the action shall take effect at the time stated therein. All actions taken by Board shall be communicated in writing to the Chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst within forty-eight (48) hours of said adoption. The Chancellor may, at his discretion, stay the action of the Board for up to nine (9) working days from the date of its adoption, propose an amendment to such action which requires reconsideration by the Board, or he may nullify any such action by letter to that effect to the chairman in which event the act shall thereinafter be a nullity.

Section 3. The Board must review and approve the operating budget of the Complex and its respective departments before submitting the budget to the Chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The Board shall also review and approve any significant modification of the operating budget prior to implementation.

Section 4. The Campus Center-Student Union staff may not execute or enter into any agreements, licenses or contracts which are in conflict with or are not consistent with policies established by the Board. In all cases where no policies exist, the Management shall not enter into any agreements, licenses or contracts until said policy is established.

Sorority Fair Explained

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU

Visitors to the Campus Center last weekend stumbled onto the unheralded but allegedly successful Sorority Fair. "The fair was a rush function, reports Paul Stevens, Greek Area Director," especially for freshman girls. We realize that we must make information more readily available."

Stevens insists that UMass sororities "are not in trouble...financially, or in programming... or in any other way. The percentage of college girls in sororities is not as large as it used to be, but the over-all membership has not decreased," he said.

Steve Jones, President of the Greek Council and member of Kappa Sigma, said that "the old sorority charisma is gone. This makes sororities a better place to live."

About Sigma Alpha Mu, UMass's first co-ed frat, Stevens commented: "It's a good idea. Here the individual is very important. It's a good living experience. We almost had a sorority and fraternity cohabitating, but it will come."

Jones praised SAM for "making it work."

Stevens said that he's "convinced that the old sorority idea is dead. I've worked with fraternity and sororities on the East coast, and I think UMass Greeks are fantastic. The sorority girls I've met here are down-to-earth people. They've instituted a lot of changes and carried them out, things like service projects. Some have become involved in campus politics."

"I'm an advocate of small group living. It gives someone a sense of identity, and a sense of support about her own life."

Muskie Decries Attica Deaths

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP)-Sen. Edmund S. Muskie said Tuesday night the killing of more than 40 hostages and prisoners at New York's Attica prison "is more stark proof that something is terribly wrong with America."

The choice it poses for the nation, the Maine Democrat told the 63rd National Governors Conference, is "between the narcotic comfort of business as usual or a harder, longer path toward an America worthy of our heritage."

Muskie, a leading unannounced contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, discarded plans to address the governors about federal-state relations after watching televised reports of the Attica killings. He redrafted his speech on the flight here from New Hampshire.

He said that to watch television accounts of the shootouts Monday at Attica and recently at California's San Quentin prison is like watching the Vietnam war—"after a while, the numbers of the body count begin to sound like the numbers of the weather report.

"And now the mounting casualty lists from domestic battlefields seem only to reinforce a spreading numbness," he added.

In a slap at President Nixon's recent speeches about his administration's economic policies, Muskie said: "We talk a new prosperity, but we still rely on half measures, public relations and statistics like the G.N.P. gross national product."

"And I am talking about results," Muskie said, "not the promise in a name." He said he meant action to reform the nation's prisons, relieve poverty, lower property taxes, begin to restore "the hope of so many who are so close to giving up" and "help them believe again in a vibrant, moving, compassionate society."

Many of the governors to whom Muskie spoke have criticized New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for moving too slowly at Attica and for trying to negotiate with the prisoners. Reaction to Attica has vied for their attention with a partisan dispute over the Nixon administration's economic policies.

Republicans, charging partisanship, made clear earlier in the day they would block an attempt by Democrats to win conference approval of an alternative to those policies. Democratic governors outnumber the Republicans 29-to-21, but they need a three-fourths vote to bring the economics proposal before the conference Wednesday.

Black Radio

Starting Wednesday Sept. 15 WMUA (91.1 FM) will broadcast "Ujamma Drum" at 8 p.m.-11 p.m. on Mon., Wed., and Fri. Currently WFCR (88.5 FM) presents "Colors" on Tues., Thurs., and Sun. at 7:30 PM, and on Wed. at 7:30 PM "Great Black Music" a program featuring Jazz and Soul music. WFCR on Saturday nights at 10 p.m. has "Bill Hasson Jazz, and on Mondays at 1 p.m. "Community Radio Workshop". WFCR also broadcasts "Mbari Mbayo" on Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

If you are interested in joining the Black Mass Communications Project, come and check us out at 305 Hampshire House (UMass) tel. 545-0100.

Medina Trial Continues

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)-A witness in Capt. Ernest Medina's murder trial Tuesday quoted Lt. William L. Calley as saying the captain was surprised to discover civilians had been shot at My Lai.

Capt. Robert Hicks of Ft. Benning, Ga., said Calley made the comment in Vietnam as the two talked several months after the My Lai attack in the spring of 1968.

Calley, convicted of ordering at least 22 civilians at My Lai, is serving a 20-year sentence. The defense had planned to open its case by calling Calley, one of three platoon leaders who served under Medina, but his lawyers told the court the lieutenant would invoke the Fifth Amendment.

"About 10 a.m. one morning in July, he started telling me war stories," said Hicks.

He said Calley soon began talking about My Lai, describing how his platoon moved into the village.

"He came out and said they didn't expect to find any civilians," said Hicks. "When the platoon came in, the villagers came out and cheered."

Too Young

The proposed Rathskellar, which would occupy the southeast corner of the Blue Wall cafeteria, would serve beer, wine and other liquors only to students over 21 years of age, contrary to the implications of yesterday's Collegian article.

Such a night spot is covered in the Top of the Campus liquor license, but commencement of the Rathskellar is pending approval by the Board of Trustees, which specifically prohibited such an establishment last year when it approved liquor for the Top of the Campus.

FCC Watching Kid's Shows

NEW YORK (AP)-Dean Burch, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, told the nation's broadcast leaders Tuesday that he regards their efforts to improve children's programs with only "cautious optimism."

He warned that television "can never again be shrugged off as just entertainment or just 'chewing gum for the eyes'" and said he was "underwhelmed by the networks' own caution...and hedging in this way is hardly cause for unbridled enthusiasm."

The FCC chairman, in an address to the International Radio an television Society, where the highest executives of the networks and broadcast groups were assembled, said, "In this new climate, as I test the winds, the overall thrust is to emphasize the positive-to regard television for children as a potential for good. The corollary is that an increasingly mobilized, increasingly concerned, increasingly critical audience is watching. And with only so much tolerance."

Implicit throughout the speech was the idea that Burch was offering the broadcasters every opportunity to improve the quality of the programs and every opportunity to curb the number and frequency of commercials before the FCC acted. The agency is considering a proposal from Action for Children's Television that would ban commercials in children's programs and require every station to broadcast 14 hours a week of children's shows.

Burch said he was institutionalizing the FCC's concern by setting up a permanent unit to handle children's television. Elizabeth Roberts will head the unit and working with her will be Dr. Alan Pearce.

Don't Go

Classes beginning at 10:10 this morning are cancelled to enable faculty and students to attend the University's Opening Convocation at the Campus Center Auditorium.

Chancellor Oswald Tippo will deliver the principal address at the Convocation, following which the Distinguished Teacher Awards for 1971 will be presented.

Members of the faculty will assemble on the lower level (first floor) of the Campus Center in academic costume at 10:00 a.m. in order to participate in the academic procession.

No 10:10's Today

FOR SCHOOL SUPPLIES SEE A. J. Hastings Newsdealer & Stationer 45 South Pleasant St. AMHERST

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 Ladies-Night! MONDAY Adm. $1.00 Located in the Zayres Shopping Center - Rt. 9 - Hadley.

CAMPUS I Rated R 7:00 & 9:00 The story of a gambling man and a hustling lady. WARREN BEATTY JULIE CHRISTIE ~ McCABE & MRS. MILLER BRILLIANT. New York Times REMARKABLE. Joseph Morgenstern Newsweek

CAMPUS II 5th wk. Carnal Know-ledge. A feast of a film!" Judith Crist N.Y. Magazine Screens: 7:15 & 9:15 Rated R

CAMPUS III Rated X 7:00 9:00 TRASH

Fencing Club

Men & Women Invited

Learn, Share.

FIRST MEETING

FRIDAY, SEPT. 24th.

CAMPUS CENTER

Rm. 178 L.L.

7:00 p.m.

Room To Move Drop-In Center 5-0400, 5-0401

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Campion To Explain Fees

By ANNE STADNICKI

Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services Thomas Campion will appear before the Student Senate one week from today in response to an invitation issued by Senate President Lee Sandwen. He has been asked to explain the University's action in increasing room and board fees, despite President Nixon's economic freeze.

"Everything will be open and above board," Campion declared in an interview yesterday.

He said it was not his office, but President Robert Wood's (President of all three UMass campuses) that had given the go ahead on the increase.

According to an excerpt from President Wood's letter: "As of September 8th the University's position is as it has been for some time...Students shall continue to be billed for increased dormitory, dining commons, and student fee rates pending our investigation of (Nixon's)...Order's effect on this matter.

The University's position was based on an estimate of checks received in the University by the Cashier's Office by August 14th, according to Campion.

He said he is not a lawyer and therefore cannot comment on the legality of the increases, but Campion sees the matter centering on the interpretation of the term "deposits" in the guidelines for the freeze. The question is do deposits mean money in the bank or money received by the University?

One point the Vice Chancellor stressed was that the University incurs no savings through the increase. It hardly meets costs this year, even with the increase, because costs are greater than budgeted, he said.

Campion had no further comments on the issue, preferring to reserve his comments for his address before the Senate.

Following Campion's appearance before the Senate it is expected that the Senate Executive Committee will hold a session to rule on who makes decisions concerning a federal investigation of the rent increase.

A letter from the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) to Student Senate Counsel Richard Howland stated that if the student body was unconvinced that the University had legally established the increase prior to the deadline, a complaint could be filed and OEP would call for a federal investigation.

The Executive Committee asked to hear the University's reasons before it makes any decisions on the issue.

BELFAST—AFTER THE VIOLENCE—A policeman examines the damage to the Woodvale Youth Club in a Protestant area of Belfast, after the club was bombed Sunday afternoon, injuring three persons. The blast followed a night of bombings and savage street fighting between terrorists and British troops. (AP Wirephoto via Cable from London)

'Don't Fence Me In"

WASHINGTON (AP)-The House defeated an attempt today to retain a revised version of a never-used law giving the government wartime emergency power to herd suspected subversives into detention camps.

The vote was 68 to 22 rejecting the Internal Security Committee's proposed substitute. The House then moved toward a vote on the Judiciary Committee's plan to repeal the 1950 Emergency Detention Act.

Opinion

Afro-Am Condemns Attica

The W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro-American Studies feels compelled to make public its condemnation of the action taken at Attica Prison.

There is little doubt that the slayings at Attica follow naturally and unsurprisingly the course of action dictated by world acceptance of the killing of innocent villagers of Viet Nam, the Algiers-Motel murders, the Birmingham bombings, the bedroom slaying of Fred Hampton, and the deaths of Jackson State and Kent State students. These actions all suggest to the department an unwillingness on the part of the establishment to access some human life as anything other than cheap and utterly dispensable. The department urges that all who are sensitive to America's vowed commitments to human life and dignity must see Attica as another failure to live up to these vows; and, certainly, as a clear indication of the desperate need to re-think and re-structure the whole idea of penal institutions.

The way in which Attica tragedy was handled-the coverage by the media, the public's ready acceptance of throat cutings before autopsy reports, the self-congratulatory and high-handed treatment by Richard Nixon and Nelson Rockefeller depress more than surprise this department. The department recognizes and support the need for an international committee of Inquiry to investigate not only the Atticas, the San Quentins, the Soledads, but to raise serious investigation into the question of whether minorities and dissenters can be guaranteed justice in the United States.

SINTON, Tex.-WHOOPS:--Peyton Mims, right, and Alvin Davis were puttering along in waist-deep flood waters here Sunday after Tropical Storm Fern passed through when their Jeep suddenly conked out. They said they had a waterproof ignition, but apparently something else wasn't waterproof. (AP Wirephoto)

SRO Audience For Joe Heller

By JERRY LAZAR and STEPHEN FINE

The Student Union Ballroom was packed with hundreds of students lining the walls and many more crowding around the podium as novelist-playwright Joseph Heller read from his best selling novel Catch-22, his play "We Bombed in New Haven", and his forthcoming novel, Something Happened.

Not since Dick Gregory spoke last spring has the Ballroom been as packed.

"It's an extraordinarily large crowd we have here tonight," said Heller. "Too bad Humphrey or Muskie didn't know about it."

Reading from his widely acclaimed works, Heller brought the audience through a full spectrum of their emotions. He drew laughter and applause when he described the characters of Catch-22, from Yossarian, "a man with a wish to live forever---or at least die trying," to Major Major Major Major's father's ingenious economic scheme of getting paid for not growing alfalfa.

But the audience was silent as Heller poignantly read of Yossarian's futile attempt at saving the dying Snowden.

Catch-22 is set in the closing months of World War II, the author explained, but was conceived and written during the Korean War. Heller began writing the novel in 1953, but did not finish until eight years later. October of this year will mark the tenth anniversary of its publication.

"I don't know about you," said Heller, "but I'm going to celebrate!"

Heller appeared courtesy of the Distinguished Visitor's Program, financed and operated by the undergraduate students of UMass. Last night's presentation, "An Evening with Joe Heller," was the first this year. A coffee hour followed in the Colonial Lounge.

Boston Primary Results (Final)

White-46,000

Hicks-42,000

OPTICAL GOODIES

Always Available at

don call

Amherst's First Optician

56 Main St. Amherst

BLACK MAGIC

featuring: NATALIE COLE - vocalist

at the

Wednesday Nite CHEQUERS 9:30 to 12:30

In The Nation And The World

No Residual Force

Viet Withdrawal Rate To Quicken

SAIGON (AP)-Mounting anti-American sentiment and internal political unrest in Vietnam appear to signal a quickening pace in the withdrawal of U.S. combat troops and the residual force that would remain.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams is also beset by a host of other problems among GIs in Vietnam that would be solved by a speedup in the disengagement of American forces.

Informants said statements attributed to Abrams that he does not envisage a residual force and his acknowledgment of five major problems among GIs tend to indicate the Nixon administration is changing its concept to a strictly advisory role-and probably in a fairly short period.

Sen. George S. McGovern, who met with Abrams for 45 minutes Tuesday, said the general told him that his five troublesome problems among U.S. forces are drugs, racism, anti-war feeling, morale and tension between GIs and the South Vietnamese.

McGovern, a long-time opponent of Vietnam policy, said he "was somewhat surprised, although not convinced, that the general was willing to express as much confidence as he did in the capacity of the South Vietnamese to fight without close in American support."

The South Dakota Democrat, the only declared candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said he had assumed a residual force was built into the Nixon administration's Vietnam policy.

Nixon said in April: "Our goal is total withdrawal. We do not plan to have a permanent residual force such as we have practically in Korea at the present time. But I am not going to set a date because I believe setting a date is not in our interest."

Sources here said Nixon was speaking in terms of a long-range haul, as long as five years. But they are convinced there has been a shift in the thinking of the Pentagon and military leaders here that total withdrawal except for advisers could be accomplished in a year or 18 months.

Abrams set no time frame in his conference with McGovern, but the general's remark was seen as significant in that it was the nearest thing to a public statement by him on the residual force to date.

It had been generally accepted that the United States intended to leave a residual force of 20,000 to 50,000 troops in Vietnam for an indefinite period.

The residual force would include artillery, air, and logistics support to the South Vietnamese and some combat support to provide security for the U.S. forces themselves. An advisory force would be perhaps only several hundred Americans.

Nixon has ordered that the authorized U.S. troop ceiling be cut to 184,000 by the end of November and his timetable is ahead of schedule. By then strength is expected to drop to about 175,000. Present strength is 215,000. Nixon has scheduled another announcement on further troop cutbacks for mid-November. He is expected to cut strength to 100,000 or fewer by June.

Busing Cripples GM Complex

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)-Opponents of court-ordered busing for school integration in this factory town of 35,000 crippled operations Tuesday at a 20,000-worker General Motors Corp. manufacturing complex.

The anti-busing forces, jubilant over the success of their picketing which brought the auto-building operation to a halt, said it was a one-day demonstration and that there were no plans for any further appearances at the GM factory gates.

Several hundred noisy, but peaceful, pickets paraded in front of gates to a Fisher Body Division plant in chilly, predawn fog, urging workers to stay off the job.

Defying both the United Auto Workers Union and GM, more than 60 per cent of the plant's 2,000-man day shift was absent at starting time. GM sent home those men who had reported, and shut down the production line because of insufficient manpower.

Four hours later, the assembly line at the adjoining Pontiac Motor Division plant came to a halt because the flow of auto bodies from Fisher had stopped.

Parts manufacturing operations continued, but GM officials said these, too, would be halted if the disruptions continued.

Irene McCabe, spokesman for the National Action Group-NAG-which sponsored the demonstration, said, "I knew we could do it."

About 3,500 shift workers were idled by the protest. Workers who showed up on time for the first shift will receive four hours "show up" pay, Fisher plant manager Al F. Platt said. Others will lose a full day's pay.

Mrs. McCabe said she hoped that by shutting down a GM facility, her group could force GM to give political support to the busing foes.

GM has urged all Pontiac residents to obey the court's busing order and to make their fights through the courts. Company officials indicated there would be no change in the policy.

The UAW urged all union members to ignore the demonstration and not to participate in "an unauthorized work stoppage."

Bill Holland, chairman of the shop committee for UAW Local 596, which represents Fisher Body workers, said he thought some of the workers who stayed away did so because they agreed with the protest, others because they were afraid to cross the picket line.

In other developments in the busing situation Tuesday, U.S. District Court Judge Damon F. Keith, who wrote the original desegregation order, said he would not send a large force of U.S. marshals to Pontiac.

The NAACP and the school board requested the marshals Friday after a week of demonstrations and occasional violent outbreaks at the schools. They argued that the local police could not or would not enforce the order and protect school children.

However, there were no incidents at the schools either Friday, Monday or Tuesday and both sides agreed with the judge that federal intervention is not needed at this time.

Farmers, Industrialists Talk Post-Freeze Action

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon's proposed revival of the investment tax credit was backed by a group of manufacturers at a congressional hearing Tuesday, while some farm leaders at the White House urged Nixon to end the 10 per cent import surcharge as soon as possible.

The investment tax credit, renamed job development credit by the administration, would enable industries to deduct part of their investment in equipment from their tax bills.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader told the House Ways and Means Committee Congress should demand solid data on how many people the credit would put to work before voting for the plan.

"Considerable rhetoric, but little supporting information, has been provided by the administration," Nader said, adding: "The committee should require the administration to supply much more convincing data before considering this proposal."

At the White House, Nixon continued to gather advice on what sort of economic program should replace the 90-day wage-price freeze ending in November.

Following up his previous meetings with labor and business groups, the President met Tuesday with farm leaders. Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren told newsmen after the 90-minute session that the farm leaders "agreed to a man there should be a follow-up procedure" to restrain wages and prices when the current freeze ends.

But some of the farm spokesman want the import surcharge dropped, Warren said, because of fears that it could lead to retaliation against this country's exports.

In other developments:

—Secretary of Labor J.D. Hodgson said unions may negotiate with management for wage increases to become effective after the freeze, but the terms will be subject to "whatever regulations follow the freeze period."

—Republican governors at the National Governors Conference in San Juan moved to head off a Democratic attempt to put the conference on record against some aspects of Nixon's economic policy.

—The administration's money policies faced attack at a meeting of the "Group of 10" countries seeking to head off an international trade war.

—A succession of business witnesses urged the House Ways and Means Committee to approve the job development credit and even to liberalize it beyond Nixon's recommendations.

However, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., told the committee the investment credit should be rejected and the rapid depreciation repealed.

Reuss suggested Congress concentrate on anti-inflation measures and, for the present, make no tax changes, not even those favoring individuals. Curbing inflation, he said, should restore confidence, encourage consumer and business spending, and so reduce unemployment.

Edith, Heidi Calm Down

MIAMI Fla. (AP)-A huge low pressure system that hit Pennsylvania with disastrous floods spilled off the northeast Atlantic coast Tuesday and swallowed up Tropical Storm Heidi.

In the Gulf of Mexico, the one-time destructive storm Edith stalled off the shores of Mexico, keeping on edge Texans already bogged down in the rains of Tropical Storm Fern.

In the far Atlantic, Hurricane Ginger lost some of her power and was packing 90-mile-per-hour winds through shipping lanes 50 miles east of Washington, D.C.

And down in the seething Caribbean, another in the year's big parade of tropical depressions threatened to develop into the ninth storm of the Atlantic season.

Heidi, which had begun to die over cold waters, vanished off weather maps when she merged into a huge middle latitude low-pressure system which has killed at least 11 persons in Pennsylvania.

Flash floods cut through the southeast corner of Pennsylvania, inundating Chester and Norristown.

The bodies of 11 persons swept to their deaths were found and searches were under way for others.

Officials said it would be at least 24 hours before the full death toll was known.

The system also spread heavy rains through New York and Connecticut and chased small craft into harbors along the Maine coast.

An unpredicted rainstorm dumped 3.66 inches of rain on New York City Tuesday, causing some flooding of subways. Even before the latest deluge, Mayor John V. Lindsay had asked Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to request that the federal government declare Staten Island a disaster area because of previous flooding.

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

BUS SERVICE SCHEDULE

LV. U-Mass. for No. Amherst - 8:24 a.m., 11:34, 12:54 p.m., 3:56, 6:01

LV. U-Mass. for Amherst Center, Hadley and Northampton 7:31 a.m., 8:36, 10:01, 12:06 p.m., 1:06, 2:01, 4:09, 5:04, 6:14.

Connections at Northampton for
Easthampton, Florence, Leeds, Haydenville and Williamsburg

LV. U-Mass. for Worcester, Belchertown, Ware, Brookfields, Spencer and Leicester

Fridays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 4:50 p.m.
Saturdays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m.
Sundays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 6:25 p.m.

For Tickets and Information
The Lobby Shoppe, Student Union Bldg. Tel. 545-2006

CHARTER A BUS
call our office for rates and arrangements Tel. 584-6481
Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.
Northampton, Mass.

Wallace Backed On Alabama Busing Stand

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)-The Alabama Senate Finance Committee voted Tuesday to give Gov. George C. Wallace the power to withhold state funds allocated to the schools for bus transportation.

Wallace had sought the power last month to reinforce his campaign against court-ordered busing.

The measure was written into the proposed education appropriation bill which allots $840 million for all phases of education for the next two fiscal years beginning Oct. 1.

The busing amendment, which is subject to approval of the full Senate, makes the release of all state funds for bus transportation "conditional upon the approval of the governor."

It authorizes him to release all or any part of the money "as he deems necessary."

Another amendment written into the appropriation bill earlier prohibits the use of any state funds for busing to achieve a racial balance in the schools.

Wallace also has proposed, and the House has passed, a measure which seeks to prohibit busing of school children when their parents determine that the time or distance involved would be detrimental to the pupils' health or their education.

It was approved Tuesday by the Senate Transportation and Common Carriers Committee and will be on the calendar for final passage when the Senate meets again Thursday.

Last Saturday, Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams ordered the Mississippi auditor general to halt payment of state funds to the Jackson school system until it is proved that the funds are not used for busing in violation of a state law.

Protesters Trap McGovern In South Viet Church

SAIGON (AP)-South Vietnamese demonstrators hurling stones and firebombs trapped visiting Sen. George McGovern for half an hour Tuesday night in a church where he was meeting with anti-government dissidents.

American soldiers dispatched by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker escorted McGovern and four aides to safety--shaken but uninjured after they telephoned the embassy for help.

The 49-year-old aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination and critic of the Vietnam war was driven back to his hotel under an armed U.S. military police guard. He said he had no idea why the meeting was attacked by the band of shouting Vietnamese.

An official U.S. military police report said the key demonstrators included "two Buddhist monks and 20 Anti-American demonstrators."

The military police said the crowds swelled to about 150 persons and at first blocked American MPs and embassy Marine guards from rescuing McGovern and his party. The U.S. MPs called for assistance from the Vietnamese police, who helped block the demonstrators while McGovern and his aides were sped back to their downtown hotel.

"This is one time I didn't go to sleep in church," the South Dakota Democrat quipped.

McGovern arrived in Saigon on Monday for a three-day visit. He had moved about without visible guards, but U.S. authorities assigned a military police detail to protect him after the stone and firebomb-throwing incident.

The attack on the church closed a day of anti-American demonstrations and violence in Saigon and in the old imperial capital of Hue in northern South Vietnam. The war itself settled into near-calm.

The group McGovern met with is known as the Committee for the Improvement of Prison Regime in South Vietnam, an anti-government group which seeks release of political prisoners and prison reforms.

It includes Buddhist and Catholic leaders, university students and lawyers. It is sometimes called the Con Son Committee, a reference to the prison island where last year a disclosure of "'iger cage" prison cells kicked up an international furor and led to replacement of the cells.

The anti-American demonstrations generated at least four fire bomb attacks against American vehicles in various parts of Saigon, including one in front of U.S. Navy headquarters and another near the residence of Deputy U.S. Ambassador Samuel D. Berger.

All the vehicles were damaged, but only one casualty was reported, a U.S. Navy petty officer who was severely burned.

The arracks were carried out by youths riding motorbikes. They hurled fuel-filled bottles or cans at the vehicles and escaped.

The youths were believed to be radical university students who protest American presence in Vietnam and also oppose the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Their anti-government stance and the vigorously antiwar reputation that preceded McGovern to Saigon cast doubt on any connection between the scattered fire bombings and the church attack.

Also during the day, disabled Vietnamese war veterans demonstrated peacefully in front of the U.S. Embassy for half an hour seeking help in getting higher veterans' benefits.

In another Saigon demonstration, a group of Roman Catholics calling themselves the Movement of Catholics for Peace called for removal of "American occupation troops." The four latest firebomb attacks raised to eight the number of such incidents in Saigon against American vehicles.

At Hue, long a center of anti-government and anti-American feeling, the U.S. military command placed the city off-limits to American servicemen after a soldier shot and killed a Vietnamese youth and wounded a second. He said they tried to steal beer or soda from his truck.

Saigon Sen. George McGovern enters a U.S. Embassy car after his arrival Monday at Saigon. The anti-war senator was on his way to a meeting with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. McGovern later said he disagreed with Bunker's view that Vietnamization was proceeding well.

Justice Dept. Endorses Split Vote Convictions

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Justice Department endorsed legislation Tuesday to allow juries to convict defendants without a unanimous vote. It was proposed along with plans to restrict defendants' legal maneuverings-suggestions aimed at recent Supreme Court rulings.

Another major suggestion was a measure aimed at banning appeals based on constitutional questions having no bearing on the defendant's guilt or innocence.

Asst. Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist, appearing before the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, suggested that a jury vote of 10 to 2 or 9 to 3 be considered enough for conviction.

The Supreme Court will hear arguments Oct. 19 on the use of nonunanimous votes in state criminal trials.

Rehnquist proposed also modifying all or part of the rule which now prevents the use against a criminal defendant of evidence which is found to have been obtained in violation of his constitutional rights.

He said the rules on habeas corpus should be changed to prevent appeals "which not only have nothing to do with the guilt or innocence of the defendant but nothing to do with the underlying fairness of the factfinding process by which he was found guilty."

He said the number of habeas corpus petitions filed annually had jumped from 500 only 20 years ago to almost 11,000 last year.

Rehnquist said the department's proposed legislation would permit defendants to appeal on grounds that their confession was forced by police, that juries were under mob domination, and that they were not allowed counsel.

He said it would ban appeals based on claims of unlawful search and seizure or on claims that the defendant was not advised of his rights before confessing.

The proposed legislation took dead aim on the Supreme Court's Miranda vs. Arizona decision, which said confessions given to police are not admissible as evidence if the defendant is not advised before his confession of his right to remain silent and his right to a lawyer.

Recess In Medina Trial

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP)—Lawyers for Capt. Ernest L. Medina took advantage of a half-day trial recess Tuesday to interview prospective witnesses.

Among defense witnesses standing by was Capt. Eugene Ketouc, Humboldt, Neb., who was acquitted earlier this year of maiming a Viet Cong suspect after the My Lai assault. He had been charged with chopping off part of a finger during an interrogation, but won a directed verdict of acquittal.

The morning session of the Medina court-martial was called off because the wife of Army prosecutor William Eckhardt gave birth to a son.

Ketouc, a personal friend of Medina, initially was scheduled to appear as a prosecution witness, but never was called.

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

TONIGHT!!
Wednesday Nite Coffeehouse
At
THE BLUE WALL CAFETERIA, C.C. 2d Floor
Same Show and Prices as Last Year
Interested Performers call Ed at 545-2090 between 1-3 p.m.

Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics

Take a free Mini-Lesson and increase your reading speed on the spot!

Take a Free Mini-Lesson

In 60 minutes, over 80% of our Mini-Lesson audiences increase their reading speed. Just a little, but enough to know what it's like. At the Mini-Lesson, you will find out how the Evelyn Wood technique handles difficult textbook material. How it improves memory and concentration. And, how it makes reading a pleasure instead of a chore. The Mini-Lesson is one hour that could change your life, too!

UNIV. OF MASS., CAMPUS CENTER., RM. 908
Wed., Sept. 15 at 4 p.m. or 7 p.m. or 9 p.m.
Classes begin Thurs., Sept. 16 at 7 p.m.
PAUL MURPHY — 253-2425
##
PAUL MURPHY
253-2425

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — John E. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Emory Rounds
NEWS STAFF — Bob Sprague, Jan Auman
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh, James Reardon
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Who Will Answer?

Newspapers and television trumpeted the news of hostages being "murdered" by all those "revolutionary" prisoners at Attica Prison. The whole country was sucked into believing the lies which police, prison and government officials had made over the last two days. Then the County medical examiner discovered that the dead hostages did not have their throats slashed, they had been gunned down. And the only people with guns at Attica Prison were the police, the guards and the National Guard.

The evidence seems to indicate that everyone murdered over the last couple days at Attica were victims of the police authorities. The attack by police and National Guard troopers must be added to the ever growing list of atrocities committed by civil authorities.

The same police state mentality which murdered students at Kent State and Jackson State, which seems to have murdered George Jackson in a San Francisco Prison, and which more and more threatens our constitutional liberties has poked its ugly weapons and shot.

The 41 guards and prisoners known to be dead are the victims of our viscious society which places more value on expediency and order than human lives. Our society seems to place the real criminals in power and as officials were saying of the prisoners just two days ago, what can you expect from criminals.

The men responsible for the actions of police and national guard should be made to pay for their criminal abuse of power. The men who have lied to camouflage their own stupid brutality should be made to answer for their actions.

There is little one can do about what has happened already at places like Attica. There must be a way to stop them from happening ever again.

We urge students and faculty members to attend the teach-in planned for tonight in the Campus Center Ballroom.

A new society must start here.

The Stench Of Racism

By A. Jackson Linebarger

"We have met the enemy and he is Us"

I come before you, O mighty white radicals and armchair revolutionaries, in a state of nausea: could the white participation in the revolution be dead? Are my brothers and sisters so much in love with the concept of black power, that they forget to implement our belief with actions?

I am referring to my outrage at the lack of courage to the racist murders of GEORGE JACKSON and the thirty-eight or so ATTICA BROTHERS.

The racist united states has within a period of a month executed the bloody murders of thirty-eight black men, without remorse, without a single large scale outcry or action from white radicals or my brothers and sisters. The slayings can only be regarded as genocide, out and out murder, and yet we, the life bleed of a new world shake our heads and say nothing. I for one, am tired of picking up the paper and watching the bodies of fallen comrades carted away like a side of beef, while some "love your neighbor if he gives you good dope freak" talks to me about ecology and the latest dope bust. Ecology is a safe trip, radical change is not.

I contend that white people and too many black people cling tightly to the relative safety of being a "revolutionary black" or "revolutionary white" on campus. I submit, that talk is cheap and action dangerous, we should be organizing, educating, and showing where we stand, because the united states has made it apparent where it stands- it will deal harshly with those who threaten the beloved status quo.

I think it is time to say goodbye to the majority of the white race, non-white people will have to fight relatively alone, and we best deal with the facts of racism and indifference of most of white america, and move on. We demanded an end to racism and received law and order, asked for what is rightfully ours and received a get well card from "Tricktia"; by their silence they condone our genocide.

I submit that it is time for self-defense in our communities and homes, it should be made clear that if one of us is to be murdered 10 of the aggressors will also have to meet their maker.

It is time to show america that a death to one of us is a blow to all and that apathy is the white man's luxury, and something we can't afford.

We as a united people must speak out or there will be more ATTICAS and we must do it now. And to those few sincere whites I say this, your race is sick and only you can attempt to change it and prove to us that the stench of racism does not dwell in all who are white.

Read And Feel

By GILBERT J. SALK

NOTE: Normally, CULTURE NATIVES deals with cultural alternatives and alternatives life styles, offering ideas, for the purpose of discussion, about how we can take greater control of our lives in a way that will augment ecologically and humanistically sound ways of meeting our own needs and those of our brothers. The murder of 40 men at Attica State Prison in New York demands a break from that format. Please read and feel.

*****

The united states of america makes me want to vomit. In case you've missed the news, there's been a prison "riot" going on at Attica Prison in New York. Demands were made, some were met, others not. The prisoners (over 90% black and Puerto Rican) had some 38 of the prison guards (100% white in the entire prison) held as hostages, and threatened to kill them if force were used against them. Monday afternoon, over 1000 National Guardsmen (remember Kent State?) and State Police (remember Jackson State?) were ordered to storm the prison.

When the shooting was over, nine of the hostage guards were dead, and at least forty of the prisoners were dead, with many more seriously wounded. First reports by prison officials stated that the hostages' throats had been slit by their captors. But wire services reported Tuesday that medical examiners discovered that eight of the prisoners were shot. (Remember Fred Hampton?) Richard Nixon praised Nelson Rockefeller for his efficient handling of the disturbance.

Now dig this, people. Forty-nine of my brothers were murdered at Attica Monday. The murderer was the united states of america's system of "justice." This justice consists of putting human beings in cages and dehumanizing them. It consists of appointing other human beings as zookeepers to make sure that the animals don't escape, thus dehumanizing the guards. This system of justice seeks to correct wrongs by perpetrating other wrongs upon the original wrongdoers. It discriminates against the poor, the black, the long-haired. It puts property on a higher level of value than human freedom and life, and it believes that the best way to deal with murder is by revenge.

There are many ways to respond to the massacre. If you are a "radical", you might write the whole thing off as another act of racist murder, martyr the dead prisoners, and ignore the dead hostages. If you're a liberal, you can call the deaths shocking, grieve for the families of the dead guards, and forget to remember that the prisoners had families, too. If you're a member of the Nixon-Agnew-Mitchell school of "law 'n' order", you can say that the prisoners got what they deseved, and reiterate that it's okay to kill any number of people to prevent the spread of anarchy, because anarchists are liable to run around killing any number of people.

Well, fuck off, all of you.

Attica had to happen. It had to happen, and it will happen again, because all of you are so willing to write off the lives of those of your brothers who disagree with you. You'll kill all the commies or off all the pigs and sit comfortably back with the knowledge that God's on your side. No way, man. You can't condone the murders committed by the National Guard unless you also condone the murders by the prisoners, and vice versa. Each side uses exactly the same arguments to justify their actions, and each says that the others' rationalizations are full of shit. They're both right about one thing--Their arguments are full of shit.

The prisoners know from very real experience that the only way they can get relief from intolerable, dehumanizing conditions is to put the man up against the wall. This is their reality. Dig it. Prison officials know that if they let prisoners get away with demonstrations and riots there will be more demonstrations and riots. This is their reality. Dig it.

Neither reality is "right" or "wrong" in an absolute sense, but each is very, very right for the men who hold them. Until we recognize that no demonstration of force by either side is going to do anything other than reinforce the other's perception of reality. We need alternatives.

We have to change our system of justice from one of vengeance to one of support for the humanity of both the lawbreaker and the victim. We have to stop allowing institutions to do what is our personal responsibility--to care for our brothers and sisters who need our help, our time, our concern. We have to recognize for ourselves, and demand of our institutions, that without life nothing is important, and that there is no excuse for the disruption of life.

If you think one "side" at Attica was right and the other "side" was "wrong", take some time to get into an argument with someone who feels the other side was "right" and your side was "wrong". If you analyze what you're both going to be shouting at each other, you'll find that you are both saying exactly the same things. Think about it, people, and grow. Please.

There's only one side. We've got to find and use ways to help our brothers stop shooting each other.

At 7:00 p.m. tonight, the United Christian Foundation will sponsor a teach-in in the SU Ballroom on the Attica killings. They're trying to get some pretty heavy people there to rap. There'll be an open mike at the end so you can air some of your own feelings and ideas about what happened and how we can stop the next one. Be there.

On Friday, from 1:30 p.m. until 3:30 p.m., the United Christian Foundation will have an open coffee hour in the SU Colonial Lounge. They will play a tape of a sermon Father Daniel Berrigan would have given at Smith College if he had not been underground to avoid arrest for burning draft files. It's a very heavy tape, has some relevance to the Attica murders, and a great deal of relevance to the roles we can play as supporters of life while living within a system of death. I'll be there to help lead the discussion afterwards, and I'd enjoy seeing you there and hearing your reactions.

PEACE.

Letters To The Editor

Flack About Flo's

To the Editor:

I am forced to write a huffy defence of the Miss Florence Diner, so brutally attacked by David Williams in Monday's Collegian. Although William's visits to Flo's outnumber my one and only trip, I found his charges false, out of context and comparable only to the run-of-the-mill-Umie-dining-common-rhetoric. I know this for a fact as I was there Saturday night, also.

Perhaps the food has gone downhill since last year; I don't know. I went there because I was sick of Amherst Strip's weekend food and the Collegian gave it such a positive rating. A friend and I hitched over and were assured by these people that it was a good solid place to eat. No frills, just plain good food at even better prices. In fact, our ride drove us right to the door in his enthusiasm. It was crowded as we'd been warned, but we got counter seats which proved wise. Within ten, ten, Mr. Williams, minutes, I'd placed my order and gotten it-steak (well done, delicious, a good size and I never heard a whisper out of it), garden fresh salad, hot rolls and butter (like Mother wished she could make) and french fries (not to greasy, either) all for the tidy sum of $1.85. I even saw the hand from the kitchen deliver my dinner to my waiter. Unbelievable service. I've never seen anything like it. Before I'd finished my meal, there was my personable waiter with fresh hot rolls and butter (no extra charge).

Mr. Williams could not find any positive adjectives to describe the people who work at Flo's. No one smiled at us or chirped, "What'll it be, girlies?", but we did get that fast service, extra rolls and witnessed the couple next to us get a doggy bag the minute they asked for it. That is efficiency and we never once had to repeat our order. If Mr. Williams feels he was not treated with all due respect accorded a journalist, he should recall he was eating in a diner and not Chequers or Howard Johnson's. (I wonder if Mr. Williams has ever eaten at Durgen Park?)

I can't resist commenting on his remark that he found little black things in his water. I couldn't comprehend the oil slick in my coke until I realized it was from the juices in my steak. Eh, Dave?

Finally, the remark that one can eat at Flo's if it's still open is pure jest...The hometown crowd in there will verify this on a Saturday night alone. If I have failed to convince people of Flo's wholesomeness, a random polling i.e. of James House, might just do it.

Funny, I can't seem to say enough good things about Miss Florence Diner. If you like crowds, smoke, good blaring music-you can go to either the Hatch or Flo's. But if you're just plain hungry for something decent to eat at a fair price, get over to Flo's.

Kerry Gilliland

Home-Cooked Food

To the Editor:

I'm writing in reference to David William's column about the Miss Florence Diner in last Monday's Collegian. Funny thing though--I wonder if we're talking about the same place! I ate at Flo's last Saturday too and my reactions couldn't have been more different. My jumbo shrimp could have been out of some monster movie; that's how big they were. And being a Bostonian seafood nut from way back, they were right up there in the ranks of those served at Anthony's Pier 4 only there were more of them at one-quarter the price. It seems to me that dear Dave does not eat with his taste buds but with his eyes. Just because the plates aren't bone china, and the napkins are only paper, this doesn't mean that the food isn't hot, excellent, and promptly served. I found that the people at Flo's worked in mysterious ways with a lingo all their own but the results of these seemingly chaotic procedures are beyond reproach. Mr. Williams seems to take offense that "everything is just dropped in front of you." Well, I guess it must be terribly disappointing not to get carte blanche service for under two dollars.

It seems to me that this aspiring, journalistic genius has esthetic values so high that he can't appreciate good honest workingman's food. Well, all I have to say is, you can stick to the Lord Jeff (good food, outrageous prices) or the Hatch (pre-packaged sterile food) if you want to, but the rest of us second generation immigrants are playing it smart and getting great home-cooked food.

By the way, Dave, stop torturing yourself a fifth time at Flo's and stay home. Let those who can appreciate it be spared the 5 minutes of waiting in line behind you!

Emilie Sikora

Art Buchwald

Dream of Glory

WASHINGTON--Recent stories out of Saigon indicate that the United States offered huge sums of money--through Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker--to Vice President Ky and Gen. "Big" Minh if they would run against President Thieu in the October elections. The United States, which has a big stake in "free" elections, was worried that if no one ran against Thieu some people might suspect the elections were rigged.

I am constantly searching for new dreams of glory and thanks to the press dispatches from Saigon here is my latest one:

It is midnight in the summer of 1972 and suddenly there is a knock on the door of my house in Washington. Putting on a bathrobe I stumble to the door. "Who is it?" I ask.

"Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker," comes the voice from outside.

I unlatch the door.

"Ambassador, what the devil are you doing here at this hour?"

"I didn't want anyone to see me. I have to talk to you on some urgent business."

Bunker comes in with a satchel in his hand, the size of a medicine bag.

"I don't have much time," he says, "so I'll get to the point. As you know, the Democrats could not agree on a candidate to run for President at their convention in Miami last month."

"I am well aware of it," I say. "It ended in a dead heat and everyone went home mad. They decided not to run anyone. It was all in my column."

"Yes, well, nevertheless, President Nixon is very upset about not having any opposition during an election year."

"I also wrote that I said if he had no one to run against but himself, it could turn into one of the dirtiest campaigns in political history."

"Well, be that as it may, the President is very concerned that if he has no opponent this fall, many people around the world will think the election was rigged."

"That's certainly the impression the Democrats would like to give," I say.

"Therefore," says Bunker, "I have been asked by Mr. Nixon himself to urge you to run against him for the Presidency of the United States."

"But why me?" I protest.

"Because, Sir, the President feels you would be the ideal opponent. You have the qualities of Jefferson, Lincoln and Eisenhower. You put principle before power, the country's good before personal gain. It's all in your FBI folder."

"Heck," I say blushing. "Is nothing sacred?"

Bunker picks up the medicine bag and opens it. "The President has authorized me to give you $25 million in nontaxable unaccountable funds if you will run against him in the fall."

I stare at the money and whistle. "That's a lot of money, just for running for President."

"We will direct your campaign for you, provide you with speechwriters, buy television time for you, put up billboards and lend you Lawrence Welk to warm up the crowds."

"All right," I say, putting the money back in the bag. "But the day after the election I want to go back to being just plain John Q. Citizen."

"Have no fear," says Bunker, putting on his homburg and walking toward the door.

As he gets into his limousine a thought suddenly occurs to me and I yell, "Hey, suppose I win?"

But Bunker drives off. Apparently he doesn't hear me.

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Letters

As in previous years, the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letters will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

Editorial Points

Report from Southwest- Someone chiseled their way into a Southwest tower room and made off with a half ounce of cocaine two days ago. Just goes to show that nothing is safe in this University of ours.

****

Judging from the crowds of students lying outside the book store, it appears that buying books must wear out a lot of people.

****

What happened to the fire truck that was supposed to be parked out in front of the Student Union?

****

It appears that you can't even write a story about refrigerators without getting people mad.

****

It has been reported that one student is considering sueing the University because he lost all of his book money in the Campus Center pinball machines.

****

One Collegian staffer was reported as very embarrassed after being introduced by the wrong first name at last night's MDC recruitment meeting.

****

While we're on the subject of the MDC recruitment, there was quite a large turnout even though they weren't passing out free coffee and do-nuts.

To The Black Community

TAKE TWO is starting again. We will need help from you to put forth stories, poetry, editorials, black news and anything else that will contribute to the black community. Suggestions and ideas are needed from you. Contact as soon as possible while the year is young. Thank You.

Wayne Lucas

Burgundy Wine

A glassy wine beneath your feet;
A thunder wine of swells;
A scented wine to make you sleep;
A Burgundy as deep....as Hell.

Patterns of anticipation of Shadows building dreams;
The driving surf of imagination,
Riding winedark seas.

Swim the wine that feeds your soul, and
Let the spray blow free.
Let the keeper fill your bowl,
And lick your lips of every bead.

High above the rolling crest
Of wine - that silent jade;
A laughing heart of happy jest
Disguised within a shade.

Skiing on to certain death,
That heart begins to scream.
Going on is all that's left;
It's just a mid-day dream.

Salty mist to sandy shore -
That instant you were there;
Above the ocean's drunken roar -
Now gone, but who knows where.

Vintage ripened sweet with time...
That Burgundy of jade;
Swallowed by that sea of wine
a drunken God had made.

T. David Barrett

"This Latest Good-News Report Comes To You Direct From Our Official Underground Bunker ..."

Books

Adventures Of An Artist As A Young Man

Let's Go Europe: 1971. A guide to European travel. Published by Harvard Student Agencies, Inc. Holyoke Center, Cambridge, Mass. $2.25

By FRANK JOHNSON

This summer was the 27th anniversary of an invasion of Europe by American forces. It is becoming increasingly less difficult, however, for American noncombatants to invade Europe in mass numbers these days. The strategy is to see the most interesting places and to spend as little money as possible. The objectives include the major cities of Europe, for it is believed that these areas offer more to American tourists than other parts of the Mother Country. Potent weapons of deployment this year were the jumbo jets, special reduced fares to students, the increasing availability of the 21-day excursion plan, and a proliferation of inexpensive travel guides, some of which were directed primarily at students.

Fortress Europe proved that it still had a few tricks up its sleeve. Most returning Americans will ruefully tell you of their financial troubles relating to the dollar crisis. Some give tales of woe about being stranded in Europe because their charter flights were declared illegal by the F.A.A. A few were busted for dope, either by U.S. Customs or by European narcotics agents. And many were burned because they tried to religiously follow the advice of their travel guides. Among these guides Arthur Frommer's Europe on $5 a Day is undoubtedly the most famous. It is revised yearly and thus is quite up-to-date. Its major shortcomings include the fact that it speaks only of major cities in Europe, teeming with penurious Americans and very few genuine Europeans (they're usually on vacances or Urlaubs). Frommer quite honestly admits that he's usually so concerned about beating the high price of travel that occasionally he lets it interfere with his enjoyment. And, because his book dwells with such emphasis on the large cities, he deludes his readers into believing that there are no other attractions in Europe. Frommer has also been somewhat prostituted because he has become the darling of middle-aged, Middle Americans who enjoy the security of a predigested tour of Europe. Ironically, this group may also include college-age young Americans.

Foreign freakdom invaded London as American students browse Carnaby Street or thereabouts this past summer. American youth went to the continent in record numbers (as the author of this review attests to).

One guide in particular is well-known both for its reputation and its writers' proximity to the Pioneer Valley This of course is Harvard Student Agencies' Let's Go Europe, a self-styled handbook for the "individual" who wishes to "escape from Frommer's crowd". Frommer's book is organized by cities. Let's Go is organized by countries, ranging from Norway to Greece. It occasionally overlaps Frommer not only in its coverage but in its recommendations, but in scope it differs radically from Europe on $5 a Day.

First of all, Let's Go brands Frommer's book as being Middle American. "Don't bring suitcases," it urges. "Carry a pack...suitcases brand you as a member of the jet set." The "individual", therefore, is urged to follow such advice, even if it means shucking a perfectly good suitcase and buying an expensive pack. Next: "Don't drink Coke." The alternative? Wine. Dutifully, young American travelers down liters of wine with their lunch, sometimes at prices exceeding that which they might have paid for an inexpensive, thirst-quenching soft drink, and sleep their afternoons (and vacations) off. Are you ready for this one? Let's Go suggests that you take a day from London out to Salisbury, England. You are then advised to walk across town to a bus that will drop you off within 2 miles of Stonehenge. Now walk the 2 remaining miles (remember: you're supposedly carrying that expensive pack!) each way, and compete with hundreds of Americans staring at a few monoliths. For most student visitors, save for a few Druid enthusiasts, it's a megalithic waste of time.

Some of Let's Go's coverage of individual countries is laudable, but the book itself abounds in personal prejudices and preferences that have no place in an objective guidebook. According to the editors, the Austrian town of Klagenfurt is a "must". I selected Klagenfurt as an overnight stop on my way up to Vienna, and found it a depressing mass of suburban dwellings, with about as much appeal and interest to college-age travellers as San Clemente, Calif. Frequently, their advice on crucial matters for the tourist is misleading. Their emphasis on reservations, for instance, is non-existent; their point of view would intimate that planning ahead might interfere with spontaneity. Partly true, but what's so repellent about knowing where you're going to spend the night (at Stonehenge)?

Let's Go is down on the Eurailpass system, and up on hitch-hiking (You meet the nicest people on the Autobahn!). It does not presume that much of the value in an Eurailpass lies in its convenience, but does presume that Europeans will bend over backwards to give students rides, which isn't always true, as many young Americans found out this summer. Let's Go urges that you visit Rouen- apart from the cathedral, another Klagenfurt, as I found out. They also advocate coming to Europe at times other than coinciding with vacations. This is a valiant attempt at advising you to avoid the summer rush, but highly impractical in lieu of the fact that summer is the only time when you're really able to spend time visiting Europe.

Let's Go occasionally does come forth with valuable advice, mostly relating to eating and sleeping. It does not offer anything original in the advising of where you will do your eating and sleeping, and frequently its tone is downright insulting. "Ask for the man who gives tours in English," it says, at Chartres. "This is a priceless opportunity to learn something about which you would otherwise gaze at appreciably but dumbly all summer." (I didn't know that people who couldn't speak French were dumb) Don't bring a camera, by the way. According to Let's Go, it won't repay the worry about losing it.

The ageless assignment so dear to English comp professors, "How I Spent My Summer Vacation", would undoubtedly find many American students writing: "mostly reading Frommer and Let's Go." Such publications justify their existence by offering a few valuable tips on planning your European trip and how to go about it inexpensively. But their existence in your suitcase (or pack!) is really justified only when one uses caution in taking them too seriously

Surprise People

Bring them a

Bell's Pizza

65 University Dr.

256-68011 - 253-9051

Free Delivery of Pizzas

Rent a refrigerator for your room. Just $4.44 a month.*

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Free pick-up and delivery
- Guaranteed—if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

CALL 256-8488, 253-2494

mini kool

*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.

Top Brass Work On New Draft Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon sent its top brass to Congress Tuesday to push for revival of the draft law amid new warnings from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird of dangers facing national security.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff and the civilian heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force met with Sen. John C. Stennis, the Mississippi Democrat who is chairman of the Armed Services Committee and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, the ranking committee Republican.

Aides said the Pentagon's new lobbying blitz reflected Laird's fear that the draft-extension bill may be in deep trouble that could result in a serious manpower crunch for the armed forces.

Indeed, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said there is a good chance the bill will be tabled when it comes up for a vote Thursday. This would, in effect, reject the Senate-House conference report and send it back to conferees for revision which might not be ready this year.

The nation has been without a draft since June 30 when the old law expired. Efforts to renew the induction authority have been tied up in congressional battles over a Mansfield amendment to withdraw all U.S. troops from Vietnam, and a $2.4-billion military pay raise which might take effect during President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

A Pentagon spokesman, Jerry W. Friedhaim, said Laird cancelled his morning appointment schedule to take personal command of the lobbying effort. A veteran of 16 years in Congress, Laird spent most of the morning on the phone consulting with Stennis and conferring with the service secretaries and military chiefs.

Laird has said the Army will suffer manpower shortages beginning in November.

BELFAST-SPEAKS AT RALLY—Bernadette Devlin, member of Parliament from Northern Ireland, speaks Sunday at a rally of Roman Catholics protesting mass arrests of suspected members of the Irish Republican Army. The rally followed an agreement for a summit talk between the leaders of Britain, Ireland, and Northern Ireland. (AP Wirephoto via Cable from London)

CHARLESTOWN, N.H.—Rock musicians entertain part of a crowd of nearly 2500 people who turned out for the festival at North Charlestown, N.H., which was staged for the financial benefit of local boy Mike Fennessey who needs a kidney transplant operation. (AP Wirephoto)

Army Toughens Drug Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Army has failed in efforts to persuade drug-addicted soldiers to seek treatment prior to discharge and from now on will make such treatment mandatory, an administration spokesman said Tuesday.

Dr. Jerome H. Jaffee, director of President Nixon's special drug-abuse prevention program, announced this in testimony before a Senate Veterans' Affairs subcommittee. Among other things, Jaffe's program includes pre-discharge drug-addiction tests for all servicemen leaving Vietnam.

Giving the GI addict the option of treatment in a Veterans Administration hospital or of going home without any help hasn't worked, Jaffe said.

Between July 1 and Sept. 10, 86,082 servicemen took urine tests and 4,440 or 5.15 per cent showed positive reactions toward opiates. Another 10 per cent of the men probably used hard drugs intermittently, Jaffe said.

But during the same period, Jaffe said, only 23 GIs voluntarily agreed to be transferred to a VA hospital for treatment for their remaining 10 or 15 days in the service.

"These figures made it clear to us, as well as to the Department of Defense and the Veterans Administration, that the system was not working as we had hoped," said Jaffe.

"The Department of Defense has forwarded to all commanders directives advising them that drug-dependent personnel with limited terms of service remaining are not to be given the option of declining transfer by ASMRO the Armed Services Medical Regulating Organization to VA facilities ...

"The effect of this new directive is that a man identified as drug dependent and who has, for example, two weeks' service remaining will serve those in a VA hospital while receiving treatment.

Jumping into bed takes on new meaning at

COME TOGETHER WATERBEDS

Mon. & Thurs. 11-9 Tues., Wed., Fri. & Sat. 11-6

191 Worthington St. 737-7920

You'll get more out of this bed then you might think. Prices start at $19.95. For immediate delivery, call:

S. Amherst 256-8370

Directory...

A supplement to the Student Directory is being prepared and will be available for distribution mid-October. This supplement will be distributed in the residence halls and will be used in conjunction with the original directory.

The supplementary directory will be available for all on-campus departments, commuters and staff and the Campus Center Bookstore. Cost for the original and supplementary directory will be $.75.

Departments wishing to order bulk amount of directories should bring a purchase order to the Bookstore immediately.

WANTED

Part-Time

Secretary

for

Student Senate

Call 5-0341

after 2:30 p.m.

No, Prudence. Don't turn off your radio in despair . . .

We're back with progressive music and other good things.

Starting TODAY at 6:30 a.m.

Student owned and operated

And as a special added attraction!

Hear Electric Eric in action!

WMUA

91.1 FM

free form / informative radio

NES Needs Help

The Northern Educational Service tutoring program is looking for qualified students with a desire to help underprivileged children stay in school.

Realizing that almost 1,000 children drop out of Springfield schools each year, a number of individuals initiated this program. Using figures made available to them by the Springfield School Department, NES determined that children from low-income families do not perform as well in school as those children from middle and upper income families. Thus, the need for tutoring became apparent.

NES is looking for dedicated UMass students who might be willing to work one-to-one with a child, encouraging him, demonstrating the importance of school.

NES has organized other programs which might be of interest to the dedicated UMass student who feels inadequate as a tutor.

Interested students should inquire at the NES office, Room 105, in the Campus Center.

YOU CAN HELP these young people stay in school by joining the NES tutoring program. (Photo courtesy NES)

NOTICES

CEQ OFFICERS:
Steering committee meeting tonight 6:30 p.m. in Rm. 178 of CC. Very important everyone be there.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
First club meeting of the year at 7:30 p.m. in 165 169 CC, tonight. Everyone is welcome whether you fly or not.

GEOLOGY DEPT:
Geology majors: Any undergraduate geology major who wants to get involved in their department should come to an important meeting Thurs. at 7:30 in Morrill 161.

HILLEL:
Computer dance sign ups in front of the Hatch today, tomorrow, and Friday.

INTER VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Business meeting Thursday night, 8 p.m., in Memorial Hall. Everyone welcome.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB:
Coffee hour at 8 p.m. in Rms. 168 170 of CC. Two films from Australia will be shown, 'Australia Now' and 'Adelaide'.

MODEL RAILROADERS:
Anyone interested in finding a room and building an HO guage model railroad layout, please call or see Dean Foster, 209 MacKimmie, 546 9772.

NES:
All students who are interested in developing and organizing special projects for the NES program will meet tonight in Rm. 162 of CC at 7:30.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL:
Undergraduate Women: Tonight's sorority rush party will be "The Kappa Zoo" at Kappa Kappa Gamma, a "Trivia Night" at Pi Beta Phi held in Beta Kappa Phi), "Foreign Travels" at Sigma Delta Tau, "My Favorite Sport" at Alpha Chi Omega, and "Witchcraft" at Lambda Delta Phi. All will be held from 7 8 and from 8:15 9:15 p.m. You're cordially invited to attend.

SCROLLS:
Meeting at 6:15 in Rms. 911 915 CC.

WOMEN'S SWIM TEAM:
All undergraduate women interested in swimming please see the new coach, Miss Griffin in 109 WOPE this week, or call and leave your name. We need everyone. Come on out and swim.

LOST:
Prescription sunglasses lost in SBA 120 on Mon., Sept. 12. Please call Jeff at 546 7004. Please.

Lost small notebook about Bartlett or Whitmore on Tues. Please return to the Student Union Lost & Found.

FOUND:
Old girl's bike abandoned during summer. Call Jim, 107 Dwight and describe it.

TONITE
A Variety of Songs
from
4 New Groups
for Dancing or Listening
at
The English Pub
9:00 - 1:00 25c Donation

Illicit Russian Film Reaches West

LONDON (AP)-The defiant face of an old woman looks at the audience from a dramatic protest film smuggled out of Russia.

"Help me to save my husband," she pleads. "To save those who, like my husband, are suffering for their opinion."

She is Zinaida Grigorienko, wife of a tall, bald Soviet major general. He was cashiered, arrested and, his wife says, beaten and locked into a mental hospital after campaigning against Soviet repression of human rights.

Mrs. Grigorienko is one of seven dissidents who risked prison or banishment to Siberia by filming the first Russian-made underground protest movie to reach the West.

The blurred, amateurish film is called "Human Rights in the Soviet Union." It was given a private showing in London on Monday.

The Russians who made it hope it will reach a mass Western audience on television and generate publicity that will help their tiny protest movement.

So far their protests over such things as the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, alleged anti-Semitism and censorship have had little effect inside Russia. Gradually many protesters have been arrested.

Anatoly Levitin-Krasnov, a religious writer who was facing trial when the film was made, said he feared what would happen to him after the trial.

"For me, at my age," he said, "and in my state of health a prison camp is to all intents and purposes the same as death."

Levitin-Krasnov, a veteran of Stalinist labor camps, was convicted of anti-Soviet slander and sentenced to three years at a labor camp shortly after the film was made. He had protested alleged suppression of religion in Russia.

Historian Pyotr Yakir, a tough, bearded camp veteran whose father was a famous Red army commander shot in the purges of the 1930s, said "the spirit of liberation" has spread through Russia in recent years.

Yakir, 49, an active leader of the Soviet protest movement, said: "If it were technically possible we could produce another 100,000 similar interviews."

Alexander Yesenin-Volpin, mathematician son of the famed Russia poet Sergei Yesenin, appealed for freedom of information, freedom to travel outside the Soviet Union and legal guarantees against abuses by the secret police.

Miss Yeva Mendelevich, sister of one of the Leningrad Jews given long labor camp terms last winter after an abortive attempt to hijack a plane to Israel, appealed for her brother's release. He was sentenced to 10 years.

Coffee Hours Announced

This fall the International Club is starting a weekly coffee hour on every Wednesday from Sept. 15, 1971. The coffee hour is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Campus Center rooms 168-170.

At each coffee hour two or possibly three films will be screened from a foreign country. The films will be informative as well as entertaining. The club would like to see the participation of American and Foreign students at these coffee hours to make them a success. At the same time the Amherst community and those living in the vicinity of the campus are also invited.

There is no admission charge for these coffee hours, and in addition to coffee light snacks will also be served. Those who wish to join the club can do so during these coffee hours, and the membership fee is $1.00. For the month of September the dates and films to be shown are as follows:
Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1971 (Films from Australia)

Australia Now: A colour film of 22 minutes on Australia.

Adelaide: A colour film of 18 minutes showing the capital of South Australia.

Wednesday, Sept. 22, 1971 (Films from Nationalist China)

Huang Chun-pi: A colour film of 25 minutes on Chinese art, and painting.

Dances in China: Chinese dancing is presented in this colour film of 28 minutes.

Wednesday, Sept. 29, 1971 (Films from Australia)

Tjurunga

Walkabout) These two colour films of 20 minutes each depict the Aboriginal way of life in detail. The film is informative and should be interesting to those who are interested in the Aboriginal way of life.

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

For Sale, 67 VW Bus. Excellent cond., no rust, 49,000 mi, $900. 253-7438. tf9/10-15

63 VW Beetle. Excellent condition. 256-8230. tf9-17

1970 Camaro, must be seen. Call 584-2273 (m.-f. aft. 6). tf9-17

1969 Triumph Tiger 650 cc, excellent condition. 256-8687. tf9 17

1965 Corvair - Corsa, 4 spd, 4 carb., good condition. Best offer. Call 253-3886 after 5 p.m. tf9 15

67 Mustang, A.T., V8, good condition, $900. Call Jeff 256-6038 tf 9-17

1962 VW, fair body, rebuilt engine, gas heater, sun-roof, excellent tires. $250 or best offer. Call 665-4662 after 5 p.m. or keep trying. tf9-20

'68 Fiat, red, 850 Spider. 33,000 miles, good cond. Call 549-1484 evenings after 6 p.m. tf9-22

1969 Opel, 36,000 original mi. Good condition. Best offer. Raz 549-6346 Also 125 cc Suzuki 2500 mi., 1971.

1961 Falcon, rebuilt trans., new snows and batt. Great buy, $100 Call Crabtree and leave mess. for Grant, Rm. 206. tf9-22

Going to Europe, must sacrifice 1970 Maverick, ex. cond. 14,000 miles. Phone Ware, 1-477-6904 tf9-21

Owner wanted for 62 Dodge Lancer Good condition, dependable transport. Asking $195. Call 545-2418 evenings. tf9-16

1968 MGBGT, very good condition, 3200. Priced below book $1650 Greenfield 773-7885. 9-15, 22, 29

1968 Ford Cortina, low mileage, good condition, 2 studded snow tires, $350. Call 586-2634. tf9-20

1969 Ford Econoline, excellent condition. New tires and chrome wheels. Beautiful interior with stereo. Call 665-4700 Sunderland. tf9-18

64 Dodge Dart. Needs mech incl. owner $100 or best offer Call 6-5166. tf9-16

1968 Ford Galaxie, 40,000 miles, yellow with black interior Stereo Immaculate. Call 256-6297. tf9-17

1966 Red Porsche 912, AM-FM-SW Radial Ply Tires $2200. Call 253-9089 or 548-2330 tf9-20

'65 Chev. Corvair Monza Conv. 4 speed, $300. Call 549-1049 betw. 5-6. tf9-21

'49 British Taxi Cab, rst. hand drive, runs well, new tires, brakes, jump seats, body beginning to rust. No dents. Call 256-6098. tf9-17

1964 Ford Galaxie, fair condition, $100. Call Richard 549-1470. tf9-22

Going overseas, must sell quickly 62 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $150. 2 month old $150 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $30. Call 253-5096 tf9-24

Dodge Van 69 Custom, auto trans. Very good cond. Must sell Best offer. Box 447, Amherst. tf9-17

1966 Toyota for sale, 67 engine needs a little work. Will sell for $150 Call 256-8370. tf9-16

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sel, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or Jumbo $49.95. Immed. deliv., 5 yr warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst. tf9-22

Small kitchen table 24x36 w/2 chairs. 54 inch kitchen sink on metal base. Jacuzzi reel mower, self propelled. 323-7046 after 6 p.m. tf9-16

Sleep on a waterbed tonight! All sizes and all frames. $19.95 and up 5 yr. guarantee. Call anytime Jerry 256-8370. tf9-16

DUMP NIXON '72 - lg. red, white and blue decal (emphasis on "DUMP") $1. Dump Nixon '72, Box 97, College Park, MD 20740. tf9-15

1 yr. old Sears Coldspot refrigerator with freezer and ice cube trays, approx. 9 cu. ft. Price negotiable. Call 253-7464 after 5. tf9 17

2 Matching gold bedspreads for sale $3.00 each. Call Donna at 546-1164 or Deb at 546-6372. tf9-16

GE portable stereo, excellent condition, ideal for dorm or small apartment, make offer. 549-6505 tf9-16

Sewing machine, new $300. Morse Zigzar, never used, button holer, darner, etc., new $150. Call Amherst Motel, Tina Rm. 16. tf9-17

Rene Duval Silver Flute, new pads, good condition $85. Call 527-6479. tf9-17

Portable Gen. Elec. stereo and stand. Good condition. Best offer Call 549-0647 after 5:00 p.m. tf9-17

Ski Boots for sale - Kuflach White Star, 8½ M, 2 yrs. old. Call 546-4184. tf9-20

APARTMENT WANTED

Sr. girl needs room desperately. Will share expenses and help w. furn. Contact Rnth c/o Lisa Eldlin, 404 Melville. tf9-15

ROOMMATES WANTED

One girl or couple only. If you need a place to stay until Oct. 31. Call aft. 6, m-f 584-2273. tf9 17

Commune for 2. Female house partner, 24-up wanted. Lg rent but very rough. Working male. Con. Ed. student 253-7277 after 8 or Box 792. tf9-17

2 Roommates wanted to share room in 3 bedrm. furnished apt. $70 - $75/month. Colonial Village, Amherst, Apt. 100. tf9-15

One girl wanted to share apt. with two others. Share expenses Call evenings after 8:30, Jean or Charlene, 586-3095. 9-15

MUSICIAN WANTED

Singer needed to form versatile group (rock, ballads, old standards) Must be experienced. Call Steve 256-8061 tf9-17

HELP WANTED

Students to deliver Boston Herald Traveler in Orchard Hill, Central and Quad. Pretty good salary. Call Paul at 549-6014. tf9-15

Any UMass student with Class II drivers license to drive Campus Shuttle Bus. Call RSO Office 5-2351. tf9-17

If you are CFI or Grnd. Instr., please see us at next Collegiate Flying Club meeting, Wed., Sept 15 at 7:30 p.m. in rm. 165 CC. tf 9-15

Sitter needed, M.W.F. 1 p.m.-2:30 p.m. Own transportation desirable. 549-0407. tf9-17

Professor needs secretarial assistant with some dictation competence. About ten hours weekly. Write Hinkle, History Dept. tf9-17

Needed - SE8 representative for distribution office in S.U. Lobby, Room 318. Telephone 545-3683. tf9-16

Lead Singer wanted for est. working group: Rock, Blues, etc., also original mat. Year round work! contact Bob or John 69747 - 68664. tf9-22

Student to care for 5 yr. old boy in my home nr. School of Ed. M-F 11:15-12:45; Tu. 2:15-5:30. 549-0676 tf9-20

WANTED

Experienced Black Belt in Karate for sparring practice. Call Ron 586-8825, 1669 John Adams. tf9-15

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted from Campus to Lakemeadow or Springfield, Mon., Wed., Fri. to leave 12:15 p.m. or somewhat soon thereafter. Will pay. 567-8317. tf9-15

Cornell — Need a ride to Cornell or vicinity this weekend, Fri., Sept. 17. Will share expen. Call John 546-9743. tf9-16

Ride needed to Sprfld. Fri. nites - 3 p.m. and/or return 4 a.m. Will pay. Perhaps someone will rent me their car? Gary, 411 No. Pleasant. tf9-16

RIDE OFFERED

Travel from Framingham to UMass on Tues. and Thurs. and would like a rider. Call 617-872-4625. tf9-17

LOST

Reward - 10 week old Doberman-Shepherd, long flea collar in large knot. Name Gus. 549-6496. tf9-16

GIVE-AWAY

Wanted good home for gentle, affectionate 6-month old female cat. Call 6-8568. tf9-17

PERSONAL

D - tried to find you - I'm going now. Sorry I didn't get to see you. Guess I'll just say goodbye. Nell. tf9-17

Sneakers - Converse - best prices in town at THE SHOE-BIN (formerly The Shoe In) in town, behind Anburhen's "in the alley". 9-15

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Must have own room. Call Mary 253-7673. Leave message if not there. tf9-21

SERVICES

Languages by Multi-Linguist - Formerly United Nations Interpreter Breakthrough, portable, language laboratory/4-track "take-home, send-back" cassettes/. Native assistants, also group and correspondence courses. Charge: "Mini"! P.O. Box 47 Nbmpton, Ma. 01060; Tel. 413 584-9470; 584-4823. tf9-17

Girl Watching Can Be Trouble

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Girl watching—is it a sport or "organized Peeping Tomism?"

That question has brought the Century City Chamber of Commerce eyeball to eyeball with a group of angry women.

The chamber for this shining cluster of westside skyscrapers has proclaimed one week each year "Girl Watchers Week" to "acknowledge in a formal way one of the biggest natural resources we have, our gorgeous women." The lunch hour brings a colorful parade of secretaries and other office workers to Century City's plazas.

The climax of the week of organized ogling is a luncheon at which a panel of celebrities chooses "Century City's Most Watchable Girl."

This year's "Girl Watchers Week," which runs through Thursday, however, has seen resistance emerge in the ranks of the watched.

"Degrading, distasteful, childish, warped, disconcerting outrageous, exploitive and infantile," are some of the epithets women have been hurled at the chamber.

The opponents have organized the "Ad Hoc Committee of Century City Women opposed to Girl Watchers' Week." This 30-member group has done little so far except split into factions. One segment favors a counterwatch, with girls ogling the men. Others, who may not feel this is a particularly fearsome weapon, talk of consumer boycotts and petitions.

So far, their efforts have failed to turn the tide. They have won one concession. The chamber decided not to put up bleachers for the watchers as it did last year.

Americans Buying Foreign Money

NEW YORK (AP)-American travelers, afraid they can't change their dollars in Europe, are buying millions of dollars worth of foreign currency here before departing on their trips.

"The demand is so unusually heavy that we have had to bring in bags and bags of money," said Nicholas L. Deak. "We have brought in millions of dollars worth."

Deak, head of a major money exchange chain, said his company had to set up a special transfer service between the airport and his offices.

The dealer said the pound sterling was the currency most in demand, followed by the German mark. Swiss francs were in third place and the French franc fourth. Then came Dutch guilders, the lira and the Spanish pesetas.

Other sources said they had heard of no difficulties in changing dollars, however.

The Swiss francs were in demand, not so much because tourists are going there but because it is the easiest currency to change in other countries. C. Gordon Tether, writing in the Financial Times of London, said the Swiss currency cost less to buy and brought in more when sold than any other money.

Immunize Yourself

Immunization clinics will be held at the Health Services on Wednesdays from 1 - 2 p.m. and 3 - 4 p.m. Yellow fever immunizations will be given only on Wednesday, 2 - 3 p.m. Both will be done on an appointment basis only, in an effort to save waiting time. Call for an appointment at 545-0057.

Allergy clinic hours will be Tuesday and Friday, 8 - 12 a.m. and 1 -4 p.m. and Wednesday, 8 - 12 a.m. Visits will also be by appointment only. Call 545-2671 for your appointment or further information.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Some who are classical representatives of their zodiacal signs include Mae West, Leo; Bette Davis, Aries; James Mason, Taurus; Bob Hope, Gemini; Jane Russell, Cancer; Greta Garbo, Virgo; Deborah Kerr, Libra; Richard Burton, Scorpio; Ramsey Clark, Sagittarius; Henry Miller, Capricorn; Kim Novak, Aquarius and Anais Nin, Pisces.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Review hopes, ambitions. You may be taking circular rather than direct route. Be aware of where you are going and why. Accent on children who make demands, loved ones who are cantakerous.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stress practicality. Leave wishful thinking to others. Be aware of accounts, money position and experience. In personal dealings, emotions could attempt to take command. Strive for balance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be flexible. Look, ahead. Perceive opportunities. Overall view now is best; leave details to others. Aries is involved. Learn from past experience. Aid one who has suffered temporary setback.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money situation subject to change for better. Key is to promote the new. Be confident enough to utilize original methods. You are not wedded to outmoded concepts. Know this; speak to mate, partner about it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Learn by teaching; share knowledge. Avoid rushing into partnership, marriage, other contractual commitment. Cycle high; time your moves. Emotions tend to stampede. Pull tight on reins. Remain in control.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Subtle approach is a requisite. If you are heavy handed, prospects are frightened. Accent on what occurs at secret conference. You are involved; so is Sagittarius. Keep options open.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some friends display anxiety about promises, changes, revisions. Key is to know your own job, to be thorough and to separate fact from nonsense. One who is rival makes definite move.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Libra message. Welcome chance to communicate views. Member of opposite sex is involved. What was settled once more is open for discussion and argument. Involves home base, property.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You nail down what had been elusive. You impress others. Your imprint, style become known to more persons. Dance to your own tune. Don't imitate. Lead rather than follow. Domestic situation improves.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your perceptiveness becomes great ally. Applies especially where finances enter picture. Be aggressive when it comes to collecting what you need. No more procrastinating. Go to it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relative, neighbor may get your adrenalin going. There are disputes. But remember that a clash of ideas is far more exciting than clash of guns. Means enjoy intellectual combat. Test ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What may appear to be starting is actually finishing. Money promised may be tied up, hidden, restricted, nonusable. Know this and be prepared with alternatives. Stress ability to use material at hand.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have distinctive voice; you are appealing to opposite sex. Current domestic situaty

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have distinctive voice; you are appealing to opposite sex. Current domestic situation will improve. By November, you are in driver's seat where emotions, finances are con member understands your goal.

Copyright, 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

WMUA

On WMUA Tonight:

7:00 p.m. Evening News (one half hour)

7:30 p.m. Viewpoint-a new in depth version of the popular public affairs program. This week's guest will be UMass Student Senate President Lee Sandwen. The discussion will focus on campus issues and WMUA's Marty Waters will be the moderator.

8:00 p.m. The Drum-Black programming for the Connecticut Valley returns with this special program featuring an on the scene report from Pacifica Radio on the Attica State Prison riots. Poetry, jazz, soul and black news are regular features of this popular show serving the black community. (three hours)

11:00 p.m. Late Night News (one half hour) World, National and local news from United Press International, Associated Press, and the WMUA News staff.

11:30 p.m. to 3:00 a.m. Eric Benjamin does his thing with progressive music in his inimitable style.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Measure duration of
5 Journey
9 Hog
12 Dye plant
13 Rockfish
14 Devoured
15 Supposing that
16 Toss
18 Gratuity
20 Preposition
22 Above and touching
24 Algonquian Indians
27 Woody plant
29 Silkworm
31 Parcel of land
32 Repeal
34 Temporary shelter
36 Compass point
37 Expert
39 Punish
41 Man's nickname
42 Lamb's pen name
44 Hebrew festival
45 College degree (abbr.)
47 Nobleman
49 Sailors (colloq.)
50 Organs of sight
52 Decorate
54 Note of scale
55 Dude
57 Arrow poison
59 Greek letter
61 Expire
63 Rescue
65 Diplomacy
67 Be mistaken
68 Roman date
69 Toward shelter

DOWN
1 Siamese native
2 Without ceremony
3 Note of scale
4 Sprite
5 Commonplace
6 Rumor
7 Preposition
8 Stroke
9 Pertaining to the Pope
10 Pronoun
11 Earth goddess
17 Note of scale
19 Exists
21 Tolls
23 Baker's products
25 Meeting
26 Guides
27 Mexican dish
28 Heraldry: fimbriated
30 Emmets
33 Secluded valley
35 Allowance for waste
38 Disturbance
40 Hebrew month
43 Come on the scene
46 Put off
48 Eats
51 Conjunction
53 Pronoun
56 Greek letter
58 Greek letter
60 Southwestern Indian
61 Prefix: down
62 Prefix: not
64 Paid notice
66 Man's nickname

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

H	A	M		R	A	P	I	D		S	E	T
I	D	O		A	G	A	T	E		P	R	O
P	O	T	A	T	O		A	F	F	A	I	R
		H	I	E		A	L	T	E	R
S	L	E	D		T	R	Y		R	E	N	T
H	E	R		F	A	T		R	A	D	A	R
A	M		M	U	D		S	O	L		M	U
D	O	N	O	R		F	I	N		T	E	N
E	N	I	D		C	A	R		D	U	S	K
		C	E	D	A	R		V	I	M
A	N	K	L	E	S		G	A	M	B	L	E
T	I	E		L	E	A	N	S		L	A	Y
E	L	L		I	S	S	U	E		E	W	E

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Student Senate
BOOK LOANS
Now Available
Student Senate
Office, Level 1
Campus Center

If You Dig Music
Read On!
Special Offer
8-TRACK TAPES
$2.50 - $3.00
anything from acid rock to country western
Tremendous Savings
8-TRACK PLAYER
PORTABLE AC-DC
under $30.00
Plus much more - TVs, Radios, the works.
FOR INFO CALL 546-5648 and ask for Paul Brown 204 B

Erving Earns "Can't-Miss"

By LEONARD COHEN

The pro scouts have been putting the "can't-miss" tag on Julius Erving, the former University of Massachusetts star who gave up his senior year's eligibility to sign with the ABA's Virginia Squires. His play in the recently concluded Rucker Tournament confirms that high appraisal.

The one-time Roosevelt, L.I., High School ace was voted the tourney mvp, quite an honor when you consider the name players this annual Harlem competition draws. Among Erving's teammates were such pro stars as Charlie Scott of the Knicks plus Joe DePre, Bill Paultz and Ollie Taylor of the Nets plus Atlanta draftee Jeff Hallibert of Drake, the tough Missouri Valley Conference's MVP.

Among the men Erving competed against were Dave Stallworth, Fred Crawford, Nate Archibald and Sid Catlett. But he outshone them all, leading everyone with an average of 16 rebounds and 30 points in his next-to-last game.

"It was a definite confidence builder for me," said Erving by telephone from UMass, where he is taking a summer course.

"I enjoyed playing with and against the pros and my ability to do well gave me a lot of confidence," continued the 6-6, 200 pounder who signed for what he terms "a quite satisfactory four-year contract in six figures" and is awaiting the Squires' Sept. 10 reporting date.

"Now what I want to get is a starting position. I'm a forward and hope to play at that spot."

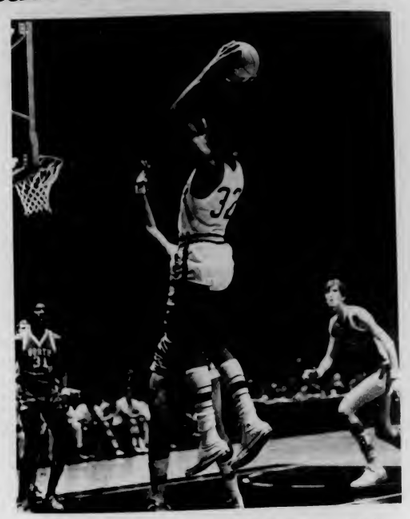
Erving, top rebounder in his last two years of collegiate competition led Massachusetts to a 23-3 record last season, averaging 20 rebounds and 27 points. He was the nation's third best rebounder as a sophomore and second to 7-2 Artis Gilmore as a junior.

"I rebounded in the Rucker play better than I expected to," Erving said. But it wasn't better than others expected. Erving possesses outstanding leaping strength and what one qualified observed called "the biggest pair of hands seen around here in years.

"He's got hands like Sweetwater Clifton and Connie Hawkins. Erving is a marvel at controlling the ball."

Jimmy McDermott, veteran Iona College coach who has seen his share of great courtmen, said, "Erving is an excellent pro prospect. He's a fine rebounder, he runs well and shoots very well. He's flexible and mobile and I believe capable of playing in the back court, too.

"He can do it all."



Julius, who commuted from Amherst, Mass. to New York weekends for the Rucker play does it again this Saturday for the tournament's East-West All-Star at IS 201. Then on Sunday he'll play against the Philadelphia All-Stars at Temple University.

Owner Earl Foreman put up a lot of dough to sign Erving and the Squires head man just couldn't watch him enough at the teams rookie camp sessions. "Mr. Foreman never came out to watch me that much," Charlie Scott said.

(Reprinted from the New York Post 9/11/71)

IHS LAST MOMENTS-Julius Erving sits out his last few minutes as a Redman after fouling out in last year's NIT opener.

CAN'T MISS FORM-Julius Erving shows the form that made him the talk of New York basketball over the summer.

It's Powder Puff Time

The 1971-72 school year heralds the beginning of a new women's intramural sports program. The purpose of the program is to provide organized competition in sports activities for those who want it regardless of their skill level. The underlying principle of intramural sports is "participation"--for fun, for physical exercise, and for getting away from the "rat race" Winning and losing are facets of intramural sports, but they are secondary.

Powder Puff Football

The first scheduled activity for women to try their hand at is Powder Puff Football. Contrary to some interpretations, this is not football played with a powder puff, but with a Jr. size football (about 1/3 smaller than a regular size football) which enables feminine fingers to grasp it better. As contrasted with men's touch football, powder puff is a form of flag football. Both Jr. size footballs and flag and belt sets have been purchased by the Intramural Office and are available for prospective teams to check out for practice and for league games.

Any interested teams can sign up for this activity by obtaining an entry form from the Intramural Office and returning it to same by 5:00 p.m. Monday, Sept. 20. Rules and other materials can also be picked up at the Intramural Office, 215 Boyden Gym.

Leagues will consist of 4 or 5 teams each for round robin competition. At the conclusion of league play a single elimination tournament involving the top teams in each league will be held to determine the All Campus Champion as well as the top Residence Hall, Sorority and Independent teams.

Games, for the most part, will be played on the lighted intramural fields, with the first round of games beginning at 6:00. Each team will play one game a week, and in some cases two, though this will be the exception rather than the rule.

Sports Notices

SWIM TEAM-The UMass swimming team is currently practicing at the Boyden pool and will do so every day from 4 to 6 p.m. New members and freshmen are invited to try out. The performance of the team will depend heavily on the fall practices.

*****

RUGBY CLUB-Rugby practice will be held tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. weather or not. Newcomers are welcome. No experience required. At the rugby fields west of Boyden.

*****

CREW-There will be a meeting tonight of all freshman who are interested in trying out for crew. No experience is necessary, but you have to be 5'11 or taller. The meeting is in room 0 Boyden, across from the weight room. If you cannot make it see Coach Mike Faherty in Room 211, Boyden most any day.

*****

QUARTERBACK CLUB RETURNS-The UMass Redman Quarterback Club luncheons resume today at the Newman Center beginning at 12:15 p.m. and getting out promptly at 1:15. Head coach Dick MacPherson, his staff and co-captains Dennis Keating and John Hulecki will be on hand to preview the season, give a scouting report on Maine and narrate the highlight films of the recent UMass-Cornell scrimmage.

There will also be a raffle of choice tickets for upcoming games, a door prize and excellent food. The public is invited with admission $1.50. Season passes at reduced rates can also be purchased at the door

King Inks Brewers Bonus Pact

Tom King, one of the leading pitchers on the YanCon Championship Redman nine last spring, signed a bonus contract with the Milwaukee Brewers in late July. King, who was 5-1 for UMass last spring, had another year of eligibility and was entering his senior year.

King, a 6'3" lefty, was pitching for Falmouth of the Cape Cod League and had a 6-1 record when he signed. He reported to Neward, N.Y., of the New York-Penn. League where he played during the last month of the season, winning two games for the Brewers farm club.

Tom, who is presently student teaching in Granby, was a high draft choice out of Acton-Boxboro High School in 1968 but chose to enroll at UMass. He is the seventh UMass player to sign a professional contract during the last five years. King suffered an arm injury pitching on the Cape during the summer of 1969 and missed a year of baseball following elbow surgery. Last spring he appeared completely recovered as he pitched in eleven games with a 5-1 record and a save to his credit. Tom struck out 65 batters in the 55 innings he pitched and sported a 1.80 ERA.

Coach Dick Bergquist said Tom's loss to the Redmen will be felt severely, not only because of his skill as a pitcher, but for his leadership qualities. "Tom is a great competitor," said the Coach, "but his loss was not exactly unexpected, as we realized he was eligible to sign this year and also realized his great desire to play pro ball. He made a great contribution to our team and made quite a comeback after his injury. However, we all wish him the best and hope to see him have a successful career in professional baseball."

FALL BASEBALL

The UMass Baseball Redmen, ranked second in New England last spring, will start preparing for the '72 season this fall with games against outside schools, as well as many intra-squad scrimmages. The Redmen were Yankee Conference champions and just missed going to the College World Series as Harvard nipped them in the District One Playoffs. UMass finished with a 21-1- season.

The '71 Redmen had a team BA of .284 and outscored their opponents 209-83 during the season. The pitching staff was considered one of the best in the East and sported an ERA of 1.95. Losses to the team through graduation included pitcher Jack Bernardo (4-3, 1.26 ERA), 2B Jack Conroy (.313), and pitcher Lou Colabello (2-1). Other unexpected losses to the team were Charlie Manley, Jim Kiley, and Tom King. Charlie was the team's MVP, hitting .382 with 27 stolen bases. Tom, who had a 5-1 record, signed with Milwaukee.

Returnees from last year include All New England 1B Dan Esposito (.324, 6HR), and 3B Mark Palau (.330), All YanCon RF Brian Martin (.265), catcher Tom McDermott (.311), and blazing lefty Tom White (5-2). Also returning is stellar SS Eddie McMahon (.321), and spot starters Jim Saracino, Hosea Kelly, Steve Newell, Dan Kelly, and Bill Ryan. John Olson and Chip Baye are also returning pitchers, as is Steve Merrill from the JV team. Olson had a great clutch victory over UConn late last May to clinch the YanCon title.

There are some Frosh with good credentials and two of them, Rpn Beaurivage and Mike Flanagan, have a chance of making the Varsity during their first year.

Fall practices will continue until mid-October. Following is the practice game schedule against outside schools:

DATE	EVENT	TIME
FRIDAY, SEPT. 10	PRACTICE BEGINS	3:45
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 15	START OF INTRA SQUAD GAME	4:00
SATURDAY, SEPT. 18	DOUBLEHEADER VS. SIENA (HOME)	12:30
SUNDAY, SEPT. 19	DOUBLEHEADER VS. SPRINGFIELD (HOME)	1:00
SUNDAY, SEPT. 26	DOUBLEHEADER VS. BOSTON COLLEGE (HOME)	1:00
SATURDAY, OCT. 2	DOUBLEHEADER VS. SPRINGFIELD (AWAY)	12:30
SUNDAY, OCT. 3	DOUBLEHEADER VS. MASS. BAY COM. COL. (HOME)	1:00
FRIDAY, OCT. 8	GAME VS. DARTMOUTH (AWAY)	1:00

KING SIZE BONUS-Tom King(16) watches one of the few runs to score on him this season on the way to signing a pro contract.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Should be nice again.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 7 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1971

Also Cites Accomplishments, Goals

Tippo Sees 'New Array' Of Problems

By BOB CALLAHAN

"As I see it, our goal for this year and the next few years is to maintain our momentum in graduate study and research, while at the same time giving greater attention to undergarduate teaching and research and the demands for more public service."

These goals were set forth yesterday by Chancellor Oswald Tippo at Convocation ceremonies officially opening the University. In his talk Tippo remarked upon the accomplishments of last year and presented a list of the new array of conditions and problems which will probably confront the University community in the academic year ahead.

The accomplishments cited were many, and all were made possible through work done by the University as a whole. The installation of a vigorous new President, the new child care center, the DuBois Afro-American Department and the responsible Student Senate budget of last year were a few of the many accomplishments mentioned by Chancellor Tippo in his forty minute long address.

Speaking about this year, Chancellor Tippo noted the price-wage freeze, the condition of the job situation, enrollment, the budget and opportunities for women and minority groups as some of the more important problems which must be given serious consideration in the upcoming year.

Concerning the room and board rates, the Chancellor announced that the room and board rates approved last Spring are sanctioned. He added that Vice Chancellor Campion and his colleagues are ready to open their books to anyone who still doubts the needs for these increases.

Tippo spoke at great lengths on the condition of the Ph.D. job market and of changes and reforms needed in the Graduate School. He cited lack of jobs and deceleration of federal support as a need to slow down the rate of Graduate student growth at the University.

The changes and reforms suggested by Dr. Tippo included the hiring of topnotch faculty, higher standards for admission to graduate school and the elimination of students who show signs of lack of dedication. Others included were a shorter period of study, more chances for women and minority groups and greater attention to transforming graduate education to meet new demands and markets.

In continuing, Tippo declared that enrollment will reach a ceiling of 25,000 students in 1980. "Now we shall have to devote more attention to internal improvements within a finite set of resources," the Chancellor said.

He added that this will mean comprehensive reviews of all programs, tough soul-searching and, finally, reshuffling of resources.

The tuition topic appeared in the Chancellor's speech and he said that we should brace ourselves for a real onslaught of price increases this fall and winter by the legislature.

It was also revealed during the course of the Chancellor's Convocation address that Vice Chancellor Gluckstern plans during the course of the year to unveil a number of proposals and recommendations in the area of good teaching and good counseling.

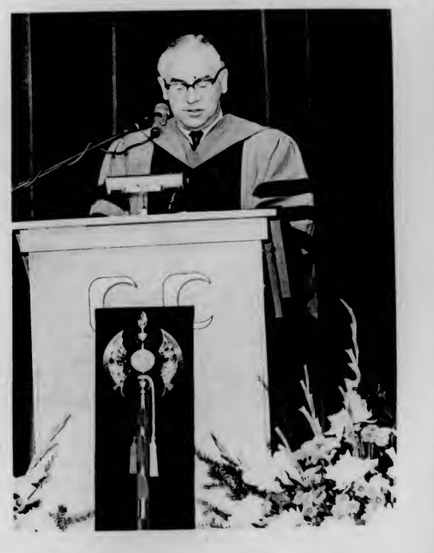
And in speaking about the problems which face the world today, Tippo said that academic institutions will have to devise new methods and new agencies to attack the problems of poverty, pollution crime racism and others that are posing a threat to the well being of the country.

The Chancellor stressed that this public service should be that which the University can appropriately perform. "We should not follow the will-o'-the-wisp, every beckoning dollar, lest we repeat the tragic mistakes of some universities which during recent decades sold their souls for the research dollar."

Finishing in a humorous note, the Chancellor suggested to those attending that geraniums and petunias instead of animals make fine loving pets for their rooms.

Speaking before the Chancellor in the morning ceremony was Student Senate President Lee Sandwen, who told the audience that the University and the nation are moving strongly ahead to another Attica tragedy. "The university has routinized life and this may lead to another tragedy," Sandwen said.

The Senate President in continuing said that it is the students opinion that the faculty in general is the biggest road block to change.



In closing, Sandwen told the students attending that it is up to them to make sure that this University is different than another Attica.

In the closing minutes of Convocation, the names of three distinguished teachers were announced. See story on page two.

STARTING THE NEW YEAR...William H. Ross (above) bearer of the mace, impresses the audience was this great feat of strength prior to the address given by Chancellor Tippo.

Most say it was just another convocation but many noted that they were on their way to the local florist to purchase some geraniums and petunias after hearing the Chancellor remark that they make fine and loving pets. (MDC Photos by Gib Fullerton)

Chancellor Tippo's Priorities

1. Improvement of undergraduate teaching including development of professional methods of evaluating teaching performance so that adequate rewards may be made for excellence in teaching.

2. Development of affirmative action programs to recruit larger percentages of women and representatives of minorities as graduate students, as faculty members and as administrators, further, the assurance that they receive appropriate consideration for promotion, salary increases and tenure.

3. Renewed efforts to obtain the desperately needed financial aid for students, including disadvantaged students of all types.

4. Continuing support and improvement of the professional schools which have made such commendable progress in the last few years.

5. Development of appropriate public service programs and opportunities.

6. Search for new sources of outside funding, including foundation grants, private gifts, and alumni contributions.

7. Rounding out of the UM/A reorganization by special attention and support to the public affairs, development, and alumni area.

8. The comprehensive review of all University programs as a first step in the reallocation of resources.

9. Further support and encouragement of the residential hall academic programs.

10. Increasing effort and attention to the development of Five-College Cooperation in an effort to conserve scarce resources and to strengthen present programs.

11. Development of a viable overall campus parking plan which will hopefully be accepted by most elements of the campus community.

Teachers receive awards.

Teacher Awards Granted

The UMass 1971 Distinguished Teachers Awards were presented yesterday to Dr. Thomas T. Arny of the physics and astronomy department, Dr. Ian B. Thomas of the electrical engineering department, and Mrs. Barbara J. White of the department of zoology.

The ninth annual awards were presented by UMass-Amherst Chancellor Oswald Tippo at the University's Opening Convocation. Each carries a $1000 stipend and is presented for "manifest excellence in the art of teaching and outstanding devotion to the cause of education." The teachers were selected by an all-University committee.

Dr. Arny is an associate professor of physics and astronomy. He received his B.A. degree from Haverford College in 1961, and his Ph. D. from the University of Arizona in 1965. He joined the UMass staff in 1966 after a year as a research associate at Amherst College.

Dr. Thomas is an associate professor of electrical engineering and speech. He is a native of Australia and holds his Ph. D. in engineering from the University of Illinois. He worked in the area of speech synthesis and perception at Illinois before joining the UMass engineering faculty in 1967.

Dr. Thomas has designed electronic instruments that display speech patterns visually and is nationally-known for his work in sound, speech and problems of the deaf.

Mrs. White is an assistant professor of zoology. She is a 1939 cum laude graduate of Mount Holyoke College and received her M.A. from Mount Holyoke in 1941. She joined that college's staff the same year as an instructor of anatomy and embryology. In 1945-46 she was an instructor of anatomy at Holyoke Hospital School of Nursing. She joined the University of Massachusetts teaching staff in 1961. She is the first woman on the UMass faculty to receive the Distinguished Teacher Award.

Fine Arts Council Offers New Program

The Fine Arts Council will again offer students and area residents a wide variety of cultural programs during the 1971-72 academic year.

More than 50 events, in contemporary dance, off-Broadway theatre, classical as well as popular music, and films are scheduled according to Terry Schwarz, Council Manager.

The 1971/72 Celebrity Series five major events will bring to campus many world-ranking classical music artists and ensembles, beginning Oct. 12 and 13 with the exciting, young, American pianist Lorin Hollander. Mr. Hollander occupies an interesting position in music today due to his success on both the concert platform and at such "in-spots" as Fillmore East. He will perform works by Schubert, Chopin, Satie, Ravel and Prokofiev, in two different programs.

Noted guitarist John Williams will also make his local debut with two different solo programs. His performances will be Nov. 2 and 3.

The Rod Rodgers Dance Company will be featured Dec. 7-8. One of the leading Black dancer-choreographers, Mr. Rodgers will lead his young company in a half-week UMass residency which will include three performances and a master class.

Kuentz Chamber Orchestra of Paris will appear Feb. 28 and 29, featuring the trumpet virtuoso Adolph Scherbaum and soprano Barbara Schlick. The Celebrity Series will close March 6 with a concert by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Walter Susskind. Mr. Susskind is a well-known recording artist and has frequently conducted the Philharmonia Orchestra of London. Included in the program will be Mozart's "Symphony No. 40 in G Minor," and Mahler's "Symphony No. 9."

A discount of up to one third is offered to those purchasing season subscriptions to this series. Series tickets are priced at $3 for UMass undergraduates, $7.50 for other full-time students, $10 for UMass faculty/staff and $12.50 for the general public. Full program and ticket information may be obtained by contacting the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, or by telephoning 545-0202. Those wishing a brochure describing the entire Fine Arts Council series should send a self-addressed 16 cent stamped business envelope to the above address.

N-Viet Forces Withdraw

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP)—Half the North Vietnamese forces threatening South Vietnam's critical northern provinces have pulled back across the demilitarized zone and the Laotian border, a South Vietnamese general disclosed Wednesday.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, corps commander of the five provinces of the 1st military region, attributed the withdrawal of nearly two divisions-approximately 15,000 men-to the enemy's apparent shortage of supplies.

"Now we are feeling the benefits of the Laotian campaign."

Ground action continued at a low level with only minor skirmishes reported at scattered points around the country.

B-52 bombers mounted 12 more combat strikes, all in the northern sector where they have concentrated their raids daily for the past month. In the latest strikes, half of them hit in the Khe Sanh area and the other six in the southern half of the demilitarized zone.

In Saigon, a campaign of anti-American, antigovernment violence grew worse with the bombing of a night club on busy Tu Do Street.

South Vietnamese officials initially reported 10 persons were killed including three Americans. However, a later report from the U.S. Command said three persons were killed, all Vietnamese.

Senate Debates Drum Vehicle

By DONALD BISHOP

Last night, at the first meeting of the Student Senate this year, discussion centered around past and future usage of a senate owned vehicle by the staff of Drum, the black literary and news magazine on campus. Action on alleged misuse of the vehicle during the summer was delayed until the responsible party could meet with the senate executive committee. In a later motion, the senate approved continued use of the vehicle by Drum.

Treasurer Richard Verrochi brought up the issue of the Drum vehicle by asking that the Senate approve of the sending of a bill to a former staff member of Drum for expenses arising from unauthorized usage during the past summer. Verrochi reported that the vehicle, purchased with student activity funds for the use of Drum, should have been turned over to the student activities office during the summer but was not turned in until late in July. Over $600 in expenses, such as mileage, parking violations and body work, accounted for the bill which Verrochi reported the senate executive committee had attempted without success during the summer to have the responsible party pay.

Considerable debate on this motion followed, with opposition to the billing led by senator William Abbott. His principle point of opposition was that the party involved should first be allowed to answer questions about the alleged misuse before the executive committee. Although Verrochi pointed out that numerous unsuccessful attempts have been made to do this, the Senate voted to try again to get the person to appear before the committee.

Following this, debate arose over whether Drum should continue to have sole usage of the vehicle or should share it with other student organizations. The Senate eventually approved return of the automobile to the Drum.

Senators wanting to take away the Drum's exclusive usage argued that there are other organizations on campus which have sufficient need to warrant a sharing of the vehicle. They wanted it to be used as a "general service vehicle".

Spokesmen for the Drum and several senators argued that the activities of publishing the magazine were sufficient to warrant their continued sole usage of the vehicle. Herman Davenport, editor of Drum, explained that it is necessary for staff members to go out into various black communities to obtain information vital to the publication. The spokesmen stressed the point that there is no way to tell when news events are going to happen, and the final vote supported this position.

In other business, the Senate approved two category changes in the budget of the campus radio station, WMUA. They allow for the installation of three air-conditioners in the studios and the payment of a technical assistant, who is a non-student.

At the time of the Collegian deadline, the meeting continued with debate on the floor over proposed changes in the budgeting procedure.

Termpapers Unlimited

"WE GIVE RESULTS"
297 Huntington Ave.
Boston, Mass. 02115
(617) 267-3000

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

Bell's Pizza
Once you taste it, you're spoiled for life.
65 University Dr.
256-8011 — 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Soft Touch CARDS SAY WHAT YOU FEEL.

American Greetings The Fresh Idea Company

THE UNIVERSITY STORE
CAMPUS CENTER

Acklyn Lynch

Attica Outrage Expressed

By Ernie Rotman

"The Attica assault is a critical phase of our history and government development," said Acklyn Lynch of the Afro-American Department at the Teach-In on the Attica tragedy.

Other speakers during the assembly included Sidney Krause from the speech department, David Matz, Larry Dye, and Michael Thelwell, head of the Afro-American Department.

The United Christian Foundation held the Attica Teach-In to discuss the problems that have arisen after the Attica assault. The assembly began with the moderator, Reverend Sam Johnson giving a background of the killings and the proceedings in Attica. After this, Krause devoted his speaking time to express his discontent at the media coverage of the Attica events. He emphasized that the press used only official sources for information and these showed only one side of the story.

He also brought up the point that only white reporters asked questions to the officials. In his words, "Black reporters are watched by white gatekeepers." These people are not trusted to give their views of the events in Attica, he said. Concluding, he stressed the need for accurate news more quickly.

Then Matz took the platform. He explained why prisoners are treated as slaves and that "their rights are non-existent." He tried to pass along to the audience the prisoners' views while they went through with the Attica assault.

Lynch spoke emphatically in his speech. Opening with the statement, "This is a world with permanent war," he stressed how the government has failed to solve problems of oppressed peoples.

"When people are wiped out without conscience," he went on, "his country is in for trouble."

A reformed convict, Dye briefly tried to stir action and awareness in people to the problems of delinquency.

Thelwell spoke of the many prisoners around the country who were sentenced without a trial because their "inexperienced lawyers persuaded them to plead guilty in view of a higher sentence."

He told how Oswald, warden at Attica, treated the inmates as humans until the police stepped in. He called the assault "a cold-blooded, deliberate murder." He ended with a plea for money to aid the inmates as well as the families of the murdered guards. A tape of the Attica assault followed and then an open forum closed the meeting.

(See related story on Page 4)

Larry Dye

Meditation Course Offered By SIMS

By Stephen Fine

"Man is born to live a perfect life, encompassing the values of the transcendental Absolute-unlimited energy, intelligence, power, peace and bliss-together with the unlimited values of the world of multiplicity in relative existence." This is a quote from "The Science of Being and Art of Living" by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi.

Two of Maharishi's disciples, Phil Goldberg and Gary Ventor, conducted a symposium on Transcendental Meditation last night in the Campus Auditorium. Both men are associated with the Students International Meditation Society, a tax exempt organization, which offers a $35 course in Transcendental Meditation. About 100 people were in attendance to hear the lecture.

According to Goldberg, "People look for ways to improve their lives. People try to change their outside world. We believe happiness is within man. Experience happiness within you and the outside world will be good. If you use the mind more you will become more effective," he continued. "Each man has great potential. There lies within each man a reservoir of great intelligence potential and ability. In transcendental meditation we try to tap this to make one more happy," he said.

A person who practices TM meditates for twice a day in 20 minute periods; always before meals. A scientific study which appeared in Science Magazine concerning Transcendental Meditation showed it to decrease a person's metabolic rate during his meditation.

For further information, contact Goldberg or Ventor at 253-7246.

Governors Conference Ends

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)-The nation's governors ended their annual conference here, Wednesday by brushing aside without debate a Democratic alternative to President Nixon's economic policies and renewing their call for increased federal financial aid.

Republican governors, outnumbered but with enough strength to prevent the required three-fourths majority, fired a quick parliamentary one-two punch that knocked out the Democratic proposal almost as soon as it had been offered by Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland.

When Mandel offered the plan and asked that it be read, Gov. John A. Love, R-Colo., moved to suspend further reading, and his motion carried on a one-sided voice vote. Gov. Linwood Holton, R-Va., then moved for an immediate vote on suspension of the rules, and Mandel's move was shouted down.

CEQ Starts Plans For Fall Projects

The Coalition for Environmental Quality held its first meeting of the new academic year on Tuesday, the 15th. At the meeting, several projects were discussed before the meeting broke up into individual groups to concentrate on planning in specific areas.

The Distinguished Ecologist Lecture Series group started planning for its first speaker and discussed the possibility of co-operating with other groups in the area of planning for and obtaining speakers.

The Newsletter group also hassled over the problem of revising last year's mailing list, which consisted of several hundred names.

Anyone, who received the groups newsletter EFFLUENT last year and wishes to receive it again this year, may leave his name, last year's and this year's address in C.E.Q. office in the Student Activities area of the Campus Center.

C.E.Q.'s September Project Conference will be held on Tuesday, at 6:30 in C.C. 174-6. At this time, these projects plus any other that there may be interest in, will be discussed. This Conference will supply the opportunity for everyone to get to know each other and for new members to get involved in running D.E.Q. since at such a conference five new delegates may be elected to the Steering Committee.

Today---

APO Book Exchange	10-4 p.m.	Dining Room Student Union
Buy this semesters books cheap and make some money selling last semesters. (You can probably use it.)
Faculty Senate	4 p.m.	Memorial Hall
General Court	5-midnight	Council Chamber Student Union
Our own judicial system. Look for an article in tomorrow's paper on it.
Film "JOE"	7 & 9 p.m.	Student Union Ballroom
Middle America vs Freaks.
Flying Club Ground School	7-9 p.m.	162 Campus Center
For those of you who want to learn how to fly. Cheap.
WMUA Station Meeting	7-10 p.m.	Norwich-Plymouth Student Union
Parachute Club	7-9:30	165-169 Complex Campus Center
Again, a cheap way to fly.
Graduate Senate	7-9:30	163 Complex Campus Center
University and State Communications Council	7-11 p.m.	811-815 Campus Center
Liason between UMass and the state.

Important Station Meeting
Tonight at 7:30 p.m.
in Rooms 424 and 426
Student Union
for all members
and anyone interested
WMUA
91.1 FM
free form / informative radio

Jumping into bed takes on new meaning at

COME TOGETHER WATERBEDS
Mon. & Thurs. 11-9 Tues., Wed., Fri. & Sat. 11-6
191 Worthington St. 737-7920
You'll get more out of this bed then you might think. Prices start at $19.95. For immediate delivery, call:
S. Amherst 256-8370

Fine Arts Council
presents
Latin American Cinema Festival
4 FEATURE FILMS

THURSDAY, SEPT. 16
"Black God, White Devil"
directed by Glauber Rocha
and
"Yanco"
directed by Servando Gonzales

FRIDAY, SEPT. 17
"The Hour of the Furnaces"
directed by Fernando Solanas
and
"Mexican Bus Ride"
directed by Luis Bunuel

HERTER HALL
Rooms 227/231
Festival Begins Each Night At 7:00 p.m.

UMass $1.00 (each night)
Undergrads $1.50 (each night)
Others. . .

Tickets available: Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall - Tel. 545-0202

In The Nation And The World

Rockefeller Sticks To Attica Position

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he stood behind the decision which sent state troopers storming into riot-wracked Attica prison, an assault which cost more than two-score lives.

"I do not see how I could have done any differently," Rockefeller told a news conference in New York City on Wednesday.

Overnight, the governor received renewed support from President Nixon in the unleashing of the more than 1,000 state troopers. Wearing helmets and gas masks, they moved beneath a barrage of tear gas, firing shotguns and rifles until they quelled the four-day Attica riot-the worst in an American prison in at least a generation.

Takes Responsibility

Rockefeller added that he accepted "full responsibility" for the bloody Monday death toll-now set by the state Corrections Department at nine hostages and 32 convicts.

A 42nd fatality had occured earlier. The victim was a guard, William Quinn, 28, who died of wounds received in the first hours of the riot last week, when 1,200 Attica inmates rampaged through the prison, setting fires and taking hostages.

Quinn Buried

Quinn was buried during the day on a hillside overlooking the 40-year-old maximum security prison, which houses a total of 2,254 inmates. Sunny skies replaced gray, rain-laden clouds that had overhung the 54-acre prison compound for days.

Quinn's wife, Nancy, fought back tears as her husband's casket was lowered into the earth. Nearby, one of her women neighbors said: "They got too lenient with the inmates."

Originally, eight of the Attica hostages-guards and other prison employes-were said to have been killed by convicts who slit their throats with makeshift knives. A ninth hostage's death was attributed to gunfire.

Guns, Not Knives

However, a medical examiner's report 24 hours later ascribed the eight deaths to gunshot wounds, and said there was no indication of throat slashing on the bodies.

There was no immediate official explanation of the source of the gunfire which killed the hostages. But State Corrections Commissioner Russell Oswald admitted to newsmen that the throat slitting reports were false, and indicated the hostages could have been subjected to gunfire from state troopers.

Remaining unanswered, however, were a number of questions-how the reports of throat slittings originated, the origin of false reports that some of the hostages were killed before the Monday assault, and that at least one had been castrated, and what were the precise instructions given the assault forces.

However, Hollis Chase, president of the guards union at Attica, stuck by the original version of the slayings and declared:

Claims Slit

"We've got people, our fellow guards, who carried off the bodies of these hostages. Their hands and feet were bound, their throats were slit from ear to ear."

Conditions at some other prisons in the country were tense though and protestors announced plans for demonstrations Oct. 2 at about a dozen penitentiaries throughout the nation.

Extra security measures were in effect at several prisons and weekend visiting hours were cancelled at the Fulton County jail in Atlanta after two days of violence there. Sheriff Leroy N. Stynchcombe said the action was taken not as a disciplinary measure but "because of threats of inmates and outsiders in reference to the taking over of the jail."

Nixon Backs Rockefeller

In Washington, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was asked if Nixon still stood by Rockefeller in view of information indicating that eight hostages at the prison died of gunfire rather than at the hands of knife-wielding convicts.

"Of course he does," replied Ziegler. "The governor had the responsibility to deal with a very difficult situation. He met that responsibility...The President's not going to second-guess him."

In New York, Sister Elizabeth McAlister, a defendant in the Harrisburg case involving destruction of draft files, said that demonstrations have been planned Oct. 2 at about a dozen prisons nationwide to protest the Attica rebellion. She gave no other details but said prisons involved would include Attica, Cook County Jail in Chicago, San Quentin, and the federal penitentiary at Danbury, Conn.

World Opinion

Newspapers throughout the world printed lengthy accounts of the jail mutiny, many accompanied by editorials critical of Monday's armed assault on the prison by 1,000 state policemen.

In an eyewitness account for the London Daily Express, British journalist Ivor Key wrote from New York: "For the first time in four years of living and working here, I am shocked to the point where I seriously question whether this is the country I want to raise my children in."

Torben Krogh, editor of the Danish Daily Information, compared Attica to My Lai and said, "This time there is no doubt that the responsibility must be placed at the top." "By publicly supporting the action against the convicts in Attica State Prison, Nelson Rockefeller and Richard Nixon have declared themselves guilty of first-degree murder," declared Krogh.

Adam Raphael, Washington correspondent of England's Guardian newspaper, termed the uprising "the end of a chapter in American penal history." "If nothing else," he wrote, "the riots at San Quentin and Attica show that the old prison routine of reward for good behavior and retribution for bad is no longer an adequate means of control."

The Soviet news agency Tass, in a dispatch from New York, said the inmates took the situation into their own hands in despair over the "unbearable conditions, brutality and terror of the prison authorities." The U.S public, said Tass, "received the news of the brutal massacre...with wrath and indignation."

Grass Causes Brain Damage To Rats

WASHINGTON (AP)-Two scientists reported Wednesday the first evidence of brain damage to animals exposed to marijuana over long periods.

They stressed that they do not know yet whether results with rats are applicable to humans but they urged doctors to be alert for symptoms in long-time users of the drugs.

The researchers said the rats showed bizarre reactions resulting from the brain damage presumably caused by the administration of marijuana. And they suggested doctors watch for signs of tremors and convulsions in patients known to be longtime marijuana users.

They stressed that the amounts of drug used on rats were 10 times as high as those believed to be consumed most chronic marijuana users. They estimated it would require smoking about 50 marijuana cigarettes daily for an undetermined period of time to learn whether effects on man would be comparable to those shown in the rats.

Nevertheless, one of the scientists in reply to a news conference question said doctors should be on the alert for early signs among marijuana smokers of the bizarre reactions that was noted in the rodents. He said detection of such early warning signs might make possible quick treatment to forestall permanent brain damage.

The findings were submitted to the 162nd annual meeting of the American Chemical Society by Dr. Harris Rosenkrantz, a Ph.D and director of biochemistry of the Mason Research Institutes, Worcester, Mass., and researcher Yugal K. Luthra, also of the Mason Institute.

They said the studies were done under contract with the government's National Institute of Mental Health which furnished the marijuana chemicals used.

Edith Heads Toward Louisiana Coast

MORGAN CITY, La. (AP)-Hurricane Edith, growing stronger each hour, edged toward Louisiana's vulnerable coast Wednesday-forcing thousands of residents to flee inland to higher ground.

A hurricane warning was posted from Cameron, La., to Morgan City.

Edith built back to hurricane strength over the warm Gulf of Mexico during the day. She was driving tides 10 feet high ahead of her. Winds were expected to top 100 miles per hour before she hits land some time Thursday.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

If You Dig Music
Read On!
Special Offer
8-TRACK TAPES
$2.50 - $3.00
anything from acid rock to country western
Tremendous Savings
8-TRACK PLAYER
PORTABLE AC-DC
under $30.00
Plus much more - TVs, Radios, the works.
FOR INFO CALL 546-5648 and ask for Paul Brown 204 B

Basement Sale Continues
NEW PANTS !!!
BLUE JEANS $4.95 CORDUROYS $5.95
COLORED JEANS (Brown, Black, Etc.) $3.95
WAREHOUSE
201 North Pleasant St.
Open Friday Nite Til 9

ITALIAN & AMERICAN SPECIALTIES
from
TUCCINO'S
DINNERS FROM $1.19 - $1.75
— Featuring —
Spaghetti & Zitties
with a variety of sauces.
* Meat Ravioli with Tomato Sauce
* Veal Parmigiana with F.F. & Salad
* Baked Lasagne
* Veal cutlet Dinner
* Italian Pot Roast
● Roast Stuffed Turkey
● Hot Turkey Sandwich
● Chicken Cacciatore
BREAKFAST
Two Eggs, any style, Coffee & Toast ..... $.70
with Ham, Bacon, or Sausage ..... .99
One Egg, any style, Coffee & Toast ..... .55
with Ham, Bacon or Sausage ..... .80
TUCCINO'S
Route 9 (next to Post Office) Hadley 584-9716
Open: Mon. - Sat. 5:00 A.M. - 8 P.M.
CHEF: PETE HAVILAND

Fine Arts Council 1971/72
THE CELEBRITY SERIES
Lorin Hollander, pianist
John Williams, guitar
Rod Rodgers Dance Company
Kuentz Chamber Orchestra of Paris
St. Louis Symphony Orch.
THE CHAMBER MUSIC SERIES
Boston Symphony Collage
Berlin Philharmonic Octet
Tokyo String Quartet
Juilliard String Quartet
Amadeus String Quartet
Save Up To ⅓ By Purchasing Season Subscriptions
Either series: $3 UM undergrads; $7.50 other full-time students; $10 UM faculty/staff; $12.50 general public.
Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, Telephone 5-0202

NEW YORK,--FORMER ATTICA INMATE--Albert Cruz, 29, recently released from Attica prison after serving a sentence for armed robbery, describes life as a convict there as harsh and indifferent. Now a member of the Fortune Society, an organization for helping ex-convicts, Cruz says, "I'm not asking for a hotel, but some rehabilitation" when describing treatment at the institution.

Key Vote On Draft Bill Faces Uncertain Outcome

WASHINGTON (AP)-Opposing sides seemed uncertain of the outcome Wednesday as the Senate approached Thursday's key vote on a bill combining two-year draft extension with the most costly military pay raise ever proposed.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, backed by the Pentagon's top brass, appealed to all senators not to turn their backs on the measure fashioned after weeks of debate and negotiation.

The vote expected Thursday will be on a motion to table and thus kill the bill, worked out over a period of five weeks by a Senate-House conference committee from separate versions previously passed by each branch.

The House already has approved the bill, and Stennis said that if the Senate rejects it, the result may be no draft bill and no military pay raises this year.

The secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force dispatched a lettter to all senators Wednesday saying that further delay in the draft which "may jeopardize beyond redemption the prospects of achieving an all-volunteer force by July 1, 1973."

Despite the pressures from the military and the administration, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., a foe of any kind of draft-extension bill, called the outlook for the tabling motion encouraging.

Mansfield agreed with Stennis that adoption of motion would kill the bill but he said this would be followed by another motion seeking a new conference with the House and instructing the Senate conferees on key issues.

Stennis noted, however, that any instructions the Senate gave its conferees would not be binding on the House and said anyone who thinks quick agreement could be reached on a new compromise bill is dreaming.

The draft bill originally passed by the Senate includes an amendment by Mansfield declaring it to be U.S. policy to withdraw all troops from Vietnam in nine months provided American prisoners of war were released.

This is unacceptable to the administration and the House rejected it. In conference it was watered down to a declaration of the sense of Congress that U.S. military operations in Indochina should be ended at the earliest practicable date.

Mansfield told the Senate that if the compromise bill is tabled, he will seek to have Senate conferees instructed to stand by his original amendment except to cut the deadline for withdrawal by 2 1/2 months to make up for the time that already has elapsed.

The other part of the bill in which instructions to Senate conferees will be sought relates to the $2.4 billion pay raise provided for in the compromise version.

Nixon Budget To Reach First Test In House

WASHINGTON (AP)-House Republicans began a drive Wednesday to win the first test in Congress on President Nixon's emergency economy package: delay for a $1.3-billion federal pay raise.

House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan called a caucus to line Republicans up against a resolution to reject the pay deferral, and said the White House also will be working to turn back a congressional vote.

"Certainly the administration is going to make a strong effort because of their deep feeling that this, the President's emergency measures,is a total package and if you pull out one leg the table falls," Ford told newsmen.

The veto resolution was introduced by Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, (D)-Calif., who accused the President of making the federal employee "the sacrificial lamb for his economic policy."

The pay raises were scheduled for next January, but Nixon plans to defer them until next July. The President can do it on his own unless either the House or Senate vetoes his plan before Oct. 7. The deferral is the biggest single time in Nixon's proposed $5-billion federal spending cut.

The veto resolution is expected to be approved by the House Civil Service Committee Thursday or next week but Ford said he is optimistic it will not be approved by the House.

"The President's economic package requires sacrifices by everybody-business, labor and others," he said. "If we don't get deferral of the federal raise, federal employees won't participate in the belt-tightening."

Waldie contends the President's plan is unfair because it locks in a six-month pay delay for federal employees while wage-price guidelines for everyone else will not be determined until after the current 90-day freeze.

Reverse In Medina Trial

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)-The military judge in Capt. Ernest L. Medinia's murder trial, reversing himself, ruled Wednesday that the jury may hear a key defense witness recount a conversation in which Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., spoke of My Lai.

Capt. Robert L. Hicks of Ft. Benning, Ga., had testified in the absence of the jury, saying Calley told him that Medina knew nothing of Calley's actions at My Lai.

The prosecution objected to this testimony as hearsay and Col Kenneth Howard, the military judge, initially sustained the objection. But after a two-hour meeting with the defense, Howard said he had been persuaded to allow Hicks to appear before the jury.

In another ruling, Howard held that the jury could not hear the testimony of Capt. Eugene Kotouc, an intelligence officer acquitted earlier this year of maiming a Viet Cong suspect after the My Lai attack.

Kotouc had indicated he would testify that he had advised Medina on methods of interrogating prisoners. The prosecution objected.

The 35-year-old Medina, of Montrose, Colo., is accused of assaulting a Viet Cong suspect by firing a rifle over his head, shooting a wounded woman as she lay in a rice paddy outside My Lai, ordering the shooting of a boy, and of murder in the deaths of 102 civilians.

The infantryman was in command of Charlie Company when the unit, whose platoon leaders included Calley, attacked My Lai on March 16, 1968.

Calley was convicted of murdering at least 22 civilians during the assault, and a reviewing authority recently trimmed his life sentence to 20 years.

The defense planned to call Calley as a witness but the judge refused to compel the lieutenant to testify after his lawyers said he would invoke the Fifth Amendment.

Learn to Drive
AMHERST
AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 Ladies-Night! MONDAY Adm. $1.00
Located in the Zayres Shopping Center - Rt. 9 - Hadley.
CAMPUS I Rated R 7:00 & 9:00
The story of a gambling man and a hustling lady.
WARREN BEATTY
JULIE CHRISTIE
~
McCABE & MRS. MILLER
BRILLIANT. New York Times
REMARKABLE. — Joseph Morgenstern Newsweek
CAMPUS II 5th wk.
Carnal Know-ledge.
A feast of a film!" —Judith Crist, N.Y. Magazine
Screens: 7:15 & 9:15
Rated R
CAMPUS III
Rated X 7:00 9:00
TRASH

Unisexual
Footwear
Boots
Shoes
Hikers
Sneakers
Mocassins
Clogs
THE SHOE-BIN
In the Alley
Cook Place, Amherst
Formerly Shoe-In
256-6649
Open Friday Nights

CHI OMEGA
Frat. - Sorority Park.
Open Rush
All Union Women Invited
Thurs., Sept. 16 - 7:00 - 8:00 8:15 - 9:15
Mon., Sept. 20 - 7:30 - 9:00
Thurs., Sept. 23 - 7:30 - 9:00
Chi O's will pick you up before each party in the Lobbies of Thoreau Leach, Newman Center, Van Meter, and Dickenson. The cars will be there 15 min. before each party or call anytime for a ride.
Come and meet us!

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — John Mullen
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — John E. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jim Gold
NEWS STAFF — Bob Sprague, Jan Auman, Earle Barroll
SPORTS — Barry Rubenstein
EDITORIAL — Gary Alpaugh, James Reardon
DARKROOM — John Mullen
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Another Year

Convocation, as Chancellor Tippo pointed out yesterday, has been around for a thousand years and has weathered the worst "disasters which afflict mankind." Yesterday was no exception.

The Campus Center auditorium was barely full as Chancellor Tippo set forth the goals and aspirations of the University. Much different from last year's stern reproach to all those whose actions might injure the University, Chancellor Tippo was realistic and comprehensive in his annual message.

The general impressions left by the long speech were that this is going to be a year of belt tightening, of consolidating the advances made in past years, and of strengthening the programs around campus which have been neglected in the past.

This will be a year of particular financial need for everyone from students to employees. Many people will be losing jobs at the University as budgets are tightened. Without the growth factor enjoyed by UMass over the past ten years, money from the state legislature will come harder.

There is already a bill in the State House which would raise out of state tuition to more than $2000.00. And as the Chancellor pointed out, there will be attempts to raise in-state tuition.

High on the list of priorities this year will be "the improvement of undergraduate teaching" and "a comprehensive review of all University programs."

UMass is still far from many of its goals. Admission policies still demand better SAT scores for women than men. Faculty support for the necessary improvement in undergraduate education and particularly for innovative residential programs has been minimal. There is still no answer to our present inadequate University governance system.

The Chancellor's speech did show an awareness of the problems to be faced this year. Hopefully the campus community will respond.

"You Mean After November 13th I Come Down Into The Fridge?"

Gus Szlosek

Unintelligence Report

THEY ALL LOOK ALIKE...SEX—CRAZED STUDENTS...NOT DENYING THE OBVIOUS.

Reports are circulating widely that UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS degrees are not officially recognized by any major organization, public or private, in the free world....Already beseiged by other problems, the UMASS BOARD OF TRUSTEES recently denied charges that the salt used in their dining commons contains a chemical which destroys sexual desires. "This is not the reason why the University Administration insists on compulsory meal tickets for its students," says trustee "SPIKE" MORTON-LAMBERT. He rejected as "spurious" a report of a secret meeting of the Food Services Committee which appeared in the Amherst-area muckraking magazine, FIVE-COLLEGE RIP-OFF. The magazine claimed a top UMass official confidentially warned the Committee that "a disaster of major proportions" would occur on the UMass campus if the compulsory meal ticket policy were abondoned....Not mentioned in his official denial were rumors that the DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE is preparing a federal lawsuit against Amherst arealandlords, for alleged price-fixing and illegal rent hikes...or reports of a similar suit by the FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION against Amherst area merchants, for alleged price-fixing...or official reports that UMass "is on the verge of losing its accreditation" because of the low quality of its students, who are seeking only "a bargain basement education."

FASHIONS WITHOUT A BUST: ECOLOGY

American clothing and accessory manufacturers are preparing to cash in on the current boom in ecology-related money makers, according to FASHION SEEN magazine. Among items now in the works: sheepskin vests from flocks destroyed by nerve gas in Colorado, "Indian headbands" from feathered victims of pesticides, fish-scale jewelry from marine oil-slick victims. Fashion Seen regards this as a healthy sign, a "sure-thing gimmick" to restore the confidence of fashion designers after last year's fashion bust, the midi-skirt.

RAPE ON THE MOON

A reliable source in the financial world reports that negotiations for moon real-estate are now in their final stages. The advertising campaign for "gracious living in Lunar Acres" is also nearing completion. One of the series of commercials emphasizes the low crime rate on the moon, since there are no trees and bushes to hide behind. A "special-interest" commercial destined for showing at women's tea groups shows the "normal moon walking suit", which is too bulky for the would-be rapist to handle. Another commercial advertises, "no smog, no crowded expressways, no crab grass, no Dutch Elm Disease". Our source tells us that the grid lines seen on early satellite pictures of the moon were the actual house lots to be offered for sale...In related developments, McDonald's, Inc. is said to be negotiating for the first eating-chain franchise on the moon. No twenty-cent hamburgers, though--or at least not as we know them. Either the prices will have to be greatly increased to pay shipping charges from earth, or the size of the hamburgers will be "drastically reduced".

MEDICAL NEWS--THE HERNIA.

Surgical circles are in an uproar over BORIS RENTZEL, the research biologist who spent years developing himself mentally and physically before performing the first known sex-change operation on an African elephant.

POLITICAL WATERBOMBSHELL.

President Nixon may soon announce his intention not to seek re-election in 1972. He may still make quite a mark in history books, though, if a pirated copy of his "LBJ-inspired" speech is any indication. Some excerpts: "I will now proceed to smoke my first marijuana cigarette in public"..."I have just come from a meeting with my new friend, Dick Gregory. As a reward for doing so much in the interests of his people, I have given him the state of Alabama"..."In accordance with the wishes of my top advisers, I will now have Spiro Agnew shot."

HEAD PHONES.

In a report to stockholders, BELL TELEPHONE has announced a marked decline in the installation of bathroom phones, a fad started by Martha Mitchell's famed "toilet calls" to newsmen. One cancelled order: a jewel-encrusted "royal" phone which was to be installed in the guest house owned by BEBE REBOZO.

MUSICAL NOTE.

Teen-age fan magazines are eagerly awaiting the news windfall of the fiscal year: musical group THE BOXTOPS putting the finishing touches on a sequel to their last hit song, "The Letter". This song will be even shorter than the other, and will be used as a one-minute singing commercial for the makers of SANI-FLUSH.

FINANCIAL PAGES--BUSY HANDS.

In a money-making scheme that has somehow backfired, FANNY SOL-ESTES has attempted to corner the Braille pornography market. Fanny must now confront the distasteful prospects of financial ruin and possible criminal charges, in the latest disaster to strike this ill-fated family. In 1962, her brother WINSTON's attempts to introduce "a radically different type of cigarette" named after himself led to his arrest for infringement of copyright laws. Other unspecified charges were dropped after his entire stock was destroyed in a warehouse fire in Council Bluffs, Iowa. This is the city which made news for its birds which are themselves to death after flying through the open door of a pizza parlor, and its squirrels which attacked local policemen and tried to chase airplanes.

Art Buchwald

Good News On Crime

WASHINGTON--There was good news out of Washington last week. According to Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, President Nixon's war on crime has been successful, and the results of the Administration's monumental efforts have been so great that "fear is being swept from the streets of some--though not at all--American cities."

He was supported in his optimism by Jerris Leonard of the Justice Department's law enforcement assistance administration, who said the only ones who weren't happy with the decrease in the 1970 crime statistics were the President's critics.

"I believe," Mr. Leonard told a conference of law enforcement officials, "they are principally disturbed because they have lost something--crime as a political issue has been taken away from them. They feel they have been robbed, and being robbed they are angry."

The reason for the euphoria in the Justice Department is that FBI statistics for 1970 indicated that the rate of increase of crime had done down from 12% in 1969 to 11.3% in 1970.

This sounded terrific until I read that the same statistics revealed that 566,700 more crimes had been committed in 1970 than in 1969.

Admittedly confused, I sought out my friend Prof. Heinrich Applebaum, the great Justice Department statistician, whose definitive book "Do Decimal Points Have a Sex Life?" is used in every math class in the country.

"Prof. Applebaum, the Justice Department reports that the rate of crime has gone down in the country under President Nixon. Yet the same report says there have been a million more crimes in the past two years. How can that be?"

"It's quite simple," said Applebaum. "Percentagewise crime has gone down, crimewise it's gone up."

"But where does that leave the average person?"

"It depends whether you're a Republican or a Democrat. If you're a Republican you have nothing to fear walking the streets of our American cities. But if I were a Democrat, I'd stay home."

"Are you saying that the Republicans are trying to take the crime issue out of the 1972 campaign?"

"They have," Applebaum said. "The last year the Democrats were in office crime had gone up 13.8%. When the Republicans took over in 1969, it only went up 12% and last year 11.3%. The Democrats can't argue with that."

"But still more people were robbed, mugged, murdered and raped in 1969 and 1970 than they were in the previous four years."

"We're not talking about people," Applebaum said, irritated. "We're talking about percentages. You can't think about the people who were molested in 1969 and 1970. You have to think about the ones who weren't. There are probably over 100,000 citizens who weren't mugged this year, thanks to President Nixon's leadership."

"It's hard to think in those terms," I admitted.

"That's because you're not running for election next year. You must understand the reporting of crime is a very serious business, and can cause great conflict. J. Edgar Hoover, in order to prove he is doing his job, has to show that crime is going up in the country. At the same time the Administration has to prove that crime is going down."

"The attorney general has solved the problem by reporting the percentages, which are lower, and Hoover by reporting the crimes, which are higher. That's the beauty of statistics. It makes everyone feel better."

"Well, thank you, professor, for the explanation."

"That's perfectly all right. Here, let me unlock the door for you. This is really a creepy neighborhood."

Letters To The Editor

ACTION Gets The Lance

To the Editor:

Mounted on his white, theoretical chariot, T.O. Wilkinson has pounded realism into the dust with full banners of Academia unfurled. Armed with books, theories, and complacency, he has efficiently subdued the challenge of the ACTION Program. He was almost tricked by the program, which was disguised by a Federal Government label. But once again our trustworthy champion of inaction decimated the enemy with one swift cut of his academic sword. He slayed the ACTION "dragon" like a fly, with one swipe. Once again, Sociology professors can sleep tight within the confines of the "Ivory Tower"; safely assured that not one brick of their tower will be tainted by relevancy.

The analogy drawn above is amusing, but, unfortunately,--ALL SO TRUE. Sociology majors have been negated from the ACTION Program by T.O. Wilkinson's decision that no Sociology majors are to participate in the program. The ACTION Program was set up by Nixon to replace V.I.S.T.A. and the Peace Corps. It was to grant a $3,000 stipend, or scholarship if you will, and 30 academic credits for University students who participated for a year. The students would act as full time employees for government agencies to rehabilitate social paralysis in the United States. The immense possibilities which exist under this program will never be realized by the Sociology students.

It is indeed ironic that a department which is supposed to pinpoint social ills and to study interaction of individuals in society is so buried in theory that they cannot possibly make a concerted effort to do anything. It makes one wonder if the only function of Sociology is to produce Sociology instructors 'ad infinitum', with total disregard of the hunger and poverty which one fourth of the United States suffers from.

It seems to us that not having any practical field work in Sociology is like having an Education major not go through any practice teaching. Enough said; we would suggest that anyone having any questions please contact T.O. Wilkinson on the fourth floor of Thompson Tower, or call 545-0577---9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Martin Keoughan
Robert G. Dewsnap

Call For Action

To the Editor:

Before our Psych 101 class today, a few of us "Van Meter girls" noticed the Editorial Points about the "First party ever in Van Meter" that consisted of "all girls". First of all, you're very mistaken about the party being all girls. Secondly, if the men on this campus were disappointed, disillusioned or whatever about the party as you seemed to be, please don't put all the blame on the dorm population itself.

Most of the 400 girls in this dorm were not put here by choice and really don't like the past reputation of this place being called the 'nunnery.' We are trying very hard to change the reputation or the concepts that other people have about this place-give us a chance-huh? We are trying to compete with years of tradition and also with the rules that were made by people before us.

There are plenty of girls around here, so why don't some of the guys on this campus get themselves up here?? You still have to be escorted up here with a girl, but if you just page one of the floors, you can have a girl down there to bring you up. If you ever need some "female influence" at a party call the dorm head of residence and the party will be announced and you will have girls down there as fast as they can get there. Give us a break. Thanks. Third floor girls, Van Meter South.

Laura Kangas
Sue Hooper et al

I Will

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to your editorial "WHO WILL ANSWER?". I generally agree with your statement with exception to the role of The National Guard. In the case of Attica Prison, the National Guard Troops were used only as a reserve force. The only Guard units to participate in the attack were two helicopters which were used to disperse tear-gas. The attack was made solely by New York State Troopers and State Correction Officers. This was stated on NBC News and by eyewitnesses on the Dick Cavett Show on Monday.

Nevertheless, I feel that the attack on Attica was unwarranted. None of the 28 hostages had been harmed prior to the attack. Any hostages who were injured during the riot had been released by the rebelling prisoners. The riot was the end result of the New York Prison Commission's refusal to consider any reforms put forth by the prisoners during the preceeding months. This is typical of all the States. The only ones really interested in prison reform are the prisoners themselves. Most of the demands were reasonable. This was confirmed by one of the hostages on the Dick Cavett Show Monday. It is about time people of this country pressed their leaders for prison reform so that a convict will not come out far worse than when he went in.

Jeffrey Hirsch

Jean...Jean

To the Editor:

I do not know whether the article written in the MDC on Monday, September 13, 1971, regarding Jean Wiley's talk on Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee was consciously written for the sake of not giving credit to the Black Studies Department for having one of it's distinguished professors, Sister Jean Wiley, who is presently on leave of absence to cover the trial in the San Francisco Bay Area, speak on the two Black political prisoners mentioned beforehand. From the article, if one did not know Sister Wiley one would have assumed that she was a white professor in the English Department. This is sometimes the case when someone writes an article in a white paper describing a happening. I felt very strongly that credit has to be given where credit is due.

Reactions to this may run from the sublime to the utter ridiculous, but I would like to add in closing that I do hope that my article will not be misconstrued by those who call themselves liberal minded people at this University or any other label people like to use.

Robert J. Padgett

Editorial Points

In "Editorial Points" appearing Sept. 15, 1971 in MDC, joking (jocular) reference was made to a theft of a narcotic substance. This reference was intended as humourous and was without basis or knowledge in fact. Any reference to an actual (and unrelated) theft occuring in Southwest or any other dormitory was unintended. Any inconvenience to unknown persons is regretted.

****

Surely you've heard of the indigent farmer who told his starving family the bad news: "All we've got left to eat is horse-shit." And then the good news: "We've got plenty of it!" At least UMass Food Services start with the good news.

****

Rumour in the Hatch has it that "The Great Miss Florence Diner War" is in the works.

****

We budding journalistic geniuses were more or less the objects of a little welcome competition yesterday. A special edition of PULP appeared out of nowhere explaining the Attica tragedy as viewed by the radical community. PULP made its appearance into The Great Amherst Lineage War this summer and comes out every two or so weeks. Without trying to sound patronizing, it'll be interesting to see how they do over the year.

Armenian Course

By CHARLOTTE LETTIS

Around 7:45 on Monday and Wednesday evenings Room 119 Herter Hall looks like the new Armenian Republic. Unfortunately it isn't, but it is the New Armenian course offered by the classics department.

Unlike other language courses offered by the University where the enrollment is mixed, this course contains mostly students of Armenian descent. I wondered why the enrollment was almost totally Armenian. I suspected there was some sort of reawakening going on so I attended the class to ask some of the students why they decided to sign up for Armenian 110.

I walked into the classroom with my blond hair and blue eyes and was immediately conspicuous among all the dark-haired, brown-eyed Armenians. After class, my hand still crippled from writing my name in those strange Armenian letters, I approached Linda Malkasian, a freshman, to ask why she was taking the course. "You're not Armenian", was the first thing she said to me. I timidly answered no, but was quickly reassured it was O.K. anyways. She then told me, "I feel everyone should learn their own language, study their own culture." Kevork Nakashian, an Armenian born in Alleppo, Syria, added "Because as an Armenian I should know my own language." Interestingly enough Kevork and the teacher had the first disagreement that evening about the differences between eastern and western Armenian. It wasn't serious, and it provided an interesting initiation to Armenians.

Adrina Goshgarian, a new transfer student from Melrose, told me, "Because I want to instill "Armenian power" in all non-Armenians." Voiced Rick Tashjian, a senior Cross Country runner, "I don't want to be illiterate".

It is a time of "great self-searching" and it seems this had made Armenian students turn to the language of their parents, helping them to understand their lives in the present. Once student quoted the Ancient Greeks with "KNOW THYSELF". As an Armenian he felt it important to speak the language of his parents. By doing this he feels it easier to understand more about himself.

Tom Derderian, organizer of the Armenian course had this to say: "Recently the U.S. Congress passed The Ethnic Heritage Studies Act. The main point of that Act is that this country is not a "melting pot", but derives its strength from the various ethnic groups, Italians, Greeks, Irish, Poles, Blacks. The power of this country comes from the strength of the various ethnic groups. So by recognizing our Armenian Heritage, language and culture or "Armenian power", we can make this country a better place." He continued to say, "We invite non-Armenians to drop in on our course or to see movies and speakers we will have on Armenian affairs."

Just about at that time, my eye caught an interesting looking young man in the background. "Aha!" I thought. "This looks like some juicy information." Looking deep into his eyes I approached him with the question. A smile broke slowly over his face. "For the hell of it," said John Mesrobian.

Get Tipsy With Tippo

The SWAP conference this year has been planned for November 19-21, 1971. SWAP, for those of you who are not familiar with it, is the Student Workshop on Activities Problems. Once a year SWAP meets off-campus for an entire weekend--students, faculty, administrators, trustees, and legislators get together to discuss many problems facing the University community.

SWAP has been functioning for eleven years and has moved forward with such proposals as eliminating the womens curfew system (discussion on this started in 1965), helping to establish a program for Spanish-American neighborhoods in the area, and redefining the freshmen orientation program. Academic reform has been one of the main issues at SWAP weekends in the recent past.

SWAP '70 dealt with topics such as academic reform, the politicized University, living accomodations, the University and the legislature, and the learning environment. Speakers included President Robert Wood, and a panel of eleven distinguished persons from this campus.

SWAP is a valuable experience for those who are not active in campus organizations for it gives them the opportunity to let their ideas be heard at an informal gathering. Socially, SWAP is one of the few places where you are urged to get bombed with high administration and faculty officials!

According to Judy Gill and Ross Benjamin, co-chairmen of this years SWAP committee, "This year, SWAP could be a meaningful weekend for all those involved. We are at the point now where SWAP can redefine its own role in the community and strive toward change in new ways."

Reaffirming that SWAP is a student-funded organization, the co-chairmen assert that student input is essential for SWAP's 1971 conference. The organizational meeting is Monday, September 20 at 7:00 P.M. in rooms 904-908 of the Campus Center. All interested people are urged to attend so that SWAP '71 can push forward in a new direction.

1971 SWAP Committee

SPENCER–NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL ESCAPEE AND STATE POLICE. Richard J. Lind brought to state police barracks. He is allegedly involved in shoot-out with police here today.

NORWICH, CONN.,--OBSOLETE FACILITIES--View shows archaic and dismal corridor of the second floor of Salmon building, the maximum security ward at Norwich Hospital, Conn., where four inmates escaped and have since been recaptured. Items to the right of the photo are personal effects of an inmate removed in a police shake-down.

Heller Tours UMass Campus

By ED JANUSZ

The first DVP visitor of the year, Joseph Heller, put in a full day on campus Tuesday. Though his featured appearance was at 8:00 in a bursting Student Union ballroom, where he read from his one forthcoming and two published books, he also talked more freely to a few English classes and to enthusiastic coffee-hour groups, in Baker Dorm before his speech and in the Student Union afterwards.

Because of the movie version of Catch-22 and the appearance of the novel on more and more English reading lists, there was a lot of interest all over campus in what Heller had to say. Some of the recurrent topics in his various meetings went like this:

The movie of Catch-22: "I liked the movie very much," he stated, and mentioned that for the most part, director Mike Nichols came very close to his own interpretation of the book (Heller had nothing to do with the movie), but that Nichols emphasized the dark, gloomy vein at the expense of Heller's wild humor. This could have accounted for the film's poor showing at the box-office: "People expected a funny movie."

World War II: "It was as close as America has ever come to a necessary war." He repeated that Catch-22 was not a criticism of war nearly so much as of "the state of the country in the '50s."

His play, We Bombed in New Haven, was actually much closer to a war issue; he explained it as a statement on America's refusal to take responsibility for what its leaders were doing in Vietnam until it was too late.

The new novel: At the ball room, Heller read some parts from his new novel, Something Happened. Though he described it as totally different from Catch-22, the broad, bizarre humor from the earlier book was still very much in evidence, and bureaucracy--man against the machine--was the main theme in these excerpts, though in a corporation instead of a war.

In the questioning after the Student Union reading, a Vietnam veteran in the audience accused Heller of writing "sick, contrived humor:--Jokes in a very unfunny situation."

Heller responded that as he understood it, the Vietnam situation was a lot different from World War II, and that the vet's response was valid for himself; but, he warned, "Catch-22 isn't...a literal, realistic novel of war."

In a long day at UMass, Joseph Heller was happy to talk about anything and willing to listen to anything the students had to say about his writing. Though he accepted any interpretations he heard, he gave his own favorite about Yossarian and Catch-22: "It's about a man who wants to live forever.. or die trying."

Women For 'Project Self'

A coffee hour to introduce "Project Self," a series of workshops by, for and about women, will be held at the UMass Campus Center today at 7 p.m. in Room 917.

The six non-credit workshops will begin in October. They are sponsored by the UMass Division of Continuing Education and the Valley Women's Center of Northampton.

The workshops will cover such topics as "Female Sexuality and Identity," "Media Manipulation of Women," "Communicating with Confidence," "An Introduction to Values Clarification," "Assumptions About Women," "Women and Their Bodies" and "Women and Applied Ecology."

According to Lois Phillips, workshop coordinator, "the underlying theme of each workshop will be one's self; i.e., strengthening all aspects of one's identity, examining the mystique of role-playing, reevaluating one's behavior in light of the possibilities for change, better understanding the social and political structure and its support of many incorrect assumptions about women, and developing self-confidence."

Although readings will be suggested and referred to in class, the emphasis will be the sharing of ideas and opinions in a supportive environment within the context of large and small group discussions.

"The project is designed to create options for the woman whose needs and situation are not being met by other offerings in the community; for example, the meetings will be arranged at an hour mutually convenient to the participants and discussion leader in the Campus Center, with babysitting provided and indoor parking available," according to Lois Phillips.

The fee for each workshop is $20. All discussion leaders are experienced teachers.

The coordinator of the program hopes to see the project evolve into such related activities as publications, neighborhood seminars led by participants, charter travel opportunities, coordinated project interest groups, monthly dialogues with women in the arts and professions, tutoring services, and exchange of talents. The brochure, registration form and other information is available from the Division of Continuing Education, 545-0865.

Rent a refrigerator for your room. Just $4.44a month.*

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Free pick-up and delivery
- Guaranteed—if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Minit-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

CALL 256-8488, 253-2494

mini kool

*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.

MDC Classifieds Pay

STEREO COMPONENTS

A purchasing co-operative has been formed to sell equipment at people's prices - 3 to 4% over cost. Scott, BSR-McDonald, Sony, Marantz, AR, Dual, Akai, Rectilinear, Dynaco, etc. Most top brands.

Call 546-8902 9 A.M. to 9 P.M.

U-Mass. Sport Parachute Club

Film Facts Everyone Invited Equipment Display

SKY - DIVE

Thurs. Sept. 16 7:45 p.m. CC165

DAYS OF WINE AND ROSES

Lee Remick
Jack Lemmon Jack Klugman

7 and 9 p.m.

Thursday, Sept. 16 — Campus Center Aud.
Friday, Sept. 17 — Thompson 104

50c

Sponsored by Accounting Association

Draft Councelor's Corner

Training Program Upcoming

By Gilbert J. Salk

Just short flashes today, folks.

I promised that there would be another draft counselor training program this semester. Well, hold onto your hats, 'cause here it comes. The program starts Tuesday, September 21, and will continue for the next two or three Tuesdays depending upon the need of the group. Each session will run for about three hours.

If you are concerned about the welfare of your brothers who are being subjected to the tyranny of the draft, this is a chance to get the information which will enable you to help them. The material to be covered will include: general structure and procedures of the SSS, medical, student, hardship, and other deferments, conscientious objection, alternative service, appeals, and counseling techniques.

The training program will be open to anyone who is interested in learning how to counsel others. (If you just want info about your own situation, please don't take up space and time in the course. Free draft counseling is available to you in 923 Campus Center.) There will be a five dollar charge for the training program to cover the cost of materials, but some scholarships are available. To register for the course, visit the Draft Counseling office in 923 CC.

If it is impossible for you to attend a Tuesday evening session, come talk to us anyway. There is a chance that we will arrange an alternate night.

Draft Counseling Services will inaugurate a new program next week for those who will have to face their local boards for a personal appearance. Several members of DCS will meet in a room to be announced and role-play draft board members while you come in to confront them with your problem. Your interview will then be analyzed and discussed with you, and suggestions given about how you can present a stronger case. The "board" will meet each Thursday morning from 10 to noon. Watch Tuesday's DRAFT COUNSELOR'S CORNER for location, or visit the DCS office in 923 CC.

Finally, a reminder that tomorrow afternoon, under the sponsorship of the United Christian Foundation's coffee hour in the SU Colonial Lounge, I'll be helping to lead a discussion about the Berrigan tapes. The tapes will be played at 1:30 and the coffee hour will run until about 3:30. The history of the tapes might interest you. Smith College invited Father Dan Berrigan to deliver a sermon on the Smith campus. He accepted, but a warrant was issued for his arrest because he and several other priests had burned some draft files in Catonsville, Maryland. As a result, Berrigan had to go underground. He sent the tapes to Smith in his place. They tell why he felt that his strong beliefs in Christ and in the Gospel required him to burn the files and to go underground.

If you're into draft resistance, or just uptight about the draft, you should hear this tape. See you there.

PEACE.

Student Wives Form Club

The UMass Dames Club will hold its first meeting Wednesday, Sept. 22 at 8:00 PM at the Farley 4-H House behind the S.W. complex. They claim to be a large group and say you're bound to meet someone you'll like. They said to come if you're new in town and want to meet lots of other student wives who are also new in town.

There will be an exciting show Fall fashions by some of the local shops on Wednesday, followed by coffee & dessert.

Conference Talk Sunday

Drug addiction, racism, marriage and family, Eastern religions, and organized church were some of the topics taken up at the meeting of christian Science college students in Boston recently.

Several students from Amherst, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges and UMass who attended a three-day conference of the Christian Science college students in Boston are giving a special program Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Christian Science Church, Center Street, Northampton.

They will tell of the highlights of the Boston meeting, share their experiences and impressions, and answer questions. This informal session is open to all and should be of particular appeal to those interested in a unique approach to human problems.

CCEBS Program On WFCR

The program "Colors," a collage of music, news and discussions of controversial topics with relevance to the Black community will be heard on WFCR tonight at 7:30 p.m.

"It is a production Committee of Collegiate Education of Black Students.

CCEBS has been involved in providing financial and academic aid to low-income and minority students. Tonight, CCEBS graduates and seniors discuss the future.

C. C. Program Council

Presents

"JOE"

S. U. Ballroom Thurs., Sept. 16

7:00 & 9:30 50c

The Ballad of Chief Thunder Thud or . . .
why an $84 Aztec Loudspeaker outsells
the best bookshelf system (EPI) four to one

1. It looks better
2. 95% of all stereo equipment in Amherst have less than 80 watts I.H.F. at 80 hms
3. The Aztec Dulane can be operated properly by any amplifier with at least 33 watts total.
4. Because of a slightly accentuated bass, this speaker will forgive a low powered amplifiers deficiency in the available base.
5. Since the system is considerably more efficient than say our own EPI 100 or their KLH 17 it will be louder at identical volume settings: saving your power supply's reserve for really demanding passages.
6. Amherst Audio has purchased solely for comparison KLH 6's - 17's and Rectilinear 11's to allow you to hear all these fine loudspeakers in one store on the same equipment so there's no possibility of hearing one under better acoustical conditions (Amherst Audio has New England only Anechoic listening area)
7. Most people would prefer not to hear perfect reproduction in their system as most records and equipment are far from being good enough to play an EPI or an Advent. (the two most technically perfect speakers available)
8. Amherst Audio will in the event of failure repair or replace any Aztec - speaker saving you a hassle in time and in some cases a bundle of dough in freight charges.
9. No super demo records will be played to show our strengths and their weaknesses, unless you have no personal preference: demo's most commonly played are C.T.A. Seatnain, E.Power Biggs, Tom Rush, and Pentangle

AMHERST AUDIO

197 No. Pleasant

LOOKING IT OVER...North Pleasant Street, seen here passing in front of the Morrill Science Center, will be closed to vehicular traffic if the recommendations of the Traffic Circulation Committee are approved by a town meeting. Also visible in the picture, taken from the 23rd floor of the new library tower, are the Central Area and Orchard Hill. (MDC birds eye view by Steve Schmidt).

Naider's Raiders Demand Protection

A small gathering of students from the Five College Area spoke to a representative from the Nader's Raiders P.I.R.G. Program last Monday night at Hampshire College on the University of Oregon originated Public Interest Research Group (P.I.R.G.)

The purpose of the program is to obtain student raised monies to hire professionals as well as students to research and, if necessary, take measures to insure that various public protection agencies are doing their job.

Initially, the Connecticut Valley Committee is providing enough funds to supply paper, stencils, etc. but students in the Five College Area should begin to think about the possibilities of following the Oregon example of taxing themselves the necessary money to begin and continue the program.

As Brent English, a spokesman for the PIRG, pointed out there are many obstacles. Some students may feel that this tax is being levied without their expressed permission and that they should not be coerced into sponsoring a program they may not know much about or even support.

As an example of its work in the past year PIRG has taken a Water Pollution Commission to court to force enforcement of a water pollution law. A paper mill was dumping pollutants into a river between the hours of 2-6 a.m. A woman who lived near the river complained to the PIRG of the smell and an investigation insued. Although the PIRG informed the commission of their findings, the commission did nothing. As a result the PIRG sued the commission.

The potentials for this type of organization are vast while the expenditure of funds are small for the individual student. For additional information call 542-5074 and ask for Craig Fitzsimmons at Hampshire College.

Senate Book Loans Still Go Unpaid

By JERRY LAZAR

Each year loans are granted to students for purchase of books, but according to Student Senate Treasurer Rick Verrochi, a substantial amount of the money loaned is not repaid.

Last year, for instance, 600 to 800 loans, ranging from $25 to $50 each, were granted to undergraduate students, under the conditions that they be repaid within thirty days.

More than fifty students were still responsible for outstanding loans at the end of the year, however, which amounted to more than $1200, Verrochi said.

The academic records of each of the offenders is frozen until repayment. This means transcripts and other records of the delinquent student remain inactive.

It is the Student Senate which finds itself "in the hole", according to Verrochi, since all loans for books are approved by the Senate Treasurer. Ultimately, the money must be paid to the University from Student Activity Tax Fund, because the Senate guaranteed payment. Everyone suffers, Verrochi said, because the students' money used to pay the debts.

After going to the expense of mailing letters to the delinquent debtors, $500 was finally repaid, Verrochi said. This still leaves $700 unaccounted for, much of which was probably granted to students who either graduated last year, or left the University for other reasons.

Verrochi advised students to repay their loans this year.

Blue Jeans
$4.95
WAREHOUSE
201 N. Pleasant

Education Through Involvement

NES Tutoring Needs Volunteers

to Tutor in Springfield

If interested in tutoring in economically deprived areas of Springfield attend either of these meetings.

this Sunday Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Elementary Age Tutors in Mahar Auditorium

Secondary Age Tutors in SBA 120

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

For Sale, 67 VW Bus. Excellent cond., no rust, 49,000 mi., $999. 253-7438. tf9-10-15

65 VW Beetle. Excellent condition. 256-8230. tf9-17

1970 Camaro, must be seen. Call 584-2272 (m. f. aft. 6). tf9 17

1969 Triumph Tiger 650 cc, excellent condition. 256-8687. tf9 17

67 Mustang, A.T., V8, good condition, $999. Call Jeff 256-6938. tf 9-17

1962 VW, fair body, rebuilt engine, gas heater, sun-roof, excellent tires. $250 or best offer. Call 665-4092 after 5 p.m. or keep trying. tf9-20

'68 Fiat, red, 850 Spyder. 33,000 miles, good cond. Call 549-1404 evenings after 6 p.m. tf9-22

1969 Opel, 36,000 original mi. Good condition. Best offer. Ray 549-6346. Also 125 cc Suzuki 2500 mi., 1971. tf9-20

1961 Falcon, rebuilt trans., new snows and batt. Great buy, $100. Call Crabtree and leave mess. for Grant, Rm. 206. tf9-22

Going to Europe, must sacrifice 1970 Maverick, ex. cond. 14,000 miles. Phone Ware, 1-477-6904. tf9-21

1968 MGBGT, very good condition, $2900. Priced below book $1650. Greenfield 773-7865. 9-15, 25, 29

1968 Ford Cortina, low mileage, good condition, 2 studded snow tires, $950. Call 586-2634. tf9-20

1960 Ford Econoline, excellent condition. New tires and chrome wheels. Beautiful interior with stereo. Call 665-4760 Sunderland. tf9-16

'64 Dodge Dart. Needs mech. mod, owner $100 or best offer. Call 9-5106. tf9-16

1968 Ford Galaxie, 40,000 miles, yellow with black interior. Stereo. Immaculate. Call 256-6297. tf9-17

1966 Red Porsche 912, AM-FM-SW Radial Ply Tires $2200. Call 323-9989 or 545-7330 tf9-20

65 Chev. Corvair Monza Conv., 4 speed, $390. Call 549-1909 betw. 6-8. tf9-21

'49 British Taxi Cab, rst. hand drive, runs well, new tires, brakes, jump seats, body beginning to rust. No dents. Call 256-6068. tf9-17

1964 Ford Galaxie, fair condition, $100. Call Richard 549-1470. tf9-22

Going overseas, must sell quickly 65 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $150. 2 month old $150 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $30. Call 253-5096 tf9-24

Dodge Van 69 Custom, auto. trans. Very good cond. Must sell. Best offer. Box 447, Amherst. tf9-17

1968 Toyota for sale, 67 engine needs a little work. Will sell for $150. Call 256-8379 tf9-16

69 Triumph GT6+, excel. cond. $1700. Call Dinue 413-533-6381. tf9-22

68 Fiat Conv. 28,000 miles, excellent condition. Call 253-9224. Ask for Betsy or 253-3688. Call early, $1000 firm. tf9-20

'66 Ford Mustang, 6 cyl., good running condition $400. Call John Hill 256-8439. tf9-20

1964 Chevy II, good running condition, $100, 256-8805. tf9-17

VW Van for sale 1962, excellent running condition, $400. Call Charlie at 546-5255. tf9-17

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sel. dbl. queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or jumbo $49.95. Immed. deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst. tf9-22

1971 Gold Honda CL 350, exc. cond., $700.00 or best offer. Call Jack at 6-7636. tf9-17

Small kitchen table 24x36 w/2 chairs. 24 inch kitchen sink on metal base. Jacobson reel mower, self propelled. 323-7046 after 6 p.m. tf9-16

Sleep on a waterbed tonight. All sizes and all frames. $19.95 and up 5 yr. guarantee. Call anytime Jerry 256-8370. tf9-16

1 yr. old Sears Coldspot refrigerator with freezer and ice cube trays approx. 9 cu ft. Price negotiable. Call 253-7464 after 5. tf9 17

2 Matching gold bedspreads for sale $3.00 each. Call Donna at 546-6164 or Deb at 546-6377 tf9-16

GE portable stereo, excellent condition, ideal for dorm or small apartment, make offer. 549-6563 tf9-16

Sewing machine, new $309. Morse Zigzag, never used, button holer, darner, etc., now $150. Call Amherst Motel, Tina Rm. 16. tf9-17

Rene Duval Silver Flute, new pads, good condition $85. Call 827-6479. tf9-17

Portable Gen. Elec. stereo and stand. Good condition. Best offer Call 549-0647 after 5:00 p.m. tf9-17

Ski Boots for sale - Koflach White Star, 8½ M, 2 yrs. old. Call 546-4194. tf9-20

1969 Austin Amer., 4 speed, 28,000 mi., good cond., AM-FM, new tires, best offr. Call 546-6815. tf9-22

Includes case and strap, exc. cond Best offer. Contact Bob 549-1180. tf9-17

Must sell, used bread van, excellent condition, $250. Call 256-6863, ask for Gary. tf9-20

61 Austin Healy, "Buxer" sprite runs but needs work. Asking $150 Call 256-8439. Ask for Pete after 5:00 p.m. tf9-17

Unusual and usual in domestic and imported footwear for men and women. The Shoe-Bin (formerly Shoe-in) Up Town, behind Auba-chons in the Alley. tf9-16

1964 Chevy Impala 3 speed Hurst shifter with an 8 cyl. 283 engine Recent paint job. Dependable. $150 or best offer. Call Lynn 546-6113. tf9-20

Sm. Corona electric portable typewriter used 3 wks. $145, new will sell for $125 or best offer. Sandy 5-1532 days, 549-6276 eves. tf9-22

Good stereo 40W amp. Garrard table, spkrs, asking $150. Call 256-8450 Steve. tf9-20

"The Place!" — quick Burgers & Shakes. Eat here — take it out. Open daily 10 a.m. - midnight. Hampden Commons. tf9-17

Marnavox portable stereo, 2 12-inch detaching speakers $65. 863-9170. tf9-17

Stereo system — excellent cond. Sansui 2000 amp. 2 ARA¾ spkrs., AKAI 200 Tape Deck, PE 20202, Turntable, Pioneer SE20A Headphones. Asking $375. Call Jon 546-7332 or 546-8373 or come to 215 James House. 9-16

ROOMMATES WANTED

One girl or couple only. If you need a place to stay until Oct. 31. Call aft. 6, m-f 584-8273. tf9 17

Commune for 2. Female house partner, 24-up wanted. Lo rent but very rough. Working male. Con. Ed. student 253-7277 after 5 or Box 792. tf9-17

Med. Mtn. Range Apt. in So. Amherst, easy going roommates. Call Bob 253-2922. tf9-18

Male grad seeks rmmt. for lr. 1 bdrm., $75 rng. apt. — 44 U Park, 015 Main, Amh. 65-70 mo. I'm there before 8:30 a.m. and after 10:30 p.m. tf9-20

MUSICIAN WANTED

Singer needed to front versatile group (rock, ballads, old standards.) Must be experienced. Call Steve 256-8084. tf9-17

HELP WANTED

Any UMass student with Class II drivers license to drive Campus Shuttle Bus. Call RSO Office 5-5351. tf9-17

Sitter needed, M.W.F. 1 p.m.-2:30 p.m. Own transportation desirable. 549-6407. tf9-17

Professor needs secretarial assistant with some dictation competence. About ten hours weekly. Write Hanke, History Dept. tf9-17

Needed - SDS representative for distribution office - S.U. Lobby, Room 318. Telephone 545-2683. tf9-16

Lead Singer wanted for est. working group, Beck, Blues, etc., also original mat. Year round work! Contact Bob or John 60747 - 68664. tf9-22

Student to care for 5 yr. old boy in my home nr. School of Ed. M-F 11:15-12:45; Tu. 2:15-5:30. 549-6076. tf9-20

Experienced service station attendance Sat., evening, all day Sunday, approx. 20 hrs. weekly. Call 253-9001 before 5 p.m. tf9-17

RIDE WANTED

Cornell — Need a ride to Cornell or vicinity this weekend, Fri., Sept. 17. Will share expen. Call John 546-9713. tf9-16

Ride needed to Sprfld. Fri. nites - 5 p.m. and/or return 4 a.m. Will pay. Perhaps someone will rent me their car? Gary, 414 No. Pleasant. tf9-16

RIDE OFFERED

Travel from Framingham to UMass on Tues. and Thurs. and would like a rider. Call 617-875-4455. tf9-17

LOST

Reward - 10 week old Doberman-Shepherd, long flea collar in large knot. Name Gus. 549-0490. tf9-16

GIVE-AWAY

Wanted good home for gentle, affectionate 6-month old female cat. Call 6-8568. tf9-17

PERSONAL

D - tried to find you - I'm going now. Sorry I didn't get to see you. Guess I'll just say goodbye. Nell. tf9-17

Happy late Birthday Sherry. Hope your toilet paper keeps unrolling Love from the Preverts. 9-16

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Must have own room. Call Marr 253-7672. Leave message if not there. tf9-21

WANTED

1 or 2 senior males seek room, apart. house to rent or share. Own rooms desired. Call Edward at Hamlin House 256-6866. tf9-17

Desperately needed for Mktg 216: MARKETING MANAGEMENT, Keteler; ANALYSIS AND DECISION MAKING, Mathews. Will buy or rent. 546-7368. 9-16

JOB WANTED

Bass player with equipment looking for band. Vinny 6-9675. 9-16

SERVICES

Will care for children in my home any Mon., Wed., Fri. Lots of T.L.C. Call 665-3270. tf9-17

Lancasters by Multi-Linguist - Formerly United Nations Interpreter. Breakthrough, portable, language laboratory/4-track "take-home, send-back" cassettes/ - Native assistants, also group and correspondence courses. Charges "Minimal" P.O. Box 47 Nhmptn, Ma. 01060; Tel. 413 584-9179; 584-8823. tf9-17

Fine Jewelry
Rings-Barretts-Earrings
at MIZAUR'S Mercantile
next to Amherst Theatre

FT. MCPHERSON, GA., TESTIFIES IN MEDINA TRIAL--Capt. Eugene M. Kotouc of Humboldt, Neb., leaves court after testifying in the Capt. Ernest L. Medina trial at Ft. McPherson, Ga. He was asked to recount his discussion with Medina about interrogation methods in Vietnam.

WMUA

7:00 PM -Evening News Report

7:30 -Marty Kelley presents a preview of Saturday's Redmen-UMaine football game. Guests include Coach McPherson.

8:00 -Cyclebreaker features Eric Benjamin's record review, excerpts from speeches by Malcolm X, a poetry reading and a look at landlord-tenant relations in the Amherst area

11:00 -Late Night News

11:30 -Rocket Rick Morton and music 'til 3.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Student Senate
BOOK LOANS
Now Available
Student Senate Office, Level 1 Campus Center

Fine Jewelry
Rings-Barretts-Earrings
at MIZAUR'S Mercantile
next to Amherst Theatre

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Gloria Swanson, an Aries, is knowledgeable about astrology. She exhibited pioneering qualities of her sign when, well ahead of her time, she advocated clean air and water, health foods and a return to basic values, including integrity. Like the classical attributes of her sign, she refuses to follow the crowd-this applied when she was the reigning queen of the motion picture world; it is just as true today for Gloria Swanson, perhaps the world's most glamorous Aries grandmother.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are likely to get what you go after--be sure you know what you want. Love is involved. Emotions play dominant role. Children make known their needs. Good fortune indicated now in speculative ventures.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Deal can be consummated as related to property, real estate, home. State your case. Don't bluff. Mean what you say. Older, experienced individual is not easily fooled. Play game on the square.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Versatile approach serves best interests. Bright, creative ideas abound. Key is to be selective. Take time to choose quality. Accent on short journeys, dealing with neighbors and relatives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Trust hunch. Follow through on heedings of inner voice. Nothing halfway; go wholeheartedly or not at all. Stress on money, personal possessions. Collect needed information. Be analytical.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle continues high; take initiative. Spread influence. Welcome new experiences, contacts and challenges. Wager on your own abilities. Be a self-starter. Sagittarius figures prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work in conjunction with special group, organization. Strive to comprehend inner sanctum. Means realize all is not what appears on surface. Apply recent lesson. Cycle is on upswing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some who claimed you were in above your head now may have to apologize. Gemini and Virgo figure prominently. Accent is on fulfillment of hopes, wishes. A new friendship will prove meaningful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on career, ambitions, ability to drive home major points. Money is involved. Chance to increase assets is evident. Don't overlook opportunity merely because it is obvious. Keep emotional antennae in action.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Perceive hidden meanings. Study Scorpio message. Good lunar aspect now coincides with journey, added knowledge, publishing, advertising opportunities. Pisces person may want to discourage you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What you learned in past can now be put to constructive use. Your natural talents come to fore, are appreciated. Money affecting mate, partner is spotlighted. Speak up concerning beliefs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be a careful observer. Emphasis is on contracts, special agreements, marriage. Those with opposite views may try to trap you. Maintain balance, aplomb. Finish what you start.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Fresh viewpoint should be welcomed. Accent independence, originality. Keep health resolutions. Stick to quality. Refuse bargain-basement substitutes. Message will become increasingly clear.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, tend to be studious. You seek perfection, goals are sky high and so are your principles. You are drawn to Capricorn, Sagittarius and Gemini. You harmonize with Taurus, Scorpio and Cancer. You are intrigued with Pisces, but this may be a case of opposites being fascinated with each other.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Notices

HILLEL
Sign up for tutoring and rideboard programs at the office.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON
Iota Gamma Upsilon cordially invites all University women to come to know themselves at a "Sensitivity Party" on Thurs. at 7:30 pm at 406 N. Pleasant St.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL
UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN-- Tonight's sorority rush parties will be a "Sock Hop" at Kappa Alpha Theta, a "Charades Seymore Party" at Sigma Sigma Sigma, a professional hair care demonstration at Sigma Kappa, and "Your Father's Mustache" at Chi Omega. All parties will be held from 7-8 and 8:15-9:15 pm, and you're cordially invited to each.

PARACHUTE CLUB
SKYDIVE -UMass Sport Parachute Club invites everyone to find out where it's at. Film, facts, equipment display. Tonight at 7:45 pm, CC 165-169.

REVELERS
Meeting tonight at 9:30 pm in Rms 805-809 CC. No rush party excuses.

UMASS CHESS CLUB
Like chess? Then come to the New Hatch in the Student Union tonight at 7. Boards, sets, clocks (and opponents) are available.
UMass fall 30-30 chess tourney this Saturday at 9:00 am Rm. 162 CC. No entry fee. All welcome. For more information call 546-8624.

WMUA
Station meeting tonight for all old and new members. At the Plymouth and Norfolk Rooms (424 & 426) in the Student Union at 7:30 pm.

LOST
In Hadley neighborhood, a shepard colored, 13 week old, female puppy; answers to the name of Soma. Call Bob at 586-3760.
Wallet; on Monday between SBA & Morrill--Important papers and money. Please call 665-4979.

FOUND
Girl's red wallet, yellow comb and bottle of pills about two weeks ago in a blue van; left by someone who hitched a ride into Amherst center. Call 6-5025

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

TIME TRIP PIG
ANIL RENA ATE
IT FLIP TIP
OIL ATOP SACS
TREE ERIA LOT
AMEND TENT NE
MASTER STRAFE
AL ELIA SEDER
LID LORD TARS
EYES TRIM RE
FOP INEE NU
DIE SAVE TACT
ERR IDES ALEE

ACROSS
1 Timid
4 Exists
6 Lift
11 Restricted
13 Conjunction
15 Near
16 Precipitous
18 Slippery
19 Edible seed
21 Danish island
22 Note of scale
23 Breathe
26 Youngster
29 Male sheep (pl.)
31 Cease
33 Roman gods
34 Spanish article
35 Short sleep
38 Vessel's curved planking
39 Part of "to be"
40 Symbol for tantalum
41 Organs of hearing
43 European capital
45 Nahoor sheep
47 Retreated
50 Negative
52 Rail bird
53 Cloth measure
56 Vessel
58 Extra
60 Maiden loved by Zeus
61 Distend
63 Railroad car
65 Erases (printing)
66 Teutonic deity
67 Unusual

DOWN
1 Break suddenly
2 Detest
3 Period of time (abbr.)
4 Specks
5 Clean by brushing
6 Rumors
7 Three toed sloth
8 Roman road
9 Article of bed linen
10 Lamprey
12 Rupees (abbr.)
14 Railway (abbr.)
17 Goddess of discord
20 Limb
24 Slave
25 Vast age
27 Man's name
28 Coin
29 Soaks
30 Wolfhound
32 Funeral pile
36 Swiss river
37 Irons
42 Halt
44 Poem
46 Old womanish
48 Angry
49 More unusual
51 Semi-precious stone
54 Told falsehood
55 Nobleman
56 A state (abbr.)
57 Concealed
59 Printer's measure
62 Symbol for tellurium
64 Note of scale

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate

THE WIZARD OF ID

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

MacPherson Debut A Newman Success

By Earle Barroll

"The Dick MacPherson Hour" premiered yesterday noontime at the Newman Center and from the reactions of the large gathering on hand rated a four star performance.

It was like any premiere that featured a figure with the magnetism and popularity of the affable new Redman football coach. Slated to begin at 12:15 sharp the program didn't get underway until after 12:30 when the final soul in the "chow" line that had stretched out the door took his seat.

Jim Mulcahy, President of the Varsity M Club, made the introduction in another virtuoso performance as the weekly master of ceremonies. "Mac" took his place in front of the mass and held them for the remainder of the program.

From his introductions of his coaches and co-captains to his final comments on the Maine game MacPherson was everything that had been previously said and written about him.

He spoke with feeling and conviction, with knowledge and true belief in the staff, the players and the people he came in contact with. This was the man the Boston Press said was "people."

*****

As for the game itself MacPherson stated, "the Maine boys don't have too much. All they have is a helmet, pads and a uniform; no worry for scholarships or where they're going to live on campus. They come ready to play and they love the game.

"Our young men realize this and they will be ready for this game."

Injuries will be keeping seven Redmen including co-captain Dennis Keating and starting halfback Paul Matello from making the trip to Orono. Five more players who are hurt will make the trip and play.

When questioned about the rash of injuries his players had the head coach turned to Keating on his left and said, "When we have injuries like this and have to play a game there is only one thing to do," to which his co-captain answered, "close ranks and keep on moving."

Kicking was next and when asked about his personnel in this area, MacPherson commented, "We have one of the finest kickers around, Dennis Gagnon. On third and one if we try a bootleg and it doesn't work and you ask me why we tried it, I'll tell you 'I knew we could get three, so we shot for seven'."

Gridders Set Goal At Varsity M-Number One

By Fred Rosenthal

Yesterday the Varsity M Club opened up its luncheon series with football coach Dick MacPherson as its featured speaker. The meeting was held at the Newman Center before a large gathering.

With MacPherson were safety Dennis Keating (co-capt) and offensive lineman Bob Donlin. Keating spoke about this year's defensive team. He said that any defensive set should fit the personnel on the team. "Coach MacPherson brought a 4-3-4 pro style defensive set with him which we have the personnel to fit."

POST-LUNCHEON CAL-Head football coach Dick MacPherson loosens up before practice following his first appearance as head coach at the Varsity M Club luncheon held at the Newman Center. Mac and his staff are busily readying their players for Saturday's opener at Maine. (MDC Photo by Ed Mangiaratti)

Keating then mentioned some of the team's goals this year. He cited beating Dartmouth and Boston College as two important steps toward becoming the "number one team in New England with New England's number one coach."

Bob Donlin was introduced next by Coach MacPherson who said that Donlin was "the best offensive lineman in New ngland." He said that Donlin has the agility and speed for finesse work and the strength and size for power.

Donlin spoke about the offense and in particular about sophomore quarterback Piel Pennington. "The offensive team worked hard during pre-season" and will be "a threat for a touchdown at any point on the field because of Piel's passing ability."

Defensive line coach Bob Harris then spoke about the scrimmage last weekend at Cornell which ended up tied, 27 all. In speaking about Cornell Harris said, "they represented themselves well; we represented ourselves as well."

Films were shown of the Cornell scrimmage after which defensive coach Bob Pickett gave a scouting report on Maine. Pickett who is a graduate of Maine was a coach there last year. He said that Maine is improved over last year especially in the defensive line.

Pickett noted that Maine's football team is predominantly from Massachusetts. "They spend 85 per cent of their recruiting money in Massachusetts."

Soccer Team Loses Key Personel

By Steve Ferber

No, yesterday was not a good day for the UMass "arsity soccer team. First there was the casualty, that of All-Yankee Conference fullback Joey Czerniaski. It was the second quarter of action against Amherst yesterday afternoon, when an Amherst halfback met Czerniaski near mid-field and as the UMass star hit the ground the loud crackling sound was heard by almost everyone. A few hours later it was confirmed. Czerniaski had broken his right leg and would be lost for the rest of the season.

But that wasn't all. The news arrived early yesterday morning to Abdu Thraya, the Redmen's senior forward. Thraya's eligibility is the problem at stake, and at the time of this writing the chances that UMass will have the use of his services are minimal.

A case of temporary amnesia, a few bruised thighs all became rather insignificant as two severe blows had been dealt to the squad.

Amherst, who had been knocked off by UMass on Saturday of last week, managed a 2-2 tie in their return match on the Redmen's home field. Many an opportunity went by the goal yesterday afternoon as sloppiness marked the scrimmage workout with moments of brilliance coming far and few between.

Trying to recoup from the possible double loss is Coach Berryman. Already his squad is losing players and the official season is still over a week away. One can only hope that the remainder of the team stays healthy, as further losses could seriously jeopardize any chance for repeating that conference crown, earned one year ago.

JOE CERNIAWSKI

Dodgers Trail By One

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Some very young and some very old players have combined to provide the Los Angeles Dodgers with their biggest comeback since they arrived in Los Angeles.

They've won eight in a row. They've beaten the San Francisco Giants eight straight times, and they came home yesterday just one game out of the National League West lead after being 8-1/2 back after Sept. 4.

Hoyt Wilhelm, the knuckleball specialist who struck out Willie Mays to insure a 6-5 victory Tuesday, is 48. He joined the club late in the season.

Among the other seasoned vets are shortstop Maury Wills, utility man Manny Mota and catcher Tom Haller.

It was the 33-year-old Mota who put the Dodgers ahead with a bases-loaded triple in a ninth inning pinch hit role. Wills, 38, is the acknowledged team leader.

Bill Buckner, Steve Garvey, Bobby Valentine and Bill Russell are among the young brigade who have come on this season. All are in their early 20s and at one time, when the Dodgers sagged, some felt the Dodgers had too much youth.

Willie Davis, Richie Allen and West Parker are among those in between the so-called Kiddie Korps and the oldsters. The starting pitchers are young, the relievers seasoned.

Manager Walter Alston, dean of major league managers, continues to take his philisophical approach.

"We could go on and win three in a row, or lose three in a row, the same for the Giants," he observed.

Los Angeles hosts the San Diego Padres and the Giants host Cincinnati. Two years ago this month the Dodgers trailed first place San Francisco by a single game, only to lose four straight to San Diego. The Giants eventually lost the crown to Atlanta.

Of possible significance is the fact that of the last 14 games, the Dodgers play third-place Atlanta six times and the Giants have the same number of games against last-place San Diego.

"We just have to win all we can," Alston declared. "And if that's more than the Giants have when the season is over, great. If it isn't, we finish second."

U.S. Sweeps Forest Hills

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., and Billie Jean King, smashed their way to singles titles in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships yesterday for the first American sweep in 16 years.

A new era dawned for American tennis, overshadowed for nearly two decades by an unending flow of Australians.

Smith, a 6-foot-4 beanstalk, cut down giantkiller Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 7-6 in a match of go-for-broke winners, few rallies and costly double-faults.

Mrs. King, three times a Wimbledon winner but victor here only once before, in 1967, won over her longtime friend and former doubles partner, Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, 6-4, 7-6.

Billie Jean clinched the match with an overhead smash, winning the tie-break in the second set 5-2.

Smith, an independent pro, collected $20,000-a purse which he said he will turn over to the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association's Davis Cup fund. Kodes collected $7,500.

Mrs. King's winning purse [illegible] $5,000, plus $2,500 expense money, while Rosemary collects $2,500, plus expenses. Both champions receive new cars.

The last time Americans won both the men's and women's singles in the same year was 1955 when Tony Trabert captured the male title and Doris Hart the women's crown.

Both Smith, a big, slugging type of player, and Kodes, a clay court specialist renowned for his quickness and lightning reflexes, were below the standard they set in winning semi-final victories Tuesday.

Kodes, was seeking to become the first East European-a player from behind the Iron Curtain-to win this 90-year-old championship.

One of the world's great clay court players, winner of the French Open at Paris the last two years and runner-up to Rod Laver in the Italian Open at Rome, the 25-year-old Czech acknowledged he was lucky to go as far as he did.

"I only wanted to win one set off Newcombe so I would not be embarrassed," he said. "I do not play well on grass. Tennis on grass is a joke."

WMUA

Saturday at 12:30 p.m. WMUA will begin its seasonal coverage of UMass football games at the University of Maine. Marty Kelley will host the pre-game show beginning at 12:30 followed by the game broadcast at 12:45 with Ken Best calling the action and Kelley on color.

Tonight Best and Kelley will have coach Dick and co-captains Dennis Keating and John Hulecki on "Warpath" at 7:30 p.m. to preview the coming season and particularly the Maine game.

Tune in to WMUA, 91.1 fm on your dial. The voice of the Redmen.

Sports Notices

WOMEN'S INTERCOLLEGIATE TENNIS-All girls interested in competing in intercollegiate tennis should report to the tennis courts at WOPF at 4 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, September 20 and 21 or contact Miss Ogilvie at her office in Room 105 WOPE or at 5-2559.

*****

WRESTLING-All freshman and varsity wrestling candidates should attend the organizational meeting today at 4:30 p.m. in Boyden Gym.

*****

INTRAMURALS-Touch football schedules will begin on Monday, September 20. All team managers must pick up their schedules and team rosters at the intramural office no later than 5 p.m. tomorrow. Check tomorrow's Collegian for the opening nights schedule.

Today is the final day to get intramural rosters in for badminton. Coming events and roster deadlines are cross country, Sept. 21, the Metawampe 500 bicycle race, Sept. 22, and Paddleball and Handball singles, Sept. 23. Remember these deadlines if your team wishes to compete.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: It's raining

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 8 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER, 17, 1971

Scanlon C.C. Head

By SUSAN STADNICKI
and
STEVE SOSNICKI

The Student Union Governing (SUG) Board approved the appointment of Gerald Scanlon to director of the Campus Center-Student Union Complex in a meeting last night. Scanlon's position is in effect only until the SUG Board Task Force completes its investigation of reorganization of the Campus Center structure, however.

In other business Room to Move's new ventilation system was approved, a security task force for the Campus Center was organized and a site was proposed for the fountain given to the Campus Center as a gift from the class of '71.

Scanlon had been appointed during the summer, by the Administration to fill the post vacated by Daniel Fitzpatrick. The SUG Board was not consulted concerning the appointment and therefore rejected it. Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services Thomas Campion said that the Administration, realizing its mistake, asked that the board consider the necessity of filling the vacancy. After in-depth discussion the board voted five to four in favor of Scanlon assuming the post.

Much emphasis was placed on the fact that Scanlon would retain his responsibilities as Director of Student Activities while assuming his role as the Director of the Campus Center. This action was taken by the Student Affairs Task Force under Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Randolph Bromery to alleviate the red tape involved in solving problems at the Campus Center.

John Dunphy spoke on behalf of Room to Move's attempts to gain a new ventilation system for the project. This was handled under the emergency appropriation fund. The cost of the project was estimated between $1,500. and $2,000. and the Board appropriated $1,000 from the emergency fund.

The new ventilation system was originally proposed because it was designated as a health hazard. The situation was created by recent construction at the Center which blocked off old ventilation ducts.

The new committee, entitled the Security Task Force was brought into effect because of the innumerable thefts in the Campus Center and University Store. Approximately eighty thousand dollars worth of goods have been stolen within the past year. The committee will work to alleviate this problem in the future.

The fountain donated by the Class of '70 (the Green Monster) was another item on the agenda. Plans are being made to locate the fountain outside the Coffee Shop in the Campus Center. All costs of moving the fountain will be assumed by the Class of 1970. The final decision on these plans will be voted on at a future meeting.

At the time the MDC went to press the topic of Space Allocation was under discussion. Settlements will be reported in a future Collegian.

DEBATING LAST NIGHT whether or not to approve Gerry Scanlon's appointment to the post of Director of the Campus Center Complex were SUG Board Secretary-Treasurer Rocky Hodgeson and President Bob Nims. (upper left photo)

***

SCANLON HIMSELF SAT through the long meeting to find himself approved only until the SUG Board Task Force finishes studying the Campus Center structure. (upper right)

***

NOT ONLY SUG BOARD people rapped on the question of the appointment, Student Activities advisor Jill Cochraine and Vice Chancellor Tom Campion were there too. (lower right)

On The Inside:

- Weekend Magazine — See Centerfold
- Maine Game Preview — See Back Page
- Something's Cooking — See Centerfold

Committee Vetoes Nixon's Pay Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP)—A resolution vetoing President Nixon's order for a six-month delay in a $1.3 billion federal pay raise cleared the House Civil Service Committee Thursday on a 14-12 partyline vote.

In the first congressional vote on any of the President's emergency economic moves, all but two of the committee's Democrats voted for the veto resolution and only one Republican voted against it.

Democratic Speaker Carl Albert indicated he will support the veto resolution unless Nixon imposes the same wage guidelines for federal workers as for private workers after the current 90-day freeze.

Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford began a White House-backed drive to override the veto resolution in the House. Albert said: "There has to be absolute comparability for public and private workers."

The President's plan to postpone a scheduled January pay raise for federal employes until next July would save $1.3 billion for the biggest single item in the $5 billion federal-spending cut part of his economic package.

Congress has until Oct. 7 to veto the President's action by vote of either the House or Senate. There has been no Senate action.

Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D—Calif., a sponsor of the veto resolution, said he favors freezing all wages beyond the present 90-day period but opposes separate action against federal employes.

"What we ought to do," he told the committee, "is deny the President's attempt to single out the federal employe as the single scapegoat."

But Rep. David N. Henderson, D—N.C., one of the two committee Democrats supporting the President's federal pay delay said he hoped it would "break the ice" for a general holddown on pay increases for private workers.

The only committee Republican voting for the veto resolution was Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan of Maryland.

U.S. Supports Red China For UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States sought support from its U.N. allies Thursday for a revised resolution that would give China's permanent Security Council seat to Peking.

In Washington, President Nixon said the United States will work to keep Nationalist China in the United Nations while voting for Communist Chinese entry.

"We will vote for the admission of the People's Republic to the United Nations," Nixon said, "and that would mean, of course, obtaining a Security Council seat."

The new draft of the two-Chinas resolution was presented in a private meeting of 30 to 35 potential sponsors at the U.S. mission at the United Nations.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush sought to line up support before submitting the resolution to the General Assembly early next week.

Bush said further quiet diplomatic work is necessary before the final form of the proposal and its sponsorship are determined. Other diplomats said they did not expect any significant change beyond the new clause on the Security Council seat.

This addition had been under study by the United States for several weeks and was finally written in under pressure from Japan and other U.S. allies in the United Nations.

The original U.S. proposal, circulated to friendly countries Aug. 2, simply called for the seating of mainland China in the United Nations while permitting the Chinese Nationalists to remain. The question of the Security Council was left open.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said at a Sept. 3 news conference, however, that in a survey the United States had found strong support for giving the seat to Peking and that the idea was being considered.

Most of the participants in the private meeting Thursday morning were cautious about discussing the question of sponsorship. Bush said those who attended were divided into three groups: those who agreed to be sponsors, those who will support the plan strongly without being sponsors and those who came with open minds to hear the U.S. position.

Bush told newsmen he was encouraged by the discussions and that the addition of the special provision on the Security Council seat had made "a big difference."

Bush is known to be concerned by a growing movement of Peking supporters to create a feeling among delegates that the two-Chinas-or "dual representation" plan-has little or no chance to be approved.

Faculty Senate Supports CCEBS

On April 29, 1971, the Faculty Senate voted the following motion: "That the Faculty Senate endorse the principle of financial support by the faculty for the CCEBS program, and recommend that faculty and staff members pledge $1.00 or more per week through payroll deduction for one year beginning September, 1971; the proceeds to be awarded to the CCEBS program for 1971-72 and that the Rules Committee be given responsibility for soliciting these pledges."

Chancellor Oswald Tippo has strongly encouraged support of this program by the UMass faculty and staff. On September 17 all faculty and staff will receive with their paycheck a pledge card on which may be authorized a payroll deduction beginning October 4, 1971.

UMass undergraduate students have contributed $30,000 a year for the last three years for this program, which is designed to give young people from minority and low-income groups an opportunity for a university education.

Belchertown Volunteers

The Belchertown Volunteer's first bus this semester will leave at 12:45 from Whitmore Administration Building Saturday, extending its services each Saturday from 1:00 P.M. to 3:30.

The Belchertown Volunteers is an organization for those interested in acting as counselors, teachers, recreational therapists, and friends to the residents of the Belchertown State School.

For those taking part in the program is the opportunity to fill some of the many needs of the residents and to become involved in a community outside of the confines of UMass, says a release from the group. In addition, credit for volunteering can be individually arranged with the Education Department.

The Belchertown Volunteers look forward to seeing old members and to greeting many new ones. For further information or ideas for the coming year, call Judy at 546-8586.

EUGENE, Oregon—A rush-hour traffic snarl and considerable damage to the Ferry Street Bridge in Eugene resulted Tuesday morning when the top log on a log truck load hit the bridge's superstructure, bashed beam shows where log hit first. Driver of the truck, Loren Dean Cox, Sr., 26, of 249 S. 57th St., Springfield, was cited on a charge of carrying an overheight load.

Call MDC Hotline
5-2550

FACES OF EARTH
159 NORTH PLEASANT STREET, AMHERST
Next to the Post Office
Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday thru Saturday

HOME FURNISHINGS
Bed Spreads
Indian Rugs
Indian Tables
Lamps
Glass Tiffany Shades
Paper Shades
Hammocks
Blankets
Candles
Graphics

CLOTHING
Army Surplus
Overcoats
Field Jackets
Peacoats
Chino Shirts
Wallace Beery Shirts
Jackets
Flight Suits
Used Jeans

NEW
Ribbed Tank Tops
Chambray Shirts
Moroccan
Shirts
Tunics
Hats

CAMPING EQUIPMENT
Knap Sacks
Shoulder Bags
Leather Pouches
Ruck Sacks
Tents
Ponchos
Sleeping Bags
Knives
Machettes
Canteens

SUNDAY
Budweiser happy hour
GIRLS POUR THE BEER
25c Beers
OLDIES PLAYED CONTINUOUSLY
3:00 to 7:00
at
The Pub

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second-class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1942. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Wood Outlines UMass Growth

By HUGH OWEN

Dr. Robert C. Wood, President of the three UMass campuses, addressed the first Faculty Senate meeting yesterday, outlining plans for future growth at UMass. He also remarked upon the growth of the faculty.

Wood said that as long as the quantity and quality of student enrollment increased, growth was a must. He admitted that the budget is increasing considerably every year, but in order to advance UMass as a high ranking school these increases were necessary.

Professor Larry Johnson, director of the CCEBS (Committee for the Continuing Education of Black Students) program, reported to the faculty on the progress of the program. He said that students enrolled in CCEBS are doing encouraging work in it. He also noted that not only Blacks are eligible for this program, but American Indians, whites, and Puerto Ricans as well.

Along with Chancellor Oswald Tippo, Prof. Johnson thanked the faculty for their contributions to the CCEBS Program. (See story page 2)

At the conclusion to the meeting it was made known that Micheline Dufau was resigning as secretary of the Faculty Senate. Nominations for a new secretary were heard. Robert Wellman, School of Education, and Professor Max Wortman, School of Management, were nominated for the position. The faculty voted, but at this writing the outcome of that ballot is not known.

Dr. Robert Wood

THE LINE WAS ORDERLY for a while to see JOE last night at the S.U. then people thought that they were selling tickets at the back door. If you stood in line early, you probably got your ticket last.

Discipline Board to Change Internally

By ROBERT SCHEIER

The faculty-student makeup of the University Discipline Board may change in the future under pressure from the Student Senate to make it an all-student board.

The board-currently made up of four student and four faculty members-may rule on any decision made by the General Court of Justice, which is the highest all-student judiciary body on campus. It must rule on any decision involving the suspension or dismissal of a student.

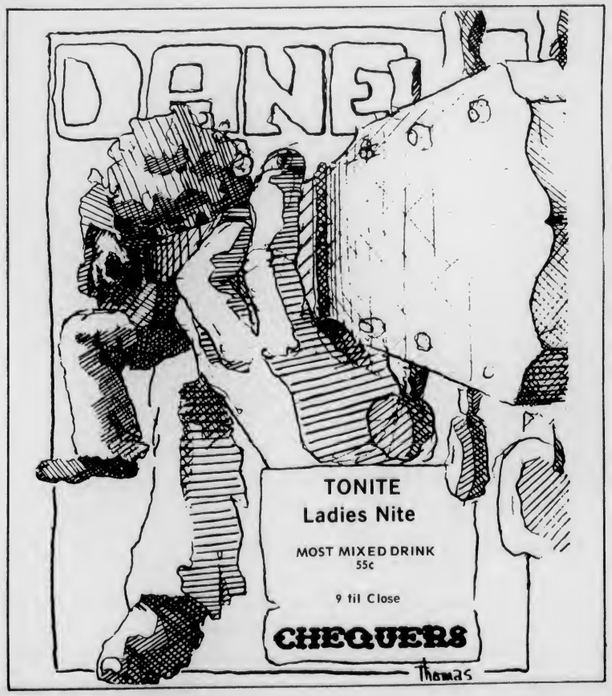
According to Jerry Moriarty, the Chief Justice of the General Court of Justice, "What the people in student government don't like is that students tried by the University Discipline Board are not being tried by their peers. Most of the time, it doesn't make much difference, but the cases where it calls for empathizing with the student or understanding what motivates him, then the board splits between the students and the faculty."

Under the board's regulations, the Dean of Students office may request that a student's case in effect come before the board without going to the General Court of Justice. "Then, the student is simply not tried by his peers." Moriarty added.

Student Senate President Lee Sandwen appointed three new student members-Mark Rosoff, Janet Shephard and Edward Fenwich- to the board at the Wednesday night Student Senate meeting. "The only reason student members were appointed this year was because some cases are coming up involving students being suspended," Moriarty added.

If the board lacked the two faculty and two student member quorum to rule on a student's case, the Dean of Students' office could suspend a student with no interference.

Any changes in the board would have to start in the Student Affairs committee of the Senate and be approved by the Faculty-Senate.



How successful will the Senate be in changing the board? "That depends on how they go about it," Moriarty said. "If they can come up with something good as a substitute, and the faculty-senate can see their viewpoint they stand a good chance."

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Bell's Pizza
Real and good and rich and the price is right.
65 University Dr.
256-8011 — 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

Learn to Drive
AMHERST
AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

In The Nation And The World

Draft Vote Today: Nixon Pressuring

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon put pressure on Congress Thursday to pass military draft legislation, which is scheduled for a Senate vote Friday.

The bill combining a two-year extension of draft authority and a $2.4 billion pay raise for military personnel has been passed by the House but stalled in the Senate. Vietnam war critics and senators opposed to any draft law say they will fight it.

If Congress fails to continue the draft authority, which expired last June 30, Nixon said the result would make the United States "the second strongest nation in the world with all the implications that has."

Nixon said at a news conference that scuttling of the draft legislation would jeopardize international negotiations in which the United States hopes to reduce East-West armaments on a basis of mutual agreement.

At the Capitol, Sen. Gordon Allott, R—Colo., told the Senate that the President has agreed to support separate legislation to boost the pay of servicemen in the lowest grades more than the bill provides.

This dimmed the chances for passage of a motion to table the draft legislation, which Sen. Mike Mansfield, D—Mont., said that he will offer Friday.

A key issue is an amendment sponsored by Mansfield calling for withdrawal of all U.S. troops in Indochina in nine months, provided U.S. prisoners of war are released. Senate House conferees watered this down to call for an end to U.S. military operations in Indochina at the earliest practicable date.

Allott said he will offer an amendment to the military procurement bill, slated to be brought up in the Senate after the draft legislation, to add some $300 million to pay raises for servicemen, in addition to the increases in the draft bill.

Meanwhile, Army officials reported that less than one fifth of their recent "true volunteers" scored high in intelligence aptitude tests, leading them to doubt that the United States can field a quality all volunteer force.

Army officials said it will take more than pay increases to attract men equipped to handle today's complex military gear. These officials distinguish between "true volunteers" and those who volunteer under the threat of being drafted in order to get a good assignment.

The Army said little more than 18 per cent of 9,600 "true volunteers" tested in July scored in the top two sections, ranging from 65 to 100 per cent. This meant that more than 81 per cent landed in the lower two categories, with 36.3 per cent at the bottom with scores ranging from 10 to 30 per cent.

Rockefeller Admits Gunfire Cause of Hostages' Deaths

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP)—A pathologist was quoted as saying Thursday that new autopsies confirmed that nine hostages were shot to death when state forces stormed Attica prison. The nine were among 42 victims of a four-day riot by inmates.

"I think that the hostages who died were caught in a cross fire," Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller told newsmen.

The State Corrections Department has said the rioting convicts had no guns in their possession. Nevertheless, Deputy Atty.-Gen. Robert E. Fischer, heading the state's official investigation of the riot, maintained during the day: "That question is by no means settled."

Fischer also claimed the new autopsies of the hostage victims had not been completed, although the New York Post quoted Dr. Michael Baden, acting chief medical examiner of New York City as saying: "The deaths had been properly reported as shootings."

Baden and Dr. Henry Siegel of Westchester County were called to the prison in an attempt to verify once and for all the cause of the deaths.

During the day, radical lawyer William Kunstler was accused of inflaming the inmate rioters during touch-and-go peace talks prior to the bloody assault on Attica by state forces.

David Anderson, a black leader from Rochester, N.Y., was quoted as saying that Kunstler urged the 1,200 rioters to hold out for total amnesty, and that this resulted in "inflaming the tone of negotiations."

Kunstler denied the allegation. The two men served on a committee of outsiders requested by the rioters as negotiators for the release of 38 hostages-prison guards and other employes. The peace talks foundered on the amnesty issue, and the storming of the prison ensued on Monday.

In Albany, Rockefeller said that by Sunday night "it was already understood that if the negotiations failed, we would have to take action."

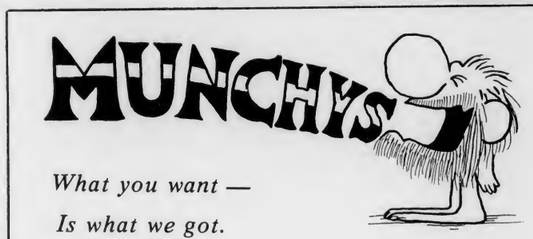
The National Guard had been alerted and Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald given clearance to use force, Rockefeller said as he met with state legislators to discuss the riot.

The four-day riot left the two-score dead-nine of them hostages shot to death when 1,000 policemen and National Guardsmen made the all-out attack Monday on the rebel prisoners with tear gas, shotguns and rifles.

Before the riot, Attica's prison population was 2,254 with 85 per cent black or Puerto Rican.

Originally, the deaths of the hostages were attributed to inmate executioners, who were said to have slashed the victims' throats. But local autopsies disproved that, disclosing that the nine deaths were caused by gunfire.

Then on Wednesday, the issue appeared in doubt again. A local undertaker signed a sworn statement that he was unable to find any visible bullet wound on the body of one of the nine, guard Richard Lewis.



However, Baden and Siegel performed second autopsies.

Regarding the bullet hole on Lewis, Dr. Baden, was quoted: "I did a complete reautopsy on Mr. Lewis and we found it to the satisfaction of everyone."

Oswald conceded the rioters had no guns and therefore the assumption was that the nine hostages were shot by state troopers, perhaps while being used as shields by the rioters.

Student Senate
BOOK LOANS
Now Available
Student Senate Office, Level 1 Campus Center

Room To Move Drop-In Center 5-0400, 5-0401

What you want —
Is what we got.
Hampden & Worcester Commons
Open Daily 10 a.m. - 10 p.m.

Looking For Something To Do?
mixer-concert
dance-listen
CLEAR SKY
is Back!
★ ★ ★
Fri. Sept. 17
HILLS NORTH presents
CLEAR SKY
8 p.m. - 1 a.m. 50¢
★ ★ ★
Sat. Sept. 18
J. Q. ADAMS lower presents
CLEAR SKY
in
BERKSHIRE CLUBROOM
9 p.m. - 1 a.m.
JQA lower Res. - 25¢
Others - 50¢
B.Y.O.B.

don't like it?
RUN
don't care?
DON'T BITCH
Applications for all Senate Seats available in Student Activities Area 1st Level Campus Center
Elections Sept. 30

Edith Hits Louisiana Damage But No Injuries

NEW ORLEANS (AP)-Hurricane Edith ripped across Louisiana Thursday, scattering tornadoes in her path and causing widespread damage but apparently no serious injuries.

The Red Cross reported 15,000 persons rode out the storm in 80 public shelters set up in inland cities and towns between Lake Charles and Morgan City, about 100 miles away.

Her overland passage toward Mississippi slowly drained the violence from her winds, which were up to 100 miles per hour when she raged ashore from the Gulf of Mexico about 20 miles east of Cameron, La.

Twisters struck at numerous points along Louisiana's broad storm lane, including one that did extensive damage to two Baton Rouge parochial schools where classes were in session.

A teacher at St. Thomas More Catholic School in Baton Rouge said seven pupuls were hit by flying glass.

Civil Defense spokesmen said Edith's damage, though widespread, apparently was relatively minor. There were no reports of serious injuries.

Rains ranging up to five inches caused temporary street floods in several Louisiana cities, including New Orleans, and posed the prospect of more serious flood problems later.

The National Weather Service said that 6:00 p.m. EDT the storm's center was located in central Mississippi, about 85 miles southwest of Meridian. Maximum sustained winds were estimated at 55 m.p.h. in squalls near the center.

The service predicted heavy rains in the path of Edith as she moved across central Mississippi into central and north Alabama and north Georgia.

The weather service cautioned that Edith would pose a serious threat of flooding during a 24-hour period over the Appalachian region from western Pennsylvania southward, including eastern Ohio.

Besides those weathering the storm in the public shelters in 10 parishes counties, thousands more who fled inland stayed at hotels and motels or with friends and relatives.

In southwestern Louisiana, families who had spent the night in shelters in cities 20 to 30 miles inland were headed back to their coastal-area homes to inspect the damage.

In most cases, it was less than had been feared.

Civil Defense officials at Cameron, where Hurricane Audrey's high tides drowned 390 people in 1957, said about the only problem was disruption in electric power and telephone service.

My Lai Witness Admits Signing False Statement

FT. MEADE, Md. AP - A prosecution witness admitted Thursday that less than a month after he told Col. Oran Henderson of civilian deaths despite no enemy contact at My Lai, he signed a false statement saying there had been a heavy fire fight at the Vietnamese village.

The admission by Lt. Col. Frederic W. Watke, who commanded a helicopter company supporting the March 16, 1968 assault, came during cross-examination at Henderson's court-martial on charges he failed to properly probe or report allegations of atrocities at My Lai.

Watke told the military court Wednesday that two days after My Lai, he informed Henderson of atrocity reports brought back by pilots and that Henderson was ordered to investigate these allegations.

Watke testified under prosecution questioning and reiterated Thursday to the defense that he had no indication March 16 there had been any engagement with the enemy at My Lai.

Henry B. Rothblatt, Henderson's civilian attorney, then asked the witness whether he signed a report April 10, 1968, asserting "that friendly and hostile forces engaged in a heavy fire fight" during the My Lai assault by Charlie Company.

A. I probably did so.

Q. Which statement was correct?

A. That there was no contested action.

Q. Then you made a deliberate false statement.

A. Yes sir.

One of the more important awards at the Miss America contest was the "Neat as a Pin" award. Here the recipients, Selma Goodbody and Patty Paterson, both of Sioux Falls Montana, are shown rejoicing at news.

Coalition Forming To Help Prisoners At Center

A coalition is forming to meet the needs of approximately 50 teenagers held for a variety of reasons at the Westfield Detention Center. This fathering of bodies is in response to a plea made by Larry Dye of the detention center at the Attica teach-in. Dye briefly described the need as one where kids are locked up with literally nothing to do.

A meeting for the establishment of this group will be held in room 917 of the Campus Center on Monday at 7:30 P.M. This will be a general organizational and rap session on what can be done and with what resources. Staff members and summer volunteers from the detention center are expected to attend to give some practical advice to this newly forming group.

After the teach-in on Attica, Dye described to a small group of students the general atmosphere of the Westfield Detention Center and what changes it is going through. He said that, "in the past correction officials only dealt with a kid's reactions to a problem and never with the problem itself." For a kid in trouble this usually meant being locked up for things as minor as running away or as major as being busted for drugs.

Students were also told of the type of volunteer work that would be desirable to help the kids at the detention center. Any type of program will more or less reflect the interest of the kids at the Westfield Detention Center.

Anyone interested in working at the detention center should keep this in mind. Most of the kids will want to participate in activities that will take them ouside the detention center. Of course there will be a need for programs inside the building while it was also stressed that some kids will want to continue their education and will want tutoring.

The critical factor in this developing program will be financial support. Dye stated that the Westfield Detention Center is a state institution with very little in the way of resources. He said that "for educational supplies the detention center is allocated only $100 for the entire year." So it appears that this newly forming group will have for its first priority a search for funds to support any volunteer activity by students in the detention center.

Students are urged to attend the meeting to be held Monday to get a program going at the detention center. However, they should keep in mind the nature of the program and the kids there. They are often mature beyond their age and quick to see through any pretense or false face put forth by a volunteer. If a student wants to work with juvenile delinquents he "had better be firm in his commitment and willing to work seriously at it," according to the committee.

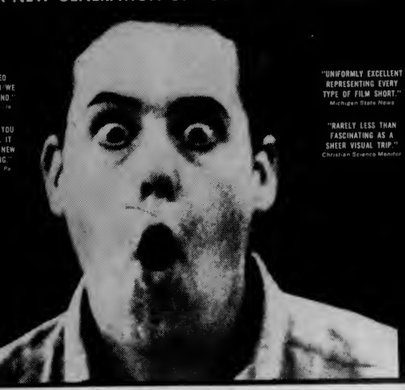
Desperado Killed by Feds

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP)-A desperado who held a small-town banker, his wife and two teenage daughters hostage for two days was shot and killed Thursday as FBI agents stormed a motel room here. Two FBI agents were wounded, one critically.

Dead is Marvin Grisson of McDougal, Ark., who identified himself to officers before he died in a hospital.

The FBI said he was wanted in a similar incident May 23 at Ash Flat, Ark. A bank there was forced to give up $25,000.

Police here are searching for a second man.



T. R. Smith, president of the Concord Banking Co., of Concord, Ga., and the members of his family were taken at gunpoint Tuesday night. They were held until they were freed by the FBI assault on an abductor shortly before dawn Thursday.

Officers said Smith was released by his abductor temporarily to return to Concord Wednesday because he was supposed to meet auditors there. Normally the bank is closed Wednesday and a time lock on the vault is set to open it Thursday morning.

The auditors got the story of the abduction from him, and the FBI was notified.

Blue Jeans
$4.95
WAREHOUSE
201 N. Pleasant

"INTRIGUING... SEE THE WORKS OF THE NEW HITCHCOCKS, GODARDS AND FELLINIS!"
THE BOSTON GLOBE
"BEST OF GENESIS"
A FRESH COLLECTION OF CINEMATIC STYLES BY A NEW GENERATION OF YOUNG FILM MAKERS

"A WELL-BALANCED ASSORTMENT WHICH WE STRONGLY RECOMMEND." San Francisco Chronicle
"I STRONGLY URGE YOU TO SEE GENESIS 1. IT IS THE BIRTH OF A NEW ERA IN FILM MAKING." The Globe-Pittsburgh, Pa.
"UNIFORMLY EXCELLENT REPRESENTING EVERY TYPE OF FILM SHORT." Michigan State News
"RARELY LESS THAN FASCINATING AS A SHEER VISUAL TRIP." Christian Science Monitor

FRIDAY and SUNDAY, Sept. 17 and 19
7:30 and 10:00 p.m.
HAMPDEN COMMONS, SOUTHWEST
Admission $1.25 Students.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti
ADVERTISING EDITOR — John E. Mullen

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
NEWS STAFF — Steve Fine, Jerry Lazar, Bill Manburg
SPORTS — Bob Medeiros
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Gib Fullerton
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

A Piece Of The Action

The subject of voting has been discussed frequently in these pages both with respect to registration and voting choices. So what we are about to say will present nothing totally new to anyone, we hope, but will perhaps serve to reinforce some points which could use emphasis.

The primary reason for the especially strong interest in the student voter in the Amherst area is simple. Almost nowhere else in the country does a similar relationship of student population to townspeople exist and therefore, the actions of students in this area will be looked upon nationally as a good indication of student behavior on the whole.

To emphasize this point, one national television network has already made arrangements for a visit here in the near future to start work on a piece concerning voter registration in Amherst.

For these reasons, it is imperative that students in the Five College area register to vote. Plans are now being drawn up for a voter registration drive which will induce the Amherst Board of Registrars to send a mobile registration unit to campus, something they have refused to do so far. The only way this can be accomplished is for students to demonstrate their desire to register in large enough numbers so that the established registration points will not be able to handle the increase.

Further investigation is being carried on by Attorney Howland, among others, to see if the process of registering can be simplified as much as possible, thus reducing the problems for students as well as expediting the entire procedure. All of this is being done in light of Attorney General Quinn's recent ruling that students can not be required to provide any information or be under any burden of proof which is not expected from other voters.

The registration drive will be getting under way very shortly and will need the full support of the Five College population. Students, it seems, are continually damning a bureaucratic system of government which provides them with so small a piece of the action. The Attorney General has, in a sense, thrown the system right into our lap with strong local, as well as national, implications, riding with the outcome. We had better make the best of this opportunity for it may not come our way again.

HENRY, I'M GOING TO ANNOUNCE THAT I WILL BE THE ONLY CANDIDATE IN THE NEXT ELECTION.

Jim Moran

Like Human Beings

Well, no sooner had the last body been dragged out of Attica State Prison than the politically outraged began to make propaganda out of it, and the establishment began to make excuses for it.

With what appeared to be little regard for the actual lives of the men involved, these pigs began to make a farce out of the deaths.

There were 42 dead men, not 33 or 38 or 9, but 42. Is that so goddamn hard to comprehend? These were people, not brothers, or animals, or whatever form of bullshit that a group is pushing at the moment, but 42 individual lives.

Last weekend one of the prisoners summed it up perfectly, "All we want is to be treated like human beings."

That's not such an outrageous request. But unfortunately even in death somebody will use them as "A product

That's not such an outrageou

That's not such an outrageous request. But unfortunately even in death somebody will use them as "a product of Capitalism," or "the result of Communism." But never as the pawns of some groups political ambition.

For too long our prisons have been run with little more than medieval efficiency. A man who has committed a crime is taken and locked away from society. He is denied the very necessities he needs to get back into society. He is denied the help that might help him back. He is denied his family. And when he is finally released, he is denied his dignity.

And what of the killings, the murders to be exact. How do you justify the loosening of a gang of police on a group of caged men, criminals, but still men?

What did the state officials think these men were going to do, scale the walls? Couldn't they have starved them into submission? Perhaps they were afraid of something more.

One of the hardest things to accept is the fact that so-called civilized and rational men, who claim to be on the side of justice, are making excuses, have denied even the manner of death, and when discovered are making excuses.

Was Rocky and his raccoons so terrified by a group of locked up men? Did he really seriously consider the possibility of them leaving the nation? Was he so thoroughly frightened by the outrage that in a panic he even ordered the killing of his own men? And whoever told those men that political prisoners must stand on the same ground and occupy the same circle as the men who ordered the 42 to their deaths.

Rockefeller is a pig, and so is Kuntsler.

After The Pill Pact

By RUSSELL BAKER

WASHINGTON—Kenneth Clark, the psychologist, said the other day that it might save the world from a big explosion if its most powerful leaders had to make a sort of peace pill, which would be designed to keep the natural aggressive instincts of these hyper-aggressive men subdued by chemical action.

This is a very bad idea. If we assume that the leaders have all agreed to take the peace pill regularly, we can see what evil consequences will almost inevitably result.

First, the agreement—"pill pact," the papers will call it—will have to provide for inspection. If President Nixon, Leonid Brezhnev and Mao Tse-tung all agree to take one pill a day, each leader will insist on firm assurances that the other two are going through with the agreement.

LET US SAY that President Nixon has to take his pill today at noon. Does anybody think that Brezhnev and Mao are going to be satisfied when the phone rings at 12:01 p.m. and a voice says, "gentlemen, this is President Nixon, and I am calling to inform you that, in accordance with the treaty, I have just taken my 12 o'clock pill?"

Far from likely. Brezhnev will naturally suspect that President Nixon has not taken anything at all, that he may in fact have drunk two cups of coffee to increase his nervousness.

"Aren't you going to take your peace pill, Leonid?" Mrs. Brezhnev will ask.

"Why should I risk feeling unaggressive when that Washington imperialist may at this very moment be turning himself into an aggressive nervous wreck with a third cup of coffee?" the leader of all Russia will probably reply.

IN ANY CASE, inspection will be necessary from the outset. Both Moscow and Peking will have inspectors at the White House to make sure that President Nixon takes his pill, and the United States will also have inspectors watching Brezhnev and Mao.

After awhile President Nixon's inspectors—let us call them Sergei and Wong—will probably become fairly friendly with him. You can't have two men watching you pop pills every day of your life without eventually developing some sense of camaraderie with them.

At first, of course, everything will be very official. Before President Nixon takes his pill, he will hand it to Wong, so that Wong can see that it is a genuine peace pill and not just an aspirin tablet. Then Wong will pass it on to Sergei, who will inspect it and hand it to the President.

After awhile, light banter will inevitably begin to enliven these dull official pill-takings. "Well, Wong," the President may say, "How do you like American food?" Prompting Wong to reply, "Fine, Mr. President, except that you don't get hungry again for several hours after you eat it?"

"READ ANY GOOD books lately?" the President will ask Sergei. "I am rereading 'Heroes of the Red Army,' Mr. President." And the President will reply, "Personally, I prefer Red Smith."

Sergei's report to Moscow will suggest that the Chinese and Americans may be working in concert to sneak Nixon and Mao off the peace pill. This is suggested by the fact that President Nixon has been giving Wong great straight lines for his jokes while, at the same time, disparaging Soviet literature.

Brezhnev will have to be on his guard now so as not to be caught zonked out on a peace pill and smiling happily if the Chinese and Americans try to clobber the Soviet Union one afternoon immediately after pill time.

THE SITUATION, in short, is becoming fatal to mankind. President Nixon innocently makes it catastrophic one day by telling Sergei and Wong that the peace pill has been causing him gastric distress due to stomach-gas formation lately.

If it is all right with Wong and Sergei, he said, he would hereafter like to take his pill ground up in a glass of Orange Juice.

"Orange Juice!" the commander of the Red Army replies to Brezhnev. "We've never tested the pill in Orange Juice. But we know that it doesn't work if ground up in Borscht."

"YOU MAY TAKE the pill in Orange Juice," Sergei tells the President next day, "on the understanding that the first secretary will henceforth take his pill in Borscht."

Next night the C.I.A. notifies the White House that Leonid Brezhnev has just wrestled a bear in the Kremlin gymnasium and pinned it in two consecutive falls. At midnight the President goes on the Johnny Carson Show to announce that the United States is unilaterally abrogating the treaty.

And in faraway Peking Chairman Mao is writing a thought he has had during the soup course at dinner. "Psychology is worth more to the leader of people than a carnation in his lapel, but a psychologist is like the barrel of a gun."

(Reprinted from the Boston Herald-Traveler-9/16)

T. David Barrett

What Seems To Be

It's Heaven's eyes through which we seek to 'scape this earthy Hell.
A murky film doth 'bliterate all sense of Purgatory's peek.
Bedevilment's upon us now, enclosing deeds
'round 'bout a fence.
Steal a glance with closured eyes as ears speak words of greed.
Shudder 'neath the burd' of life, for it is Hell through all your years.
Hope that later all there is is Heaven's willy smell.
Reek destruction, and watch our days
grown chilly.
Fool yourself, and play the game
that's played each hour 'pon hour.
Begod the red-eyed fiend of Love,
when Hate's her maiden name.
Stumble o'er the trickless fate, it's sin to stand above.
Traipse along the shore o' Heaven;
not 'til you die you'll swim.
The world's a bowl becatching rain,
the dead they out are driven.
Besplashing o'er the edge of Hell,
a Godly dish they gain.
The ecstasy they once bethought,
they now, in joy, bedwell.

Listless

Lilly-pads, so listless green, floating by on listless streams...
To listless ponds of stagnant dreams.
where shadows fall from evergreens.

Beds of pine upon the shore lie listlessly unlike before...
Listless, on the forest floor,
laughing in the breeze no more.

Listless, splashing drops of rain pelt each leaf with drenching pain...
Lilly-white's own lilly-green is bull-frog's throne upon the stream.

Nemesis to Huck Finn's line;
brook-trout's underwater Zion...
Eden, in a sea sublime,
where life is listless all the time.

Like a colony of plants-
listless, floating, flower stamps...
Answers to a thousand can'ts
to a thousand sailor-ants.

Lilly-pads, on listless streams;
Listless ponds, and evergreens...
Listless rain, and listless trees;
Life's a lovely, listless dream.

Letters To The Editor

Wheelings, Dealings And Idiosyncracies

To the Editor:

Well, that first critical week is over and most of the class of '75 is pretty well straight on most of the basic runnings of this institution. Now all there is to learn are the ways, wheelings, dealings, and idiosyncrasies of the not so generalized University and society (with a little schooling thrown in). But as I said, the big scares, worries, and confusions are over for most.

However, reflecting back it seems to me that few were conscious of the freshman position (other than freshman) in that "more than hot hell." Most upperclassmen, strangely feeling no empathy, treated questions in an offhand manner feeling none of the unsurity of those asking them. CASIAC tried to get themselves through to anyone who might need them, but being placed in that obscure room next to that unnecessary ID line just didn't make the grade. And that circus on Add-Drop day was a critics delight, not to mention what it was for a lot of us. Thus for the newcomer here all this bureaucratic running around had a rather demoralizing effect.

But my main objection is an irrational one I'm afraid. It has to do with seeing one's name on a computer card, and waiting in long lines like unthinking sheep, and being asked what your number is before your name (The argument, of course, is that in order to accommodate such multitudes, such treatments are a necessity).

But again returning to the Freshman's first week situation, consider how he (she) must feel towards this mountain of impersonalization. In that confused position the only thing to do (and the same is true for all) is to blindly put faith in, follow, and accept this dehumanization as the only way out of the insecurity brought about by the confusion, thus more deeply ingraining us with the acceptance of a computerized and impersonal society. And there is no alternative I am aware of other than leaving.

Thus I can see this treatment of getting into a higher education (as well as many aspects of day to day living) as just another step downwards away from the true humanistic potentials in all of us.

Tom Fisher

Society's Penalty

To the Editor:

The American society sets a standard which people must at least meet to be allowed to be "free" as we now know it. Others, whether incapable of attaining this standard or unwilling to adhere to the standards must pay society's penalty -institutionalization. This situation exists only ten miles from the UMass campus, under the guise of Belchertown State School.

Belchertown State School is an institution for the mentally retarded. These people, whose ages range approximately between four and ninety, ask us, outsiders as we are known to them, to help them learn some of the skills they need to be dismissed from the school. A group of volunteer people, from the five college area, known as the Boltwood program try to help the residents gain some of the required skills or at least bring a little happiness to their situations by working in programs organized by ten Boltwood program co-ordinators.

These programs require people to make them a possibility. As trite as it may sound, we need you to help us help them. Anyone interested or that has any questions is invited to discuss it with a Boltwood coordinator Monday night, September 20, at 7:30.

MEETING PLACES

Orchard Hill & Central — Emily Dickinson lounge
Southwest — 19th floor lounge of John Adams
Northeast & Quad — Thatcher Basement

If for some reason you can't make the meeting but are interested or have a question, please call Willy, O'Riley or P.H. at 256-6815.

Ed Koppelman

White Chariot

To the editor:

I am writing to correct the errors in the letters of Messrs. Keoughan and Dewsnap ("ACTION Gets The Lance") which appeared September 16. No decision has been made to deny participation in the ACTION program to Sociology majors. In fact, five openings in the program (rather than the two originally allocated to the Sociology Department) are now filled by Sociology majors: Judith Gringorten who is at Belchertown State Hospital, Bruce Shefshick with a Worcester youth center, Bob Doane with the Urban League in Springfield, and Michael Gaffney and Claudia Conte with Legal Services in Holyoke. These students are participating in a joint Social and Behavioral Sciences Seminar planned with the participation of the Sociology staff. Members of the the Sociology faculty are now working with these ACTION appointees in setting up independent study and special problems courses paralleling their agency activities. All of this information was easily available to Messrs. Keoughan and Dewsnap through Vice-Chancellor Woodbury's office, Associate Dean Shaw of CASIAC, or from me. Messrs. Keoughan and Dewsnap obviously know at least my office location and phone number since they published these in their original letter in an attempt to get a large number of students and faculty to question me, I presume, as to how I get a "white, theoretical chariot" on to the fourth floor of an "ivory tower."

T. O. Wilkinson
Chairman
Dept. of Sociology

Honest Debate

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the inaccuracies and misunderstandings in regard to the ACTION program evident in the letter from Keougham and Dewsnap in Wednesday's Collegian.

There has been confusion and uncertainty in recent days concerning the participation of the Sociology Department. But the Sociology Department is participating in the program; Sociology majors are among the 50 volunteers; Professor Wilkinson and other members of the Department have devoted hundreds of hours over the last five weeks trying to help make a quickly conceived program work more effectively; sociologists on the faculty, as well as other social and behavioral scientists, have spent considerable effort on a special course that would serve the academic needs of students in the program.

Honest differences have existed and do exist over the appropriate integration of academic and field experiences in a program like ACTION. Few of us believe that we have reached anything approaching an ideal arrangement. But we do hope that the ACTION experiment will prove a base to explore more effective fusions of academic and field experience in the future.

This is the time for honest debate over more effective undergraduate programs and not for misinformed swipes.

Robert L. Woodbury
Associate Provost for Special Programs

As in previous years the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letter will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

Editorial Points

Judging by the line of people to buy tickets for "JOE" last night, the semester really hasn't started yet.

* * * *

One might think that the Book Store is subsidized by student funds the way it gets assignments cancelled because books aren't in.

* * * *

Football may be a great game but a seven hour trip to see the Maine Black Bears play somehow diminishes one's UMass spirit.

* * * *

Was Roberta Flack really on campus yesterday?

* * * *

One student recently reported that the only thing "new" about the Food Services is that they now serve hamburgers for supper.

* * * *

Today marks the return of the ravaging writer of irrelevant rhymes, the rambling Redman himself, Metawampe. If he seems a bit wasted after a year's hibernation, he probably is. So may be the space he takes up.

* * * *

This place is so big that people don't graduate, you just don't see them around anymore.

* * * *

One girl recently complained that she was not allowed to bring her pocketbook with her into the book store. The way the book store runs things, we're not sure whether they're afraid of smuggling books out or in.

* * * *

Booklists usually have more bark than bite.

* * * *

Collegian staffers are like old soldiers. They never die, they just seem to fade away.

* * * *

Van Meter may have great parties, but they've got a lousy sense of humor.

Van Meter Swings

To the Editor:

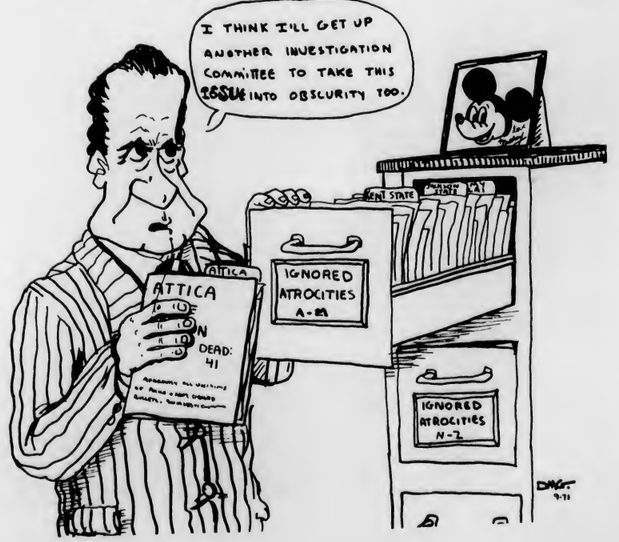
How could you possibly say that our party at Van Meter Saturday was an all-girls' gathering? Weren't you there? Or were you too lazy to get up the hill? Over five hundred people, mostly males, were not. In fact, we girls were so outnumbered that an urgent call for reinforcements went throughout the dorm. A great time was had by all, including those who entertained privately! ("The Nunnery" has been liberated far longer than you think!)

If this is a "responsible press," how can you print such a lie? I suggest a thorough reviewing of your editorial department, since it seems that at least one of its members is still unable to distinguish between the sexes.

VAN METER SWINGS!

Susan Eigen

Good And Bad



To the Editor:

You will be pleased to learn of the wide readership, which the Collegian has. Following your story on the Ombudsman Tuesday I had a steady stream of students seeking my services in connection with problems which might seem minor to some people but were not to them; and many of these, happily, I was able to resolve.

In passing, I would like to call your attention to a couple of errors in the writing of the story of the football team. Early in the story the writer used "beseeched" instead of "besieged" and toward the end he used "lied" instead of "lay." I am liberal in my views on grammar and usage, holding that correctness is a matter of convention and not of rules. But too great a departure from correctness is likely to shock and antagonize the reader, and discredit, in his mind, both the writer and the publication. It would seem that, if possible, the Collegian should have somebody give a competent and careful reading to the copy before it goes to the printer.

I continue to like the general content of the Collegian.

Ellsworth Barnard

COLLEGE RING
ORDER YOUR Jostens
date :Sept. 20-24 time: 9 a.m.-4 p.m. place : University Store-Campus Center

Room To Move

Go Ask Alice

Hidden in that obscure corner across the hall from the human post office (as opposed to the machine post office) in the old Student Union, you will discover Room To Move, the campus drug and otherwise drop-in center. Our summer was spent in the cool airy basement of Wheeler House, where we attempted to serve the needs of UMass.'s sparse summer population, so moving back to our original home in the Student Union (where it's neither cool nor airy, though basement-like) was somewhat of a drag. But we cleaned, fumigated, painted everything a happy yellow, and now are open on a 24 hour basis to be people to people.

Our most important function has been and still is crisis intervention. Our staff is familiar with psychedelic trauma and we have had the training enabling us to "talk down" or "work through" unpleasant psychedelic experiences with persons who call Room To Move for this reason. We are also in the process of gaining and developing our skills in dealing with heroin, and some of the other body drugs.

In the Center there are many informative and educational articles available covering many areas involving drugs; also, workshops are available to any group, dorm, fraternity or sorority that may be interested in learning about a particular aspect of drugs and/or drug counselling.

Room To Move can provide referrals to appropriate people or agencies if a student requires such information. Our effective, albeit slow-moving drug analysis service, which was so popular last year, is not yet put together for this fall, though we hope to have it in operation shortly.

There is one thing that is giving us some concern--our "night entrance." The Student Union is closed at night and we have one door that is left open for us, but we have the feeling that it's pretty hard to find unless you already know where it it. As you face the Student Union with Machmer Hall behind you, our secret night entrance is over to the left. It is the door at the bottom of Alice in Wonderland. Well we hope the secret entrance is no longer secret--bring a teacup.

Room To Move exists for people. Whether or not you have a problem, and if you have a problem--no matter what it is--please feel free to drop in: To visit, talk, read, play. We're people, too!

I GOT ROOM TO MOVE-If the four walls of your room start to close in on you then get on down to Room To Move. Located across from the SU post office, Room To Move is open 24 hours a day. Besides offering a drug analysis service, Room To Move staff can help out if the acids get you too uptight. It's a People's Place. (Photo by Gib Fullerton)

Berrigan Tapes Today

A coffee hour sponsored by the United Christian Foundation today at 1:30 will feature the playing of a tape recorded by Father Daniel Berrigan while he was underground to avoid arrest for burning draft files in Catonsville, Maryland. The coffee hour will be held in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

Father Berrigan, who has also been accused by the FBI of being involved in a plot to blow up Washington's power system and to kidnap Henry Kissinger, has been an outspoken opponent to the war against Vietnam and to the draft. As part of the Catonsville Nine, he napalmed draft files to protest the burning of children in Vietnam.

Berrigan's arrest order was issued after he had agreed to deliver a sermon at Smith College about a year ago. Unable to keep the engagement out of fear of capture, he made a tape of his sermon instead. In it, he discusses the need for civil disobedience as demanded by Christian theology and the example of Jesus Christ. He also discusses his feelings about being forced to go underground, and the irony of being a hunted man because he protested the taking of human life.

The tape, which criticizes society's callousness toward human life, has added importance in view of the recent massacre at Attica State Prison in New York, claim UCF representatives. Berrigan's thoughts point out possible responses to the continuing war against Vietnam and to Attica, they said.

A discussion will follow the playing of the tape. The tape itself will be replayed at 2:45 for those who were unable to come for the beginning of the coffee hour. Free coffee will be served.

Bouffard New Att'y Gen'l

In an attempt to make the student court system on campus a more viable and accessible organization, the Student Senate has created a new position of Attorney General.

The position was filled at this week's meeting of the Senate by appointment of Henry Bouffard, past senator from Dickinson.

The duties of the Attorney General are to advise and assist any students concerned with the student judicial process by providing counsel on preparing and arguing cases in the student judiciaries and doing, as Bouffard stated, "whatever, in my judgement, is necessary to guarantee the rights of students under the Student Government Associations Constitution.

Bouffard commented that he plans to make his office one of the busiest on campus. He stressed that he will actively pursue prosecution of violations of students rights. He said that he planned especially on aiming his efforts towards persons who are defacing property on campus, thereby directly raising the cost of attending this University.

At the moment the Attorney General has two assistants working with him and feels that a need exists for at least twenty more students who would be willing to prosecute cases. He is setting up training sessions with several law professors and with General Council Richard Howland to train any student interested in helping. Bouffard urges all interested students to fill out an application at the Student Senate office in the Campus Center.

Education Through Involvement

NES Tutoring Needs Volunteers

to Tutor in Springfield

If interested in tutoring in economically deprived areas of Springfield attend either of these meetings.

this Sunday Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Elementary Age Tutors in Mahar Auditorium

Secondary Age Tutors in SBA 120

RELIGIONS SERVICES AT HILLEL

Every Friday Evening at 7:30 p.m. (except vacation periods) and every Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m. in the Hillel Room.

ROSH HASHANAH

Sunday, September 19th at 7:00 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium

Monday, September 20th at 9:30 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium

Tuesday, September 21st at 9:30 a.m.
Campus Center Auditorium

(This Saturday nights' Coffee House and Slichot Service has been cancelled).

FOR RENT
SMALL REFRIGERATORS
PORTABLE TV'S
at
Taylor Rental Center
Pleasant St.
Northampton
584-5072

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

U. Mass. Chess Club

announces its

Fall 30-30 Chess Tourney !

Open to all U. Mass. Students and Faculty.
No Entry Fee!!!
When and Where: Sat. Sept. 18, 9:00 a.m.
Rm. 162 Campus Center
for more information call 6-8624 evenings

BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
Everyone's Favorite Jeweler
with SPECIALS like
4 piece Stainless Hostess Set
ONLY $4.95
3 piece Silver Plated Sugar, Creamer & Tray
ONLY $10.99
31 South Pleasant St. Amherst

No POW'S Released Till Thieu Removed

PARIS (AP)- The seven-point Communist peace plan is an inseparable package, North Vietnam announced Thursday, indicating that no American prisoner of war will be released until President Nguyen Van Thieu is removed from office in Saigon.

Nguyen Thanh Le, the Hanoi spokesman here, told reporters the seven points make up "a single package. Agreement on the whole of this is indispensable."

The statement, a sharp hardening in the Communist position since the seven points were presented July 1, repudiated Sen. George S. McGovern, a Democratic presidential aspirant, who reported last Sunday that Hanoi's chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, told him points of the package could be put into effect separately.

Le made his statement at the end of an acrimonious four-hour session of the Paris peace talks. Throughout the session, the new American negotiator, William J. Porter, had tried in vain to get confirmation of McGovern's report on his private talk with Thuy.

Thuy spurned all of Porter's questions.

It was only in the briefing session at the end of the meeting that Le spelled out the Communist position.

Porter apparently had overlooked a hint that Thuy dropped during the meeting. Fending off Porter's questioning, Thuy asked a question in return: "Is the U.S. government prepared to announce a date for its total withdrawal, and is it prepared to announce simultaneously with this withdrawal the cessation of all its aid to the Thieu administration."

The word "simultaneously" clearly indicated that the North Vietnamese position had changed.

The new position represents a complete reversal of the position expressed by North Vietnamese Politburo member Le Duc Tho in an interview with the New York Times on July 6: "To show our good will, we can settle point one of the seven points separately."

The first of the seven points demanded an American commitment to total and unconditional withdrawal of all military personnel in South Vietnam by the end of this year. In return, Hanoi and the Viet Cong would simultaneously release their American prisoners, while the Saigon government would release its own North Vietnamese and Viet Cong prisoners.

Point two called for the establishment of a government of "national concord" in Saigon, excluding Thieu from any role. McGovern told a news conference Sunday that Thuy confirmed to him in hours of private talks that Hanoi was prepared to go ahead with implementation of point one prior to any agreement on point two or the other five points concerning South Vietnam's political future.

UPI Expelled From Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)- President Salvador Allende announced Wednesday night he would close the United Press International office in Chile.

He said the wire service had transmitted information he described as damaging to Chile abroad.

The Marxist president mentioned specifically a story that appeared in a Santiago newspaper Wednesday morning.

It quoted the Bogota newspaper El Tiempo as saying Colombian intelligence agents were investigating the possibility that a Chilean government plane reported missing last month over the Colombia-Ecudador border was carrying "arms and subversive texts" destined for Colombian Communist subversives.

In New York, the UPI said it would have no comment.

Daughter of Joseph Stalin, Svetlana, kisses her baby, Giga, yesterday as she was attending church services in Milwaukee. The four-month-old child was baptized at the Greek Orthodox Church following the formal services. Svetlana is married to William Wesley Peters.

China - US Phone Open

NEW YORK (AP)-The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said Wednesday that Communist China has agreed to restore direct radio-telephone communication between Oakland, Calif., and Shanghai.

The Chinese suspended the service in 1968.

At present, calls from the United States to China are routed through Tokyo.

If You Dig Music Read On!

Special Offer

8-TRACK TAPES
$2.50 - $3.00
anything from acid rock to country western
Tremendous Savings
8-TRACK PLAYER
PORTABLE AC-DC
under $30.00

Plus much more - TVs, Radios, the works.

FOR INFO CALL 546-5648 and ask for Paul Brown 204 B

Saturday Night

BLACK MAGIC

featuring

NATALIE COLE

9:30 - 12:30 DANCING 50¢ COVER

at

The English Pub

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE AUTOS

For Sale, 67 VW Bus. Excellent cond., no rust, 49,000 mi. $900. 253-7438. tf9/10-15

65 VW Beetle. Excellent condition. 256-8430. tf9-17

1970 Camaro, must be seen. Call 584-2273 (m. f. aft. 6). tf9 17

1969 Triumph Tiger 650 cc, excellent condition. 256-8687. tf9 17

67 Mustang, A.T., V8, good condition, $900. Call Jeff 256-6938. tf 9-17

1962 VW, fair body, rebuilt engine, gas heater, sun-roof, excellent tires. $250 or best offer. Call 665-4662 after 5 p.m. or keep trying. tf9-20

'68 Fiat, red, 850 Spyder, 33,000 miles, good cond. Call 549-1464 evenings after 6 p.m. tf9-23

1969 Opel, 56,000 original mi. Good condition. Best offer. Ray 549-6346. Also 125 cc Suzyki 2000 mi., 1971. tf9-20

1961 Falcon, rebuilt trans., new snows and batt. Great buy, $100. Call Crabtree and leave mess. for Grant, Rm. 206. tf9-23

Going to Europe, must sacrifice 1970 Maverick, ex. cond. 14,000 miles. Phone Ware, 1-477-6904. tf9-21

1968 MGBGT, very good condition, $900. Priced below book $1650. Greenfield 773-7885. 9-15, 24, 29

1968 Ford Cortina, low mileage, good condition, 2 studded snow tires, $300. Call 586-2634. tf9x09

1968 Ford Galaxie, 40,000 miles, yellow with black interior. Stereo. Immaculate. Call 256-6097. tf9-17

1966 Red Porsche 912, AM-FM-SW Radial Fir Tires $2200. Call 253-9689 or 545-2330 tf9-20

65 Chev. Corvair Monza Conv., 4 speed, $300. Call 549-1069 betw. 5-6. tf9-21

'49 British Taxi Cab, rst. hand drive, runs well, new tires, brakes, jump seats, body beginning to rust. No dents. Call 256-6068. tf9-17

1964 Ford Galaxie, fair condition, $100. Call Richard 549-1470. tf9-22

Going overseas, must sell quickly 69 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $150. 2 month old $150 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $30. Call 253-5090. tf9-24

Dodge Van 69 Custom, auto. trans. Very good cond. Must sell. Best offer. Box 447, Amherst. tf9-17

69 Triumph GT6+, excel. cond. $1700. Call Dinne 413-533-6381. tf9-22

68 Fiat Conv. 28,000 miles, excellent condition. Call 253-9224. Ask for Betsy or 253-5088. Call early, $1000 firm. tf9-20

'66 Ford Mustang, 6 cyl., good running condition $400. Call John Hill 256-8459. tf9-20

1964 Chevy II, good running condition, $100. 256-8805 tf9-17

VW Van for sale 1962, excellent running condition, $400. Call Charlie at 546-8255. tf9-17

1964 GTO red conv. Best offer over $300. 527-3954 tf9-24

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. 8ft. dbl. queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or jumbo $49.95. Insured. dolly., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst. tf9-23

1971 Gold Honda CL 350, exc. cond., $700.00 or best offer. Call Jack at 6-7636 tf9-17

1 yr. old Sears Coldspot refrigerator with freezer and ice cube trays, approx. 9 cu. ft. Price negotiable. Call 253-7464 after 5. tf9 17

Sewing machine, now $309. Morse Eisnas, never used, button holer, darner, etc., now $150. Call Amherst Motel, Tina Rm. 16. tf9-17

Reno Duval Silver Flute, new pads, good condition $85. Call 527-6479. tf9-17

Portable Gen. Elec. stereo and stand. Good condition. Best offer. Call 549-6647 after 5:00 p.m. tf9-17

Ski Boots for sale - Koflach White Star, 9½ M, 2 yrs. old. Call 546-4184. tf9-20

1969 Austin Amer., 4 speed, 28,000 mi., 2nd cond., AM-FM, new tires, best off. Call 546-6815. tf9-22

Includes case and strap, exc. cond. Best offer. Contact Bob 549-1190. tf9-12

Must sell, used bread van, excellent condition, $750. Call 256-6863, ask for Gary. tf9-20

61 Austin Healy, "Bugeye" Sprite runs but needs work. Asking $150. Call 256-8459. Ask for Pete after 6:00 p.m. tf9-17

1964 Chevy Impala 3 speed Hurst shifter with no. 8 cyl. 283 engine. Recent paint job. Dependable. $150 or best offer. Call Lynn 546-6118. tf9-20

8m. Corona electric portable typewriter used 3 wks. $145 new will sell for $120 or best offer. Sandy 5-1535 days, 549-6276 eves. tf9-22

Good stereo 40W amp, Garrard table, spkrs, asking $150. Call 256-8459 Steve. tf9-20

"The Finest" — quick Burgers & Shakes. Eat here — take it out. Open daily 10 a.m. - midnight. Hampden Commons. tf9-17

Marnavox portable stereo, 2 12-inch detaching speakers $65. 863-9170. tf9-17

'69 Volkswagen bus, 23,000 miles, sun-roof, AM-FM radio built-in bed, perfect condition 665-4163. tf9-21

New medium size Presto electric broiler-oven, perfect for cookins, just about anything in your room, very low at $15 Call 256-8432. tf9-20

1967 Fiat 850 spe., exc. mech. cond. 35-40 mpg $650. Call 1-568-9067 after 6 p.m. tf9-22

Gibson hummingbird acoustic guitar with padded case. Brand new and cheap. 665-4163. tf9-21

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommates wanted — 2 girls need 2 more girls to share apt., $50 a month, 3½ min. from Campus. Call 665-3262. tf9-24

One girl or couple only. If you need a place to stay until Oct. 31. Call aft. 6, m-f 584-2273. tf9 17

Commuter for 2. Female house partner, 24-up wanted. Lo rent but very rough. Working male. Con. Ed. student 253-7277 after 5 or Box 792. tf9-17

Mod. Min. Ranze Apt. in So. Amherst, easy going roommates. Call Bob 253-2922. tf9-18

Mod. Min. Ranze apt. in So. Amherst, easy going roommates. Call Bob 253-2922. tf9-17

Universal footwear at the Shoe-Bin (formerly Shoe-in) "in the Alley" behind Aubuchon's. 9-17

MUSICIAN WANTED

Singer needed to front versatile group (rock, ballads, old standards.) Must be experienced. Call Steve 256-8884. tf9-17

HELP WANTED

Any UMass student with Class II drivers license to drive Campus Shuttle Bus. Call RSO Office 5-2351. tf9-17

Sitter needed. M.W.F. 1 p.m.-2:30 p.m. Own transportation desirable. 549-6467. tf9-17

Professor needs secretarial assistant with some dictation competence. About ten hours weekly. Write Hawke, History Dept. tf9-17

Lead Singer wanted for est. working group: Rock, Blues, etc., also original mat. Year round work! contact Bob or John 69717 - 68661 tf9-22

Student to care for 5 yr. old boy in my home nr. School of Ed. M-F 11:15-12:45; Tu. 2:15-5:30. 549-0676. tf9-20

Experienced service station attendance Sat., evening, all day Sunday, approx. 20 hrs. weekly. Call 253-9901 before 5 p.m. tf9-17

Ecology-minded students earn extra money part-time without interrupting your present schedule. Call collect 1-833-3634. tf9-24

RIDE OFFERED

Travel from Framingham to UMass on Tues. and Thurs. and would like a rider. Call 617-872-4655. tf9-17

GIVE-AWAY

Wanted good home for gentle, affectionate 6-month old female cat. Call 6-8508. tf9-17

PERSONAL

D - tried to find you - I'm going now. Sorry I didn't get to see you. Guess I'll just say goodbye. Neil. tf9-17

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Must have own room. Call Marr 253-7673. Leave message if not there. tf9-21

WANTED

1 or 2 senior males seek room, apart. house to rent or share. Own rooms desired. Call Edward at Hamlin House 256-6866. tf9-17

Need rides to Boston each Monday afternoon or night and from Boston to Amherst on Friday afternoon. Share expenses. Call 549-1767. tf9-20

Will babysit in my home. Child under 1 yr. Call 549-6687. 9-17

Exp. 321 and Anthro 102, Psych 280, Call 586-2457. Reasonable. 9-21

U.S. coins bought, sold, traded. Bob Morrin, 311 Chadbourne House or PO Box 104, Amherst, Mass 9-17

SERVICES

Will care for children in my home any Mon., Wed., Fri. Lots of T. L. C. Call 665-3270. tf9-17

Need a band. Dial-a-band will supply a band that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9218. tf9-29

Languages by Mobil-Linguist - Formerly United Nations Interpreter. Breakthrough, portable, language laboratory/4-track "take-home, send-back" cassettes/. Native assistants, also group and correspondence courses. Charter "Mini"! P.O. Box 47 Nhmptn, Ma. 01060; Tel. 413 584-9479; 584-4823. tf9-17

RIDE WANTED

Need a ride from Sprfld to UMass daily. Will pay. 733-9043. tf9-20

Greenfield — need a ride to and from UMass Mon., Thur., Fri. Must be here by 8:30. Can leave 2 p.m. Will share expense. Joann 774-3611 5-1582. tf9-20

ENTERTAINMENT

Faculty professor needs small furn apartment for fall semester only. Call on campus 5-2374 or 5-8600. tf9-20

APT. NEEDED

Amherst Folklore Centre this week Fri., Steve Marin; Sat. Bill Staines; Sun., Bruce McKay and Cindy Arbour; Mon. open Hoot. Come. 9-17

Name one thing that hasn't gone up since 1950.

1._____

Try. Try hard.

The only thing we can think of is what we make. The Swingline "Tot 50" Stapler. 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

And it still comes with 1000 free staples and a handy carrying pouch. It staples, tacks and mends. It's unconditionally guaranteed. It's one of the world's smallest staplers.

And it's the world's biggest seller. Could be that's why it hasn't gone up in price in 21 years.

If you're interested in something a little bigger, our Cub Desk Stapler and Cub Hand Stapler are only $1.98. Both Tot and Cub Staplers are available at Stationery, Variety and College Bookstores.

The Swingline "Tot 50" 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

If you can name something else that hasn't gone up in price since 1950, let us know. We'll send you a free Tot Stapler with 1000 staples and a vinyl pouch. Enclose 25¢ to cover postage and handling.

Swingline®
Dept. G
32-00 Skillman Ave., Long Island City, N.Y. 11101

Notices

ACCOUNTING ASSOCIATION:
Film: Days of Wine and Roses Jack Lemmon, Lee Remick, Jack Klugman. Tonight at Thompson 104, 7 & 9 p.m. Admission is 50¢.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS:
There will be a bus leaving Whitmore Administration at 12:45 on Saturday, Sept. 18 for the Belchertown State School. All interested persons are welcome.

BHAGAVAD GITA SEMINAR:
Study and experience the knowledge and bliss as revealed by the Bhagavad Gita. A one credit course in the science of self-realization will be given in both S.W. Cance House, main lounge (starting Sept. 20 at 6:00 p.m.) and Orchard Hill 334 Grayson (starting Sept. 22 at 7:00 p.m.). All invited to sit-in or take for credit.

BICYCLE CLUB:
There will be a meeting Tuesday, Sept. 21 at 8 p.m. in CC801 to talk about this semester's plans.

CAMPUS CENTER PROGRAM COUNCIL:
Meeting of all CCPC members Sept. 20, 7 p.m., Rms. 804-808 CC. All members and friends invited.

CERAMICS CAR I:
Did you have a problem like me finding a ceramics course? Well, there's one to be taught at the Leverett Craftsman Association, the week of Oct. 3. Call Jim at 253-9062 for details. If you want to go, I can take some people in my car. 549-1556.

CHRISTIANS:
Free bus service every Sunday morning to Florence Congregational Church. Leaving: 8:45 waiting station (N. Pleasant), 8:46 Thatcher Way & N. Pleasant, 8:48 Prince House, 8:50 Parking Lot #8.

CEQ:
Project Conference: will be held at 6:30 p.m., Sept. 21 in Rms. 174 & CC. All projects should attend. Anyone wanting to start a project or join one- this is the meeting.

COFFEE HOUSE:
Quiet Candlelight Coffee House, Gorman House inner Lobby People, coffee, light food, voice of Fran Botelho. Friday, Sept. 17 Relax....

FREE FAMILY PLANNING CLINIC:
At Wesson Women's Hospital; 735 Chestnut St., Springfield. For information, contact Sue Guerten 739-7321, ext. 229 (btwn. 7-4:00).

FREE U:
Free concert- Finnerty, Morse & Richmond. CC Aud, Sept. 18th, at 8:30 p.m.

HILLEL:
Service tonight in the Hillel office at 7:30. Rosh Hashanah Services, Sunday 7 p.m.-10 p.m.; Mon. 10-1 p.m. & 7-9 p.m.; Tues. 10-1 p.m. & 7-9 p.m. CC Aud.

INTERNATIONAL FOLK DANCING:
Folk dancing tonight, Fri., Sept. 17 at 7:30 p.m.-12 p.m. in CC 3rd Level. Teaching for beginners & advanced until 9:30.

KENNEDY UPPER:
There will be 5 Three Stooges flicks Sept. 22 and 24 in Manar and Sept. 23 in Thompson 104. 2 Shows nightly at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Admission 35¢.

NOGAF CLUB:
The world premier of the Nogaf film will be shown Saturday in the Brooks Lounge at 9 p.m. All Nogaf Club Alumni invited. Rated X.

PI BETA PHI:
Pi Beta Phi invites you to a "Cookout", on Sept. 19, at 5 p.m. Rides will be provided at the Newman Center from 4:45-5 p.m.

SIGMA DELTA TAU:
The rush party schedule at Sigma Delta Tau for this Sun. has been cancelled. The next party will be on Wed., Sept. 22.

SOUTHWEST BOOK MART:
Southwest Book Mart-Berkshire Clubroom, Southwest. Hours: Monday-Friday, 2-4 and 6-8 p.m. Closes Wed., Sept. 22.

UMASS STUDENTS FOR MCGOVERN:
Organizational meeting Monday, Sept. 20, 8:30 p.m., CC Rm. 801. Training session for canvassing, publicity, and other areas.

UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN:
Sunday's sorority rush parties will be: a Playground picnic at Sigma Kappa at 12:30 p.m., a Country Fair at Alpha Chi Omega from 4:30-6:30, a Pi Beta Phi barbeque at Kappa Alpha Theta. Please come.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Harry Houdini was a pioneer, not only as a magician and an escape artist, but also was perhaps the first important stunt man in motion pictures. Houdini exemplified the qualities of his zodiacal sign Aries. His inventiveness, daring, showmanship, keen intellectual curiosity made him one of the greatest names in show busines and an international celebrity. His studies embraced psychic phenomena and astrology he was Aries and Mars to his fingertips.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work and travel arrangements subject to change, dispute. You are finishing rather than beginning a project, relationship. Realize this; pan accordingly. Emotional involvement now is no laughing matter.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relations with children may be opposite of pleasant. Hold your ground; stand fast for principles. But do perceive need for progress. Fresh viewpoint will help you see light. Look ahead.

GEMINI (May 21-Jun 20): What is apparently an important personal desire is subject to revision. Your inner voice enables you to know who is truthful and otherwise. Follow through on hunch. Don't risk security.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Postpone journey, if possible. Avoid writing letters in anger. Many associates, relatives are confused. Take what you hear with proverbial grain of salt. Obtain hint from Gemini message.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Money position needs review. Check expenditures. Some apparent minor details may not be as small as you think. Know this be thorough. Relations with opposite sex may go through stormy weather.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can throw off fear, doubt. Open lines of communication. You may be surrounded by dust of controversy. Key is to tread lightly. Gemini could be involved. Family members may quarrel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some factors may be unknown. Don't make long range commitment. Travel should be put off unless an absolute necessity. Make amends to family member for recent slight. Be diplomatic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't mix money and friendship unless you want to lose both. Accent is on how to fulfill desires. Some may attempt to make you third party in dispute. See clearly. Perceive motives. Protect yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be trying too much, too soon. Slow pace. Heed voice of experience. Consolidate gains. Take inventory. Money involving mate, partner could be subject of heated discussion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some of your natural abilities are spotlighted and appreciated. There are some whisperings, rumors. Remain aloof. Test one who has proclaimed undying loyalty. Results might be good for a laugh.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial pressure can be relieved by new approach. Strive for more originality. Be independent. Old wishes, desires are outmoded. Recognize this and make appropriate revisions.

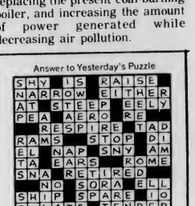
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Let others, including mate or partner, set pace. Bide your time. Improve public relations. Strive to understand those with opposing views. Postpone legal actions. Share knowledge. Be receptive.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a no nonsense person when it comes to living up to obligations. This has been a year in which efforts have paid dividends; more work, added responsibility, but there's a chance for greater rewards. If single, marriage hovers. If married, business advancement is indicated.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Eastman Lane Closed

Beginning the week of Sept. 20, and continuing for about eight weeks, Eastman Lane will be closed to vehicular traffic from a point east of Thatcher Way to East Pleasant St.



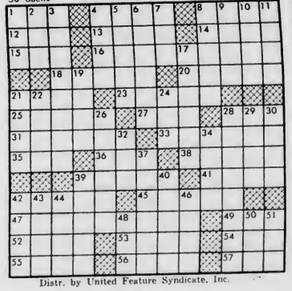
This means no traveling or parking along that portion of Eastman Lane from up beyond WOPE past the Sylvan residence halls to just before the intersection of Eastman Lane and East Pleasant St.

Excavation for pipes to a new boiler plant at Tillson Farm in the northeast corner of campus will begin along Eastman Lane from Cashin, Brown, and McNamara Sylvan residences up to East Pleasant St. Vehicular traffic to those residences will be rerouted through parking lot M, behind the School of Education, during the approximately eight-week time period.

Construction work on Eastman Lane is part of a project which will cause about two years of digging from Tillson Farm to the present boiler plant in the area of the Campus Center Garage. The new oil burning plant will begin operations in the fall of 1973, replacing the present coal-burning boiler, and increasing the amount of power generated while decreasing air pollution.

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



ACROSS

1 Hit lightly
4 French clerical title
8 Command to cat
12 Ventilate
13 Exact
14 Inheritor
15 Fuss
16 Disk jockey's apparatus
18 Fisticuff encounters
20 Entertain
21 Sandarac tree
23 Russian stockade
25 Tag
27 Drink slowly
28 Definite article
31 Cultivator
33 Fright
35 Number
36 Large tub
38 Fights between two
39 Royal
41 Identical
42 Fragile
45 Force
47 Place again in possession
49 Anger
52 Organs of hearing
53 Danish measure
54 Weight of India
55 Otherwise
56 Simple
57 Greek letter

DOWN

1 Chinese pagoda
2 Succor
3 Likely
4 Aleutian island
5 Savage
6 Explodes
7 Evening (poet.)
8 Mortification
9 Philippine island
10 Is ill
11 Woody plant
17 Knocked
19 City in Russia
21 Singing voice
22 Precipitation
24 River island
26 Smooths
28 Exposition in writing
29 Kind of oak
30 Gaelic
32 Tattered cloth
34 Hurry
37 Mexican dish
39 Wash lightly
40 Liquid measure
42 Liberate
43 Actual
44 Ventilates
46 Man's nickname
48 Scottish cap
50 Soak
51 Period of time

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Gridders Open At Maine

By Dan Kamal

The Daily Collegian

SPORTS

It's a whole new look for the 1971 version of the UMass football Redmen with rookie Head Coach Dick MacPherson and his crew of assistants promising a more exciting brand of football than Redmen spectators have become accustomed to seeing. That is they promise an exciting brand of football...which is not what UMass football followers have been used to in recent years.

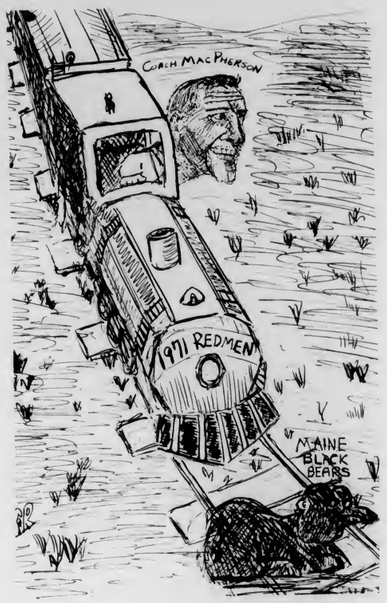
MacPherson brings along with him from the Denver Broncos of the National Football League a more pro- style game on both offense and defense. The switch to a more pro-type offense was alleviated greatly by the passing capabilities of sophomore quarterback Piel Pennington who has earned nothing but high praise from pre-season followers. And on defense as co-captain Dennis Keating remarked, "We have the personnel to fit the 4-3-4 pro-style defensive set which Coach MacPherson brought with him."

With all the innovations it sure is a shame that the schedule couldn't be revised. In other words, the season still opens with a game against the University of Maine. This one is at Maine and kickoff time is slated for 1:00 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

The Black Bears, with virtually all their starters of last year returning, are supposedly an improved ballclub. You couldn't prove that by Boston University, however. The Terriers clobbered their northern foes by a score of 34 last Friday.

As they say, though, you can't really take exhibition games into serious account. Maybe Maine has improved. Maybe this time, they'll score against the Redmen. As most of you well remember, UMass has outscored its opening game opponents by a 77-0 margin over the last two years.

If anything is going to really affect the Redmen on their trip to Orono it will be the rash of injuries to key players that has hit the squad. Defensive backs Paul Hansen and Dennis Keating along with split-end Steve Schubert, running back Paul Metallo, and tackle Bill Hale will not make the trip tomorrow because of injuries.



Despite the key injuries, MacPherson has not panicked. He emphasized the fact that he has a lot of faith in his back-up men.

Many of these players saw considerable action at Cornell last week which adds up to a big plus going into "the real thing" game against UMaine.

Even though UMass will pass a good deal this year, Coach MacPherson is still quite concerned with establishing a solid running game. He mentioned that a New England team has to be able to run the ball because of the adverse weather conditions that so often prevail in this part of the country.

The starting line-up for tomorrow's opener is pretty well set and will look something like this: at split-end probably Bill Hanifan; at left tackle Bob Donlin; lieft guard Dick Etna; center Dave Levine; right guard Ron Marino; right tackle Tom Mullen; tight end John Hulecki; halfback Tim Berra; fullback Mike Sawyer; and quarterback Piel Pennington.

On defense, the Redmen will line up something like this: left defensive end Curt Bristol; left tackle Bill DeFlavio; right tackle Skip Parmenter; right end Steve Greaney; left linebacker Joe Sabulis; middle linebacker Doug Winslow; right linebacker Dennis Collins; left cornerback Bill Bush; left safety Ray Bouchard; right safety Jack O'Neil and right cornerback Pat Brady.

Metawampe's Picks

Everything has changed around here. There's a new coach, a new quarterback, and a new library. But the Great One, after barely escaping last year's raids, is back smoking his peace pipe. Having just evaded the clutches of a bewildered Patriot linebacker, yours truly has returned to his favorite pasttime. With the local tribe opening at distant Orono this week the time has arrived for the Old Warrior to mount his bull and sling it.

UMass 35, Maine 14
The '71 Redmen are on the go
And will surely romp in Orono
With new head coach Dick MacPherson
The Black Bears will be a hearse in

B.C. 31, Temple 7
The Temple Owls in their first game
Try to go after instant fame
But to the dismay of the owl
This game goes to the other fowl

BU 21, Colgate 17
BU sets out on the trail
And against the Raiders they will not fail
This game is such a bloody bore
The fans won't want to know the score

UConn 24, Vermont 17
Vermont tries football once again
But the Cats will fail in their own den
Even without Clements and Robustelli
The Huskies will feast on Catamount jelli

Northeastern 28, Rhode Island 28
Throw this game into the garbage pail
But to write a poem for it I will not fail

Neither Ram nor Husky will win this game
For both these creatures are incredibly lame

Texas 17, UCLA 14
The Bruins have a plan
To beat Texas if they can
But the Longhorns say no
As they eke by their foe

Nebraska 28, Minnesota 17
The Cornhuskers are on the beam
They're a possible number one team
If the gopher is to win today
For a miracle he must pray

Syracuse 21, Wisconsin 10
A very easy game to choose
For Syracuse will never lose
Although the Badgers are quite loose
They will drown in Orange Juice.

Notre Dame 45, Northwestern 21
This game is another joke
The Wildcats their heads should soak
If the Irish don't do fine
I'll never write another line

Penn St. 38, Navy 16
The Lions are playing Navy this week
The outlook for sailors is very bleak
This is the last poem I'm writing today
I know you're all saying hip hip hooray!

Michigan State 27, Georgia Tech 17
Alabama 38, Southern Mississippi 3
Air Force 38, Missouri 10
Arkansas 34, Oklahoma State 7
Stanford 34, Army 7

Kansas 37, Baylor 3
West Virginia 24, California 13
South Carolina 17, Duke 14
Florida 37, Mississippi State 24
Georgia 38, Tulane 31
Rutgers 36, Lafayette 24
LSU 28, Texas A&M 3

Michigan 29, Virginia 6
North Carolina State 28, Maryland 10
Oklahoma 31, SMU 13
USC 35, Rice 10
Toledo 34, Villanova 7
AIC 26, Bridgeport 13
Cortland State 10, Springfield 7

Arizona State 35, Houston 7
Auburn 45, UT at Chattanooga 10
Tennessee 33, UC at Santa Barbara 7
Dallas 27, Buffalo 13
Houston 14, Cleveland 13
Kansas City 31, San Diego 17

Los Angeles 20, New Orleans 3
Miami 27, Denver 17
Baltimore 17, New York Jets 16
Cincinnati 41, Philadelphia 10
Chicago 10, Pittsburgh 7
St. Louis 31, Washington 20
San Francisco 28, Atlanta 17

Green Bay 34, New York Giants 12
Oakland 37, New England(Boston) 21
Western Kentucky 13, Celtics 13 1/2
Virginia 32, UMass 1
Holy Cross 97, Bay Area Bombers 96

Wiley Coyote 8, Road Runner Beep
Yaz 165,000, Fans 0
Appalachia State 2, Holes?
Slippery Rock 4, Football 5
Detroit 1, Minnesota 0
Newell 23, Turley 4

Business Comes First In Orono

By Earle Barroll

What a way to start the football season, in Orono, Maine, home of the Black Bears, Pat's Pizzeria, The Shamrock, miles and miles of nothing and the friends and relatives of UMass head coach Dick MacPherson and assistant coach Bob Pickett.

Both MacPherson and Pickett were born and brought up in the Orono area. "Mac" lived in Old Town, just outside this sprawling hamlet (his house can be seen from the stadium) while Pickett lived a little farther out in Veazie and before coming to Amherst was an assistant coach at Maine for five years.

Close ties, alright, close enough that the people of Orono look at this game as sort of a homecoming for the two Redmen coaches. And for both MacPherson and Pickett this will be a problem.

You see, the good people of Orono have been busy all week inviting Mac and Pickett to reunions they have set for tonight and tomorrow night.

"I've got a lot of friends up there, but they don't understand the importance of this game," said the Redman head mentor yesterday before practice. "They've called me and told me they'd see me Friday night when we get there and Saturday after the game. But, I won't be there."

Pickett returns to face the team he coached the last five years and this has helped considerably in preparing the UMass squad for Maine.

"Outside of a couple of personnel changes, Maine is just about the same club it was last year," Pickett remembered.

Pickett was also a graduate of Maine, but when asked if he wanted to win this game more than any other, he said, "I never want to win a game more than this one, but if you come back next week and asked me about Dartmouth, I'll tell you the same."

With all the pressure of a return home, with all the fanfare that Orono expects to throw at these two coaches and with all the interruptions this week with phone calls from Maine, MacPherson and Pickett have the one thing in mind that counts for this trip to Orono, the football game, and this is the only business that concerns them in Orono.

For Mac this is his first regular season game as a UMass head coach and for any coach this is quite a load to carry.

And so for the friends, relatives and the remaining good people of Orono hold your reunion for the end of the season. Yes, MacPherson and Pickett will be there, but behind them will be a hungry bunch of Redmen ready for the season opener...A little too many for a party.

Notice

INTRAMURALS-Touch football schedules will begin on Monday, September 20. All team managers must pick up their schedules and team rosters at the intramural office no later than 5 p.m. tomorrow. Check Monday's Collegian for the opening nights schedule.

WMUA

Saturday at 12:30 p.m. WMUA will begin its seasonal coverage of UMass football games at the University of Maine. Marty Kelley will host the pre-game show beginning at 12:30 followed by the game broadcast at 12:45 with Ken Best calling the action and Kelley on color.

Weekend

By BOB NESTI

Music

Three Cantatas
Members of the UMass Muisc faculty and the Madrigal singers will perform three cantatas, two by Bach and one by Stravinsky, in this first Chamber Music concert of the season.

Theater

The Caretaker
Harold Pinter's absurdist "comedy of tension" concerns three characters at their wit's end. The play speaks of the human condition, of man's fear for his loss of identity and his place in the world. The Amherst Masquers perform evenings through Sunday, 8 PM, at the Kirby Theater, Amherst College. ($)

Measure For Measure
Shakespeare's somewhat "black" comedy will be performed twice, Sept. 24 and 26 at 8 PM in the Studio Theater, Smith College.

Things and The Nature and Purpose Of The Universe
Two new plays of contrasting themes and styles by young playwrights David Kranes and Christopher Durang will be performed Saturday evening at 8 in the Studio Theater, Smith College.

Films

Bed And Board (Talkie, Northampton)
Francois Traffaut's third entry in his Antoine Doinel saga (earlier explored in "The 400 Blows" and "Stolen Kisses") is somewhat short on substance but long in presenting fetching vignettes featuring some delightful characters.

Carnal Knowledge (Campus Cinemas, Hadley; Academy of Music, Northampton)
A sharp, bitter attack on American sexual mores which through incisive direction, evocative performances, and an intelligent screenplay makes its director Mike Nichols' bleakest and best film to date. It features Jack Nicholson and Arthur Garfunkel as Amherst College roommates still living their adolescences some twenty years late. Candice Bergen and Ann-Margaret play the women in their lives, both then and now.

Dor (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
Or how not to make a Western. An endless amount of talent is wasted in this pretentious bit of "telling-it-like-it-was" which mixes late Nineteen Century West and Mid-Sixties America without much subtlety or style. Stacey Keach, Faye Dunaway, struggle their way through NY Post columnist Peter Hammill's screenplay. Directed by Frank Perry.

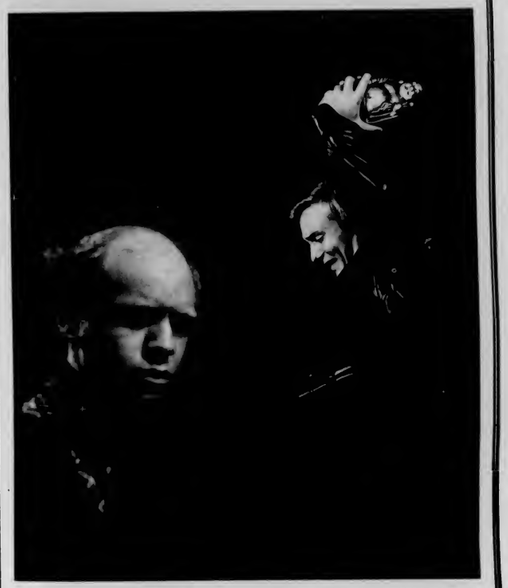
The Days Of Wine And Roses (Friday, Thompson 104, 7 and 9)
An occasionally funny yet often stark and depressing film about alcoholism which features Jack Lemmon and Lee Remick as a pair of suburban alcoholics.

The Fixer (Thursday, September 24, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9:30)
Anti-Sematism in Nineteenth Century Poland is the theme of this parable based on the acclaimed Bernard Malumud novel. Directed by "action" director John Frankenheimer, the film occasionally falls victim to the heaviness of its theme.

The Hour of the Furnaces and Mexican Bus Ride (Friday, Herter 227, 231, 7 and 9)
Two Latin American films. The former is Fernando Solanas' acclaimed and controversial documentary about the need for revolutionary change in Argentina. The later film is Luis Bunuel's story of a young man's search for his mother's lawyer and won the 1952 Cannes Film Festival Award.

The Hellstrom Chronicle (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
Ignore the elementary and rather melodramatic plotline to this documentary about the imminent insect takeover of the Earth. Instead watch some of the most breathtaking photography ever filmed of insects and their ways which is both beautiful, frightening and always interesting.

Male and Female, (Sunday, Thompson 104, 7 and 9)
A 1919 sophisticated comedy by master showman Cecil B. DeMille. It's "bedroom and bathroom" scenes shocked Post-War America. Based loosely on "The Admirable Crichton" by J.M. Barrie and stars Gloria Swanson and Thomas Neighan.



McCabe and Mrs. Miller (Campus Cinemas, Hadley; Calvin Theater, Northampton)
Considered by many leading critics the Best American film thus far this year. It is an admirable, stunning piece of cinema-one which evokes the grit and color of the Old West with unusual sharpness. It is kind of a film ballad about the demise of a town which boasts two finely wrought performances from its stars Julie Christie and Warren Beatty.

The Omega Man (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield, Amherst Cinema, Amherst)
A prattling piece of science-fiction which features Charlton Heston as the lone survivor of a nuclear holocaust.

Panic In Needle Park (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
Thus far, the best in the series of Hollywood drug dramas. It is the grim

The gang, including Bobby (Al Pacino) and Helen (Kitty Winn) (center) sit around a bench in Needle Park in this scene from the acclaimed drug film.

In "THE CARETAKER," The cowed Davies (Ken Hoxsie '72) looks away as Mick (Bill Watts '74) vents his spleen by smashing a false idol in Harold Pinter's comedy-drama, the Amherst College Summer Theater production being repeated this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 17, 18, 19. Performances are at 8:30 at Kirby Theater on the Amherst College campus. For reservations phone 542-2278 or visit the box office between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

story of Bobby and Helen, two young junkies whose lives together are destroyed through their addiction. The story occasionally over-sentimentalizes, yet the graphic, documentary-style direction and the very fine debut performances of Al Pacine and Kitty Winn (Best Actress, Cannes Film Festival) make it well worth seeing.

Raven's End (Saturday, Sage Hall, Smith, 7:30 and 9:30)
Bo Wilderberg's first film is a stark contrast to his lush "Elvira Madigan". Raven's End is a cold and incisive look into the misery of poverty. In Swedish, subtitles.

Summer of '42 (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
This past summer's most appreciated film is undoubtedly what memories are made of. It probably has more to do with 1971 than 1942, but no matter, enjoy the lovely photography and the effective (yet blatantly false) Michel Legrand score.

Trash (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Joe D'Allesandro, Holly Woodlawn et al cavort in their own perverse ways in this grimly, funny film by Warhol protegee Paul Morrisey.

Woodstock (Saturday, Sunday, SU Ballroom, 2:30, 6, 9:30)
Or how I spent my summer vacation. One of the most successful publicity stunts ever was captured with near brilliance by Michael Wadleigh, a large camera crew and an 8-track stereo monitoring system, in this fine documentary. Wide-and-split screen techniques supplement the performances of such individuals and groups as Richie Havens, Santana, Ten Years After, Joe Cocker, C,S,N & Y, the Airplane, and Sly.

Films On Television

Sweet Bird of Youth (Friday, 11:25, Ch. 3)
Paul Newman and Geraldine Page are superlative in this boulderized version of the Tennessee Williams' play. The story concerns a gigolo who, while traveling with an aging movie star, returns to his home town bringing back with him some sordid memories. Even though the explicit themes are toned-down some and the shocking ending is missing, it remains an effective film.

The Pride And The Passion (Friday, 11:30, Ch. 8)
A long and cumbersome spectacle about the Napoleonic Wars featuring Cary Grant, Frank Sinatra, Sophia Loren, and a gargantuan cannon they cart about the Spanish countryside.

The Alamo (Saturday, Ch. 20, 22, 30, 9)
John Wayne produced, starred and directed this adventure ode to those brave Texans who so nobly fell at this Austin mission. Some 12,000,000 dollars were spent in this labor of love. (Part One tonight, concludes Monday night).

Cape Fear (Saturday, 11:25, Ch. 3)
An unrelentless thriller with an excellent script, strong performances, and no-holes-barred direction. The story concerns a lawyer and his family being harrassed by a psychotic ex-con seeking vengeance. Robert Mitchum, Gregory Peck, and Polly Bergen star.

Lawrence Pressman is the guide in THE HELLSTROM CHRONICLE.

Lonelyhearts (Saturday, 11:30, Ch. 8)
Nathaniel West's strange novel about an advice-to-the-lovelorn columnist who takes his job too seriously. It doesn't entirely work and ends up oddly disturbing yet its performances from Montgomery Clift, Robert Ryan, and Myrna Loy are always interesting.

The Paleface (Saturday, 11:30, Ch. 22)
Bob Hope and Jane Russell star in this occasionally funny western farce about some mistaken identities.

El Dorado (Sunday, 9, Ch. 7,8,40)
A very fine comic Western directed by a master in that genre Howard Hawks. It has a very witty script and benefits from sly performances from stars John Wayne and Robert Mitchum who lament, tongue-in-cheek, the demise of the Old West.

Rio Conchos (Sunday, 11'05, Ch. 3)
Set in the post Civil War Southwest this tough Western concerns a search mission for a cache of rifles delivered to the Indians. The search party includes such fine performers as Richard Boone, Anthony Franciosca, and Stuart Whitman all doing superlative work

Albums

By ANN GURNETT

BLUE, Joni Mitchell (Reprise)

Pain is part of the maturing process all humans must go through. Some endure in silence; some complain; and some, a very few, transmute their sufferings with a magic, whimsical beauty born of understanding.

Joni Mitchell is one of the magical few. Her music is the chronicle of her life-joy and sorrow, realism and fantasy.

Blue, her latest album, is the most realistic of all her works. It is the culmination of her travels; the end result of years of pain. Her first albums, Song To A Seagull and Clouds, were shrouded in romantic doubts; the lyrics sometimes bordered on being maudlin. The music in these early albums was soft and muted, in keeping with the air of romance.

Mitchell's third album, Ladies of the Canyon, presented a break in style with its predecessors. The lyrics, as well as the music, were more realistic and mature; the album told the stories of several unsuccessful encounters with men. Mitchell used her incredible range and lilting soprano to its best advantage, especially in the song, 'Conversations'.

Blue forms the 'apogee' of Joni's career. Where her first albums told stories of unrequited love, Blue sets free the joy of a truly deep love- a shared love. Several of the songs express a token dissatisfaction with the course of Joni's romance with the elusive Blue, but in the title song of the album, Mitchell commits herself to staying with her lover:

Well everybody's saying that/ Hell's the hippest way to go/ Well I don't think so/ But I'm gonna take a look around it though.

Blue takes some getting used to if you've only listened to Mitchell's early albums. The music is much different, with a 'latinized' guitar heard on the best cuts. Mitchell accompanies herself on piano and many of the songs and her soprano isn't quite as high as it used to be. The lyrics are not really syncopated and in a couple of songs, especially 'The Last Time I Saw Richard,' are virtually unsingable.

Taken as a whole, the album is Mitchell's most complete, mature effort- a soothing balm for depression as well as something to augment a good mood.

By FRANK JOHNSON

Much has happened to the Jefferson Airplane since their "Blows Against the Empire" released last winter. In a previous review, printed in the Rutgers University Targum on January 6, 1971, I said it "is possibly the best work the Airplane (Starship) has ever accomplished...my highest praise goes to the Starship."

The Starship album was a one-shot deal, a jam-session bringing the Jefferson Airplane together with 2 other supergroups, the Grateful Dead and Crosby, Stills et. al. Jeff Airplane has of course not reformed, although a few of its earlier members have left the group. Jorma Kaukonen, for instance, did a lot of work for the Bark album, and he was absent when Starship was taped, as was Marty Balin, the one-time leader of the Airplane. Peter Kaukonen was included with the Starship, but not in Bark. Paul Kantner presided over Blows Against The Empire, but he works more as part of the team in Bark. Gracie Slick's piano, which dominated most of the Starship album, is very subdued on the latest release.

With this information, we can make a few further judgements about Bark. After the 2 super albums, Volunteers and Starship, Bark is a mild come-down. One should try Bark over a period of a few sittings, rather than be subjected to it all at once. Starship featured only one rather mediocre cut, "Mau Mau", and that was all. The epitome of mediocrity can be found in "Thunk", on the Bark album, which sounds like a triple-tracked barbershop quartet stoned out of their minds. It is fun to chuckle over it the first few times, but it becomes tiresome. Jorma's own "Wild Turkey", needs more effort from the rest of the group. The "une in, turn on, drop out" politics of yore seem to have gotten worse, in the rhetoric of Paul Kantner's "War Movie". Stereo Review's article must have made Gracie Slick realize she had a potential audience with the straights.

Still, the Jefferson Airplane has not lost its stranglehold on excellence. There is a wealth of good music on Bark. The initial song, "When The Earth Moves Again", recalls the best material on Volunteers. Jorma Kaukonen's other solo, "Feels So Good", smacks with superior improvisation and guitar work. Gracie Slick's skill as a songwriter, in addition to her fine piano work, causes "Crazy Miranda" to emerge as the finest song on the album, by virtue of her unique progressions. The self-explanatory "You're Only Pretty As You Feel", with its soft, mello quality, evokes memories of Surrealistic Pillow 5 years ago. "Law Man" again has Slick's slick point of view concerning the Establishment, but it also contains her best efforts. Paul Kantner, who engineered and produced the Starship album, continues the finery in his 2 songs on Bark, "Rock And Roll Island" and "War Movie", which we mentioned earlier. I had to laugh at the pseudo-German in "Never Argue With A German When You're Tired (European Song)". The translation doesn't make much sense: "Sticking in my neck...my skin...fill my glass with my arse puckin", but the chorus in the background is fun to listen to, a sort of freaked-out "Ride of the Valkyries".

Bark will not become an industry standard the way Volunteers and Starship will, but I was not let down by "JA's" latest work. Because Jeff Airplane still has its own special touch, that endearing quality of fine rock combining with a folk influence, I recommend it enthusiastically. However, make sure you have the other 2 albums, too.

RANDY EDELMAN

Sunflower SNF 5005

assimilated by Frank Johnson

My experience with solo piano albums is one concerning sensitivity. Even when the pianist in question has a backup group, the qualities of the piano are such that they carry emotion better, perhaps, than any other instrument. A piano orchestrates to the extent that a backup group only provides the nuances, while the bulk of the music is handled by keyboards.

Randy Edelman uses the piano in such a way. He is a newcomer, a remarkably versatile performer with quite obviously a strong classical background. His works bespeak of prime classical influence, especially in progressions and chord structure. The songs themselves, however, are not classical, and they certainly aren't rock, either. In fact, Edelminian music proves quite difficult to categorize. His nearest neighbor would obviously be Elton John, but Randy Edelman's music is markedly different from that Englishman. (Joe Cocker sounds a bit like Richie Havens; but they plan entirely different music)

Mr. Edelman's songs thematically handle simple matters, and relate to a sensitive quest for love and understanding. This gentleman is a Romantic: "Wouldn't it be nice," he sings, "if I opened the door and you were standing there once more." Occasionally these Romantic themes become hackneyed and a bit trite, but in the final analysis these are very basic human emotions, and Randy's discussion of them is quite relevant. He uses metaphors to describe his particular bag-"My Cabin", isolated on a hill, contains his secrets and enigmas. The opener, entitled "The Farmer", narrates the pitfalls and vagaries of life. The plastic, the vulgar, and the artificial qualities of New York City are explored in a honky-tonk number called, appropriately, "Seventh Avenue." Randy explains his artistic development in the autobiographical number, "Piano Picker". The narrative at times tends towards an ego trip (...how did I get to play so fine?) but he can be excused by virtue of his performance, and also his history: "While other guys were out playing football, I was home banging on the keys." He ends the album with "Please Don't Send Them Anymore", a bring-the-troops-home-now plea that ensconses politics, but this is his only political song. The others are too personal to include politics, and in this way they give the listener remarkable insight into Mr. Edelman's own sensitivity.

There is much musical interest in this first solo album. The classical background, which we discussed earlier, affords an excellent virtuosity to Randy's songs. His works are not restricted to one particular style- each song has a different quality and flavor all its own. Edelman likes chord changes, and there is no 12-bar blues structure in his work. Occasionally he gets into sumptuous Bach-like toccattas, and the last number, "Please Don't Send Them Anymore", incorporates Stephen Foster's "Old Folks At Home" in a round, with the older melody intermingling. At times Randy incorporates impressionistic whole-tone scales; "Piano Picker" is an example. Long, jazz-like progressions are absent, as are rock piano chord repitition. Randy Edelman in this respect is indeed an individual.

I enjoyed this album the first time I heard it. Randy Edelman's songs are easy to assimilate, but his music is not tastelessly simple. It is difficult to evaluate what sort of success he will have, but if he gets the reception that Elton John and the Carpenters have had, this boy will undoubtedly make good.

"EXCRUCIATING BEAUTY"
THE STANFORD DAILY
"BEST OF GENESIS"
A FRESH COLLECTION OF CINEMATIC STYLES BY A NEW GENERATION OF YOUNG FILM MAKERS

FRIDAY, SUNDAY
7:30 and 10:00 p.m.
HAMPDEN COMMONS, SOUTHWEST
Admission $1.25

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 Ladies-Night! MONDAY Adm. $1.00
Located in the Zayres Shopping Center Rt. 9 Hadley.

Eating Out

The Great Miss Florence Diner War

By DAVID WILLIAMS

Lots of people thought Everett was a slob, one of those fat stubbly-faced greasy looking type of slobs. Everett didn't really care because he was a cook and that's an excuse for being fat and greasy. But it's not an excuse for being a slob and a slob Everett was.

Everett was a terrific cook though, and he worked at a diner of sorts that had a pretty good reputation. Everett had been a cook there longer than anyone else had been around so he could pretty much choose what he wanted to do around the place. He was the head man in the kitchen and he did keep the place together, but he let other people do things like wiping off counters. You see, Everett was an aristocrat as well as a good cook. Everett's only fault was that he secretly knew he was only a very good cook and not really any kind of aristocrat. He wasn't really when it came time to go.

WHAT IS THIS MAN LAUGHING AT?-Only his chef knows for sure.

It all happened on a sunny Saturday. Everett got to work before noon because Saturday was a busy day at his place and he had to get the whole steam table filled. He and another cook named Jack flew around the kitchen all afternoon and by five o'clock they were done. They sat down and smoked and let the help start feeding the early evening crowd. By eight o'clock they were back working again, filling up empty places. Everett and Jack were hard at work when the front door opened and in stepped two young girls. They found themselves a seat and began to decide what to eat. Everett peeked at them through the door. Typical, he thought, even the menu confuses 'em.

The two read every word on the menu about four times and then both ordered steak. Christ, thought Everett, the food we got here and they both want a steak. OK, steak it'll be. Everett began to cook the steaks while one of the help scurried around getting everything else the two wanted.

The waiter came out into the back after the steaks and found Everett and Jack sitting down and smoking again. Jesus, he said, is that all you ever do? He disappeared out the door with the steaks. Everett had to get busy cooking up some more orders and was surprised to find the waiter with the steaks waiting for more. What the hell's this, asked Everett. Those two want more? The waiter with the steaks nodded his head slowly. We already had to send out for more rolls and tonic, he said. They're eating up a storm. Everett laughed grimly as he flipped two more steaks onto the grill.

Pretty soon the waiter with the steaks was waiting almost all the time. Everett's arms were getting tired from flipping the steaks and Jack had to relieve him every half hour or so. A little while after the palms of Everett's hands began to bleed, the original waiter collapsed and had to have cold water thrown on him. Someone dragged him out to sit on the back steps to revive and someone else took his place. All night and all the next day Everett stood there flipping steaks. They ran out of meat so they had to send out to a large supermarket but pretty soon all that meat was used up too. Jack had to take his car and go out to find farmers who had cows they were willing to sell. Soon there was a long line of cows at the back door waiting to be butchered and cut up into steaks. Inside in the kitchen, Everett was still flipping the steaks. He had a very pained expression on his face and he was sweating a lot. The little drops of sweat fell off his arms and chin and landed on the hot grill where they sputtered and disappeared.

While all of this was going on in the back room, the help in the front was going crazy trying to find enough rolls and salad. They had a truck full of tonic pulled up to the front of the diner and two hoses ran from it inside. All day long there was a steady stream of trucks pulling up and delivering lettuce, carrots, cucumbers and other vegetables. All the townspeople came out to help and the National Guard brought in giant lanterns so the people could work at night.

Sometime after the fourth day the two at the counter had both grown so fat that no one else could fit out in the front of the store. This meant that everything had to be handed through from where Everett was standing flipping steaks. But it crowded back there, not to mention hot, and Everett ordered everyone who wasn't really needed outside. They had to move everyone but Everett and Jack back two blocks when a civil engineer came in and said the building was almost at the breaking point.

But there was a lull shortly after everyone had picked up and run two blocks back. One of the two had stopped eating and the other was sitting waiting to see what was wrong. A hush fell over the small town. Everett put down his spatula. Jack let his smoke go out. The trucks delivering the lettuce and the cows stopped. Everyone was silent, watching and waiting.

Inside at the counter the one who had stopped eating was making funny faces. What's the matter? asked the other. The first one opened her mouth to speak and burped. No, she belched, she roared, the roar became a deep rumble and the building began to quiver and creak. The ground started to shake and shimmy. The rumbling got louder and louder and louder and finally ended in a terrific explosion.

Well, that was the end of Everett. He and Jack were blown to bits. The townspeople built a memorial to Everett and on sunny Saturday afternoons they say you can still hear the steaks sizzling as Everett flips 'em over.

Concert Series Set

The Fine Arts Council will present an unusual Special Events Series during this forthcoming academic year. Many world-renowned artists from the theatrical stage, contemporary dance, mime and music will be included in this series.

The first of these events will be when that star of the Irish stage, Siobhan McKenna, visits the University for one performance of "Here Are Ladies," the sensational production which endeared Miss McKenna to countless theater buffs last season at New York Public Theatre.

Miss McKenna will perform the works of Irish playwrights, novelists and poets, including Molly Bloom's lusty soliloquy from "Ulysses." This performance will be Thursday, Oct. 7 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Continuing the list of special events will be a single performance by the Claude Kipnis Mime Theatre, Oct. 21.

The Swingle Singers of Paris will appear for a single performance Monday, Nov. 22, as the vocal ensemble presents music of the baroque period.

In April, the five-college area will present a small version of the International Choral Festival, with the Bela Bartok Choir of Eotvos Lorand University, Budapest, in a program at Memorial Hall at 4 p.m. April 11.

The Preservation Hall Jazz Band of New Orleans will make its fourth appearance at the University in two evening concerts April 13. This Dixieland group has never performed at UMass during the regular academic year.

Closing the special events series will be a one-week residency by the young, American composer, David Amram, who will be occupied with many student and faculty musical groups, and will also appear with his jazz quartet in a special concert May 4.

Reserved single tickets for these events will be available two weeks prior to each event. For a brochure describing these events, and others under the sponsorship of the Fine Arts Council, send a self-addressed business envelope with 16 cents postage to the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, or pick up the brochure in person.

Art Show Planned

LCA announces the opening of a one-man exhibit of woodblock prints by Amherst artist, Lorie Leininger, beginning Friday, September 10, at 8:00 PM. The public is invited to attend this opening.

Featured in the show will be prints illustrating poems and plays (Chaucer, Ben Jonson, Milton, Keats, Emily Dickinson and Mrs. Leininger's favorite, Anonymous); prints on medieval and religious subjects; humourous prints; prehistoric animals; contemporary animals and their young; and contemporary woodblock portraits.

DEERFIELD Drive-In Theatre
Route 5 & 10
South Deerfield, Mass.
Tel. 665-8746
FRI., SAT., SUN.
DEVIL RIDER
IN EASTMAN COLOR

BRUTAL VIOLENCE Turned On By Cool Chicks and Burning Rubber!
Produced by GOLDSTONE FILM ENTERPRISES, INC. R
also
NAKED ANGELS
Showtime 7:30
Feature 1st Sun. only

Program Council Presents
"WOODSTOCK"
Sat. and Sun. 2:30, 6:00, and 9:30 p.m.
S.U. Ballroom
75¢
This Weekend! This Weekend! This Weekend!

"BEST OF GENESIS"

A CINEMUS MAXIMUS
FRIDAY and SUNDAY
7:30 and 10:00 p.m.
HAMPDEN COMMONS, SOUTHWEST
Admission $1.25

DEFINITIVE STEREO

Described here is the finest stereo system we know how to assemble. We stock these components purely for the satisfaction of knowing wherever you go, whatever your friend has, nothing can compare with the total perfection this instrument represents.

PHASE LINEAR POWER AMPLIFIER

350/350 watts R.M.S. into 80 HMS both channels driven simultaneously at any frequency between 1 HZ and 100 KHZ ±.5DB at a distortion level typically less than .08%

HARMAN KARDON CITATION ELEVEN PREAMPLIFIER

Frequency response at 1 volt R.M.S.± .25 DB 1/2 HZ to 70KH2 with no measurable THD or IM distortion

EPI TOWERS (Model 1000)

Truly omnidirectional loud speakers 6-1/2 feet high and 250 lbs. each. Linear response ± 2 DB 22 HZ—18 KHZ.

PIONEER PL41 BROADCAST TURNTABLE FITTED WITH B&OSP 12 CARTRIDGE (EPI ENDORSE)

Far from a steal at $3245.00 complete, but then you'll never feel you could've got something better.

AMHERST AUDIO

197 No. Pleasant

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Getting snowed earlier than usual this year.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 9 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1971

A VIEW FROM THE LITTLEFIELD MEMORIAL BRIDGE—You pass by it every day. You probably go through it at least once during the day. This view was taken from the Littlefield Memorial Bridge across the pond the other day. Betcha can't tell what's wrong with it.

Dean Allen:

Racism is Everyone's Problem

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The School of Education has committed itself to combatting institutionalized racism within its boundaries. This past weekend, a retreat was held in the Campus Center which devoted itself to the topic of institutionalized racism within the School. The following are exerpts from the opening remarks of Dean Dwight W. Allen this past Friday.)

It is a very very critical thing to recognize that we are dealing with a society which is a racist society--a racist society which in a significant way hasn't even decided whether it is important to deal with racism as a major issue. Right now as I look at the fabric of society I see more evidences of perpetuating racism than I see of combatting it. I look, for example, at the eve on which a major step forward was to be made in the desegregation of our schools and I see what would appear to be a compromise with that advance. I look at the horror of the episode at Attica. I look at the way in which society seeks to protect itself and to cover itself and to justify itself and not simply recognize here is a blot on our history--on our very identity. Attica is a problem and a product of the racial pathology of our time: A minority number of this society takes its frustration out in two ways--either anti-social behavior in a life of crime or mental instability, often in a mental institution.

Coming back to our School, we have to try to find new standards of education in which we can gain a perspective on our society and community as a School and our responsibility toward each other on a very personal level. Our responsibility toward each other is not a linear kind of thing--not just a rap between individuals but it is an interface on a whole lot of levels at the same time. You see, I can be very friendly with a person of another race and still be totally insensititive to much of what is going on. My personal rap on a one-to-one basis may even look to be alright. At the same time, unintentionally and in many subtle ways, I am insulting my friend--both individually and collectively.

It is the way in which we use language, the traditions of language that we have, that have insults built into them that we haven't even become sensitive to. It is the way in which we deal with each other institutionally. We fail to recognize that the same rule has different effects on different individuals--the same expectation produces different effects on different individuals and somehow if we are concerned with combatting institutionalized racism, we have to sort out the differential effects of the same rule and to find a basis of equity rather than equality, to find out how we might treat people differently to achieve the same beneficial results. It is a compliment to treat people differently in respect of their different circumstances and their different backgrounds, the different fabrics of their lives.

I would say yes, there are other problems and they are all interrelated, but we as a School have committed ourselves to start with a focal point and an axis of institutional racism as a way of spinning out into the other areas. I will view as subversive any attempt however legitimate, however well intentioned, to escalate into nobility a dilution of our concern with that issue.

I believe that ultimately we

Continued on Page 3

On The Inside:

- Ripoffs Still Rampant See page three
- The War Continues, Part II See page nine
- Redmen Clobber Black Bears See page twelve

Tower, Tower, In The Air...

By ROBERT C. BROOKS

Ever since the awesome crane on top of the new library blossomed above the UMass skyline, it has provided many services. Confused and lost freshmen find their way simply by scanning the heavens and knowing that the crane is somewhere up there to serve as a pathfinder. Many times it serves as a landmark by guiding weary travelers who are seeking UMass for the first time. For administrative officials, it has served as a reservoir of strength. When some problem thrusts them into fits of depression, they glance skyward to assure themselves that the world's tallest library is being successfully nurtured on their campus.

The crane seems to oversee the four main building projects that inexorably continue around us. To the left of the crane and behind Herter Hall sprouts the Fine Arts center which employes Fontaine Bros. as the general contractor.

Richard Spath, the project superintendent, assures us that construction is proceeding on schedule and sticking close to its $11,700,000. budget. The project began in December 1970 and, despite a crippling iron worker strike in July, will finish as planned on June 1, 1973.

Thus far, the superintendent considers the quality of work as "very good." It was Spath who designed and built the bridge over the pond.

Tobin Hall, the new Arts and Science building, is being erected almost directly in front of the crane and behind Bartlett Hall. But Fontaine Bros., again the general contractor, have not been so lucky.

Arthur Stratton, the clerk of works on the Tobin Hall project, told of a strike that brought work to a complete standstill in April and May 1970.

The iron worker strike that plagued the Fine Arts Center also effected Tobin Hall. Consequently, the budget has been adjusted from the original $5,797,657 to $5,816,730 and the deadline has been extended from Sept. 10, 1971 to March 1972. However, Stratton is very pleased with the quality of work and substantiated his claim with a personally guided tour.

Far to the right of the crane, Daniel O'Connell's Sons Inc. is putting the finishing touches on the Graduate Research Center. Despite the iron worker strike, the superintendent indicated that they will stay within their $13,000,000 budget and finish work by January 1, 1971. He also feels "very satisfied" with the quality of work. Work on that project began in 1968.

The crane's main responsibility, the library, is also progressing on schedule. Once again, Daniel O'Connell's Sons Inc. is retained as the general contractor. In his office on the sixth floor, the clerk of work hurriedly explained that they too are staying close to their budget of $16,800,000. and will finish work by June 1, 1972. He feels that the Project, which began in April 1969, is of "very good" quality.

In reference to the crane, the clerk of work went on to say that it will be dismantled in a piecemeal fashion by utilizing hydraulic jacks and a stiffleg crane. This dismissed speculation by some students who thought that a force of helicoptors would be used.

When this landmark is finally dismantled in June, the library will be tall enough by itself to direct lost freshmen, attract new visitors, and revitalize depressed administrators. But somehow it just won't be the same.

BEEN A LONG TIME COMIN'-Quick cut to Gorman. Interior of a room, black lights, beer cans. Two guys half-passed out on the bed. "Hey, what are we going to do tonight?" "I dunno, man. Let's go climb the Library." (Photo by Rich Hinckley)

French Editor To Speak Here

Bertrand Girod de l'Ain will give a talk on "Higher Education in Ferment: Universities in France" tomorrow at 8:00 p.m. in room 227, Herter Hall. The talk is sponsored by the Office of International Programs at UMass.

Mr. de l'Ain is Education Editor of Le Monde, the foremost newspaper in France. He has followed closely the recent dramatic reforms in the French university system. Mr. de l'Ain is also a "Professor Associe" at one of the new universities in Paris, Paris IX, otherwise known as Universite Dauphine. He teaches advanced courses in comparative higher education.

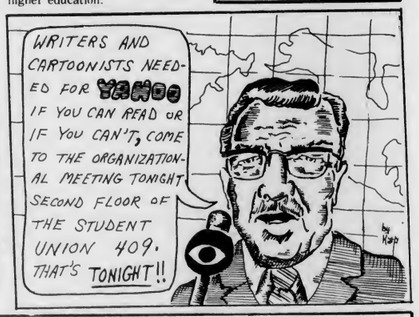
Mr. de l'Ain's lecture will be in English. There will be no admission charge.

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

McGovern Says:

Withdrawal Vital To Negotiations

HONOLULU (AP)-Sen. George McGovern, (D)-S.C., said Sunday that if President Nixon were to set a definite deadline for withdrawing all American forces from Vietnam it would lead to immediate negotiations for the release of American prisoners of war from North Vietnam.



"I have not the slightest doubt that if the President would set a deadline for that purpose-the total disengagement of our forces by a set day, hopefully, Dec. 31, 1971-that would immediately set in motion negotiations for the release of our prisoners who have been held for years in Hanoi," he said.

McGovern, stopping here for two days after a 10-day around-the-world trip that included four days in Southeast Asia, said such action would "result in a cease-fire insuring the safety of our forces during that withdrawal period."

The South Dakota Democrat, the first announced candidate for president, said a withdrawal deadline would not guarantee a risk-free future but that "it would at long last recognize" that the war is "an issue which can only be resolved by the people of South Vietnam."

Speaking to a convention of the Hawaii State Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO, McGovern called the forthcoming elections in South Vietnam "completely rigged," "a one-man show" and "a total fraud on the people of South Vietnam."

Turning to economics, McGovern urged that President Nixon convene a citizens' conference to recommend policies to be followed after the wage-price freeze is over. He said it should be composed of representatives from labor, business, agriculture and consumer interests.

No Coup On Ky's Mind

SAIGON (AP)-Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky saus that if he were president, he would attack corruption in the South Vietnames government by executing "10 or 15 big wheels." He did not name them.

Ky made the remark last week in an interview with a visiting American television correspondent.

Without identifying these allegedly responsible, Ky said he is aware that he is the target of an assassination plot, and added that President Nguyen Van Thieu also is concerned about personal security.

In the interview by CBS television correspondent Mike Wallace, Ky said that if Thieu backs him into a corner, "of course, I have to use force against him." But he said there were no coups on his mind "for the time being."

Bell's Pizza
gives you all the taste all the time.
65 University Dr.
256-8011 - 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

BODIES WANTED

The Westfield Detention Center

Needs You

Meeting in Room 917, Campus Center

Sept. 20, 1971 - 7:30 p.m. (today)

A group is being formed to work with kids (commonly called juvenile delinquents) at the Westfield Detention Center.

Sgt. Cavanaugh Says:

Students Leave Door Open For Theft

By STEPHEN FINE

If you've been ripped off in the past two weeks, there's probably no one to blame but yourself, Sgt. Phil Cavanaugh of the Campus Police says students who have been robbed are usually victims of their own carelessness.

"A student leaving his door unlocked for a second is opened for robbery," Cavanaugh said. "We had two girls in here last night who had closed their door but didn't lock it. When they came back, they were missing a $150 stereo cassett player."

Cavanaugh says most stolen property is taken to Springfield or Boston where it's sold for a fraction of the original cost.

"The only way stolen property can be identified is by serial numbers or a name written inside," he explained. "Students should take the time to write down the serial numbers of stereos, bicycles, typewriters, tape recorders and any other valuable item."

The University Police have a teletype system connected to the National Crime Information Center in Washington according to Cavanaugh. They broadcast information all around the country. The key is numbers onany item, the Sergeant said.

Cavanaugh feels one of the biggest problem for police is witnesses who delay calling in crimes.

"It's extremely frustrating when there are 4-5 witnesses who call an hour later. Students are afraid to call because they figure it's other students stealing, said Cavanaugh. "They think they'll tell them to return the property when they see them again. That worked a couple years ago but not any more. Now mostly outsiders commit the crime on campus."

Cavanaugh feels the University Police force is "very undermanned." He said that at the present time there is a staff of 27 for 22,000 people. There used to be one man for every 100 students, he said. After the administration conducted a study last year the figure changed to 3.5 for every 1000, he added.

Policewoman Judy Jackson one of the two women on the force works as a desk clerk and on special assignments.

"I handle complaints which would be better handled by a female, i.e. female assaults, rapes, she said. It was her opinion that most crime occurs between the hours of 5 p.m. and 7 a.m., when thieves can work unobserved.

"The highest crime area is Southwest because of its population," Miss Jackson said. "We rarely get calls from Orchard Hill. They have their own security system which works very well."

Policewoman Jackson agreed with Sgt. Cavanaugh about student carelessness.

"Just leaving your room opened for a moment is dangerous, girls especially, with their pocketbooks", she said. Eight out of ten times robbery occurs when the student leaves his room opened for a "second", she went on.

"Outsiders usually know where they're going in dorms. If they spot something they like in a room that's opened, next time they'll go in and grab it. If a person goes looking for something to steal on campus he's going to find it and take it," according to the policewoman.

Figures show a marked increase in armed robbery, and theft at UMass in the past two years.

LARCENY REPORT FROM JANUARY 1,-AUGUST 31, 1971

A. $100 and over---118 compared to 66 last year to date

B. Under 1100---268 compared to 88 last year to date

C. State property---44 compared to 41 last year to date

D. Auto parts & access.---102 compared to 30 last year to date

In the first two weeks of school there have been 134 complaints, 45 listed as larcenies.

The Society That Could Be Better...

Continued from Page 1

cannot have world order unless every one wins. And here is where for the first time in human history we have the technological, the scientific basis to support feasibly that objective. For the first time in the history of mankind, the comfort of one man does not depend on the discomfort of another. We do not have to have a servant class to have a ruling class. It is not necessary. But the mentality of the world is a mentality of the distribution of scarce resources and the competition for those resources and that is an obsolete reality. The reality of the world today, my belief is, that every man may enjoy the highest standards of physical comfort, psychological acceptance, and spiritual awareness because that too is a result of the technological advance. For the first time in the history of mankind every man may have enough leisure that he may contemplate for himself his intellectual, his personal, and his spiritual destiny; and that is unique in this age.

As long as there is poverty in the world, there will be this scrambling, this fierce competition for survival that will in essence perpetuate the need for racism.

All of us have to feel that we have as much or more of a stake in the School's commitment to institutional racism than anyone else. I mean, if you look at the Committee to Combat Institutional Racism, it isn't a black committee. It is a committee representing the diversity of the School in all of its dimensions. Don't view your participation here as an opportunity to come and patronize the black and minority members of our School's society. If that is your attitude, then we will all fail-because the problem of combatting institutional racism is as much a white problem and a yellow problem or a red problem or a black problem or a purple problem. It is a problem of people. That is what it is a problem and we are all people and we all have an opportunity to live in the society that could be better if we succeed in our task.

(Playthell Benjamin, a professor in the Afro-American Studies Department, spoke at one of the retreat's plenary sessions. A summation of his remarks follow.)

The consequences of racism are both psychological and physical. They include themes, sanctioned by law, continued white oppression and lack of vertical mobility of development.

When the black man arrived in this country as indentured servants, the law was openly the instrument of oppression. In every situation, advancement was the consequence of a crisis.

The history of the United States is replete with policies and instances of racism, from Abraham Lincoln's statement, "I do not advocate equality" to both world wars when blacks were not allowed to work in national defense plants.

Civil Rights movements are the most remarkable social movements. Malcolm X, Eldrige Cleaver, and George Jackson should be commended as social theorists.

COMBATTING RACISM-The School of Education held a retreat this weekend in the Campus Center, devoted to the topic of institutionalized racism. Excerpts from Dean Allen's speech begin on page one.

Error Noted In Handbook

The Provost's Office has noted the following error in the 1971-72 "Student Handbook":

on page 46, Paragraph "WF Period" should read "F Period"; and the subsequent reference to a notation of "WF" on the student record should read "F".

Student Senate
BOOK LOANS
Now Available
Student Senate
Office, Level 1
Campus Center

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742
10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

2:00 a.m. Feeding
Hampden Commons
Starting Monday, Sept. 20th
"THE PLACE" will be open for a "Quick" Burger and Shake until 2:00 a.m.
"BITES & PIECES" will close at midnight.

Join the DEBATE TEAM
No Experience Necessary
TUESDAY, SEPT. 21
7:30 p.m.
COLONIAL LOUNGE
STUDENT UNION

In The Nation And The World

Inflation Plagues Americans Abroad

(AP)-American unhappy about runaway inflation can expect little sympathy in some places overseas where prices have been rising far more sharply.

And President Nixon's announcement of a temporary wage-price freeze might be a ho-hum affair in countries where strict anti-inflation measures are commonplace.

In the last five years, inflation in the United States has boosted living costs nearly 25 per cent. In Britain, those costs have increased 32 per cent. In Japan, 30 per cent. In Brazil, living costs went up 21 per cent last year alone.

In Italy, a consumers' union is squabbling with butchers over whether the weight of wrapping paper should be included in figuring the cost of a pound of meat.

Beef prices in Italy have risen 24 per cent over the last five years. Beef has risen about 58 per cent in the same time in Britain, 40 per cent in France and 33 per cent in Australia. In the United States, beef prices have gone up 15 per cent.

Apartment rent has risen an average 40 per cent over five years in France and Therese Alie, a 31-year-old Paris working mother, complains her rent will double in the next two years. "That's not inflation, that's murder," she says.

In the same period, rents have climbed 40 to 50 per cent in Britain, 44 per cent in Australia, 20 to 36 per cent in West Germany and 25 per cent in Japan. The increase for the United States is 18 per cent.

During these last five years, the average British steelworker's paycheck went up 50 per cent. In the United States, an average steelworker's pay rose 25 per cent, but it went up 33 per cent in Australia, 46 per cent in West germany and more than 100 per cent in Japan.

Some form of wage and price controls have been operating within the last five years in Brazil, Belgium, France and Britain.

Basic foods are subject to price controls in Britain and the government must give tacit approval to all pay raises.

Quarterly adjustments are made on mortgages, savings accounts, owed taxes and government bonds to compensate for increased costs of living.

France clamped down on prices after disturbances in May-June 1968 and encouraged housewives to complain to shopkeepers. When these measures proved inadequate, the government began what was called as a temporary price freeze in 1969.

Common Market To Discuss Recent U.S. Trade Measures

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)-The Council of Ministers of the European Economic Community will conduct a full debate today on the effects of the recent American protective trade measures.

Last week they called for monetary reform, and urged a dollar devaluation as part of a world currency alignment.

The Community, or Common Market, is a trading bloc comprising France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The debate, under the presidency of Italy's Foregin Minister Aldo More, is expected to be inconclusive. West Germany is hesitant to propose strong action or threats of retaliation.

The debate will be based on a study by the commission of the international body which notes that the Community forces a trade deficit of about $2 billion this year, due to the recent U.S. measures and to increases registered by Common Market currency exchange rates.

The study said that the six-nation trading bloc's exports to non-member countries probably would increase by only four or five per cent this year instead of the eight per cent earlier forecast. The trade deficit with non-member states has been running at the rate of a few hundred million dollars this year.

The commission report said while there has not been any marked impact so far on the Common Market economy, pressure of exchange rates threaten to push rates higher than is tolerable from an economic and employment point of view.

The U.S. 10 per cent import surcharge would affect 87 per cent of Community's exports to the United States, amounting to $5.7 billion or 12.8 per cent of total Common Market exports. Major product groups affected are automobiles, machines, iron and steel, textiles, clothing and shoes.

On Monday afternoon, the ministers will prepare for negotiations with Britain Tuesday and with the non-candidate countries of the European Free Trade Association later this year.

Withdrawals Should Be Balanced

BONN, Germany (AP)---Chancellor Willy Brandt's government said Sunday, Bonn and Moscow agree that troop reductions in Europe must not be limited to the United States and the Soviet Union.

A day after Brandt returned from three days of talks in the Crimea with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, government spokesman Conrad Ahlers told a news conference they found three common principles in their discussions on proposed mutually balanced troop withdrawals in Europe.

The first was that negotiations for troop withdrawals could not be left to the two super-powers alone. "All these countries affected should be involved," Ahlers said.

Within the framework of such negotiations, involving the Western alliance and the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact nations, reductions of national European troops as well as U.S. and Soviet forces stationed in Europe should be discussed, he added.

The Soviet leadership also agrees with Bonn that the geographical area affected by troop reductions should not be limited to Germany alone, Ahlers said.

He added that the two countries feel troop withdrawals should form one of the topics to be handled in the Moscow-proposed European security conference. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is willing to start multilateral preparations for such a conference as soon as a satisfactory solution is found for the problem of divided Berlin situation to be negotiated by West and East Germany. But the German talks are bogged down in a dispute over differing German translations of the four-power accord.

He also announced that Brandt will brief the U.S., British and French ambassadors, Western signatories of the four-power pact, on the meeting with Brezhnev. State Secretary Egon Bahr, Brandt's leading East European expert and his chief negotiator in the inter-German talks, also will be present at the meeting. Bahr accompanied the chancellor to the Crimea.

Papa Gino Meets Fu-Manchu

MILAN, Italy (AP)-Umberto Melotti, editor of a political magazine, wanted to go for "work and study."

Renata Pisu, who went to school there, wanted to return for "sentimental" reasons.

Renato Musaccio, a south Italian doctor, wanted to go so badly he asked young Italian "Maoists"-in vain-to help get him a visa.

Melotti, Musaccio and Miss Pisu were among 12 Italians who left Milan by plane Sunday for what is described here as the first group tourist trip to Communist China organized in the West.

The travelers will join two other Italians who had preceded them to Hong Kong.

The journey is the first of its kind since Italy and Communist China formally recognized each other last Nov. 6, opening a new era of trade and political contacts between the two countries.

The tour was arranged by the Italian tourist agency Navitur, with the collaboration of Switzerland's national airline, Swissair. The 24-day journey will take them to Canton, Shanghai, Nanking and Peking on tourist visas issued by the Chinese government.

The trip cost each traveler about 1.5 million lire or $2,400.

Officials say the 12 were among about 100 Italians who applied to visit China.

Fulbright:Congress Has Right To Know

WASHINGTON (AP)-Sen. J. W. Fulbright, (D)-ARK., said Sunday a General Accounting Office report has demonstrated the need for new legislation to protect the right of Congress to obtain information from the executive branch.

The report he said shows "that Congress, watchdog on the Treasury and GAO has been defanged in investigating programs involving the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars."

The report resulted from a request by the Foreign Relations Committee, which Fulbright heads, for the GAO to compile a list of instances in which it had been denied access to information on U.S. government programs overseas.

The report said outright denials by the executive branch of access to records on foreign programs are quite rare.

But, it went on, the GAO's big problems has been with "frustrations and delays" which often have prevented it from looking at the information in time to use it effectively in audits and investigations.

Stanton Cops White Award

NEW YORK (AP)-Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, has been chosen as recipient of the Paul White Memorial Award for the most significant contribution to the advancement of broadcast journalism in 1971.

The Radio Television News Directors Association will present the award to Stanton for his "courageous and determined efforts in defending the broadcast journalist's constitutional rights in the face of a proposed contempt of Congress citation, arising from the subpoenaing of nonbroadcast material used in preparation of the documentary, 'The Selling of the Pentagon.'"

It will be the second Paul White award for Stanton, who moves up to vice chairman of CBS on Oct. 1. He first was honored in 1957

Spectrum

The general interest magazine of University of Massachusetts

Open Recruitment Meeting
Thursday Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m.
in the Spectrum office (S.U. 407)

Is Art, Poetry, Fiction or Photography your thing?

BODIES WANTED

The Westfield Detention Center

Needs You

Meeting in Room 917, Campus Center

Sept. 20, 1971 - 7:30 p.m. (today)

A group is being formed to work with kids (commonly called juvenile delinquents) at the Westfield Detention Center.

Group Responding to SOS

A group of students on campus are planning to take action in response to a request made by Larry Dye of the Westfield Detention Center at last week's Attica teach-in. Dye's request was for help at the detention center which holds approximately 50 kids for a variety of charges. A meeting and rap sessions is scheduled tonight at 7:30 PM in room 917 of the Campus Center for all interested and together students.

The group forming to work at Westfield is a response to Attica in one way. According to a spokesman, what is sought is a change in correction and the institutions in society that promote such concentration camps through self education, he said. The most immediate goal is to provide a constructive outlet for the kids at the Westfield Detention Center.

Volunteers at the detention center in the past have found work there sometimes upsetting. Kids hardened by the state's correctional institutions and philosophy have viewed volunteers with the same distrust as they view the staff members hired by the state to maintain the status quo. This meant that people made their living physically controlling kids and their activities rather than dealing with the kid's problems which often result from adults and their society.

THE GATEWAY TO THE Westfield Hotel-free room and board as one kid suggested. Kids are held at the detention center for days or months depending on the courts. The big problem is having nothing to do.

The need now is for manpower. People to do things inside and outside the detention center. Staff at the detention center is low, so the need for volunteers is great.

An example of what this means hits hard on one boy who wants to go to school. Because there is no one available to take this boy out of the detention center he can not do a simple thing that would maintain his educational status while being held by the state.

"Generally the key in this situation is activities. Volunteer staff is needed to create more activities to diminish the chaos and tension within the building," according to a spokesman for the group. The lack of activity turns kids against staff and against themselves, he said.

Refunds Ready at Whitmore

By CYNTHIA HEMENWAY

Students who received notice of University scholarship awards too late to credit them to this semester's bill can collect their money at the Cashier's Office after Friday, September 17th.

The delay in awarding the scholarships was due to late appropriation of the funds, according to Lynn E. Santner, Acting Director of Financial Aid.

He said in addition to the late notice, it is significant that there was "little money to go around this year."

In the entire University, only between 35% and 45% of the students received any form of aid, including employment, Santner said. Last spring and summer, only 900 of 1230 scholarship applications were accepted.

There was even less assistance in the area of National Defense Loans, Santner said: 900 applications and 600 acceptances.

Financial Aid money is allocated in basically four parts: state aid, as channelled through the budget and voted by the legislature; federal assistance; private endowments which go mostly to the school of agriculture; and the CCEBS scholarship program, dealing with disadvantaged minority groups.

The grants this past year were equal to those of previous years, but because of increased costs and more applicants, the available awards became smaller.

Santner said: "We realize we haven't even begun to take care of all the needs on campus. Sometime soon in the future we hope to be granting all money possible to all students."

Alioto Trial Opens Today

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)-San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, who is in the midst of a re-election campaign, continues another battle today as a $2.3 million civil trial opens.

Alioto, 55, is one of three defendants in a suit brought by the state of Washington and several public utilities districts, seeking to recover legal fees paid for anti-trust litigation in the 1960s.

The civil suit was filed after it learned that Alioto had paid more than $800,000 of the $2.3 million he earned to the Washington attorney general and an assistant attorney general in 1967.

Alioto repeatedly has denied any impropriety in sharing the fees with the then Atty. Gen. John J. O'Connell and the assistant, George K. Faler, who are co-defendants with Alioto.

The suit contends the fee splitting was concealed and illegal.

Besides the civil suit, a federal grand jury has indicted Alioto, O'Connell, Faler and former prosecuting attorney John G. McCutcheon of Pierce County, Wash., on charges of conspiring to bribe state officials.

The trial on those charges is scheduled in Seattle in January.

Political observers rate his chances for re-election as good but the decision of Dianne Feinstein, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, to run against Alioto may change the nature of the race.

The 38-year-old woman, who waited until Friday's deadline before filing for the nonpartisan post, is Alioto's only Democratic rival. Five political unknowns and former newspaper editor and magazine publisher Scott Newhall also are in the race.

WMUA

Tonight at WMUA:

7:00 p.m. Evening News-a full half hour of world, regional, and local news from United Press International, Associated Press, and WMUA News.

7:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. The Drum-popular black program with black poetry, soul, jazz, news and many festures. Serving the black community with information and entertainment.

11:00 p.m. Late Night News Report-another full half hour of comprehensive news compiled by WMUA News.

11:30 p.m. to 3:00 a.m. R.J. Hanson puts together three and a half hours of progressive rock, jazz, etc.

91.1 FM on your dial.

FOR SCHOOL SUPPLIES
SEE
A. J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
45 South Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Everyone knows what a sisterhood is.
We're one of those.
But we're not a sorority.
The Unique Chi Delphia offers the sense of Belonging to a Brotherhood
Without being a coed fraternity.
We're on our own and we're with
The Brothers of Delta Chi.
A small, friendly group of girls
Who share with the Brothers.
Share what with the Brothers?

Come to the house & find out.

All interested girls invited to meet the Sisters and Brothers

at
DELTA CHI FRATERNITY HOUSE
314 Lincoln Ave.
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 8 p.m.

for more info. call Donna 6-6333.

If You Dig Music Read On!

Special Offer
8-TRACK TAPES
$2.50 - $3.00
anything from acid rock to country western
Tremendous Savings
8-TRACK PLAYER
PORTABLE AC-DC
under $30.00

Plus much more : TVs, Radios, the works.

FOR INFO CALL 546-5648 and ask for Paul Brown 204 B

October 3, 1971
3:30 p.m.
&
8:30 p.m.
C. C. Program Council
presents

at.
C. C. Auditorium
tickets - $2.00
On sale at S. U. Ticket office starting 12:00 noon, Sept. 22.

Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics

Take a free Mini-Lesson and increase your reading speed on the spot!

Take a Free Mini-Lesson

In 60 minutes, over 80% of our Mini-Lesson audiences increase their reading speed. Just a little, but enough to know what it's like. At the Mini-Lesson, you will find out how the Evelyn Wood technique handles difficult textbook material. How it improves memory and concentration. And, how it makes reading a pleasure instead of a chore. The Mini-Lesson is one hour that could change your life, too!

Success Warranty!

95% success! Anyone who fails to improve at least 3 times receives a full tuition refund!

FINAL MINI-LESSONS

UNIV. OF MASS. CAMPUS CENTER, ROOM 908
Monday, Sept. 20 at 4 p.m. or 7 p.m. or 9 p.m.
For further information call
PAUL MURPHY 253-2425.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jerry Lazar
NEWS STAFF — Janet Hughes, Steve Fine
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen
DARKROOM — Alan Chapman, Rich Hinckley
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Our Daily Racism

Back during the Civil War slavery was declared unconstitutional and blacks were freed. Like most of the other prejudices that man has, racism became institutionalized-unheard of except in our minds and actions.

We practice institutionalized racism by automatically assuming that a black student is a CCEBS student.

We practice institutionalized racism by assuming that a Spanish-speaking student is Puerto Rican.

We practice institutionalized racism by being afraid to see an art exhibit in the Black Cultural Center.

We practice institutionalized racism by believing that those using hard drugs on campus are black and come from Springfield.

We practice institutionalized racism by collecting dorm dues, not realizing that everyone can't afford them.

The examples are endless.

In his Convocation address, Chancellor Tippo urged that action be taken to recruit more men and women of minority groups as graduate students, faculty members, and as administrators. He also urged that greater efforts be made to provide financial aid for students from economically deprived areas. We applaud his efforts.

The School of Education has committed itself toward ending institutionalized racism in that School. It began this past weekend by having a School-wide retreat that brought the issue into the open.

Every department and school in this University should follow the advice of Chancellor Tippo and the actions of the School of Education in recognizing that institutionalized racism is a major problem of our age.

Ending institutionalized racism must be a major priority of every student, teacher and administrator.

Don Glickstein

The Circumlocution Office

What here is this?

The day is uncertain. The clouds, unsure of whether to break or billow, shed a greyish light on the pond. The Campus Center hovers in its doubtful splendor, remindful of its architect who still lives, designing edifices not for the city, neither for the country, nor even for suburbia, but for someplace in between. Cars hesitate as they drive on North Pleasant Street, not knowing whether to drive over the speed limit and be gratefully past the Spenglerian University or abide by the law and endure its graphite atmosphere.

In the great shadow of the Goodell Library, between the aged brick of South College, near the often here, often gone "DETOUR" sign of the rubble, a girl sits. She is weeping, her tears drenching her full face and flowing down beneath her chin to be absorbed on her neck by a black choker.

Her body suggests neither a psych major, an art major, nor a chemistry major, but perhaps an interdisciplinary field, for she wears a combination of beaten hiking boots, a plaid and pleated skirt, a ruffled blouse, and the choker.

Intermittant Humanists pass by and ask of her, "Can I help you? Do you need any help?" to which the unfortunate weeps only harder, as if those very words were repugnant. Hearing no answer, the Humanist shrugs his shoulders and mutters, "Man, you're fucked up. Get your head together, baby. If you're on a bum trip, why don't you go to Room to Move?, and keeps on truckin'.

Now, a lanky man, with plastic-rimmed glasses and short hair, stops before the girl. He picks her up and uttering soft, soothing words with a genial Midwestern accent, carries the pour one to his office. He deposits her, still weeping, on a pillowy couch, and urges her to talk.

One last time. She struggles to raise herself and haltingly speaks.

"All I asked was, 'I wonder if you could help me' and they sent me to the Counseling Center. The counselor there told me to see my corridor counselor and she said that I must either go to my head of residence, who wasn't in, or the area coordinator. Days 1 spent searching for my area coordinator before I gave up and entered an office which said "AREA DEAN". The gentlenan there referred me to Mental Health, where I was told to make an appointment or go to the Infirmary. I didn't mind waiting an hour and a half at Infirmary except that the doctor there told me that I must walk to Room To Move which was in the process of moving its room from Wheeler House to the Student Union. A person there accompanied me to CASIAC where a girl said I must go to my department office. They said I have to see my school dean so I ended up at South College. A very weird man there who really didn't say anything although he spoke a long time, muttered something about the School of Education. Their Undergraduate Affairs Office sent me to Whitmore, where the Dean of Students passed me on to the Registrar's Office which in turn passed me on to Placement and Financial Aid, which said that I must go to the Provost's Office which sent me to the Vice-Chancellor who sent me to another Vice-Chancellor who sent me to the Dean of Women who asked me if I had spoken to my freshman orientation counselor. When I said that I didn't remember who he was, someone answered that if that was the case, I had better go to the Counseling Center or to my faculty advisor or to the Ombudsman. I don't even know what an Ombudsman is!"

The girl finally collapses in exhausted confusion.

Confused, my Chancellor! Confused, my Boards of Trustees! Confused, my professional and confessional counselors of every order! Confused, men and women with Humanistic compassion in your hearts! And being confused thus around us every day!

The disgrace of counseling and advising at the University of Massachusetts is that it is so disorganized. Counselors (school, psychological and career) are ill-advised or poorly developed. Even the first exposure to the University at freshman orientation to the Placement Office on Graduation Day, students are bombarded with alternatives, telephone numbers, referrals and advice.

There lies the problem.

Where to go for help is a perplexing, dominating and fearful question for the student whose needs fall in between the defined jurisdictions of existing organizations or for the student who simply has not read the volumes of catalogues and University Directions booklets.

There is no central, comprehensive University counseling and advising agency. Rather, not unlike the imposing bureaucracies of our cities with sketchy "Action Lines" and clumsy Little City Halls, the University has organized itself into inpenetrable little boxes, that separate academic guidance from psychological from vocational. Even within these boxes, more boundaries are drawn, and a person must choose between the Counseling Center or Mental, faculty or college and school advisors.

Horizontal referrals are made, which often start a student on a governmental runaround. If this does not happen, an advisor will, more often than not, impart his own ignorance to the student, about fields which he knows little. The biggest loser in the University information and free advice game is the student in need of academic and vocational aid.

A former dean in the College of Arts and Sciences used to tell freshmen that Home Ec was more than "knitting and cooking". It was unconvincing, because he was unaware of specific courses freshmen might be interested in, that they could take.

—Incompetent faculty volunteer for "advising" during freshmen and transfer preregistration, solely because they are paid a lucrative $35 for 2 or 3 hours work. As a result, students are preregistered for courses that don't exist (the faculty use the wrong catalogue), a speech advisor tells a communications disorders major to take the wrong introductory course, a science advisor is not aware that a 6-credit intensified language course is equivalent to 2 courses.

—Other advisors in other schools are unaware of the intricacies of the core requirements, that freshman veterans must take gym, that Rhetoric 100 and Rhetoric 140 are not sequential.

—A government advisor is not open-minded enough in the School of Business Administration to his advisee.

Too late, a student discovers that his vocational desire is not chemistry, but food science, and the department advisor has not been concerned enough to give the student vocational guidance and send him away from the department and into a different school.

A prospective high school teacher is given an old set of requirements from his faculty advisor, who hasn't heard from the School of Ed about its new programs.

Freshman orientation counselors not in Arts and Sciences are excluded from a general information and training meeting, even though more than a year of courses must be taken in the CAS by other majors.

—A PE major who wanders into CASIAC is told that his folder is in PE and that he doesn't really belong in CASIAC.

—The only orientation a student receives is a 2-3 day crash program, during which much is learned, and little absorbed. Meanwhile, only Engineering and Education majors have developed freshmen "orientation to the University" seminars.

—Exemption from requirements is a hazy procedure, as the Counseling Center holds some of the tests, language departments hold others, and other departments rely on interview and college boards.

Conflicting information, misinformation, endless referral, a plethora of possibilities, ignorance and just indifference characterize counseling and advising at UMass.

The solutions are clear.

1) A central and comprehensive counseling and advising center must be established, manned by faculty (2/3 or full-time), student counselors, vocational advisors, psychologists, and social workers, each specialists in one field and generalists in all, with no departmental ax to grind, with free and complete access to all School and departmental publications and programs, each working together.

2) Each incoming freshman must be assigned an individual advisor, preferably a faculty member or administrator not necessarily in the student's field, who works in conjuction with the counseling and advising center. The student should be free to change the advisor at any time. The adviser should have full authority to waive requirements.

3) A freshman and transfer summer similar to those in Project 10 and the School of Ed will orientate every incoming student of a small flexible informal class.

The University has grown like cities. First, a desire for convenient and applicable location. Then, the growth of a great central core. Most recently, people have cried for decentralization. Somehow, somewhere in between, the University must find the ideal compromise between a centralized, efficient, impersonal counseling and advising model, and decentralized, responsive, but less resourceful models. The question is not one of curtailment and consolidation, but of alternatives.

No More Cookie Monster??

WASHINGTON—Recent statements by television network officials indicate that their programming this year will be aimed at youth and young married people who have more money to spend than their eldermore conservative-spending parents. Since TV is nothing but an advertising medium in this country, it's hard to fault the networks and their sponsors for wanting to reach the people most likely to buy their products.

The truth of the matter is that old people just won't go out and spend money, and for that reason there is no reason to indulge them in any way.

You would think the elderly would be bitter about being considered "nonpersons" by advertisers, but on the contrary they seem very philosophical about it.

My Uncle Phil said, "I knew the handwriting was on the wall some years ago when the Saturday Evening Post canceled my subscription because they discovered I was over the mandatory age of 45 to read their magazine."

"That's true Uncle Phil, but it's one thing for a magazine to drop older people as readers, but it's another for all three networks to decide to go after the youth market."

"We have only ourselves to blame. It's true we don't have too much money to spend. The reason we don't is we spent it all on our kids, whom the sponsors now insist they want to reach. If we hadn't given all our savings to our children, the advertisers would be making programs for us instead of them."

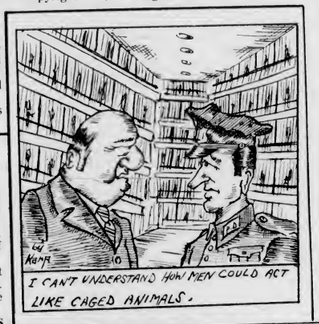
"It still seems a brutal thing to do," I said.

"You have to look at it from their standpoint," Uncle Phil said. "What good is it to make entertainment for people who can't buy a sports car, or who don't care if they have bad breath, or who are too tired to fly the friendly skies of United? If God wanted the networks to appeal to senior citizens, He would have seen to it that they got a lot more Social Security."

"It's nice of you to see it from the advertiser's viewpoint, Uncle Phil."

"Why shouldn't I?" he said. "It isn't as if the networks purposely wanted to exclude the elderly from their programming. But they have to think of what's good for the country. And what's good for the country is a strong economy, and the only way you can have a strong economy is if people go out and buy the things they see advertised on television. Elderly people might go out and buy a bottle of aspirin once in a while, or a can of corn, but Doris Day or Sonny and Cher can't live on that."

"I can see your point," I said. "But why do the networks rub it in? Why don't they just go ahead with their programming without announcing who they're appealing to?"



"The men who run the networks are very nervous and worried men. They know for a fact that the people who really have time to watch television are the elderly, the sick and the unemployed. The last group is getting larger every day.

"The young people either don't care about watching TV or they have the money to go to a movie, a ballgame or a play. So the networks have to announce what they're doing to reassure the advertisers that they're making programs for other people besides the deadbeats."

"And doesn't this bother you?"

"Why should it? No matter what they announce, they always put on the same junk they put on the year before."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

As in previous years the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letter will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

Editorial Points

Discovery of the year!!! Marijuana causes brain damage to rats! (But how many people do you know who share their grass with rats?)

* * *

Chancellor Tippo tells us that germanium and petunias make lovely pets. Yes, but they sure look strange at the end of a leash.

* * *

Pierpont House rid itself of all its dope and now look what it's got: a dorm filled with game addicts, playing "Risk", whist, "Monopoly" and "Diplomacy" every weekend from midnight to dawn.

* * *

It seems that everyone must abide by the wage-price freeze except the food services. The price for a small coke at "Bites and Pieces" is now 15¢. Not bad for half a cup of ice.

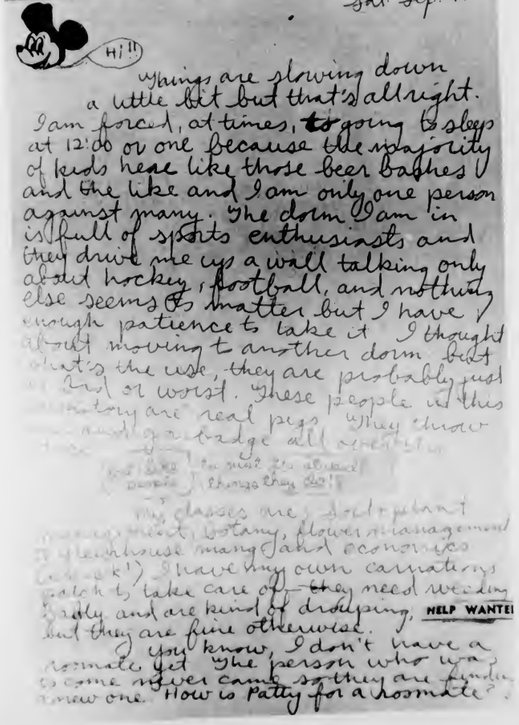
* * *

Mr. Justice Black has resigned from the Supreme Court. Spiro Agnew is reportedly not being considered for this responsible post.

* * *

The Redmen won their first game. Huzzah.

A Good Job, Boys



By BILL GORCZYCA

The New York State Police, National Guard, prison officials and the whole unholy crew involved in the massacre at Attica can sleep peacefully now, for Nelson Rockefeller ruled last Thursday that there was no indiscriminate firing at Attica and that the deaths of thirty-nine hostages and inmates could be ruled as "justifiable homicide". Of course, Rocky was in the best possible position to make these decisions: far away from the maddening crowd.

But this is exactly what his role as governor calls for. He displays his leadership by turning a deaf ear on the pleas of half-crazed inmates and then placing the burden of pressing decision directly on the shoulders of his subordinates. When the job has been botched so badly that his henchmen come running to him with blood on their hands, he gives them all a pat on the back. You did a good job boys. Just think of all the lives you saved by murdering those thirty-nine people.

It is interesting to note that on the same day that Governor Rockefeller displayed his own peculiar brand of leadership by making a whitewash of the Attica massacre, Governor Sargent of Massachusetts flaunted his leadership capabilities by saying that the prisons of Massachusetts are in need of reform. That must be the greatest understatement of the year. It is unfortunate, however, that the Massachusetts House killed an entire prison reform package submitted to it last week. Oh well, maybe we can have our own little Attica right here in the Commonwealth someday. We might even break Rockefeller's record of thirty-nine justifiable homicides in less than ten minutes.

(The following letter was found abandoned in the Campus Center. We reprint it because it describes so eloquently our campus.-Ed.)

Another Year!

Kids Enjoy Bowditch Day Care

By JILL PELTIN

Boys and girls alike enjoy the many activities offered by the Bowditch DCC: from playing with building blocks (left) to snacktime, (above). There's always something for kids to do at Bowditch Lodge. And there's still room for twenty more students.

"I like to play in the sandpile, make mud and fight." These are the words of three-year-old Billy, one of the twenty "students" at the child day care center located at Bowditch Lodge. The center is run by Mrs. Betsey Pelz.

"The most amazing fact is that the kids really do like it and have a great time learning and playing," Mrs. Pelz says. "I think the reason they do like it so much is that we don't make them do anything."

There are different activities going on all the time, from making their own snacks to writing their names.

The staff (which at most is on a ratio of one staff member per four children) work with the children teaching them to distinguish sizes, shapes and odors; how to count, and on an individual basis, how to write their own names and use them for name tags.

There is music playing constantly: sometimes just for listening, other times the floor is open for dancing.

The children paint pictures, paste and cut out magazines. There is always something for the kids to do.

The center opens at 7:45 and there are two sessions, 7:45-12:00 and 1:00-5:00. At this point there are only twenty students, and there is room for twenty more, so all applications are being accepted

Clean Food Seminar Subject

The department of hotel, restaurant and travel administration at UMass will present an eight-session seminar for food service people on "Sanitation in Food Service Operations" in Waltham beginning Tuesday, Sept. 28.

The two-hour evening sessions will be held in the auditorium of the University's Waltham Field Station, 240 Beaver St., from 7 to 9 p.m. on Sept. 28, Oct. 5, 12, 19, and 26, and Nov. 2, 9, and 16. It is an offering of the Cooperative Extension Program of the College of Agriculture.

Currently, food service sanitation is of increasing concern to health and regulatory agencies, and is likely to be the subject of more drastic legislation in the not distant future, according to Charles E. Eshbach, associate professor in the sponsoring department, who is in charge of the seminar.

The meetings will feature an examination of the situation as it exists today, a definition of the food sanitation problem in terms of food service operations, and the microbiology instruction necessary for understanding the problem. Special attention will be directed to bacterial food poisoning and how to prevent it, pest control in food service locations, and the laws, regulations, and legislation concerned with food service sanitation.

The seminar is designed for people in all types of food service operations, and is open to all interested. There is a registration fee of $25 and advance registration is necessary. Applications and additional information are available from the Department of Hotel, Restaurant, and Travel Administration.

SWAP

The Student Workshop on Activities Problems is a group of about 200 students, faculty, administrators, trustees, and legislators that meets off campus once a year to discuss many phases of University life--its problems, rewards, and effects.

If you are a freshman or upperclassman willing to become involved in preparing for a meaningful SWAP 1971 program come to

Rooms 904-908 Campus Center

at 7:00 P.M. today,

Monday, September 20, 1971

CHI OMEGA

Frat. - Sorority Park.

Open Rush

All University Women Invited

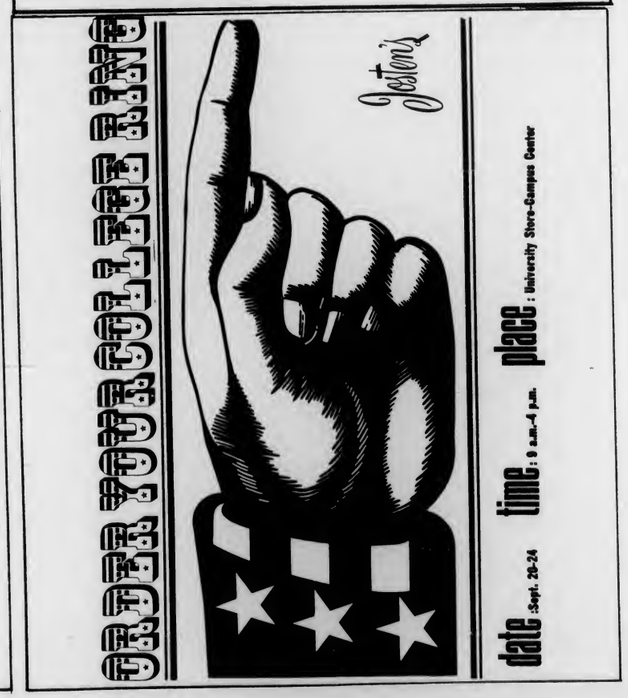
Thurs., Sept. 16 -	7:00 - 8:00	8:15 - 9:15
Mon., Sept. 20 -	7:30 - 9:00
Thurs., Sept. 23 -	7:30 - 9:00

Chi O's will pick you up before each party in the Lobbies of Thoreau Leach, Newman Center, Van Meter, and Dickenson. The cars will be there 15 min. before each party or call anytime for a ride -

Come and meet us!

Education Through Involvement

NES Tutoring Needs Volunteers



to Tutor in Springfield

If interested in tutoring in economically deprived areas of Springfield attend either of these meetings.

this Sunday Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Elementary Age Tutors in Mahar Auditorium

Secondary Age Tutors in SBA 120

The Great Marijuana War

By David Williams

Part II

New York City is full of shit. Literally. Friday night I was standing outside the Duster trying to figure out a street map of Greenwich Village and I stepped in a big pile of dog shit. That really pissed me off so I didn't even bother to find out how to get where we were going, I just got right back in the car and started swearing.

Eric couldn't stop laughing. He was getting a big kick out of it. I felt like wiping some on him.

"C'mon. Just get the hell away from here. Find a cop, we'll ask him how to get there."

"A cop? Are you kidding." Eric didn't think I meant it. He pulled over to the sidewalk and asked this freak who was walking by. But the Village being the Village, the guy was gay and sort of hinted that he'd take us there himself.

We politely declined and he gave us the directions. Forty-five minutes later I told Eric to pull over and I'd find a cop. Which I did and we were there in no time. Eric was leaning way over the wheel staring at all the bright lights.

"Wow!" he exclaimed. "What is this place? Look at all those bright lights."

"Cool, huh? Give me a hand with these bags."

We rummaged around in all the junk in the trunk and pulled out the two plastic bags of marijuana. Hoist them up on the shoulder like a New York garbageman and in through the front door.

The bouncer stopped us and asked what did we think we were doing.

"Don't try to give me any grief," I snapped, "just go tell the boss that New England's Largest is here."

He scurried off down a dingy hall and slipped through a door. Two seconds later the door banged open and the boss came striding down the hall holding a cigar.

"Well, look who's here," he began, "If it isn't our man in Mazatlan. What brings you to the Big Apple?"

"Business," I said, and let the bag drop off my shoulder. It made a nice loud crunch noise when it landed on the floor. The boss chuckled.

"Still dealing the same old shit, eh?"

"Very funny," I said, "Very funny."

"Well actually, it wasn't too bad for goldenrod," he said, waving his hand in the air. "But let's get down to business and forget these embarrassing memories. What've you got this time."

"Sniff for yourself," I said, and opened up the bag.

The boss squatted down on his heels, and plunging his hands deep into the bag, lifted out a huge handful and held it up to his nose and sniffed.

"Smells okay."

He took a bigger sniff.

"Not bad. Not bad at all."

He stuck his whole face into the bag.

"Pretty good. This stuff is pretty good." He stood up straight and pressed his hands together in front of him.

"Tell you what, Dave. This stuff smells pretty good to me. I'll give you double what you paid for it and we'll call it a deal."

"You're on, Jack," I said.

He snapped his fingers and the dope disappeared. Two hands ih front of us waved a fan of green money; we grabbed, and the boss was gone. We could hear his voice fade away as he slinked quickly for the door.

"So long, boys. See you again."

Eric was standing there with a handful of money and a pained look on his face.

"Tell me what happened," he begged. But his face brightened as he fingered the new crisp money.

"I already know a good way to spend this, he said. "Yes, I know what I can do with this handful of bread. Let's get back to the Duster!"

Fifteen minutes later I was standing in the middle of the sidewalk on 42nd street practicing staring down people while Eric chased the hookers up and down the block. He lasted about an hour. He came back exhausted, completely spent.

"Whew," he panted "That's work. I had to chase them up and down the block until they all got in one place. Only prices have gone up and I didn't get a crack at all of them. Some bargain. I had to do the same amount of chasing as before, too. Eric found out what a bargain it was about four hours later when he had to go to the hospital. They wouldn't say what was wrong with him but said he'd have to be quarantined. I put the Duster in the hospital garage, said goodbye to Eric for a while and headed uptown.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the subway. I caught sight of an all too-familiar form at a newstand. Looking at the magazines, no doubt, I thought and walked over and tapped him on the shoulder.

He turned around and I let him have it.

"I thought you understood after our last little 'business venture', shall we say, that no one really wants to see your ugly face around here."

"C'mon, give me a break. You and that knucklehead you deal with down here in the Village both knew that that stuff was no good. Jesus, you two unloaded that for more than you paid me. Why get sore at me? How would you like to be able to get people to to beg to buy worthless dope all the time? I mean, so much of what you find being sold in the street is just such shit. If you could come up with some really great shit, then your problems would be solved.

He was beginning to get excited.

"Think of it, man. If we can come up with some kind of weed that's cheaper than grass, but just as good, then all our worries are over, forever! The thing is, though, that that would take all the fun out of smoking dope. Who'd want to admit he got high off of ragweed or something? Not me, man. So what we'd have to do is convince people that what they're smoking now is just pure crap next to what we sell them. That's all. Advertizing."

"Where do you get this 'we' baloney, anyway?" I asked.

"...He was a juggler, y'unnerstand? A juggler, that's all. And all he kept in the trunk was clothes...."

"Even if I decide to just listen to you, I'm still not going to pay any attention to you. You can talk all you want and I'll agree with everything you say. I listen to you too much for my own good."

"Listen, here's all we have to do." His voice dropped to a low mesmerizing mumble, and soon found myself listening to him, paying attention to what he was saying, and agreeing with every word he said.

Bright and early Saturday morning, about 3 a.m. to be exact, we were blundering our way into the flower merchant district where there are a lot of these big supply houses full of every kind of florist supplies you can think of. We were on our way down to cop the biggest lot of the best looking plain old weed weed that florists use in displays that we could. One hundred pounds we figured would be easy enough to follow in the streets. That was the second part of the plan. We hired these little kids to hang around Washington Square all day Saturday and watch people. By ten in the morning, with all the little kids positioned, my new partner, whose name is Art, by the way, would drop word that he'd copped a lot of good dope. He'd emphasize the good. He'd be at the arch at noon. Anyone who was interested would saunter by and tell him how much. Then Art would go back up to his apartment and make up the orders. Meanwhile, each one of the little kids picks out which buyer he wants to follow around and he sticks to him as soon as the buyer makes his pickup. Then a whole new batch of little kids would follow the people that this man sold to. Washington Square, we reasoned, was full of enough little kids running around on a Saturday morning so that nobody would be suspicious of a little kid who was following him around. We would then talk to all the little kids and found out who sold what to whom and for how much and then we'd have our guinea pig sample for flooding the entire market with inferior weed. We'd know just how much to order, and when. There'd be no waste, no fuss, no bother. Pretty soon there'd be enough bad weed around so that people forgot what good weed was like. And we would be the only ones who knew what was wrong with all the dope. We reasoned that most people didn't have a real feel for the plant they were smoking. All they were smoking was an ounce. They wouldn't know a marijuana plant if they saw one. But since we would have "dope" around all the time, it would gradually become more and more convenient for everyone to buy from us. Pretty soon we would capture the market on marijuana by selling ragweed or something.

That was the plan as we conceived it. All the way down to the flower exchange we kept adding refinements to it and thinking about how successful this whole thing was going to be. We sat around the flower exchange until trucks started bringing in the bales of weeds. They had a few unwrapped bales for samples. All the others were identical and wrapped in heavy paper. Each bale weighed 50 pounds and you had to buy a minimum of two. We took two. Art put them in his VW bus and we zoomed back to his apartment. We wrestled the bales up three flights of stairs into the middle of the living room, and then nearly collapsed. Art was the first to recover from the strain and began to putter around with brown butcher's paper and a scale and little shovel. He lay all his tools down on the floor, opened a sharp knife and began to cut the paper off the bales. He made three cuts on one bale and the front panel of paper fell forward.

We both gasped at once. Standing in front of us was a solid, 50 pound bale of bright green grass. We tore the paper off the other bale. Identical all right. 100 pounds of dope, all for chickenfeed. And we were supposed to be selling ragweed or something.

Art was upset. He was rolling a joint as fast as his shaking fingers would allow, but he wasn't shaking from excitement He was scared.

"We're ruined," he said bet

Continued on Page 10

The Great Marijuana War (continued)

ween nervous puffs, "We're ruined. Don't you see what's happened? We've scored. It's not weeds, it's grass, it's good grass, not weeds."

He began to moan a little. I didn't see any reason for the melodramatics, so I asked him to explain a little bit.

"We're in trouble, man. Can't you see that? We've scored someone elses' dope and he's bound to come looking for it. Where's that gonna leave us? Holding all these millions of Baggies? Bet your ass pal. We're in for it."

He sucked harder on the joint. He had a point. If this really was someone elses' shipment then they were bound to come looking for it. 100 pounds doesn't come cheaply, especially when it's supposed to be ragweed or something. But the stuff was sitting right in Art's living room and was falling out of the paper and all over the rug. What we were going to do with it?

Art answered my question for me.

"There's nothing we can do," he said slowly. "They'll go to get it, realize it's gone, ask a few questions and zingo! they know who we are and where we are. I just hope they can understand a simple mistake."

"Better hope some more in a hurry," I said," A long black Cadillac just pulled up in front of the building. Maybe we can get some of these roaches hidden and they won't be mad at us for smoking their dope."

I began to kick and scuff at the roaches lying on the floor. Art sat on the trunk watching me, the joint still burning in his hand.

"What are you doing?" he finally asked, in exasperation "Those are my roaches, man. Cut the shit..."

He was silenced by the tinkling of a little bell. We both listened intently. There it was again... bells...someone humming....

The rasp of the door buzzer snapped me alert. They were here! Art and I tripped over each other trying to open the door so they wouldn't shoot the lock off. We collided into the door and Art fell down. I got the door partway open and then pulled with all my strength. Art slid across the floor, pushed by the door, and bumped into the couch. I turned to face the person in the doorway.

"....It grows and grows and nobody knows...."

"Manuel!" I shrieked. "No, I don't believe it!"

"Yoohoo," Manuell called, waving a little silver bell that he wore on a cord around his neck, "May I come in?"

Sure, might as well. Come on in, Manuel.

"Well I certainly didn't expect this to happen after that good deal we pulled off together. I'm shocked. What do you have to say for yourselves? Well, speak up."

"Ah...I...uh...that. We didn't mean this to happen," I blurted out. "We were trying to cop some weeds and somehow we got your packages. We didn't mean it really."

"Oh, I believe you boys. But tell me, what were you going to do with all these nasty weeds?" Manuel asked.

"Art, you tell him. It was your idea," I said. Art began to give Manuel the gory details of how we were going to flood the market with poor quality smoke so that we could become rich. Manuel got redder and redder as Art talked. When Art finished, Manuel stood and glared at us.

"Wise hippee punks. People like you are always getting in my way. But this time I've got you dead to rights. Fingers in the proverbial cookie jar and all. Naughty, Naughty."

He began to huff and puff and make inarticulate noises. I was afraid he was having an attack of some sort. He mastered himself and cooled to a white heat. His face pale, his lips tense and white, he began to speak slowly.

"All right, boys. The game's over. Now I'm in charge and what I say goes."

He snapped his fingers and Carlos and another Mexican ran into the room, pushed us into chairs, and tied us up. They stood over us with pistols.

"Well, what do you think of this, my friends? Why don't we just sit here until I decide what to do with you."

My mind raced, trying to comprehend just exactly what all this meant. Carlos had a gun and we were tied in the chairs. Manuel was standing looking out the window, playing with the little silver bell. The baies of dope stood open on the floor, slowly crumbling under their own weight. I have it! I know what I have to do!

I have to get a message to Eric!

To Be Continued

MDC CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE

FOR SALE: AUTOS

1962 VW, fair body, rebuilt engine, gas, heater, sun-roof, excellent tires, $250 or best offer. Call 665-1062 after 5 p.m. or keep trying. tfn-20

'68 Fiat, red, 850 Spyder, 33,000 miles good cond. Call 549-1861 evenings after 6 p.m. tfn-22

1968 Opel, 38,000 original mi. Good condition. Best offer. Ray 549-6516. Also 125 cc Suzuki mi., 1971. tfn-20

1961 Falcon, rebuilt trans., new snows and batt. Great buy, $100. Call Crabtree and leave mess. for Grant, Rm. 206. tfn-22

Going to Europe, must sacrifice 1970 Maverick, ex. cond. 11,000 miles. Phone Ware, 1-477-6981. tfn-21

1968 MG-B(GT), very good condition, 3200. Priced below book $1850. Greenfield 773-7805. 9-15, 22, 29

1968 Ford Cortina, low mileage, good condition, 2 studded snow tires, $250. Call 586-2631. tfn-20

1968 Red Porsche 912, AM-FM-SW Radial Ply Tires $2200. Call 253-9608 or 545-2330 tfn-20

'65 Chev. Corvair Monza Conv., 4 speed, $488. Call 549-1969 betw. 5-6. tfn-21

'69 Triumph GT6—, excel. cond. 1700. Call Diane 413-533-6361. tfn-22

'68 Fiat Conv. 28,000 miles, excellent condition. Call 253-9221. Ask for Betsy or 253-5088. Call early. $1000 firm. tfn-20

'66 Ford Mustang, 6 cyl., good running condition $400. Call John 1111 256-8459 4/6-20

1961 GTO red conv. Best offer over $300. 527-8954. tfn-24

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sgl, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or jumbo $49.95. Immed. deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst. tfn-22

Ski Boots for sale - Kofiach White Star, 8 1/2 M, 2 yrs. old. Call 546-4184. tfn-20

1968 Austin Amer., 4 speed, 28,000 mi., good cond., AM-FM, new tires, best off. Call 546-6815. tfn-22

Must sell, used bread van, excellent condition, $250. Call 256-6863, ask for Gary. tfn-20

1961 Chevy Impala 2 speed Hirst shifter with an excl. 283 engine, Recent paint job. Dependable. $150 or best offer. Call Lynn 586-6115. tfn-20

Smith Corona electric portable typewriter used 3 wks. $115 new will sell for $125 or best offer. Sandy 5-1532 days, 549-6276 eves. tfn-22

Good stereo 80W amp, Garrard table, spkers, asking $150. Call 256-8459 Steve. tfn-20

'59 Volkswagen bus, 23,000 miles, sunroof, AM-FM radio built-in bed, perfect condition 885-4183. tfn-21

New medium size Presto electric broiler-oven; perfect for cooking; just about anything in your room, very low at $15. Call 256-8432. tfn-20

1967 Fiat 850 spe., exc. mech. cond. 35-40 mpg. $850. Call 1-568-8067 after 6 p.m. tfn-22

Volkswagen 1957, good condition, rebuilt engine, ideal for local use, one cosmetic blemish peachy $300. Call 1-367-9570 eves. tfn-21

1967 Opel Rallye, 31000 mi., well main., sell best offer or trade for bike. Jeff 6-8049, 913, T6. tfn-22

'68 Austin Healy Sprite $750., firm. Call Sam, RR Wheeler, 545-2413. tfn-24

'71 VW Super Beetle for sale since going back to Europe, exc. cond., still under warranty $1795. Call 549-1570 after 5 p.m. tfn-22

1963 Ford Sedan with 69 351 cu in., V8, 4 sped, exc. cond. $475.00. Ask for Mike Wilson Phi Sigma, 358 No. Pleasant St., Amherst. tfn-22

Going overseas, must sell quickly 68 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $150. 3 month old $100 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $30. Call 253-5090. tfn-24

ROOMMATES

Male to live in modern 3 bedroom apt. $80 per month. Apply Apt. 27 Rolling Green, Rt. 9. Available immediately tfn-22

Roommate wanted to share 5 room apt. in N'hampton. Own bedroom. Pref. female over 21. Rent $80 month. Call Laura 586-3361. tfn-22

MOTORCYCLES For Sale

350 Kawasaki Bighorn-1971-set for enduro competition $650., 250 Montesa Lacross-1967-strictly motocross, $350. Call 549-3873. tfn-21

ECONOMIST

Lost Economist vacancy of Thompson. If found return to 211. Sentimental value! tfn-22

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Call Mary 253-7673. If not there leave message. tfn-29

PERSONAL

To the sadistic bastards who killed the skunk outside Van Meter. Murder is murder and your Karmas will get you. tfn-20

FOR SALE

1966 BSA $650., runs well, but needs minor repair. Best offer around $350. Call 323-7711, ask for Jack. tfn-22

AFC 303 Stereo. Speakers, 8 months old, excellent cond., best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 6-5155. tfn-22

Hofner Bass Guitar - includes case and strap, exc. cond., best offer, contact Bob 549-1186. tfn-21

1970 Triumph Bonneville, 650cc, perfect running condition. Call 253-7858. tfn-24

1968 Honda SS125, exc. running cond., new inspection sticker, 6000 mi., 1 helmet. Asking $250.00. Call Jim 546-7906. tfn-24

RIDERS WANTED

Driving to Springfield every weekday 7:30 a.m. Riders will share expenses. Call - Rhonda Blair, 5-2412, 5-2413, 319 Wheeler. tfn-22

Gibson hummingbird acoustic guitar with padded case. Brand new and cheap. 665-1163. tfn-21

ROOM WANTED

Roommates wanted — 2 girls need 2 more girls to share apt., $50 a month, 1 1/2 mi. from Campus. Call 665-3202. tfn-21

Mod. Mtn. Range Apt. in So. Amherst, easy going roommates. Call Bob 253-2922. tfn-18

HELP WANTED

Lead Singer wanted for est. working group; Rock, Blues, etc., also original mat. Year round work! contact Bob or John 6-9747 - 6-8664. tfn-22

Student to care for 5 yr. old boy in my home nr. School of Ed. M-F 11:15-12:45; Tu. 2:15-5:30. 549-0676. tfn-20

Ecology-minded students earn extra money part-time without interrupting your present schedule. Call collect 1-533-3634. tfn-24

WANTED WANTED

Need rides to Boston each Monday afternoon nr night; and from Boston to Amherst on Friday afternoon. Share expenses. Call 549-1767. tfn-20

SERVICES

Need a hand. Dial-a-hand will supply a hand that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9215. tfn-29

RIDE WANTED

Need ride from Spgfld. to UMass, daily. Will pay. 733-5043. tfn-20

Greenfield — need a ride to and from UMass Mon., Thur., Fri. Must be here by 8:30. Can leave 5 p.m. Will share expense. Joann 774-3611 - 5-1582. tfn-20

ENTERTAINMENT

Faculty professor needs small furn apartment for fall semester only. Call on campus 5-2574 or 5-2659. tfn-20

Pinball Profitable

The pinball machines in the Campus Center are making money.

Since July 1, the 12 machines have earned $4,000 in clear profits, according to Bill Hogan, assistant manager of the Center.

A total of $20,000 is expected for the year, he said.

Random checks on Friday showed an average of 19 people crowded around the pinballs at all times. Observers said there are often people waiting to play the machines.

The machines are leased from Trico Vendor, Northampton, and the company pays all maintanence costs. The Campus Center receives a straight 52 per cent commission on revenues, Hogan said.

The money is supplement to the C.C. game fund.

While he could not say it would lower student fees paid to the Campus Center, Hogan said the pinball revenues should help prevent increases in the fee.

PINBALL WIZARDS—Like those flashing lights? Ringing bells? Waste your time at a pinball machine near you. Do it today.

Notices

ALPHA PHI OMEGA:
The national service fraternity, Informal smokers open to all university men. Sept. 21, 28, and 30. Memorial Hall at 8 p.m.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITY WOMEN:
Conn. Valley Branch: Keynote meeting for the 1971-72 season to be held on Sept. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the 1st Congregational Church of Amherst.

CAMPUS CENTER PROGRAM COUNCIL:
Meeting of all CCPC members tonight, 7 p.m., Rms. 804-808CC All members invited to attend.

CAMPUS DEBATE CALLOUT:
In Colonial Lounge Sept. 21 at 7:30 p.m. No experience necessary.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
All you ground-pounders who want to fly, start learning now. Ground school starts Sept. 20, 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 162 CC.

COMMITTEE ON NUTRITION AND HUMAN NEEDS:
Organizational meeting--Committee office on Wed., Sept. 22nd at 7 p.m.

GAY LIBERATION FRONT:
Gay liberation will hold its first meeting in Free University (across from the Hatch) on Monday at 7:30 p.m. All sincerely interested people are welcome.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB:
Classes will be continuing on Sept. 21 for those class members who were unable to finish lessons last spring due to the lack of time.

HILLEL:
Rosh Hashanah services to be held from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. and 7 p.m.-9 p.m. in CC Aud. today and tomorrow.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON:
Wine and cheese tasting party at Iota Gamma Upsilon, 406 N. Pleasant St., 7-8 p.m. and 8-9 p.m. on Mon., Sept. 20. All university women welcome.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA:
The sisters of Kappa Alpha Theta cordially invite all university women to our "International Night" party, Mon. 7-8 p.m. and/or 8:15-9:15 p.m. We hope you'll come.

MODEL RAILROADERS:
Anyone interested in building an H. O gauge model railroad layout, please call or see Dean Foster, 209 MacKimmie, 546-9772.

NAIADS:
Old Naiads meet Mon. & Wed. at 4 p.m.: New Naiads meet Tues. & Thurs. at 4 p.m. WOPE Pool. Tryouts will be next week.

OUTING CLUB:
Introductory meeting Sept. 20 at 6:30 p.m. in CC Rm. 165 downstairs. New people more than welcome. Meeting will include Tetons slides, discussion of upcoming trips and EMS sale.

SWAP:
SWAP Committee organizational meeting is tonight Monday at 7 p.m. in Rm. 904-908 CC. All interested please attend.

TOP OF THE CAMPUS:
Notice: The Annual meeting of the membership of Top of the Campus, Inc. will take place on Sunday, Sept. 26, 1971 at 6:30 p.m. in Room 804-808 at Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass., all according to the bylaws of the corporation.

UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN:
Tonight's sorority rush schedule includes the "Sigma Bunny Club" at Sigma Kappa, and "Make a College" at Chi Omega, both at 7:30 p.m.; "Witches and Wizards" at Sigma Sigma Sigma from 7-8:15 p.m., and "International Night" at Kappa Alpha Theta. All are cordially invited.

LOST:
Textbooks: Science of Engineering Material, by Charles Smith, Electrical Circuits, by Manning. Call 6-7550 or bring to 305 James House. Ask for Melvin.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrologers traditionally have associated the planet Uranus with earthquakers. The Uranus cycle is seven years; the planet remains in each zodiacal sign for that length of time. Now, scientists at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reveal they have found a definite link between major earthquake activity and an "earth wobble," which reaches its maximum every seven years. Accordingly, more major earthquakes can be expected 1971 than in any year since 1964. The next major "wobble" is due to occur in 1978.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What begins as disagreement could be transformed into beautiful alliance. Accent is on setting of differences. Check contracts, agreements. Stress versatility, humor. Sagittarius is involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Reserve power comes to fore; you surprise others- and yourself. Gift highlights period. Libra individual makes fine gesture. Show appreciation. Remember health resolutions. Avoid extremes. Check diet.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect now coincides with love, creative interests, pleasure through young persons. Communicate desires. Clandestine conference may be on agenda. Keep confidential matters confidential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on domestic matters. Bring task, assignment to completion. Fine tor purchase of luxury item, apparel. Improve home comforts; correct any safety hazard. Compliment loved one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Relations with relatives due to improve. Discard rumors, imagined slights. Highlight maturity. Don't expect perfection. Short lourney may be scheduled. Check appointments, times, reservations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money comes your way. Financial conditions due to improve. You obtain needed papers, approvals. Capricorn person can play key role. Protect valuables. Take nothing for granted. Be fair - but firm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle is such that you succeed in new starts, contacts, challenges. Your appeal is broader. You learn from experience. More persons understand and are attracted to you. Go to it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): One close to you confides secret. Respect confidences. Don't tell more than is necessary. Be aware of subtle nuances. Leo is involved. Jealousy is in picture. Don't play games with emotions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on friendship-how to cope with what may be unreasonable request. Key is to tread lightly. If you don't know-wait. No need to rush. Desires are due to be fulfilled. Cancer born person is involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get boost up ladder; means some ambitions become realities. One at top aids your cause. Show gratitude, but avoid being maudlin. Key is realistic approach. Flexibility also is necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Favorable lunar aspect spotlights travel, journeys aimed at adding to knowledge. Open lines of communication. Read, think and analyze. Be thorough in approach. Love interest may be at a distance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your sensitivity, ability to perceive trends is highlighted. You are able to determine where to be-and when. Accent on the occult, on money belonging to another. Not all answers have been revealed.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are apt to be musical, capable of explaining and appreciating the arts. Some claim you are moody. Actually, you are introspective and require periods alone. Social activity, however, is due to accelerate in October and throughout 1972.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Obtained
4 Whip
8 Vessel
11 Grasp
12 A continent
13 Reverence
14 Part of "to be"
15 Bitter vetch
17 Transfixed
19 Encountered
21 Possessive pronoun
23 Parcel of land
24 Brother of Jacob
26 Place
28 Care for
31 Doctrine
33 Cleaning device
35 Female deer
36 Football position (abbr.)
38 Simplest
41 Pronoun
42 Emmet
44 Still
45 Irritate
47 Unadulterated
49 Spider's trap
51 Shout
54 Anger
56 Drunkard
58 Pronoun
59 Conquer
62 Shade tree
64 Pronoun
65 Everyone
66 Covers
68 Direction
70 Expire
71 Chair
72 Born

DOWN

1 Contests
2 Stamp of approval
3 Golf mound
4 Endures
5 Conjunction
6 Drink slowly
7 Call
8 Gasped for breath
9 Be in debt
10 Spread for drying
11 Domesticate
16 A state (abbr.)
18 Negative
20 Siamese native
22 Followers of Shem
25 Employ
27 Pedal digit
29 At present
30 River in Scotland
32 A month
34 Greek letter
36 Once around the track
37 African antelope
39 Stitch
40 Attempt
43 Duly
46 Lock opener
48 Before
50 Push from bellow (colloq.)
52 Insect
53 Sensuous desire
55 Dines
57 Symbol for tantalum
59 Parent (colloq.)
60 Man's name
61 Pedal digit
63 Range of knowledge
67 Parent (co-oq.)
69 Diphthong

Answer to Friday's puzzle

T	A	P		A	B	B	E		S	C	A	T
A	I	R		T	R	U	E		H	E	I	R
A	D	D		T	U	R	N	T	A	B	L	E
		P	O	U	T	S		A	M	U	S	E
A	R	A	R		E	T	A	P	E
L	A	B	E	L		S	I	P		T	H	E
T	I	L	L	E	R		T	E	R	R	O	R
O	N	E		V	A	T		D	U	E	L	S
		R	E	G	A	L		S	A	M	E
F	R	A	I	L		M	I	G	H	T
R	E	I	N	S	T	A	T	E		I	R	E
E	A	R	S		A	L	E	N		S	E	R
E	L	S	E		M	E	R	E		E	T	A

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID

Redmen Sputter to Victory

By DAN KAMAL

The UMass football team is 1-0. Of all the things to be said about Saturday's 13-0 opening game win against the University of Maine at fog-drenched Orono, that is possibly the most constructive.

It was definitely not an overly-impressive win, but as Coach Dick MacPherson said after the game, "We weren't great, but we'll take it." Incidentally, it was a good start for MacPherson in his first game as Redmen head coach.

Although the offense sputtered for most of the game in the slippery conditions, the UMass defense played a very solid game as it allowed the Black Bears a mere 26 yards on the ground and only short stuff through the air.

UMass scored twice in the game, once on a 21-yard gallop by halfback Tim Berra in the first period, and again on the opening play of the final stanza when quarterback Piel Pennington hit Bob Cabrelli with a 34-yard scoring toss.

Berra, a sophomore, had 67 yards rushing in his first varsity action, and his score came on what Pennington called an "8-48". "Berra goes left, takes the handoff and cuts inside the outside defender." Dennis Gagnon converted after the TD to give the visitors a 7-0 lead with four minutes left in the first quarter.

From that point on it was a very sloppily-played football as the rain and wind bothered both teams and helped cause a total of four fumbles and six interceptions. Maine had threatened early in the game on the strength of quarterback Ron Cote's passing. Cote connected with split-end Dave Paul on a 37-yard pass on a razzle-dazzle play as Cote got the ball back after a handoff to his halfback Mike Porter and lofted it to Paul who was wide open. However this drive was stalled by one of three Black Bear fumbles. The only other UMaine drive, again generated by the passing of Cote, was stopped on downs at the UMass 24.

Cote was shaken up towards the end of the first half, and that, coupled with the rain, rendered the Maine offense almost completely nil for the rest of the game.

Meanwhile, the Redmen were having troubles of their won on offense as the Black Bears effectively shut off the UMass running game in the second half and also picked off two of Pennington's passes in the last two frames. Then, the tall signal caller capped a 44-yard Redman scoring drive with a 34-yard toss to Cabrelli who took the wobbly pass in the corner of the end zone.

Maine apparently considered the 13-0 score somewhat of a moral victory because it was content to run out the clock in the latter minutes of the game on running plays and short passes.

MacPherson thought the defense played well, although most of the Black Bears' passing yardage came on play-action passes with Maine's halfbacks continually getting open for short gains. He attributed this to the fact that his linebackers were a little over-aggressive in anticipating the run.

The rookie coach was "not pleased with the offensive mistakes" but felt it might have a good effect on his team's attitude for the upcoming Dartmouth game. "We certainly won't be cocky for Dartmouth."

As for Pennington's ineffectiveness in the passing department 8/21 for 116 yards and four interceptons) MacPherson said that an early breakdown in pass protection "forced us to go to the rollout, and it was difficult for Piel under the slippery field conditions."

REDMAN RANTINGS: Fullback Mike Sawyer was injured early in the game which causes more havoc for the already depleted UMass running corps...Berra showed some fine ability in his first varsity start as did Pennington who scrambled and ran well...Boston Globe writer Francis Rosa feels that Pennington, a sophomore, has as much potential as a sophomore as Greg Landry had...now maybe, if he can put some of it together and get the offense moving with some degree of consistency, Dartmouth will be within close reach....

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian SPORTS

Plunkett, Manning Lead Pats, Saints to Upsets

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP)—Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett made a spectacular National Football League debut with a pair of second half touchdown passes and the New England Patriots upset the Oakland Raiders 20-6 Sunday.

Oakland managed to get a sputtering attack in gear against the Patriots' tough defense late in the first half and took a 6-0 lead on Pete Banaszak's four-yard touchdown run.

Then Plunkett, who threw only four times in the first two periods, took charge after the intermission and flashed the form which earned him an All-American honors at Stanford in rallying the Patriots.

New England went in front to stay as Plunkett hit Ron Sellers with a perfect pass on a scoring play of 33 yards.

Later in the third period Plunkett directed the Patriots on a 70-yard scoring drive. On the sixth play he caught the Raiders by surprise and passed to tight end Roland Moss on a 20-yard touchdown maneuver.

Charlie Gogolak, who added conversions after the two touchdowns, capped the scoring with field goals from 46 and 22 yards out in the final period.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)-Rookie quarterback Archie Manning sprinted around left end into the end zone on the last play of the game here Sunday to give the New Orleans Saints a 24-20 upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams before 70,915 opening day fans.

The winning drive started at the Saints 33 yard line as Manning completed three passes for 42 yards. A key play was an interference call on Ram cornerback Jim Nettles in the end zone with 23 seconds to play, giving the Saints a first down at the Ram one.

On the third down, Manning took the ball and sped for the Ram goal line, just squeezing the length of his body between two Ram defenders as the gun sounded.

The number one draft choice from Mississippi had sparked the Saints to two touchdowns in the third period. One was a six-yard pass to tight end Dave Parks and the other was a one-yard run by rookie Bob Gresham.

However, the Rams stormed back with two touchdowns in the fourth period on a 29-yard pass from quarterback Roman Gabriel to Les Josephson and a one-yard run by Josephson.

Wash. Wins

ST. LOUIS (AP)-The Washington Redskins, capitalizing on four interceptions and three fumble recoveries, rallied from a 10-7 halftime deficit Sunday and upset the St. Louis Cardinals 24-17 in The National Football League.

Bill Kilmer, subbing for injured Sonny Jurgensen, passed 31 yards to Jerry Smith and Chris Hamburger scored on a 16-yard fumble recovery return in the third quarter to spark the Redskin comeback.

It marked a successful debut for Washington Coach George Allen, who was fired at the end of last season by the Los Angelos Rams.

Hamburger, the Redskin right linebacker, grabbed a loose ball deep in St. Louis territory after Cid Edwards fumbled following reception of a Jim Hart pass.

Less than six minutes after the touchdown play, Brig Owens intercepted a pass at the St. Louis 39-yard line to setup Kilmer's TD-pass to Smith.

Down 21-10, St. Louis zipped 39 yards in five fourth-quarter plays to trim Washington's lead to 21-17 on alternate quarterback Pete Beathard's nine-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jackie Smith.

But Washington's Paul Laaveg salted away the verdict in the final four minutes by pouncing on a Johnny Roland fumble at the Cards 25 and Jerry Knight booted a 25-yard field goal.

Washington, bolstered by the running of Larry Brown and Charley Harraway, took a 7-0 lead with 5:34 gone after veteran safety Richie Petitbone intercepted a Hart pass and raced 24 yards to the St. Louis one.

Hill Kills Bills

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)-Calvin Hill scored four touchdowns, his longest from three yards out, as the Dallas Cowboys outfought the determined Buffalo Bills Sunday in their National Football League season opener, 49-37.

The Cowboys, winner of all six of their pre-season games, needed a 21-point second quarter to take the lead for keeps after twicing trailing Buffalo, 14-7 and 24-21, before the halftime.

Hill, who scored from two and three yards out and twice from the one-yard line, bulled his way repeatedly through the Buffalo line, grinding out 84 yards in 22 carries.

MORE OF THE SAME:. This play, taken at last year's UMass victory over Maine symbolizes the Redmen dominance over the Black Bears in recent years. This year was no exception as UMass came out on top of a 13-0 score Saturday.

Giants Nip Pack

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)-Frank Tarkenton threw touchdown passes of six, 39 and 81 yards to Dick Houston and the New York Giants recovered two fumbles in the Green Bay end zone for two other scores Sunday, then held off a furious Packer comeback for a 42-40 National Football League victory.

The Giants built up a 42-24 lead, only to see rookie quarterback Scott Hunter direct the Packers to a 19-yard touchdown run by Donny Anderson and pass 18 yards to Carroll Dale for another touchdown in the fourth quarter.

The Packers made it 42-40 when Doug Hart tackled Giant punter Tom Blanchard in the end zone with 2:38 left.

The Packers took over on a punt following the safety and drove to the New York 36 with 1:14 left, but linebacker Jim Files saved the Giants' victory by intercepting a Hunter pass.

The clinching touchdown was a 20-yard Tarkenton to Tucker Frederickson pass which gave the Giants a 42-24 lead late in the third period.

The Giants recovered four Green Bay fumbles on rainy Lambeau Field and each resulted in a touchdown.

The Packers took a 7-0 lead on Ken Ellis record-tying 100-yard runback with a short field goal attempt, but New York struck back with four touchdowns in the second quarter, two of them by Houston.

Carter Cops Eagle

CINCINNATI (AP)-Virgil Carter fired three touchdown passes, one a 90-yard bomb for a Cincinnati club record Sunday as the Bengals slammed the Philadelphia Eagles, 37-14, in a National Football League season opener.

Carter, who led the Bengals to the Central Division title last year, riddled the Eagles' defense for 273 yards on 22 of 30 completions. The big one was his 90-yarder to Speedy Thomas at the start of the second half.

The bomb launched the Bengals on a big third period. They scored every time they had the ball for 17 points and built up a 27-7 lead in the first meeting in history between the two teams.

Dodgers, Giants Win

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Willie Davis drove in three runs with a homer, double and single to back the three-hit pitching of Al Downing as the Los Angeles Dodgers snapped a four-game losing spin with a 12th romp over Atlanta in the first game of a Sunday doubleheader.

Downing, winning his 19th game, surrendered singles to Felix Millan in the first inning, Earl Williams in the third and Ralph Garr in the sixth in pitching his fourth shutout. It was also the Dodger's 16th shutout, tops in the National League.

Davis homered in the third inning, his eighth of the season and second in two games. He singled home a run in the Dodgers' fourth and singled in another run in the sixth inning when Los Angeles poured across five more runs.

Bill Buckner, Jim Lefebvre and Tom Haller each had two hits in the Dodgers' biggest hitting show in more than a month.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-Hal Lanier's high-hopping single drove in two runs in the second inning Sunday as the San Francisco Giants beat San Diego 4-1 and remained two games ahead of Los Angeles in the National League West race.

Second-place Los Angeles trounced Atlanta 12-0 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Third baseman Lanier, making a rare start as Manager Charlie Fox continued to shake up his line-up, hit a ground ball that hopped over second baseman Don Mason's head, scoring Bobby Bonds and Dave Kingman to put the Giants ahead 2-1.

Bonds had led off the inning with a double and Kingman bunted for a hit. They then pulled a double steal with one out.

San Francisco's Don Carrithers, 5-3, survived a rocky start-yield seven hits in the first four innings-got the victory, only the Giants third in the last 15 games. He got relief help from Steve Hamilton and Jerry Johnson.

Intramurals

FOOTBALL

FIELD	TIME	TEAMS
3	6:00	Grants vs. Redmen
4		Maroons vs. Eagles
5		Hickory vs. Hermits
6		Hoover vs. Hilo's
2	7:00	Stains vs. Harpoons
3		Hillers vs. Swine
4		Destroyers vs. Eye
5		Phantom vs. Macs
6		Raiders vs. Tep "B"
1	8:00	Sugar vs. Starters
2		Stouts vs. Nation
3		Exp vs. Team
4		Blowns vs. Bucks
5		Mauraauders vs. Racoons
6		Deacons vs. BX
1	9:00	Lemons vs. Pipers
2		Oaks vs. Trojans
4		Ironmen vs. Academics
5		Spartans vs. Cans
6		Seagrams vs. Smashers
1	10:00	Chall vs. Clouds
2		FD vs. SB
3		49'ers vs. Roaches
4		Brownies vs. Freebee
5		A's vs. Munchkins
6		Pelicans vs. Rascals

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Mostly cloudy today. Chance of showers. Temperature in the 70's.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 10 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1971

The Campus Center nearly transcends its commonplace atmosphere in this lyrical scene. All is not tranquil with the Waffle once again as students voice dissatisfaction with its operations. (Photo by Rich Hinkeley)

Students React To Campus Center

By KARL GERDES

A recent MDC poll indicates that many students are dissatisfied by conditions in the Campus Center (CC). Half-a-dozen complaints were predominant among all the people polled, with few compliments appearing with them. Robert Chiller, a Student Senator, voiced most of the views that followed the general trend.

Chiller stated, "The building itself, inside and out projects a very cold feeling. The murals help some, but not much."

The students pay sixty dollars a year for support of this building, according to Chiller. This money serves to keep costs down for visiting conferences; it is used for the hotel's benefit, not the student's. Also, since this building was supposedly built for the students' benefit, he questioned the students' use of only two floors.

Chiller had a number of questions (for the administration): He wanted to know why there are only 28 jacks in the music room for 22,000 students? He also asked what square footage of the building is actually devoted to student use, to faculty use and to hotel and conference use?

Why have fancy, and expensive, wood sofas and granite tables?

He believed the food services are expensive and of fluctuating quality. Anyone can see that the prices at the TOC are too high for the average college student Chiller exclaimed. "Downstairs, the quality of the sandwich you receive depends upon the mood of the cook, and they still haven't learned how to make a hamburger in less than 20 minutes," he said.

Bill Spinn, also a member of the Senate, seemed to sum up many students' opinions by stating simply, "The functional utility of the facility is questionable". In opposition a lone voice was heard in complete favor of the CC. A senior, majoring in Hotel and Restaurant Administration, declared he was pleased with the design "It was designed by a world-renowned architect- he should know more about design and the operation of the building than I." He stated that it was a sort of laboratory for his major, and hotel administration and restaurant management could be seen right here.

On The Inside:

- Ellsberg Uncertain of Guilt — See page four
- Homecoming Planned — See page two
- The Rose Bleeds — See page eight

Free U Offers Alternative Learning

By MARILYNN MARTIN

Free University is offering "an alternative experimental form of learning to UMass students," according to secretary Jane Patten. She said the organization is willing to help anyone and everyone to do almost anything.

Located between the "rooms" created by dividers in the old University bookstore in the Student Union, Free University is "trying to create a community out of the counter culture in this (UMass) area". Its immediate community consists of a game room clientele where the pinball machines and pool tables will ultimately be housed, and the Arts and Crafts Guild, both of which share the designated area across from the Hatch with Free University.

What its spokesman emphasized most was that Free U is for everyone who wants to stop in. It will do anything any variety of things to make life at UMass "a little more interesting and liveable".

Free University began in 1969 with six domes in the Southwest fields as a way of combatting huge lectures and impersonal classes. Classes as well as community dinners were held in these domes successfully until the heat drove them out and Free U relocated in South College.

Treasurer Warren Bean explained the aims of Free U. as that of bringing to UMass students those resources which they can't get themselves because of financial problems, or just providing space and a place to meet for various organizations and workshops.

For example, this year Free U. will sponsor a workshop in "break-through" painting in which an individual is taught to put himself into his art and later to understand his own work. A workshop in Auto Mechanics will also be held in which Free U. supplies the tools, consultants, and may attempt to get wholesale parts. Woodworking and bicycle workshops are also being thought about. An Open Theatre, Improvisation and possibly a Parapsych class will be available.

Gay Liberation will find its home with Free U. again this year, also.

Rapping with Jeff Segel, the co-ordinator of all of this, he mentioned a variety of medias to work with. Since they have been allotted more money this year, Free U. has videotaping materials, printing supplies for pamphlets, and ideas for publication of posters, booklets, etc. They will sponsor a film, poetry, theatre and music series.

An important part of Free U. is to supply information by sending people, cameras, and videotaping equipment to different places to find out the truth and bring it back to the University in films and pamphlets. Even now, eight members of Free U. are on the island of Ibiza in Spain where a new experience in living is taking place. It's called "instant city" and is a make-shift city of temporary buildings, etc. This will be videotaped and brought back to UMass where it may be the start of a new kind of living here. There will be a member going to Earth Peoples Park in Vermont today and others trying "to find out the truth at Attica."

Time to Register

By STEPHEN FINE

Larry Ladd, spokesman for The Amherst Voter Registration Coalition, urged all students who are qualified to vote under Massachusetts law, to register in the next few weeks.

"The Amherst Voter Registration Coalition is a non-participant organization, who's only interest is getting newly enfranchised voters registered," Ladd explained. "We are trying to register 15,000 potential student voters in Amherst or their home town," he said. Ladd, who is also Student Senate Vice President, feels national attention is being focused on Amherst.

"Amherst is the first town where a major student registration effort is going to be made. There have already been articles in the major news media about the student registration," he said.

Some of the groups who are members of the organization are, The Young Republicans, The Young Democrats, McGovern for President, The Young Socialist Alliance, University Anti-War Fund, and The University and State Communications Council. William Keyserling of the New England Field Organization for the National Movement of Students, is assisting as registration consultant.

The coalition welcomes any groups interested in helping register newly enfranchised voters.

The organization plans to have groups in the residential areas and in Puffton, Colonial Village and Sunderland apartment complexes.

Students interested in volunteering contact John Stevens, at 5-0341 or any group affiliated with the organizations mentioned.

Student Leaders Plan Homecoming

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU
Programming Council on Homecoming

The Campus Center Programming Council met last night with representatives of various student organizations in an effort to coordinate their plans for Homecoming Weekend October 15-17.

Among the activities scheduled are the float parade and the Green Alumni Picnic, sponsored by the Greek Council; Friday night movies, sponsored by the Newman Club; a Saturday night concert in the Campus Center Auditorium, sponsored by SAM, and a nightclub Saturday night and "Felini's Syterican" Sunday, both sponsored by the Programming Council.

Russ Vieira, Treasurer of the Programming Council, in a side comment, said, "It sounds like just another weekend at the Union."

Howie Bresner, President of the Programming Council, stated: "We will definitely have a Homecoming this year, but not on the scope of past years. We hope that everyone will find something they like in our program."

Other issues discussed at the meeting included a motion by Bob Nims, President of the Student Union Governing Board, that the Programming Council "sponsor" the Fine Arts Council's presentation of "Stop The World, I Want To Get Off", in the Campus Center Auditorium, "in the round". Nims said that as yet he was "not asking for a financial commitment", but advocated i.d. admissions "since Programming Council funds from the Student Fees already."

Volunteers of America

University Year for Action, a cooperative effort by the UMass in Amherst and the federal government, is giving 50 UMass students a chance to devote themselves full-time to a year of volunteer social action work.

The program is the first effort of Action, the new federal agency which combines Peace Corps, VISTA, and several other volunteer programs. Through Action, UMass students will be able to help people while earning college credits and receiving education outside the classroom.

UMass is one of 11 colleges and universities chosen to participate in the pilot University Year for Action program. University graduate and undergraduate students who volunteer to work with area social agencies will earn 30 college credits while helping agencies meet the needs of the people. Thirty credits is equivalent to a normal year of study. The 50 students work full-time for the social agencies, take no formal academic courses, and receive $3,000 yearly subsistence support each from Action. Student volunteers work under regulations of VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America).

About 20 area social agencies are sponsoring the 50 UMass-Amherst students. A 17-member UMass-Amherst Action Advisory Board is composed of students, faculty members, and representatives of social agencies.

University Year for Action gives UMass a greater opportunity to contribute to surrounding communities, and it gives educational experiences outside the classroom. Action has a Congressional and Presidential mandate to find ways Americans may help each other through voluntary public service, and University Year for Action is the first effort in that direction.

Social agencies will give field direction and supervision to the students. UMass will provide program management, instruction, and academic credit, and Action will contribute subsistence allowances, and financial and technical program support.

Twelve UMass-Amherst schools and departments will sponsor student volunteers: The Schools of Education, Nursing, and Physical Education; the College of Agriculture; the departments of Public Health, English, government, psychology, sociology, speech; Afro-American studies; and the program for bachelor's degree with individual concentration.

MDC Classifieds Pay

dvp announces the second of its 1971-72 lecture series

Dr. Nicholas Fiumara

Director of the Division of Communicable Diseases, Massachusetts Department of Public Health

TOPIC:

"Venereal Disease and the College Student"

Wednesday, Sept. 22 at 8:00 in C. C. Aud.

Open Coffee Hour to follow in the Blue Wall Cafeteria

NOTICE:

The Annual Meeting of the membership of Top of the Campus, Inc. will take place on Sunday, September 26, 1971 at 6:30 P.M. in Room 804-808 at Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts, all according to the bylaws of the corporation.

SPRING SEMESTER--ISRAEL

For Humanities Students
Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study centered in Jerusalem/February-June, 1972
Limited to 30 students
Juniors, Seniors, and Grad students eligible.
Four courses/History, Literature, Archaeology, Bible
Earn 16 credits
Knowledge of Hebrew or Arabic preferred
Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Application deadline November 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. zip code 01002 Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

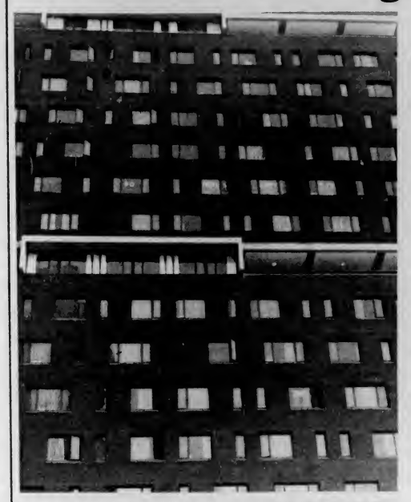
Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

TONIGHT Ladies Night

CRICKETT HILL

Featuring

HELEN



9:30 - 12:30 DANCING 25¢ Cover

at

The English Pub

MDC Cose-up

Self Governing Dorm Unit Established

T-5, or is it T-3, or perhaps Crampton on a windy day. It's too difficult to tell and only the photographer knows for sure (and he isn't telling.)

By DONALD BISHOP

Representing the establishment of a "self-governing" dorm in John Adams tower in Southwest this year, is the "T-5 Project".

In a departure from the standard practice of dorm government, Lower and Middle house in John Adams have been combined, and the office of Head of Residence has been abolished. Twelve council members, under the supervision of a Project Director, are in essence the governing body within the dorm. Each councilman has been elected for a period of one year by the members of his own floor.

But just as important as this innovation in government in the "T-5 Project", according to dorm spokesman Jon Buckley is the attempt being made to build a sense of community among all the dorm residents, and to increase the unity on each individual floor.

The sense of community is being created through maximum utilization of available dormitory space according to Mr. Buckley. This is expecially true on the lounge floors. The fifth floor lounge is being established as a "cultural area", with plans for a library, a study area, and a music area. The twelfth floor lounge is being set up as a "recreation area". A snack bar went into operation this weekend, and a "general store" selling everything from stationary supplies to cookable foods is scheduled for opening by the middle of October. In addition to these services, the twelfth floor lounge will provide a television and games area for house residents.

An improved sense of floor unity, according to Mr. Buckley, will hopefully come from attendance at weekly floor meetings. These will be held just before dorm council sessions. Each resident will have the opportunity to air grievances and give suggestions to his councilman. Through these weekly meetings each floor member has the chance to become either directly or indirectly involved in the operation of the dorm.

All positions in the house are paid, from the Project Director to the snack bar and general store personnel. Only John Adams residents are eligible for these posts. Funding according to Mr. Buckley will come from a number of sources. These include dorm funds and the slight profits from the snack bar and general store operation.

To oversee the workings of the Council and prosecute house rule violators, there is a paid House Judiciary. Spokesman Buckley emphasized that this is a working body and both Judiciary and Council members are subject to removal if evidence warrants it.

When asked whether the project has had much success yet in achieving its goals of community and unity, Mr. Buckley replied that he felt a dorm identity was beginning to surface. He could see more visible interaction among house members. He added that with the success he expects the project to have, "hopefully people will want to move in next year from other areas on campus".

Anyone interested in the "T-5 Project" are invited to contact Jon Buckley, Project Director Bill Laramee, Community Developer G. W. Saunders, or any of the Council members located on floors two thru fifteen in John Adams tower.

Taverns Desegregated

Tavern doors throughout Massachusetts swung open for women this morning, albeit reluctantly and perhaps temporarily.

While tavern owners in larger cities throughout the state prepared for an inundation of "radical-liberal females" determined to exert their rights, no women had appeared at either of Greenfield's two taverns at mid-morning.

The right of women to sit in previously men's only places was gained despite efforts by tavern owners to exempt taverns from the state's newly adopted public accommodations law. That law prohibits discrimination in public places because of race, color, creed, national origin or sex.

An emergency bill, filed by Rep. C. Vincent Shea, D-Worcester, and passed this month by the state legislature, has not been signed into law by Gov. Sargent.

With the governor's inaction, the public accommodations law, including taverns, became effective this morning.

The governor's indecision on the Shea bill to exclude taverns stems from pressures from within and outside the governor's office to veto the bill, according to Robert S. Lufkin, president of the Massachusetts Retail Liquor Dealers Board of Trade.

"The tavern owners have been putting up a great fight for the survival of their businesses," Lufkin told The Recorder. "Taverns must now temporarily — and I stress the word temporarily — serve women because of the pressures from the radical minority who are temporarily riding a wave of influence in this state."

He said that taverns will serve women, according to the law, but that he is confident that Gov. Sargent will take affirmative action on the tavern exemption bill between Sept. 28 and Oct. 8.

"Rep. Shea, who has been directing the exemption bill so successfully, had the bill returned to the Senate Ways and Means Committee to give us a 10-day breather," Lufkin said. "We feared an outright veto by the governor, but this will give us time to further present our case to our state officials."

According to state law, taverns must have women's rest rooms available or must close until such time as facilities are installed. However, Lufkin noted, enforcement of the law is by local licensing authorities, which have, in most cases, informally waived the requirement of "separate but equal" rest rooms for men and women.

If any tavern owners refuse to serve women today, or until (an if) the governor signs the tavern exemption bill into law, a charge of discrimination can be filed against them, with penalties ranging from up to $100 fine or one year in jail. Further, up to $500 must be paid to the aggrieved female "for hurting her feelings", Lufkin said.

Gov. Sargent last week asked for and received a 10-day extension of the period required by law for him to sign the exemption bill into law.

Many on the governor's staff maintain the bill to exempt taverns is "clearly unconstitutional".

Under the law that became effective today, public accommodations are defined as any resort or amusement open to the public, such as an inn, tavern, hotel, shelter, roadhouse, motel, trailer camp, restaurant, place advertising food, drink, entertainment, health, recreation or rest, public carriers on land water or air, gas stations, garages, retail stores, rest rooms, barber shops, beauty shops, parlors, bathhouses, swimming pools or seashore facilities, auditoriums, theaters, music halls, boardwalks, highways, libraries, museums, planetariums, hospitals, dispensaries and clinics.

Attica Demonstration Planned

A demonstration in the afternoon of the Attica Prison Riot is scheduled to take place at the State House in Albany on Thursday, September 23. The demonstration is centered around a group of demands that are aimed at prison officials and the officials of the State of New York.

Among them, is one demand that administration officials concede to the demands of the prisoners, especially in the area of amnesty.

Another purpose of the demonstration is that reparation be paid to the families of the inmates that were killed, because, as it is now, these families must pay $300 to remove them out of the prison.

The demonstrators will also call for the resignation of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, charging him with murder in the slayings of the inmates and the prison guards.

Also, lists of the names of the remaining prisoners and the locations to which they have been removed will be demanded.

For more information about the demonstration and about housing in Albany, phone 518-462-2273.

So what if you don't know anyone"
Meet Us!
TONIGHT
All girls invited.
CHI DELPHIA
2111 lincoln Ave. 8 p.m.

Sargent Kills State Lottery

BOSTON (AP)-Gov. Francis W. Sargent today vetoed a bill to establish a state lottery and said he will appoint a special commission to study the proposal.

Sargent in a message to the legislature said "I do not regard a lottery as either a dependable or a progressive means of raising money for the operation of government."

The governor said his proposed special commission would report on the desirability of using lotteries for revenue, the best method of operating a lottery free of corruption and the best administration of a lottery to prevent leakage of funds.

Democrats have enough members in House and Senate to override the governor's vote.

Spectrum

The general interest magazine of University of Massachusetts

Open Recruitment Meeting
Thursday Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m.
in the Spectrum office (S.U. 407)

Is Art, Poetry, Fiction or Photography your thing?

Outstanding new Penguins now at your campus bookstore

THE NON-MEDICAL USE OF DRUGS: Interim Report of the Canadian Government Commission of Inquiry. A very human survey of today's drug scene in all its aspects. Considers alcohol and tobacco as well as marihuana, hashish, LSD, heroin, and "speed," and concludes with some surprising recommendations. $1.65

THE SACRED PIPE: Black Elk's Account of the Seven Rites of the Oglala Sioux. Recorded and edited by Joseph Epes Brown. The ancient religion of the Sioux Indians as disclosed by the only qualified priest still alive when this material was gathered. Shows how the Sioux have come to terms with God, nature, and their fellow men. $1.45

BORN IN TIBET. Chögyam Trungpa as told to Esmé Cramer Roberts. With a foreword by Marco Pallis. The early life and escape from the Chinese communists of a young tulku of Tibet. His story reveals a deep Buddhist compassion and spirituality. $1.95

HAVANA JOURNAL. Andrew Salkey. A firsthand account — by a Jamaican novelist — of the effects of the revolution in Cuba on bureaucrats, merchants, intellectuals, housewives, and peasants. $1.65

AID AS IMPERIALISM. Teresa Hayter. A highly controversial critique of the role of foreign aid in Latin America. $1.45

AGONY AT EASTER. Thomas M. Coffey. A minute-by-minute report on the bizarre and tragicomic events of the 1916 Irish uprising. $1.65

THE CHICANOS: Mexican American Voices. Edited by Edward W. Ludwig and James Santibanez. An anthology of writings by and about Mexican Americans. $1.95

PENGUIN BOOKS INC
7110 Ambassador Rd. Baltimore Md 21207

In The Nation And The World

General Forsythe:

Volunteer Army Unfeasible by '73

WASHINGTON (AP)—The general in charge of the Army's effort to raise an all-volunteer force says the Nixon administration's mid-1973 deadline is impossible to meet under current conditions.

In remarks that the Pentagon acknowledges it first tried to censor, Lt. Ge. George I. Forsythe said;

"Although we're going to try and do our level best, we are not going to make it, I do not believe, in the time that has been prescribed for us to do this. That's just too short a time.

"We're going to try to do it, but a lot more support and a lot more help and understanding has to come about before we could ever make that."

The general's comments were in an interview taped Friday for broadcast to U.S. troops overseas on the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service. Forsythe is a special assistant to Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland.

Forsythe expressed his doubts about ending reliance on the draft when he was asked to state what his real conviction is as to the likelihood completely eliminating the draft.

Pentagon officials objected and decided to censor the general's reply, contending "There might have been a misunderstanding by the troops for whom the program is designed and is contrary to current Department of Defense policy."

After what Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim described Monday as "some discussion over the weekend," Daniel Z. Henkin assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, interceded and overrode those officials who wanted Forsythe's statement delted.

"We do have a bureaucracy here that functions from time to time in the best of bureaucratic traditions, and that's what we have Assistant Secretary Henkin for," Friedheim said.

Privately, many officers have expressed doubt over the Army's ability to field an all-volunteer force. But this is believed to have been the first time that the man charged with bringing it about expressed for the record such serious reservations.

UN Assembly Opens Today; Mid-East Critical Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)-The seating of Red China as a U.N. member is a top item, but the Middle East still is likely to be the most critical issue before the 26th annual session of the General Assembly opening Tuesday.

Another task before the delegates is the search for a successor to Secretary-General U Thant, who is retiring Dec. 31 after a decade in the post.

Attracting almost as much attention will be the talks behind the scenes here between Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union.

Although the Middle East rates priority, Rogers intends to cover many other items with Gromyko, including the selection of a new secretary-general, the strategic arms limitation talks-SALT-between the United States and the Soviet Union, the Kremlin's call for a European security conference and reduction of troops of East and West in Europe.

Rogers also plans backstage talks with Israelis, Arabs and the special U.N. envoy on the Middle East, Gunnar V. Jarring.

Rogers is expected to try to defuse the situation in the Middle East-where a frail cease-fire is close to collapsing-and to head off a U.N. confrontation on the issue.

The first order of business when retiring General Assembly President Edvard Hambro, Norway's ambassador, bangs his gavel to pen the session at 3 p.m. will be the election of a new president.

Foreign Minister Adam Malik of Indonesia will become president of the 26th session under agreement reached in advance by U.N. members.

Three new member states-Qatar, Bahrain and Bhutan-will be admitted and increase U.N. membership to 130 at the opening of the new session.

Woman On Supreme Court?

WASHINGTON (AP)-The White House held the door open today for consideration of a woman or a nonjurist for appointment to the Supreme Court.

When a decision on a successor to the retired Justice Hugo L. Black might come remained uncertain, although press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President is giving the appointment careful consideration and it would come as quickly as possible.

And he said he expects the nominee's name to be submitted to the American Bar Association for its views.

The press secretary said last week that seven names stood out in a discussion of possibilities between Nixon and key advisers.

The National Women's political Caucus today urged Nixon to appoint a woman. It said in a telegram that the group was disturbed by Ziegler's statement last week that the President was looking for "the best qualified man."

Asked about his remark, Ziegler said: "The intent of my remark was not to rule anyone out."

He said he would not get into a discussion of the candidates but that the list was still wide open.

Ellsberg Uncertain of Guilt

NEW YORK (AP)-Dr. Daniel Ellsberg says it's still not clear whether he broke any law in releasing the Pentagon Papers although "the odds are in favor of my spending a long time in prison."

Ellsberg, interviewed in the current issue of Look Magazine, said he delayed releasing the Pentagon report to newspapers as a final alternative because he thought it would be "the surest way to get myself in prison for a long time."

"Now that lawyers have been looking at it, the law on the subject is much less clear than I had assumed it was," he said. "It is simply not clear at this point that I have broken any law."

He has pleaded innocent to charges of unauthorized possession of secret documents and converting them to his own uses.

Ellsberg, 40, a former Defense Department analyst, said he tried since the fall of 1969 to place portions of the document on the public record, first through Congress and then by inviting lawyers to subpoena him to testify in cases challenging the constitutionality of the Vietnam war.

"Nobody rose to that at all," he said. "So in the end it came out through the newspapers. That was the result of a year-and-a-half process."

Ellsberg said he was astonished in reading the documents to find that intelligence reports dating back to 1950 were "very realistic, very detailed and skeptical" about American alternatives in Vietnam.

"The startling thing that came out of them was how the same sets of alternatives began to appear to each president, and ultimately the choice was neither to go for broke and adopt military recommendations, nor negotiate a settlement to get out," he said.

"The decisions, year after year, were to continue the war, although all predictions pointed to a continued stalemate with this kind of approach and thus to prolong the war indefinitely."

Ellsberg said the reason five successive presidents "apparently ignored this information" dates back to 1950 when "it was the motivation of the Democratic president not to add the fall of Indochina to the fall of China."

"The very fact the decision-making looked similar year by year from then on supported the conjecture that no American president, Republican or Democrat, wanted to be the present who lost the war or lost Saigon," he stated.

NY Bank Realizes $39,000,000 Error

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's second-largest bank lost almost $39 million through a bookkeeping error earlier this year, but quickly got the chance from the U.S. Treasury to turn the mistake into a windfall.

The error occurred when First National City Bank of New York paid twice in the same day for one government security worth $38.8 million.

Despite a federal banking system described by the Treasury as "truly the envy of governments around the world," it was the bank and not the government which discovered the error-2-1/2 months later.

It immediately notified the Treasury by telegram and the money was returned.

But the bank also asked for, and got, an additional $38.8 million to use free of charge for 2-1/2 months so it could make up for what it could have earned on private loans during the time the money was missing.

Furthermore, the lending rate subsequently increased, thus giving National City the chance to make more off the government's $38.8 million that it would have made with its own money.

The amount of the misplaced money and its potential yield in interest, are minute when compared to National City's total deposits of $19.6 billion, but the incident, confirmed by officials of the Treasury and the bank, illustrates the close relationship between the government and the country's commercial banking industry.

And it comes to light at a time when the federal government is under pressure from House Banking Chairman Wright Patman, D—Tex., and others, to put its vast commercial bank deposits to work in social areas, especially to assist the growth of banks owned by blacks and members of other ethnic minorities.

In a statement commenting on the transaction Patman said he thinks it is highly improper for the Treasury to use public funds to compensate the bank for its own internal bookkeeping mistake.

He said he is asking the General Accounting Office, Congress's fiscal watchdog, to investigate and would insist that the bank "return to the federal government any proceeds gained from the use of this money."

Exactly what the bank might earn from the money is difficult to determine since repayment to the Federal Government is not due until next week. At the prime rate of 6 per cent it could earn a minimum of $582,000. But Treasury officials said the bank could earn twice that in quick turnover loans to smaller customers whom they would charge much more.

National City's error occurred March 3 when its London office and a New York branch paid $38.8 million for an Export-Import Bank series BB promissory note.

The error went undetected until May 19 Harry Conover, a National City vice president, said the mistake was discovered by the bank's controller.

Conover notified the Treasury by telegram. The Treasury repaid the $38.8 million and agreed to let the bank have another $38.3 million free of charge from July 2 through Sept. 27.

Asked why Treasury should help the bank make up for its own mistake, Conover replied:

"They had the use of the money, the Treasury did."

This comment underlines a major point of contention among those, notably Patman, who are critical not only of the close relationship between commercial banks and the Treasury, but also of Treasury depository practices generally.

Even if the Treasury had been aware it suddenly had $38.8 million extra and-speaking purely hypothetically, didn't want to give it back, it most likely would have deposited it in another of the nation's largest banks without charge and without collecting any interest.

This is what the federal government does with millions, possibly billions, of dollars each year-puts the money free of charge in less than 10 per cent of the country's commercial banks. The Treasury defends the practice on the ground that it compensates the banks for services rendered the government.

"It's not a question of trying to withhold or conceal," said Bruce Budlong, chief of domestic banking in the Bureau of Accounts, the obscure agency which handles government deposits. "We don't want to confuse the public."

There is nothing unusual about the National City incident except for the amount of money involved. "You don't see amounts like that very often," Budlong said.

WHY WALK FURTHER AND PAY MORE..?
Landlubber Jeans
ONLY $7.00
WAREHOUSE
201 N. Pleasant

Termpapers Unlimited
"WE GIVE RESULTS"
297 Huntington Ave.
Boston, Mass. 02115
(617) 267-3000

Ecumenism
Is It Working?
Fr. Patrick Sullivan S. J.
Newman Center Social Hall
Tonight at 7:30

STEREO COMPONENTS
T-TABLES - AMPS - SPEAKERS - TAPE DECKS - HEADPHONES
BELOW WHOLESALE PRICE!
Fully Guaranteed 8-Track - Stereo Tapes
1-4 Tapes $2.99 - 5th Tape $2.75
6th Tape - $2.50 — Each Additional - $2.25
limit: 10/person
SALE: Tape Cases - Display Cases - Speaker Cord etc.
Come! See and Hear for yourself!
Baker Stereo Discount
223 Baker — 4:00-5:30 Barry

And Things That Go Bump In The Night

This innocent-looking frog is one of the least worrisome problems facing Florida Health officials as toads, snails, and other evil beasts abound in the countryside. (Photo by Barbara Brecher)

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)-Because of such unwanted visitors as monster mollusks from Africa, pop-eyed giant toads from South America and walking catfish, Florida officials have pulled back the welcome mat on exotic foreign fauna.

It's against the law to possess a piranha in Florida and the mention of a walking catfish-once a joke-is no longer a laughing matter among game officials.

The problem is that Florida's subtropical environment has proven to be too perfect for such undesireables.

Some, like the giant toads, are merely nuisances. Others, like the snails, present a threat to this area's crops and plant life.

"Most of these animals have no natural enemies here and they can often outbreed native species," said Maj. O.J. Brown of the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission.

Some of the pests were brought to Florida by well-meaning officials, Brown pointed out.

"We brought Tilapia to Florida," he said, "because we thought it would be a good game fish and help control weed growth, but we made a mistake. It turned out the species we got were not the game fish type, and now they threaten to completely take over large sections of South and Central Florida."

Other species got here by chance.

An infestation of the snails in Miami was caused by a boy who carried two in his pocket from Hawaii in 1966. The toads, which secrete a poison that can be fatal to dogs, cats or small children if eaten, arrived in 1955 when a crate broke open at Miami International Airport. It now ranges from Homestead to Palm Beach.

While the snails have so far been confined to the Miami area, the so-called walking catfish is busily hopping northward, cleaning out every pond it infests.

Nader Called "Dictator"

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Automobile Association's president told an AAA convention Monday that consumer advocate Ralph Nader is a "dictator" and called Nader's emphasis on the mechanical safety of cars all wrong.

"We know that the car is a relatively minor factor," said William Bachman, president of the 14-million-member association, adding: "The single-minded focus on cars promoted by Mr. Nader ..is taking the public's eye off the real culprits-the driver and the highway."

Bachman said the AAA was working for better roads, higher standards in licensing and better law enforcement, particularly against drunken driving, and asked:

"Where are Nader's Raiders in this battle? I'll tell you-they're still trying to prove that cars cause accidents-and that we are conspiring to keep unsafe cars on the roads."

Nader, whose campaign against mechanical defects in specific cars has led to the recall of large numbers of vehicles in recent years, announced last June that his "raiders" would investigate the AAA and said the organization was failing to meet its members' needs adequately.

Common Market Rules Out Anti U.S. Action

BRUSSELS (AP)-European common Market nations ruled out Monday any immediate trade curbs or other reprisals against the protectionist measures President Nixon ordered last month.

Foreign ministers of the six-nation community decided it was no time for harsh measures that could escalate into a trade war with the United States.

Instead, reliable delegation sources said, they reserved their right to retaliate later, most likely by domestic measures to aid their industries hardest hit by Nixon's package.

In addition, the sources reported, a meeting of Common Market foreign, finance and agriculture ministers will convene in early November to work out a more detailed response.

Ralf Dahrendorf, Common Market expert on foreign trade, told newsmen that Monday's meeting "heralds the debut of Europe standing on its own two feet. Our problem now is that our position is still quite wobbly."

He said Nixon's Aug. 15 economic package showed the United States must now concentrate on its own economic problems and Europe can no longer rely on the same level of American help in stabilizing the world trade and monetary systems.

Nixon's package included a 10 per cent surcharge on imports into the United States and an end to the link between the dollar and gold that had stabilized the international monetary system for 37 years. It set off a crisis expected to cost the Europeans some $2 billion a year in export sales to the United States.

Members of the Common Market are Belgium, France, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and West Germany.

Rent a refrigerator for your room. Just $4.44 a month.*
No Waiting — Immediate Delivery

- Compact—dimensions are only 20 x 17 x 18"
- Spacious—Two cubic-foot capacity, holds up to 36 cans of cold drinks
- University-approved for dormitory use
- Free pick-up and delivery
- Guaranteed— if one of our refrigerators malfunctions, we'll replace it within 24 hours.
- We pay interest on your deposit
- Mini-Kool Protection Policy—for $1 a term it relieves you of all liability for fire and theft. And it's free to all who pay a full academic year's rent in advance.
- Purchase option—you can buy your refrigerator if you like, and 75% of your rental payments will be applied toward the $89.50 purchase price.

CALL 256-8488, 253-2494
mini kool
*The monthly price stated is an average based on rental for the full academic year. Refrigerators may be rented for shorter periods as well, with some adjustment in the monthly cost.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti, Jerry Lazar
SPORTS — Fred Rosenthal
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Barbara Brecher
AD LAYOUT — Jim Gold

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Making An Effort

Every semester, the lines seem to get longer, the courses seem to multiply, and the alternatives proliferate. The issues and pressures that a student must resolve have reached a complexity unimagined merely five years ago.

The quality of academic and vocational counseling on this campus has not kept pace with the burgeoning of students' problems. Runarounds, lack of horizontal communication between departments and schools, and sheer incompetence have characterized advising. We find this deplorable and unexcusable.

One possible solution to the fragmentation and inaccuracy of advice would be to establish one, centralized counseling center, manned by both faculty, administrators and students. The most important characteristic of such a center would be the sharing of resources--vocational advisors would utilize the knowledge of academic experts, psychologists would work hand in hand with student counselors, a faculty advisor from the Chemistry department would have no misgivings about referring a student to the Food Science department.

Another solution is being explored by Project 10 and the School of Education. Every freshman is enrolled in and receives credit for a seminar. The seminar leaders, trained by academic advisors and psychologists, help the freshmen clarify their goals and what they wish to gain from the University, and serve as a resource people to the University.

UMass need not be the proverbial place of alienation, impersonal relationships, and circumlocution. If an effort is made, the University could become a model, not only for other schools, but for our urban centers, of how a large population can be treated as many individuals.

"It's A Libel For Anyone To Suggest There Might Be Limits To How Far You Can Go In 1972"

Neil Coleman

The Society Of The Absurd

It is true enough that these war years have seen their share of tumult and tragedy. The scio-economic disintegration caused by the war has magnified the violence and oppression of American society to an almost grotesque degree. There is so much of it in fact, that we become unable to comprehend it. Instead, we adjust to it. Indifferently accepting and even expecting the weekly death count.

In the way of all good Liberals, we are of course duly outraged at the advent of every new atrocity. Indeed the problem with America and the American Radical is that so much time is spent in a state of outrage that it becomes the natural way of life. Cynicism, frustration and anger become the norm. Our anger no longer accomplishes anything, but none the less one can take comfort in it. Thus the thinking American is in an absurd situation. Frustrated, angered and outraged at just about everything, he no longer has the time nor the inclination to do anything about that which arouses him. In a situation which cries out for action, the best the absurd man can do is to bemoan the situation.

The natural solution to this absurd situation is for someone to act, but the normal society seems incapable of producing men of action. It is not an unimportant coincidence therefore that many of these men of action, the rebels and protestors of our time, have had a point of common origin- the prisons. For it is quite singular that in an absurd society motivated by inaction, it is the prisons, which under normal circumstances would seem to be the antithesis of action, that produce the most active.

It is the prisons that produce the Cleaver's, the Malcolm X's, the Martin Luther King's and the George Jackson's, who not only speak about oppression, but take positive action against it. So many of the leaders of dissent have emerged from the prisons, that it would appear that in this absurd society it is only the prisoners who are really free and capable of action.

It is this observation and the latest atrocities at San Quentin and Attica and the fair share of outrage which they have produced that brings to the fore both our seeming inability to prevent oppression and the underlying absurdity of our situation. In this society, the events at Attica have nothing to recommend themselves. It was just another in a long list of tragedies which are afterwards regreted. Just another small skirmish on the fringe of our existence. Men of action imprisoned in a system predicated on inaction and upon destroying initiative, the logical outcome being the destruction of action. We've all seen it before, in the South, in the Ghetto's and on college campuses and we've heard all the absurd rationalizations before. The rationalizations that attempt to convince us that there is something unnatural about action. As Governor Rockefeller stated, the riot was the result of "the highly organized revolutionary tactics of militants...(and)...the role outside forces would appear to have played." To the minds of those in the absurd society, any action must be an unnatural occurance, the result of revolutionary rhetoric and outside agitators. For as everyone knows, if it weren't for the outside agitators: slaves would be happy with their slavery; Blacks would be content with their second class position; Vietnamese would be more than willing to have the United States choose their government; the young would be eager to go out and kill and be killed by people they don't know and for reasons they don't understand; it seems only logical that if it weren't for those outside influences prisoners would be perfectly satisfied to be locked up in oppressive prisons for the rest of their lives and all of us would be content to do nothing about the situation in which we find ourselves.

Art Buchwald

The Soft Sell

WASHINGTON-One of the problems with today's economy is that it's very hard to find young people who are good salesmen. Many students coming out of college are more interested in a customer's motivation than they are in closing a sale. They also have a tendency to be too honest, which can play havoc in the retail business.

A friend of mine has a dress shop here in Georgetown and she told me of the problems she had with a young lady, a psychology major, whom she hired as a salesgirl.

This, in essence, is what happened:

The first day a lady came in the store, and the salesgirl (let us call her Miss Brampton) asked if she could be of help.

"I'd like a suit for the fall," the lady said.

"What price range?" Miss Brampton asked.

"It doesn't make any difference," the lady replied.

"Well, let me ask you this question: Do you want the suit because you need it? Or have you just had a fight with your husband and are trying to get even by making a very expensive purchase?"

"I beg your pardon?" the lady said.

"Perhaps you suspect him of some infidelity, and you think this is the only way you can get back at him."

"I have no idea what you're talking about," the customer said.

"Spending money in anger is a very expensive form of hostility. My advice to you is to think it over for a few days. Try to patch up your differences. Buying a new suit won't save your marriage."

"Thank you very much," the customer said frostily and left the store.

"She's angry with me now," Miss Brampton told the dress shop owner, "but in a week she'll be grateful I talked her out of it."

My friend the shop proprietor decided to let the incident pass, but that afternoon another customer came in, and Miss Brampton asked if she could be of help.

The lady said, "I need something really exciting. I'm going to the Kennedy Center and I want a dress that will knock everyone dead."

Miss Brampton said, "We have some lovely evening dresses over here for insecure people."

"Insecure people?"

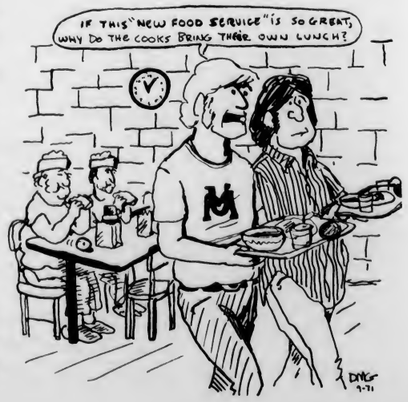
"Oh, yes. Didn't you know that clothes are one of the main ways women compensate for insecurity?"

"I'm not insecure," the lady said angrily.

"Then why do you want to knock them dead at the Kennedy Center? Why can't you be accepted for yourself instead of what you wear? You are a very attractive person and you have an inner beauty you try to disguise. I can sell you a new dress that will attract attention, but then you would never know if it were you or the dress that made people stop and stare."

By this time the dress shop owner decided to step in.

"Miss Brampton, if the lady wants an evening dress, let her see our evening dresses."



"No," the customer said. "Your girl is right. Why spend $500 to get a few compliments from people who really don't care what I wear? Thank you for helping me, young lady. It's true I've been insecure all these years and didn't even know it."

The customer walked out of the store.

The final straw for the dress store owner took place an hour later when a coed came in to buy a hotpants outfit, and Miss Brampton gave her 30 minutes on Women's Lib and then said, "All you do when you buy hotpants is become a sex object."

That night the dress shop owner put a sign in the window "Help Wanted--No Psychology Majors Need Apply."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Letters To The Editor

Eating Out: Or How Goes The War?

To the Editor:

You remember, dear audience, when last we left you, the scene was two switchborads. One is the MDC hotline and the other is located under the Miss Florence Diner. These switchboards are huffily manned by Miss Rhoda Rootor, a personable fat slob under the diner, and her twin sister, Sadie, at the SU. And now to continue with our broads at their boards.

Rhoda: So listen Sadie, is that you? Yeah, fine...yeah, yeah...what? No, no... the jungle rot is healing nicely now, thanks. Listen have ya heard about Everett? Christ, Sadie, such a mess you never saw--udders, spatulas, and salad (garden fresh, no less) everywhere. We've gotta raise some lettuce in a hurry, which is why I'm calling you, Sadie. We're putting the big squeeze on customers with outstanding bills in an effort to build Flo back up in the midst of her worst calamity. And according to my files, we've got a gold mine in your MDC office. So ring up the managing editor, pronto. Oh, he is, eh? Well, cut in anyway---he can call Tijuana back later.

"Hallo, hallo! Is this the party to which I am speaking? Well, this is Miss Rhoda Rootor under the Miss Flo Diner with an annoying problem that only you as MDC managing editor can--hallo, hallo?...Listen, Sadie, put me through again. Hallo, Mr. Frito? This is Miss R.R. again. Don't hang up on me! You've-angered-me-and-when-you-anger-me-you-anger-the-diner-and-all-the-powers-necessary-to-tie-up-the-Hatch-for-the-next-fifty-years. Do we understand each other? Good. Now, according to my records, your tab over the span of your journalistic career, comes to a grand total of $11.11. When may we expect payment? W-when what freezes over? Dear me, Mr. Frito, I can't see why you're kicking up such a ruckus when according to our files your publisher's advancements alone on your best sellers (and I just loved volume X of The Great Bunny Wunny War!) comes to--what? You don't give a what? Is that S as in Stop-the-Presses? Well, Mr. Frito, I'm afraid if this attitude keeps up, we'll have to discontinue your Diner's Club Card privileges and if we do not receive your payment within 10 days, we will send over a large, burly waiter to your office to castrate your card and I'd advise you to stash the hash: Everett's brother-in-law, Vasco, is a mean freak. Now then, Mr. Frito, wouldn't you rather pay your tab than lose your instrument and possibly the use of your writing hand? Oh dear, dear.

Mr. Frito? Mr. Frito, I think we can persuade you to pay after all. I want you to listen to a little recording...can you hear that all right? Yes, you're right. It is you! (snort, snort) And can you hear that other voice? And do you remember the basic content of that conversa-wait a minute, wait a minute, I want to hear that last part again. Oh! Mr. Frito! (snort, snort) Now, if you're at all interested, we have two full semesters more of this...p-pardon? Oh, Mr. Frito, blackmail is such an ugly word. Let's just call it a vicious threat. What's that? Well, Mr. Frito, I wouldn't have phrased it that way, but WE ALL ARE ENTITLED TO OUR OWN OPINIONS, aren't we? But listen, I'd love to quote you in the Waitresses' Weekly. Yes? Well, you'll be hearing from us, too, I'm sure. Well, good-bye for now.

Sadie? Yeah, it's me, Rhoda. Yeah, fine, fine...It's a lot less sore now. Listen, I've only got a minute, my board is lighting up, but I just wanted to tell ya...Ya know the National Weight Watchers' convention in Acapulco? Well, listen, I think we can take Peter Pan first class all the way!

Emilie Sikora
Kerry Gilliland

Euphonic Rhetoric And Pseudo-Democracy

To the Editor:

Those who found some encouragement in Chancellor Tippo's statement of "priorities" at last Wednesday's Convocation should not be fooled by euphonic rhetoric which is based on the usual bureaucratic pseudo-democracy.

Take, for example, the Chancellor's eleventh state priority: "Development of a viable overall campus parking plan which will hopefully be accepted by most elements of the campus community." (Daily Collegian, September 16) If the Chancellor had seen fit to publish the contents of his September 10th memorandum on parking--as he was apparently so eager to cite the "priority" in his speech--then the bureaucratic machinery for creating such a parking plan might have become visible. Tippo's memorandum reads in part: "The Faculty Senate at its meeting on May 27, 1971, after extended discussion of parking, passed a motion which requested me to 'appoint a new committee of three faculty members, three students, three members of the classified staff, and one administrator to take existing proposals, reconcile them and report to the Senate no later than October 1st. For the coming academic year a fee of $2.00 for second cars, of $5.00 for students and staff and faculty with salaries of less than $10,000, $10.00 for faculty and staff with salaries from $10,000 to $20,000, $15.00 for faculty and staff with salaries of $20,000 and above will be imposed'."

An interesting "priority" question arises from this: How are "most elements of the campus community" going to accept their places as financiers of this "parking plan"? Certainly neither the Chancellor nor the Faculty Senate nor the Student Government would resort to such a foul democratic device as the referendum to determine whether their constituents want to be gouged for another unprincipled fee--particularly in the middle of a wage-price freeze. Then, too, it is much easier for selected committees, like the above, to meet privately, without publicity, and arrive at conclusions already predetermined. Such a meeting of this committee will be taking place, I understand, this Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. in Room 307 of Whitmore.

I urge students and staff alike to join me on the picket line outside Whitmore on Wednesday morning to protest not only the outrageous proposed parking fees but also the hypocritical bureaucracy attempting to levy them.

Kenneth R. Mosakowski

Early Morning

The murmur of an early mourning's dawning.
Desperation flickers - a dimly lighted fireplace's glow.
Wrapped within our blankets of despair,
with only evil cares to keep us warm.
The image of my brother on the mantle, whose eyes saw all they know.

Blasting sense across these empty lines - my life is forming.
Forcing thoughts to move a blue quill pen...
Every word, a giant step toward one more crystal mourning...
I must become what I once was - again.

This pen, the shoehorn of my mind - it fits me into place.
Without it I'd be loosely tied within.
The table-top's brown statuette; sombrero hides a somber face.
My letter-box is full of hope - but hope so grim.

Who knows what to see, or what to feel?
My eyes still lie, and my finger-tips are numb.
They're useless in a world where Nothing's done.
How does one pretend to know what's real?

T. David Barrett

Editorial Points

There is one obvious advantage to being President of this University. You get to have your office hours printed in the school paper.

***

There's only one thing most people are still wondering about the Bost, er, New England Patriot's upset win on Sunday. How did it happen?

***

An unofficial source in Florence reports that the Great Miss Florence Diner War is being expanded and will soon open another front in Amherst. Most reporters are already dubbing this new offensive as the Great Dining Commons War. Keep an eye on the MDC for further coverage.

***

Sometimes you can't tell one end of the Collegian from the other. Like yesterday, for instance.

***

UMass just isn't what it used to be. Back in 1923, the sophomores competed against the freshmen in a rope pull across the pond. That must be a lot more dangerous today than it was then.

***

If the wage/price freeze reminded many people of an ice box, Nixon's Phase II sounds a lot like a toothpaste. In fact, many economists are known to be "brushing up" on it right now.

Pretty Pennies

By JERRY LAZAR
EDITORIAL STAFF

Before long, you, like most other college students, will start wondering where your next buck is coming from.

Well, wonder no longer, for here we present to you a foolproof plan for making not one, not one hundred, not one thousand, but (you guessed it) one million dollars. That's right! In less than four years, you too can be a millionaire. Impossible, you say. Read on.

To begin with, the key word in "making a million dollars" is 'making'. You see, nobody is going to give you a million dollars, and you'd have to bust your ass for a helluva long time to try to earn it. So obviously you're going to have to make it yourself.

But, you cry, counterfeiting is illegal. Perhaps, but so is teenage fornication, and how many people does that stop? The trick is to not get caught. And using the following plan, you'd have to be pretty stupid to get caught.

Ask yourself this: when you think of counterfeit money, what do you visualize? If you're like most people, you think of imitation twenty dollar bills, sham fifties, and so on. But how many people would bother to think of counterfeiting pennies? Pretty clever, eh? After all, you only need one hundred million pennies and you've cleared a million bucks.

For a small investment (small compared to a million bucks), you could set up your own, self-operating, penny factory, and clear an easy million dollar, non-taxable, profit, in (as we promised) less than four years.

Set your machine so that it will produce one penny per second. Compared with today's sophisticated machinery, that's a relatively slow rate, but better figure too low than too high.

From here on, it's simple arithmetic:

One penny per second equals sixty cents per minute, which equals thirty-six bucks per hour, which equals $864 per day, which equals $315,360 per year (except leap years which will gross $316,224). Now a $300,000 plus annual income is nothing to laugh at, and at this rate, your hundred millionth penny will roll out of the machine in less than four years (at 1:57 pm of the 1157th day, to be exact.)

So, you see, with relatively little effort, you too can make a million bucks. The next thing to consider is what to do with a shitload of pennies. Here's where we leave it to you. Someone suggested making the world's largest penny collection and auctioning it off, starting at one million dollars. Hence, making money off your money. But this is a lousy idea for a number of reasons. Number one, if a sham coin is detected, the source is easily identifiable, which puts the screws on you. Number two, you'd have to find a pretty big sucker to accept a million counterfeit bucks. So you'd best scratch that idea. Besides, we're here to tell you how to make the money, not what to do with it.

(Author's note: One of my more indigent acquaintances, majoring in physical education, accuses me of being a capitalist pig. So I take this opportunity to defend myself. I see it this way: If I set out to become a millionaire, then I am a capitalist pig. But if I set out to make everyone a millionaire, then I am, at most, a capitalist pig with socialistic tendencies.

The Bleeding Rose

A Rose Is A Rose Is A Rose

By BOB ZELMAN

(This is the first of a series of weekly columns which will deal with philosophical and religious topics.)

For the past few years I have been writing various letters and articles for the Collegian and mysteriously signing them c/o The Bleeding Rose. During this period many people have been asking me, "What the hell does the Bleeding Rose mean?"

To me, the Bleeding Rose is a metaphor for life itself. Picture the rose in your minds.

It is very beautiful and it makes you very happy. But it is also very sad because of the crimson blood which is pouring from it.

If the world is a "Bleeding Rose" then drug freaks only respond to its beauty-while political activities tend to only respond in great despair to the blood. But life is both beautiful and ugly-happy and sad. If you don't respond to both sides you are not relating to the world in all of its reality. The blood draws you toward it...then the beauty...then the blood...

This week there was sadness. The woman I spent the summer with split to California and two of my friends were busted.

But I have joyful memories of the time I spent with that woman and I was encouraged by the generous response of people for bail money.

The Bleeding Rose is a pictorial image of the primal forces which the Chinese call yin and yang. Yin and yang is a metaphor for light/dark, happy/sad, good/evil, beautiful/ugly, male/female. It is easily seen in the natural rhythms of the changing seasons, the in-and-out motion of the breath, day and night and life and death.

Just as there are rhythms for the process of change in nature there are also rhythmic changes for the other dualisms I have mentioned because we are also part of nature. The Bleeding Rose or yin/yang means that you can't be happy without sometimes being sad. You can't be good all the time without being evil and causing pain sometimes.

We are never unchangeably one or the other. We alternate in our response to the world between the Beatles' "Let It Be" in its beauty and the Stones' "Let It Bleed" in its pain.

But how can we get in touch with the forces of yin/yang? How can we know which response is appropriate at any given moment? I am thinking of the Zen Buddhist quote: "There are no perfect actions in a perfect world; only appropriate actions in an imperfect one."

The Book of Changes (the I Ching) is an ancient Chinese book which can put you in touch with the basic rhythms of yin-yang. It is a beautiful book which is brimful of wisdom from the Eastern religions of Taoism and Confucianism.

In some sense it can be said that the book predicts the future because letting you know what forces are dominant now it can tell you how to respond to the present in the proper way to get the future results you desire.

To use the book you must frame a question about what is happening now in your mind. A method which involves chance, tossing coins or counting a random arrangement of sticks (yarrow stalks) directs you to a certain page in the book.

The pages you are referred to describe one or two of 64 possible situations such as "Waiting, Obstruction, Conflict, Standstill, Abundance." The book is said to encompass all of the basic or archetypal human situations which are possible.

Somehow the quality of this moment in time is reflected in the coin-tossing and the situation you arrive at in the book accurately describes what's going on. There are many explanations for this, but all I know is that it works.

The book offers advice about the situation. But it rarely tells you anything that you didn't already know. What it does is to reawaken your intuitive sense of natural change.

When you're down, you might forget that things change-if you allow them to. When I used to be depressed a lot I used to play blues records. This would make me even more depressed.

But instead if I just "Let It Be" things would change. My depression would lift or external things would get better. It seems that suicidal people drive themselves to a crisis point by filtering happy things out of their consciousness.

In the opposite way, if I am happy, I must understand that I will be sad again. When the book speaks of abundance, it says that abundance does not last very long. But it cautions you not to feel sad about the decline which will inevitably follow. It says "While the period of abundance lasts, be like the mid-day sun and spread light throughout the world."

The book's basic premise which recurs over and over is the idea of perserverance. If you can just hang on, the balance of life will reassert itself.

Thus if you are happy, don't cling to your happiness. If you are sad, don't cling to your sadness. Above all, as Donovan says in one of his songs "Don't Let The Changes Get Yourself Down." The rose is still beautiful-even though it is bleeding..

(The only edition of the Book of Changes (I Ching) which is worth looking at is the Wilhelm Baynes hard cover translation. It sells for $7.50 but it is infinitely better than the paperback editions.)

Next Mon.-Tantric Yoga or Sexual Meditation

Have I Got A Meal For You

A Kosher Kitchen, run by the students of the Hillel Foundation is now operating in the Governor's Lounge in the Student Union. At one time, this lounge was considered to be converted into office space, but, the success of last year's program has encouraged the students to continue this school year.

There are student groups that have been sensitive to the problems of maintaining different cultural patterns because of the lack of University facilities. In the last year or so, the necessary space has been made available to special interest groups by the Student Union Governing Board. In some cases, these groups have even affected the services provided by the University itself, as illustrated by the new vegetarian policy provided by the Food Services.

The Kosher Kitchen is maintained and financed by the students who use it and the University has cooperated in helping students who have paid for meal tickets.

Kosher, meaning ritually proper, does not refer to a particular style of cooking. It means that strict limitations are placed on the kinds of animals that may be used for food, the mode of slaughtering and regard for the separation of dairy and meat products as well as the utensils and dishes used in the preparation and consumption of the food. Kosher foods can be prepared in a variety of styles, from French and Slavic to Arabic and Chinese as long as the observance of proper ritual is maintained.

Students interested in participating in the Kosher Kitchen and in the observance of Jewish dietary laws are invited to contact the Hillel office at the Student Union Building.

AUTO INSURANCE

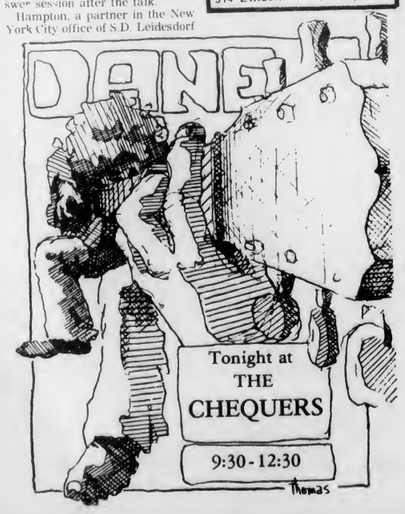
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

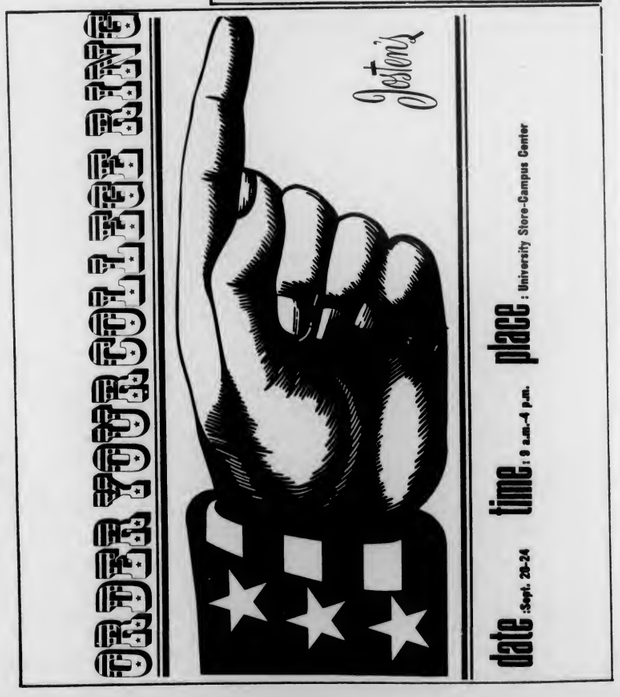
Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742

10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604



Accounting Board Reviewed



"The Work of the Accounting Principles Board-Recent Developments" will be the topic of a talk today at UMass.

Robert Hampton, III, member of the Accounting Principles Board of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, will speak at 7:30 p.m. in room 120 of the UMass School of Business Administration. There will be a question and answer session after the talk.

Hampton, a partner in the New York City office of S.D. Leidesdorf & Co., CPAs, has a bachelor of arts degree from Princeton University and a master's degree from the Harvard Business School.

All girls invited to meet the Sisters with the Brothers
TONIGHT
Chi Delphia Rush 8 p.m.
314 Lincoln Ave., AX House

Grad Research Center Completes Phase One

The beginning of the end of the 18.8 million dollar Graduate Research Center is upon us as the first phase has been completed.

By GEORGE WEISSLITZ

The first phase of the Graduate Research Center will be completed next month.

Part of the Center is already occupied. The Physical Science and Education libraries are already in use, and once the air conditioning system is installed, other facilities will begin to appear and become operational.

The Graduate Research Center will be a multi-purpose complex involving a multitude of departments. It will also contain the complete Graduate Administration Center which is now located in the relatively ancient Munson Hall, across from Herter.

Present plans call for the first of the two low-rise buildings across from Arnold to house a computer and science information center, offices of the Graduate School, a water resources research center, and a teacher improvement lab on the second floor; the statistics section of the math department, a small part of the physics department, and offices of the Institute of Man and his Environment on the third floor; with the basement used as a chemical analysis research center.

The tower that is already built is presently vacant but will be occupied by the chemistry department by next summer, and will have research facilities in polymer science, engineering, and biochemistry. The other two seventeen-story towers (which should be ready about three years after money is appropriated by the State legislature) will be involved in physics and mathematics research.

Although the Graduate complex appears to have its main emphasis in the physical sciences, this is not necessarily the case. The School of Education library will be permanently located in the complex, and the computing center will be for interdisciplinary, interdepartmental research, i.e. in the humanities and social sciences. Also, there will be many classroom and teaching facilities in the complex, as well as research facilities, , and all the units should have some sort of undergraduate components.

Dean of the Graduate School, Mortimer Appley, said that the complex was not really an expansion, but a "rearrangement" of many existing facilities. Vacated space in older buildings will be occupied by other units and courses.

The planning of the Graduate Research Center first began seven or eight years ago. Work was begun on the Center by Daniel O'Connell's Sons, Inc. in the spring of 1968.

Cost is 18.8 million dollars which includes all equipment and furnishing. Three and a half million dollars will have been funded by the Federal Government (U.S. Education Department), with the balance funded by the state.

The other two towers (Phase II) will be built at a projected cost of almost 12 million dollars--all of which will come from the state. Governor Sargent has recommended that the money be appropriated, and his recommendation is presently waiting approval in the House Ways and Means Committee.

Venereal Disease And Students Is Subject Of DVP Lecture

The Distinguished Visitors Program for its second lecture is sponsoring Dr. Nicholas Fiumara tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. He is one of the nation's foremost specialists in syphilology and dermatology, and will speak on "Venereal Disease and the College Student."

Dr. Fiumara is the director of the Division of Communicable Diseases, Massachusetts Department of Public Health; Associate Clinical Professor of Dermatology and Preventive Medicine, Boston University School of Medicine; Lecturer in Dermatology and Syphilology, Tufts University School of Medicine; and Instructor in Dermatology, Harvard Medical School, to name a few. His concern with college students is evident in the heavy lecture schedule he maintains year round.

The lecture will include graphic representations of some of the more common, and other uncommon, venereal diseases. A coffee hour, at which students may meet and ask questions of Dr. Fiumara, will follow the lecture in the Blue Wall Cafeteria, second level Campus Center.

WMUA

Tonight on WMUA: 91.1 FM

7:00 p.m. Evening Report-a half hour of comprehensive news from UPI, AP, UPI Audio Network, and WMUA News, the largest broadcast news department in the area. Includes a ten minute sports report and a five minute recap of the latest news at 11:25.

7:30-9:00 p.m. Progressive music.

9:00 p.m.-The inane humor of the Firesign Theatre returns to the UMass community for a full hour. Don't miss it!

10:00-11:00 FOCUS-host Ken Mosakowski discusses voter registration, the draft and other issues both in the university community and the political world at large. As usual it will be good conversation with a refreshingly contraversial-and knowledgeable-moderator.

Tonight's premiere program will feature commentary on the "Summer of 1971," with a look at recent events surrounding the draft, the student vote, the fate of the Berrigan Brothers, and a planned parking fee increase at UMass.

Tonight's program will also include a special segment on the recent killings at Attica State Prison in New York.

11:00 p.m. Late Night News Report - another half hour of complete news, information, sports and weather compiled by WMUA News.

11:30-3:00 Loredo rides onto your radio with some great music for Amherst's night people.

STEREO COMPONENTS

A purchasing co-operative has been formed to sell equipment at people's prices - 3 to 4% over cost. Scott, BSR-McDonald, Sony, Marantz, AR, Dual, Akai, Rectilinear, Dynaco, etc. Most top brands.

Call 546-8902 9 A.M. to 9 P.M.

It's So Simple!

Five years ago, individuality was having long hair.
Today, it's being part of a Fraternity.

Informal Gathering
PI LAMBDA PHI

A lot has happened to Fraternities in five years, yet the uninformed still hold their stereo typed ideas of the Greek system. Not only did Fraternities change, a few have blossomed. Pi Lambda Phi is one. We started with 12 men in a dorm in 1967. Today we maintain an average number of 35 in our own living-breathing structure. 35 men who elected to assert their individuality the way they thought best -- objectively and true to themselves.

Visit us. Even as a sceptic. It's time you realize that fraternities have indeed changed and can no longer be stereotyped.

Wednesday Sept. 18
14 Elm St. Call for Rides 253-7625

Remember the name because you will never forget the taste.
Bell's Pizza
65 University Dr.
256-8011 - 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

Learn to Drive
AMHERST
AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

Do You Have A Right to a $25 Refund?

Has the University administration met the requirements of the federal freeze on wages, prices, and rents?

Vice-Chancellor Thomas Campion will attend
an open meeting of the Student Senate.
WILL YOU?

on Wednesday, Sept. 22 at 7:oo p.m.

Room 165, Campus Center

PhD Candidate's Work Wins Award

Paul J. Orsulak, a doctoral candidate in biochemistry at UMass has won an honorable mention award from the Joseph

P. J. Orsulak

P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation.

The award is for an essay by the UMass graduate student on "Investigations in the Biochemistry of Downs Syndrome: The Relation between Thyroid Hormones and Bile Acid Metabolism."

The essay was entered in a competition sponsored by the Kennedy Foundation among "students who through the stimulation of their creative and academic talents might make a valuable contribution to the prevention, detection, diagnosis and care of the mentally retarded."

Orsulak's award carries a prize of $250. "We know this is simply a token for your very excellent and hard work but we do hope that it will encourage you to go forward with your career with a renewed sense of accomplishment," Eunice Kennedy Shriver, foundation executive vice-president, said in informing Orsulak of the award.

He has been invited to attend the awards banquet and ceremonies Oct. 16 at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington as a guest of the foundation.

Paul Orsulak is a graduate of the University of Scranton in Pennsylvania who received his M.S. degree in biochemistry at UMass in February of this year. He is now a candidate for a Ph.-D. His parents live in Lansford, Pa., and he lives in Northampton with his wife, the former Helen Spade of Allentown, Pa.

Aptheker to Speak on DuBois

The W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro-American Studies at the UMass will present, during the coming year, a series of nine public lectures by Dr. Herbert Aptheker on "The Life and Work of W.E.B. DuBois." The first and second lectures of the series will be delivered on Thursday evenings, September 23 and October 21, in the Memorial Hall Auditorium of the UMass campus.

Dr. Aptheker, distinguished historian and friend of Dr. DuBois, describes his lectures as follows:

"In nine lectures an effort will be made to present the times in which the late William Edward Burghardt DuBois (1868-1963) lived; and his role, thought and activity during those times. His major writings and their impact will be examined; his organizational efforts--the Niagara Movement, the NAACP, Pan-Africanism--will be described.

An analysis of the historic confrontations DuBois faced--involving Booker T. Washington, Marcus Garvey, and the Board of the NAACP--will be made. His basic ideas--as they developed--in the areas of education, racism, colonialism, imperialism, war and peace, violence and non-violence, and his programs for organization and for action, as these developed in his long life, will be considered.

Dr. Aptheker's well known book, American Negro Slave Revolts (1043) originated as his doctoral dissertation at Columbia University, and he has since published 27 volumes in American social and political history, among them a study of Nat Turner's Slave Rebellion in 1966.

He edited The Autobiography of W.E.B. DuBois in 1968 and is now preparing a multi-volumed Papers of W.E.B. DuBois for the University of Massachusetts Press as well as a forty-volume edition of The Published Writings of W.E.B. DuBois. His Documentary History of the Negro People in the United States is a standard work in Black History.

Dr. Aptheker is at present Director of the American Institute for Marxist Studies.

HILLEL UMASS

CLASSES OFFERED FOR FALL SEMESTER AT HILLEL

STARTING THIS WEEK

Elementary Hebrew ..... Wed. 6:30 p.m.
how to read, basic grammar, vocabulary

Basic Judaism ..... Wed. 7:30 p.m.
introduction to Jewish customs, ritual, theology, sacred literature and liturgy.

Talmud in English ..... Wed. 4:00 p.m.
a text course.

Elementary Yiddish through tapes
hours to be arranged according to students' schedules. First meeting only Thurs. (Sept. 23) 6:45 p.m.

An Allegorical Approach to the Creation Literature of the Bible ..... Thurs. 7:45 p.m.
5 sessions

An Introduction to Kabbalistic Thought
5 sessions; hours to be arranged. Call 545-2526 if you wish to sign up for this course.

All classes held at Hillel Room, 420 Student Union

Draft Counselor's Corner

New Law Causes More Hassles

GILBERT J. SALK

It now looks as if the new draft law will be passed within a few days. The prospect of a filibuster still exists, but it's chances seem slim. Thus, we can expect that the local boards will soon be back at their invidious game of kidnapping unwilling young men to support with their lives the failure of the old men's foreign policy.

With this in mind, a few words about some of the more important provisions of the new law seem to be in order.

For most of you, the fate of the student deferment is of utmost importance. It will fall by the wayside, probably retroactive to last April. This means that unless you were in school last Spring, you will be ineligible for a II--S, according to the SSS interpretation of the law. There are sure to be court challenges to this, however.

Anyone who applied for a new student deferment before the new law was passed should have gotten one. If the deferment is subsequently canceled, as the new law will do, then the board will have to reclassify you. This means that you will have the right to appeal. If your board fails to classify you before the new law is passed on the basis of information they received prior to passage of the law, then they have acted in such a way as to limit your right to appeal. There is also the problem of ex post facto legislation which might come into play here. In other words, possibilities do exist to hassle the hasslers. No guess on how effective such actions might be.

For Conscientious Objectors, some good news. Alternative service requirements will remain at two years, not the three was rumored earlier in the year. In addition, job lists will be compiled by the National Director instead of the State Directors, thus eliminating procedural differences from state to state. It seems likely that jobs such as Vista and Teacher Corps will soon become acceptable alternative service positions.

The quota system of draft calls will also be eliminated. Instead, a national number will be announced each month, and every draft board will induct all of its eligible registrants up to that number.

A new way out of the draft has been included in the new law. If your father, brother, or sister was killed while on active duty since 1950, or died as a result of injuries received while on active duty, you will qualify as a surviving son and be deferred.

These are the major changes under the new law. For more information, watch the newspapers when the new law is passed, or visit Draft Counseling Services in 923 CC.

A correction to last weeks column. The draft counselor training program will start next week, on Tuesday, September 28, not today as was previously announced. There will be a $5.00 charge to cover the cost of materials, and you may register in 923 CC. The course will run for three or four consecutive Tuesday nights, from 7-10 p.m.

This Thursday, Draft Counseling Services will begin holding mock draft board meetings for those who are scheduled for personal appearances before their boards. The mock board will meet from 10-noon Thursday mornings in 902 CC.

Your questions will be answered in this column. Write to Gil Salk, RSO #395, Campus Center, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass. 01002.

BUS SERVICE SCHEDULE

LV. U-Mass. for No. Amherst - 8:24 a.m., 11:54, 12:54 p.m., 3:56, 6:01

LV. U-Mass. for Amherst Center, Hadley and Northampton 7:31 a.m., 8:36, 10:01, 12:06 p.m., 1:06, 2:01, 4:09, 5:04, 6:14.

Connections at Northampton for

Easthampton, Florence, Leeds, Haydenville and Williamsburg

LV. U-Mass. for Worcester, Belchertown, Ware, Brookfields, Spencer and Leicester

Fridays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 4:50 p.m.
Saturdays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m.
Sundays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 6:25 p.m.

For Tickets and Information
The Lobby Shoppe, Student Union Bldg. Tel. 545-2006

CHARTER A BUS
call our office for rates and arrangements Tel. 584-6481
Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.
Northampton, Mass.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

'68 Fiat, red, 850 Spyder, 33,000 miles good cond. Call 549-1481 evenings after 6 p.m. tfn-22

1961 Falcon, rebuilt trans., new snows and batt. Great buy, $190. Call Crabtree and leave mess. for Grant, Rm. 206. tfn-22

Going to Europe, must sacrifice 1970 Maverick, ex. cond. 14,000 miles. Phone Ware, 1-877-0861. tfn-21

1968 MGB/GT, very good condition, 32000. Priced below book $1650. Greenfield 773-7065. 9-15, 22, 29

65 Chev. Corvair Monza Conv., 4 speed, $399. Call 549-1069 betw. 5-6. tfn-21

69 Triumph GT6--, excel. cond. 1700. Call Diane 413-533-6381. tfn-22

1964 LeMans GTO red conv. Best offer over $300. 527-3954. tfn-24

'69 Volkswagen bus, 23,000 miles, sunroof, AM-FM radio built-in bed, perfect condition $65-1165. tfn-21

1968 Austin Amer., 4 speed, 28,000 mi., good cond., AM-FM, new tires, best off. Call 546-6015. tfn-22

Volkswagen 1957, good condition, rebuilt engine, ideal for local use, one cosmetic blemish peachy $300. Call 1-367-9570 eves. tfn-21

1967 Opel Rallye, 31000 mi., well maintained best offer or trade for bike. Jeff 6-9049, 913, T6. tfn-22

1962 VW Sedan (engine has sucked valve) could be repaired or used for parts. Body good and unstripped. Call 253-9605 $75. tfn-27

71 VW conv. yellow with black top, only 9 months old. Best offer. Call Al 253-7939. tfn-24

69 Austin Healy Sprite $750., firm. Call Sam, B8 Wheeler, 545-2413. tfn-24

71 VW Super Beetle for sale since going back in Europe, exc. cond., still under warranty $1795. Call 549-1570 after 5 p.m. tfn-21

1963 Ford Sedan with 69 351 cu in., V8, 4 speed, exc. cond. $475.00. Ask for Mike Wilson Phi Sigma, 358 No. Pleasant St., Amherst. tfn-22

Going overseas, must sell quickly 62 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $190. 8 month old $150 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $50. Call 253-5090. tfn-24

MOTORCYCLES For Sale

350 Kawasaki Bighorn-1971-set for enduro competition $850...250 Montessa Lacross-1967-strictly motocross, $350. Call 549-3673. tfn-21

1969 Triumph Tiger 650 cc 8000 miles, all stock equipt, top condition. 256-8687. tfn-21

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sgl, dbl, queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or jumbo $49.95. Insured, deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst. tfn-22

'63 Alfa Romeo Gulietta Spyder convertible, Excellent shape. Strong engine. More class than an MG! Call 546-5214. 9-21-22-24

Smith Corona Tarnnet Automatic #10 electric portable typewriter. Brand-new with power return. $125 or best offer call 6-7831 Paul. tfn-24

Dark wood bureau with large mirror $30.00 Call 253-3025 after 6:00. tfn-24

1968 Yamaha DT 1 250 Enduro, 4500 miles, good condition. Call Wayne at 6-8767. tfn-22

Panasonic x track stern system. Carhome model. All speakers, home converter, 21 tapes. Details at $300 plus, yours, $180 call 546-5000. tfn-27

1960 BSA $650., runs well, but needs minor repair. Best offer around $350. Call 323-7714, ask for Jack. tfn-22

ADC 303 Stereo, Speakers, 8 months old, excellent cond., best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 6-5155. tfn-22

Hofner Bass Guitar - includes case and strap, exc. cond., best offer, contact Bob 549-1180. tfn-21

1970 Triumph Bonneville, 650cc, perfect running condition. Call 253-7858. tfn-24

1968 Honda SS125, exc. running cond., new inspection sticker, 6900 mi., 1 helmet. Asking $250.00. Call Jim 546-7906. tfn-24

Gibson hummingbird acoustic guitar with padded case. Brand new and cheap. 665-1162. tfn-21

Sm. Corona electric portable typewriter used 3 wks. $145 new will sell for $125 or best offer. Sandy 5-1532 days, 549-6276 eves. tfn-22

RIDERS WANTED

Driving to Springfield every weekday 7:30 a.m. Riders will share expenses. Call Rhonda Blair, 5-2412, 5-2413, 549 Wheeler. tfn-22

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommates wanted — 2 girls need 2 more girls to share apt., $50 a month, 1 1/2 mi. from Campus. Call 665-3202. tfn-21

Single girl wanted to share lg. apt., with 2 others immediately. Call Jean or Charlene anytime at 586-2986. Keep trying. tfn-22

Male to live in modern 3 bedroom apt. $80 per month. Apply Apt. 12 Rolling Green, Rt. 9. Available immediately tfn-22

Roommate wanted to share 5 room apt. in N'hampton. Own bedroom. Prof. female over 21. Rent $80 month. Call Laura 586-3361. tfn-22

ECONOMIST

Lost Economist vacancy of Thompson. If found return to 211. Sentimental value! tfn-22

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Call Mary 253-7673. If not there leave message. tfn-29

HELP WANTED

Lead Singer wanted for est. working group: Rock, Blues, etc., also original mat. Year round work! contact Bob or John 6-9747 - 6-8664. tfn-22

Economy-minded students earn extra money part-time without interrupting your present schedule. Call collect 1-533-3634. tfn-24

WANTED

Men to erect chainlink fence. Experienced only. Part time. Fitzgerald Fences, 310 Bridge Rd., Florence, Mass. tf10-4

Male subjects wanted for Psych. Experiment, $2.00/hr. Short qualifying questionnaire. See Jeanne, Bartlett 227. tfn-22

SERVICES

Need a band, Dial-a-band will supply a band that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9215. tfn-28

BABYSITTING WANTED

Will babysit in my home. Child under 1 yr. Call 549-6587. 9-21

Notices

ACTION LAB
Ratification of Constitution & election of officers, Wed., 9/22, 8 pm, 805 CC.

ASCE
First meeting Wed., Sept. 22 @ 7:30 in Rm. 134 Marston Hall-All Civil Engineering students invited. Refreshments served.

BICYCLE CLUB
First meeting of semester tonight in Rm. 801 CC at 8 pm. Discuss races, trips, clinics, workshops, etc.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
Everyone is welcome to our meeting tonight. Hear testimonies of how Christian Science works. 6:45 in Rm. 803 CC.

COFFEE HOUSE
Coffee House at Mary Lyon Dorm. Sat., Sept. 25 at 9 pm. Anyone interested in performing contact Sue Cirki (at Mary Lyon) 545-2516 by Sept. 23.

CEQ
Project Conference: at 6:30 tonight in CC Rms. 174-6. Remember, this conference can elect 5 people to the Steering Committee, so come to see what's happening.

DAMES CLUB
Student's Wives--Come and join us at our first meeting Sept. 22, 8 pm, Farley 4-H House. There will be a Fashion show followed by coffee and dessert.

FENCING CLUB
Formulative meeting Sept. 24 in CC Rm. 178, lower level. Men and women invited, 7 pm.

FREE U
Resources galore! Gathering soon. Come visit in old S.U. Book Store.

GOLFERS
Meeting Wed. at 7 pm in Rm. 223, Boyden.

GSS
GSS meeting Tues. night, 6:30 in CC Rms. 805-9.

HEALTH SERVICES STUDENT ADVISORY BOARD
Organizational meeting of the Board. All interested in any aspect of the Health Services please come, Thurs., Sept. 23, at 3:30 in CC 804-88.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
The regular square dance will be held tonight in the Student Union Ballroom from 7:30-10:30. Will all old class members please attend.

HILLEL
Sign up for Kosher meals in the office or call Elliott 256-6907.

INDEX
Interested in being an INDEX photographer? Look for ad in Collegian later on this week.

ITALIAN CLUB
Meeting tonight at 7:30 pm, 3rd floor lounge, Herter Hall. All those interested in this year's activities please attend.

MAROON KEYS
All Maroon Keys attend important meeting in Rm. 803 CC at 7:30 pm on Wed., Sept. 22.

NEWMAN CLUB
Social awareness Speaker Fr. Patrick Sullivan, S.J. on "Ecumenism, Is It Working?" Newman Center Social Hall, 7:30 tonight.

POVERTY COMMITTEE
Open meeting open to all those interested in building an ACTIVE program to deal with repression of the Poor. Wed., Sept. 22, 7:30 pm.--904 CC.

REVELLERS
Important Revellers meeting tonite-Sept. 21 at 6:30 pm in Rms. 170-172 CC. All Revellers must attend final planning for the 24th.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST
Any SDA's, Davidian SDA's, Branch SDA's, Sabbath Keeper or those with knowledge of "Present Truth", please contact Sammy 546-6984.

SOUTHWEST BOOK MART
Tomorrow, Wednesday, is the last day to claim your books or money. Berkshire Clubroom, daily 2-4 pm and 6-8 pm.

UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN
Questions or problems concerning sorority rushes? Drop by Rm. 110 CC, from 1-4 pm any weekday. A Panhellenic representative will be there to help.

Tonight's sorority rush parties will be a Barbeque at Sigma Sigma Sigma (5:30 pm), International Foods Night at Alpha Chi Omega (6:30-8 pm), Italian Night at Lambda Delta Phi, and a Sundae Smorgasbord at Kappa Kappa Gamma. Please Come!

VOLLEYBALL CLUB
The Volleyball Club is now organizing. All interested persons, graduate or undergraduate please call either Mike at 546-7646 or George at 546-5445.

WOMEN
Want to belong to a sisterhood that's not a sorority? And have brothers too? Come to Chi Delphia rush, Sept. 21, 8 pm, at Delta Chi Fraternity House, 314 Lincoln Ave. Call Donna 6-6333 for more info.

LOST
1 gold initial ring, initials MES. Call Mary 6-8585.

Textbook "Read Chinese Book II" Call 253-3173 or leave in Asian Studies Dept., 8th floor Thompson.

Black Cat, 1/2 white goatee, white whiskers, 3 1/2 white paws and blue collar, in vicinity of Colonial Village Apts. Answers to "Here, Kitty". Please call 253-7914.

Early Sept.; aviator style prescription sunglasses. Call Warren 546-5282.

Pair of wire-rimmed prescription sunglasses in multi-colored case. Please call Helen at 6-1422.

FOUND
Will the person who found my wallet in Bartlett Aud. Friday morning please call me? Money is yours, please return I.D.'s or their location. Steve 546-8895.

Puppy Spot needs patient person with an understanding of animals to give her a good home. She is 3 mos. old and very much in need of love and permanent master. Call Cindy 545-5042, Cance.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

The late Aldous Huxley, a Leo, was much concerned with such subjects as extrasensory perception, psychic phenomena and astrology. He often spoke to me about astrology and had special praise for one of my books, "Thought Dial."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on partnerships, quick changes affecting close ties. Surprise is order of day. What was confining is suddenly loosened. Protect image. Be sure you are correctly quoted. Be aware of details.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Work efforts pay dividends. You get action. Some associates come up with great suggestions. Don't permit envy to deter progress. Avoid extremes in eating, drinking. Steady pace is key.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Romantic interests dominate. You learn more about others and yourself. You can build base of greater emotional security. Taurus, Libra individuals may be involved. Accent creative efforts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid seeing situations, persons as you wish they could be instead, be realistic. Put a halt to self deception. Accent on changes affecting home life, permanent base. Study investment procedure.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may start out for one place and complete journey at different location. Means nothing now is really finalized. Be versatile. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Money gain indicated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish what you start. Don't be led astray by one who is uncertain. Guard valuables. Tendency exists to lose things while in transit. Associate should be double checked for competence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Creative juices flow. You are better able to express yourself. Change, variety and travel opportunities are featured. Get thoughts organized preferably on paper. Original ideas will click.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Trust hunch. Follow through on pet projects. Aquarius individual figures prominently. What was behind scenes bursts into open view. No time for hiding essentials. Aura of vitality is evident.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look beyond the immediate. Study potential. Unorthodox approach is apt to succeed. Friends provide excitement. Accept social invitation. Check appointments, reservations. Accent the unusual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Unique professional opportunity practically presents itself. Chance exists for definite improvement in financial area. Accent confidence. Put program and yourself across. Be definite, positive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good moon aspect coincides with chance to get ideas across to those at a distance. Key now is movement. Be vital rather than passive. Get your own imprint on efforts. Style is what counts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Much concerning hidden aspects of financial deal could be revealed. Utilize intuitive intellect. Trust hunch concerning family member. Maintain peace on home front. Get facts up front. See and perceive.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you usually are flexible, have sense of humor, are considered attractive by opposite sex. You possess a vitality which is contagious. Persons associated with you are active and optimistic. You have been scattering efforts; this is due to change next month. You will settle down to routine which can prove beneficial.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

I CHING

Chinese Book which predicts the future —

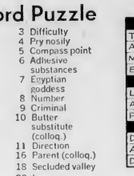
LECTURE DEMONSTRATION
By Bob Zelman

C/O BLEEDING ROSE

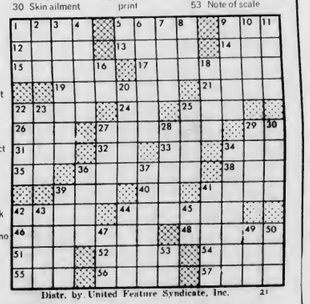
Sept. 21-23 8 p.m.
9th Fl. Lounge C.C.

$1.50

October 3, 1971
3:30 p.m.
&
8:30 p.m.
C. C. Program Council
presents

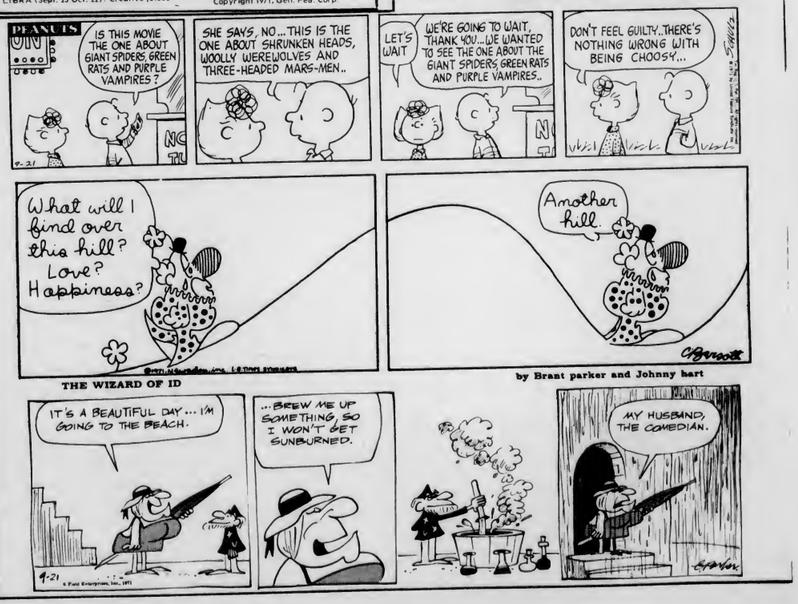


at.
C. C. Auditorium
tickets - $2.00
On sale at S. U. Ticket office starting 12:00 noon, Sept. 22.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Soaks up
5 Part of fireplace
9 Enemy
12 Merit
13 Comfort
14 Guido's high note
15 Body of soldiers
17 Tennis game
19 Brags
21 Booty
22 Succor
24 Hebrew letter
25 Writing implement
26 Beverage
27 Instruction
29 College degree (abbr.)
31 Male sheep
32 Babylonian deity
33 Conjunction
34 Algonquian Indian
35 Printer's measure
36 Recluse
38 Metal
39 Armed conflict
40 Man's nickname
41 Detest
42 Bad
44 Title of respect
46 Deprived of office
48 Consumed
51 Anger
52 Part of foot
54 Nerve network
55 Youngster
56 Sicilian volcano
57 Colorless



DOWN
1 Deposit
2 Paddle
3 Difficulty
4 Pry noisily
5 Compass point
6 Adhesive substances
7 Egyptian goddess
8 Number
9 Criminal
10 Butter substitute (colloq.)
11 Direction
16 Parent (colloq.)
18 Secluded valley
20 Lance
22 Rabbit
23 Verve
25 Station
27 Condescending look
28 Goes by water
29 Badger
30 Skin ailment
34 Track and field official
36 Nimbus
37 Unmarried lady
39 Polished
41 Listened to
42 Prepare for print
43 Girl's name
44 Encounter
45 Symbol for tellurium
47 Pronoun
49 Greek letter
50 Bird's beak
53 Note of scale

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Erving Sparkles For Squires

By EARLE BARROLL

Anyone for a rule change? Maybe the sacred rules committee of the NCAA could use one. It seems from the recent basketball exploits of one Julius Erving that we may see in the next couple of weeks the banding together of the sports writers of the two major wire poll services demanding the NCAA to allow for a re-balloting of last season's All-American basketball team. You see, they seem to have left someone off the first team who deservedly belongs there, the big guy, number 32.

No don't panic, don't come storming down to the Collegian, a new radical has not been born, but there's nothing like a good shot in the arm to drive the point home that Julius Erving has been the talk of the basketball world in recent months.

It's taken a while for the coaches, officials, writers and the like to give Julius his due acclaim, but the ice has been broken and the big guy is on his way to stardom.

It was only last summer that Erving was by-passed by the Olympic Committee to report to the Air Force Academy for the Pre-Olympic Team trials. A phone call from UMass coach Jack Leaman to the Committee chairman got Julius an alternate position.

When the opening came Erving was quickly on his way and in a matter of days established himself as the best player on the court and in the months to follow was rated the top player on the final squad that barnstormed through Europe and the Soviet Union.

Just this past summer Julius was the talk of New York basketball as he walked away with the MVP award in the Rucker league, generally regarded as one of the toughest summer leagues in the nation. He got his first real taste of pro-basketball and dominated the league, averaging 30 points, and 16 rebounds a game and set a league record of 54 points in a semi-final game.

Since September 10, Erving has been with the Virginia Squires and in a telephone conversation to Virginia yesterday the director of Public Affairs for the Squires was all raves about the big guy. "He'll be the rookie of the year," he said, "the club is real pleased with Julius."

Last week the Squires traded their all-star forward George Carter to the Pittsburgh Condors for a first round draft choice, but the director disclosed that "Julius was the major reason for the trade."

In the ten days that have elapsed since the beginning of practice Erving has been the center of attraction. While most of the players have been finding the workouts to be extremely tiring Erving has in the words of the club official, "been cool and calm, in extremely great shape and just a pleasure for the club to watch."

That's Julius alright, cool and calm and a pleasure to watch. He's been the best player wherever he's performed over the past two years be it the college scene, in Europe or on the courts of New York.

And now as a pro he's destined to keep this trend alive.

Oh, by the by, when are those writers going to ask for the rule change?

Booters Scrimmage To Prepare For Season

By STEVE FERBER

Saturday was round robin day at Westfield State College as three teams, Westfield, Springfield, and AIC joined UMass on a wet and soggy soccer field. In the space of three hours all four teams met one another as six 30 minute scrimmages saw defense dominate the day.

In the six contests, eight shutouts were registered and three belonged to UMass. Facing Springfield and Westfield in consecutive matches, the Redmen chalked up two shutouts. Unfortunately, so did their opponents. But there were a host of good signs in the double shutouts.

First there were the shots on goal. In the first game UMass began slowly as Coach Berryman recapped, "As usual we were a little slow, especially in the first 4 or 5 minutes when Springfield held the ball in our territory. But in the next few minutes we started doing things right, started moving and I'd say that we definitely outshot Springfield through those 30 minutes."

Berryman was pleased with more than his shots on goal. His fullbacks were coming up to midfield and keeping the ball down in the Springfield end. This successful offensive tactic worked not only in the Springfield contest but in the two UMass games to follow.

Another bright spot centered on the halfbacks, where most of the trouble has been for UMass. "The halfbacks got a good many shots on goal and were working well with the forwards. They are our links between the offense and our defense and on Saturday they displayed a lot of offensive prowess."

Indeed the UMass offense was looking sharper, but a wet field prevented them from converting on their "give and go" passes and their weaving tactics.

Providing the nucleus for opposition in game number two were Westfield's outstanding goalie, and their all-New England center fullback. This second contest saw more of the give and go, and again a good many shots on goal, but the Westfield defensive core was too tough, continually turning away UMass.

As close as the Redmen came, Westfield had the best opportunity to score. It was a penalty kick against UMass that Westfield's all-New Englander took, but by hitting the side post, and again muffing the rebound the Redmen shutout was preserved.

"Compared to the two Amherst scrimmages last week these two games were like night and day," remarked Berryman. "We kept the pressure on, and for the first time we sustained an offensive attack."

Then came the laughter as AIC fell to UMass 2-0, with the losers managing two or three weak shots on goal all game. Steve Blanchette scored the Redmen's first goal, and Vinny Grandonico followed soon after as the junior halfback from Hadley put the score at 2-0 as substitutes made their way into the lineup.

AIC's goalie was a busy man for nearly 28 of those 30 minutes, as overall it was a very frustrating and disappointing day for AIC. In all three contests they were shutout, dropping a 3-0 contest to Westfield, and 2-0 games to both UMass and Springfield.

Improvement was to be seen in almost every phase of UMass's game. The Westfield jamboree did a great deal for morale building as the soccer team is still somewhat downcast after losing two of their top men in Joey Cerniawski and Abdu Thraya, one to injury, the other to ineligibility. But Saturday proved to the Redmen that they still have a lot of things going for them, and this afternoon's final scrimmage against Westfield should go a long way towards predicting the outcome for UMass soccer '71.

Daily Collegian SPORTS

OVER MY DEAD BODY-Next Saturday the Redman soccer team opens its 1971 campaign at Maine. The booters will be hoping to see more scenes like the one pictured above as they open defense of their first Yankee Conference title.

Recreation Schedule

EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 20 TO DECEMBER 22, 1971

BOYDEN GYMNASIUM	MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 4 PM 6:00 PM SATURDAY AND SUNDAY 1:30 PM 5:00 PM
BOYDEN HANDBALL & SQUASH COURTS* NOTE See reservation procedures	MONDAY WEDNESDAY-FRIDAY 12:05 1:25 PM TUESDAY & THURSDAY 12:15 1:00 PM MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 4:30 5:15 PM 5:15 6:00 PM 6:00 P.M. 11:00 PM SATURDAY AND SUNDAY 11:00 AM 4:30 PM	Faculty & Staff Only Faculty & Staff Only Open Faculty & Staff Only Open Faculty & Staff Only
BOYDEN POOL	MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 12 noon 1:00 PM SUNDAY 1:00 4:00 PM	Co-ed Swim
CURRY HICKS POOL NOTE CHANGE OF LOCATION WOMEN'S PHYSICAL EDUCATION POOL BOYDEN WEIGHT TRAINING ROOM	MONDAY WEDNESDAY-FRIDAY 3:30 5:30 PM FRIDAY FAMILY SWIM 7:00 10:00 PM SATURDAY 1:00 5:00 PM MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 4:30 10:00 PM SATURDAY & SUNDAY 1:00 5:00 PM	Co-ed Swim Co-ed Swim
BOYDEN BOWLING ALLEYS BOYDEN AUXILIARY GYMNASIUM	MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 3:30 10:30 PM TUESDAY & THURSDAY (Starting October 19) 7:00 9:00 PM	Co-ed. Use of Gymnastic apparatus and trampoline will be permitted
WOMEN'S PHYSICAL EDUCATION GYM	MONDAY THROUGH THURSDAY 7:00 9:00 PM (Restricted to Badminton and Volleyball only)
WOMEN'S PHYSICAL EDUCATION WEIGHT TRAINING ROOM CURRY HICKS TRACK	MONDAY-THURSDAY 7:00 9:00 PM MONDAY-FRIDAY 8:00 A.M. 3:00 PM (Except when required for classes or Varsity practices)

*Reservations are required at all times on weekdays and may be made one day in advance. Example: Make reservation for Thursday and Wednesday, for Monday on Friday. Reservations must be made in person at the Intramural Office, Room 215 Boyden, starting at 8:30 am. No telephone reservations will be accepted! WEEKENDS. Court reservations are not necessary on Saturday and Sunday, as a new procedure has been adopted, whereby one or more courts will be available every 15 minutes. Time schedule and rules are posted at each court and are also available at the Intramural Office and Equipment Cage.

Women are advised to use some form of non-slipping footware to and from the Lockerroom.

Supply own towels and bathing suits. Parents must accompany children. Only children who can stand in the shallow end of the pool with their head above water will be allowed in the pool.

*At 50¢ per line. Bowling shoes will be provided free upon presentation of a student or faculty/staff I.D. Cards.

Derderian 4th In New York Race

By BRONA SIMON

Tom Derderian, a UMass senior, completed the New York City Marathon's course of 26 miles and 385 yards around Central Park in two hours, 37 minutes and 13 seconds for a fourth place finish Sunday. The race was won by Norm Higgins of New London, Conn., a former National champ, in a time of 2:24.54, a new course record. Since Higgins was already a national champion, the title went to the second-place holder, Chuck Ceronsky. Derderian earned the third place national junior champion medal.

Stopping twice during the race, the runner from Milford worked his way back for an impressive time, and was not bothered by the overcast and humid weather.

Two girls broke three hours for the first time in the U.S. Beth Bonner set an American Women's record, with 2:55.22, for 34th position, and Nina Kuscsik followed at 2:56.04 in 35th place out of 163 finishers.

Notices

POWDER PUFF FOOTBALL- There will be a meeting for all powder puff football team managers and women athletic chairmen (every dorm, sorority and independent team should elect one) to discuss the women's intramural program in general and powder puff football in detail. All those interested and involved should meet at the Intramural Office, 215 Boyden Gym, Wed., Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

****

ENTRIES DUE-Intramural entries are due as follows: Cross Country, Sept. 21; Metawampe 500 Bicycle Race, Sept. 22; Paddleball, Sept. 23; Handball Singles, Sept. 23; Women's Tennis Singles, Sept. 22.

X-Country

Sophomore Charlotte Lettis won the woman's 2 mile cross-country race held in Franklin Park in Boston this past Saturday. She out ran a field of 25-posting a time of 11:46 for the moderately hilly course. She outsprinted Sue Kirkland of the Liberty A.C. at the line to win by a narrow 2 seconds.

Charlotte almost lost herself and the race at the mile mark when she ran off the poorly marked course. Fortunately she was rescued by UMass senior cross-country runner Rick Tashjian who put her back on the "right track". Rick was warming up for the 5 mile open cross-country race held later in the day. He finished 23rd out of a record-breaking field, running the course a full minute faster than he did last year at this time.

Senators In Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon, the nation's No. 1 sports fan, went to bat for Washington Monday in its bid to hold onto major league baseball.

The Washington Senators are in financial distress and an offer is being made by a Texas delegation to transfer the Senator's franchise to the Dallas-Ft. Worth area.

"I do hope something can be worked out so major league baseball does not leave Washington," Nixon told reporters at the White House Monday.

Intramurals

FIELD	TIME	TEAMS
3	6:00	Government vs. Burners
4		Orbitals vs. Zeroes
5		Conglos vs. Civ. Eng.
1	7:00
3	7:00	APO vs. BKP
4		SAE vs. PSK
5		DC vs. SPE
6		KS vs. TEP
1	8:00	LCA vs. SAM
2		PMD vs. TC
3		Bulldogs vs. Acme
4		Fellas vs. Cult
5		Mouse vs. Orcs
6		Dildoughs vs. Spunks
1	9:00	3 M's vs. Heads
2		Senators vs. Monuments
3		Bulldozers vs. Heads
4		Terrors vs. Mags
5		Chestnuts vs. Barracudas
6		Bruins vs. Buffaloes
1	10:00	Brotherhood vs. Gypsies
2		VVV vs. Machines
3		Tubes vs. Kumquats
4		Jaguars vs. Leopards
5		Cougars vs. Lions
6		Comanchees vs. Mauraders

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Clear, and warmer than it should be, perhaps reaching into 70's.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 11 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1971

"HURRY ON UP TO THE Top-of-the-Campus where the $1.50 burgers are Charcoal-Broiled." Yes, friends, here at the Top there is always change from your ten-dollar bill. And friends you can be sure that you will be dining right alongside of the University's elite. So, why not give it a try; what have you got to lose? (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

"Here We Go Again" Dept.

Draft Bill Extended Until 1973

WASHINGTON (AP)-After months of delay the Senate passed and sent to the White House Tuesday the bill extending the military draft until June 30, 1973.

Passage of the bill by a vote of 55 to 30 came with surprising suddenness after the Senate by just one vote had invoked its anti-filibuster rule to limit debate on the measure.

President Nixon's signature, expected promptly, will enable the Selective Service System to resume draft inductions halted when the old law expired last June 30.

Military Pay Increase

Another major section of the legislation calls for a $2.4 billion military pay increase intended to improve chances for creating all-volunteer armed forces by mid-1973.

Under the compromise reached by the House-Senate conferees, the effective date for the increase was set as Oct. 1. But the compromise-not subject to amendments on the Senate floor-was adopted by the conferees and approved by the House well before Nixon announced his 90-day wage price freeze on Aug. 15.

His action leaves in doubt whether the increase can be granted at the date specified or will have to be deferred until after the freeze ends Nov. 14.

Victory for Nixon

The Senate's action was a major victory for the President and a defeat for antiwar senators who had held out for something stronger than the measure's call on Nixon to negotiate an end to the Indochina war as quickly as possible.

That provision was agreed to as a compromise by Senate-House conferees after the House refused to accept the Senate's amendment by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., that called for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in nine months if U.S. prisoners are freed.

A new effort is expected now to attach that proposal to the $21-billion military procurement authorization bill, on which the Senate resumed debate following passage of the draft measure.

Senate Limits Debate

The end of the draft debate, which has occupied more than half of the Senate's time since early May, came within minutes after proponents of the draft measure succeeded by the barest of margins 61 to 30 in mustering the two-thirds vote needed to limit further debate.

As the defeated leaders of the campaign to delay the draft, Sens. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and Alan Cranston, D-Calif., huddled on the floor, the Senate moved right into the vote on the bill itself.

Tuesday's action on the draft bill, while not expected by Senate leaders until Thursday at the earliest, had been expected since last Thursday's 47-36 vote on which the Senate refused to send the draft bill back to conference.

The measure includes a $2.4 billion military pay raise, authorizes President Nixon to drop undergraduate student deferments starting with those entering college this fall, extends procedural rights of draftees before their local boards and limits inductions to 130,000 this year and 140,000 next year.

20,000 To Be Drafted

Pentagon sources have said once the draft was renewed about 20,000 men would be called up for duty during the rest of the year, bringing the total number of draftees in 1971 to fewer than 110,000. This would be the fewest since 1964 when 107,500 were drafted.

When the Senate resumed debate on the procurement bill, Proxmire delivered a lengthy speech asserting that recent reports about development of a supersonic Soviet bomber "seem more designed to stampede the Congress into buying a stable full of BIs, the U.S. advanced bombers, than to provide impartial information on the Soviet military posture."

He called on the Senate to consign "the supersonic bomber gap to the graveyard of defunct and disproved weapons scares."

After the draft vote, the Senate spent most of the remainder of the day in recess while leaders sought to arrange votes on the procurement bill.

On The Inside:

•Student Affairs Reorganized See page two

•No Homecoming Concert See page three

•UN Meets China Issue See page four

Under Bromery and Champion

Student Affairs Is Trying To Change

By BOB CALLAHAN

The Office of Student Affairs under the direction of Vice Chancellor Randolph Bromery has come under many changes this year. The changes which you may have noted have come as a result of last semester's Task Force meetings in which Vice Chancellors Bromery and Campion met with students, staff and faculty of the University.

When asked about the reorganization, Vice Chancellor Campion stated that it was begun because it was evident that many students felt frustrated by administrative red tape.

Campion added "We thought that we were really responsive to the student body by putting someone in the resident areas instead of grouping things in Whitmore."

From now on, a tremendous amount of responsibility will be given to the residence halls on campus according to Dr. Bromery. This is because of the effort being made to give the residence halls more responsibility in decision-making.

The five-campus residence areas are each headed by an Area Director who will together constitute an area council which will meet to discuss common problems. From time to time they will also meet with the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs and the Operations Council.

Another revision which became effective this year concerns the employment of business managers. Their main responsibility will be for the budget, housing, inventory, maintainance and general management functions of the residential areas.

Included also in the reorganization will be the position of an Academic and/or program officer who will direct and coordinate educational, cultural and other special programs.

Another position created is that of a Student Affairs Officer whose responsibility will concern the heads of residences, counselors, residence hall security, residence hall parking, residence hall and dining commons exemptions, and staff training programs.

Several other changes have been made by the student affairs reorganization. It has been announced that the Directors of Security, Campus Center-Student Union Complex, Human Services, and of Admissions and Financial Aid will all report directly to Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Randolph Bromery.

The appointment of Gerald Scanlon was the most controversial issue in the recent reorganization. He was appointed Acting Director under mandate to Vice Chancellor Bromery who disclosed in a recent MDC interview that he wanted students to play a strong role in such appointments and similar decisions concerning the Campus Center.

All appointments made in the reorganization are temporary. According to Vice Chancellor Bromery, Student Affairs will find the flaws that may exist this year and correct them.

Jackson Shot From Back

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)-The bullet that killed Soledad Brother George Jackson at San Quentin prison struck him in the back, rather than the head, passed upward through his body and exited at the top of his skull, a pathologist's autopsy report concluded Tuesday.

This was in conflict with a coroner's report issued Aug. 23, two days after the black militant and author was slain in what prison officials said was an attempt to escape from the prison across the bay from San Francisco.

The first report, described then as preliminary by Marin County Coroner Donovan O. Cooke, said the bullet apparently entered the skull and exited from the mid-back.

In the final autopsy report released by Cooke, pathologist John Mansyaring said: "Ballistic consultation confirms that the entry wound was located in the mid-back and the exit is through the top of the skull as clearly evidenced by the outward coming of the skull on the calvarium" the domelike portion of the skull.

Cooke said no conclusion had been reached about the position of the body but said: "If he was flat on the ground he could have been shot that way through the back."

He said Jackson was also struck on the inside left ankle, fracturing a bone.

Joseph O'Brien, San Quentin information officer, said prison officials still maintain Jackson was killed by a bullet fired from one of two 20-foot-high guard towers. Three guards, two white inmates and Jackson died in the violence.

Members of Jackson's family questioned the prison's statement that the 30-year-old Jackson smuggled a gun into San Quentin's maximum security Adjustment Center and used it in an escape try. They contend he was murdered by prison guards.

In New York, Jackson's mother, Georgia Jackson, said the family is asking the United Nations to investigate his death.

Pentagon Papers Out - Officially

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Pentagon Papers, which caused such a hullaballoo when they first appeared in the press, were sent to the printers Tuesday en route to general sale. But unless the public shows more interest than congressmen they'll make no best-seller lists.

The officially declassified documents dealing with U.S. involvement in Vietnam were sent to Congress Tuesday and rushed to the government printers at once. Four volumes dealing with peace negotiations and prisoner-release negotiations were not released for publication.

Public printer A.N. Spencer said they'll be ready for public sale within a week-but he foresees no heavy demand for them at $60 a set.

House Armed Services Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., said only 20 of 435 House members have looked at the "top secret" copies of the 47-volume Vietnam study that have been available to them in his committee room for three months.

The declassified version promised by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was wheeled by uniformed soldiers Tuesday morning into the House and Senate Armed Services and Foreign Affairs Committee offices with no advance announcement.

Hebert immediately turned one of his copies over to Spencer with instructions to print it for Congress and for public sale as rapidly as possible.

Spencer estimated 2,000 copies would be ready for public sale by Monday for sale at $60 a set.

He said the 7,000-page "History of U.S. Decision-Making on Vietnam Policy" study would probably be printed in 11 or 12 volumes.

Take What You Want

Register for a course you want and the time you want it" Impossible" Not if Whitmore's new O.S.C.A.R. computer works as well as expected.

Beginning with preregistration in May for the Fall semester of 1972, students will be able to pick the times they want to go to classes. Instead of the present system where the student writes his choice by department number and code, the new system will use numbers only, filled in on mark-sense cards. For example, instead of registering for Math 123, the course would be "123456". The student may either choose the course and let the computer fit him into a section, or instead, choose the specific section himself. The section number would be included in the course identification number.

There are obvious limitations to this system. Certain sections will be favored either time-wise or prof-wise. Priority for sections will be made by class year, giving the seniors advantage in selection. Other priorities would be established for those who have major requirements or who need a particular class.

If a student cannot be fit into his desired section, he will either be put into a class at the same time or, if this is not possible, then put into another section.

Students may also indicate times which they do not wish to be assigned classes, for example if they need certain times free to take courses at another of the Five Colleges. The need to request free time will essentially be removed, however, because of the new selected scheduling.

John Dempsey

Boston Teachers

A representative from the Boston Public Schools will discuss application procedures and eligibility requirements with prospective teachers on Monday, Sept. 27, at 7:00 p.m. in Rooms 174-176 of the Campus Center.

Even if you are not considering teaching in Boston, the meeting will provide information about large city procedures in general. The NTE or National Teachers Examination (which Boston requires) will also be covered.

FACES OF EARTH

151 NORTH PLEASANT STREET, AMHERST

Next To The Post Office

OPEN TO 10 P.M.

Every Night

Bed Spreads	Field Jackets	Tunics
Indian Rugs	Peacoats	Knap Sacks
Lamps	Wallace Berry Shirts	Shoulder Bags
Glass Tiffany Shades	Flight Suits	Leather Pouches
Paper Shades	Ribbed Tank Tops	Ruck Sacks
Overcoats	Chambray Shirts	Ponchos

COLD FEET?

Footwear

For Men & Women

Prices You Can Afford

THE SHOE-BIN

Sandlar
Frye
Verde
Harbor Imports
Spaulding
Converse
Bresson
& More

IN THE ALLEY - Behind Aubuchons

CAMPUS III — WARREN BEATTY, JULIE CHRISTIE, McCABE & MRS. MILLER, 7:00 & 9:30, Rated R

CAMPUS II — 7:15 & 9:15 (R) Carnal Knowledge

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

CAMPUS I — Mon.! Ladies Night $1 — JENNIFER O'NEILL, GARY GRIMES — In everyone's life there's a Summer of '42 — 7:00 9:00 -R-

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $7.50 per semester, $14.00 per year.

Cage at Fault

No Major Concert For Homecoming '71

By HUGH OWEN

A committee comprised of nine representatives is being formed to once again formulate plans for a University Senate. The Faculty, graduate and undergraduate population will be equally represented in this committee. Whether this committee will advance further in formulating plans for the Senate than the Student and Faculty Senates did last spring is a matter of considerable debate.

When plans for the Senate were first proposed last spring it became apparent from the beginning that the proposed University Senate would present problems.

The time limit involved in working on the document was one point of concern. A few opponents felt that not enough time was given to discussion but those against giving more time cited that many people were not interested and just prolonged discussion would not do any good. They cited the lack of attendance of students at the open meeting.

There was also considerable debate over whether the Senate would act as a whole with the concerns of the whole University in mind, or would the Senate split into different factions, each representing its own interests, thus causing dis-unity in the Senate.

Most of the remaining discussion centered around what one member of the committee deemed the "numbers game", or the ratio of Faculty-undergraduate -graduate representatives to be established as the permanent ratio for the University Senate. Several of the committee members favored a 1-1-1 ratio, while others favored other, unspecified percentages.

Unable to come up with a suitable solution to this problem, discussion floundered, and the plans for the Senate were shelved for a while.

Now the question is, what is the future of the plans for a University Senate this year? President Robert C. Wood said of the Senate, "It is my opinion that it should be formed." Chancellor Tippo favors the formation of the Senate also.

Even with the formation of this committee, the question still remains as to whether three different factions on campus can get together and work as one with the best interests of the campus as a whole in mind, or will they fall to arguing as the Faculty and Student Senate did last year.

University Senate Idea Still Alive

By JERRY LAZAR

"If it wasn't for the last Cage concert last fall, we'd be planning another concert for Homecoming right now."

These are the words of Program Advisor Jim Riley, who later went on to explain how last year's Homecoming will affect plans for Homecoming '71.

Until Homecoming '70, the Cage was the scene of many major concerts where nationally prominent performers would appear. Last year's Homecoming, for example, featured "Traffic", "Blues Image", "Rare Earth", Buffy St. Marie, and comedian David Frye.

But this year, there will be no large-scale concerts. Instead, individual student organizations have planned smaller activities.

Howie Bresner, President of Programming Council, remarked: "We will definitely have a Homecoming this year, but not on the scope of past years." And Treasurer of Programming Council Russ Vieiri added: "It sounds like just another weekend in the Student Union."

Yes, this year's Homecoming will certainly be different from Homecomings past, and the reason evidently lies in the outcome of Homecoming '70. For those of you who forgot or never knew, Homecoming '70 was marked by stone-throwing, bottle-hurling gate crashers, who threatened the safety of those who were legitimately and orderly attending the concert. The Cage, with an official capacity of 4500, bulged with an estimated mob of 20,000.

As Riley pointed out, there were plenty of tickets and a reasonable admission cost, but there were many who felt that "music should be free". Consequently, the second performance was declared a free concert to avoid the unpleasant scene caused by the first. In actuality, said Riley, the unfortunate incidents were caused by a minority of 5% to 10%.

The feeling of the Student Activities staff is that, "We don't want to be responsible for any injuries or damage," that such a future scene might cause. In addition, Riley said, "You couldn't find a cop who would want to be on duty" at such a concert.

Concluding on a more optimistic tone, Riley said, "Maybe it's just a matter of time" before the ban on Cage concerts is lifted.

Opinion Survey Proposed

By ANNE STADNICKI

A bill proposing that an opinion survey on voter registration be conducted concurrently with the imminent Student Senate elections will be brought before the Senate at its meeting tonight.

Little opposition is expected to the bill, which is sponsored by Senators John Stevens and Larry Ladd. The two students are active in the Amherst Voter Registration Drive.

"It's a patriotic issue, so it will probably pass," Ladd said.

Items on the proposed survey would include intention of registering to vote, and name and address so that the voter drive workers could contact the student.

In anticipation of the bill's passage, the people who will conduct the Senate election were consulted by Ladd as to the feasibility of handing out the survey with the ballot at polling places. Mary Silveira and Bill Spin were reported to have said there would be no problems.

Students could receive the short survey on a separate piece of paper with their ballot, they said. The separate form would insure the secrecy of the ballot, it was explained.

Voting for representatives to the Student Senate takes place in residence halls, and in the Campus Center on Thursday, September 30th. The Senate officers are hoping for a large turnout.

Anyone interested in helping to register students can contact John Stevens at 5-0341, or leave a message at that number.

Registration Set

A voter registration session for all precincts, to be held at UMass prior to the closing date for registration, will be announced at a later date by the Board of Registrars.

This session will be for the benefit of residents who find it impossible to register at the Town Clerk's office between 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. every weekday. Look in the Collegian for the date, time and place.

Really Now...

A 23-year-old Chicopee man was arraigned in Northampton District Court yesterday on charges of assaulting two UMass co-eds, drunkedness, indecent exposure, and lewdness.

Campus police answered a complaint Monday, at 4:46 P.M. that two girls were allegedly being physically assaulted by two naked males. Police also received complaints that two men were seen swimming naked in the little pond near Orchard Hill.

Two men were arrested by the campus police in the Orchard Hill area, west of East Pleasant St. Their car was later towed away. The men were not connected with the University.

GUSTO GRABBING UMIE stares in awe as he discovered the final resting place of the Daily Collegian. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh.)

Call MDC Hotline 5-2550

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742

10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

SPRING SEMESTER--ISRAEL

For Humanities Students
Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study centered in Jerusalem/February-June, 1972
Limited to 30 students
Juniors, Seniors, and Grad students eligible.
Four courses/History, Literature, Archaeology, Bible
Earn 16 credits
Knowledge of Hebrew or Arabic preferred
Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Application deadline November 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

BLUE JEANS

$4.95

WEARHOUSE

201 N. Pleasant

BLACK MAGIC

featuring: NATALIE COLE - vocalist

at the

CHEQUERS

Wednesda Nite

9:00 to 12:30

In The Nation And The World

26th Session Opened Tuesday

U.S. Sees Two Chinas In U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)-The United States expressed "overflowing" confidence of success in seating both Chinas as the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th session Tuesday.

The United States said it had rounded up a dozen sponsors for two resolutions aimed at seating Communist China in the General Assembly and on the Security Council and retaining Nationalist China's place in the assembly. Delegation spokesmen said the proposals would be put forth this week.

Eighteen backers of Red China have submitted a resolution that would seat Peking and oust Chiang Kai- Shek's Taiwan regime.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik, newly elected president of the assembly, focused on the China question in his address. He urged the organization to forge "a universality of membership" for the United Nations.

Edvard Hambro of Norway, the previous assembly president, said the steps Washington and Peking were taking to normalize relations "will undoubtedly have considerable significance" for the United Nations "and may lead to increased possibilities for the organization to perform its functions under the charter."

The assembly voted three new members into the United Nations at its opening session, bringing total membership to 130 countries. They are Bhutan from the Himalayas, and Bahrain and Qatar from the Arabian Peninsula.

Informed diplomats expect the pro-Peking delegations to fight the U.S. proposals in the steering committee on Wednesday or Thursday, with claims that the U.S. plan is both a duplication of their own and a dodge to bar Peking, which has said it will not come to the United Nations as long as Nationalist China is a member.

The committee's agenda recommendations will be subject to approval of the full assembly, which meets Friday. This will give the first indication of the two sides' relative strength.

Debate and voting on the China resolutions is expected on the 10-day period beginning Oct. 18.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union reiterated Tuesday night that it would seek U.N. membership for Communist China and expulsion of the Taiwan regime.

As the 26th U.N. session opened in New York, a telephone caller reported that 26 sticks of dynamite had been planted on the third floor of the Secretariat building. Security guards found nothing.

In a speech after his election, Malik said man's ability to survive until the end of the century requires a new global awareness.

Malik named the population explosion, poverty, harnessing technology and destruction of the ecology as some of the major problems of the next 25 years.

Leading issues besides China among the 109 items on the proposed agenda for the session are how to make peace in the Middle East and who should be U.N. secretary-general after U Thant leaves at the end of this year.

U.S. Jet Armada Hits No. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP)-An armada of 250 U.S. planes swarmed over North Vietnam Tuesday and delivered one of the heaviest raids in the North in the past three years.

The supersonic jets flew through antiaircraft fire to bomb surface-to-air missile SAM and gun sites, supply depots and truck parks in a six-hour attack from daybreak to noon.

The U.S. Command said fighter-bombers launched 200 bombing strikes in North Vietnam's southern panhandle, concentrating on an area from the demilitarized zone to about 35 miles north of it.

About 50 other aircraft supported the strikes. These included jet fighters flying protective cover, electronic planes to jam the radar guidance systems of antiaircraft guns and SAM missiles, rescue planes and helicopters, and reconnaisance planes to take photos of bomb damage.

The U.S. Command said all of the American planes returned safely to their bases in South Vietnam and Thailand.

No assessment of damage to the North Vietnamese positions was readily available, the command added.

Pilots reported light to moderate antiaircraft fire but said they encountered no SAMs.

The U.S. Command said the raids were ordered because of a recent increase in North Vietnamese missile and antiaircraft fire at unarmed U.S. reconnaisance planes over North Vietnam and at American aircraft attacking in Laos near North Vietnamese territory.

In addition, sources said, the raids were prompted by heavy North Vietnamese attacks across the DMZ last month against allied frontier defenses.

A large North Vietnamese troop and supply buildup has been reported recently just north of the DMZ.

Moreover, South Vietnamese field commanders say that more than half the 15,000 to 18,000 North Vietnamese troops once deployed in the region immediately below the DMZ have pulled back into North Vietnam in recent weeks.

The pullout came in the face of incessant U.S. B52 raids and a 13,500-man South Vietnamese ground sweep of the sector. The 200 strikes Tuesday also could have been aimed at catching some of the retreating North Vietnamese troops and equipment.

The U.S. Command described the raids as "protective reaction strikes against military targets in North Vietnam constituting a threat to the safety of U.S. forces."

They constituted the 60th so-called protective reaction attacks this year. These attacks are usually undertaken when a U.S. plane is fired upon or when it detects North Vietnamese ground radar is tracking in preparation for firing. Most of the protective reaction strikes have been by two or three planes.

Mississippi Project Halted

WASHINGTON (AP)-A federal judge Tuesday ordered the massive Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway project in Mississippi halted until he can determine its effect on the environment.

The ruling stirred up immediate resentment among congressional backers of the presidentially blessed project and Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., called the decision "judicial tyranny."

Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. of U.S. District Court, issued a preliminary injunction ordering the Corps of Engineers to halt the start of construction on the $337-million project pending a hearing on a permanent injunction to block the project completely.

Tuesday's decision was the third time the Environmental Defense Fund has been able to halt a federal project on environmental grounds. Earlier it was able to delay a start on the trans-Alaska pipeline and to stop work on the Cross-Florida barge canal.

Irwin Goldbloom, attorney for the corps, said no decision has been made on what the next step will be.

Medina Charges Reduced

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP)-The judge in Capt. Ernest L. Medina's My Lai previewed for opposing lawyers Tuesday a set of jury instructions reducing the charges against the officer.

Col. Kenneth Howard, the judge, said he will give the case to the jury Wednesday after hearing final arguments.

His instructions, based on rulings he made last week, dismiss outright one murder charge, and reduce to involuntary manslaughter a charge of premeditated murder in the death of at least 100 My Lai civilians.

One count of premeditated murder, the reduced charge of involuntary manslaughter and two counts of assault will be before the jury when it begins its deliberations, Howard said.

Medina, 35, Montrose, Colo., who earned the Silver Star for gallantry in Vietnam, commanded Charlie Company when it attacked My Lai in 1968.

The Army charges that Medina was responsible for the death of the 100because he knew his troops, including Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., were murdering them, but chose not to intervene.

Howard ruled, however, that the government failed to prove the 100 civilians were slain as the result of any premeditation on Medina's part.

The captain, if convicted faces a maximum sentence of life on a premeditated murder charge, three years for involuntary manslaughter and three years each in the two assault charges.

The judge made only minor modifications to his 30 pages of instructions after discussing them with defense attorney F. Lee Bailey and Maj. William Eckhardt, the prosecutor.

The judge agreed to instruct the jury to acquit Medina of the single premeditated murder charge if the panel of five Vietnam veterans decides the officer acted out of fear for his life.

Why buy used clothing when you can get new clothing at
used clothing prices!!
AT THE BASEMENT SALE
at
WEARHOUSE
201 North Pleasant St.

TONIGHT!! Entertainment By AMERICAN GOTHIC
CRADLE
ANNA BENSON
JACK VERONISI
at
The English Pub
DANCING
9 - 12: 30
25c cover

RAP SESSION
Come on down!
"LITTLE HATCH"
WED. NITE 7:00PM
The Food Service Department would like to talk with you about what should be done about the "Little Hatch" upstairs.
We want your ideas.
~not a session to tell us what we did wrong~ but what to do right!

My Lai Massacre Denied

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)-Some five weeks after the My Lai massacre Col. Oran K. Henderson wrote his commanding general that allegations his troops slaughtered civilians at the Vietnamese hamlet were the product of Viet Cong propaganda, Henderson's court-martial was told Tuesday.

"No civilians were gathered together and killed," Henderson wrote in a letter April 24, 1968, to Brig. Gen. Samuel Koster, then commander of the Americal Division. Henderson said in the letter he had conducted an investigation of the My Lai operation.

Henderson, who commanded the division's 11th Brigade, told Koster that 20 civilians had died accidentally from artillery and cross fire as U.S. troops killed 128 Viet Cong at My Lai March 26, 1968.

"The allegation that 450-500 civilians were killed is obviously a Viet Cong propaganda move to discredit United States troops," Henderson wrote.

The letter was read to Henderson's My Lai cover-up trial by Col. William V. Wilson, the officer who conducted the initial Army investigation of atrocity reports reaching Washington slightly more than a year after the massacre.

The document-the only written report on My Lai to surface during the trial-said the allegations were made by the village chief in the My Lai area but were given no credence by the chief of Son Tinh district.

Henderson, who enclosed a copy of a translated Viet Cong tract saying U.S. soldiers "went crazy" at My Lai, suggested to Koster that counter-propaganda campaign be initiated.

Wilson, now stationed in Spain, said that at the conclusion of his 3 1/2-month investigation in 1969 he didn't feel Col. Henderon had done anything wrong."

Earlier Tuesday, another government witness said he could not recall ever being asked by Henderson to survey helicopter pilots about whether they had seen wild shooting or killing of civilians at My Lai.

The testimony by Lt. Col. Glen D. Gibson, who commanded a helicopter company supporting the My Lai operation, was important to one of the four charges against the 51-year-old defendant.

The government contends that Henderson knowingly lied to a Pentagon inquiry Dec. 2, 1969, when he said he requested Gibson two days after My Lai to question his aviators about the assault on the Vietnamese hamlet.

Gibson also said that despite another Henderson statement to the inquiry, he did not recall ever informing the defendant he had surveyed his men and that none of them reported anything unusual during the March 16, 1968, operation by elements of Henderson's 11th Brigade.

Henderson, a decorated combat veteran, is accused of intentionally failing to properly investigate atrocity reports of not reporting actual or suspected war crimes and of twice lying to the Pentagon inquiry headed by Lt. Gen. William R. Peers.

Gibson twice was asked by the prosecutor, Maj. Carroll Tichenor, whether he was ever approached personally by Henderson and asked to survey members of the 174th Assault Helicopter Company.

"I do not recall any specific requests he made concerning any specific operation or survey of my people concerning any operation," Gibson answered.

"I do not recall any such conversation with Col. Henderson," he added.

Under cross-examination by Henry B. Rothblatt, the civilian defense counsel, Gibson agreed that he made a statement to the Peers inquiry conceding the possibility of his being asked by Henderson to question helicopter personnel.

The statement, as read from the still-classified Peers transcript said: "If it was done to me, it was done on an informal or casual basis that I didn't understand it."

Gibson, now attached to a military assistance team in Nationalist China, also had praise for Henderson, saying, "I've never had any reason to doubt Col. Henderson's testimony."

School of Ed. Offers Modular Credit Program

The UMass School of Education offers a modular credit program, which enables participating students to supplement their regular university courses thru extra-curricular learning experiences. The program is open to all graduate or undergraduate students at UMass or any of the other Five-College schools.

Students interested in participating in the program are not required to register with the university at the beginning of the semester. They need only attend the modular offerings of their choice and submit Record of Modular Credit forms to the Modular Credit Office, in room 227-C of the School of Education after each completed experience. The modular credit learning experiences are offered thru a catalog which is published several times each semester. The experiences are led by School of Ed faculty, graduate students, or other qualified persons, and are all relevant to the discipline of education. Students can design their own modular credit independent study by filling out a Modular Offering Approval Form. These studies are supervised by a staff member of the School of Ed. Credit is also given for participation in special events at the School, such as the marathons.

The modular credit catalog gives an estimate of the number of modules assigned to each learning experience. After each modular offering, a student registers the appropriate amount of credit by filling in a Record of Modular Credit Form, having it signed by the instructor, and returning it to the Modular Credit Office. Fifteen modular credits equal one university credit. One module of credit should thus involve about 2 hours of work, inside or outside of the classroom. All credit is pass/no-only satisfactory work is reported to the office. At the end of each semester the student is registered with the university for the appropriate number of regular credits. Unregistered modular credits accumulate from semester to semester. The regular credits appear on the student's transcript as a special section of Education 385/685, Practicum in Education.

Second semester Seniors are requested to register with the Modular Credit Office early in the semester, although they participate in the program in the same manner as other students. This registration allows the Modular Credit Office to notify the Registrar that the student may seem to be short of graduation credits, as the modular credits are not registered until the end of the semester. It also allows special attention to be paid to these students, whose graduation may be at stake.

Anyone with questions about the program is welcome to contact the Modular Credit Office, in room 227-C in the School of Education, or at 545-0944.

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

Mobe Outlines Plans

The Student Mobilization Committee opened its fall anti-war work with its first meeting last week. The meeting began with discussion and adoption of the group's program, principles, and constitution.

George Kontanis, a coordinator of the Greater Boston PAC and a long time anti-war activist was the guest speaker. He outlined the growth and development of the anti-war movement, and ended by detailing widespread labor support for the upcoming November 6 national demonstrations.

The Nov. 6 demonstrations will occur simultaneously in 15 cities across the country, including Boston. On Oct. 13 local building actions for Nov. 6 will be held all over the country in the form of teach-ins, rallies, leafletting, etc. The UMass SMC has endorsed both of these activities and plans to publicize and organize participation, in the surrounding community as well as on campus.

A temporary chairperson was elected and committees to handle fund raising, endorsements, transportation and publicity were formed.

Among the first activities of the Mobe was the continuous showing, last Friday, of a filmed interview with five My Lai veterans, in the Campus Center.

This evenings Mobe meeting will discuss the progress made last week and begin detailing Oct. 13 events. A review of the group's budget is also scheduled. The meeting will begin at 8:00 P.M. in the Mobe office on the second floor of the Student Union (Franklin Room). All invited to attend.

OPEN RUSH
THETA CHI
496 No. Pleasant St.
Wednesday Night Sept. 22 9:30 - 11:00
Thursday Night Sept. 23 9:30 - 11:00

dvp
announces the second of its 1971-72 lecture series
Dr. Nicholas Fiumara
Director of the Division of Communicable Diseases, Massachusetts Department of Public Health
TOPIC:
"Venereal Disease and the College Student"
Wednesday, Sept. 22 at 8:00 in C. C. Aud.
Open Coffee Hour to follow in the Blue Wall Cafeteria

Do You Have A Right to a $25 Refund?
Has the University administration met the requirements of the federal freeze on wages, prices, and rents?
Vice-Chancellor Thomas Campion will attend an open meeting of the Student Senate.
WILL YOU?
on Wednesday, Sept. 22 at 7:oo p.m.
Room 165, Campus Center

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Emory Rounds
NEWS STAFF — Jan Auman, Charlie Berkow
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh, Jim Reardon
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Your Last Chance

The move of the United States Senate yesterday to pass the draft bill served more than the purpose of reinstituting the draft system. More deeply, it underwrote Selective Service Director Curtis Tarr's (see related article) request of all Universities to stop processing student deferments.

What this means in effect is that II-S classifications will no longer be available for college students, beginning with the class of 1975. This group includes a great many people on this campus, people who may be forced to forego a college education to defend their country in whatever manner that country sees fit.

Certainly all members of the freshman class will not be taken. The lottery has seen to that. However, it is imperative to realize that the moves by Tarr and the United States Congress do affect many students who are just beginning to feel secure within the college community. If these people are not made aware of where they stand, the protective walls of the University may soon come tumbling down, as far as they are concerned at least.

The purpose of all this is not to demand repeal of the draft bill or the resignation of Tarr. We simply are trying to arouse many people who do not follow, or do not understand, what is going on. We urge all students included under the draft director ruling to follow the instructions suggested by Gil Salk elsewhere on this page. It may be the only chance you have left.

"Say, That Rescue Boat Looks Like Kind Of A Tight Ship"

Gus Szlosek

The Class Of 1962

"...to research the lives and careers of past graduates of the University of Massachusetts. To provide information, guidance, and inspiration to future graduates as they prepare to make their way in the outside world...." -- from an award letter to the Gus Szlosek Propaganda Society, announcing a grant from Mr. and Mrs. Szlosek to the S.P.S.

Project First: the class graduating ten years previous to the next graduating class of 1972. The class of 1962:

GORDON WYMAN. Gordon's training in aircraft engineering uniquely qualifies him for his present occupation of drawing unemployment checks. A top graduate of the University's Engineering school. He is credited with producing the defective apparatus which resulted in the crash of the Navy's first experimental F-14 fighter plane. Gordon also has the honor of being the first person laid off as a direct result of the nationwide surplus of engineers. Having gained widespread fame because of these feats, Gordon has no trouble having his food stamps accepted at his neighborhood supermarket.

IVY WALL. An active member of the Women's Liberation Movement, Ivy ("Poison Ivy" to her friends) is noted for having made her group's first inroads into organized crime. Her training as a government major has proved invaluable to her in this endeavor. Having recently been granted exclusive rights to the "protection" franchise in the greater Youngstown, Ohio area, she is regarded by many as UMass' greatest contribution to the Lib's claim that women can handle any male's job. Presently on sabbatical for 5 to 10 years in Leavenworth, Kansas, she could be on the job again by late this year-- with good behavior and "inside information" concerning numerous public officials.

CLAUDE MOONEY. A graduate accounting major, Claude recently gained almost-nationwide fame by attempting the largest bank embezzlement State Line, Mississippi has ever seen. His fame, of course, arises from the fact that he was caught. Unfortunately, the $3200 he attempted to escape with represented the entire holdings of the Jack Ruby Bank and Trust Company, an embezzlement which proved conspicuous enough to attract the attention of the bank's president. Claude was apprehended when his getaway car, a fire-engine-red Edsel, broke down in the middle of the town's highway intersection. Because of a legal technicality, however, he may escape full punishment for his attempted crime. Due apparently to an oversight on his part, Claude never actually removed the money from the bank. Instead, he left the full amount on his desk while inadvertently carrying away $375 in Confederate bills which have been turned in by local youngsters who had found them in an abandoned salt mine.

AVIS CARR. A UMass graduate with a background in apparel design, Avis' first impact on the fashion scene came early in 1965. The fashion world, however, was not prepared for her stunning experiments, and her Luci Johnson padded brassieres were a devastating failure. After retiring from the public eye to a cave overlooking the scenic Merrimack River, Avis turned up at last year's Seattle Fashion Show with her new concept, the Tricia Nixon padded brassiere. While this did not bring her overnight fame, Miss Carr may be in the news again soon --she is preparing a lawsuit against Edward Cox, for allegedly destroying the market value of her creation. A similar case lodged by Avis against Patrick Nugent was dismissed without a hearing by the courts. Avis has not been discouraged, however. She confidently expresses faith in her new line of fashion underfashions, the Martha Mitchell padded girdle.

OTHER CAREERS TO WATCH IN THE CLASS OF 1962:

DAWN SETTS. A music major, composer of numerous Lawrence-Welk-styled funeral dirges. Her Off Off-Broadway musical, "LBJ, Superstatesman", closed after one performance.

FYODOR SMITH. A UMass English major, Fyodor recently completed his difficult apprenticeship learning how to type. His first novel, VIRILE MANN AND HIS SEVEN WOMEN, was closely followed by another work, VIRILE MANN AND HIS EIGHT WOMEN. A sure hit with the New York City vice squad, Fyodor appears to have his bread and lodging assured for at least the near future.

SANDY BEECH. After a UMass major in Education, she was one of the first to fall victim to the nationwide teacher's surplus. She is presently involved with JOCK SHORT (UMass Physical Education major) in establishing a jogging school for umeployed stockbrokers.

HAROLD WOODS. A Journalism/Park Administration major, Harold has worked for THE NEW YORK SUN, THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, and EYE magazine. He is currently recreation director for New York City's Central Park.

What You Should Know

(Ed. note-The following is a release of the American Friends Service Committee, Inc.)

Groups of Cambridge draft counselors and law students today responded to draft director Curtis Tarr's latest move on student deferments.

Tarr had asked all college registrars in a letter dated September 3, to stop processing entering freshmen for draft deferments, and advised the new college students not to apply for the II-S classification.

The American Friends Service Committee's New England office (AFSC) and the Committee for Legal Research on the Draft (CLRD), a group of Harvard law students, characterized Tarr's action as "not in the best interests of the nation's colleges or their new freshmen." Noting that the bill which gives the President power to take away student deferments has not yet passed Congress, AFSC and CLRD urged the freshmen to consider applying for deferments despite Tarr's "bad advice."

The two organizations emphasized that "under the law, Selective Service must continue to grant student deferments to freshmen unless and until both the draft law and the regulations are amended. This could take a week, a month or a year." If the bill passed, President Nixon could deny student deferments to anyone who was not in college last June.

For those freshmen whose colleges refuse to send the necessary Form 109 to their draft boards, the groups noted that "the official form is not the only way to prove you are a student. Photostats of college I.D. cards should serve just as well--the law does not require any particular form of proof. Moreover, the inability to obtain the Form 109 is not the students' fault but Dr. Tarr's." Any student in this situation should, the groups said, seek advice from a responsible draft counselor.

The two groups predicted that state-supported colleges which refuse to file the form will be sued on constitutional grounds. "We hope, though, that the registrars will realize that it is best for the colleges to have a full freshmen class this fall."

The full text of Tarr's September 3 letter follows:

The amendment to the military Selective Service Act of 1967, now before Congress, includes a major policy change on undergraduate student deferments. The President has asked Congress for authority to phase out undergraduate deferments, and should the bill pass in its present form, as expected, the incoming freshmen class will no longer be eligible for deferments. Upper classmen in good standing will continue to be eligible for deferments until they graduate, reach age 24 or cease to make satisfactory progress.

The enclosed release should help you and your staff answer student questions concerning this change. The release is also being sent to the editor of your student newspaper. Anything that your office can do to insure wide dissemination of this information would be greatly appreciated.

Since, in all probability, student deferments issued to freshmen this fall will be rescinded upon passage of the bill and since deferments extend induction authority until age 35, we hope your office will temporarily suspend the processing of form 109 for freshmen until there is final action on the bill. I believe this move will be in the best interest of your freshmen students and will reduce the confusion and work load for both your office and our Selective Service boards.

If you or members of your staff have any questions on this new policy, please call our public information office in Washington (202-343-8621). I have asked this office to be prepared to receive your calls.

For many years the Selective Service System has received your cooperation and support in processing applications for student deferments. For these services, please accept my sincere thanks. Your further cooperation during the period of phasing out student deferments also will be greatly appreciated.

NOTE: According to Gil Salk, the campus draft counselor, students have only until Richard Nixon signs the recently passed draft bill to send their requests into their draft boards. After the bill is signed, there can be no further challenges to the Tarr's ruling. He urges all freshmen to immediately write their boards to request a student deferment. Letters should be taken to the post office and sent by Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested. Copies of the letter should be kept and stapled to the receipt when it comes back.

Letters

As in previous years, the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letters will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

Letters To The Editor

The "Deal Of Your Life"

To the Editor:

One of the puzzling seasonal occurences that seems germain to beginning a new semester is the transformation of the campus and particularly the dormitory into a market. It seems that every imaginable product; magazines, school supplies, housewares, insurance, bedding, linen, laundry, dry cleaning, newspapers, and so on; must be purchased at the very door of your new abode. Indeed you are urged that the price is especially geared to you, the student, and that every other possible consideration has been made in your behalf. The fact of the matter is that very few of the statements are even half true. Some persons and organizations that manage to vend products in or near the dormitories must be reputable, but the fact they are in the building should raise your suspicions.

In every single case of an out-of-usual-place-of-business transaction for any goods or service, I urge you to insist on at least a day or weekend to a) think it over, b) talk to friends and advisors about it, c) discuss it with parents if you choose, and d) to comparison shop for the same or similar product or service in town or elsewhere. If the "deal of your life" can't wait that long, I think you can safely wait forever for a better one to come along.

Some people now and all year long will not heed this practice. They will sign an agreement or make a deposit for a good or service on some sort of credit or other arrangement. If this happens and the value is in excess of $25.00 or for which four or more total installments are stipulated and the product or service is for personal, family or household use, the agreement may be cancelled by written notice to that effect post marked before the end of the third business day after the date of the making of the agreement or deposit and it is not necessary to give any reason or justification for cancelling. (Chapter 93 Section 48 and Chapter 255D Section 14 Mass. General Laws). Money paid should then be refunded.

If fraud or impropriety was involved in your opinion the matter may be reported to the police or a complaint should be made to the Clerk of the District Court at Northampton. Furthermore a complaint may be made to the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, State House, Boston, Massachusetts 02133.

Students may consult me in the event of problems in this area, of course. Forms for complaint on any consumer matter are also available in my office, Room 107, Campus Center.

Richard M. Howland

The SW Sty

To the Editor:

It was the Sunday after-- after a rather ordinary weekend which once again has left Southwest a teeming pile of garbage and debris. I awoke early on this brisk sunny morning only to be hit by the stench of urine and beer and the eyesore of cans papers, broken bottles and toilet paper, not to mention other assorted decorations of the day. All of these marvelous momentos of a UMass weekend gradually find their way up the stairs and down the corridors of various dorms, and every Sunday morning (or afternoon) each one of us awaken to open our doors and greet the remains of the night before.

Why do we wait for those who we affectionately (and sometimes not so affectionately) call the "Wambats" to come and clean up after us? Without them, I'm sure we would be knee high in garbage within a few short weeks. Two actions could be taken to rectify this unnecessary disgrace:

1) If each invidual cannot take care of his own mess, then perhaps each dorm could organize a Sunday clean up squad to clean up the "obvious debris" around its own grounds. The reasoning is that if we were a little more responsible for our neighbors garbage, then we might not contribute so much ourselves.

2) A very worthwhile investment for the people responsible in Whitmore might be to purchase large, conveniently located and not too ugly trash bins to be distributed among the residential areas of the campus. This would surely be an improvement over the overstuffed little baskets now hanging on various lamposts around campus.

All this is not too difficult to arrange. This may seem to be a petty complaint in the midst of many overwhelming issues. Its only a simple problem with a simple solution. I think it's about time we started wiping our own asses!

Jeffrey Green

Editorial Points

One unknowing student was spotted yesterday picking up a Boston After Dark from the Union. Her only comment was, "Where's the Collegian?". Either BAD is going downhill or

* * * *

A student in a recent journalism class when asked what she thought of the Collegian responded, "It's like a piece of fly paper. It binds the University together." I guess that puts students in their place.

* * * *

One visitor to UMass stated that she thought the hamburgers at Northeastern were terrible. After eating one of Joel Stoneham's specials she changed her position.

* * * *

Student leaders were invited to the residence of the Chancelor last night for coffee and conversation. If you sat home last night you're not as important as you thought you were.

* * * *

Today is the last day that you can add or drop a course without a record and God knows we've all got quite enough of those already.

* * * *

Sunday's NFL contest at Foxboro pits a UMass alumnus (Greg Landry) against a bunch of summer schoolers (The Pats).

* * * *

Maybe Nixon will veto the draft extension bill?

Orchard Massacre

To the Editor:

In recent years, more and more of University greenery has gone before the bulldozer. This year appears to be no different. Last Friday, a bulldozer cut a swath approximately 150 yards by 50 yards into the greenery of the Orchard. The area bulldozed is in the back side of the Orchard across from Cashin Dormitory. There was no prior information about the reasons why the area was ripped as far as I know from any administrative source.

The cut up area is in a rectangle which would suggest a parking lot. Area Co-Director, Dr. Leon Barron, was asked late Friday afternoon, if he knew why the area had been bulldozed. He commented that he had been given no information from the administration on what plans had been made for that segment of the Orchard.

Why Charity?

To the Editor:

I have today authorized a modest payroll deduction in support of the CCEBS Program. I am pleased to do so and wish I could give more. I would like, however, to propose some questions for the Administration, the Trustees, and the Legislature to ponder: Why must this program, which is generally acknowledged to be successful and necessary, be a charity operation? Is it because it is intended primarily for blacks, and blacks are entitled to charity but not the resources of their own state University? If, indeed, this state University is charged with the education of all groups in the Commonwealth, then should CCEBS (which attempts to make up for years of systematic deprivation of black children and give them the opportunity to get that education) not be funded to the hilt? Is not CCEBS one of the finest things this often poorly oriented University has been able to do for the people of the Commonwealth and should it not be an integral part of the university structure?

I certainly hope that every member of the faculty and staff will contribute to the support of CCEBS, but I urge them all to think about what kind of University it is that makes such contributions necessary.

Paul M. Wright
Editor
UMass Press

The Orchard is located between the Orchard Hill Area and the Sylvan Area. The land was abandoned last year by the Agriculture Dept. and turned over to Jack Littlefield who is University of Massachusetts Building Planner. His office has given no previous information as to the future of the Orchard. The land is dotted with apple trees and brush and is in some sense untouched until the bulldozer last Friday.

The Orchard Hill Area Government has in the past sent memorandums to the administration concerning the Orchard. Their posture was to pass a resolution saying in effect that the Orchard was to remain "untouched". The Area Government also was not informed as to why the bulldozing took place.

The Orchard was threatened last year when the Town of Amherst and the University decided that North Pleasant should be closed and traffic re-routed onto East Pleasant Street. The by-pass to campus would take a corner of the Orchard. This is a still pending threat to the Orchard.

If, indeed, this is another parking lot then the University is going to lose another green area. The administration has moved without any prior consultation of concerned parties, namely, the Co-directors of Orchard Hill and the Orchard Hill Area Government.

Robert G. Dewsnap

Sincerely Yours

Though insincerity often hides
the cloud of reality deep inside,
On the heart it leaves a stain, like spattered drops of bleeding rain...
And melts your own ontology, like fire melting sugar-cane.

The fibbery of Maple seeds that sprout up crying Willow trees,
Crying tears that merely bloom and help disguise the nearing gloom...
Blossoms fibbing in the wind,
Cast from your deceiving womb.

A portrait cast indifferently upon an ever shrinking sea;
All the life is drawn awy -
the shell is all that's left of me..
For insincerity is like the moonlit sky of a starless night.

T. David Barrett

Culturnatives

Talk To The Trees

By GILBERT J. SALK

A sizeable chunk of those of us looking for alternative lifestyles are at least considering going off into the woods and creating our own homes, either alone or with a community of friends. Frequently, this idea never gets beyond the dream stage, at least in part because we lack the expertise to do our own building, plumbing, wiring, etc.

My friends, that's a poor excuse.

So, let's explore some ways in which we might gain some experience in doing it ourselves. You could do what my Old Lady and I just did. Buy a house that needs a great deal of work, and jump in over your head. This is the time-tested sink-or-swim method, and it looks as if we should have bought a life jacket. Be that as it may, we are slowly teaching ourselves some things about plumbing and paint-stripping, and as we get ahead will tackle such esoteric stuff as landscaping and window pane replacing.

The process is slow and unsteady, but you are sure to remember what you did wrong and not repeat the error. And it's fun.

Another method is to find someone who either makes a living or a part-time living out of one of the trades, and apprentice yourself to him-or her. If you talk fast enough and he's busy enough, he might even pay you, but don't count on it. Your major recompense will be to learn the rudiments of the trade so that you can handle most projects yourself. Just ask the man if he would be willing to explain what he's doing to you in exchange for you doing some errands and backwork. Someone will say yes if you look hard enough.

Spend some time with a bricklayer, a carpenter, an electrician, and a plumber, and you will gather quite a useful fund of knowledge. It may even last you longer than most of what you learn in four years at good ol' UMass.

Don't be afraid of hardhats. Almost all of them are really people, and if you're genuinely interested in what they're doing, they're likely to be happy to rap with you. So try going to a construction site during lunchtime and sitting down with someone and saying, "Hey, look. I'm trying to learn how to..." One word of advice. Small jobs are easier to get into than major construction projects, so keep away from things like the new library.

One other way, less effective than those I've already mentioned, is to get a good how-to book and study it. But books are most useful when connected with experience. So try to be doing while you're studying.

There are several useful books with good general information for the beginner. Today's book reviews will cover some that I've found useable.

BOOK REVIEWS

MOTHER EARTH NEWS is not technically a book, but it should be mentioned. It's a bimonthly magazine about alternative lifestyles written by the people who are doing the stuff. It's informative, exciting, and imagination-prodding. If you're not into it yet, check it out. You can get copies in the Draft Counseling office in 923 CC, or at White Light and Mizaur's Mercantile in town.

The DO—IT—YOURSELF ENCYCLOPEDIA put out by the Theodore Audel division of Howard W. Sams & Co., Inc. (Indianapolis, Ind., $8.95) is more expensive than most books I usually recommend, but the two volumes contain an excellent source of ideas for improvement projects and maintenance know-how. It has clear, useable directions for how-to-fix and what-to-use. The illustrations are clear and relevant, and the index is a help, a feature many books don't have.

BUILDING MAINTENANCE by Jules Oravetz, Sr. ($5.50, same publisher) is excellent alone or as a companion to the Encyclopedia. It covers painting, plumbing, masonry, carpentry and roofing, electrical and heating maintenance, and other areas. Explanatory material is good, and the book is well-illustrated.

WIRING SIMPLIFIED by H. P. Richter ($1.00, Park Publishing, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn.) is the book on electrical wiring. It contains the latest National Electrical Code, and all info in the book is related to the Code. The book tells you how to handle almost any wiring job, and explains why the job should be done in that particular way. It even comes with a hole punched in it so you can hang it on a nail in your workroom. That's consideration. A cautionary note: Many areas require that electrical work be done by licensed electricians. Check on this before doing it yourself. Also, remember that electricity can be dangerous. Take precautions. I don't want to lose any readers.

THE PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF PLUMBING AND HEATING by Richard Day ($4.95, Arco Publishing Co., Inc., NYC) is another useful book. It covers heating, plumbing, tools, water supply and disposal, and other plumbers' jobs. It has lots of helpful pictures and good explanations. The index is exceptionally helpful, as it keys to diagrams and photos as well as text.

FIX IT YOURSELF! by Bruce Cassiday ($.95, Tower Publications, NYC) is a handy little book on trouble shooting the place you live. You won't become an expert with it, but it will give you much of the information you'll need to handle the little crises and repair jobs that come up around the house. And it might give you the confidence you need to try to learn how to handle some of the bigger jobs. One major drawback is that it has no index, so you have to search for the info you need.

In future columns, CULTURNATIVES will deal with many aspects of cultural alternatives. If you want to rap about some possibilities, or get a copy of Mother Earth News, drop in at the Draft Counseling Office in 923 CC. Draft counseling comes first, but if I'm free, I'd enjoy hearing from you.

PEACE

Deep-Sea Pollution Studied

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)-Oceanographers have launched man's most extensive study of pollution far at sea and of little-understood rivers of cold water that affect circulation in the deeps.

They say it is becoming increasingly urgent for man to learn the limits on his ultimate use of the oceans, and whether such activities as dumping wastes might someday alter circulation and cause regional or even global weather changes.

Experts at Scripps Institute of Oceanography, one of seven universities and institutions joining in the $8-million, four-year study, say recent tests in the South Pacific of a key research instrument were better than expected. The instrument automatically measures water temperature, depth and salt content, feeding the data into a computer.

It will measure these variables from ocean surface to bottom at 120 stops during cruises along north-south tracks in the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans. The data will enable scientists to map the rivers of deep cold water.

More than 5,000 samples will be collected during two years of cruises and analyzed for natural and man-made radioactivity. The radioactivity levels will serve as sensitive "clocks," indicating how far a pollutant has traveled since it entered the ocean.

THE LISTENING POST

25 SO. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST
Open Mon. to Fri. till 9 p.m.

both stores open
Saturday till 5:30

186 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
Open Thursday Night till 9 P.M.

Renters Beware

Laws Explain Tenant-Landlord Rules

(Ed. Note: The following are listings of sections of Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 186 concerning tenant-landlord regulations. They were compiled by Student General Counsel Richard M. Howland. Mr. Howland hopes that the laws may answer some student-tenant questions, but he also reminds students that he is available to any students with problems concerning tenancy.)

Section 11. "Upon the neglect or refusal to pay the rent due under a written lease, fourteen days' notice to quit, given in writing by the landlord to the tenant, shall be sufficient to determine (end) the lease, unless the tenant, at least four days before the return day of the writ, in an action by the landlord to recover possession of the premises, pays or tenders to the landlord or his attorney all rent then due, with interests and costs of suit."

Section 12. "Estates at will (including tenancies without leases) may be determined (ended) by either party by three month's notice in writing for that purpose given to the other party; and, if the rent reserved is payable at periods of less than three months, the time of such notice shall be sufficient if it is equal to the interval between the days of payment. (The Supreme Judicial Court holds that this interval means that it must end on a "rent day" which is the day when rent is customarily paid e.g. the period for a monthly tenancy where rent is regularly paid on the first of each month runs from any first of the month after notice is received to the next first of the month so that if such notice were given on the fifth of the month, even if the rent had not yet actually been paid, the interval would be fifty-five days, or thereabout. Prescott v. Elm, 61 Mass. 346 (1851); Currier v. Barker, 68 Mass. 226 (1854); Yoffe v. Krasnow Wool Stock Co., 322 Mass. 211 (1948); U-Dryvit Auto Rental Co. v. Shaw, 319 Mass. 684 (1946); Connors v. Wick, 317 Mass. 628 (1945).) In case of neglect or refusal to pay the rent due from a tenant at will, fourteen days' notice to quit, given in writing by the landlord to the tenant, shall be sufficient to determine the tenancy..."

Section 14. "Any lessor or landlord of any building or part thereof occupied for dwelling purposes,...who is required by the terms, expressed or implied, of any contract or lease or tenancy at will, to furnish water, hot water, heat, light, power, gas, elevator service, telephone service, janitor service or refrigeration service to any occupant of such building, or part thereof, who wilfully or intentionally fails to furnish such water, hot water, heat, light, power, gas, elevator service, telephone service, janitor service or refrigeration service at any time when the same is necessary to the proper or customary use of such building, or part thereof, or any lessor or landlord who wilfully or intentionally interferes with the quiet enjoyment of any such leased or tenanted premises by the occupant, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than three hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than six months."

Section 15. "Any provision of a lease or other rental agreement relating to real property whereby a lessee or tenant enters into a covenant agreement or contract, by the use of any words whatsoever, the effect of which is to indemnity the lessor or landlord or hold the lessor or landlord harmless, or prelude or exonerate the lessor or landlord from any or all liability to the lessee or tenant, or to any other person, for any injury, loss, damage or liability arising from any omission, fault, negligence or other misconduct of the lessor or landlord on or about the leased or rented premises or on or about any elevators, stairways, hallways or other appurtenance used in connection therewith, and not within the exclusive control of the lessee or tenant, shall be deemed to be against public policy and void."

Section 15A. "Any provision of a lease or other rental agreement relating to residential real property whereby a lessee or tenant enters into a covenant, agreement or contract, by the use of any words whatsoever, the effect of which is to waive the notices required under the section eleven or twelve, (notice to quit for non-payment of rent, etc.), shall be deemed to be against public policy and void."

Section 15B. "No lease relating to residential property shall contain a provision that a lessor may, except to inspect the premises, to make repairs thereto or to show the same to a prospective tenant or purchaser, enter the premises before the termination date of such lease. A lessor may, however, enter such premises in accordance with a court order or if the premises appear to have been abandoned by the lessee. No lessor shall require a security deposit equivalent to more than two months rent, nor a charge of more than the purchase and installation cost for a key or lock, now any interest or penalty for failure to pay rent until at least thirty days after such rent shall have been due.

"A landlord of residential real property who holds a security deposit pursuant to this section for a period in excess of one year from the commencement of the term of tenancy shall, beginning with the first day after the expiration of such year, pay interest at the rate of five per cent per year, payable to the tenant at the end of each year. The landlord shall, within thirty days after the termination of the lease or tenancy, return the security deposit or any balance thereof, after deducting the amount of any damage caused by the tenant, or any person on the demised premises with his knowledge or consent, reasonable wear and tear excepted, and less any unpaid rent. If the landlord wilfully fails to return to the tenant such deposit or balance thereof, as aforesaid, he shall be liable in damages in an amount equal to twice the amount of such security deposit or balance thereof plus interest at the rate of five per cent from the date when such interest was last paid or became due.

"Any provision of a lease in violation of this section shall be deemed to be against public policy and void."

Section 18. "Any person or agent thereof who threatens to or takes reprisals against any tenant of residential premises for reporting to the board of health...or to any other board having as its objective the regulation of residential premises a violation or a suspected violation of any health or building code or of any other municipal by-law or ordinance, or state law or regulation which has as its objective the regulation of residential premises shall be liable for damages which shall not be less than one month's rent or more than three month's rent, or the actual damages sustained by the tenant, whichever is greater, and the costs of the suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

"The receipt of any notice of termination to tenancy except for non payment of rent or of increase in rent or of any substantial alteration in the terms of tenancy within six months after making a report or complaint of violations or suspected violations of any health or building code, municipal by-law or ordinance, or state law or regulation which has as its objective the regulation of residential premises shall create a rebuttable presumption that such notice is a reprisal against the tenant for making such report or complaint."

Chapter 151 B prohibits discrimination in housing or employment on the basis of race, color, religious creed, national origin, sex, age or ancestry. Complaints may be made directly to the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination in Springfield, 739-2145. Incidentally, questions on these subjects constitute violations.

The Amherst Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee has prepared a guide for the use of anyone who desires it, available at Town Hall, most realtors and landlords and in the Attorney for Students' Office, 107 Campus Center. If you have complaints about your landlord you may submit it in writing to the Committee at the Town Hall. Only written complaints will be acted upon. There is no charge.

Suits for recovery of security deposits and other monies may be maintained in the Small Claims Division of the District Court of Hampshire County at Northampton. Assistance in making claims up to $400.00 (after October 1, 1971) can be had at the Clerk of the Court's Office or at the Attorney for Students Office. Ordinarily a lawyer is not required and the fee for filing is $1.78 which may be recovered from the defendant.

Students with any complaints may inquire at the Attorney for Students Office, 107 Campus Center for help without charge. When appropriate you will be referred to a lawyer for court representation.

Copy Editors

Collegian advisor Alvin Oickle will explain the mysteries of copy editing to all copy editors and night staff personnel tonight at 6:30 in his office around the corner from the Collegian offices. All are welcome.

Room Change

Vice Chancellor Thomas Campion will appear before the Student Senate at its open meeting tonight at 7 pm in room 163-64 of the Campus Center, NOT room 165 as previously announced in the advertisement.

Spectrum

The general interest magazine of University of Massachusetts

Open Recruitment Meeting
Thursday Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m.
in the Spectrum office (S.U. 407)

Is Art, Poetry, Fiction or Photography your thing?

GIRLS, if you missed our first one, don't miss our second

CHI DELPHIA
RUSH

Meet the Sisters with the Brothers
The Sisterhood that's not a sorority and not a coed fraternity

IT'S REALLY SOMETHING ELSE!

Come and meet us at
Delta Chi, 314 Lincoln Ave.

Thursday, 8:30 p.m.

Call Donna 6-6333 for more infor.
This is your last chance.

Write Home
On University Stationery
From
A. J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
45 South Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Campus Center Program Council presents

"YOU'RE A GOOD MAN CHARLIE BROWN"
THE "PEANUTS" MUSICAL

October 3, 1971 3:30 & 8:30

C. C. Auditorium

Tickets - $2.00

at the S. U. Box Office

HILLEL UMASS

CLASSES OFFERED FOR FALL SEMESTER AT HILLEL
STARTING THIS WEEK

Elementary Hebrew ..... Wed. 6:30 p.m.
how to read, basic grammar, vocabulary

Basic Judaism ..... Wed. 7:30 p.m.
introduction to Jewish customs, ritual, theology, sacred literature and liturgy.

Talmud in English ..... Wed. 4:00 p.m.
a text course.

Elementary Yiddish through tapes
hours to be arranged according to students' schedules. First meeting only Thurs. (Sept. 23) 6:45 p.m.

An Allegorical Approach to the Creation Literature of the Bible ..... Thurs. 7:45 p.m.
5 sessions

An Introduction to Kabbalistic Thought
5 sessions; hours to be arranged. Call 545-2526 if you wish to sign up for this course.

All classes held at Hillel Room, 420 Student Union

Announcement Due Mid-October

Nixon Prepares Post-Freeze Economic Program

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon wound up his survey of post-freeze proposals Tuesday and was reported planning to unveil his new economic program about mid-October.

This will "give everyone 30 days to prepare themselves" for what comes after Nov. 14", said Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania in disclosing the President's plan.

Scott said he assumes Nixon will go on radio and television to announce the measures that will form Phase II of the anti-inflation program he started Aug. 15 with a 90-day freeze on wages, prices and rents.

In the sixth and last of his sessions with economic groups, Nixon met Tuesday with consumer organizations. They asked him for an "equality of sacrifice" wage-price program.

On Capitol Hill, congressional revenue raisers decided tentatively to revise the President's investment tax plan. Instead of the two-step investment tax credit proposed by Nixon, the House Ways and Means Committee agreed on a flat 7 per cent credit for the purchase of new equipment.

The decision is subject to a final vote, and the effective date also remains to be settled, although it is expected to be set back to April 1, 1971 instead of the Aug. 15, 1971 date proposed by Nixon.

Nixon asked Congress to pass a 10 per cent credit the first year, dropping down to 5 per cent thereafter. Some committee members argued this would produce a rush of equipment orders followed by a slump.

Overseas, West German's Central Bank intervened in the foreign exchange market to stave off a record decline of the dollar. The dollar has dropped sharply in the last two days because of reports — denied by the U.S. Treasury Department — that the United States is pressing for a 15 per cent revaluation of the mark.

The Senate securities subcommittee opened its long-awaited probe of the stock market and was told that the Securities and Exchange Commission will approve a new schedule of commissions for brokers next week, to take effect some time after the 90-day price freeze ends Nov. 13.

SEC Chairman William J. Casey said that under the new schedule small investors will not have to pay the present $15 commission surcharge, but in some cases will wind up with a higher commission bill anyway.

At an hour and 40-minute White House session, the consumer organizations told Nixon that his post-freeze wage-price stabilization program had "better be fair," insuring that big business shares the economic sacrifices with consumers.

They urged controls on interest rates, profits and dividends. And they asked for full participation in the program to follow the freeze so that consumers "once more will not be left holding the bag."

Nixon took notes, listened carefully but did not indicate what he will propose for Phase II, said Don S. Willner, president of the Consumer Federation of America.

Lee Sandwen:

He could be the worst President

the Student Senate

has ever had.

A President is only as good as his Senate.

Don't Let It Happen.

RUN

Nomination Papers - Student Activities - 1st Level C.C.

H-A-L

IS ALIVE AND WELL

in front of the Hatch

9/22 - 9/24

Moe Larry

FIVE

Three Stooges Films

Tonight — Mahar

Thursday — Thompson 104

Friday — Mahar

2 Shows Nightly 7:30-9:30

ADMISSION 35¢

Curly Shemp

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

'58 Fiat, red, 850 Spyder, 33,000 miles, good cond. Call 549-1401 evenings after 6 p.m. tfn-22

1961 Falcon, rebuilt trans., new snows and batt. Great buy, $100. Call Crabtree and leave mess. for Grant, Rm. 206. tfn-22

1968 MG-MGT, very good condition, 3200. Priced below book $1650. Greenfield 773-7805. 9-15, 22, 29

'69 Triumph UT6—, excel. cond. 1700, t all Diane 413-533-6381. tfn-22

1964 TO red conv. Best offer over $300. 527-2951. tfn-24

1969 Austin Amer., 1 speed, 28,000 mi., good cond., AM-FM, new tires, best off. t all 516-6815. tfn-22

1967 Opel Rallye, 31000 mi., well maint., sell best offer or trade for bike. Jeff 6-0849, 9133, T6. tfn-22

1962 VW Sedan 1engine has sucked valve) could be repaired or used for parts. Body good and unstripped. Call 253-9685 $75. tfn-27

71 VW conv. yellow with black top, only 9 months old. Best offer. Call Al 253-7820. tfn-24

'68 Austin Healy Sprite $750., firm. Call Sam, R6 Wheeler, 545-2413. tfn-24

1963 Ford Sedan with 68 351 cu in., V8, 4 speed, exc. cond. $675.00. Ask for Mike Wilson Phi Sigma, 358 No. Pleasant St., Amherst. tfn-22

68 Volvo, excl. cond., will accept best offer. Call 584-0081, Aft. 8 p.m. tfn-24

Going overseas, must sell quickly 68 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $1300. 3 month old $150 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $80. Call 323-8000. tfn-24

'63 Alfa Romeo Guiletta Spyder convertible. Excellent shape. Strong engine. More class than an MG? Call 546-5214. 9-21-22-24

1965 VW Bus, excellent cond., rebuilt engine, new clutch, new brakes, great for camping, $900, or best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 268-7265. tfn-29

67 Buick Skylark, convertible at, ps, pb, 21 mpg on trip, cream w/ black top. Best of care and condition. $1295. 253-2800. tfn-24

MOTORCYCLES For Sale

1968 BSA 650, runs well, but needs minor repair. Best offer around $350. Call 323-7711, ask for Jack. tfn-22

1970 Triumph Bonneville, 650cc, perfect running condition. Call 253-7858. tfn-24

1968 Honda SS125, exc. running cond., new inspection sticker, 6000 mi., 1 helmet. Asking $250.00. Call Jim 546-7908. tfn-24

Honda 350, Scrambler CL350, 1970 model, call 546-9834 Bob. tfn-23

1968 Yamaha DT 1 250 Enduro, 4500 miles, good condition. Call Wayne at 6-8767. tfn-22

Honda CL350, exc. condition, strong, need money. Call Ed 546-6005. tfn-24

FOR SALE

Enhance sex life. Sml. dbl. queen or king waterbed $29.95, round or jumbo $49.95. Immed. deliv., 5 yr. warranty. Aqua-Dream, Box 477, Amherst.

Smith Corona Coronet Automatic #10 electric portable typewriter. Brand-new with power return. $125 or best offer call 6-7031 Paul. tfn-24

Dark wood bureau with large mirror $30.00 Call 253-3025 after 6:00. tfn-24

Panasonic 8 track stero system. Car-home model. All speakers, home converter, 21 tapes. Retails at $300 plus, yours, $180 call 546-5000. tfn-27

Maniya-Secor 1000 BTL. Needs light meter. Good condition. $80 or best offer. Call 665-3550 after six. tfn-24

AIR 303 Stereo. Speakers, 8 months old, excellent cond., best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 6-5355. tfn-22

Chainsaw, new price. Negotiable. Bob 114, Thatcher 6-4663. tfn-23

One rebuilt B16 and one rebuilt B18 Volvo engines also B18 trans. and P544 body, perfect rust wise. Call 584-0820 nights. tfn-24

66 VW rebuilt engine, new clutch, shocks & front eng. Has 2 small dents. $600. 549-1113. tfn-27

Great Books of the Western World - complete set - $100. Rt. 1,213-4, Dry Hill Rd. Montague 367-2047. tfn-27

A 21 inch Welbilt stove, very good condition, $45. Call Greenfield 774-3245. tfn-24

Forested house lots cleared. Reasonable terms. Call 247-5613 between 7:30 p.m. - 9:00 p.m. tfn-28

One slightly used '68 Austin Healy Sprite for sale. Contact 253-2548 or 256-8450 and ask for Ned Dibble. tfn-24

Alto Sax, Harmony Folk Guitar, Clarinet, Electric Guitar, good instruments - low price-584-8537. tfn-28

20 gal. long aquarium fully equipped. Includes stand, fish, pump, decorations, etc., excellent condition $45. Call Dave 584-8090. tfn-24

Sm. Corona electric portable typewriter used 3 wks. $105 new will sell for $125 or best offer. Sandy 5-1532 days, 549-6276 eves. tfn-22

RIDERS WANTED

Driving to Springfield every weekday 7:30 a.m. Riders will share expenses. Call - Rhonda Blair, 5-2112, 5-2413, 319 Wheeler. tfn-22

ROOMMATES WANTED

Single girl wanted to share lg. apt., with 2 others immediately. Call Jean or Charlene anytime at 586-2866. Keep trying. tfn-22

Male to live in modern 3 bedroom apt. $80 per month. Apply Apt. 77 Rolling Green, Rt. 9. Available immediately. tfn-22

Roommate wanted to share 5 room apt. in N. Hampton. One bedroom. Pref. female over 21. Rent $80 month. Call Laura 586-7361. tfn-22

Roommate wanted 4 room apt. $80/month, all util. inc. in Westfield. Call Ed 253-9751 bet. 5 and 7 p.m., no ans. leave word. tfn-24

Single girl or couple, own transp., share apt. 'til Nov.-pos. longer; call 584-2273 M-F 6-8, anytime, weekends. tfn-28

ECONOMIST

Lost Economist vacancy of Thompson. If found return to 211. Sentimental value! tfn-22

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Call Mary 253-7673. If not there leave message. tfn-29

I need a room or apt. within one or two miles from campus. Rent negotiable. Write Bob Zelman c/o Bleeding Rose, Philosophy Dept. tfn-24

HELP WANTED

Lead Singer wanted for est. working group; Rock, Blues, etc., also original mat. Year round work! contact Bob or John 6-8747 - 6-8661. tfn-22

Ecology-minded students earn extra money part-time without interrupting your present schedule. Call collect 1-533-3834. tfn-24

WANTED

Men to erect chainlink fence. Experienced only. Part time. Fitzgerald Fences, 250 Bridge Rd., Florence, Mass. tf10-4

Male subjects wanted for Psych. Experiment, $2.00/hr. Short qualifying questionnaire. See Jeanne, Bartlett 227. tfn-22

Female to live in country home. References required. Granby 467-7297 after 5:00 p.m. tfn-24

SERVICES

Need a band, Dial-a-band will supply a band that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 516-8215. tfn-29

PERSONAL

Wanted confirmed Gordon Lightfoot Fanatics. Contact Sue, 315 Butterfield. No definite purpose except reassurance. tfn-24

LECTURE NOTES

Lecture notes are now available for Psych 101 and Soc 101, all sections, at Room 318 in the Student Union Lobby. tfn-24

LOST - REWARD

Lost-one dark blue velvet cushion belonging to couch. Reward offered. Notify Allen in Room 314, South College. tfn-25

LOST

Large gray male cat, white paws and front. Walks with slight limp. Last seen near Brooks and Brett. Reward 549-3700. tfn-24

APT. AVAILABLE

One bedroom apt. available. Walk distance from campus. $95. month. Call 253-8083 after 6 p.m. Furnished. tfn-24

TRAIL RIDES

Horseback riding every Sat. & Sun. at Spellman Farms, Belchertown. Reasonable rates. Call Spellman Frms. on 3 River Rd. 283-6283. tfn-28

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt., all utilities, no lease. Pets & children welcome. Wall to wall carpet. $175 month. Call Kamins Village Apts., Belchertown. tfn-30

School of Ed. Offers Independent Study

Arrangements have been made to provide Independent Study opportunity for a limited number of undergrads interested in becoming involved with the Fall Marathon at the School of Education.

Pre-requisites to taking advantage of this opportunity are one or a combination of the following:

(1.) Desire to be a part of the planning, promoting, and implementation of one of the very significant learning experiences at the University;
(2.) Intellectual Creativity;
(3.) Physical ambition;
(4.) Artistic ability;
(5.) Clerical skills.

Students interested in taking advantage of this opportunity should put their name and phone number in the mailbox marked Paquin, T., in the School of Ed. lounge. An alternative to this would be to see Tom Pacquin in Room 222B or call 549-3740. Another alternative is to sign your name to the list on the Bulletin Board outside the front door at the School of Education.

Final arrangements will be made either Monday or Tuesday of next week.

NOTICES

CAMPUS GOLD
Ex scouts, boy scouts, girl scouts, explorer scouts, etc. interested in continuing in a campus group, organizational meeting tonight, Thoreau House Dateroom, 7 p.m. For info, call 6-7504.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT UNDERGRADUATE COMMITTEE
Meeting: Sept. 22, 7 p.m. in Bartlett 252. To be discussed: Student Faculty lounge for the English Dept.

ENTOMOLOGY SEMINAR
Experiences in India entomology and otherwise. Dr. J. H. Lilly of the Entomology Dept. Fernald Hall, 3:30 p.m. on Sept. 22.

FRENCH MAJORS
Important meeting Sept. 22 in 3rd lounge Herter Hall. Undergraduate representatives to be elected. Committee assignments to be discussed. Attendance by all is requested.

HILLEL
HAPPY NEW YEAR
Computer dance sign-ups in front of the Hatch, today, tomorrow and Friday.

HOME ECONOMICS MAJORS
Important meeting for all Home Ec. Majors with Dean Morris, Sept. 23 in Skinner Aud. at 7 p.m.
The Student Faculty newsletter now available in main lobby, of Skinner and in Hampshire House.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
International Club coffee hour at 8 p.m. in CC Rms. 168 70 'Huang Chun pi'a film on Chinese painting and 'Dances in China', a film on Chinese dancing will be shown. Coffee will be served.

MATH MAJORS
Meeting to elect undergraduate representatives to department committees in Hasbrouck 134, Thurs. 7 p.m. (if you want to run but cannot attend, contact Evelyn Chimelis, 6-8000)

OMICRON NU
There will be a meeting for all members in Rm. 217 Skinner Hall at 6 p.m. We will discuss initiation and plan of work.

PARACHUTE CLUB
1st jump course starts tonight, 7:15 p.m. in Rm 802 CC. Sunday was a beautiful day--where was everyone else?

PI LAMBDA PHI
There will be an informal gathering tonight between the brothers and anyone in the university community interested in Pi Lambda Phi. Call for rides 253-7625.

SCIENCE FICTION SOCIETY
Science Fiction Library now open. Thousands of books and magazines. Come and read. MTuF, 7-9 p.m.; WTh, 7-10 p.m.

SCROLLS
Meeting tonight at 6:15 in rms. 811 815 CC.

SIGMA KAPPA
Tonight at 7 come and visit the girls at 19 Allen St.

SIMS
Transcendental meditators: Need checking? Rm. 917 CC from 7-5 p.m. every Sunday afternoon. Group meditations same place, 8-10 p.m.

STUDENT MOBILIZATION COMMITTEE
Student MOBE meeting tonight, Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. in the MOBE office, 2nd floor of the Student Union (Franklin Rm.). All invited.

UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN
Tonight's sorority rush parties are: a Folk Party at Sigma Delta Tau (7-8 p.m.), Old Time Movie Night at Pi Beta Phi (7-8:15); a Mexican Tour at Sigma Kappa (7 p.m.), and Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour at Kappa Kappa Gamma. Please come

UMASS CHESS CLUB
The Chess Club will meet every Wed. night at the New Hatch (in the Student Union) between 7:11:30 p.m. All are welcome!

VIETNAM VETERANS AGAINST THE WAR
All Veterans Come to our first meeting Hear what we have to say. CC Rms. 174 176, Tues. Sept. 28, 7:30 p.m.

LOST
Small multi-colored leather bag. Need I.D.'s. No questions asked. Call Barb Shannon 549-3862
Prescription sunglasses, brown rimmed, green lenses. Michael Lucivero, Box 103, Sunderland 01375.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Nostradamus, who lived in the 16th century, was not only a magnificent astrologer but also an outstanding physician. He was born under Capricorn. His writings continue to fascinate and amaze. the predictions of Nostradamus, according to scholars, were either bull's eye accurate or extremely close to the mark.

...

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stress willingness to co-operate with mate, partner. Look beneath surface indications. Find out why perceive motives. Powers of perception are heightened. You gain needed information. Use it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lie low. Be receptive. Need counsel offered by Libra individual. Marriage, permanent relationship is spotlighted. Strive for greater harmony at home. Emphasize diplomacy. Don't force issues.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Take time to be analytical. Avoid head in clouds attitude. Strive to see people, situations in light of reality. Remember, health requirements. Keep appointments. Fulfill basic obligations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect now coincides with spurt of creative energy. You get view of what is to be done, and you are able to do it. Capricorn person could aid cause. Accent young ideas. Move ahead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study established patterns. Learn from what has gone on in past. Be wise enough to heed voice of experience. Finish project. Expand sphere of influence. Shake free of emotional rut.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Highlight original approach. Test ideas. Be versatile; have alternatives available. Some neighbors, relatives may display unusual curiosity. Be patient. Protect privacy but do so in amiable manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on money, personal possessions. Pay and collect, get accounts in order. Cycle is moving up; ignore associate who sings blues. Dance to your own tune. Genuine bargain now is available.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle accents new start, greater independence. Stress originality. Exude confidence. Meaningful contact with member of opposite sex is on agenda. Check personal appearance. Buy apparel.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look behind scenes for valid answers. Don't believe rumors, superficial reports. Closed meeting, conference may affect your immediate future. Catch up on research. Have facts at hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on pleasing those who mean most to you. Express yourself. Shake off barrier to communication. You can bask in warmth of reciprocated affection. Basically, you must make first move.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasize career, ambitions, a reaching toward goal. Define desires. Be diplomatic, but not passive. Make room for yourself at more elevated position. Taurus and Libra persons could figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Develop long range concepts. Strengthen personal philosophy. Realize you have inner strength. It can carry you through period of adversity. Minor setback can rebound in your favor.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have mind of your own; what most people do or think has little effect on your basic convictions. You are, basically, your own person. Parental influence was less on you than on average individual. Sweeping changes, chance for travel are upcoming.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Landlubber

Jeans

All Sizes

at

WEARHOUSE

Bell's Pizza

They won't settle for less it's a matter of taste.

65 University Dr.
256-8011 - 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

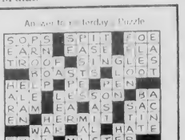
WMUA

Tonight on WMUA
free form/informative radio:

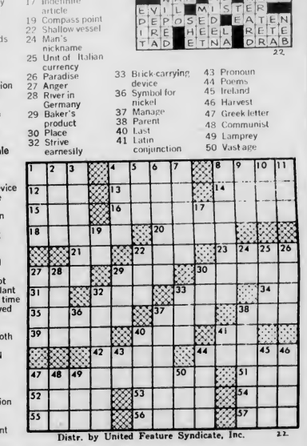
7:00 p.m.-Evening Report-one half hour of comprehensive news with a ten minute sports report and update of major stories at 7:25. Compiled by WMUA NEWS, Amherst's largest broadcast news operation with audio feeds from UPI Audio and wire stories from both UPI and AP. Area news is emphasized.

7:30 p.m.-8:00 p.m.-VIEWPOINT-a thirty minute public service program spanning many issues of relevance to the UMass community and Connecticut Valley as well as often discussing topics of national importance. WMUA's Marty Waters is the moderator of this informative half hour program.

8:00 p.m.-11:00 p.m.-THE DRUM-this popular black program features poetry, soul, jazz, and black music plus News for the black community from the Drum's own news staff and a black audio network.



11:00 p.m.-Late Night News Report-another full half hour of the latest news from WMUA NEWS. Again original reporting, complete facilities with constant feeds from the major audio and wire services make WMUA the area's most complete source of regional news and information.



11:30 p.m.-3:00 a.m.-Eric Benjamin brings you music and other good things until sign-off at 3. It's unpredictable...you've just gotta listen yourself.

91.1 on your FM dial.

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to yesterday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Vase
4 Lets (pref.)
8 Mist
12 Fascinate
13 Dotted
14 Gimlet
15 Ventilate
16 Carries away with delight
18 Sightless
20 Reckfish
21 Faroe Islands whirlwind
22 Cushion
23 Story
27 Staff
29 Remuneration
30 Sound and strong
31 Paid notice
32 Emerge victorious
33 Pronoun
34 Note of scale
35 Style of painting
37 Torrid
38 Cooling device
39 Great Lake
40 Novelty
41 Babylonian deity
42 Part of leg
44 Aquatic mammal
47 Shammed
51 Hasten
52 Part of foot
53 Century plant
54 Period of time
55 Unemployed
56 Part of camera
57 Corded cloth

DOWN
1 Desert dweller
2 Dirt
3 Punctuation mark
4 Musical instrument
5 Possess
6 Beverage (pref.)
7 Was reckless
8 Journalists
9 Mexican
10 Poet Ogden
11 Either
12 Things in law
17 Indefinite article
19 Compass point
22 Shallow vessel
24 Man's nickname
25 Unit of Italian currency
26 Paradise
27 Anger
28 River in Germany
29 Baker's product
30 Place
32 Strive earnestly
33 Brick-carrying device
36 Symbol for nickel
37 Manage
38 Parent
40 Last
41 Latin conjunction
43 Pronoun
44 Poems
45 Ireland
46 Harvest
47 Greek letter
48 Communist
49 Lamprey
50 Vast age

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 22

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

Offensive Punch Key To Booters' Title Repeat

By STEVE FERBER
(First of a three part series)

Travelling to Maine this Saturday will be 23 UMass

JEFF HAGUE

soccer players, all set to open the 1971 season. Defense has been the talk of the soccer team, but the fact of the matter is that you've got to score, because a whole lot of 0-0 games aren't going to get you far.

And to score you need some talented forwards, and UMass is plenty able to supply them. UMass works with a three man front line, contrasting with the four man line used by most other collegian soccer teams. The formation of three forwards, three halfbacks, and four fullbacks is no doubt a defensive alignment, thus all the more need for talent on that front line.

Visiting Orono, Maine this weekend will be six front liners, all of whom will be seeing a good deal of action according to Coach Jack Berryman. One senior, two juniors, two sophomores and a highly rated, but untested freshmen will be making the trip. This is how the six frontliners look, four days before the season opener:

Co-Captain Lindo Alves---He's an All-Yankee Conference star from last year who led the team in scoring in 1970. With 10 goals and 7 assists Alves managed to score nearly 1/3 of the team's total for the year, and in fact his goal production equaled that of all UMass opponents in 1970. Alves has great ball control ability and he is the man to whom UMass goes when penalty kicks are awarded. Indirect and direct kicks from in close are also in Alves repertoire as he is the sole senior on the front lines.

Steve Blanchette-After a one year layoff Blanchette is back and rapidly regaining the skills he showed two years ago. With excellent speed, Blanchette displays ball control skills that have enabled him to be the team's high scorer through this 1971 exhibition season. Blanchette is a wing man with "a lot of hustle" and his cross passing ability will be a key to goal production for the '71 Redmen.

Daily Collegian SPORTS

Tom Coburn-This freshmen comes to UMass from Chicopee where he was the leading scorer for his high scool team for all three years. In his senior year Coburn made all-state forward in leading his Chicopee squad to the state championship. Coburn was heavily recruited and should be a big asset, especially with the loss of Abdv Thraya.

Jeff Hague-This junior played sparringly last year, but is sure to see a good deal of action this year. With a real good shot and excellent passing ability, Hague has been improving with every pre-season game. His ball control, and ability to keep the ball "on goal" should aid tremendously.

Howie Spier-A sophomore with aggressiveness is the best way to describe Spier. A hard shot and a keen nack for finding that net are among Spier's assets.

Mark Tyma-Likewise a sophomore, Tyma too is aggressive. Said to have the hardest shot on the team, Tyma has been doing a real good job, and like all sophomores, looks to improve as the season continues.

There you have it, your six forwards making the trek to Maine. Unfortunately Coach Berryman is limited in the number of men he can carry up to Orono, thus only 6 forwards will be going. At this time, these six men will be carrying the bulk of the scoring duties, and barring any unforeseen complications and injuries these six will be doing so for all of the '71 season.

LINDO ALVES

Intramural Football Opens Record Slate

By MARK VOGLER

The UMass Intramural Department officially launched its 1971-72 program Monday evening with football getting the nod. Chancellor Oswald Tippo, Dean Warren P. McGuirk and athletic council members George Richardson and Ken Peeker were all on hand to see the campaign off to a fresh start and to wish the student athletes success.

The touch football league, which is comprised of Dorm, Fraternity, Independent, and Grad-Faculty Divisions, has undergone a yearly expansion from 84 squads to a record-breaking 112. Assistant Intramural Director Merrie Fidler, the newest member of the IM cast, will help make UMass history next Monday when she unveils the woman's counterpart to football--powder puff style that is.

Highlighting the Dorm Division games of the week on Monday, Tom Kenney was the wielding force in the Chadbourne Maroons' 14-0 triumph over their intra-dorm rival Eagles. The patient sophomore must have wondered what he had to do to get the job done, though.

Kenney was robbed of recognition on two consecutive drives in the second half, one being an 80 yard romp to paydirt, the other a scoring strike to end Jack Rawitz. But he had engineered the victory single handed with a td, two point conversion, and a pass connection to Rawitz. John Brown and Ken Duval spearheaded a tenacious defense with six and five pass rushes consecutively.

In another West Central Residence Hall tilt, it was all Rick Smith. The Thatcher Redwoods, a perennial dorm power, stunned the Greenough Giants 24-6 on the heroics of this standout. Smith passed for two tds and scored twice himself. The Redwoods lost their shutout bid in the final minutes of play.

Elsewhere, in the Residence Hall South circuit the Hills South Hi-Los rocketed to an opening day win, pasting the hapless Hills North Hoovers 45-0. In that game Pat Cronin probably assembled one of the finer quarterbacking exhibitions of the night. Completing 8 of 14 attempts he passed for three scores. Teammate Bob Jones got a jump in the scoring race as he collected three touchdowns.

Sports Notices

VARSITY M-The Varsity M Club will hold its weekly Redman Quarterback Club luncheon this afternoon at the Newman Center beginning at 12:15 p.m. Head football coach Dick MacPherson, his coaches and a couple of UMass football players will be on hand to review the Maine game and preview the up and coming battle with Dartmouth. Admission is $1.50, the public is welcome. There will be film action of the Maine game and a door prize.

* * * *

POWDER PUFF FOOTBALL-There will be a meeting for all powder puff football team managers and women athletic chairmen (every dorm, sorority, and independent team should elect one) to discuss the women's intramural program in general and powder puff football in detail. All interested and involved should meet at the Intramural Office, 215 Boyden Gym, Wed., Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

* * * *

ENTRIES DUE-Intramural entries are due as follows: September 23-Metawampe 500 Bicycle Race; Sept. 22 Women's Tennis Singles; September 24-Paddleball; Sept. 23 Handball Singles.

* * * *

KARATE-Anyone interested in joining a Karate or Judo Club please contact: Bill-6-7840, Archie-6-8992 or Ron - 6-8825. Needed: people with experience who are willing to instruct. Meeting Monday, Sept. 27, 7 p.m. Room 811 Campus Center.

* * * *

ATHLETIC CHAIRMEN-Heads of Residence, Sorority and Fraternity Presidents, Independent units and Grad-Fac-Staff units-have your Athletic Chairmen report to the Intramural Office and record their names, addresses and phone numbers. This is the most important for communication between the intramural office and the students.

* * * *

NAIADS-The Univ. Aquatic Art Club, will conduct tryouts for new members on Thurs. Sept. 30 6-7 p.m. at WOPE Pool. Instructional practices will be offered Mon. & Tues. Sept. 27 & 28 6-7 p.m. at which time Club members will demonstrate and teach skills to be included in the tryouts. Membership is open to men and women. For further information contact Kathy McNerney, Pres. NAIADS c/o WOPE Campus.

THEY'LL BE THERE-Sunday, Sept. 26, the weekly cross country recreational program begins for the fall season and will continue each Sunday throughout the fall. This year the course will be over three miles on the grass and dirt roads near the new UMass outdoor track. Race time is 4 p.m. and all runners should report to the track for instructions and the start of the race.

Vikings Find New Way To Win; Lions Unable To Break Jinx

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)-While there are some complaints that the National Football League preseason is too long, Coach Bud Grant thinks it's a good period to teach the Minnesota Vikings ways to win.

"When you have a team believing it can win, it can usually find a way to win," Grant said Tuesday.

Minnesota opened the 1971 regular season Monday night at Detroit, spotting the Lions a 13-0 lead and then roaring back for a 16-13 victory.

"When the score was 13-0," said Grant, "I don't think there was any question in anybody's mind that we could still win the game. We just found a new way to win.

The Vikings, behind Fred Cox's three field goals and Gary Cuozzo's 45-hard touchdown pass to Bob Grim, tied the game and won it in the fourth period on two field goals and averted a tie in the final minute when Erroll Mann's field goal try was wide from the 32.

DETROIT (AP)-Detroit Lions' Coach Joe Schmidt watched the films of the Lions-Minnesota game and wondered aloud yesterday what he would have to do to break the jinx the Vikings have over his club.

Minnesota, down 13-0 in the second quarter, surged back to nip the Lions 16-13 in their nationally televised National Football League clash Monday night.

It marked the seventh consecutive time over a four-year period that the Vikings had beaten the Detroiters and this one was tough for the Lions to take.

"I don't want anyone hanging crepe," said Schmidt, "Even though we lost, we have got a helluva football team and there are 13 games to go."

Schmidt squelched the possibility that he might switch the no. 1 quarterbacking assignment from Greg Landry, who had a rough night in the passing department, to his alternate quarterback Bill Munson.

Landry hit on only eight of 26 passes for 61 yards.

Bidding War For Senators Wages On

BOSTON (AP)-The president of the Washington Board of Trade made a strong pitch to purchase the financially troubled Washington Senators and a Texas delegation went to bat for a franchise shift to the Dallas-Fort Worth area yesterday at a meeting of American League owners.

Joseph Danzansky, a Washington supermarket chain operator and lawyer, spent one hour behind closed doors at the meeting called by league President Joe Cronin to discuss and act upon the baseball future of owner Bob Short and his Senators.

Then, after a 1-1/2 hour break for lunch, the owners heard a nine-man Texas group headed by Mayors Tom Vandergriff of Arlington, Wes Wise of Dallas and R.M. Stovall of Fort Worth. They spent about two hours presenting their case.

Danzansky declined to disclose terms of his offer. However, he was believed to have offered $9.4 million, the same amount Short paid in outbidding Bob Hope and the comedian's colleagues for the franchise in 1968.

Vandergriff, the ramrod of the Texas group, said that Short "never has indicated he would consider sale of the franchise" and added that Dallas-Fort Worth was extending "a welcome hand."

"We would be proud to have Mr. Short as owner of a major league baseball club in our area," Vandergriff said.

Tonights Intramurals

FIELD	TIME	TEAMS
3	6:00		5		Racoons VS. Ducks
4		Eagles VS. Grants	6		Blowns VS. BX
5		Redwoods VS. Hemlocks	1	9:00	Trojans VS. Lemons
6		Hi Io's VS. Hickory	2		Pipers VS. Crushers
1		Hermits VS. Hicks	4		Spartans VS. Seagrams
2	7:00	Swine VS. Stains	5		Cans VS. Academics
3		Harpoons VS. F. Troop	6		Ironmen VS. Smashers
4		Phantoms VS. Raiders	1	10:00	FD VS. Aer's
5		Mac's VS. Eyes	2		SB VS. Cloud
6		Destroyers VS. TEP "B"	3		Chall. VS. Roaches
1	8:00	Stouts VS. Exp.	4		A's VS. Pelicans
2		Nation VS. Starters	5		Munchkins VS. Freebees
3		Sugar VS. Team	6		Brownies VS. Rascals
4		Maurauders VS. Deacons

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Increasing cloudiness and chance of showers. Temperature in 70's.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 12 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1971

TREE LANDING--This tree is not really flying onto the top of the library tower. Actually, it is being lifted into place by a crane during the topping ceremonies held yesterday. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt)

Sworn In As Student Trustee

Sargent Ceremony Seats Sandwen

By BOB CALLAHAN

Governor Francis W. Sargent presided over special swearing in ceremonies yesterday as a second UMass student, Lee Sandwen, was seated on the Board of Trustees.

Sandwen is the fourth UMass student to sit on the Board of Trustees since 1969 when Cindi Olken was first seated. Yesterday's ceremonies marked the first time that students from both the Amherst and Boston campuses would be seated on the Board.

The ceremonies held in the Governor's office in the State House were brief due to the large number of people who were being sworn into various offices and positions.

Sandwen, who arrived late with Chancellor Tippo and Student Senate Vice President Larry Ladd, was sworn in as a Trustee in a private ceremony rather than the usual ten at a time assembly-line-like procedure.

In the brief remarks that followed, Governor Sargent told Sandwen and the delegation from UMass that having students electing their own trustees is a very important stand that the State of Massachusetts has taken. He added that the state legislature had a lot to do in passing this important legislation.

In closing, the Governor told the new trustee that although he won't be able to pass everything that he would like to, this is a very important step.

When interviewed after the ceremony, Sandwen wanted to make it clear that in his new position as trustee he will be open and available to both students and faculty.

The Student Senate President went on to say that what the Governor had to say was true. "This is a tremendous experience and it helps to protect the interests of the student body by giving them a chance to be heard," Sandwen stated.

Speaking about the Board's membership, Sandwen said that UMass has one of the most distinguished and responsive Board of Trustees whose honor and dignity can't be questioned.

Sandwen got his seat through a special bill filed by State Rep. John W. Olver of Amherst. The bill in effect recognizes the need for a student trustee from each of the two UMass campuses. Before this, one student from each campus was to sit on the Board in alternate years.

The bill was supported by State Reps. Edward A. McColgan of Northampton and Michael J. Daly of Allston; and by the University and State Communications Council (USCC). According to USCC President Judy Gill, the group worked to convince the legislators that the Boston and Amherst campuses are so different that a student from one campus couldn't adequately represent the other campus. Also instrumental in lobbying for the bill was the UMass Student Senate.

Attending yesterday's ceremonies was President Robert C. Wood, Chancellor Oswald Tippo, and the three representatives Olver, Daly and McColgan who filed the bill instrumental in making Sandwen a Trustee.

On The Inside:

- Campion Shows Fee Increases Legal — See Page Three
- Fiumara On VD — See Page Two

Lee Sandwen is sworn into the Board of Trustees by Governor Francis X. Sargent. See the complete details of the Boston ceremonies on page one. (MDC photo by Richard C. Hanson)

Prison Riots Break Out

There has been a rash of prison disturbances in scattered areas of the country since the Attica uprising and officials said Wednesday that some of the trouble was linked to the riot at the New York facility.

The Attica riot "could have given some of the inmates an idea," said Sheriff Clarence Jones in Dallas where prisoners in the jail atop the country courthouse staged a two-hour uprising Tuesday night.

Authorities estimated up to 500 of the jail's 1,600 inmates participated in the disturbance which saw prisoners burning mattress covers and paper and breaking windows. Spokesmen for the prisoners were quoted as saying they wanted to call attention to grievances involving restriction of visitors, medical attention and searches of their cells.

Officials at other institutions noted prisoners read newspapers and watched television accounts of the four-day Attica riot that ended Monday, Sept. 13, when state troopes and other officers rushed a cellblock held by about 1,200 rebellious inmates. Ten prison employees being held hostage by the inmates and 30 prisoners were killed.

"There's tension in all prisons as the result of San Quentin and Attica," said Allen L. Robbins, warden of the Maine State Prison.

Three guards and three inmates were killed at the California prison August 21 in what officials said was an escape attempt by one of the victims, Soledad Brother George Jackson. The family of the black militant contends he was murdered by guards. Officials say a gun was smuggled into the prison to Jackson and he was shot down while attempting to escape.

Robbins said a "large majority of the prison's 330 inmates went on a hunger strike Sunday night demanding changes in kitchen procedures. The peaceful strike ended Tuesday, Robbins said, adding that some changes will be made, including allowing the inmates to elect an advisory council.

At the Fulton State Hospital in Fulton, Me., three inmates took a woman psychologist hostage Monday, threatening kill her unless they were provided with a car and access to the outside. Dr. George W. Chase, another psychologist who tried to come to the aid of hostage Kay Mohatt, was clubbed by the trio and killed. The inmates finally surrendered to hospital officials and were charged with first-degree murder.

Dr. Donald Peterson, the hospital supervisor, said all the patients had access to television and he was sure they had watched the proceedings at Attica.

The first of the Attica-linked disturbances occurred at the Baltimore City Jail less than 24 hours after the New York uprising was quelled.

About 200 of the prison's 1,200 inmates hurled trays in the cafeteria, broke windows and tried unsuccessfully to take a guard hostage. Police used tear gas to break up the riot.

"To my knowledge the only cause was the thing at Attica," said Deputy Warden Howard B. Parks immediately after the trouble. "It's a wonder it's not more widespread throughout the country."

Retreat Credit

Any student, who attended all or part of the School of Education's Racism Retreat which was held at the Campus Center September 17 and 18, is eligiblee for modular credit. For information on obtaining this credit drop by the Modular Credit Office (Room 227-C, School of Education) or call 5-0944.

Hurry!!!
Last Days!!!
Basement Sale
Jeans $4.95
Cords 5.95
Colored Denims & more!! 3.95
WEARHOUSE

OPTICAL GOODIES
Always Available at
don call
Amherst's First Optician
56 Main St. Amherst
Tel. 253-7002

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1942. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Dr. Fiumara Explains VD Causes, Effects

By STEPHEN FINE

"If you're going to get gonorrhea, get the Boston strain; it's easiest to cure," joked Dr. Nicholas Fiumara, one of the nations foremost specialists in syphilology and dematology during a Distinguished Visitors Program Lecture last night.

Dr. Fiumara talked for about 50 minutes at the campus Center Auditorium about the cause and effects of gonorrhea. He described the disease at epidemic proportions throughout Massachusetts, the nation and the world. "It is an uncontrolled and uncontrollable disease. Last year there were 2-1/2 million cases reported in the country."

Gonorrhea can be cured by penicillin, but one of the basic problems is detecting it in females. "Nature never heard of women's lib when it comes to gonorrhea. How can we control it if women don't know whether they have it or not?" he asked. "Males cantell how it feels within 3 to 5 days, but women's can't. We are working on a blood test for gonorrhea but it is still in the experimental stage."

Fiumara discussed the effect of the Pill on the Gonorrhea epidemic. "Women using the Pill increase their chance of getting the disease by 100%. The alkalility of its ingredients spreads the gonorrhea."

Gonorrhea can only be transmitted through sexual activity, be it hetrosexual and homosexual. Dr. Fiumara said it can be cured by penicillin, the dosage depending on the strain of the disease.

Dr. Fiumara accompanied the talk with color slides of Gonorrhea afflicted college students in the different stages of the disease. He talked about the subjects of the slides on a first-name basis, and explained how they contracted the disease. This drew frequent laughter from the audience, but didn't take away from the informative and seriousness of the lecture.

MOBE Plans Moratoria

The Student Mobilization Committee, chaired by Tom Moriati, last night laid the groundwork for UMass's participation in the October 13th and November 6th National Moratoria.

On October 13th, MOBE plans a morning Teach-In outside the Hatch. It hopes to recruit students for the afternoon's distribution of anti-war leaflets, and general support-seeking in Amherst and Northampton.

MOBE hopes to "educate" people concerning the November 6th Demonstration in Boston. Last night, it was "tentatively" decided that MOBE rent five buses for student accommodation.

Tickets will be available following the October 13th Moratorium. The next MOBE meeting is scheduled for next Wednesday, Sept. 29.

Campaign Meeting Set

The Amherst Town Committee is hoping, through an open meeting in the Board Room of the Town Hall at 8:00 P.M. tonight to acquaint all interested persons with its methods and efforts for fund-raising, campaigning, and other types of participation in the political process. It also invites any Democrat to become an Associate member of the Committee which meets monthly throughout the year.

3 Stooges Delights Fans

By ERNIE ROTMAN -

For the umpteenth time, the Three Stooges performed on the screen for a full audience.

Nearly 150 students were on hand for the zany efforts of Moe, Larry, Shemp, & Curly. The humorous antics of all were enthusiastically enjoyed, but the most used line through the evening by the audience was, "We want Curly".

Exuberant applause followed after every clumsy step made and there was abundant laughter, especially after Curly's wolf calling.

Ticketing To Begin

All motor vehicles owned, operated or parked on the UMass campus by University staff, faculty or students must be registered with the Office of the Parking Coordinator. All members of the campus community who plan to use a motor vehicle on campus must register those vehicles prior to October 1, 1971; any cars registered after that date will be subject to a $5.00 late registration fee.

Beginning Friday, October 1,1971, tagging of all illegally parked vehicles will commence.

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

MUSIC THEATRE
AUDITIONS
Stop the World - I want to get off!
Tonight - Campus Center Rm. 168-170, 7:30.
All Welcome - No Experience Necessary

Senate Considers Action

Campion Calls Fee Increases Legal

By DON BISHOP AND CHARLES BERKOW

"We have satisfied the requirements of the Federal freeze on rents and students fees" said Thomas Campion, Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services, in testimony before the Student Senate last night. He was speaking on the University's position of the "legality of the increases effected by the University in the area of room rents and fees."

Other action taken by the Senate included the rejection of the appointment of Tom Spriggs as Chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee, the approval of a grant to the Baltwood Project, and the freezing of certain funds granted to the Free University.

According to Campion, immediately after President Nixon's announcement of the wage-price freeze on August 15, the Office of the President of the University began a continuing effort to understand the University's position under the wage-price freeze guidelines. Beginning on August 16 a series of inquiries was addressed by the University to Office of Emergency Preparedness sources in Boston and Washington, concerning the effects of the freeze on prices for tuition, room, board, and fees for the 1971-72 school year.

Responses Conflict

Campion said that various conflicting answers were received in response to these inquiries. On August 18, President Robert C. Wood issued a memorandum to Chancellor Oswald Tippo and others saying in part that "'Students shall continue to be billed for increased dormitory, dining commons, and student fee rates pending our investigation of the orders effect on these matters.'" On August 19 the New York Times "carried as 'official' the following question and answer issued by OEP on August 17, 1971: Q Are previously announced increased tuition rates for the 1971-72 school year permitted by the freeze? A Yes, since these are considered transaction prices, since commitments have been made and there are a number of cases where payments have been made.'" said Campion.

On August 25, the OEP issued another official question-answer which said that room and board payments are handled just like tuition. "'If there was not a substantial volume, the increase is not allowed,'" he said.

The next question to come up concerned the meaning of "substantial" used in the above answer. In discussing this question, the Council of Education, in Washington, D.C. advised the following: "'Room and Board...

The definition of substantial is not spelled out here. In other contexts, however, substantial volume of transactions is defined as follows:

The ceiling price is the price at or above which 10 percent of the actual transactions during the base period were made, except that in the case of increases in posted and effective prices during the base period the base period itself will be considered to have begun at the time of the increase in posted and effective prices. (Federal Register, August 21, 1971, p. 16516).'"

Later in his address, Campion presented specific facts and figures to support his claim that the University had received checks for payment of housing, board, tuition, and fees from more than 10% of the students before August 14.

"Deposits" Disputed

The present dispute is over the meaning of "deposits." Campion said that the university's position is "'deposits'...does not mean bank deposits by the University, but instead means confirming deposits by students (this would include, for example, student room deposits)..." Later, he demonstrated with more facts and figures that room deposits were paid by more than 90% of the students living in University housing long before August 14. He also said that fees are considered as part of tuition, and that the University felt that its position was confirmed by further discussions with the OEP.

In the speech Vice Chancellor Campion answered previous charges made by Senate President Sandwen and the Rents and Fees Committee Chairman Robert Chiller of whether the University stands to gain financially from the wage and price freeze. He stated that only through the negation of pay increases for Dining Commons and Campus Center employees was the University saving money. This amounted to roughly $6,500.

When this amount is considered in relation to increases in the University budget in other areas, though, Campion pointed out that the pay increase savings are cancelled out.

Discussion Follows

After the speech, Campion answered questions from the Senate floor. The questions for the most part dealt with the University's definition of the word "deposit" Most Senators took the position that "deposits" were those checks received by the bank. This question was not resolved due to the fact that OEP has not made explicit its definition.

Upon further questioning about the Administration's figures for deposits, Campion agreed to allow the Senate to look at the University's records. But he refused to co-sponsor a letter with the Senate to be sent to OEP, to ask them to define the University's unique Position. He said that "the Administration is satisfied that its position is legal, even moral."

At this point Chiller moved to commit the whole matter to his committee, and to Senate legal advisor Richard Howland for further study. The motion was approved.

Upon study of the University's deposit figures and other related information this committee will recommend to the Student Senate whether or not to call for an investigation of the Administration's actions by OEP.

Other Business

In other business, the Senate rejected by a 16-15 vote the nomination of Tom Spriggs as head of the Academic Affairs Committee. Opposition to his appointment centered on his abilities, and the alleged "abrasive" nature of his personality.

Also approved by the Senate was a grant to the Baltwood Project of $80. This project is at the Belchertown State Hospital. The money granted will be used to provide transportation to and from the Hospital.

A freezing of certain Free University funds was imposed by the Senate after they heard accounts of the "unethical" payment of 3 individuals by Free U. who have since left the community. The "freeze" will contine until Free University spokesmen are able to explain the circumstances of the payments.

At the time of the Collegian deadline, the Student Senate was engaged in debate over the legality of proposed distribution of birth control handbooks.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Undergraduate Exhibition
September 20 - October 8, 1971
University Art Gallery
Herter Hall
Daily 10-5

Cambridge Students Must Prove Residency

Students in Cambridge who wish to vote will have to satisfy city registrars they are actually residents of that city, a federal magistrate ruled yesterday.

"The City of Cambridge has a compelling interest in making sure persons who vote there are actually residents of the city," Magistrate Willie J. Davis ruled.

His action was in response to a suit by a group of college students who contended the Cambridge Board of Election Commissioners refused to register students who were not financially self-supporting. The parents of most of the students involved live in other communities.

Upon learning of Davis' decision, Cambridge election commission member and secretary Francis J. Burns interpreted it to mean, "We're going to stay the same way we always were."

The commission had ruled previously that students wishing to register to vote must:

Show proof of residence for six months prior to registering.

Express intent to make Cambridge the legal residence.

Accept the home of the parents as the legal residents if such parents contribute to the student's support.

Davis ruled on the residency requirement that "to acquire a domicile of choice in any particular place, a person must intend to make that place his home." That is so basic that no citation of authority is required.

But he added, "The difficulty comes in determining just when a person intends to reside in a particular place."

The magistrate ruled the commission is within its rights in demanding that a prospective voter prove residency , adding, "This compelling interest would clearly overide any claim by student applicants that they are put to an undue burden by having to appear before the board."

But he added that neither the fact that a student returns to his parents' home for vacations nor the fact that a student is not self-supporting can be a sole ground to deny the right to register.

He said, students who are refused should seek remedial action first in the state courts and later, if thought necessary, in the federal courts.

Howland Sees Cambridge Ruling As Having Little Effect Here

By DIANE BISSONNETTE

The recent decision on student voter registration in Cambridge will have no effect on students in Amherst according to Student Senate Council, Richard M. Howland.

The Cambridge decision was that students must show proof of residency six months prior to registering, express intent for legal residence and accept as legal residency the home of their parents if the student is not self-supporting. (See article on this page.)

Howland said, "I don't believe this decision will have any impact on students in Amherst since, in effect, Mr. Davis' opinion supports the position taken by the town, which is, equal treatment of students and everyone else."

Only one of the students who filed a petition in the suit has been denied the right to register to vote in Cambridge.

This was due to the plaintiff's neglect to exhaust all possible remedies.

"I think students should vote where they have the most lawful interest", said Howland. He strongly believes, however, that Amherst is where their vote should be.

"Students choosing to register in Amherst are choosing the community where they spend 9-12 months of the year," Howland said. "It's where the district attorney, the police department, roads, highways, payments in lieu of taxes, merchants and landlords affect their daily lives. I think it's Amherst for students at the University but they may not."

Howland also made it clear that students should not have trouble registering to vote in the community where their interest lies.

How will student voting and registration effect elections? The Student Senate attorney was optimistic in his response, saying that, "It will serve to make an already responsive town government even more responsive."

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

Eves. 7:15 9:10
Saturday Sunday continuous from 2:00
ACADEMY
AT THE GATES OF THE COLLEGE
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8425
"NOT TO BE MISSED"-NY Post
"A GLORY"-New Yorker
"FELLINI'S BEST SINCE 8 1/2" Newsweek
Federico Fellini's newest film
"The Clowns"
(original version)

STEREO COMPONENTS
A purchasing co-operative has been formed to sell equipment at people's prices - 3 to 4% over cost. Scott, BSR-McDonald, Sony, Marantz, AR, Dual, Akai, Rectilinear, Dynaco, etc. Most top brands.
Call 546-8902 9 A.M. to 9 P.M.

C. C. PROGRAM COUNCIL
PRESENTS
"THE FIXER"
Thursday, Sept. 23
7:00 and 9:30 p.m.
S. U. Ballroom 50¢

In The Nation And The World

Medina Acquitted Of All My Lai Charges

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)-Capt. Ernest Medina, the career officer who commanded U.S. troops at My Lai in 1968, was acquitted Wednesday of all charges arising from the operation.

The jury of five Vietnam veteran officers deliberated for about an hour before acquitting the captain of murder, involuntary manslaughter and assault.

The verdict was read by the jury president, Col. William D. Proctor, of Atlanta as Medina stood at stiff attention before the jury with his lawyers.

"It is my duty as president of this court to advise you that the court in closed session and upon secret written ballot, has found you not guilty of all specifications and charges," Proctor said.

Medina, 35, a slight smile on his face, snapped a smart salute to the jury, made an about-face, and resumed his seat at the defense table.

At the reading of the verdict, there were several loud gasps among the spectators.

Medina's attractive blonde wife, dressed in a bright orange dress, burst into tears and rested her head on the shoulder of a man sitting beside her. She raised her hands to her face and wiped at the tears.

Medina sat without expression as Howard dismissed the jury and the spectators filed out of the cramped, paneled courtroom where the trial has been in progress since last month.

When the courtroom was empty, Medina walked into an adjoining room, and drank a glass of water, and with his wife beside him then moved outside into the bright sunshine to face a throng of newsmen.

The captain, speaking into a battery of microphones, said, "I am extremely happy-I just don't know what other words can express my feelings at this point."

The trim Mexican-American officer's voice shook as he talked to the newsmen. He was asked whether he thought at any time he would be convicted.

Taking a deep breath, and then exhaling, Medina said:

"No. I never had the actual feeling that I would be convicted. I never felt that.

Man,

"Man, three years is a long time-I'm glad it is over," Medina said, referring to the interval between the My Lai massacre and his trial at this grassy, tree-shaded Army post.

Medina was accused of premeditatedly murdering a woman by shooting her as she lay wounded in a rice paddy outside My Lai. He also was accused of involuntary manslaughter in the death of 100 civilians during the operation, and was charged with assaulting a Viet Cong suspect by twice firing a rifle over his head.

Medina told newsmen that he had previously indicated that he would resign from the Army, whatever the outcome of the trial-and he said he would stick with that decision. He said he would request an immediate discharge.

Medina's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, then stepped forward.

Bailey, asked if he ever expected conviction said:

"I had some concern about the assault charge, because they seemed to be hammering away at that one. But as to the other charges, no deep concern."

"I've never got an acquittal for a nicer guy," grinned Bailey.

Medina was the fourth soldier acquitted of charges arising from the My Lai operation and was one of six court-martialed.

UN Settlement Of Mideast Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP)-Administration officials are expressing concern that the growing emphasis on the Mideast at the United Nations might distract from the American effort to achieve an interim settlement between the Arabs and Israelis.

The main problem, they say, is the possibility of an early move to put the dispute before the General Assembly while the United States still has a chance to work out a reopening of the Suez Canal as a first step toward a real peace.

"It would be a shame for the Mideast to get tied up in the politics of a general debate when we still have a chance to work out something through quiet diplomacy," one administration source said.

American officials spoke also with misgivings of the call U.N. Secretary General U Thant made for the world body to work now for a general Mideast settlement.

News In Brief

SAIGON (AP)-American bombers and warships pounded the southern half of the demilitarized zone Wednesday, keeping up pressure on North Vietnamese troops and supplies.

Thailand-based B52 bombers and smaller tactical bombers joined planes from a U.S. carrier in the Tonkin Gulf in striking at rocket sires and storage depots in the DMZ and targets along the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in Laos.

***

NEW YORK (AP)-Two psychologists who have tested 15,000 athletes, worked with 27 professional athletic teams and hundreds of high school and college teams, say they found nothing to support the traditional idea that sport builds character.

Whatever it takes to survive the high attrition rate associated with competition, the psychologists say, those qualities are not the result of the competition--they are there in the first place.

***

BERLIN (AP)-Talks between the two Germanys on ways to carry out the four power Berlin agreement broke down Wednesday and the U.S. ambassador to West Germany accused East Germany of breaking its word.

West German state secretary Egon Bahr was in East Berlin less than 30 minutes before he returned to West Berlin and told newsmen no new meeting date had been set.

***

SAIGON (AP)-Two U.S. fighter-bombers destroyed an antiaircraft gun site 77 miles inside North Vietnam after receiving fire from it, the U.S. Command announced Thursday. The action took place during a bombing mission inside Laos before noon Wednesday.

In Paris, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives called off this week's session of the Vietnam peace talks as "an energetic protest" against massive combat strikes made Tuesday against targets inside North Vietnam.

***

WASHINGTON (AP)-The National Association of Manufacturers called on Congress to rigidly control wages in a formula tied to productivity and allow companies to pass along any higher costs to consumers.

Turmoil Suspected Inside Red China

TOKYO (AP) - Red China's army has cancelled all furloughs and called back all soldiers on home leave the past few days, Japanese government sources said Thursday.

They indicated the soldiers were ordered to return to their units to guard against possible confusion that might occur when the Chinese government issues an important announcement.

There was no hint of the nature of the announcement. The Japanese said they learned about the Chinese military orders in messages radioed to remote areas of China and monitored in Japan.

Japanese correspondents reported Peking authorities decided about 12 days ago to cancel the parade for China's National Day, another piece in the puzzling developments emanating from China.

The correspondents met a Japanese parliamentary delegation returning to Hong Kong from Red China and were told brass bands and paraders had been rehearsing in Peking until Sept. 1 "when all the din and bustle suddenly died down."

The British Foreign Office was advised through its charge d'affaires in Peking that Red China had cancelled the parade and fireworks for National Day Oct 1 "for reasons of economy."

Confirming the cancellation, the Chinese legation in London and the embassy in Paris denied the decision had anything to do with rumors of the serious illness of Mao Tse-tung, 77, saying his health was excellent.

Western quarters remained convinced, however, that the cancellation of the National Day celebration had more behind it than met the eye.

Ever since the Chinese Communists conquered the mainland in 1949, they have observed National Day with parade and pageantry, with Mao and other Chinese leaders watching.

Justice Black Seriously Ill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black is in serious condition in Bethesda Naval Hospital after suffering a stroke Monday, hospital sources confirmed Wednesday. Black, 85, was admitted to the hospital and was being treated for an inflammatory condition of the blood vessels.

The hospital spokesman said Black suffered the stroke about noon Monday and was "remaining stable" on the serious list.

Black, who has been on the nation's highest court for 34 years, retired last Friday. President Nixon accepted Black's letter of retirement "with deep regret."

Black's retirement came with another justice, John M. Harlan, 72, also in a Washington hospital with a back ailment.

New Clothing at Used Prices
Basement Sale
MORE New Cords & Blue Jeans
WEARHOUSE
where else?

Want to help somebody?
Learn about GSS Service
Thurs., Sept. 23 Colonial Lounge 7:30 - 8:30
Sun., Sept. 26 Memorial Hall 10:30 - 1
Tues., Sept. 28 Colonial Lounge 7:30 - 8:30

A HOT DINNER SPECIAL only 84¢ MON.-FRI.
AT THE BLUE WALL CAFETERIA Open till 6:30

dvp PRESENTS
ART BUCHWALD
"The Establishment is Alive and Well in Washington"
Curry Hicks Cage
Monday, September 27 8 p.m.

U.S. Asks General Assembly For 2-China Seating Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)-The United States and 16 other countries called Wednesday on the General Assembly to seat Red China in the United Nations while permitting Nationalist China to remain.

The long-awaited resolution also proposed, as expected, that the Peking government should be given China's permanent seat in the Security Council, which carries with it the all-important veto power.

The action came simultaneously with a preliminary round of debate in the assembly's 25-nation steering committee in which Albania's vice minister of foreign affairs, Reis Malile, denounced the U.S. two Chinas policy as an anti-Chinese maneuver.

Malile asserted that the U.S. resolution was intended to delay a solution of the 21-year-old controversy over who should occupy China's U.N. seat.

Malile spoke after U.S. Ambassador George Bush proposed the U.S. item and a rival proposal, sponsored by Albania and 18 other countries, be debated concurrently in the 130-nation assembly.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - The United States won endorsement of the U.N. General Assembly's steering committee Wednesday night for a full hearing on its two-Chinas policy.

It lost another test, however, when the 25-nation committee rejected a U.S. proposal that the two-Chinas formual be discussed concurrently with a rival plan to give China's U.N. seat to Peking alone.

"We think it is clear," Bush said, "that the General Assembly will not wish to hold two separate debates."

Sponsors of the so-called Albanian resolution are seeking to seat Peking and at the same time expel the Chinese Nationalist delegation. There is only one China, Malile said.

The U.S. proposal gained some prestigious support at the last minute when Japan agreed to be a co-sponsor, but its prospects for approval were uncertain. U.S. officials, however, continued to express optimism.

The sponsors-in addition to the United States and Japan-were Australia, Chad, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Fiji, Gambia, Haiti, Honduras, Lesotho, Liberia, New Zealand, Philippines, Swaziland, Thailand and Uruguay.

The United States and 18 co-sponsors submitted a second resolution declaring the expulsion of Nationalist China to be "an important question." This would require a two-thirds majority for any move to oust the Taiwan delegation.

The U.S. backed resolutions representing a major shift in policy for the Nixon administration, apparently linked with the President's planned visit to Peking and other steps to improve relations with the Chinese Communists.

A major objective of the United States, however, as stated by top officials, is to preserve a place for Taiwan in the world organization. The plan of "dual representation" is based on the assumption that Peking and Taipei would agree to sit in the United Nations with each other.

Indian Uprise in Washington Ends in Fight with Police

WASHINGTON (AP)-Indian militants fought with police in the lobby of the Bureau of Indian Affairs Wednesday as they tried to make a citizen's arrest of the agency's second-highest man who they claim is stifling reforms.

While negotiations were underway to bring militants together with the BIA hierarchy, police continued to isolate the protestors in a hallway at the bottom of the first-floor stairs. This apparently contributed largely to the melee.

Ted Means, an Oglala Sioux and brother of the man leading the demonstration, was thrown off the stairs by police as he attempted to reach the office of John O. Crow, deputy commissioner of BIA.

When he landed in the lobby with three or four building guards on top of him, several Indians lunged at the police and the fight was on.

The screaming, shouting, kicking and cursing continued for the next 15 minutes, with BIA employees sympathetic to the demonstrators caught in the crush of shoving bodies.

Twenty-six Indians, mostly Movement AIM and the National Indian Youth Council, were arrested and charged by the Interior Department with illegal entry. But BIA Commissioner Louis R. Bruce asked Interior Secretary Roger D.B. Morton to drop the charges.

It was the second protest against Crow in two days.

Tuesday, Navajo Tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald told a news conference Crow is a tool of the anti-Indian elements within Interior and is cutting short reforms Bruce had initiated. Most of the reforms-such as giving Indians more protection from invasions of their land, water and mineral resources; contracting out some BIA functions to the tribes and downgrading the powers of the BIA superintendents to give Indians themselves more say-so-were endorsed by President Nixon himself in a speech a year ago.

MacDonald said removing the BIA from Interior and making it independent may be the only way to guarantee that the President's promises become reality.

Russell Means, leader of the AIM demonstrators, said Wednesday's protest was against Crow "because he has committed crimes against the Indian people."

Ernest Stevens, who heads BIA community services, said the police made the first move.

"Then people started doing dumb things," Stevens said. "I don't think the police should have been there. It wasn't necessary."

Stevens said Bruce had agreed to meet with the militants but was taping a "Today" television interview "and we had to wait for him. In that 15 or 20 minutes things got out of hand and too many people had too many opportunities to make mistakes."

Young Indians, especially, have been making their anger known around the country in the past two years-from occupation of Alcatraz and Mount Rushmore to the painting red of a New York City statue of President Theodore Roosevelt.

But Wednesday's fracas was the first to hit the BIA headquarters.

Stevens said what is surfacing is a "national Indian uprising. This is about the angriest Indians have ever been-but they are only beginning to get angry."

BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
Always with Amazing Specials
"...Everyone's Favorite Jeweler..."
31 S. Pleasant St. Amherst

SPRING SEMESTER--ISRAEL
For Humanities Students
Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study centered in Jerusalem/February-June, 1972
Limited to 30 students
Juniors, Seniors, and Grad students eligible.
Four courses/History, Literature, Archaeology, Bible
Earn 16 credits
Knowledge of Hebrew or Arabic preferred
Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Application deadline November 1st.
THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Brezhnev Terms Rumors On Yugo Slav 'Fairy Tales'

BELGRADE (AP) - Leonid I. Brezhmev, conditionally accepting Wednesday the doctrine of non-interference in Yugoslavia's affairs, dismissed as "fairy tales" rumors that the Soviet army is preparing to plunge into the Balkans.

The Soviet Communist party chief, who arrived for a four-day visit, said the idea that the Soviet Union held to a doctrine of "limited sovereignty" for Communist states is a slanderous invention.

His disavowal of any invasion plans in the strategic Balkans came after President Tito bluntly reaffirmed Yugoslavia's independence from Moscow and indirectly warned Moscow to keep hands off.

Brezhnov yielded to Yugoslav pressure in affirming the principles of the famous 1955 Belgrade Declaration that recognized Yugoslavia's right to sovereignty, equality and noninterference in internal affairs.

But Brezhnev hedged by saying: "One should work in order that those principles are realized in contemporary conditions as widely and as fully as possible."

He did not say what the "contemporary conditions" were, but called for Soviet-Yugoslav "political cooperation," apparently to discourage Belgrade from drifting too close to the United States or to Communist China.

Brezhnev's remarks and those by Titi were in toasts offered at a formal dinner after the Soviet leader arrived to a polite but less-than-enthusiastic reception.

Apparently alluding to Washington which Tito is visiting this autumn-and to Peking, Brezhnev denounced what he termed "different sources which want to hinder" Soviet-Yugoslav relations.

The "limited sovereignty" doctrine, also called the "Brezhnev doctrine" in the West, was said to have been exemplified in the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 after that country's Communist leaders charted a liberal course.

That invasion plunged Belgrade-Moscow relations to their lowest point since Tito split with Moscow in 1948.

Tito, in his toast, uttered the most authoritative and explicit Yugoslav assertion yet that Belgrade intended to remain independent from Moscow.

He challenged the idea of Soviet monopoly in the Communist world and confirmed indirectly that he would pursue his ties with the United States and China.

Brezhnev's visit, part of a current Kremlin foreign policy offensive, was believed to be aimed at reasserting Moscow's interests in the Balkans. Besides Yugoslavia, Romania has drawn the Soviet's ire for becoming friendly with Peking. A third Balkan country, Albania, is a staunch ally of China.

Tens of thousands of persons lined Belgrade streets to welcome Brezhnev, but in terms of size and enthusiasm the reception fell short of the one accorded President Nixon when he came here in September 1970.

Dim Lights Called Way to Cleaner Air

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two administration officials told a congressional committee Wednesday the nation will have to dim its bright lights if it wants cleaner air now.

Power companies and mining operations, they said, cannot meet strong pollution controls immediately and still provide enough energy and materials to sustain America's standard of living.

"The economic cost to the minerals industry of maintaining and expanding production while giving full attention to environmental protection will, of course, affect our efforts to assure adequate supplies of minerals and energy," said Harold B. Scott, action assistant secretary of Commerce.

Scott and Elmer F. Bennett, general counsel to the Office of Emergency Preparedness, appeared before the Joint Committee on Defense Production to testify on the nation's reservoir of natural resources.

Both said America already is having trouble producing enough raw materials to satisfy its energy and production needs and will have to turn increasingly to other countries for some materials.

Only 10 per cent of the bauxite and alumina ore needed by the United States is produced domestically, Scott said, and the nation's aluminum production is expected to increase by 6 to 8 per cent a year.

Scott said the U.S. currently produces enough clay, coal, sulfer, silica and sodium to satisfy its needs but is almost totally dependent on other countries for "some of the more important industrial minerals" such as chromite, columbium manganese, tin and platinum.

Bennett told the committee the United States once was a major exporter of oil and petroleum but now finds itself increasingly dependent on foreign countries for this fuel.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jim Gold
NEWS STAFF — Jeanette Martineau, Jerry Lazar, Bob Nesti, Don St. Pierre, Earle Barroll, Dan Kamal
SPORTS — Gary Alpaugh, Rich Hinckley, Bruce MacConnell
DARKROOM — Ann Gurnett
EDITORIAL — Jim Gold
AD LAYOUT

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"As Long As I Don't Get A 'No' Vote From The White House"

Richard C. Hanson

Sandwen Arrives Late

BOSTON, State House - Lee Sandwen finally did it. The young "revolutionary" from Virginia kept the chief executive of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts from executing his duties. The very gears and wheels of oppressive government were halted for a few moments, as Student Senate President Sandwen arrived 20 minutes late for the State House swearing-in ceremony which made him a Trustee of the University of Massachusetts, one of two students now on the board.

Memories of the freshman Sandwen, bright and active, demonstrating at Freshman Convocation three years ago may have dimmed, but Lee managed to show his colors yesterday in the blue carpeted office of Governor Sargent. Unlike most revolutionary acts, Sandwen's late arrival was caused by his unwillingness to drive as fast as the other insane Massachusetts motorists on the turnpike from Amherst to Boston.

Sandwen was to have been sworn in with ten other people, guys with names like Capalona and Ferretti all wearing blue "Hi! I'm What's his name" tags. The ceremony was to have taken place at 10:00 A.M. At 10:20 Sandwen, who was driving with Chancellor Tippo, arrived. The Governor held a private ceremony for the long haired student Trustee.

It was called a "political" coup by some veteran observers of Gubanatorial ceremonies.

Governor Sargent didn't have much to say about the new addition to the Trustees. Nobody really gets excited about student Trustees and the like nowadays. The first student on the Board was Cindi Olken who was Senate President two years ago. Then there was Glen Elters, last year's President.

Student Senate President Lee Sandwen, being sworn in as a Trustee at ceremonies in Boston yesterday. (Photos by Richard Hanson.)

Now that the Governor has signed into law the bill giving the Boston and Amherst campus a student Trustee each, student Trustees are pretty much old hat.

The student Trustee duo might have made a big difference for the Amherst Campus over the past five years, but now that the Board's role is becoming more and more indirect in running the every day affairs of each campus (those most likely to effect students) there is some ambiguity about the effect of a student on the Board.

Governor Sargent mumbled something about bringing a student voice to the Board and Sandwen mumbled something back about how he thought it was all a good idea, but the facts are quite plain that a student or any member of the board is going to become increasingly relegated to selected topics like planning and financing.

Some people around the University would like the Trustees to change their meeting schedule from one a month to once every two months. The now-alive systems office of President Wood will probably seek less Board involvement, much to the consternation of some Board members.

Without a clearly defined future role for the Trustees, Trustee Sandwen may never be able to have as tangible affect on the running of the University as he had on the Governor's schedule the day he was sworn in.

President Wood and Trustee Sandwen.

'FOR THE SUPREME COURT WE'LL NEED A LIBERALLY CONSERVATIVE WHITE, PRO-INTEGRATION, ANTI-BUSING, SOUTHERN WOMAN WHO LOOKS GOOD TO MINORITY GROUPS!'

Il Duce

By ANN GURNETT
EDITORIAL STAFF

I was sitting in the middle of a three ring circus. There were bright lights and people coming and going and a lot of animals. Very highly trained animals, or so I heard someone say. Supposedly these animals were conditioned to react only to certain stimuli. Nobody ever mentioned what these stimuli were so I took it for granted that they were just a higher class of animals: they knew they had been conditioned but didn't know how to rebel.

And there was a Ringleader. He stood on a slightly elevated platform and watched the performers acting out their sordid little parts before him. I, in turn, watched him closely, as he stalked nervously back and forth, running his hands through his wild, greying hair. He chain-smoked. His black boots thumped as he paced the hardwood confines of his own stage. He kept a wary eye on his performers constantly, his eyes invisible behind the blinding glitter of lights glancing off the lenses of his glasses.

I started to watch the enchanted masses around me again. It seemed as if their movements were controlled by the brilliant lances of light emanating from the Ringleader's eyes. Then he began to speak. His power over his subjects became absolute. The formerly aimless motion of the puppets seemed to consolidate itself into a single tide of emotion, eddying around the Ringleader's feet. I watched as he threw ideas at his circus. I listened as the words flowed into the arena like a tide, alternately pounding about the heads of the performers and receding, only to return and pound the shores of their collective ignorance more savagely.

The tide of knowledge whispered a subversive message to the captive audience. I listened harder, trying to understand the portent of the seemingly inocuos words which flowed from the Ringleader's mouth. And then I heard it; a subtle whisper, increasing in force as a gale increases to a hurricane. The enlightenment began to permeate my consciousness; I felt overawed. Still I remained in possessions of my mind I determined to hold out, despite the costs, and discover the Ringleader's power over the performers in this circus, all of whom sat completely transfixed by his power. I heard the whisper again; would I be able to decipher it before I collapsed in a comatose state? It was getting clearer all the time, even as I became weaker.

Then I knew. The realization liberated my soul from the enchantment cast upon it by the Ringleader. I would not become a performer in the circus after all! The Ringleader said: "Rebel... Revolt! Destroy the capitalists! And for God's sake don't subscribe to those S.E.S. notes!"

Photo by Gary Alpaugh

Find the Big Dipper

Photo by Gary Alpaugh

Napalm Sticks to Kids

This song, written by soldiers in Vietnam, expresses their feelings about what is happening there. I first heard it from a soldier who was lying on top of a bunker stoned out of his mind. He was concurrently singing, screaming, and crying.

Read it, try to understand how they feel, and then direct your efforts toward ending the war.

We shoot the sick, the young, the lame,
We do our best to kill and maim,
Because the kills all count the same
Napalm sticks to kids.

Ox cart rolling down the road,
Peasants with a heavy load,
They're all V.C. when the bombs explode
Napalm sticks to kids.

A baby sucking on his mother's tit,
Children cowering in a pit,
Dow chemical doesn't give a shit
Napalm sticks to kids.

Blues out on a road recon,
See some children with their mom,
What the hell, let's drop the bomb,
Napalm sticks to kids.

Flying low across the trees,
Pilots doing what they please,
Dropping frags on refugees,
Napalm sticks to kids.

They're in good shape for the shape they're in,
But, God, I wonder how they can win
With napalm running down their skin,
Napalm sticks to kids.

CIA with guns for hire
Montagnards around a fire,
Napalm makes the fire higher,
Napalm sticks to kids.

Drop some napalm on the barn,
It won't do too much harm,
Just burn off a leg or arm,
Napalm sticks to kids.

Ray Kildisas
B. Mulcare
Vietnam Veterans Against the War

Beer Bars Allowed At State Colleges

Massachusetts state colleges are offering to their seniors and grad students yet another facet to on-campus social life.

BEER BARS, a spokesman for the trustees of state colleges revealed yesterday, are being introduced within those hallowed halls of learning.

Already, he said, state colleges at Bridgewater and Westfield have been given permission to open on-campus bars. And requests for similar cases have been received from the colleges in Salem, North Adams, Lowell and Framingham.

However, the facilities—as are other beer and liquor outlets in the commonwealth—will be restricted to persons 21 or over, thus eliminating most undergraduates as customers.

At Framingham State College that will mean, said officials there, that only 500 of the 2,500 students would be allowed to patronize the campus bar.

AND TO ENSURE that all will be legal, said the spokesman for the trustees, student patrons of the college bars will have to display special identification cards.

While the college quaffers may revive the lusty "Roll out the barrel..."tune, they will be singing in vain, according to the trustees. Only canned beer will be sold. And, under rules being drawn up, drinking in dormitories will still be banned.

Although the state colleges are lowering their drinking barriers for the first time, the University of Massachusetts in Amherst has been serving both beer and liquor in its "Top of the Campus" restaurant on the 11th floor of the Student Center.

This, however, is restricted to members of the Top of the Campus Club.

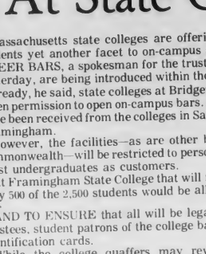
A spokesman said UMass is now considering opening a rathskeller or beer garden on campus for general student patronage—provided the students meet the age requirement.

Today's Paris Talks Cancelled in Protest

PARIS (AP)-North Vietnam is calling off this week's session of the Vietnam peace talks as "an energetic protest against the Nixon administration's acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam on Sept. 21."

On that day American fighter-bombers launched 200 combat strikes against targets inside North Vietnam, blaming an increase in North Vietnamese antiaircraft attacks on reconnaissance planes.

The Viet Cong followed North Vietnam's lead in cancelling Thursday's session, and both delegations tried to reschedule the next talks for Sept. 30.



But American and South Vietnamese officials gave notice that while the Communist side could cancel any meeting it could not reschedule one without Washington and Saigon approval.

This raised the possibility Wednesday night that the conference might not reconvene until Oct. 7, four days after the one-man presidential election in South Vietnam.

The U.S. delegation said: "Our policy with regard to the protection of reconnaissance aircraft and U.S. forces as they withdraw from South Vietnam has been clearly stated. The other side is well aware of this policy. We hope the other side will use this interlude to seek instructions permitting them to abandon their propaganda posture and get down to work at these meetings."

The South Vietnamese delegation said it deplored the decision to cancel the meeting, but added, "We would like to stress that for several weeks the North Vietnamese have intensified their military preparations just north of the demilitarized zone while Communist forces have considerably stopped up their activity in the zone, seriously threatening the security of adjoining provinces of the Republic of Vietnam...."

TICKET SALES START TODAY

SIOBHAN McKENNA in HERE ARE LADIES

A GREAT LADY! OUTTAWONDERFUL!
"A great lady and one of the prides of Ireland. It was mixed and beautiful and most beautiful when it was most mixed. Miss McKenna was superb. Best of all, Miss McKenna out upon the high seas of Joyce's Molly Bloom monologue. Here it all was, and quite wonderful."
-Clive Barnes, New York Times

A THOROUGHGOING PLEASURE!
"There is a stirring amount of eloquence, beauty and humor in 'Here Are Ladies.' It is a thoroughgoing pleasure."
-Richard Watts, New York Post

Thur., Oct. 7
8 p.m. (Sharp)
Bowker Aud.
(Stockbridge Hall)

UMass Undergrads	$1.50
Other Full-Time Students	$2.50
UMass Faculty/Staff	$3.00
General Public	$3.50

Tickets available: Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202
Remaining tickets available one hour before performance at Bowker Aud.

Presented by the UMass Fine Arts Council

You mean all those great Columbia albums are on sale now

The Listening Post is having a record sale this weekend

MONUMENT

· All POCO
· All Firesign Theatre
· All Kris Kristofferson
· The New Riders
· The Isle of Wight

SALE
C - 4.98 list 2.88
D - 5.98 list 3.48

SALE - All Odyssey Classical
Discs in stock $1.89 8 for 5.47
SALE THRU SAT. SEPT. 25

THE LISTENING POST

25 SO. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST 186 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON

Draft Counselor's Corner

Draft is Back, Plan Your Future Now

By GILBERT J. SALK

Well, the draft law has been passed by our "representatives" in Congress, as you all probably know by now. (By some strange coincidence, today is also the first day of Autumn.) Once King Richard signs the bill, we will be back under the subjugation of the Selective Service System. If you detect a note of bitterness in my voice, you're right. Even knowing that the bill would be passed, I was hoping for a miracle.

However, reality always seems to sneak in, so let's deal with it. Any day now, the SSS will start issuing induction orders again. Unless you have a deferment or a relatively high number, there is a fair chance that you will be drafted this year if you were born before 1952. If you were vorn in '52, you'll have to wait until next year.

The problem before us is, how do you get a deferment? If you are a student who is up to date in his studies, you have no problem. You have a II-S. Otherwise, you should explore your chances for a medical or hardship deferment, or a CO classification, with a draft counselor-the sooner the better.

If you are a sophomore who did not have a deferment last year, write to your board to tell them that you are a sophomore at UMass and that you want a student deferment. Keep a copy of the letter for your files, and send it Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested. When the receipt comes back, staple it to your copy of the letter and file it in a safe place. You should have no trouble getting your deferment.

Freshmen, however, do have problems. Nixon will probably end student deferments very soon after signing the draft bill. Your request for the deferment must be in the hands of your draft board before this time, and probably before he signs the bill. Follow the request procedure outlined above for sophomores. Do it today! Any delay may make it impossible for you to get a II-S. Then start thinking about what you will do if you lose your deferment. You must start planning now or you may get caught. Dig it.

If you have any questions about any of this, check out Draft Counseling Services in 923 CC as soon as possible.

NOTES:

Mock Draft Board will meet today and every Thursday in 902 CC from 10 to 12. If you have a personal appearance scheduled with your board, stop in to role play your meeting so you'll know what to expect and what to do.

Draft Counselor Training starts next Tuesday, Sept. 28, in 917 CC at 6:45 p.m. The course will meet each Tues. night for four weeks, and is open to anyone who is interested in becoming a trained draft counselor. There is a $5.00 charge to cover the cost of materials, but some scholarships are available. Register before the course starts in 923 CC.

Draft Info Table is set up each Tues. and Fri morning in the Campus Center near the Bookstore. Stop by for information, draft literature, or Mother Earth News.

I'll be helping out at another United Christian Foundation Coffee Hour Friday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30 in 162 CC. Tapes of the attack on Attica Prison will be featured, with a discussion following. Catch it.

Peace.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

August Living Costs Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) - Both living costs and wages went up in August but the government said this reflected increases before President Nixon clamped on the wage-price freeze in mid-month.

Over-all prices of food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care and recreation rose three-tenths of one per cent, about in line with average monthly increases this year, the Labor Department said.

Average wages of some 45 million rank-and-file workers rose 2 cents an hour to $3.44 and $1.43 a week to $129 a week in August, and purchasing power edged up within five-tenths of one per cent of the record high of 1968, the report said.

"We think that the wage-price freeze is having an effect and is having a positive effect," said White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. He added it is too early to judge the total impact.

Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson and Geoffrey Moore, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics that compiles the reports, said they had no way of telling from the figures whether there was any price or wage cheating after the freeze was imposed Aug. 15.

But Hodgson said the Internal Revenue Service is monitoring prices for possible violations.

"There has been really a pretty massive showing of voluntary compliance," Hodgson said, adding that of 9,000 complaints so far - mostly involving prices - companies have been ordered to rescind increases in some 3,500 cases. The House Ways and Means Committee meanwhile took what may be a preliminary step toward providing more tax breaks for individuals by cutting in half a prospective $3.4 billion tax reduction for business.

The committee action trimmed to $1.7 billion the first-year benefits involved in a system of allowing business to depreciate property for tax purposes as much as 20 per cent faster than under present rules.

The August price hikes pushed the Consumer Price Index up to 122.2, meaning that it cost $12.22 last month for everying $10 worth of typical family purchases in the 1967 base period.

The sharpest rise was a 3.7 per cent hike in gasoline prices, largest in more than a year.

Hodgson said Nixon's Cost of Living Council set up to monitor the freeze has no plans to roll each large wage hike negotiated just before the freeze was imposed, such as the AFL—CIO Communications Workers' contract covering some 500,000 telephone workers.

The report said fruits and vegetables dropped 1.9 per cent in August. Fresh fruits, vegetables and eggs are not covered by the freeze.

"Beef prices increased less and pork prices more than they usually do," the report said. "Egg prices rose less than usual."

Mortgage interests rates, and property taxes, which are not frozen, both rose in August.

Dept. of Afro-Am Opens Lecture Series on Dubois

The W.E.B. Dubois Department of the Afro-American Studies will institute a series of lectures based on the life and works of Dr. William Edward Burghardt Dubois . Dr. Herbert Aptheker, friend and associate of Dr. Dubois, will speak tonight, at Memorial Hall at 8:00 p.m.

Aptheker will speak on the times in which Dubois lived and on his role and thought during the period of 1868-1963. Dr. Dubois major writings and their impact will be examined as well as his organizational efforts in the NAACP, the Niagra Movement, and the concept of Pan-Africanism.

The historic implications that confronted Dr. Dubois with his dealing with the NAACP Board, Booker T. Washington, and Marcus Garvey will be analyzed. The basic ideas of Dubois in the areas of education, racism, colonialism, war and peace, violence and non-violence and capitalism will be presented. Also, his programs for organization and action will be discussed.

The Thursday night schedule of lectures at Memorial Hall is as follows: October 21, November 18, December 9, January 27, February 17, March 16, April 20, and May 11.

Dungarees
(Levi-Type)
Regularly $8.00
Now Only $5.95
WEARHOUSE
wear else?

Package Price
Water Beds
Special Frames
BED SPREADS
for Water Beds
&
Reg. Beds
A Head of Time
360 College St.
Rte. 9

AMHERST SUMMER THEATER
FRIDAY, SATURDAY, SUNDAY at 8:30
September 24, 25, 26

"Harvey"
THE PULITZER PRIZE PLAY
by MARY CHASE

KIRBY THEATER, AMHERST COLLEGE
All seats $2.00. For reservations phone 542-2278 or visit box office 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
(Performance days 10 a.m. - 9 p.m.)

FRIDAY'S FOLLIES
NEW WAVES AND OLD RAVES
~PRESENTS~
THE PROFESSIONALS
~WITH~ LEE MARVIN
CLAUDIA CARDINALE
BURT LANCASTER FRIDAY
S.U. BALLROOM 7 & 9:30

We cut hair perfectly

THE CHOPPING BLOCK

Silvio, John and Adam will go to your head

The Chopping Block is located at 26 Main St. Amherst, second floor. Open 9:00 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Mondays thru Fridays; 9 to 5 Saturdays. For appointment call 253-9293 or 253-9271.

continental coiffure

Notices

APO GSS BOOK EXCHANGE
Remember Friday is the FINAL day to pick up your money or books. Don't lose out.

BICYCLE CLUB
Quabbin trip Sunday, 9/26: 20, 50, 80, 100+ mile trips (something for everyone), meet in front of Newman Center at 9 a.m. Everyone welcome. Saturday trip sign up sheets on Bike Club boards in upper level of SU.

DANCE CONCERT
Dance Concert at Knowlton (in the Quad). Music by RUSH. Sat., Sept. 25 at 8:30.

GEOGRAPHICAL ASSOCIATION
Organizational meeting Thurs. in 905-909 CC at 7:30 p.m. All geography majors and interested persons invited to attend.

GSS
Want to help? Learn about GSS Service. Thurs., Colonial Lounge, 7:30-8:30 p.m.; Sunday, 26, Memorial Hall, 10:30-1; Tues., 28, Colonial Lounge, 7:30-8:30. Or call Gail at 545-2418.

HILLEL
Sign up for tutoring and rideboard programs at the office.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON
Pub night at Iota Gamma Upsilon, 406 N. Pleasant St. at 7:30 p.m. All university women welcome.

KENNEDY UPPER
3 Stooges films tonight at Thompson 104 and Friday at Mahar. 2 shows, 7:30 and 9:30.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI
Mr. Stanley Patrie will present a seminar on the education of the deaf tonight at 7 p.m. and again at 8:15 p.m. at 389 N. Pleasant St.

PUBLIC HEALTH GRADUATE AND UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS
There will be a sort of "get together" for all Public Health graduate and undergraduate students (Med. Techs. included) on Thurs. night from 7-10 p.m. in Rm. 163 CC. Your attendance is requested so everyone will have an opportunity to meet each other. Refreshments will be served.

RECREATION DEPT.
Recreation Majors: Sign up for the amazing 2nd Annual All Department Fasmagorical Fall Retreat. Get your deposit into the office today. Hurry. Oct. 1-3 (a fun-filled, satisfying weekend).

SCUBA CLUB
Organizational meeting Wed. Sept. 29, Rm. 178 CC at 8 p.m. All those interested are urged to attend. Will discuss beginning of classes for new members.

SKI PATROL
There will be an organizational meeting for all old members and anyone interested in joining the National Ski Patrol (faculty and grad students welcome), in Rm. 811 CC at 6:30 tonight.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE
Meeting Thurs., 7 p.m. in CC 917. Introduction to Consciousness Raising and its application to homosexuality.

UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN
Tonight's sorority rush parties will be: Sigma Delta Tau, "Contemporary Issues" (8:15-9:15); Sigma Sigma Sigma, "Skit Night" (7-8:15); Chi Omega, "Pre-Game Warm-ups" (7:30-9); and Alpha Chi Omega, "Origamia, Japanese Art" (6:30-7:30). Please come!

Come to the Chi Delphia rush tonight at 8:30, 314 Lincoln Ave. Meet the sisters with the brothers. Call Donna 6-6333 for more info.

THE WILDLIFE SOCIETY
The student chapter of the Wildlife Society will hold its first meeting of the semester, Thurs. at 7:30 p.m. in Holdsworth 305. Ed Tolthe will be speaking on "Wildlife in Kenya". New members welcome.

UMass Women's Programs Develop

By DIANA TAYLOR

With the purpose of raising the consciousness of women at UMass, a Women's Committee has been formed as an off-shoot of the Student Senate.

The Committee, originated by Lee Sandwen, President of the Student Senate, and Lisa Mandell and Pat Asack, co-chairmen of the committee, extends beyond the Senate to include all men and women on campus who express an interest.

In co-operation with such organizations as the Clergical Council, the Health Services, the faculty and administration, and other women's organizations, the Women's Committee hopes to sponsor several informative programs by and for women. The possibilities of a legal distribution of birth control information and a lecture series by prominent women on and off campus are presently being looked into.

They also hope that the subtle discriminations in admissions policies, and financial aid and work study programs will soon be erased. The idea of a women's studies program is another aspiration of the group.

The Women's Committee will meet tonight for the first time at 8:00 in room 804 of the Campus Center.

...

Registration is open now and will continue through September for Project Self, a series of workshops at UMass for and about women.

According to Lois Phillips, coordinator, the workshops are problem-centered as opposed to subject matter-centered. They will begin in October through the cooperation of the UMass Division of Continuing Education and the Valley Women's Center of Northampton.

Susan Grant, a biologist, will lead a workshop called "Women and Applied Ecology," dealing with herbicides, pesticides, organic gardening, population growth and related topics affecting our daily lives.

Helen Smith will lead a workshop called "Assumptions About Women" with either a literary, sociological or psychological focus chosen by the participants. Evelyn Duston and Robin Dizard will lead discussions around the theme "Women and Their Bodies," emphasizing that learning about anatomy and physiology can make women comfortable with their body's sexuality.

"Media's Manipulation of Women," led by Joan Engle, will analyze stereotypes created by the media, "consumerism" or the creation of the needs, and ways to fight back. "The Many Roles a Woman Can Play," led by Norma Gluckstern, will discuss roles and consider new options emphasizing that choices occur and change throughout one's lifetime.

The project began with a group of interested women at the Valley Women's Center of Northampton, who felt that besides long-range academic commitments, there should be another option open to women who want to create their own learning situation. The program offers free babysitting and indoor parking in the Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center. The fee for each six-week workshop is $20. Meeting time will be negotiated by the group in each workshop. Information, and the brochure, is available from Lois Phillips, c/o Project SELF, 920 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst, Mass. 545-0905.

Amherst's
Favorite Pizza
Bell's Pizza
65 University Dr.
256-8011 - 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

Spectrum
The general interest magazine of University of Massachusetts
Open Recruitment Meeting
Thursday Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m.
in the Spectrum office (S.U. 407)
Is Art, Poetry, Fiction or Photography your thing?

index needs
Mon., Sept. 27 6:30 p.m., Index Office, S.U.
Photographers
If You Cannot Attend Call 6-5439 or 6-5369

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1962 VW Sedan. Engine has sucked valve; could be repaired or used for parts. Body good and unstripped. Call 253-9685 $75. tfn-27

'71 VW conv., yellow with black top, only 9 months old. Best offer. Call Al 253-7920. tfn-24

'69 Austin Healy Sprite $750., firm. Call Sam, 108 Wheeler, 545-2413. tfn-24

'66 Volvo, excl. cond., will accept best offer. Call 584-6081, Aft. 6 p.m. tfn-24

Going overseas, must sell quickly '68 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $150. 8 month old $120 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $30. Call 253-8096. tfn-24

'63 Alfa Romeo Guiletta Spyder convertible. Excellent shape. Strong engine. More class than an MG! Call 546-5214. 9-21-22-24

1965 VW Bus, excellent cond., rebuilt engine, new clutch, new brakes, great for camping, $900, or best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 268-7285. tfn-29

67 Buick Skylark, convertible,at, ps, pb, 21 mpg on trip, cream w/ black top. Best of care and condition. $1295. 253-2900. tfn-24

'68 Saab and '69 Peugeot. Both 45,000 miles, in good condition. Asking $1,250 each. Call 256-6762 for inquiry or test drive. tfn-29

1962 Chevy, runs well, has fail sticker, $100 firm. Call 6-6088 tfn-24

1969 VW sedan. Very good condition. $1100 or best offer. Call after 5:30 at 584-7201 tfn-29

'65 Chevy 6 cyl, std. New tires, excel. running. 584-6081 $400 or best. tfn-30

68 VW Bug, ex cond., radio, snows & 4 good tires, all mounted. Must sacrifice, $1000. Here after 6 p.m. daily 1-781-5307. tfn-27

MOTORCYCLES For Sale

1970 Triumph Bonneville, 650cc, perfect running condition. Call 253-7858. tfn-24

1968 Honda SS125, exc. running cond., new inspection sticker, 6000 mi., 1 helmet. Asking $250.00. Call Jim 546-7906. tfn-24

Honda 350, Scrambler CL350, 1970 model, call 546-8931 Bob. tfn-23

Honda CL350, exc. condition, strong, need money. Call Ed 546-6005. tfn-24

HONDA "GIRL'S" step through new 0 mi., $300, Secc., still in shipping crate. Call Hon 586-0259 lv. number. tfn-24

FOR SALE

Smith Corona Coronet Automatic #10 electric portable typewriter. Brand-new with power return. $125 or best offer call 6-7831 Paul. tfn-24

Dark wood bureau with large mirror $30.00 Call 253-3025 after 6:00. tfn-24

Panasonic 8 track stero system. Car-home model. All speakers, home converter, 21 tapes. Retails at $300 plus, yours, $180 call 546-5000. tfn-27

Mamiya-Secor 1000 RTI.. Needs light meter. Good condition. $80 or best offer. Call 665-3550 after six. tfn-24

Chainsaw, new price. Negotiable. Bob 414, Thatcher 6-4663. tfn-23

One rebuilt B16 and one rebuilt B18 Volvo engines also B18 trans. and P544 body-perfect rust whe. Call 584-4820 nights tfn-24

66 VW rebuilt engine, new clutch, shocks & front end. Has 2 small dents. $400. 369-4413. tfn-27

Great Books of the Western World - complete set - $100. Rt. 1,213-4, Dry Hill Rd. Montague 367-2047. tfn-27

A 21 inch Welbilt stove, very good condition, $65. Call Greenfield 774-3245. tfn-24

Forested house lots cleared. Reasonable terms. Call 247-5013 between 7:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. tfn-28

One slightly used '68 Austin Healy Sprite for sale. Contact 253-2540 or 256-8459 and ask for Ned Dibbie. tfn-24

Alto Sax, Harmony Folk Guitar, Clarinet, Electric Guitar, good instruments - low price-584-8537. tfn-28

20 gal. long aquarium fully equipped. Includes stand, fish, pump, decorations, etc., excellent condition $45. Call Dave 584-8990 tfn-24

1968 Bultaco Dirt Racing Bike, 360cc, new engine, new clutches, $375 or best offer. Call 584-4066 anytime. tfn-24

Waterbeds-now all sizes $19.95! Factory warranty. Also, frames, liners and pads in stock. Call Mark at 546-5450. tfn-10-7

1967 BSA 441cc. Shooting Star, excellent condition. Must sell $475.00 Call 586-0977. tfn10-1

Dune buggy, 1600 ml., needs volks motor, top, special seats, much more $475. Call Cep 665-3129. tfn-29

Man's brown Suede Jacket, size 46, $25.00. Call after 5, 549-6728. tfn-24

Prices you can afford-footwear you can't afford to miss-at the Shoe-Bin, in the Alley, (behind Aubuchons) tfn-23

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted 4 room apt. $80/month, all util. inc. in Westfield. Call Ed 253-9751 bet. 5 and 7 p.m., no ans. leave word. tfn-24

Single girl or couple, own transp., share apt. 'till Nov. -pos. longer; call 584-2273 M-F 6-8, anytime, weekends. tfn-28

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Call Mary 253-7673. If not there leave message. tfn-29

Male roomate—I have two bedroom apt.-kitchen-bath-garage-need roomate to pay $30 a mo. Call Mark 253-5313 before 10 p.m. tfn-22

HELP WANTED

Ecology-minded students earn extra money part-time without interrupting your present schedule. Call collect 1-533-3634. tfn-24

Want to help people? Join GSS in serving others, Thurs., Colonial Lounge, 7:30-8:30; Sun., Mem. Hall 10:30-1:00. tfn-24

WANTED

Men to erect chainlink fence. Experienced only. Part time. Fitzgerald Fences, 340 Bridge Rd., Florence, Mass. tf10-4

MANDARIN CHINESE native speaker to instruct Chinese language student, $1/hr. For details call Ron 586-0259 nites, lv. message. tfn-24

RIDE WANTED

Desperatly need ride to NYC or NJ Fri., 24 anytime after 1:30. Call Debbi 256-6718 p.m. tfn-24

Secretary needs ride from Amherst to Granby weekday evens. Also from Granby to Amherst Fri. morns. Call Dianne 545-0600/467-0107. tfn-27

Female to live in country home. References required. Granby 467-7297 after 5:00 p.m. tfn-24

SERVICES

Need a band, Dial-a-band will supply a band that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9215. tfn-29

PERSONAL

Wanted confirmed Gordon Lightfoot Fanatics. Contact Sue, 315 Butterfield. No definite purpose except reassurance. tfn-24

Happy Birthday Vikki and Chris from Jeff and Steve. 9-23

LECTURE NOTES

Lecture notes are now available for Psych 101 and Soc 101, all sections, at Room 318 in the Student Union Lobby. tfn-24

LOST - REWARD

Lost one dark blue velvet cushion belonging to couch. Reward offered. Notify Allen in Room 314, South College. tfn-23

LOST

Large gray male cat, white paws and front. Walks with slight limp. Last seen near Brooks and Pertl. Reward 549-3700. tfn-24

APT. AVAILABLE

One bedroom apt. available. Walk distance from campus. $95. month. Call 253-9863 after 6 p.m. Furnished. tfn-24

TRAIL RIDES

Horseback riding every Sat. & Sun. at Spellman Farms, Belchertown. Reasonable rates. Call Spellman Frms. on 3 River Rd. 283-6283. tfn-28

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt., all utilities, no lease. Pets & children welcome. Wall to wall carpet, $175 month. Call Kamins Village Apts., Belchertown. tfn-30

PARTY

Friday 8:30, one dollar for guys, girls are free. James Basement. Come if you dare. Beer and wine served. tfn-24

HOUSE WANTED

Doctoral candidate and teaching wife seek house or nice apartment for this or next semester. Call 582-4871. tfn-27

COURSE

Last chance this week to learn Silver Jewelry Making. Evening Course in town. $60 including silver and materials. Call 253-2877. tfn-27

Encyclopedia Drawing Upcoming

One student or faculty member will win a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica after a free drawing on Friday October 1st, said Judy Coleman, spokeswoman for Britannica. The drawing is being co-sponsored with the University Store, she said.

Registration for the drawing is currently being held at two booths inside the store at the Campus Center, she said, and is open only to students and faculty members.

Miss Coleman explained that she is trying to make arrangements for a student senator to pick the winning name.

Dr. Stein Wins Chemistry Award

Dr. Richard S. Stein, Director of the Polymer Research Institute at UMass and Former Fullbright Fellow for Advanced Polymer Studies in Japan, has been awarded the 1972 American Chemical Society Award.

Dr. Richard S. Stein, Commonwealth Professor of Chemistry and director of the Polymer Research Institute at UMass has won the 1972 American Cnemical Society Award in the chemistry of plastics and coatings, according to an announcement today at the Society's 162nd national meeting in Washington, D.C.

The $1000 award, sponsored by the Borden Foundation, Inc., recognizes Dr. Stein's outstanding contributions to the development of optical techniques for studying high polymers, including plastics, fibers, and rubbers. Born in Far Rockaway, N.Y., in 1925, Dr. Stein received his B.S. degree magna cum laude from the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, his M.A. and his Ph.D. from Princeton University.

Joining UMass in 1950 as an assistant professor, he was named to his present post, the University's highest professional rank, in 1961.

Dr. Stein organized the University's Polymer Research Institute in 1961. He has served on the editorial advisory boards of the Journal of Materials, was a Fulbright Fellow for advanced polymer studies in Japan in 1968, and was 1969 winner of the International Award in Plastic Science and Engineering given by the Society of Plastics Engineers.

He is the author or co-author of over 150 scientific articles. A member of the American Chemical Society since 1946, he is also a member of the American Physical Society. The award will be presented to Dr. Stein at the 163rd ACS national meeting in Boston next April.

Men's Hikers Are "In"
From $20
at the
THE SHOE-BIN
In The Alley
(behind Aubuchon's)
Footwear for Men & Women
(Open Friday Nites)

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Many Capricorn persons are convinced they can perceive events before they occur. A number of these natives are actively concerned with astrology and extrasensory perception. Among these are such personages as Marlene Dietrich, Steve Allen and Henry Miller.

...

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A third person could muddle financial arrangements. Be sure to keep control of money transactions. Mate or partner could be misinformed. Know this and take necessary precautions. Protect assets.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): One who urges direct action is apt to be away from firing line. Know this- evaluate position. Time is on your side. Let others make their mistakes. Cement partnership, marital relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Not wise to shirk responsibility. Friend at a distance may not have feet on ground. Best to heed won counsel. Means don't fall for get rich quick schemes. Capricorn is telling truth.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emotional reactions are intensified. You respond all the way or nothing. Creative efforts attract favorable notice. Greater recognition is due. One you care for apologizes for recent slight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Contract, document requires added signature, additional study. Be sure your own interpretation is clear and understood. Aries may be involved. Hold your ground. Be intelligent about money.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Intuitive intellect works overtime. Sense of perception is heightened. Accent also is on short journeys, ideas, valuable notes. Time your moves. Avoid wild goose chase. Check reservations, appointments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Special agreement affects financial status. You can have fun without being extravagant. Don't tease, play games with emotions. Say what you mean, mean what you say. Sagittarius is involved.

SCORPIO (Ocot. 23-Nov. 21): You can clear away debris. Streamline methods. Get rid of outmoded concepts. Refuse to be bogged down with details. Flurry of activity indicated at home base. Older person displays surprising signs of life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Steer clear of disputes with children. Logic may not prevail. Bide your time. Make intelligent change, concession. Not easy to keep secrets. Best now to be frank, forthright. Then you gain.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Entertain at home. Select quality-in products and persons. One you care for shows feeling is not one-sided. Stress loyalty, devotion. Financial expenditure will pay dividends. Be positive, confident.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): See clearly. Means don't force puzzle pieces. If you rush, push, you will have to retrace steps. Aura of confusion is present. Take time to be selective. Then you emerge victorious. You will understand.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be willing to change your mind. By giving a little, you stand to gain much. Realize this; respond accordingly. Capricorn person figures prominently. Older individual displays confidence in your ability.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, generally active, attractive to opposite sex. You appreciate the arts; you can write and criticize in constructive manner. You generally harmonize with those born under Gemini and Aquarius. Scorpio persons can aid you in financial way.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

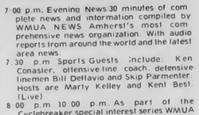
That odor your shower can't stop... we'll stop
Free
...with a Norforms Mini-Pack free for you! Showering's great—but it can't stop the embarrassing feminine odor that starts internally, where soap-and-water can't reach. That's why we want to send you a free mini-pack of doctor-tested Norforms, the internal deodorant!™
Just insert one tiny Norforms Suppository. It kills bacteria inside the vaginal tract...stops odor fast for hours. Yet Norforms are so easy and safe to insert. No shower, no spray, not even douching, protects you the way Norforms do.
Norforms
FREE NORFORMS MINI-PACK plus booklet! Write: Norwich Pharmacal Co., Dept. CN-A, Norwich, N.Y. 13815. Enclose 25¢ to cover mailing and handling.
Name
Street
City
State Zip
Don't forget your zip code
Norwich Products Division
The Norwich Pharmacal Co

WMUA

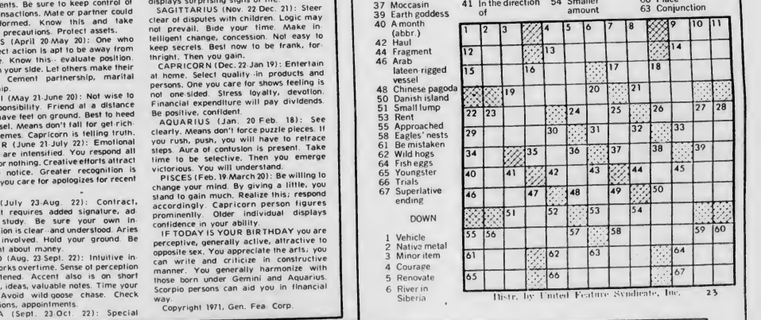
Tonight on WMUA
free form/informative radio:

7:00 p.m. Evening News 30 minutes of complete news and information compiled by WMUA NEWS Amherst's most comprehensive news organization. With audio reports from around the world and the latest area news.
7:30 p.m. Sports Guests include: Ken Conasier, defensive line coach, defensive linemen Bill DeFlavio and Skip Parmenter. Hosts are Marty Kelley and Kent Best. (Live)
8:00 p.m. 10:00 p.m. As part of the Cyclebreaker special interest series WMUA will replay Dr. Nicholas Fiumara's Wednesday night speech at the Campus Center. Dr. Fiumara is Director of Communicable Diseases, Mass. Dept. of Public Health and his talk focused on "VD and the College Student"
10:00 p.m. 11:00 p.m. MARK'S BLUES a full hour of blues with many blues classics and rare recordings of gifted blues artists. This is the second edition of MARK'S BLUES, which will be a regular program on WMUA this year
11:00 p.m. Late Night News Report 30 minutes of the latest news from UPI, AP, UPI Audio, and WMUA NEWS. Includes ten minutes of sports plus the latest weather and a live minute recap of the major stories at 11:25 p.m.
11:30 p.m. 3:00 a.m. Rocket Rick Morton zooms onto your radio with some dynamite music.

91.1 F m on your dial



Hotline—5-2550



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Food fish
4 Twelve dozen
9 Hit lightly
12 Exist
13 Revolutionary
14 Employ
15 Keep
17 South African fox (pl.)
19 Performed
21 African antelope
22 Part of fireplace
24 Emerged victorious
26 Fish sauce
29 Hue
31 Label
33 Sailor (colloq.)
34 Sun god
35 Fabulous bird
37 Moccasin
39 Earth goddess
40 A month (abbr.)
42 Haul
44 Fragment
46 Arab lateen rigged vessel
48 Chinese pagoda
50 Danish island
51 Small lump
53 Rent
55 Approached
58 Eagles' nests
61 Be mistaken
62 Wild hogs
64 Fish eggs
65 Youngster
66 Trials
67 Superlative ending

DOWN
1 Vehicle
2 Native metal
3 Minor item
4 Courage
5 Renovate
6 River in Siberia
7 Dry, as wine
8 Waste metal
9 Violent outburst
10 Man's name
11 Footlike part
16 Performer
18 Collection of facts
20 Speck
22 Food fish
23 Trespass on for game
25 Short sleep
27 Ardent
28 Set of professed opinions
30 Decay
32 Aeriform fluid
36 Temporary bed
38 Seat
41 In the direction of 43 Existed
45 Retreat
47 Armed conflict
49 Separate
52 Amount owed
54 Smaller amount
55 Openwork fabric
56 Period of time
57 Female deer
59 Dawn goddess
60 Place
63 Conjunction

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 23

'Link-Men' Coordinate Soccer Team Attack

By STEVE FERBER

(Second of a three part series)

If one word could describe the function of a halfback in soccer it would be that of "link-man." Thus when the seven halfbacks from this year's UMass soccer squad travel to Orono, Maine for their first game of the season, linking the defense and the offense will be their primary task.

Halfbacks are the middle men, and it is their job to get the ball from the defensive end of the field to the offensive. A halfback generally is all over the field, often seen running back and forth, back and forth; thus in the course of a game, even the very finest conditioned halfback will most likely need a rest.

AUGIE CALHENO

In the defensive end the halfback aids the fullbacks and the goalie in clearing the ball and starting it back up field. At the other end the halfback's presence becomes a necessity as a three man front line needs support in order to mount an attack. Often on offense the halfback is involved in give and go maneuver as weaving becomes a fundamental part of their repertoire.

Having lost a number of halfbacks from last year's squad, the Redmen feel that the success or failure of these link-men will be the key in moving toward another Conference title, and high ranking in New England.

As with the group of forwards, only one senior is to be found among our seven halfbacks. This lack of experience may prove costly in the early going, but many of the juniors were able to gain experience in last year's championship season.

Let's take a look at the seven men who will fill three spots in the middle of that Redmen lineup this coming Saturday:

Co-Captain Augie Calheno-Calheno is UMass' center halfback, an All-Yankee Conference selection last year, and a workhorse with oodles and oodles of talent. Calheno was injured towards the tail end of last season and was forced to the sidelines for last year's final games; but healthy as ever Calheno is looking to make his senior year a special one. Described by Coach Jack Berryman as "hard-nosed," "a player who excels on defense and who always seems to come up with the ball," Calheno is one of the few halfbacks around who goes the full 88 minutes in a game. The senior also handles UMass corner kicks and the Redmen can look for a great season from this co-captain.

Edward Doherty-only a junior, yet he's returning, with some experience gained under Coach Peter Broaca from last year. Doherty looked his sharpest last Saturday, at the Westfield round robin, impressing Berryman with his hustle and a number of good shots on goal. Doherty also kicks well with both feet, a tremendous asset to any soccer player.

Paul Gibauic-A late comer was Gibauic, as he appeared on the soccer practice fields after the first Redmen scrimmage against Amherst. But sophomore Gibauic has looked impressive and filled in well in the short time he has been around.

Vinny Grandonico-another junior halfback, who scored his first goal of the practice season last Saturday against AIC. Last Saturday, like many of the halfbacks, Grandonico played his finest game, as his aggressiveness was, and looks to continue to be his finest asset.

Mike Nugent-Up from last year's freshmen squad is Nugent, who likewise impressed Berryman on Saturday. Playing left halfback this year, Nugent has both a strong right and left foot and among his skills are dribbling. Drawing out fullbacks when on offense is one of the sophomore's favorite maneuvers, and in the way of scoring Nugent knocked in his first of the practice season against Amherst last Wednesday on a head ball.

Matt Rowe-Rowe is a junior with ability in both his right and left leg. Rowe was on the injured list earlier this semester, but appears healthy and eager to contribute to this year's club.

Bruce Sibson-Another youngster is Sibson the third sophomore of the 7-man halfback unit. Sibson is unique in that he can play most every position as evidenced by his play at forward and fullback for last year's freshman team. Sibson is tall, with a good foot and good skills and will be a valuable fill-in man.

Quite evidently a young squad of halfbacks will be carrying the load in the middle of the lineup. Hopefully, experience will come quickly.

Harriers Ahead of Schedule As Season Opener Nears

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

Two weeks ago Coach Ken O'Brien predicted that this would have to be a rebuilding year for the UMass cross-country team. He based his assumption on the fact that his first four runners from last year are no longer on the team. Also everyone from this year's team returns next year.

Daily Collegian SPORTS

Often when a coach talks of a rebuilding year, the average sports fan automatically conceives of a losing season. Coach O'Brien believed right from the start that this year's team has great potential, but felt it would take time to develop this potential.

What has happened in the first two weeks of practice is that the team has come together and progressed much faster than Coach O'Brien at first thought was possible. Significantly, the Coach now feels that with the present rate of progress the team does not have to wait until next year or late season to reach heights which are now possible in the immediate future.

Coach O'Brien stresses that this year's team will have a new look in the direction of team depth and new faces. "Every spot on the varsity roster is open and every guy is looking for one of these openings," stated O'Brien. He further reinterated by saying that there are four men now "shooting or running" for the number one spot. O'Brien also feels that there are as many as five frosh vying for the top seven varsity spots.

Two of the new faces will belong to Paul Segersten and Chris Chambers. Both men are resuming their running careers after stints in the service. Segersten and Chambers from pre-season performances are sure to play an important role in the team's success.

Co-captain Tom Swain and Junior Rich Barry who were last year's fifth and sixth men, respectively are also returning to action after brief interruptions in their running careers, due to personal reasons. Swain and Barry both reported to practice out of shape, but O'Brien predicts that both men will be ready to run in the first meet. He also feels that both men will be in peak condition by mid-season.

Doug O'Connell and Roger Nasatka, the outstanding runners from last year's freshman team, seem well prepared to make the jump from freshman to varsity competition. O'Connell had a sensational track season last spring and should be a definite factor in every race this fall. Nasatka has also proven in pre-season that he is ready to accept a fulltime berth on the varsity roster.

Mike McCusker, Tom Derderian, Arnie Morse, and Rich Tashjian have all been impressive in practice.

In the past two weeks several of the more renown alumni runners have returned to UMass, and have participated in one or two practices. The effect that these men have had on the younger runners have been overwhelming. They have sparked the younger runners into being aware of the fact that they are part of a great and long tradition at the University.

RICK BARRY

QB's Highlight Intramural Action

By MARK VOGLER

Quarterback Bill Northsworthy had himself a field day and wide receiver Larry Harmon played along with him. That's how it went as this passing combo stole the limelight as the Grad-Faculty League kicked off its grid season Tuesday evening.

Northsworthy was right on target hitting 16 to 23 passes, including five of the touchdown variety as the Zeroes bombed the Orbitals 42-0. He also ran one in himself. Harmon fed off the fat of his signal caller's skill with four scoring receptions. Jim Murphy also tallied 10 points for the winner's side.

Defending champion Civil Engineering proved no match for the Conglos, rolling to an easy 31-0 triumph. Ed Hannon's passing performance wasn't quite as good as Northsworthy--but you can't knock 10 for 13. He fired for three touchdowns. Tom Jackiwicz scored twice and also booted three one point conversions.

With just a 2-0 advantage at intermission, Government cracked the contest wise open in the second portion to mount a 21-0 decision over the Burners. Education had the bye and will start their season tonight.

The Frat Division got its campaign underway with a bang as its slate featured a couple of dandys. Sigma Alpha Epsilon eked out a 16-13 victory over Spartan League opponent Phi Sigma Kappa on the weight of John Parkhurst's second score of the night. Dick Gargagliano put SAE out in front early during the see-saw affair with a first quarter field goal.

Elsewhere, Beta Kappa Phi piled up 22 points in the second half to bust open a scoreless struggle with Alpha Phi Omega.

In the Trojan loop Tau Epsilon Phi stood off a scoring threat in the final minutes to nail down a 22-15 triumph against Kappa Sigma. Bob Warner's marker stood up as the deciding factor in this one. TEP clung on with a 15-13 edge at half-time.

Jim Skouren unloaded four td passes, two to Ron Harris as Sigma Phi Epsilon blanked Delta Chi 28-0.

"A Win Is A Win Is A Win"

By FRED ROSENTHAL

"The final score is what counts," commented Head Football Coach Dick MacPherson at yesterday's Varsity M Club luncheon at the Newman Center.

Although UMass beat Maine by a mere 13 points (13-0), Maine being a team they were expecting to run up a score on, Coach MacPherson seemed satisfied with the victory. However he seemed a little disturbed over his team's attitude after the game.

"I was a little upset to go into the locker room after the game and find the players to be unhappy with the score." He went on to explain that concern with the score or performance is an individual thing.

"We're a family, a group," MacPherson said he wanted his players to come to the realization that "a win is a win is a win is a win."

"We want to win every game we play; we expect to win every game we play. But we also want to play as many players as possible."

MacPherson announced at the luncheon that Tim Berra has been named sophomore of the week in the Yankee Conference and that Bill DeFlavio has been chosen as ECAS defensive lineman of the week.

DeFlavio then spoke briefly on his feelings about the game this Saturday against Dartmouth. "Nothing can be said after losing to them last year after we should have won. The game will be a good one."

MacPherson also noted that Mark Palau will be the place kicker for the Redmen this week.

Sports Notices

ENTRIES DUE-Intramural Entries are due today for Paddleball and Handball Singles.

*****

NAIADS-The Univ. Aquatic Art Club will conduct tryouts for new members on Thurs., Sept. 30, 6-7 p.m. at WOPE Pool. Instructional practices will be offered Mon. & Tues., Sept. 27 & 28, 6-7 p.m. at which time Club members will demonstrate and teach skills to be included in the tryouts. Membership is open to men and women. For further information contact Kathy McNerney, Pres. NAIADS, c/o WOPE, Campus.

*****

ATHLETIC CHAIRMEN-Heads of Residence, Sorority and Fraternity Presidents, Independent units and Grad-FacStaff units-have your Athletic Chairman report to the Intramural Office and record their names, addresses and phone numbers.

WRESTLING-All wrestlers (freshman and varsity) are reminded to report to the infirmary at 5:30 tonight for their physical.

*****

FOOTBALL PARKING-The first home game will be on Saturday and a large crowd is expected for the game. These vehicles will park in "V" lot.

Please move your vehicle from "V" lot to "F" lot or any other convenient lot prior to Saturday morning. Thank you for your cooperation...The Office of the Parking Coordinator.

*****

WARPATH-Kent Best and Marty Kelly will host Warpath tonight at 7:30 on WMUA. UMass line coach Ken Conatser and Redman stars Bill DeFlavio and Skip Parmenter will be on hand to preview the Dartmouth game.

Tonight's Intramurals

FOOTBALL

FIELD	TIME	TEAMS		TIME
3	6:00	Civ. Eng. vs. Orbitals	6	9:00	Heads vs. Dildoughs
4		Zeroes vs. Government	1		Spunks vs. Bunch
5		Burners vs. Educ.	2		Bulldozers vs. Terrors
3	7:00	PSK vs. APO	3		Heads vs. Monuments
4		BKP vs. PSD	4		Senators vs. Mags
5		TEP vs. DC	5		Buffaloes vs. Chestnuts
6		SPE vs. PLP	6		Barracudas vs. Broncos
1	8:00	TC vs. LCA	1	10:00	VVV vs. Tubes
2		SAM vs. ZN	2		Machines vs. Gypsies
3		Fellas vs. Mouse	3		Brother vs. Kumquat
4		Cull vs. Acme	4		Cougars vs. Comanchees
5		Bulldogs vs. Orcs	5		Lions vs. Jaguars
			6		Leopards vs. Mauraulders

Saturday: UMass vs. Dartmouth

Tomorrow: Metawampe

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: I take no responsibility.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 13 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1971

The campus pond as seen from the top of the new library. The first and last time you'll ever see it blue. (Steve Schmidt photo for the MDC)

Nixon-No Expiration Date On Freeze

DETROIT (AP)-President Nixon pledged Thursday night that his Phase 2 system of price and wage controls will have enforcement teeth and no expiration date-and might be broadened to cover interest rates.

The President also declared that the 10 per cent import surcharge will not be lifted-"even to placate some of our friends who are concerned about it"-until other nations join in an overhaul of the system of currency exchange rates.

Assuring the Economic Club of Detroit that the American producer "simply wants an equal shot, an equal chance," he added in a question-and-answer exchange broadcast on nationwide radio:

"The surcharge will not be removed until we get action on that score."

When the 90-day freeze on prices, wages and rents expires on Nov. 13, he said, it will be replaced with a system which concentrates on major industries whose price and wage behavior influences the whole economy. The system, he promised, will provide for adjustment of inequities-including the postponement of teachers' and others' pay increases-which are now frozen until Nov. 13.

Nixon told his questioners in the automotive capital also that:

—The reported disturbances in mainland China will not change his plans to visit that country. His travel plans "will be announced at an appropriate time," he said.

—The qualifications he wants in a nominee for the Supreme Court might include service on the House or Senate Judiciary Committee-a reference that could apply to Rep. Richard H. Poff, R-Va., a senior member of the House committee.

—He still wants Congress to enact his welfare reform and revenue-sharing proposals this year. The present welfare system "is a national disgrace," he said.

—The economy is on its way up, 1972 "will be a very good year, and anybody who bets on the long-term future of the economy is going to win his bet."

—He will not let environmentalists "destroy the industrial system that made this country great." That was in reply to a question on the automobile's contribution to air pollution.

Nixon disclosed that the possibility of controlling interest rates, "particularly with regard to loans to consumers," is being considered but no decision has been made.

"What happens to interest rates, whether they continue to stay where they are or to go down, will have a great deal to do with whether we have the Federal Reserve move in," he said.

Nixon said the country will return to a free economy as soon as possible, but not until the problem of inflation has been effectively dealt with.

"Until then, we feel it is necessary to have controls backed up by teeth, made effective by the government," he said.

In response to a question on profits, Nixon noted that if there is control over costs and prices there is some control on profits. They way to increase profits, he added, is to expand business and create more jobs.

The questioner did not specifically ask the President to comment on the omission of profits from the control structure, but Nixon gave his reason anyway. It is when profits are plowed back into industry that the economy expands, he said.

Flanked by an array of political and other advisors, Nixon made his first appearance as President in the Detroit area, in a state he lost to Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968 by more than 220,000 votes.

The Economic Club has a membership roster of 2,500 including big names from industry, labor, business and banking. Each member at the dinner was allowed to bring one guest.

Less than an hour before the President arrived at Cobo Hall, a crowd of several thousand protesting pickets gathered outside.

Many of the demonstrators carried signs reading, "Wall Street Loves the Freeze" while others held signs urging "Freeze War, Not Prices."

A huge red banner with black letters urged "Avenge the Attica Prisoners," a reference to the Attica, N.Y. prison riot.

Dozens of uniformed police kept the demonstrators away from the hall's main entrance.

Nixon said when this nation's economy produces at full capacity, "we should in no circumstances spend more than the tax system produces."

But when it is not producing at full capacity, as it has not for the past 25 years, he said, government spending "to pick up the slack in the economy can be justified."

On The Inside:

● More On Voting See page three

● Harlan Retires See page four

Hamden Rap Held

By ELAINE STOGEL

A rap session was held in Hamden Dining Commons Tuesday night for students with suggestions concerning the "Little Hatch" and other facets of campus eating. It was attended by about thirty people and led by Marie Cappadona, the manager of Marketing Services, a new division created to relate to students and find out from them what they want in the way of food services.

The "Little Hatch", located downstairs in Hamden Dining Commons, was liked by students because of its personal touches and made-to-order food. It did not open this year, however, due to slow service and cramped space. It will remain closed at present to give Bites and Pieces, also located in Hamden, a chance to become frequented by students.

Suggestions made to give Bites and Pieces a more personal atmosphere are being considered. These include decorating the area, revamping the menu, installing pinball machines, and serving breakfast until one o'clock on weekends. Many of these ideas will soon be put into effect, Miss Cappadona said.

Other suggestions made were the stocking of such items as fresh fruit, beer, and canned juice in Munchy's. These ideas are also being looked into.

No Busses For Attica

The possibility of U. Mass. students reaching the shores of Attica panned out today because buses were unavailable.

Paul Mishler, an organizer of the proposed trip, said Student Senate buses were already being used, and Western Bus Lines refused to go out of state. Although Peter Pan Bus Lines had not been reached, Mishler felt they wouldn't have agreed.

Twenty students are still bound for Attica in two VW buses, but organizers sights are set toward Oct. 2, when a large rally is scheduled outside Danbury State Prison in Connecticut to protest the Attica atrocities and the decaying penal system.

Mishler hopes for a large turnout, and feels certain that buses can be obtained for students wishing to go.

UM Designing Pollution Free Car

By FRANCINE NICHOLSON

What can you do to help save the environment? You can help design and construct a pollution-free automobile right here on the UMass. campus.

Under the advisory direction of Professor Paul Tartaglia of the Mechanical Engineering Department, a 28-member team of engineering students is building a vehicle to enter in the Urban Vehicle Design Competition in August, 1972. Professor Tartaglia is inviting all interested persons, male and female, especially those in the fields of sociology, economics, business, law, and design to assist in the production of the car.

At present, the engineering students on the team are receiving academic credit for their work on the car. Others outside the Engineering Department should consult their respective departments concerning similar credit possibilities. Professor Tartaglia emphasizes that the practical experience gained in participating in such a project would be valuable in future job hunting.

Interested persons who have anything to contribute to the project should contact Paul Tartaglia, 316 Engineering Lab by phone (545-0989) or by mail (c/o Mechanical Engineering Department). The project is completely student-oriented and initiated.

The Urban Vehicle Design Competition is being sponsored by the Student Competition on Relevant Engineering (SCORE), a group of faculty members from various colleges, to encourage practical experience in education, to stimulate the interest of the general public in technological pollution solutions, and to help solve the environmental problem of urban transportation. A committee of five students from MIT, Tufts, University of Connecticut, and Worcester Polytechnical Institute is directing the competition.

The competition grew out of the tremendous interest in the "Clear Air Car Race" held several years ago. In the race, which ran from Cambridge to California, cars were tested for amounts and types of pollution emitted.

Abortion Panel At Women Voter's Meeting

A panel of speakers with different perspectives on the issue of birth control and abortion legislation will be the main feature of the opening fall meeting of the League of Women Voters of Amherst. The meeting will take place Monday, September 27 at 7:30 in the cafeteria of the Amherst Regional Junior High School.

All women in the Amherst area are invited to come and take part in the coffee hour, become acquainted with the LWV and its programs, and hear the speakers and participate in the discussion.

The panel members will be: Pamela Lowry, of the Pregnancy Counseling Service in Boston; State Representative Edward A. McColgan of Northampton; Sister Miriam Negimy, program director of the Marian Center in Holyoke, and Dr. Castellano Turner, of the U. Mass. Department of Psychology.

An interesting evening is anticipated with all sides of the issue to be aired. Guests are urged to take part in the discussion period. For more information about this meeting or about the Amherst LWV, call Connie Wilkins, 256-6481.

Construction worker add the last of the poured concrete to the new library. Topping of ceremony took place the same day. That's what the tree is about.

WE BROUGHT OUT
NEW Corduroys
and
MORE Jeans
For The
FINAL DAYS BASEMENT SALE!
WEARHOUSE
Wear - Else?

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 6, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

CATALYST
WORCESTER COMMONS
OPEN EVERY DAY
8 AM TO MIDNIGHT
DROP IN AND HEAR OUR NEW STEREO TAPE SYSTEM
SANDWICHES
DELI PLATTERS
HAMBURGS

FACES OF EARTH
151 NORTH PLEASANT STREET, AMHERST
Next To The Post Office
OPEN 10 A.M. TO 10 P.M. MONDAY THRU SATURDAY

NEW INDIAN DRESSES
Short and Floor Length
Heavily Embroidered
All Colors
Some with Hoods

COATS
Air Force Parkas
Field Jackets
Peacoats
Over Coats

PATCHES
Bed Spreads
Rugs
Lamps
School Bags
Knapsacks
Pipes

TOPS
Ribs
Jersey
Stars and Stripes
Turtle Necks
Hand Dyed Colors
Wallace Beerys.

STUFF
Flight Suits
Belts
Used Jeans
Blankets

FREE PAPERS AND SCREENS

Student Registration Vital: Young Dems

By JAN LIVA

"Registering to vote is the most effective political act students can do right now if enough students do it," said Mike Brasman, member of the Amherst Voter Registration Coalition (AVRC) and Young Democrats in an MDC interview yesterday.

"If large numbers of students do register, they are in effect saying to the country that they are interested and do want a say in government" according to Brasman. "Registering will also influence governmental representatives who cannot ignore or alienate an entire bloc of student voters. Lastly, there are people, such as Federal Magistrate Willie J. Davis, trying to postpone and frustrate students from registering in Cambridge."

Brasman feels that conservatives are depending on student apathy and indifference. He pointed out that the individual vote does count by giving this example: In the 1960 elections, if Nixon had gotten one additional vote in each precinct in the US, then by popular votes Nixon would have defeated John Kennedy for the presidency. Since there are a potential 11-1/2 million new youth voters (18-20) for the 1972 election, it is imperative that these people register.

Register to vote. But where? Brasman suggests to the student, "Register where you think you'll be the most effective." The AVRC has no preference as to where a student registers.

However, director of the Massachusetts Democratic Voter Registration, Russ Newsome, hopes that if students register and vote locally in Amherst they will vote not out of ignorance but on issues they know and care about. Some local issues that are of student interest, named by Newsome, include:

—rent control. There are students who feel that the rents for the local apartments are excessively high.

—day care centers. Married students or working mothers may like to see expansive day care centers.

—liason between 'townies' and UMies. Friction between Amherst High School students and UMass students exists. A liason group could help alleviate tensions as they appear.

—transportation problems. During the presidential elections in 1972, students may prefer staying on campus to vote rather than trudging home to cast their ballot.

To register in Amherst, a student must go to the office of the Town Clerk in the Amherst Town Hall, (the stone building with the clock tower next to the Lord Jeff in the center of town). Town Hall is open Monday through Friday 8-4:30. The student must sign an affadavit saying that he is at least 18 years of age and has been a resident of Amherst for at least six months.

If a student expresses a desire to register in Amherst but wishes to know more about the community before reaching a final decision, an array of pamphlets is available at the Town Hall.

For students who have registered at home but cannot be home in time for the elections there exists an absentee ballot. To receive this ballot the student must write to his town hall asking for the application for an absent voter ballot.

The student must be registered at home before the application will be mailed. Once the application is filled out, the student must get the signature of a notary public. At UMass, Richard M. Howland serves as a notary public. This is then mailed back to the town hall, which will then mail an election ballot to the student on election day.

Brasman, also a member of the Young Democrats, points out that at present there is no way to determine how many UMass students have registered and where they have registered. He said that over the summer the Young Democrats, which belong to the AVRC, registered over 1,000,000 youth voters nationwide.

September 30, the date of the Student Senate elections, the AVRC will attach to the ballots a separate questionaire asking the student if and where the student registered to vote. These statistics will give the AVRC an indication of how intense a voter registration drive is needed at UMass.

Brasman reminds students that the presidential primaries in Massachusetts will be held April 15 so the time to register is now. Any students who may have questions concerning registration procedure, the AVRC, or the Young Democrats are invited to call Mike Brasman at 546-5036 at any time.

Enviroment Agency Requests 30 Law Suits

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Environmental Protection Agency, in its first action to force compliance with the anti-pollution permit system, requested lawsuits Thursday against 30 industries and threatened suits against five others.

The 30-cited to the Justice Department were among those that failed to apply for permits, as required by law, to discharge wastes into U.S. navigable waters, despite a grace period of more than two months since the legal deadline last July 1.

Although each company could be charged with a separate violation for each day since the deadline-and be fined up to $2,500 a day-EPA General Counsel John Quarles told newsmen only one day would be charged against them.

The main purpose, Quarles said, was to put those companies and others on notice that EPA is tired of waiting and is ready to start suing.

Bombers Hit N. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP)-Two U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers attacked an antiaircraft gun site inside North Vietnam on Thursday in the third straight day of raids in the north. Communist China on Friday denounced a multi strike carried out Tuesday.

Thursday's raid followed a similar two-plane attack on a North Vietnamese gun position Wednesday and the big raid Tuesday in which American bombers flew 200 combat strikes in North Vietnam's southern panhandle. The U.S. command said the American planes were not hit in Thursday's raid.

Correction

The ad for Listening Post on page eight of Thursday's Collegian was incorrect. It should have read three records for $5.47, not eight.

SPRING SEMESTER--ISRAEL
For Humanities Students
Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study centered in Jerusalem/February-June, 1972
Limited to 30 students
Juniors, Seniors, and Grad students eligible.
Four courses/History, Literature, Archaeology, Bible
Earn 16 credits
Knowledge of Hebrew or Arabic preferred
Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Application deadline November 1st.
THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Saturday Night
BLACK MAGIC
featuring
Natalie Cole
DANCING
9:30 - 12:30
50¢ COVER
at
The English Pub

AFTER RECORD BREAKING ENGAGEMENTS on Cape Cod
in Boston
LIENTO
GROGGERY SHIPS FARE
see
COLORADO ODYSSEY
AT
THE CHEQUERS
9:30 - 12:30
FRIDAY
50c Cover

In The Nation And The World

Harlan Retires; 2nd Court Seat Open

WASHINGTON (AP)-John Marshall Harlan, the scholarly conservative who was generally rated as one of of the Supreme Court's most able jurists, retired Thursday because of ill health. He is suffering from cancer.

The retirement, effective immediately, was the second from the nation's highest court in less than a week and leaves President Nixon in the rare situation of having two crucial appointments to make at the same time.

Associate Justice Hugo L. Black retired last Friday, also for reasons of health. Black was reported in very serious condition at Bethesda Naval Medical Center.

The 72-year-old Harlan was taken to the Bethesda Hospital Aug. 16 for treatment of what then was termed a "backache." He was later transferred downtown to the George Washington University Hospital.

After the White House announced Harlan's retirement, it was announced at the court that he is undergoing treatment for bone cancer.

The Supreme Court scheduled to open its fall term on Oct. 4 with only seven justices on the bench and several major issues awaiting decision. Perhaps paramount among these is the question of whether capital punishment is constitutional.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon recognized the situation and was expected "to move as swiftly as possible to find two highly qualified individuals to fill the vacancies."

When Black's retirement was announced Ziegler said Nixon was considering a list of seven potential successors. Ziegler said Thursday he felt the list could be expanded. "I don't want to lock it at seven," he said.

The double vacancy was the first since 1941 when Justice James C. McReynolds retired and Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes quit five months later. President Franklin D. Roosevelt filled both shortly after Hughes stepped down.

Earlier Nixon appointed Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Associate Justice Harry A. Blackmun.

The Harlan retirement will not have as much ideological impact on the court's makeup as will Black's. Harlan was a solid member of the court's conservative side and Nixon is expected to replace him with an appointee of similar bent. Black, on the other hand, was considered a member of the liberal bloc.

Nixon has commented frequently that he wants nominees who are "strict constructionists" of the Constitution.

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon has been calling recently for a woman justice. She commented earlier this week that Nixon had named several women to district courts for grooming in case they don't get one this time," referring to the Justice Black vacancy.

Chief Jusitce Burger said Harlan's decision to retire was "a source of deep regret to all his colleagues and a loss to the Court and to the country.

Ziegler relayed similar praise from Nixon.

"He is one of the great legal scholars in the history of the court and will be recorded by history as one of the towering figures of the court," the President said.

Harlan has served on the Supreme Court since March 28, 1955. He was named to the bench in the midst of the controversy over school desegregation.

His career on the high court stood as somewhat of an ironic contradiction to the battle waged in the Senate over his confirmation.

Although he consistently voted with the conservative bloc, after his appointment it was conservative opposition which held up his nomination in the Senate for more than four months.

The nomination was made by President Dwight D. Eisenhower on Nov. 9, 1954, to fill the vacancy left by the death of Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson.

Six months earlier the court had rendered its famous decision declaring racial segregation in public schools unconstitutional. But after Harlan's nomination, the court on Nov. 22 postponed arguments on how and when to enforce its decision. It was felt a full court was needed for such a momentous decision.

Initially the Harlan nomination was well received, but the 83rd Congress failed to act on it after Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., held it up in the Judiciary Committee.

McDonough Caught; Returned to Conn.

NEW YORK (AP)-Bail of $350,000 was set Thursday for Steven M. McDonough, 23, son of a school superintendent and a former high school athletic star, and a U.S. magistrate ordered him returned to Connecticut immediately to face bank robbery charges.

Federal officials said the burly McDonough also has been indicted on a murder charge in Rhode Island, and was wanted in the shooting of a Massachusetts state trooper, and for allegedly armed robbery in Boston and Huntington, W. Va.

Magistrate Sol Shreiber acted after Lenox Hill Hospital reported that McDonough was physically able to make the trip to Connecticut. Asst. U.S. Atty. Peter Clark of that state arrived with a certified copy of a Hartford indictment charging McDonough with robbing a Mechanics Bank branch in West Hartford last August.

Under federal law, McDonough is not entitled to a formal hearing here because the alleged crime occurred less than 100 miles away.

McDonough's lawyer told Schreiber he believed McDonough needed immediate psychiatric and medical treatment because of injuries received when he was captured. He said 20 stitches were taken in a wound on his head, and he might be suffering from concussion.

A 6-foot-2-inch, 200-pounder, McDonough appeared in court with his hands and feet shackled.

His matted, long black hair and disheveled condition attested to the struggle he put up when FBI agents captured him Wednesday night at a Manhattan hotel. Agents said McDonough was carrying a loaded pistol.

When asked by the magistrate, McDonough acknowledged that he had had $10,000 in his possession. Asst. U.S. Atty. William B. Gray said $26,000 was stolen from the Connecticut bank.

McDonough's father, John P. McDonough, superintendent of schools in Farmington, Conn., sat silently in Federal Court during the arraignment. He refused to answer reporters' questions after it was over.

Gray said McDonough had not seen his parents for more than a year.

Rumors of Turmoil From China

WARSAW (AP)-A newspaper in Communist Poland said Thursday it had information from Peking indicating "substantial political changes" were underway in Red China.

The daily Zycio Warsawy took note of widespread reports since Tuesday that something is happening on the Chinese mainland. Reports that the traditional National Day parade and fireworks display had been cancelled provoked speculation that Chairman Mao Tse-tung was dead or seriously ill. But this was later denied by Chinese officials.

The Polish newspaper said it did not know to what extent the rumors were true "but already we have received certain information from Peking which indicates that probably substantial political changes are underway there."

The paper quoted reports it said were from foreign correspondents about the removal of busts and pictures of Mao as well as quotations from hotels and restaurants. Information on this reached Peking from various places including Shanghai, Canton and Naking, the paper said.

In Tokyo on Thursday, China watchers were agreed that something was up, but nobody wanted to guess what.

Peking's communication media cast no new light on the developments.

Hidoo Don, a Japan Socialist party member of Parliament who is visiting Peking, was quoted as saying that it appears true that tension is mounting near the Chinese-Soviet border in northeast China.

DETROIT (AP)-President Nixon said Thursday night he will put no limit on the duration of price-wage controls following his 90-day freeze, and will concentrate the no. 2 phase curbs on major industries.

STUDENTS!
LUNCHEON
11:15 a.m. - Sunday, Sept. 26
Folklore Center
behind
GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH
on the Town Common
Students at Amherst, Hampshire and the University will join with faculty and other members of the parish for conversation, food, music, and discussion of plans for the coming year (including time and place for worship on each campus.)

SUNDAY
Bud Happy Hour
THE PUB
25¢ 3-7

RUSSELLS
PACKAGE STORE
HAPPY HOUR
Headquarters
18 Main St.
Amherst
253-5441

TOP OF THE CAMPUS
"Alone & Together"
Featuring BAMBA
Sat. Sept. 25 9-1
sponsored by Food Services

Take your Lunch to the Game
Football Bag Lunch
Cold Cut Grinder
Brownie
Potato Chips
Pepsi
99¢
"BITES & PIECES"
"CATALYST"
Hampden Commons
Worcester Commons

Missing My Lai Report Thought To Be Falsified

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)-An Army, criminal investigator testified Thursday he believes a missing formal report on the My Lai massacre was falsified, possibly to satisfy a commanding general that no civilians were murdered at the Vietnames hamlet.

"My own personal opinion is ... the report was just a falsification," Roland W. Thompson told a special hearing held without the jury in the My Lai court-martial of Col. Oran K. Henderson.

"The report didn't contain actual statements of any down-to-earth soldiers," the witness said under questioning by defense lawyers. "Conceivably, the report was just a fabrication to satisfy a commanding general that civilians were not murdered but were killed by artillery preparation."

Thompson, a criminal investigator for 22 years, said he based his conclusion on CID interviews with about 1,500 persons during a 10-month hunt for facts and documents relating to the My Lai operation on March 16, 1968.

The witness said he was certain a formal My Lai report had existed and was forwarded by Henderson to the American division, whose commander, Maj. Gen. Samuel Koster, had ordered a formal investigation.

Henderson, accused of willfully failing to properly investigate the massacre, has said he directed the late Col. Frank A. Barker, his executive officer with the 11th Brigade, to conduct the probe.

The defense contends the missing Barker report contains sworn statements from troops on the My Lai assault backing up an informal report Henderson made to division headquarters April 24, 1968.

This informal report concluded that 128 Viet Cong were killed at My Lai, that only 20 civilians died accidentally from artillery and cross-fire and that allegations of 450 to 500 non-combatant casualties were the product of Viet Cong propaganda.

The investigator said that had the formal report described what actually had happened at My Lai, it would have touched off more detailed inquiries by both the inspector general and CID.

Thompson said the CID probe of My Lai disclosed Henderson never formally interviewed anyone and that "nobody particularly cared what happened at My Lai...

Alert For Viet Election

SAIGON (AP)—American and South Vietnamese forces were ordered on special alerts Thursday to meet a threat of increasing enemy attacks aimed at disrupting South Vietnam's Presidential election Oct. 3.

For the 215,000 U.S. servicemen, the alert appeared designed to keep them clear of terrorist attacks and political strife such as the antigovernment demonstrations and anti-American firebombings of the past two weeks.

More demonstrations are planned by militant students, war veterans, and opposition political groups to protest the unopposed candidacy of President Nguyon Van Thieu.

There was evidence of mounting shellings, terror and sapper attacks by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported 21 to 29 shellings and other enemy incidents daily for the past three days.

The U.S. Command announced that beginning Friday "all U.S. forces in the Republic of Vietnam will take necessary security measures in anticipation of a possible increase in enemy activity."

"U.S. military personnel will not enter populated areas; including villages, hamlets, and urban areas, except on essential official business or travel between billets and places of duty. Vehicle movement outside U.S. installations will be limited to essential travel."

AT command spokesman, Capt. James D'Entrement, said: "Intelligence indicates increased enemy action, which could take the form of indirect fire attacks ground attacks or terrorist activities. The election could be a factor in the enemy's plans.

The alert starting Friday will run at least to Oct. 6

In war action, South Vietnamese troops launched a new thrust into southern Cambodia. It is aimed at clearing western Svay Rieng Province south of Highway 1, the main road linking the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh with Saigon.

The number of troops engaged was not disclosed.

Associated Press correspondent Robin Mannock, reporting from Cambodia, said the new South Vietnamese drive was undertaken at the request of the Cambodians and that enemy pressure has been building lately in the operation area.

Home Economics Drive On

The College Chapter of the American Home Economics Association will conduct its 1971-72 membership drive from September 27-October 1. All majors in the school of Home Economics are eligible for membership.

AHEA is a national organization which encompasses professionals in all areas of home economics. Student membership entitles you to membership in both the national and state AHEA, a subscription to the Journal of Home Economics, and an opportunity to actively participate in the activities and future of your profession.

Plans for the year in the college chapter tentatively include a career day featuring recent graduates in various areas of home economics, a combined state and college chapter professional day conference in the spring, guest lecturers, and exchange field trips with Framingham State and Simmons College.

Applications for membership will be available from September 27-October 1 in Skinner Lobby or Skinner, room 120.

If you're action-oriented, join AHEA and make a difference!

Brenda Hashie

Architectual Open House

The architectual firm of Callister & Payne will be holding an open house at their new office at 6 Main Street in Amherst on Thursday and Friday evenings, September 24, from 7 to 9 p.m., and again next week on September 28 and 29.

Callister & Payne are presently involved in the planning of the Amherst Fields project. Schematic drawings and maps of the proposed development will be available for the public's inspection and discussion.

Refreshments will be served.

BORED?
Amherst Folklore Center
Good Music
FRI.
Prairie Oysters
Country Rock
SAT.
Mike Allan
blues
SUN.
Doc, Joe, & Barbara
MON.
Movie "The World of Apo"
Spring St.,
behind Grace Church
Open Fri.-Mon., 8-1a.m.

The Cat In The Hat
Always Comes Back

BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
SPECIAL
4 Piece Stainless
HOSTESS SET
only $4.95
"...Everyone's Favorite Jeweler..."
31 South Pleasant St. Amherst

AFTER THE GAME
D. J.
AT
The English Pub

Pioneer Valley Craft Fair
all day — Oct. 9 — all day
Folk Music - CLEAN LIVING - FAT
Arts & Crafts - Rides - Contests
Tickets $2.00 @ White Light Books and Amherst Folklore Center

Sat. Sept. 25
Knowlton
(in the Quad)
presents
RUSH
8:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. 50¢

BRING EM IN
Your Senate Nomination Papers
Student Activies Area 1st Level C. C.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
NEWS STAFF — Bill Manburg, Bob Callahan
SPORTS — Bob Medeiros, Dan Kamal
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
DARKROOM — Alan Chapman, Jim Laurakas
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

A Place To Begin

Plans and programs have a way of getting lost in bureaucracies. A prime example of this is the University Senate. You remember the University Senate, that unicameral monster that reared its ugly head last semester only to be slain, or at least seriously wounded, by the strangling tapes of a bureaucratic system and its components which fight any kind of change.

This may seem like strong language to use to describe the fate of the unicameral body which most informed sources feel is the best way to organize campus government. Bureaucratic mollycodling, however, has kept the University Senate from being a reality right now. As it stands now, it will be next semester at the earliest and, if experience can be any judge, probably not for another year before it actually becomes the governing body at UMass.

The Committee on the University Senate is due to report in November and pressure should be applied to make sure that this report is not only on time but also presents the program in a light that can not possibly be refused by any segment of the campus community. That many will disagree with one point or another goes without doubt. However, that any shall prevent the adoption of this sorely-needed program is a thought which could do great damage to the progress of the University so proudly proclaimed by the Chancellor in his Convocation address. The implementation of the University Senate could be a good place for Chancellor Tippo to begin his Covocation address of 1972.

Art Buchwald

Sunday Afternoon

WASHINGTON--"Harry...Harry will you stop looking at that stupid football game and listen to me? There's a very suspicious man lurking in front of the house..What do you mean find out what he wants? You find out what he wants..You're the man in this house...Harry, I think he's getting into your car...Yes, he is getting into your car...Let's call the police.

"How can you say that Harry? Even if the car is insured you should at least make some effort to stop a thief...I don't care if it is fourth down and one to go, you can't let somebody just up and steal your car.. Look Harry he's getting out now and opening the hood...He's probably trying to get it started..I think you should at least yell at him...

"All right, so the Redskins made a first down...But if you just come to the window...Look he's got the motor started...Please, Harry, call the police..What?...It will ruin your afternoon if the police come...Yes, I know you have your heart set on watching the game, but what are we going to do for a car?...I'm not distracting you...How can you say I always think of ways of interrupting you when you're watching a football game...Am I supposed to let someone steal your car without telling you...Harry you're getting up from your chair...What happened?...Oh, it's a commercial...No, the car's gone now...The man drove it off...Are you going to report it? After the Kansas City game which ends at 7 o'clock.?...Well, you've certainly made a contribution to law and order today...

"All right, I promise I won't bother you again...Go back to your game...

"Harry, there's a cab pulling up to the house...Harry it's our son Jimmy who has been in the Navy for two years...I didn't even know he was back in this country...Oh, my goodness, he looks so brown and tall...Come Harry, let's greet him at the door...Harry, you don't want to greet your son after he fought for his country?...

"Oh you can't leave the set now because the Cardinals have just fumbled?...No, don't worry, I'll ask Jimmy to come in the side door so he won't disturb you...Why are you yelling at me?...Be mad at the Navy. They're the ones who let Jimmy come home on Sunday.

"Harry, I know you told me not to bother you, and I've let you alone for the entire quarter, but something has come up I think you should know about...Our daughter Gertrude has just called from the hospital and she's about to give birth to a baby...Will you stop screaming at me?...I know it isn't a big thing to have a baby, Harry...Women have them all the time. Ordinarily it isn't worth interrupting a football game to tell you about it, but I would like to remind you of one thing, Harry...Gertrude isn't married!...This could be a very traumatic experience for a 15-year-old girl..."Yes Harry, I'm as sorry as you are that Bragg missed the field goal...it's very wet on that astroturf...Well I'll go to the hospital myself. I'm sure Gertrude will understand...

"I'm back Harry...Getrude had a little boy...What game are you watching now?...The San Diego Chargers. What happened to the Redskins? They won?...Isn't that wonderful...Then your afternoon wasn't a complete waste after all.

"Harry I've decided to leave you...No, I can't wait until San Diego loses the ball...I wish to discuss it now...I've given it a lot of thought and I've decided that life is just passing me by...Don't turn the volume up, Harry...It won't do you any good. I'VE MADE MY DECISION, HARRY...HARRY, TURN DOWN THE SET...NO, HARRY, THERE IS NO SENSE TALKING ABOUT IT TOMORROW NIGHT...WHY NOT? BECAUSE TOMORROW NIGHT DETROIT IS PLAYING THE MINNESOTA VIKINGS."

On Your Mark

By ALAN K. WRIGHT

Now that the gears of UMass' student factory have been well-oiled by the perennial procedures of registration, convocation, course adds, drops, pass-fail authorizations, and the physical plant's test-book "sale", etc., our Amherst sub-city is ready to embark on another fall semester.

For those of us who have been here more than a couple of years, the complexion of the University has changed notably. The grandiose "world's tallest library" seems to have reached its summit, so the multi-dollar-per hour construction bubs won't be around to ogle the bra-less co-eds for much longer. The extensive intramural program has supplemented its acres of football fields with official goal posts. Southwest's log cabin eyesore has been removed, along with a former favorite meeting place--the Little Hatch. The latter's replacements--a trio of eating establishments located in a reformed Hampden Commons called Munchy's, the Place, and Bites and Pieces are experiencing dubious popularity. However, the front of this area is still the haven for amateur musicians looking for an evening jam session.

The dormitories themselves have evolved to the point where an occupant can do anything from painting or paneling to installing wall to wall rugs or water beds to make these cubicles resemble a living area. Many students have invested in mini-refrigerator ripoffs or sophisticated stereo systems that excellently reproduce Derek and the Dominoes concert hall sound only to be absorbed by the inferior acoustic quality of cinder block walls.

The co-ed innovation has either been instituted or proposed in many dorms across campus. It's working best where it got effectively started earliest--in Greenough and Butterfield. Some of Project 10's constituents have expressed dissatisfaction with their experience.

You won't see a big rush to the fraternities or sororities this year, as many houses are either folding up or are in desperate need of financial aid. Theta Chi and Kappa Sig will probably retain their traditional beer-swilling success and glean varsity material while ladies from Alpha Chi Omega and Kappa Kappa Gamma will remain unified and attract an interested following of D.A.R: award winners.

The Quadrangle will still be one of the few places left on campus to find grass--of the lush green variety. From here nursing and women's Phys. Ed. majors will be seen making the trek to classes, while Orchard Hill residents descend the mountain to wait in line at Worcester and Franklin Dining Commons.

The new Northeast residents will be trying to convince themselves that their move to that area is really "suite" after all. Finally, those who have split off campus will soon get used to bucking the morning traffic to find a parking space and make their 9:05 lecture, which they will end up trying to subscribe to SES notes for anyway.

In closing, I would like to comment that wherever you are, or whatever you're into here; UMass, despite it's shortcomings is a good place to be for 4 years between high school and trying to find a job.

Vietnamized

'COME ON IN AND MEET THE OTHER CHINA--ARE YOU THERE, MR. CHIANG . . ?'

Topical Reprints

All Material On This Page Reprinted From THE BOSTON GLOBE, 9/23/71

Politics

Hicks 'On The Attack'

U.S. Rep. Louise Day Hicks is taking off her white gloves and preparing for a brawl.

After practicing her special brand of low-profile politics for years, the congresswoman has been stung by her second place finish to Boston Mayor Kevin H. White in the Sept. 14 mayoral preliminary. She will come out fighting for the Nov. 2 final.

Gone are the small house parties where reporters were unwelcome. Gone, too, the unwillingness to appear at candidates' forums. And gone the reliance on house signs to advertise her campaign.

Mrs. Hicks said this week that, beginning Monday, her campaign office will furnish reporters with her daily schedule. She will encourage her workers to organize a massive house party each night which the press can attend, rather than the small, exclusive three-a-night affairs of the past.

The congresswoman plans a more heavily financed campaign than her customary $50,000 effort for the preliminary. There will be substantial television advertising. And, on Monday, Mrs. Hicks challenged the mayor to a series of debates.

"I'm looking for more visibility through the news media," she said. "The people must know the positions on the issues."

Indicative of the representative's new posture was her reaction to White's Monday bus tour for newsmen of construction projects begun by his administration. "I will conduct my own bus tour," she said. "Let's take a real tour of the city. I'm going to show you the city we all love--and the blight and decay in the city."

Mrs. Hicks 4620 vote loss to the mayor has shaken up more than her publicity policy: she is seeking the support of the other candidates in the mayoral preliminary, particularly City Councilmen Joseph F. Timilty and Thomas I. Atkins.

Going after the Timilty vote is not surprising. He took substantial support from Mrs. Hicks in Dorchester, Hyde Park and West Roxbury, neighborhoods dominated by conservative homeowners who may find it difficult to vote for White.

However, the congresswoman seems equally determined to win Atkins' endorsement, although the councilman's vote came almost exclusively from black and white liberal areas which are hardly Hicks strongholds.

Mrs. Hicks was well aware that Atkins blasted the mayor's campaign tactics on Sunday and was quite mellow toward her. She responded in kind.

"You know, the more I read Tom Atkins' programs, the more I think he is right," she said. "I will very seriously evaluate the programs offered by him in the preliminary for adoption."

Another effect of Mrs. Hicks' second-place finish in the preliminary is that she will have to go on the attack for the first time in many years.

In the past, the congresswoman was able to talk about the issues she wanted, letting her opponents bring the fight to her. Many political observers thought that she would be uncomfortable in her new role as the underdog, would end up sounding shrill. Mrs. Hicks, however, seems content with her position.

She said that she will attack the mayor's "stewardship in the city." This means that she will blame him for the rising crime and tax rates, inadequate municipal services and low morale among city employees. Noting White's claims of accomplishment, she said, "If things are so good, how come they're so bad?"

Mrs. Hicks will also try to make a virtue of necessity by criticizing the mayor for running a slick, heavily financed campaign that she admitted she cannot hope to match. Much has been made of White's strong organization and she hopes to turn it into a liability.

"The voters of Boston to me are not a computerized, designated number," she said. "Each one is important in himself. It would be disturbing to any citizen of Boston to think that any election can be decided by the amount of money spent."

She will portray herself as the candidate of the people and White as a neatly packaged representative of big money interests. "This is not a time for a lot of slick answers to tough questions," she said. "You know the open collar and the coat over the shoulder won't give the people of Boston what they need. This isn't leadership, this is subterfuge."

Cambridge Youth Vote?

Magistrate Willie J. Davis, in a decision handed down earlier this week in the Federal District Court in Boston, declined to order the Cambridge election commission to adopt standards which would make it possible for most over-18 students in the city to vote in the November 2 municipal election.

This is disappointing, to say the least.

The Cambridge election authorities have arrogantly refused to go along with a ruling of Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn, the state's highest law enforcement official, that any applicant for registration who is 18 years old or over and has lived in a community for six months or more, must be registered to vote in that community so long as he has "no present intention of leaving."

Instead, the Cambridge authorities have proceeded to follow guidelines which have had the practical effect of disqualifying otherwise qualified students whose parents do not reside in the community.

Among other things, the Cambridge authorities have made a practice of asking student applicants whether they are self-supporting.

Only last month, the state supreme court of Michigan held that inquiring into a voting applicant's sources of support was "constitutionally impermissible," and obviously it is. The right to vote in all elections, guaranteed to all over-18 citizens by the recently adopted 26th Amendment to the US Constitution, cannot be conditioned upon one's economic circumstances.

Davis himself expressed "grave doubt" as to the legality of the Cambridge guideline which disqualifies unmarried undergraduate students who return to their families in other cities at vacation time.

Nevertheless, Davis refused to prohibit the Cambridge authorities from using self-support and out-of-town vacationing as criteria for refusing registration. And he pointedly advised the plaintiffs in the case before him to exhaust their remedies in the state courts before returning to the Federal court for vindication of their voting rights.

"It cannot be denied that this court has jurisdiction over such matters," he said, "but so too does the state court. And, where the plaintiffs in their particular action are seeking to register to vote in the November election, it is more than proper that court action be commenced in the state court for the reason that the elections being held in November are purely local."

This opinion smacks of the old "states' rights" and "judicial restraint" doctrines so often invoked in the past to deny blacks the rights to which they were plainly entitled under the US Constitution. Time is running short for the plaintiffs and all other students similarly situated in Cambridge. Registration for the municipal election closes Oct. 13. A strong ruling by Davis in favor of the plaintiffs could have assured optimum participation in that election by students qualified to vote under the terms of the Quinn ruling. Instead Davis opted for an alleged need for "proper regard for Federal-state relations."

And some people wonder why the young express so much skepticism about the willingness of their elders to let them participate freely in the American political system.

Education

Belchertown Slipping

BELCHERTOWN—Dr. William A. Frankel, assistant commissioner for mental retardation, yesterday defended his five-month tenure as interim superintendent of Belchertown State School against charges by a legislative commission that living conditions for 90 percent of the school residents worsened under his leadership.

In a statement issued by the Mass. Department of Mental Health, Frankel said: "I feel that significant progress has been made."

Dr. Frankel pointed to the closing of one back ward as an accomplishment in his rebuttal, but failed to answer directly the commission's assertion that the closing was poorly planned, public-oriented and caused overcrowding in other buildings.

Dr. Frankel said the commission's charges of poor staff morale were "not accompanied by any documentation whatsoever."

Last week Dr. Frankel was present when Dr. Roland Nagle, who succeeded him as interim superintendent, said that low morale among some staff members is causing rumors of a strike. Dr. Nagle also said at a meeting of the nursing staff a few days earlier that he saw "almost hysteria-which I never saw before."

Rep. Alexander Lolas, co-chairman of the legislative commission, said commission members have been getting "a steady stream" of letters from longtime employees complaining about conditions at the school. He said that between four and six letters have been received in the last two or three weeks-each bearing 10 to 20 names. Lolas said the old-time employees "feel left out."

One specific complaint from the staff has been that the new employees hired since Dr. Frankel took charge of the school were assigned to only two patients each, while old-timers have had to cope with as many as 40 to 90 alone.

Dr. Frankel made no direct reply to the commission's charge that educational and rehabilitation are still offered in "token fashion" to meet the needs of "only a relatively small percentage of the residents."

In listing "several points which should be mentioned," Dr. Frankel included two items which the commission did praise him for: an expanded volunteer program and more aggressive recruiting.

Dr. Frankel said: "Over-crowding in a few buildings is unfortunate but temporary. Other buildings are being renovated and repaired and, when ready, will provide relief."

Dr. Milton Greenblatt, commissioner of mental health, made no reply to the commission's report. Last week Dr. Greenblatt described the number of staff members working in one building as "low as hell" and promised to work to secure 50 new attendant physicians and 150 part-time students.

Racial Balance Still Upset

In an outstanding display of faint-hearted defeatism, a majority of the Boston School Committee has turned its back on a timid first step toward compliance with the state's six-year-old law to end racial imbalance in the schools. Only Chairman Paul Tierney and committeeman James Hennigan had the sense to realize what now lies ahead for the city and its impoverished school program.

By abandoning a plan to establish a racial balance in the new Lee School on Talbot Avenue near the Mattapan line, the School Committee undercut those parents, white and black, who have acted in good faith to comply with the law and with the earlier dictates of the School Committee itself.

By delaying action on the integration of the Lee School, the committee has allowed a situation to arise where integration of the Lee School is now virtually impossible. All seats in the new school are presently filled with children; 813 of them are black; 260 are white. Black parents, who perfectly sensibly wanted their children to go to the new school, cannot now be forced to take them out. But they can and are beginning to appreciate the fact that they have been used once again by the white community to build their own educational ghetto at the Lee School.

Finally, by voting 3-to-2 on Tuesday night to legalize the squatters' rights of the black children at the Lee School and of the white children still unregistered at imbalanced schools like the Fifield and the O'Hearn, the School Committee has now changed school segregation "by fact" into school segregation "by Law." This puts Boston squarely into the same position as Southern communities against which the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1954 and again last April 20.

The Massachusetts Board of Education, which has unanimously supported Commissioner Neil Sullivan's moves to force compliance with the state school imbalance law on every occasion this year, will now take an almost watertight case to court. Even without the Boston School Committee's action this week, there is the fact that the state's racial imbalance law was upheld in June 1967 after two years of litigation.

The court is therefore almost certain to rule in favor of the State Board of Education. The net result of this, as pointed out by committeeman James Hennigan, is that the School Committee, by its own action, has turned over its function of drawing school district lines to the courts and the state.

And resolution in the courts could be more powerful in effecting integrated schools than the withholding of state funds, since this power has been weakened in a recent ruling by the Attorney General that communities may include withheld funds in their annual budget rather than imposing the burden on the taxpayer. The so-called Kenneally Bill, which has passed the Massachusetts House by a vote of 219 to 88, would further suspend the state's withholding power for two years, though it is expected the bill would eventually be vetoed by the Governor.

The Lee School received a construction bonus of 25 percent in state aid because it was pledged to open with a 50-50 racial balance as required by the law. The failure to live up to this pledge may close off further bonus money to the city. This could clearly cripple the much-advertised school building program of Mayor Kevin White who is seeking reelection this fall. Yet the Mayor has failed to give active personal support to an integrated opening at the Lee School, either by going into the neighborhood himself or by pleading the cause in public. His tour of the city on Monday took the press to the Lee School; he might have done better to take white parents through the new facility last summer as proof that their children would receive a good and safe education there.

White parents who charge that their children are forced to ride buses to the Lee School ignore the fact that the bus ride was offered because they expressed fears for their children, that the bus ride is voluntary and that no child assigned to the school lives beyond the legal walking distance of one mile. In this case, certainly, the busing issue is camouflage. And those like Father Leonard Burke of St. Matthew's Parish, Dorchester, who maintain that busing not racism, is the issue cannot be thinking clearly. Father Burke probably does reflect the anxieties of his parishioners, but he also fails to show calm leadership in expressing the feelings of higher church authorities who have urged compliance with the law.

There may be flaws in the Massachusetts statute. Some might have been corrected in a bill submitted by Rep. Paul Murphy that would have altered the arbitrary 50-50 racial formula and included participation by suburban communities. That bill was killed last week.

It is at best a pipe-dream to believe that, if we fumble and delay long enough, the state school imbalance law will be repealed. The state that gave us great abolitionists like William Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips simply cannot turn around and come out for segregation. The Massachusetts Imbalance Law of 1965 was the first of its kind in the nation. It may not be perfect but it is something to be proud of nevertheless.

The crummy politicking of three school committeemen, which plays on the fears of a hopeless community with utter disregard for the law and for common sense, is a clear betrayal of trust. In those states where a courageous body has exerted strong leadership, school integration has followed without a hassle. That leadership appears to be lacking in Boston today.

Electric Media Experiment At School

The grinding gears of a video-tape unit
Flashes of light guns and buzzes of timers
Sounds of excited youngsters planning and making

All of these are part of the FIRST LOOK art program operating at the Dartmouth Middle School. The program is being directed by Larry Frates, resource teacher of art in Dartmouth along with being a doctoral candidate at the School of Education on the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts.

Developing a storyboard for a future film captures the attention of both the artist and his collegues in FIRST LOOK.

FIRST LOOK is the third phase of a program known as the LOLLIPOP Art Workshops, which originated at the Marks Meadow Elementary School in Amherst under the direction of Mr. Frates. Phase two operated in New Bedford, Massachusetts this summer, and was known as SUMMERART 71. Both of these programs concerned themselves with the development of visual skills in preschool and elementary level children.

SUMMERART and FIRST LOOK programs have received materials grants from the Polaroid Corporation of Cambridge. These grants come in the form of thirty Polaroid M60 cameras, flash units, and supplies of film. Mr. Frates explained, "in all cases the prime purpose in using cameras was to show the potential of present-day media in the development of learning abilities in the participating youngsters."

Frates added that, "the third phase program has been instituted as part of the ongoing curriculum future programs, compiled technical information needed in operating a television studio, and begun to relate these art activities to other subject areas in the school.

Larry Frates, project director explains the technical aspects of the TV camera to one of the older youngsters.

First on the agenda is a student-taped/teacher-presented information program where instructors will present commercial type spots explaining the advantages of their particular interest areas being planned for an activities program. Other related projects are constructing a dome in the courtyard of the building, painting outdoor murals and sidewalks, presenting personalized plays through puppetry, and developing art skills to aid them in other learning areas.

These particular youngsters are being coordinated by Mr. Frates, but he explains that within the next few months many of the studio responsibilities will be absorbed totally by the young technicians.

"I hope to have the youngsters scheduling programs, running all phases of camera and taping procedures, while becoming competent in repairing minor malfunctions in the equipment," he further explained.

Enjoy the rich full flavor that makes
Bell's Pizza
right for you.
65 University Dr.
256-8011 - 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

WARM UP
with
the
ENDLESS KNIGHTS
on SATURDAY
(FOLLOWING THE GAME)
at
THE CHEQUERS
9:30 -12:30
Hoo-Rah-Rah: Wup Dartmouth

SENATE
Nomination Papers
DUE TODAY

Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP)-The National District Attorneys Association supported Thursday legislation providing for compulsory commitment of narcotics addicts for treatment and rehabilitation.

The idea of compulsory commitment was opposed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Representatives of the two organizations testified before a House Judiciary subcommittee considering bills to permit any relative, police officer or health official to file commitment papers.

The bills would provide for federal grants for facilities, training of personnel and research to develop drug abuse immunization.

13 3/4 oz.
Denims $5.95
Cords $5.95
Blue Jeans $4.95
Colored Jeans $3.95
LAST DAYS!
WEARHOUSE

"Shy, introspective, and terribly aloof,
ART BUCHWALD
rarely leaves his room except to buy TIME magazine to see if they've put him on the cover."
ART BUCHWALD
"THE ESTABLISHMENT IS ALIVE AND WELL IN WASHINGTON"
Monday, September 27, 8 p.m.
Curry Hicks Cage
a dvp Distinguished Visitors Program Presentation

Coffee Shop Re-Opened

By JAY NESTOR

The sign outside the Campus Center Cafeteria ran like this; Wednesday Nite Coffee House. Open 8:30 to 1:00. No cover, no minimum, CHEAP!

Inside, Ed Vadas, organizer of the program, was setting up a variety of performers with one trait in common. They like to sing and pluck strings. The music ranges from James Taylor, Cat Stevens, and Stephan Stills to country and bluegrass. Ed claims that there is room for anybody, from jugglers to bagpipers.

Vadas created the Coffee House last February, and it has run continuously throughout the summer, showing no signs of slowing down. Some six hundred people attended the Coffee House last Wed. night, with the crowd gaining or dwindling at the various performances. The program is sponsored by the Campus Center Food Services, which sells beer and drinks at the back of the room during the night.

The Coffee House is generally free to attend, except when Vadas can attract groups such as Ed Stover and the Green Mountain Boys, and Mississippi Fred Mcdowell, not to mention Big Lou's Fried Shrimp and Seafood Band. They will be appearing next Wed.; causing a slight charge of twenty-five cents.

The audience is attentive. There is a low-toned, subdued atmosphere of thoughtful listeners, but it isn't too long before people become really worked up and exuberant over someone like Leo Duart, picking away furiously at his banjo. The audience, many of whom are seasoned folk enthusiasts, are critical at times, but generally very appreciative. Ed Vadas usually sets things rolling with some of his classic gross jokes thrown out here and there.

If you can dig folk music, set aside a Wednesday night and check out Ed Vadas' Coffee House. You might even like to get on stage and do something yourself. If so, Vadas can be contacted at the Campus Center, 545-2090, or call his home at 323-4407. There is never an audition, if you want to perform that is good enough.

Day Care Center Open

The University Day School, a day care center for the children of students and staff of the University, is presently enrolling children for both the afternoon and the morning sessions.

The center is open to children aged two years nine months to five, and offers a varied and warm educational experience for the young child. Part-time students as well as full-time graduates, graduate and post doctoral candidates may apply for their children, and as of October 1, application will be accepted from the professional staff.

Inquire at Bowditch Lodge, on the southwest corner of campus, or call 545-2466.

This is the Graduate Research Center. It looks almost good enough to eat, doesn't it? Well, for those of you whose appetite isn't satiated with one, two more are on the way in a couple of years.

ELIE WIESEL
AUTHOR and LECTURER
Survivor and Chronicler of the Holocaust Speaks On
"Souls on Fire: Chassidic Portraits and Tales"
Monday Evening, Sept. 27, 8 p.m.
Wright Hall - Smith College
Winner of Major Literary Awards
B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation

SUNDAY
Bud Happy Hour
THE PUB
25¢ 3-7

NOTICE:

The annual meeting of the Top of the Campus, Inc. shall be held on Sunday, September 26, 1971 in the Campus Center, Room 804-8, at 6: 30 p.m. for the purpose of election of members to fill vacancies in the positions of officers and directors, to receive the annual report and to conduct such other business as may properly come before the meeting, all according to the by-laws of the Corporation. Voting will be by validated membership card only.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1962 VW Sedan (engine has sucked valve) could be repaired or used for parts. Body good and unstripped. Call 253-8685 $75. tfn-27

71 VW conv. yellow with black top, only 9 months old. Best offer. Call Al 253-7820. tfn-24

68 Austin Healy Sprite $750., firm. Call Sam, B8 Wheeler, 545-2413. tfn-21

66 Volvo, excl. cond., will accept best offer. Call 584-6081, Aft. 6 p.m. tfn-24

Going overseas, must sell quickly 62 Chevy Impala, automatic, V8, radio, $150., 8 month old $150 Tape Recorder, $100. New 3 speed bicycle $30. Call 323-8096. tfn-24

'63 Alfa Romeo Gulietta Spyder convertible. Excellent shape. Strong engine. More class than an MG! Call 546-5214. 9-21-22-24

1965 VW Bus, excellent cond., rebuilt engine, new clutch, new brakes, great for camping, $900, or best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 268-7265. tfn-26

67 Buick Skylark, convertible,at. ps. ph. 21 mpg on trip, cream w/ black top. Best of care and condition. $1293. 253-2800. tfn-24

'69 Saab and '69 Peugeot. Both 15,000 miles, in good condition. Asking $1,250 each. Call 256-6762 for inquiry or test drive. tfn-29

1962 Chevy, runs well, has full sticker, $100 firm. Call 6-6088 tfn-21

1968 VW sedan. Very good condition. $1100 or best offer. Call after 5:30 at 584-7201. tfn-29

65 Chevy 6 cyl. std. New tires, excel. running. 584-9567 $150 or best. tfn-30

68 VW Bug, ex. cond., radio, snows & 4 good tires, all mounted. Must sacrifice, $1000. Here after 6 p.m. daily 1-781-5207. tfn-27

1966 white VW bus, good condition, may be seen at 226 Cliffside Apts. or call 665-1796. 9-21

1961 Jeep FC 150 Pickup/plow/excellent cond. $750. KE II model II, wooden cab., like new $125; Royal port. typewriter $60. 253-3539 6 p.m. tfn-28

65 Mustang conv., red, stereo tape deck with deluxe interior. Best offer over $550. Contact Steve, 253-3359. tf10-1

Europe Bound-must sell blue Mustang 6s, 289 3speed, new tires, batters, excel. cond., best offer. Must see it. Call 546-7989 Jerry. 9-21

MOTORCYCLES For Sale

1970 Triumph Bonneville, 650cc, perfect running condition. Call 253-7858. tfn-24

1968 Honda SS125, exc. running cond., new inspection sticker, 6000 mi., 1 helmet. Asking $250.00. Call Jim 546-7966. tfn-24

HONDA "CUB 88" step through new 0 mi., $380, 50cc., still in shipping crate. Call Ron 586-0258 lv. number. tfn-24

Honda CL 350, exc. condition, strong, need money. Call Ed 546-6005., tfn-24

FOR SALE

Smith Corona Coronet Automatic #10 electric portable typewriter. Brand-new with power return. $125 or best offer call 6-7831 Paul. tfn-24

Dark wood bureau with large mirror $30.00 Call 253-3025 after 6:00. tfn-24

Panasonic 8 track stero system. Carbonne model. All speakers, home converter, 21 tapes. Details at $300 plus, yours, $180 call 546-5080. tfn-27

Mamiya-Secor 1000 DTL. Needs light meter. Good condition. $80 or best offer. Call 665-3350 after six. tfn-21

One rebuilt B16 and one rebuilt B18 Volvo engines also B18 trans. and P544 body,-perfect rust wise. Call 584-4820 nights. tfn-21

66 VW rebuilt engine, new clutch, shocks & front eng. Has 2 small dents. $400. 369-1113. tfn-27

Great Books of the Western World - complete set - $100. Rt. 1,213-4, Dry Hill Rd. Montague 367-2017. tfn-27

A 21 inch Welhilt stove, very good condition. $65. Call Greenfield 774-3245. tfn-24

Forested house lots cleared. Reasonable terms. Call 247-5013 between 7:30 p.m. - 9:00 p.m. tfn-28

One slightlis used '68 Austin Healy Sprite for sale. Contact 253-2536 or 256-8450 and ask for Ned Dibble. tfn-24

Alto Sax. Harmony Folk Guitar, Clarinet. Electric Guitar, good instruments - low price-584-8537. tfn-28

20 gal. long aquarium fully equipped. Includes stand, fish, pump, decorations, etc., excellent condition $15. Call Dave 584-8990. tfn-24

1968 Baltaro Dirt Racing Bike, 360cc new engine, new clutches, $375 or best offer. Call 584-0866 anytime. tfn-24

Waterbeds-now all [illegible] tfn-24

warranty. Also, frames, liners and pads in stock. Call Mark at 546-5450. tfn-7

1967 BSA 441cc, Shooting Star, excellent condition. Must sell $475.00 Call 586-0977. tf10-1

Dunebuggy, 3000 mi., needs volks motor, top, special seats, much more $475, Call Cep 665-3129. tfn-29

Man's brown Suede Jacket, size 46, $25.00. Call after 5, 549-6726. tfn-24

Smith Corona Sterling Port. Typewrtr. Excellent cond., $50., or best offer. Call 546-8373 or 546-7532. tfn-27

Two bureaus $25. each, 3 carpets, fair condition. Call 253-2981. tfn-27

Ski boots for sale, men's Kollach, 8 1/2M, White Stars. Call 546-4181 after 7 p.m. tfn-30

SKIERS WANTED

Skiers wanted to share spacious chalet, 5 min. from Mt. Snow. Luxury living, only $250 for season. Dec.-Mar. Call Marty-549-6786. tf10-1

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted (room apt. $80/month, all util. inc. in Westfield. Call 1 of 253-9751 bet. 5 and 7 p.m., no ans. leave word. tfn-24

Single girl or couple, own transp., share apt. 'til Nov.-pos. longer; call 584-2273 M-F 6-8, anytime, weekends. tfn-28

Female roommate wanted. Come over to 116 Mt. Range Apts. MWF after 6, TTH after 10. In an open field 2 miles from campus really nice. tfn-28

Roommate wanted, male student, to share 1 bedroom Puffton Apt. Call 549-6979. tfn-28

Roommate wanted to share 5 room apt. in N. Hampton. Rent $80 month. Call Laura 586-3361. tfn-27

WANTED

Men to erect chainlink fence. Experienced only. Part time. Fitzgerald Fences, 310 Bridge Rd., Florence, Mass. tf10-1

MANDARIN CHINESE native speaker to instruct Chinese language student, $1/hr. For details call Ron 586-0258 nites, lv. message. tfn-21

Would like info. on Indian reservation schools for educ. project. Anyone who can help please call Irene 536-7083 or Carolyn 533-9867. tfn-29

Soul Drummer. Call Ken at 253-3706. 9-21

Microscope 80x power oil emersion lens $60. Call 617-362-3046 or 413-253-3274. 9-24

Famous maker Harness Boots $25., without harness $22., at the Shoe-Bin-in the Alley, behind Auburchons. 9-24

RIDE WANTED

Desperatly need ride to NYC or NJ Fri., 24 anytime after 1:30. Call Debbi 256-6718 p.m. tfn-24

Secretary needs ride from Amherst to Granby weekday evens. Also from Granby to Amherst Fri. morns. Call Dianne 545-0600/467-9107. tfn-27

Female to live in country home. References required. Granby 467-7267 after 5:00 p.m. tfn-24

SERVICES

Need a hand. Dial-a-hand will supply a hand that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9215. tfn-29

I'll fix your rough, smokes, gas eating car for a reasonable fee. Call 256-8638 ask for Wendell. I make road calls. tfn-28

PERSONAL

Wanted confirmed Gordon Lightfoot fanatics. Contact Sue, 315 Butterfield. No definite purpose except reassurance. tfn-24

Sue-I was very touched-softly. I love, Booba Imp 9-21

Tina L. I think I loved you for two years and still think I do even tho it's impossible tfn-27

Marc Richmond - we're having our 24 hour sale next Friday night and need your help. Call Mike at 256-8433. tfn-27

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Call Mary 253-7673. If not there leave message tfn-29

Male roommate—I have two bedroom apt.-kitchen-bath-garage-need roomate to pay $60/a mo. Call Mark 253-5313 before 10 a.m. tfn-27

In desperate need of room or apt., preferably near campus. Call Steph 586-2808. Keep trying. tfn-29

HELP WANTED

Feelings-minded students earn extra money part time without interrupting your present schedule. Call collect 1-533-3631. tfn-24

Want to help people? Join USS in serving others. Thurs., Colonial Lounge, 7:30-8:30; Sun., Mem. Hall 10:30-1:00. tfn-24

1 or 2 girls wanted to do housework. Hours can be arranged. Walking distance from Southw est.

Phone 253-3129 - 545-0075. tfn-27

LECTURE NOTES

Lecture notes are now available for Psych 101 and Soc 101, all sections, at Room 318 in the Student Union Lobby. tfn-24

LOST

Large gray male cat, white paws and front. Walks with slight limp. Last seen near Brooks and Brett. Reward 549-3760 tfn-24

APT. AVAILABLE

One bedroom apt. available. Walk distance from campus. $95. month. Call 253-9083 after 6 p.m. Furnished. tfn-24

TRAIL RIDES

Horseback riding every Sat. & Sun. at Spellman Farms, Belchertown. Reasonable rates. Call Spellman Frms. on 3 River Rd. 283-6263. tfn-28

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt., all utilities, no lease. Pets & children welcome. Wall to wall carpet, $175 month. Call Kamins Village Apts., Belchertown. tfn-30

PARTY

Friday 8:30, one dollar for guys, girls are free. James Basement. Come if you dare. Beer and wine served. tfn-24

HOUSE WANTED

Doctoral candidate and teaching wife seek house or nice apartment for this or next semester. Call 592-1871. tfn-27

COURSE

Last chance this week to learn Silver Jewelry Making. Evening Course in town. $40 including silver and materials. Call 253-2671. tfn-27

BOOKS WANTED

Help! Students in Soc 292 need used copies of Wilensky and Lebeaux. Sell ours at Bookstore Annex tfn-27

EMPLOYMENT

Live in town or dorms. Make money fighting pollution by selling Shaklee Products to friends & neighbors. 100% organic biodegradable cleaners, beauty aids and vitamins. For more information call 253-2981 tfn-27

McGovern Charges Thieu Hired Saigon Rioters

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George S. McGovern charged Thursday the rioters who stoned and firebombed him in Saigon last week included members of South Vietnam's civil defense forces hired and paid by President Nguyen Van Thieu's government.

The South Dakota Democrat leveled the charge at a news conference called to report on his 11-day trip to Paris, Saigon and Tokyo.

McGovern declared that it appeared as if Thieu, "having found a successful way to prevent anybody else other than himself from running for president in South Vietnam, was attempting the same thing here in the United States."

The State Department said it had no independent account of the incident.

McGovern, who will lose his status as the only formally declared presidential candidate when Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma enters the race Friday, said he considers the issues of Vietnam and U.S. economic difficulties "inseparable" in his quest for the presidency.

"When we talk about the war," he said, "when we talk about a defense budget which goes up $4 billion while the President preaches economy, we are talking about all the other issues before this country."

In the Senate, meanwhile, McGovern pressed an amendment that would require President Nixon to give Congress next year, along with his regular defense budget, an alternative budget with a $69 billion ceiling, including plans to stimulate conversion of defense industries to civilian pursuits.

The McGovern amendment was the day's major business as the Senate grappled with the proposals to cut the $21 billion measure authorizing funds for military hardware and research. Most amendments are expected to be defeated.

One that is expected to pass, directing total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina within six months if American prisoners are freed, will be introduced Monday, Democratic leader Mike Mansfield told reporters.

Name one thing that hasn't gone up since 1950.

1._____

Try. Try hard.

The only thing we can think of is what we make. The Swingline "Tot 50" Stapler. 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

And it still comes with 1000 free staples and a handy carrying pouch. It staples, tacks and mends. It's unconditionally guaranteed. It's one of the world's smallest staplers.

And it's the world's biggest seller. Could be that's why it hasn't gone up in price in 21 years.

If you're interested in something a little bigger, our Cub Desk Stapler and Cub Hand Stapler are only $1.98. Both Tot and Cub Staplers are available at Stationery, Variety and College Bookstores.

The Swingline "Tot 50" 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

If you can name something else that hasn't gone up in price since 1950, let us know. We'll send you a free Tot Stapler with 1000 staples and a vinyl pouch. Enclose 25¢ to cover postage and handling.

Swingline®
Dept. H
32-00 Skillman Ave., Long Island City, N.Y. 11101

Notices

ASTRONOMY CLUB:
Open House at UMass observatory on Orchard Hill, Fri. at 8:30-1 a.m. Public cordially invited; if cloudy, will be held Sat., Sept. 25 at same time.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS:
The bus for Belchertown State School will be leaving Whitmore Administration Building on Sat., Sept. 25 at 12:45 p.m. Everyone is welcome to come.

BHAGAVAD GITA COLLOQUIUM:
Study and practice the principles of the science of God realization through the Bhagavad Gita. Mondays at 6 p.m. in Cance House main lounge in Southwest; Wed. at 7 p.m. in Grayson 334 in Orchard Hill.

BOWLING:
Boyden 10 Pin lanes OPEN BOWLING nightly, from 4:30-10:30.

CHRISTIANS:
Bus leaving for Florence Cong. Church at 8:35 in front of the Newman Center on N. Pleasant; 8:37 waiting station on N. Pleasant opposite Morrill; 8:40 corner of N. Pleasant and Eastman Ln. by Hamlin; 8:45 University Dr. at Emerson.

FENCING CLUB:
Club forming tonight, 7 p.m. in CC Rm. 178. Girls and guys invited.

FINE ARTS USHERING STAFF:
There will be a fire drill/emergency practice session on Monday, Oct. 4, 3:30 p.m. in Bowker Aud. All must attend.

FINNISH CLUB:
There will be an organizational meeting on Monday in Bartlett Rm. 302 at 7 p.m. All invited. For information, call: 6-6709 or 6-8053.

FREE U.
THEATRE WORKSHOP, open for all. Sunday, 2 p.m. in CC Rm. 174 or thereabouts. For info, call Demian 253-5171.

GORMAN:
Babysitting Service-Do you need a babysitter? Available names and their telephone numbers registered in Gorman House Lobby or call 546-4546 or 546-9537.

GRADUATE STUDENTS:
Friday, Oct. 24 is the last date that a graduate student may register. Registration may be completed in the Graduate Records Office, Munson Hall between the hours of 8:30 and 5 p.m. on Friday.

HILLEL:
Open executive board meeting Monday at 7 p.m. in Hillel office. Services tonight at the Hillel office at 7:30.

HOCKEY CHEERLEADERS:
Any girls interested in trying out for the Hockey Cheerleading Squad should come to Rm. 803 CC, at 7:30 on Monday. Questions? Call Sue 256-6868.

HOME EC MAJORS:
AHEA membership drive begins Monday Skinner Hall. If you're action oriented join AHEA and make a difference.

INTERNTIONAL FOLK DANCING:
International Folk Dancing will be at Smith College, Davis Center this Friday from 8 p.m. until midnight. Dances will be taught and reviewed. Everyone is welcome.

ITALIAN CLUB:
Remember: Bake Sale on Saturday at 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Stop and Shop.
Interested in Italian conversation and culture? Come join us at the Italian table Tuesday at 5 p.m. Berkshire Commons in Southwest.

NEWMAN CLUB:
COFFEEHOUSE, Newman Center Social Lounge, Saturday at 8:30-? Bring a friend, guitar, and yourself.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Leo loves style in dining, entertaining in loving and living. It is appearance as much, if not more, than flavor that counts where Leo is concerned. It is the sit down dinner for Leo...it is the ornate and the grand, it is the plush and the chef who is an artist this is part of the classical Leo life style. It attracts criticism, envy. It draws the ire of many. It also draws to Leo an aura of romance, stimulation, vibrancy. It is caviar as opposed to tuna. Leo is special, admittedly precocious but Leo also is entertainment and, perhaps, the spark which is life itself.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What had been binding, in financial area, is released. You are free to envision the long range. Barriers of restriction are removed. Trust sense of perception. Communicate, write.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Caution pays off...don't rush, push or demand. Utilize lessons learned from past experience. Capricorn person could figure prominently. You are trusted with added responsibility. Money position improves.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low, recoup recent loss. Do more listening than talking. Permit mate, partner to set pace. Accent is on marriage, special contract, agreement. Protect image. Emphasize public relations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Highlight independence, original approach. Cooperate with Leo individual. Get basic chores out of way. Give yourself time to create. Your sensitivity will be appreciated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Follow through on hunch. Aid forthcoming from Cancer born person. Be receptive. Family member leads way to make profit. Love is definitely in picture. Show affection to children. Purchase gift.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Forces tend to be scattered. Be versatile, but finish what you begun. Visiting relative could provide highlight. Be aware of details, subtle nuances. Take nothing for granted. Do some personal checking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain valid hint from Virgo message. Be thorough. Skipping essential details now would be costly. Act accordingly. Ideas sparkle, but need further development. Message will become crystal clear.

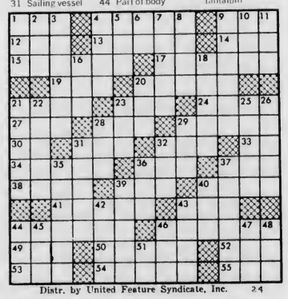
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent turns to obtaining needed material, personnel. Select quality. Don't be ashamed of changing your mind. Let others know your requirements. Gemini will be receptive. Speak your mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar cycle on upswing; make personal appearances. Your personality is ultra attractive. You can put across key points. Take initiative. Throw off secret doubts, fears. Study Scorpio message.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This is likely to be an introspective period. Look inward for answers. Clandestine meeting may be on agenda. Keep confidences. Don't reveal all you know. Hidden assets are featured.

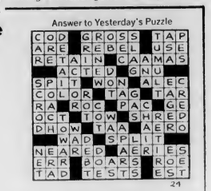
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on fulfillment of desires. Friendships play key role. Live up to obligations. Some look to you as example. Income from career, special professional effort is emphasized. Organize priorities.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You receive accolade for job displaying unique ability. Avoid slipshod methods. Adhere to individualistic style. Quality counts; stick to principles. Aries individual is likely to be involved.



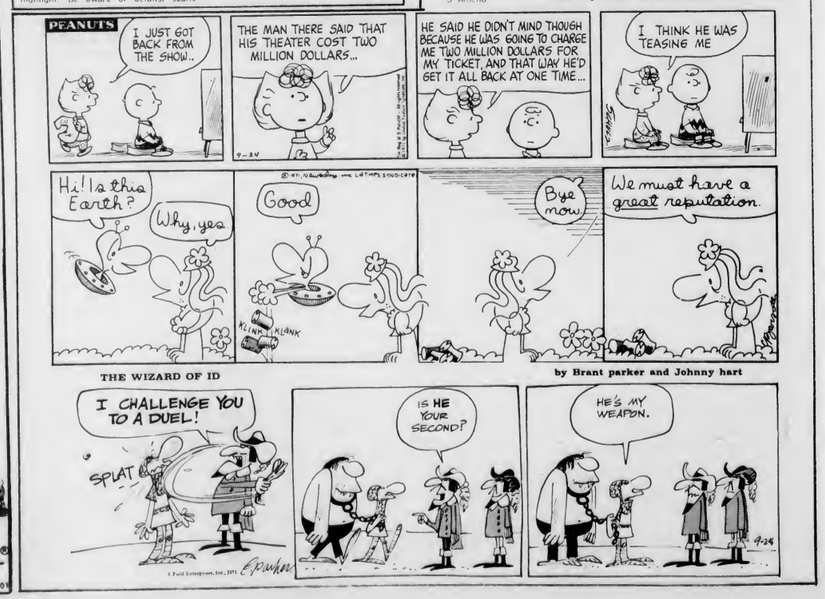
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have innate sense of design, beauty. Current domestic situation improves following adjustment. Changes that occurred earlier in year now are due to bear fruit. Work, health pressures are removed. Door is due to be open to progress, greater financial and emotional security.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Pronoun
4 Long-legged bird
9 Tattered cloth
12 Reverence
13 Ardent
14 Mountain in Crete
15 Rely on
17 Musical instruments
19 Dine
20 Trials
21 Heavenly body
23 Hindu cymbals
24 Athletic group
27 Sesame
28 Cry
29 Dipper
30 Hebrew month
31 Posed for portrait
32 Evergreen tree
33 Near
34 Domain
36 Opening
37 Devoured
38 Group of three
39 Seed container
40 Simians
41 Seeded
43 Tear
44 Assistant
46 Shade tree
49 Anger
50 Ceremonies
52 Compass point
53 Dance step
54 Puff up
55 Mournful



DOWN
1 Possessed
2 Female sheep
3 Amend
4 Dispatched
5 Youngster
6 King of Bashan
7 Repulse
8 Malay dagger
9 Washed lightly
10 Fuss
11 Aeriform fluid
16 Organ of hearing
18 Essence
20 Flap
21 Begin
22 River in Italy
23 Small child
25 Winged
26 Apportions
28 Man's nickname
29 Part of face
31 Sailing vessel
32 Novelty
35 Passageways
36 Deity
37 Fruit (pl.)
39 Danger
40 Be ill
42 Existed
43 Ascend
44 Part of body
45 Period of time
46 Damp
47 Tierra del Fuegan Indian
48 Marry
51 Symbol for tantalum

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 2-4

Dan Kamal

Here we go again....

* * * *

You know who got the worst part of that Washington franchise shift to Dallas-Fort Worth?...the California Angels did.

* * * *

Did you notice how many times Dick Heavey got to Gary Cuozzo the other night? Maybe Karras has lost a little, but this kid hasn't found anything yet.

* * * *

No, it is not true that the Patriots have started printing Super Bowl tickets.

* * * *

Now at least we know who Roland Moss is.

* * * *

Do you realize that Juan Beniquez is hitting better than Carl Yastrzemski? Maybe Juan will get $165,000. After all, it would only be a 100% increase in pay for the youngster.

* * * *

I wonder if the fact that Rico Petrocelli is hitting .243 has anything to do with his fear of being traded.

* * * *

Aparicio is finally delivering the clutch hits that made him famous in Chicago! Now maybe the Sox can close the gap to 12.

* * * *

Do you think Mike Taliaferro enjoyed the game Sunday?

* * * *

The Patriots are expected to announce the re-signing of Joe Kapp....as a defensive back.

* * * *

How can Dartmouth be picked number two in New England without having played a game?

* * * *

Incidentally, Dick O'Connell DID offer Yaz for Chico Ruiz....the Angels scoffed at the deal.

* * * *

The Gerber Company refused to buy the Boston Red Sox when it learned that the players demand SOLID foods after the game.

* * * *

Don Pavletich hasn't been so inactive after all....he has been averaging one at-bat every six games.

* * * *

Phil Esposito's new television show will NOT be named "What Happened?"

* * * *

No, it is absolutely not true that Eddie Kasko's back problem originated from too much bending over to....oh, never mind.

* * * *

I'd hate to see the UMass lockerroom after a LOSS.

* * * *

Somehow "Abdul Kareem lays it up and in" doesn't sound right.

* * * *

Contrary to popular expectations, the Patriots worked better than the plumbing Sunday.

* * * *

Duane Thomas is back. The question is how much will it hurt the Cowboys?

* * * *

The San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers are having trouble deciding who wants to choke the most...funny but the Red Sox never had any trouble making that decision.

* * * *

I see where Racquel Welch is playing roller derby. Talk about Bay Area Bombers!

* * * *

If Nance has any more trouble cutting with his injured toe than he did healthy, he'll never make it around the bend in the lockerroom.

* * * *

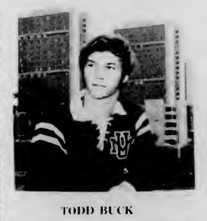
Who the hell is Perry Pruett?

* * * *

If UMass beats Dartmouth Saturday, it will be the first time in 21 games....talk about "law of averages"!

Booters Boast Veteran Defense

By STEVE FERBER



Left for us to explore is the defense of the UMass soccer squad. Unlike the forwards and halfbacks, the fullbacks' trademark is experience, and heralded for their spectacular success last season, this year's returning defense will be expected to produce more of the same.

UMass carries eight fullbacks and two goalies up to Maine tomorrow, and seven of those players are either juniors or seniors.

Naturally one would expect that with all this talent and background, that last year's feat of yielding 10 goals in 11 games could be improved upon; but problems have arisen, in the way of injuries and missing persons, making this presumption far from a sure thing.

Fullbacks have a rather uncomplicated task - keep the ball out of the nets, and they accomplish this by picking up opponent's forwards and challenging them one on one.

But the fullbacks job is a little more intriguing than booting the ball out of their own territory. It is their job to start the plays, because a casual clearing kick downfield inevitably results in the opposition resuming its charge. When UMass really has the heat on the fullbacks move up towards the mid-field line and keep drilling the ball into the Redmen's offensive territory. This is their only chance to really get involved in the scoring.

TODD BUCK

But the fullback is for defense, and UMass, with four fullbacks, play a somewhat interesting alignment. Three of the fullbacks play on one line, each having the assignment of picking up a forward charging downfield. Behind these three is the fourth fullback, frequently referred to as the "sweeper" who has the job of calling defensive positions, filling in for the goalie if need be, and picking up any man that happens to pierce the line of the three fullbacks.

Working closely with the fullbacks is the goalie, whose quickness, throwing and kicking ability all are a vital factor in stopping the attack, and mounting one of his own.

Two top defensive men from last year's squad won't be with this Maine-bound team. Joey Cerniawski, an All-Yankee Conference fullback, is lost due to a leg injury, and Paul Leary, last year's standout sophomore goalie, never came out for the team.

But talent is plentiful, so we'll see what members of Coach Berryman's squad will be out to defend that YanCon title.

JOHN KIAH

Todd Buck--Buck is a junior who has excellent speed. Buck is a steady and consistent performer, who played his finest game to date last Saturday. His aggressiveness and good kicking ability will be of great help to this experienced defense.

Bobby Grom--Grom plays wing fullback, and is excellent at keeping his man out, away from the offensive zone. This senior "turns the ball up very well" and is one of six returning lettermen from the fullback group.

Gary Hart--another letterman, and another senior, Hart also plays wing halfback. Hart also did a good job last Saturday, as he excels on goal kicks, often sending ball flying over the mid-field line. Hart is among the tallest members of the squad and on corner kicks he can be found right in front of the goal, ready to head it in, as soon as C'alheno lets go.

Dick McCarron--Having recovered from a head injury incurred last week vs. Amherst, McCarron will be going to Maine, and will most likely see some action. A very consistent ballplayer, McCarron too is a senior letterman.

GARY HART

Robert Merrill--One of the two sophomore fullbacks is Merrill, and he's going to have loads of trouble finding playing time this year. But Merrill has looked extremely good scrimmaging against the varsity, and is a valuable prospect for coming years.

Dave Ouellette--Known as "Whale" to all, Ouellette is the sweeper back, the field marshal who calls out the defensive plays and tells who to go where. Ouellette is only a junior, yet played all last year at this same position, and is known for his excellent endurance. Ouellette's plays without a specific man assignment, similar to the safety in football.

Paul Slack--Another tall senior, Slack is filling in for Cerniawski at center fullback. Slack's job is to come out and meet that middle man driving down the field and he does this with great consistency and success. Like Hart, Slack moves downfield when UMass gets corner kicks, helping out on head balls whenever possible.

Curt Syer--Like Merrill, Syer is only a sophomore, with a great deal of promise. Also like Merrill, Syer has shown a great deal in scrimmages against the varsity and is good material to have in reserve.

John Kiah--Kiah has the goaltending job all to his lonesome, as the varsity doesn't even have a backup man, and is borrowing a goalie from the freshmen team in case Kiah gets injured. Kiah is the backup goalie for the UMass hockey team and has been progressing rather well. Talking to his fullbacks, and generally communicating with his backfield is of prime importance and Kiah is learning his job well. A junior with good hands, Kiah did an excellent job last Saturday, shutting out all three opponents.

DAVE OUELLETTE

Carl Vercollone--This freshmen will be the backup goalie for Kiah, as the freshmen squad is loaded with four goaltenders. Little is known about Vercollone, as he, like freshmen forward Tom Coburn, has had little chance to work with the varsity.

Six forwards, seven halfbacks, eight fullbacks and two goalie's will accompany Coach Berryman to Maine. Only one senior is among both the forwards and halfbacks, but the fullbacks more than make up for this lack of experience.

Undoubtedly UMass will again be a defensive minded ballclub, and just how well Kiah adjusts, and how much the losses of Cerniawski and Thraya mean, remains to be seen.

"Chain Gang" Unchained From Sidelines

PITTSBURGH, Kan. (AP)—Three long-haired Pittsburgh State College athletes have stirred up a hornet's nest in this community of 20,000.

"Known as the "chain gang" for Pittsburgh's football games, the three are basketball players Randy Smith and John Corker of Overland Park, Kan., and Terry Benson of Lawrence, Kan., who finished his basketball eligibility last season.

Smith, Corker and Benson had the job of moving the chains up and down the field as the game progressed all of last year and the first game on Sept. 11 this season. They received $6.40 each per game.

When the crew took the field Sept. 11, Carnie Smith no relation to Randy, the college's athletic director, took exception to their long hair and their dress. So did scores of Pittsburgh residents, who complained to Carnie.

"We looked in the rule book," Corker said Thursday, "and it said the chain gang should be easily seen. Brother, we were seen all right. We were set off pretty good from everybody else."

Corker said that in addition to the long hair, two of the athletes wore red and white sox, red sweatshirts and tennis shoes and that Randy wore a red, white and blue shirt. One of them wore purple bellbottom trousers.

That did it for Carnie Smith, 61. That did it for the student chain gang.

"One of them wore sort of a pointed bizarre hat," said Carnie, ex-Pittsburg coach who guided Pittsburg to NAIA national football titles in 1957 and 1961, "and the boys had their pants legs rolled up and displayed those striped sox.

"The chain people are part of the officials who work the game. They should dress accordingly. I called the boys into the office and told them they had to get haircuts, that their hair couldn't touch their eyebrows or the backs of their shirts and sideburns couldn't come below the bottom of their ears.

"We argued about it for some 90 seconds. They decided they didn't want the job under these circumstances. As far as I'm concerned, they quit. Carnie Smith had a new chain gang at the Sept. 18 game.

"Carnie told us we lost our jobs unless we shaped up," Corker said. "It's discrimination. We thought we were hired because we did a good job."

Dartmouth Invades UMass

By EARLE BARROLL

You couldn't ask for a better home opener. Dartmouth at UMass. It's the top game on the New England card, pitting two new head coaches, one team with continued destruction on its mind, the other with revenge as its motive and a memory of last year's clash when one team felt it should have won although the score said no. It's a natural in all respects and it gets underway tomorrow at Alumni Stadium at 1 p.m.

Dartmouth is the defending Lambert Trophy Winner, symbolic of Eastern Collegiate football supremacy. Coming into their season opener the Indians have won 17 of their last 18 over the last two seasons. In the history of this rivalry dating back to 1902 Dartmouth has won 19 of the 20 games with one ending in a tie.

Jay Crouthamel is the new man at the helm for the Indians. He's not new to the program, however, as he coached defense under Bob Blackman the man he succeeded and turned in a sparkling record including last season when the Dartmouth defense allowed only 4.7 points a game and shutout six opponents.

The Big Green faces a new role in the Ivy League this season. They are only a contender and not the dominating team they have been in the past. The reason is the added strength of the entire league, a league that has risen in overall strength to a role of prominance in the east.

The UMass coaching staff has not had the opportunity to scout Dartmouth for this game. Head coach Dick MacPherson said yesterday that he expects no changes in the Big Green defense with Crouthamel as coach, but is only guessing that Dartmouth will go with the offense of last year which means a many formation, option sprint out attack.

The Indians have lost via graduation Steve Chasey, one of the top quarterbacks in the nation last season but from the reports this position is strong again with Bill Pollock and Steve Stetson calling the signals.

Dartmouth has a fine nucleus of running backs. This year the Ivy league has an abundance of top flight runners including Ed Marinaro of Cornell and Dick Jauron of Yale and Dartmouth has its own bread and butter man in fullback Stu Simms.

Defensively the Indians employ a 4-4-3 man to man coverage figuring their personnel is man for man equal or better than the opposition. All-American Murray Bowden has graduated and this leaves the only dent in the defense. Up front the line is big, quick and strong, led by a couple of 250 pound tackles and defensive end Fred Radke who is a good one.

For MacPherson this will be his first home game at the helm of UMass. In his season opener last week the Redmen defeated Maine 13-0.

MacPherson calls this game, "A natural for student body interest, the type of game we need each week at home."

Last year these two teams had a stand off for three quarters until Dartmouth broke away for a 27-0 victory which looked good on paper, but as Bill DeFalvio said at the Varsity M luncheon on Wednesday, "Nothing can be said after losing to them last year after we should have won."

Dartmouth has had a chance to scout UMass in two games, Cornell and Maine, but it only remains to be seen what they've learned.

Practice sessions this week have been intent according to MacPherson, with the players recognizing the fact that "little things in a game of equal talent is what counts in the final score."

"The players are ready," Mac said in closing, "we have a program of psychology working now to calm them down for the game."

The starting lineup for UMass will be just about the same as last week with the exception of Dick Cronin replacing the injured Mike Sawyer at fullback and the possible return of Steve Schubert at wide receiver. The remainder of the offense has Tim Berra at halfback, Peil Pennington at quarterback, and Bob Cabrelli at end with Bob Donlin, Dick Etna, Clarence Brooks, Dave Levine and Ron Marino up front.

The defense will have Curt Bristol and Steve Greaney at ends; Bill DeFlavio and Skip Parmenter at tackles; Joe Sabulis, Doug Winslow and Dennis Collins at linebackers; and Bill Bush, Ray Bouchard, Jack O'Neil and Pat Brady in the backfield with the possibility of co-captain Dennis Keating starting in place of Bouchard if he is ready to play.

STEVE GREANEY

CURT BRISTOL

BILL DEFLAVIO

SKIP PARMENTER

Daily Collegian SPORTS

Metawampe's Picks

After an exhausting trip up north to the Pine Tree State, the Great One has spent the last week in his teepee trying to figure out what went wrong. Not since the hoop disaster of '70 has the Wild Warrior had his ass kicked so badly. But the Great One has arisen from the basement of the Cage and is ready to take one more stab at Jimmy the Greek (who as you all know is a descendent of an ancient rival tribe).

UMass 24, Dartmouth 20
If there's anything more fun than sex,
It's when UMass halts the Big Green hex.

* * *

Rhode Island 13, Brown 3
The Bruins are out to kill the Ram
But they couldn't even chop a lamb.

* * *

Harvard 17, Holy Cross 0
In their first game, Holy Cross
Will take a Crimson colored loss.

* * *

New Hampshire 41, Delaware 40 1/2
To beat New Hampshire the Blue Hens will try,
But the Wildcats will feast on chicken pot pie.

* * *

Vermont 29, Bucknell 24
Last week the Catamounts won instant fame,
This week the Bisons are open game.

* * *

Yale 26, UConn 3
This game shapes up as a real dogfight.

* * *

Boston College 21, Navy 7
The Eagles recover from opening game disaster,
To help the Midshipmen sink a bit faster.

* * *

Boston University 10, The Citadel 9
After this game, the Terrier
Will be a little bit merrier

* * *

Hofstra 10, Maine 0
The Black Bears travel south this week,
And the Flying Dutchmen, destruction will reek.

* * *

Auburn 42, Tennessee 35
Tigers are rolling with Sullivan and Beasley,
And Tennessee they should beat very easily.
Air Force 17, Wyoming 14
Alabama 37, Southern Mississippi 18
Arizona State 39, Utah 6
Patriots 20, Raiders 6
Arkansas 54, Tulsa 10
Georgia Tech 41, Army 9
Bullets 93, Knicks 92
California 27, San Jose State 11
Georgia 36, Clemson 20
Ohio State 50, Colorado 38
Duke 23, Virginia 18
Scott 10, Parker 8
Rossovitch 8, Sanity 0
Kansas 29, Florida State 21
LSU 23, Wisconsin 13
Michigan State 27, Oregon State 23
Missouri 20, SMU 9
Nebraska 43, Texas A & M 13
North Carolina 31, Maryland 7

THE GREAT ONE

Finkel 21, Hawkins 16
Notre Dame 46, Purdue 31
Oklahoma 34, Pittsburgh 28
Penn St. 47, Iowa 37
Texas 58, Texas Tech. 19
Syracuse 35, Northwestern 6
Patriots 20, Raiders 6
UCLA 29, Michigan 28
USC 33, Rice 0
Los Angeles 25, Atlanta 21
Cleveland 17, Baltimore 14
Miami 42, Buffalo 35
Minnesota 27, Chicago 0
Cincinnati 32, Pittsburgh 12
Dallas 45, Philadelphia 2
Denver 20, Green Bay 18
Kansas City 33, Houston 7
San Francisco 29, New Orleans 15
Washington 14, New York Giants 11
New York Jets 28, St. Louis 24
San Diego 18, Oakland 0
New England 28, Detroit 7
Celtics 24, Bruins 12
Pepitone 7, Mantle 2
Jabber 33, Alcindor 0
Mathias 6, Ryan 2
The Stick 48, Classes 0
Cohn 6, Flip 5
Yellow River 27, Slippery Rock 28

Soccermen Open At Maine

By STEVE FERBER

How would you feel if your team had lost a freshman soccer player, who was an All-Yankee Conference selection, who had broken the single season scoring records for goals (despite missing four games) for the school, and who led the Yankee Conference in scoring with 22 points? Probably not too good. But that's what happened to the Black Bears of Maine, as the UMass soccer team travels to Orono, Maine tomorrow for a 1 p.m. contest to face a Maine team that looks around each day and finds another starter missing.

At 1:00 p.m. the battle begins as UMass opens up its season, facing a Maine team with two games under its belt. To date Maine is 1-0, defeating Jersey City last Saturday by 2-0. On Wednesday, it was Maine-Colby, but at the time of this writing the results of that game were unavailable.

Last year's Maine squad was the finest in the school's history, as a 7-2-3 record earned them a third place tie in the Yankee Conference. Expected back from that team were 11 letterman, all top notch players, but as of yesterday, seven, yes seven of the 11 were not on the UMaine roster.

Osode was the big loss for Maine; he's that talented forward who would have been going into his sophomore year. Osode, the former defensive captain for the Nigerian soccer team in the 1968 Olympics, scored 10 goals in 8 games last year, and in addition accumulated 12 assists. But his whereabouts were a mystery to Maine until earlier this week when it was discovered that he had enrolled at Columbia University, and the loss of a super star was confirmed.

But Maine could pose some problems, because despite missing a number of key players, they had an excellent freshmen team last season, and this year UMass just might be facing a sophomore goalie with a great deal of promise.

Last year's matchup in Amherst saw UMass on top 5-1, as the Redmen outshot the Black Bears by a 27-13 margin. To see a repeat of that game would be highly desireable for UMass, because the offense has been sluggish of late, having scored more than one goal only twice this preseason, and having not scored at all a number of times.

Currently, UMass is solidly in fourth place in the New England rankings. Only Harvard, Brown and Springfield remain above. But quite obviously these ratings are based on last year's performance and the number of returning lettermen to these respective teams.

Hopefully UMass can hold on to that fourth slot, and conceivably go somewhat higher. What is needed tomorrow is a duplication of last year's romp, as the outcome in Orono should tell us a great deal about what lies ahead on the UMass 11-game schedule.

Sports Notices

WMUA—Tomorrow's game with Dartmouth will be broadcast live over WMUA, 91.1 FM. The pre-game show will be hosted by Marty Kelley and will begin at 12:30. Athletic Director Warren McGuirk will be the featured guest. Kent Best will call the play by play beginning at 12:45 with Kelley on color.

* * * *

NAIADS—The Univ. Aquatic Art Club will conduct tryouts for new members on Thurs., Sept. 27 & 28, 6-7 p.m. at which time Club members will demonstrate and teach skills to be included in the tryouts.

* * * *

KARATE—Anyone interested in joining a Karate or Judo Club please contact: Bill-6-7840, Archie-6-8992, or Ron-6-8825. Needed: people with experience who are willing to instruct. Meeting Monday, Sept. 27, 7 p.m. Room 811 Campus Center.

Parking Change

The first home game is tomorrow. A large crowd is expected for the game. Vehicles assigned to "V" lot should not park in "V" lot during a home game.

Please move your vehicle from "V" lot to "F" lot or any other convenient lot prior to Saturday morning... The Office of the Parking Coordinator.

X-Country Race Sunday

The Sunday afternoon recreational runs will begin this Sunday Sept. 26 at 4:00 PM at the track. Organized by the members of the cross country team, this running program will serve as a get together for the variety of reasons that appear to them.

Some have used it as a preparation for the intramural race, as a place to meet fellow joggers, others to meet a date, (1 out of 6 runners in the past years have been co-eds), or to influence a grade (1 out of 10 runners in the past were faculty).

Last year there was a ten minute spread between the first and last finishers indicating there is someone to run with if you are there for a race, or just a pleasurable jog irregardless of your background or present ability.

If you like to run, spread the word to the students, faculty, wives, children -- SUNDAY 4:00 PM -- approximately 3 miles on the grass and cinder roads surrounding the outdoor track.

Weekend

By BOB NESTI

Theater

Harvey (Friday, Saturday, Sunday evenings)
Mary Chase's Pulitzer Prize winning comedy about Elwood P. Dowd, a bumbling, amiable middle-aged boozer and his best friend--a six foot three and one half white rabbit named Harvey will be performed Friday evening through Sunday evening at 8:30 in Kirby Theater, Amherst College. ($)

Measure For Measure
Shakespeare's bitter comedy will be performed Friday and Sunday evenings at 8, at Saturday afternoon at 2:30, at Theater 14, Smith College. ($)

Things: The Nature and Purpose Of The Universe
Two plays by the two winners of a department run playwriting contest at Smith last semester. They both are of contrasting themes and styles and will be performed in a premiere presentation this Saturday evening at 8 in Theater 14, Smith College. ($)

Films

Billy Jack (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
A sincere yet blatantly cliched Modern Day Western in which the Hero (part Indian) protects a freak--run progressive school against the forces of Reactionaries. Despite its initial appeal, it hardly ever rises above the level of a Grade-B melodrama.

Claire's Knee

Carnal Knowledge (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
The sexual vacuum of the American Male is incisively and brutally explored in this Mike Nichols--Jules Feiffer collaboration. It is a very funny yet ultimately depressing portrait of two educated men, from their college days (at Amherst) through today. The Alm benefits greatly from an intelligent, taut script, beautifully realized direction, and extraordinary performances from Jack Nicholson, Arthur Garfunkel, Candice Bergen, and Ann-Margret.

Claire's Knee (Talkie, Northampton)
A serious, subtle and captivating film about the complexities of human behavior. A woman writer goads a male friend into having a verbal love affair with a sixteen year old girl only to realize he loves another teenager. An incisive screenplay and impeccable direction by Eric Rohmer makes this foreign film one of the most perfect of the year.

The Clowns (Academy of Music, Northampton)
See Review elsewhere in issue.

Getting Straight (Saturday, Sage Hall, Smith College, 9:30)
College radicalism, Hollywood Style and undoubtedly one of the worst films in recent years. It lacks focus, pace, and style giving the effect of a Rococo television commercial. Elliot Gould and Candice Bergen are wasted in this exercise which bears little resemblance to reality.

The Grissom Gang (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
Ludicrous and lousy is this Thirties thriller about a gang of hillbillies who kidnap a heiress. It is so bad that it seems at times almost a parody; unfortunately Robert Aldrich directs his cast in such an uncomplimentary manner that he nearly insults them. Kim Darby is bad, Scott Wilson is mindlessly worse and Connie Stevens adds only excess waste to this violent and foolish mess.

The Hellstrom Chronicle (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)
A highly interesting, beautifully photographed look into the insect world that soffers from a preachy, overdone script. Sit back and enjoy the photography.

Lovers and Other Strangers (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
One of last year's better comedies. It is an adult, sometimes raw look into the follies of American marriages and mores with a superlative cast headed by Gig Young and Ann Jackson.

The Madwoman of Chaillot (Thursday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9:30)
An overdone, heavy film version of the somewhat dated satiric comedy of the early Fifties. Katherine Hepburn parodies herself well as the title character and a large cast floats in and out only to needless excess.

McCabe and Mrs. Miller (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Robert Altman's divergent view of the West makes a fascinating and enjoyable film. It manages to evoke a "feel" of the Old West as no other recent Western has accomplished. Warren Beatty as a maverick wheeler dealer and Julie Christie as a cigar-smoking madam both shine.

My Fair Lady (Sunday, SU Ballroom, 11:00, 2:30, 6:30, 9:30)
George Cukor's marvelous realization of one of the finest of American's Post War Musicals. Rex Harrison and Stanley Hollaway repeat their stage roles with equal finesse, and Audrey Hepburn repeat their stage roles with George Cukor's marvelous realization of one of the finest of America's Post War Musicals. Rex Harrison and Stanley Hollaway repeat their stage roles with equal finesse, and Audrey Hepburn shows a delightful range with her fetching portrayal of Eliza Doolittle.

Fredrico Fellini directs a scene from The Clowns, his latest film now at the Academy of Music in Northampton. It is reviewed elsewhere in this issue.

In "HARVEY" Veta Louise Simmons (Elizabeth Egbert) urges Elwood P. Dowd (Geoffrey Keller) to take formula 977 so he won't see that big white rabbit anymore. Dr. Chumley (Kenneth Hoxsie) prepares the injection. It happens in this week's Amherst Summer Theater production. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Kirby Theater on the Amherst College campus. For tickets, call 542-2278 or visit the box office 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The musical was an adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion" and the Lerner and Loewe script remains intact as is Lerner's script.

The Omega Man (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield,; Calvin Theater, Northampton)
Charleston Heston (who was Moses and Michelangelo) is now the Last Man On Earth up against the wall with some mutilated victims of a germ war. Let It Bleed.

The Professionals (Friday, CC Aud., 6, 8, 10)
A group of four professional fighters are hired by a rich American to cross the Mexican border to retrieve his wife. Richard Brooks has made a whopping good Western ably delivered by an excellent cast headed by Burt Lancaster, Lee Marvin, Jack Palance, and Woody Strode.

The Red Tent (Amherst Cinema, Amherst)
A 1950's style adventure yarn about the ill-fated 1928 Arctic expeidition by Italian explorer Umberto Nobile. It is large in production and scope as well as being exciting and handsomely photographed. The cast is fine and is headed by Peter Finch, Sean Connery, and Claudia Cardinals.

Summer of '42 (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)
Congenial, if occasionally overly sentimental, film about a young man's growing pangs. Directed with a sustained lyricism which is fascinating to watch. Gary Grimes plays a young man infatuated with a young married woman (Jennifer O'Neill).

Films On Television

The Secret War of Harry Frigg (Saturday, 9 p.m., ch. 22, 30)
Paul Newman's talents are wasted thoroughly in this corny and silly service comedy. The story's about an escape artist who parachutes into occupied Italy and executes an improbable plan to save five captive Allied officers.

Portrait in Black (Saturday, 11:25 p.m., ch. 3)
A glossy piece of nonsense about infidelity and murder which Lana Turner and Anthony Quinn as an infidel pair who murder Miss Turner's wealthy husband and suffer the dire consequences. It's a positively boorish melodrama filled with soap opera opulence.

Lafayette Escadrille
Tab Hunter as the prodigal son who joins the Army.

The Mountain Road (Saturday, 11:30 p.m., ch. 8)
A little anti-war vignette about Allied demolition teams in Southeast Asia at the end of the Second World War. It moves slowly, if sincerely, towards making its point. Stars James Stewart.

Orphans Of The Storm (Saturday, 11:30 p.m., ch. 22)

The Grissom Gang

D. W. Griffith's look at the French Revolution, featuring the Gish Sister, made in 1919.

The Mummy (Saturday, 11:30 p.m., ch. 30)
An archaeologist uncovers a mummy in ancient Egypt. The mummy turns out to be Boris Karloff and alive and kicking after a two thousand year old hiatus.

Bandolero (Sunday, 7:30 p.m., ch. 3)
Dean Martin. Lots of blood and Racquel Welch.

The Silencers (Sunday, 9 p.m., ch. 40)
Dean Martin, same song, second verse (this time with Stella Stevens).

The Opposite Sex (Sunday, 11:05 p.m., ch. 3)
Clare Booth Luce's catty play "The Woman" was spruced up with tunes and a lavish production and re-emerged film of equal finesse and style. The cast is of vintage Fifties stock headed by June Allyson, Joan Collins, Dolores Grey, Ann Sheridan, Ann Miller, and Leslie Neilson.

TAKE TWO

Free Angela!

...a general meeting of the Black community of the University of Mass. voted last Saturday to begin an emergency project to aid Black political prisoners presently "in danger of their lives" in California prisons. The decision followed a meeting called by the W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro-American Studies which was addressed by Miss Jean Wiley, a member of the department presently on leave from the University to act as archivist and to compile a journal of the political and legal events surrounding the trial of Black Professor Angela Davis in California. "It is important," Miss Wiley said, "that the Black community nationally begins to understand the meaning of all these trials...she is being persecuted because she is Black and because she chose to support the struggles of Black prisoners to obtain justice from the system. Contrary to public opinion and the widespread publicity engendered by the trials, the Black defendants, Angela Davis, Ruchell MacGee, and the Soledad brothers, had virtually no money to conduct their defenses."

"THE PRINCIPAL INJUSTICE concerns the indeterminate sentence ploy--a prisoner can be theoretically freed after a year or kept in jail forever--whenever the prisoner takes a political position which the prison authorities cannot simplify to their own prejudices," Mike Thelwell, Chairman of the Department of Afro-American Studies pointed out. "Furthermore, it is incredible that after all the activity around these cases, the lawyers for Angela Davis should be unable to afford the services of a legal secretary. It is unthinkable that Ruchell MacGee should be unable to afford seven hundred dollars for a court transcript. It is incredible that the royalties from George Jackson's book should be tied up and unavailable for his defense while he was alive."

...a second meeting for organization met on September 17 and a committee to plan and implement the campaign was formally established. Participation by white organizations in this campaign will be accepted with gratitude.

Mike Thelwell agreed to serve as temporary chairman of the Emergency Defense Committee, and Sister Lillian Anthony of the School of Education will serve as Coordinator. The Committee's office will be Room 310 Mills House, tel. 545-2751. An account has been opened at the First National Bank of Amherst in the name of the Emergency Defense Fund under the signatures of Thelwell and Anthony.

The committee follows:

NAME	ORGANIZATION/SCHOOL	TELEPHONE NUMBER
Mel Smith	U.Mass Dept. of Afro Am	545 2751
Anne Draniginis	U Mass Young Workers Lib	549 0142
Chester Davis	U Mass Dept. of Afro Am
Lillian D. Anthony	U Mass School of Ed
Alvin Schmidt	U Mass Committee on Poverty	R.S.O. Box 340 D
Sam Johnson	U Mass Christian Foundation	S 2661 549 0148
Allan Fisher	PULP U Mass	546 6826
Paul Mishler	PCU U Mass	546 6826
Anne Chametzky	Women's Lib., Amherst	253 5723
Eugene Terry	Hampshire College	549 0109
Jackie Berryman	Harambe, U Mass	549 1377 52751
May Ellen Bias	U Mass, CCEBS staff	545 0031 549 3651
Napoleon Jasper	Amherst College	586 3559
Lawrence S. Riddick	Dartmouth College
Robert Wilson	Amherst	584 2385
Rick O Daniel	Amherst	542 2529
Alfred Minor	Dartmouth Afro Am
Van Harris	S.B.A.	546 4243
Johnnetta Cole	U Mass Dept. of Afro Am	52651 50425
Marilyn Leonard	Mt. Holyoke Hist. Blk. Stud	533 6098
Ingrid White	U Mass
Gloria Montgomery	U Mass	256 8812
Jean A. Parrish	U Mass	548 9567
Orrie West	Drum, U Mass
Sybil Hammond	Mt. Holyoke College	ext 333
Walter Stewart	Mt. Holyoke College	533 6098

JEAN WILEY

Revolution at The Traffic Lights

There is an interesting attitude afoot today, and I'd like to run it down while following a gentlewoman across the main intersection of a small New England town, Amherst. As she stands there on the corner the law like the lord speaks directly to her: DON'T WALK. The conversation is interrupted--two blacks are crossing the street slowly, talking fast, not listening to the law. The gentlewoman interrupts their rap. "The sign says DON'T WALK, SHE SAYS, and she waits and then crosses to her bank to deposit. Swift service gets her back into the street again and she steps from the sidewalk to recross. Remembers: the law is speaking--is more quickly reminded when a fast Ford hanging a right tangles her hair, is embarrassed and frustrated when the law catches her eye, returns the stare: DON'T WALK. Oh yes, she forgot to push the WALK button. She turns to reach it, but before her eye left the law it was already changing its mind to WALK. The button is on the wrong side of the pole and then she sees the blacks returning from the other corner having taken care of their business and she is about to finger them for breaking another law when the law finally gets thru to her--WALK it still says. With an excitement born of the diligence required to have saved a lifelong of pennies and a lifelong of seconds, she hurries to obey the law. So be it.

Is the gentlewoman full of shit? Kindness argues that the case not be taken beyond the essential dilemma. She is absolutely certain that from this day forward we must stop all blacks from breaking any law under the sun--we must stop the revolution at the traffic sign. If we can keep telling them when to WALK they CAN'T charge.

So be it, mam.

One of My Best Friends

Who gardens in the town flowers,
Raises his hat to pregnant conductors
Of stationwagons,
His heel misconducting an orange poppy
To boths God, formerly, Our Father?

Who works on the holidays
Which used to be sabbath,
We now call Sunday?
He works,
The Sun works--part time,
The rest rest.

Whose left hand is lame--
A limp pendulum of 67 years--
Holding a cool seed
Which will not grow,
Will not die?

Which is sacred
In the black hand
And will not work
With the nigger
Who begins at the shoulder,
Ends in white shoes
Dancing with--
Of all colors-- Flowers!

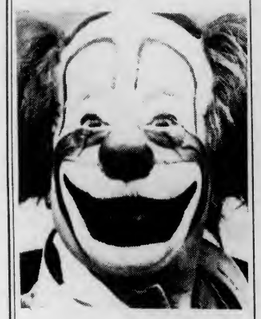
RICHARD HARDIE



Films

By ELLIOT EISENBERG

The Clowns (a film by Frederico Fellini, at the Academy, Northampton)

"Well, you really picked a b-buster of a movie to start with," one of my friends told me.

He wasn't kidding.

The Clowns is a complex movie. It appears to be a documentary of European circus clowns, but without researching the film you never know whether the interviews which are interspersed with the acts are legit, or whether Fellini's pulling your leg.

It would be easy to believe that these talks with the aging performers about themselves, their careers and the circus have been carefully rehearsed and are being replayed for our benefit. And in a taxicab, Fellini and his crew ask the cabbie whether he knows of a certain clown. "Never heard of him...No, I don't go to the circus; I have more important things to do!" he exclaims. Is it all for real? I have no idea.

For some people The Clowns would be worth seeing simply for the bright, kaleidoscopic colors that come with a circus, and the music which in the circus becomes the language of the clowns.

But the clowns, says the small boy through whom we are introduced to them, didn't please him: they spooked him. Their faces were the faces of the ragged, deformed and tragicomic of his townspeople. It is at this point that the film is at its best-in the Maupassant-O'Henry vignetts of people who have nothing to do with the circus, but whose faces and beings put them in ring three.

And if some of the townspeople were sad, the clowns in their real-lives are even more so. Over and over again, one tells us that the world of which he is a part is dying, and the clowns themselves are-quite literally-dying. They are old in their eighties and nineties, some of them; they drink, and some of them speak from hospital rooms.

"How do you pass the day?" one of them is asked.

"It's a quiet life," he says. "During the day I feed my canaries...Then there's my wife...It's a quiet life."

***

Not being a film freak there is very possibly much in The Clowns that I've missed. What can I tell you?

It's not a bad movie. It's faces evoked something in me, something of broken and drinking men I've known in a world that for reasons beyond their control is falling apart.

But it's not a great movie. It couldn't hold my attention to the end, and the ending itself wasn't that satisfying.

See it, though, if you like Fellini, and get his answer when an interviewer looks at the filming and asks, "Frederico, what are you trying to tell us by this?"

By MARTIN CALABRESE

DEATH IN VENICE

A film directed by Luchino Visconti, starring Dick Borgade (MGM).

DEATH IN VENICE must be seen. It is an exquisite, visually stimulating, emotionally pulsating, curiously penetrating experience that bombards the senses.

Luchino Visconti's film version is not Thomas Mann's original story. It is a film that has selected, rearranged, and expanded the material to meet the needs of the media and to fully utilize the uniqueness of the media to add its particular dimension of sight and sound in larger than life size.

Its strengths as a film are found in the conflict of sight, sound, and ideas found in the book that are so vividly brought to life through the understanding and sensitivity of Visconti, the director, and the capable, well controlled performances of Dirk Bogart and Silvana Mangano. There is a constant tension erected between the carneverous death images of ancient, dying Venice and the exaltation of beauty.

Venice was once rich in the grandeur of the finest Italian culture. At the turn of the century when the film takes place it is a city in the ruin of commercialism. Death swims off the shore of the Lido where the wealthy bathed. Death lurks in the cabbled alleys as the prostitutes once did. Cholera is everywhere. Aschenbach finds ideal beauty in the form of a boy, the angel of death, who seductively delivers his message. And it is this tension that tears at the heart, penetrates the mind, and discovers the fears of death, the joys of beauty, and the throbbing sense of fulfillment that is felt by man in his hunting of the elusive ideal of beauty.

Aschenbach, the composer, pursues ideal beauty first in his field of work, music then in the beguilingly handsome, yet strikingly neuter boy, Tadzio. There is a scene in a dining room when Aschenbach and Tadzio come close to each other, almost touch each other, only stare at each other that gives us that one startling glimpse into man; man acting and reacting, all so visually manifeast with such vitality of image and depth of passion.

The music by Mahler, his Third and Fifth Symphonies, and the cinematography carry the emotions from ecstasy to ecstasy by slowly collect.ng a vast mindful of rich, evocative images of death and beauty, joy and love and horror climaxing in the portrait of a death in Venice.

Program Council Night Club

Student Union Ballroom

Sat., September 25, 8:00 p.m.

STARRING — Direct from Florida

"TOM TEDROW"

Also

Country Blues, Folk

The "SOUND DIMENSIONS"

Direct from the Club "Aquarius" in Boston

College ID Required, Positive 21 Identification for Beverages

The Great Marijuana War

By David Williams

Part III

Eric lay flat on his back in a hospital, wondering what had happened. First there had been that strange man with the money who made the dope disappear. Then, there was that strange bunch of hookers that he had herded together. One after another, all so impatient. But boy, that was nothing. Penicillin was pretty heavy. And just in time.

Now he lay on his back and chuckled to himself. All these pretty nurses and pills, and a color tv to watch the late movies on, and pills, and breakfast in bed, and good coffee, and pills. Eric chuckled some more as the nurse wheeled her little cart full of pills up to his bed.

"Well, how are you this afternoon?" she asked sweetly. "Time for your pills, " she interrupted before Eric had a chance to say anything.

But Eric already had his mouth open for the pills and wouldn't have been able to answer anyway.

"There we go," said the nurse. "That's a good boy. Sleep tight, now." She wheeled the cart out of the room, shutting off the light as she went.

Eric sank back onto his nice soft pillow and sighed. ahhhhh, this was the life.....

Meanwhile, Manuel stood fingering the little silver bell at the window. The dope was slowly falling to pieces and making a soft rattle as it hit the butcher's paper. Carlos and the other Mexican stood behind us with the guns, tense, jumpy.

Manuel turned from the window and signed. He looked down for a second at the little bell and sighed again. Then dropping the bell and turning to face us, he began.

"Ahhh, you foolish, foolish hippies. You steal my dope. What should I do with you? Kill you, or beat you and let you go? Maybe you didn't steal my marijuana. But how do I know you tell me the truth? Maybe you lie to Manuel, eh?"

"But we didn't steal it, Manuel," I pleaded. "We just found it when we opened our package of weeds."

"Yeah, man. C'mon now, cut the shit! said Art. "Untie these rages and let us go!"

Manuel laughed. "Hal, listen to him! He's tied in a chair with a gun at his head and he talks like that."

"Yah, you fat wetback! Now untie these goddam ropes!" Art was really flaring.

Manuel turned bright red and stepped forward to clobber Art when the phone rang. He whipped around, snatching the phone up as he turned. Then he pulled a long knife out of his coat pocket and handed me the phone. He stood over me playing with the knife. I couldn't pick up the phone because my hands were tied so the guard had to hold it.

"Hello?" I asked.

"Well, I've got to hand it to you this time," said a loud voice, "I'd thought I'd seen everything when someone sold you goldenrod, but donkey shit and corn silk? Come on, now."

What a relief.

"No kidding, boss? It's really donkey shit and corn silk?" I said.

"Yup, it sure is," he replied. "Well, just thought I'd let you know. Oh, by the way, someone

"Well, you know how it is," he said. "Business was bad and I needed a cash reserve so I could score from a friend of mine so I all your losses. Here we have 100 pounds of marijuana which belongs to me. However, I sold you 24 keys of bad marijuana, so I will be over to pick the money I gave you. See you later." And he hung up.

...I'd like to shoot a cannonball down Park Avenue..."

"Hey fatso," I shouted. "Get your fat butt over here and untie me, you crook."

Manuel threw me a very shocked look. "Looking for trouble, hippie?" he asked. He began to walk very slowly across the room towards me.

"Yah, you fat ass. That grass you sold us was no good. Donkey shit and corn silk. Now untie these goddam ropes and let us go."

Manuel's stern face began to dissolve into its regular rubbery features.

wouldn't lose all my customers. Maybe you won't believe me, but he burned me with the donkey shit and corn silk, too."

Manuel began to blush and turn very red. He shuffled around and looked down at his feet.

"Maybe if I untie you you won't be mad at me, eh?"

He motioned for Carlos and the other Mexican to untie us. I stood up and rubbed my wrists.

"Goddam, Manuel. Now what do we do? My boss is sending one of his men over to pick up the money he paid me for your crummy grass. Now we get stuck and it's all because of you!"

"Don't you worry, my friend," Manuel said. "I will make good will give you one bale. Then you can give your boss half and he will be happy and you can keep half and you will be happy? Is it a deal?"

"Alright, Manuel," I said. "It's a deal. Now just get the other bale and beat it, will you?"

"Carlos! Pick up the marijuana, let's go!" Manuel shouted. He opened the door to let Carlos and the other Mexican carry the dope out. He stood there watching us for a few seconds.

"Goodby, my friends," he said, and was gone.

"Well, it's about damn time," said Art. "That fat bastard was starting to get on my nerves. Coupla more minutes and I was going to let him have it."

"Sure, Art," I said. "Let's get this crap picked up and divided before the boss' man gets here. We'll give him half of this bale and we'll wait out in front. We can sell this stuff in an afternoon it's so good. Let's start to cut it up."

We dragged out a scale and about 100 boxes of Baggies and began to fill Baggies up as fast as we could. Art would tear the dope from the bale and break it up into little piles. I would jam the piles into the Baggies, toss them onto a scale for a second and then wrap them up and throw them in the corner. Right in the middle of the whole operation there was a loud knock on the door and the boss' man kicked his way into the apartment. He took one look at what we were doing and didn't even say a word. He picked up the half of the bale that was lying in the doorway and left. We just kept piling the dope into Baggies.

"Hey, Art," I said finally, "What time is it?"

"It's, uhh, it's a quarter to ten. Hey, I'm going out on the street to let word out, ok?"

"Fine. I'll finish up this little pile so I'll be ready when the buyers get here."

Art rushed down the stairs and over to Washington. All the little kids we had hired were lounging around, trying not to act suspicious. Art saw them and gave them the signal that he was ready. All the little kids nodded. Art leaned up against the arch and pretended to be reading a newspaper. Whenever anyone walked by, Art would mutter Want some grass? If the person did, he would stop and pretend to ask Art for a light. While he was lighting up a cigarette, he would tell Art how much he wanted. Then Art would tell him where to get it. As soon as the person walked away, a little kid would very nonchalantly fall in behind the guy. The guy would start to walk towards Art's apartment and while he went uptoget the dope the little kid would wait in the street. When the guy came out the little kid would follow him to wherever he was going. Whenever he made a sale to someone else, another little kid would follow this new buyer until the dope got so far away that the little kids couldn't find where it went.

It took about 3 hours to sell all the dope. Art's apartment was a madhouse. People were coming up the front stairs in huge crowds. They had to wait about a half hour while I rushed around trying to fill all these orders. Some people wanted pounds and that was easy enough. All I had to do was throw the right number of ounces in a big plastic bag and take the guy's money. But some people wanted just ounces and they insisted on picking one out for themselves. It was like a bargain basement. The worst ones were the well-dressed middle-aged ladies. They would fight over the Baggies and complain about this one having too many twigs or this one not enough seeds. Young girls were a

Continued on 6A

Acoustics

The Expendable Dynaflex Process

disparaged by Frank Johnson

Earlier this year record buyers noticed that their new records were getting thinner and lighter for some strange reason. This occurred at a time of still-unresolved economic problems, and many consumers believed that RCA, the perpetrator of the thin discs, was losing money and therefore had to charge the same inflated rate, but now for only 66% of the previous records.

Later it was disclosed that this was not the case. In the first place, most of the cost of a record goes into the promoting and packaging end of it. The next cost priority includes royalties for the artists and recording expenses; actual profit from the production of the discs themselves is not very large. Compared to what record companies are used to, the savings incurred by shaving plastic off discs would seem miniscule when juxtaposed with the expense of packaging and promoting. Actually, the newer records were heralded as a product of a new record making process, pioneered by RCA and known as "Dynaflex". This did not refer to the Charles Atlas method of isometric muscle exercises, but to the process involved with production of the new discs.

To begin with, there is nothing particularly revolutionary about Dynaflex records, other than the fact that they are thin. RCA tells us that Dynaflex discs are composed of 100% virgin vinyl, similar to that used for the finest classical pressings. Most pop record pressings, they point out, are composed of "seconds", reused plastic from earlier production runs melted down a second time, or even "thirds", which explains some of the abysmal record pressings we have been getting in recent years. The Dynaflex records, RCA maintains, allows not only a theoretically superior pressing but a virtually noise-free performance.

I decided to make objective tests of the merits of Dynaflex records, as I have 5 pressings of the new discs, some of which date back to the very first production runs. First of all, prior to the Dynaflex discs, RCA pop records had perhaps the worst noise characteristics of the entire record industry. (Evaluate some early recordings of the Jefferson Airplane or the Youngbloods and you can confirm this for yourself) The Dynaflex pressings merely meant that RCA could economically use better plastic. My test results showed that, in terms of record noise (not counting tape hiss from the master), the newer pressings did not herald anything new- the percentage of noise-free recordings was now on a par with all the other record companies, which stamped conventional discs. In this respect, RCA had taken a big step forward: equality.

What's bendable here is expendable. This record is made through the more common, traditional method and breaks when pressure is applied. Unfortunately the Rolling Stones were destroyed in the process.

I also tested storage and shelf life. My records are stored vertically in a record rack designed specifically for such purposes. Some of my collection dates back over 10 years- a healthy life for soft plastic. None of them have warped. I should point out that every one of my Dynaflex records have warped to some degree, which fortunately doesn't present too much of a problem for me, because the tone arm on my record changer has good freedom from warp interference. In much of today's audio equipment, however, warpage will dictate virtually whether or not a given record can be played at all. Much of today's fine record-playing equipment, regardless of how good or expensive it is, is not designed to play warped records, and there is no reason why it should be. It would seem to me that RCA has perpetrated some sort of advertising gimmick, disguised as a "revolutionary" new record stamping process.

Though RCA maintains that record warp is the fault of record dealers who allegedly don't store their records correctly, they do not realize that in many cases (such as my own) the records warped independently of the dealers, sometimes long after they were on the dealers' shelves. I would like to point out further that, in addition to the warpage preventing the actual playing of a disc, it can cause other undesireable factors relating either to the life or the enjoyment of a record. Take channel balance, for instance. By creating constantly changing pressure on the walls of a disc, balanced output of the two stereo channels can seriously be affected. In the future, when we have matrixed records to take advantage of 4-channel sound, this will be even more important than it is now.

This record was made through the new Dynaflex process. No matter what pressure is applied, it does not break. Unfortunately it warps and doesn't reject on a good number of turntables.

The groove life of a warped record will also be reduced by the fact it is warped. The needle sees the actual surface of the modulated groove on a warped record as being constantly and asymmetrically changing through each revolution, causing uneven wear to the record. Not only is this a potential danger to the record, but it threatens the needle or stylus playing it. With some styli representing an investment of $30 or more, the financial interest reduces the temptation of playing these records.

Clearly, there is no reason to perpetrate on the public a new system so patently inferior that it is actually a big step backward. Back in the late 1940's RCA lost a lot of money maintaining that 45 rpm discs should be the new industry standard, replacing the old 78's. The Dynaflex system might conceivably be an advancement to record science in the future, vis-a-vis economic use of virgin vinyl, if the warpage problem is solved. But I am perplexed why so much of RCA's attention has been devoted to this area.

DEERFIELD
Drive-In Theatre
Route 5 & 10
South Deerfield, Mass.
Tel. 665-8746
FRI.,SAT.,SUN.
"THE FUNNIEST MOVIE I'VE SEEN THIS YEAR! THIS KIND OF MOVIE A REVIEWER SHOULD PAY TO SEE! JUST GO, RUN, TO SEE IT!"
— New York Post
LOVERS AND OTHER STRANGERS
abc CRC COLOR R
also
THE GRISSOM GANG R
THEATRE
Showtime7:30
FeatureFirstSun.

Smith Plans Recital Series

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. - The first of this year's Sunday evening recitals in Sage Hall at Smith College will be presented by Ernst and Lory Wallfisch, both Assistant Professors of Music at Smith. The concert, on September 26 at 8 p.m. will be open to the public free of charge.

The program will feature works for harpsichord, piano, viola, and viola de gamba. Three periods of music will be represented in pieces by Handel, Francois Couperin, Robert Schumann, and the contemporary composer Iain Hamilton. Mr. Hamilton is originally from England, but he has spent many years teaching in the United States, first at Duke University and presently at New York University.

Mr Wallfisch, a performer on the viola and viola da gamba, and his wife, a pianist and harpsichordist, joined the Smith faculty in 1964. As a performing duo they have toured internationally, in addition to their continuing soloist activities.

Formerly a solo-violist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Wallfisch has also been a member of the Bucharest (Roumania) Philharmonic, the Dallas Symphony, and the Cleveland Orchestra. In addition to his career as a performer, he has taught chamber ensemble and viola both at Smith and abroad, has written articles for English and foreign language periodicals, and records extensively with VOX (New York), Da Camera (Heidelberg), and His Master's Voice (London).

Recently he was awarded a "Certificate of Merit for Distinguished Service by Performance, Teaching, and Editing Music" by the Dictionary of International Biography (London, 29 October, 1970).

Read MDC
October 3, 1971
3:30 p.m.
&
8:30 p.m.
C. C. Program Council
presents
"YOU'RE A GOOD MAN CHARLIE BROWN"
A NEW MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT BASED ON THE COMIC STRIP "PEANUTS"
at.
C. C. Auditorium
tickets - $2.00
at
S.U. Box Office

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
CAMPUS III
WARREN BEATTY
JULIE CHRISTIE
McCABE & MRS. MILLER
7:00 & 9:30
Rated R-
CAMPUS I
Mon.! Ladies Night $1
JENNIFER O NEILL
GARY GRIMES
In everyone's life there's a
Summer of '42
7:00
9:00
-R-
CAMPUS II
7:15 & 9:15
Carnal Knowledge (R)

The Great Marijuana War (continued)

pain because they took hours to pick one out too. Most of the guys who came up just took any old Baggie, paid up and left.

I could see where we would soon sell everything and not have anything left for ourselves, so when there was a lull, I closed the door and locked it. A few stragglers came and pounded on the door and demanded to be let in but I shouted that no one was home and they went away. Then Art came slowly up the stairs. His throat was sore from whispering and all he could say was How much, man? and his address in a hoarse tone.

I sat him down and gave him a cup of tea and pretty soon he could talk. We sat at the kitchen table and counted out money and smoked. We were lighting joints with ten dollar bills and letting them burn. We had a lot of money.

"What's the first thing you're going to get, Art?" I asked.

"I don't know, man. I may buy one of those pretzel carts and sell pretzels or I could get me a horse and buggy and give people rides around Central Park. Maybe Ill move to London for the winter. I don't know. Maybe I'll put it in the bank and save it."

"We'd better not forget the little kids. I just remembered about them. They should start coming up here telling us where all the dope went to. Only I really don't feel like dealing anymore, do you?"

"Now that you mention it," said Art, "I don't feel like dealing too much any more either. What are we going to tell the little kids when they get here?"

"Let's bolt, " I suggested.

Art thought it over for a second. "Ok," he said, "Let's split."

We began to grab up all the stuff we thought we might need and began to throw it into a couple of ratty looking suitcases that Art had. We slammed them shut, put out all the lighted joints that were lying around and left.

As we ran down the block in one direction, we could see all the little kids come swarming up from the other end of the block. They ran up the steps in Art's apartment house and flooded in through the front door.

"Christ, am I glad I'm not up there any more," I said.

"You aren't kidding." Art shuddered. "Let's get out of here."

"What are we going to do about Eric?" I asked as we ran down the sidewalk.

"I don't know," replied Art. "What do you think we should do?"

"Let's at least stop and see when they're going to let him out of the hospital."

We had to put on surgical gowns and masks before they would let us into Eric's room. He was lying on the bed with a big grin, watching a color tv that had the color all screwed up. He was laughing and giggling and playing with the remote control box and changing channels and making the colors go all screwy. He didn't even notice us.

"Wow," said Art. "This guy's in a lot of trouble. Let's get out of this place."

We walked out the front door of the hospital into the sunlight.

"Well," said Art. "I think I'll go to London for the winter. It's too damn cold in New York for me."

"Yeah, I should get back to campus before too long," I said. "So long, Art."

"Take it easy, man," he said, and walked away down the sidewalk.

I went over to the hospital garage and got the Duster.

Don't worry, I told the car, we'll come back and get Eric next week. The doctor says he's having too much fun to go home.

I drove back up to campus and parked the car. It had been a long summer. I was glad to be back.

As I walked past what used to be the Little Hatch, I saw a familiar figure. I walked up to it and tapped it on the shoulder. He didn't have to turn around, I knew. It had to be. It was. Silverman, licking away on a soft ice cream cone with a notebook in his hand. Taking a pencil from behind his ear, he opened the notebook and said, "Ok, what'cha got?"

"....This is what's making those warts grow...."

Here is a Stereo System that offers very little in the way of a discount.

All it gives you is superb performance and reliability.

Pioneer SX 440 Receiver
Aztec Dulane Loudspeakers
PE 2038 Automatic Turntable
Bang and Olufsen Magnetic Cartridge

$480.00

We believe this system so durable that Amherst Audio warrants this stereo to be free of defects for five years. (excluding stylus and physical abuse).

AMHERST AUDIO

197 NO. PLEASANT ST.

Fine Arts Council

Unique One Woman Entertainment

In the closing half of "Here are Ladies," Siobhan McKenna portrays the women of James Joyce, including (above) Lusty Molly Bloom from "Ulysses." The production will arrive here on Thursday, October 7 at 8 P.M. in Bowker Auditorium for one performance. Tickets are available in the Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall. Tel. 545-0202. Remaining tickets will be available one hour before the performance at Bowker Aud. UMass undergrads $1.50, other full-time students $2.50, UMass Faculty/Staff $3.00, General Public $3.50.

World-acclaimed Irish actress Siobhan McKenna will appear on campus at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 7 in Bowker Auditorium.

Her program, "Here Are Ladies," will include passages spoken by ladies in works of Irish writers, including O'Casey, Beckett, Shaw, Synge, Yeats, and Joyce. The production, brought from London's Criterion Theatre, was presented in New York at the Public Theatre this past season.

Miss McKenna has performed as a member of the famed Abbey Theatre in Anouilh's "Fading Mansions," directed by Laurence Olivier; James Forsyth's "Abelard and Heloise;" Shaw's "Saint Joan," for which she received the Evening Standard Award; "Playboy of the Western World," in which she starred when it was filmed; and Doris Lessing's "Play with a Tiger."

New York audiences acclaimed her as Miss Madrigal in "The Chalk Garden," a role she created; "Sain Joan;" "The Rope Dancers;" and in many television performances, including Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," "Cradle Song," and Somerset Maugham's "The Letter."

Among her portraits of Irish ladies in "Here Are Ladies," she will perform a duologue from "The Plough and the Stars."

She'll also do portions of O'Casey's, "Juno and the Paycock," Shaw's "Saint Joan," and "Crazy Jane" poems of William Butler Yeats.

The second half of the evening will be devoted completely to James Joyce's "Anna Livia Plurabelle," lullaby from "Finnegan's Wake," and Molly Bloom's soliloquy from "Ulysses."

Miss McKenna will be presented at UMass by the Fine Arts Council, in a tour arranged by the Public Theatre and Theatre Now, Inc. Tickets for the production are on sale at the Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, Telephone 545-0202.

The Artist As A Gourmet

By ELLIOT EISENBERG

DINING

The Lord Jeffrey is named after a British nobleman who defeated the Indians by giving them infected blankets as "presents." Richly furbished in colonial style, it benefits from bequests of Amherst alumni. A place to take the folks (if dad's paying.)

Mill Valley Grist Mill is run by irascible Harry Wood and his wife, who run their employees ragged while feeding them like kings and serve delicious fare at reasonable prices. Pleasant surroundings in rooms that are small and cozy. Try the Indian pudding.

Miss Florence Diner is known for incredibly good food, low prices and long lines. Worth the wait.

Aqua Vita serves up a pretty decent fare of Italian food. Conveniently located if you're travelling between Amherst and Northampton.

Amherst Tower sits next to the Pub and sells pizza. Also a hangout for townies and teenie-bops. Food, prices, decor - all are mediocre.

The Drake restaurant used to be called Lums and for all practical purposes that's what it still is. Higher priced end of the menu is a rip-off, but a great variety of domestic and imported beers and a casual atmosphere make it not a total loss.

Joe's pizza is great.

Rapp's recently underwent change in management. Where else can you find a deli, but where else can you find such unclean conditions?

BARS (AND SUCH)

The Chequers serves deli sandwiches and light dinners. Lights are low, furbishings wooden and classy, and evenings man with the flashlight stands guard at the door. Entertainment.

The Pub sports menu similar to the Chequers'. Both are known for attractive and well-outfitted waitresses. Pub is a little less formal, better place to meet singles (but not on Saturday.) Entertainment.

Top O' Campus is worth seeing for its view alone. One of the few places for dancing and formal attire, tho you needn't be bothered by either. And the sign said: you gotta have a membership card to get served.

Mike's is strictly for greeks and not the mediterranian kind. Mugs hang from the walls, pledges do their stuff, and the girls sing their songs.

The Drake is synonymous with raunchiness. Hidden in the basement of a two-bit hotel, used during the day as a laundromat, it reeks on a hot night. It also has a timeless, friendly atmosphere: a good place to be on the night of a big game. Entertainment is by jukebox at prices that make it a rip-off.

Susie Creamcheese, Where Are You?

This is to announce that a pubic cremation this morning at 8 am on the Littlefield Memorial Bridge

Miss Susan Smith of Punxatawney, Pa. will burn her personal effects as a protest over what she calls "petty bourgeois materialism" According to her, the entire campus is ridden with "ungodly, dirty people, who are going to go to hell."

Miss Smith has taken place in several other pubic cremations and feels that she has learned something from each one of them.

"The first time I burned my effects I was in pain for weeks at the thought of what I had done. But each successive time it became easier and easier to light up and flame away."

This morning's cremation is being sponsored by Jesus Christ, Inc., a new youth movement headquartered in Avalon, N.J.

Art Buchwald To Speak In Cage

Next Monday evening, September 27, at 8 p.m., Art Buchwald will give a talk entitled "The Establishment is Alive and Well in Washington". Buchwald's lecture, sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program and open to the public without charge, will take place in Curry Hicks Cage and will be followed by a coffee hour in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

In addition to being syndicated in 450 newspapers in the U.S. and throughout the world, Buchwald has written several books including "Have I Ever Lied to You?," "Son of the Great Society," and "The Establishment is Alive and Well in Washington." His play "Sheep on the Runway" opened on Broadway last year to excellent reviews and was later performed in Washington.

Buchwald received his first journalistic experience in the Marine Corps and at the University of Southern California. While later living in Paris, he wrote for Variety magazine and the New York Herald Tribune. He became syndicated in 1952 with his column "Europe's Lighter Side."

According to the introduction to one of his books, "Buchwald is still a mystery to fellow newsmen despite his long years in Washington. Some say that Art Buchwald is a pseudonym and the column is written by the Joint Chiefs of Staff--each service taking the duty for one month." "Another theory is that Art Buchwald is really Howard Hughes, which, if true, would make him the richest columnist in the world today."

FRIDAY'S FOLLIES
NEW WAVES AND OLD RAVES
~PRESENTS~
THE PROFESSIONALS
~WITH~ LEE MARVIN
CLAUDIA CARDINALE
BURT LANCASTER FRIDAY
S.U. BALLROOM 7 & 9:30

ACADEMY
AT THE GATES OF THE COLLEGE
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435
"NOT TO BE MISSED"-NY Post
"A GLORY"-New Yorker
"FELLINI'S BEST SINCE 8 1/2" -Newsweek
Federico Fellini's newest film
"The Clowns"
(original version)
Eves. 7:15 9:10
Saturday Sunday continuous from 2:00

C. C. Program Council presents
"My Fair Lady"
Sunday, Sept. 26
2:30, 6:00, and 9:30 p.m.
S. U. Ballroom 50¢

Albums

By STEVE FELD

IMAGINE-John Lennon (Apple Records)

John Lennon is a part of anyone who is, or claims to be, seriously involved in rock music. While he was growing up, we were growing up too. Many os of drew parallels from his life to ours, as we did with Dylan, not caring if they were superficial, or how vicarious they tended to be.

There were those of us who became smug and laconic in his cynical days. And we thought of ourselves as Sages in his pepper days. We went through our acid stage and our Walrus stage. All the way, through "Give Peace A Chance" and, finally, questioning our own elusive childhoods and past repressions. We found out.

One does not know the contents of a never-before-heard Lennon album. We heard that this one was "more tuneful" and less depressing than the first. We read that there were going to be strings on this one and even "a mother solo" by George Harrison. But we still didn't know.

Hearing a Paul McCartney album is a completely different experience than listening to a Lennon. McCartney makes music, beautiful music. You know what you are going to get. You can sit back, tap your foot, and whistle to "Uncle Albert Admiral Halsey", and you can reminisce about your teenage loves when you put on "Dear Boy" and "Back Seat Of My Car." You approach Paul with optimism, anticipating the upcoming fun, knowing that you are going to love every minute of it.

But listening to a Lennon can be painful, very painful. Growing up often is. He proved this with his first album and reiterates it, though not nearly as much, in "Imagine". Gone are his primal screams. Instead he sings solefully in his hard, unmistakenly-his, voice. The general tone is more relaxed and the music is as lush as Lennon is going to get. He has learned to live with his pain and is finding out more and more what he is up against.

Much of it still echoes his sentiments expressed in the first. In "How?" he asks,"How can I have feelings if my feelings have been denied?" and in "Gimme Some truth", a probable single, he snaps, "I'm sick and tired of hearing things from uptight, narrowminded, short-sighted hypocritics/All I want is the truth." Gone, however, is the omnipresent feeling of nakedness that dominated the one before.

On "Crippled Inside", Lennon swings to a C&W beat. And in "Oh Yoko" there is a sing-along melody. (He is always happiest singing about her.) "It's So Hard" is Lennon the blues-man. "Yer Blues" up-to-date. "Sometimes I Feel like going down."

The title song, "Jealous Guy", and "Oh My Love", are all beautiful ballads. Lennon lives up to his potential whereas McCartney doesn't.

The one enigma on the album is "How Do You Sleep?" It is an obvious, and deliberate, attack on Paul. "Those freaks was right when they said you was dead..

New Riders of The Purple Sage

By KENNETH SULIN

A little, tiny fellow walks on stage wearing a tattered cowboy hat and red satin western shirt with shoulder length blonde hair and a long stringy beard - this is John Dawson, better known as Marmaduke, singer, songwriter and guitarist of the New Riders of the Purple Sage. He grins at the audience while being followed by bass player Dave Torbert, guitarist David Nelson, drummer Spencer Dryden and the most respectable Jerry Garcia on pedal steel.

The New Riders have been around quite a while and if you are a Grateful Dead enthusiast, you're probably familiar with them. Slowly they have been rising in fame by doing national tours with the Dead and now releasing their first album on Columbia Records.

Out of San Francisco Marmaduke, Nelson and Torbert began experimenting in small clubs of the area with a light country and western sound. Garcia followed and enjoyed this diverse type of music from what he had been performing up to that time.

Two years ago the public was a little skeptical about accepting country music but the Riders persisted, suddenly the Dead became interested in acoustics and it has carried on from there.

The album, titled simply The New Riders of the Purple Sage, is close to flawless, giving easy and enjoyable listening - nothing loud or hectic, just smooth and soothing, flavored in a country and western fashion

Marmaduke does the lead singing backed by Garcia and Torbert, at times in two and three part harmony. Mickey Hart, former drummer with the Grateful Dead, is responsible for the percussion on three cuts, now regular drummer Spencer Dryden, formerly of the Jefferson Airplane, has taken over and picked up perfectly.

Mothers Live At The Fillmore

By ED JANUSZ

THE MOTHERS LIVE AT FILLMORE EAST. The Mothers of Invention (Bizarre Records)

I will still defend to the death my opinion that Frank Zappa is the musical genius of our time. He and his various Mothers of Invention have made a career out of roasting (and outplaying) practically everybody else in the rock business, and the albums We're Only In It for the Money and Uncle Meat are deadly assaults on all the forms of triviality in our lives and culture, bizarre audial photographs of freeways, hamburger stands, 'National Enquirer,' and the false gods on both sides of the revolution.

But is Zappa a fake himself? The Mothers at Fillmore East is a very, very bad record. I suspect that Frank is sick of being not listened to and is now designing his stage act to prove that he, too, can be a rock 'n' roll star. He transforms "Willie the Pimp', his masterpiece from Hot Rats, into a silly piece of fluff that recalls visions of Alvin Lee rising on the hit horizon, and thought Zappa is near the top of the heap as far as Playing It Fast goes, who needs it?

The two longest tracks are boring raps about being rock stars and growing up in the '50s and isn't America lame? Nothing new in that, only this time they make sure not to insult anybody except groupies and homosexuals.

The best music on the album is probably 'Little House I Used to Live In,' but even that is a throwaway: It was all included on a much more exciting track of the same name, on the Mothers' Burnt Weeny Sandwich album. The earlier track was better just because of Don "Sugarcane" Harris' violin solo, and the three former Turtles that Zappa has recruited for this show don't come anywhere near the whirlwind of rock and avant-garde jazz and classical that the earlier Mothers with Harris created.

This record will probably be neither more nor less popular than Chunga's Revenge, Weasels Ripped My Flesh, or any other of the various Zappa creations to pour out of Bizarre Records in the two years since Uncle Meat. Apparently Zappa will try anything to win the audience he thinks he deserves, even if it means playing at the level of the people he's been dedicatedly ripping to shreds for years. He deserves the audience, but this particular record deserves to be sunk with the next batch of Army surplus nerve gas; for when a talent like Zappa starts sounding this mundane and ego-trippy, the already thin field of perceptive, innovative rock has come that much closer to dying.

Introducing String Cheese

Wooden Nickel 1401

By FRANK JOHNSON

In MDC, we were recently treated to a poem describing Burgundy wine. As every wine connoisseur knows, red Burgundy by and large comes from the Pinot Noir grape. It is generally more fruity, heavier and robust than the subtle clarets of Bourdeaux, and goes very well with strong cheese. Strong cheese? Oh, I thought you said String Cheese!

I hope I may be forgiven for the poor pun, because it took a lot more than Burgundy wine to get me through this album. As a matter of fact, not even a Clos de Vougeot 1959 would have helped. Quite honestly, I have not felt that an electric violin was the instrument to bridge the gap between folk music and hard rock. Its application has been limited; the group that tried it the most, the Flock, is now defunct. Blind Faith used an electric violin in the cut, "Sea of Joy", and that group, too, is defunct. The last example doesn't really prove much of a point, because Blind Faith's artists independently went their separate ways and reformed newer, better groups. It does show, however, that any new application of an electric violin virtually knocks at the gates of the Elephants' Graveyard.

Earlier in this column, I spoke of an ideal number for a rock group, usually either tour or five. String Cheese numbers six (close enough) and it has one talented member, Bill Dalton, that can play a staggering total of seven musical instruments; he plays each one in the course of the album. But talent isn't enough. A group's talent must project them across; String Cheese doesn't quite make it.

Like their talent, String Cheese's music is somewhat uneven. I have never been completely enamoured of a beat that is constantly changing, to the point where you can't really get a hold of it. The lyric sheet, printed inside the album cover, doesn't reveal much more than rather basic poetry, with not too much to say. The chords modulate only infrequently, the progressions are compressed and repetitive, and String Cheese gets a little stale in the form of musical cliches. This is music of a sort that doesn't rally go anywhere, and when it does suggest a direction, you can't really say what it is.

Every once and a while, String Cheese does show promise-in the opening chords of the first song, "For Now" and in the last song, "Coming". However, you will undoubtedly ask, what about everything in between? In the inimitable jargon of Richard M. Nixon, I'm glad you asked me that question. String Cheese has an unusual title, plays in the shadow of an unusual instrument (electric violin), and has potential talent in Bill Dalton. But many cheeses need to be aged to develop; perchance a prescription for String Cheese.

New Moody Blues

By ED JANUSZ

EVERY GOOD BOY DESERVES FAVOUR, the Moody Blues (Threshold)

The first new Moody Blues Album in almost a year doesn't mark any spectacular new whichway in their musical vision, or any new freedom from whatever ruts they have been in. What it does offer is a few good songs and a rehash of their old faults.

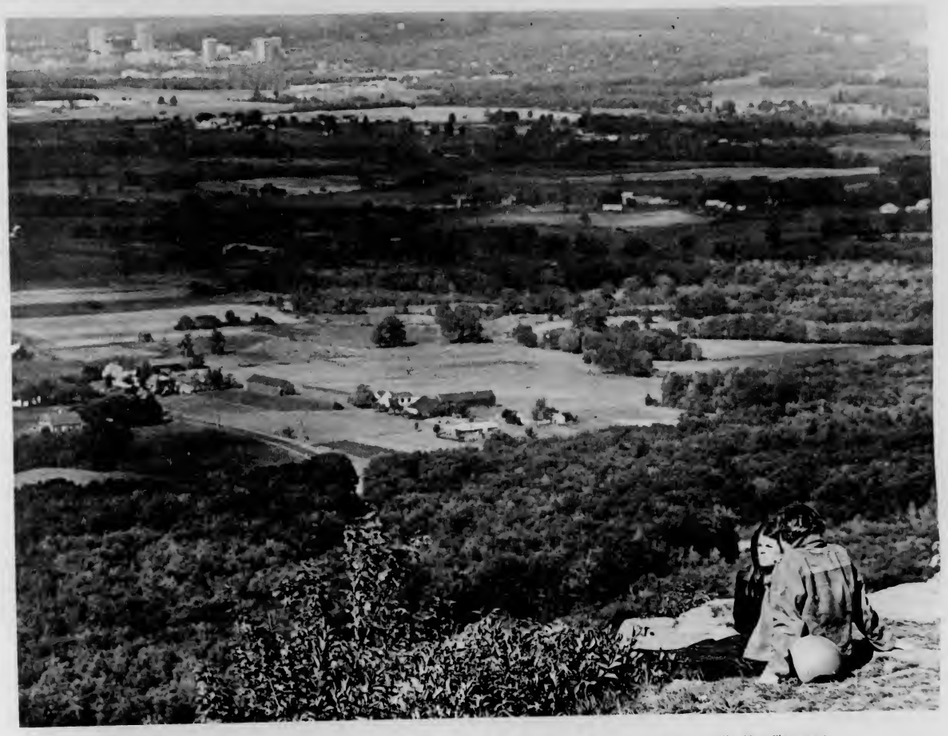
The first cut, called of course "Procession," is one of their best. Because of their highbrow choice of instruments, the well-meaning Moodies have often been miscast as an avant-garde rock orchestra playing good-for-your-mind music. Usually they are at their most boringly predictable when they get too lush, but "Progression" is a tight four minute East vs. West skirmish that may very well stay as fresh as anything they've ever done.

It is followed by "The Story in Your Eyes," their current single and probably their best. Out of all their more rock styled songs, this is probably the smoothest.

I told myself not to comment upon the lyrics, but here again they are at their best and worst. Side one is okay: there are a couple of straight love songs ("Emily's Song" in particular is nice). Their latest cosmic theory is on the second side--speculations on the idea that man is not the final step in evolution--and will undoubtedly give our children's children's children a few good laughs.

The last track, "My Song," is the most interesting relic of Moodiana. There are a couple of really nice themes in the first half, sung in a resonant, emotional voice over a great piano: an excellent performance that gets lost in a thump-thump-thump "glorious conclusion" that sounds suspiciously like their other glorious conclusions, especially the one from On the Threshold.

The Moody Blues have it in them. Just on the strength of "Procession" and "The Story in Your Eyes," this is their most thought-out and varied album out of at least the last three, but they still have loaded it with mountains of cliches that make me wonder if they'll ever dare use their considerable talent. But I'll keep watching and waiting, for we're going to keep growing, wait and see.



New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Not so hot.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 14 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1971

On a clear day, you can see Southwest. And for those of you who can't, it's in the top left corner. (Photo credit--Alan Chapman)

Southwest Granted $20,000 for Alterations

Greater individuality will soon characterize dormitory rooms and other areas of the Southwest Residential College.

Administrators and students this fall will begin studying ways to take advantage of the flexibility of the 16 dormitory-building and dining commons area and create environments reflecting the variety of life-styles housed therein. A $20,000 grant from Educational Facilities Laboratories, Inc. of New York will provide consultant assistance in planning rearrangement of the complex into living-learning centers.

By next spring, two floors of one high-rise dormitory will be completed, several corridors renovated in various ways, and dining commons given other uses. Work will be done by craftsmen and students, and all students to be affected by the changes will be given an opportunity to become involved in decisions.

Walls, lights, and drapes will be under scrutiny as students, administrators, and consultants confer. Also to be discussed are interior and exterior spaces which might function in new ways.

Southwest Residential College houses 5,400 students in five 22-story dormitories and 11 three-to-six story dormitories. Three dining halls serve the students. One reason for the move to change the environment at Southwest is a new University policy to decentralize power over dormitories, giving residences more responsibility for their living area facilities and activities. Raymond A. Werbe of Amherst has been named director of the newly established Office of Environmental Concerns at UMass.

Last academic year, Mr. Werbe worked with students on an environmental project at Southwest Residential College. One phase of the experimental project encouraged students to paint their rooms in colors they chose.

This academic year at Southwest, residents will have an opportunity to improve living conditions and community spirit. By May, 1972, the University expects to learn through experiment the extent to which students working together or alone may make successful environmental changes to influence their academic and social lives on campus. Experiments will be concentrated on two floors in a high-rise dormitory and will aim to show students various ways to make maximum use of available space.

To supplement the $20,000 grant from the Educational Facilities Laboratory grant, the University will contribute staff time and some rent revenue set aside for maintenance and replacement in dormitories.

Inside This Issue:

- Guide To Bikes, page 8
- Buchwald To Speak, page 2
- Street Flutist, page 9

Art Buchwald Speaks at Cage Tonight

"The Establishment is Alive and Well in Washington" will be the topic of Mr. Art Buchwald who will speak tonight at Curry Hicks Cage. Mr. Buchwald's lecture, which is sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program and open to the public without charge, will begin at 8:00 p.m. and will be followed by a coffee hour in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

Described by Walter Lippman as "one of the best satirists of out time," Buchwald began his journalistic career while in the Marine Corps in World War II. For three and a half years, he edited his company's newspaper on the island of Eniwetok in the Pacific. After the war, he attended the University of Southern California where he was managing editor of the campus humor magazine. Buchwald then went to Paris as a student and wrote for Variety and the New York Herald Tribune while living there.

By 1952, his column "Europe's Lighter Side" was syndicated in the American press. Ten years later, Buchwald moved his typewritter to Washington where things have been getting livelier and livelier. He is now syndicated in over 450 newspapers throughout the United States and the world.

In addition to his popularity as a syndicated columnist, Buchwald is the author of several rib-tickling books, including "The Establishment is Alive and Well in Washington," "Have I Ever Lied To You?," and "Son of the Great Society." In January, 1970, his play "Sheep on the Runway" opened on Broadway to fine reviews from some of the country's leading critics.

As a performer he is heard on records, on television, and before audiences all across the nation. Buchwald describes himself as working "in a small airless room on the top of the Washington Monument...From his view on the top of the monument, Buchwald is able to observe everything that is going on in the nation's capital." His columns are "attached to the legs of speedy pigeons and delivered to the 450 newspapers that carry his column to every part of the civilized and uncivilized world."

Satirist Art Buchwald speaks tonight at 8:00. His topics: "The Establishment is Alive and Well in Washington."

Fellowships To Be Awarded

WASHINGTON, D.C.---The National Research Council has been called upon again to advise the National Science Foundation in the selection of candidates for the Foundation's program of Graduate Fellowships. Panels of outstanding scientists appointed by the Research Council will evaluate applications of candidates. Final selection will be made by the Foundation, with awards to be announced on March 15, 1972.

The NSF Graduate Fellowship Program is being restructured for the 1972-1973 academic year.

Applicants must be beginning graduate students by the Fall of 1972, or must not have completed more than one calendar year of full-time or part-time graduate study by the Fall of 1972. Subject to the availability of funds, new fellowships awarded in the Spring of 1972 will be for periods of three years, the second and third years contingent on certification to the Foundation by the fellowship institution of the student's satisfactory progress toward an advanced degree in the sciences.

These fellowships will be awarded for study or work leading to master's or doctoral degrees in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering, and social sciences, and in the history and philosophy of science. Awards will not be made in clinical, education, or business fields, in history or social work, or for work leading to medical, dental, law or joint Ph.D - professional degrees. All applicants must be citizens of the United States and will be judged solely on the basis of ability. The annual stipend for Graduate Fellows will be $3,600 for a twelve-month tenure with no dependency allowances.

Applicants will be required to take the Graduate Record Examinations designed to test scientific aptitude and achievement. The examinations, administered by the Educational Testing Service, will be given on December 11, 1971 at designated centers throughout the United States and in certain foreign countries.

The deadline date for the submission of applications for NSF Graduate Fellowships is November 29, 1971. Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20418.

Foundation Continues Programs

The Ford Foundation is pleased to announce the continuation of the following programs for the 1972-1973 year:

Doctoral Fellowships for American Indian Students
Doctoral Fellowships for Black Students
Doctoral Fellowships for Mexican American and Puerto Rican Students

These fellowship programs are for students who have not undertaken any graduate or professional study, and who wish to pursue the Ph.D. and to enter careers in higher education. Each program will support full-time graduate study for up to five years contingent upon the Fellow's satisfactory progress toward the Ph.D. Eligibility requirements and further information may be found on the enclosed announcements.

Instructions and application forms may be obtained from The Ford Foundation, 320 East 43rd Street, New York, New York 10017. Applications for all three programs must be complete by January 10, 1972.

Danforth Fellowships Info

The University has been invited to nominate four candidates for the Danforth Graduate Fellowships, to be awarded in March, 1972 according to Dr. H. Duncan Rollason, Associate Dean, College of Arts and Sciences, South College, the local campus representative.

The Fellowships

The Fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, are open to men and women who are seniors or recent graduates of accredited colleges in the United States, who have serious interest in college teaching as a career, and who plan to study for a Ph.D. in a field common to the undergraduate college. Applicants may be single or married, must be less than thirty years of age at the time of application, and may not have undertaken any graduate or professional study beyond the baccalaureate.

Approximately 100 Fellowships will be awarded. Candidates must be nominated by Liaison Officers of their undergraduate institutions. The Foundation does not accept direct applications for the Fellowships. Interested students are urged to consult Dean Tollason immediately.

All applicants for these Fellowships must take the Graduate Record Examination.

October 5 is the last date on which the Educational Testing Service will accept applications for the October 25, 1971 Graduate Record Examination.

SWAP to Meet

The Student Workshop on Activities Problems will have its second meeting tonight at 7:00 P.M. in rooms 805-809 of the Campus Center. SWAP is beginning to discuss its program for the 1971 conference. All interested students, faculty, and administrators are invited to attend.

Clairvoyant To Lecture

Anyone interested in learning about the psychic world is invited to attend a lecture to be given by Mrs. Aline Foster.

Mrs. Foster, a clairvoyant from Chatham, Mass., will speak tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 917 of the Campus Center.

TUESDAY NIGHT
The English Pub
INTRODUCES
CRADLE
(A ROCK BAND)
DANCING
9:30-12:30 25¢ COVER

SPRING SEMESTER--ISRAEL
For Humanities Students
Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute
Study centered in Jerusalem/February-June, 1972
Limited to 30 students
Juniors, Seniors, and Grad students eligible.
Four courses/History, Literature, Archaeology, Bible
Earn 16 credits
Knowledge of Hebrew or Arabic preferred
Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel
Application deadline November 1st.
THE HIATT INSTITUTE
Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

SPEAK FOR YOURSELF
on the
SUG/Campus Center Board
Athletic Council
Fine Arts Council
CASIAC Curriculum Committee
Applications available in the Student Senate Office due by 5 p.m., Friday, Oct. 1.
(Athletic Council applicants see Lee Sandwen)
(All other applicants see John Hogan)

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. zip code 01002 Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943 Subscription rates are $6.08 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Letter Too Late

By ROBERT C. BROOKS

George Emery of the Placement and Financial Aid Office revealed that Draft Director Curtis Tarr's letter, which suggested that UMass terminate the processing of student deferments for the class of 1975, was received too late to have any effect.

Emery said that form 109, which verifies the students presence in school, had already been processed prior to the receipt of Tarr's controversial letter.

According to Emery, Tarr's letter was merely a suggestion and was intended to save the State Universities the trouble of processing deferments that would shortly be annuled by congress.

The American Friends Service Committee (AFSC) and the Committee for Legal Research on the Draft (CLRD) said that the state colleges that did not file the form would be sued on constitutional grounds.

However, Emery has not heard of any such action being taken against UMass or any other institution.

Contrary to Tarr who advises freshmen not to apply for deferments, Emery thinks that they should apply since they have "nothing to lose."

In reference to students who will soon turn 18 years old, Emery asks that they sign up for the draft at the Placement and Financial Aid Office in Whitmore. He says that many students have been following the wrong advice of their draft counsellors and are making unnecessary trips to off campus draft boards.

CASIAC Reorganized

By ALAN WRIGHT

The College of Arts and Sciences is UMass' largest school, as evidenced by the fact that the college has programs of study leading to four bachelor's degrees: Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Fine Arts, and Bachelor of Music. The recent expansion of the college makes the College of Arts and Sciences Information and Advising Center (CASIAC), located in South College and Machmer Hall, all the more important, according to a CASIAC spokesman.

This year, UMass' board of Trustees approved a measure to reorganize CASIAC into three separate faculties while maintaining its common core curriculum. The new faculties and their respective deans are Jeremiah M. Allen, Humanities and Fine Arts, and Dean Alfange, Jr., Social Humanities and Social Sciences. Natural Sciences and Math is presently headed by Jeremiah M. Allen, but as of February 1, dean designate is Mack D. Edds of Brown University.

The two men to see concerning undergraduate questions are Associate Dean James Shaw-the director of CASIAC or Associate Dean Duncan Rollason.

Dr. Rollason has been with CASIAC for eight years, and serves a variety of administrative functions, including executive secretary for the curriculum committee, taking care of budgetary affairs, and counseling orientation freshman.

Some changes have been made in certain schools, such as Engineering, but the basic requirements for all B.A. degress are still:

—foreign language proficiency
—four social sciences
—four humanities
—four courses in science or math
—two rhetoric courses, one of which must be either Rhetoric 100 or 110
—two semesters of Phys. Ed.

Students unsure about any of these requirements, or desiring exemptions from any of them, should see the people who know--The College of Arts and Sciences Information and Advising Center.

Contest!

Name it and claim it. That's right! If you can guess where this picture was taken, then you are the lucky winner of the mystery surprise which lies six feet below this site. Just mail your entry to the Collegian today. Who knows what you may win? Sound stupid? You bet it is. But we needed something to fill this space.

Soviet Subs Superior

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover says the 1962 Cuban missile crisis prompted a Soviet shift from space to seapower priority programs that enabled the Russians to surge ahead of America in nuclear submarines this year.

"Based on our submarine authorizations of the past several years, we can expect them to keep outproducing us in nuclear submarines by at least three or four to one," Rickover told Congress May 11 in heavily censored testimony released yesterday evening.

"Since 1968, several new classes of Soviet submarines have become operational. At least deleted of these are nuclear powered," Rickover, deputy commander for nuclear propulsion in the Naval Ship Systems Command, added at a House Appropriations subcommittee hearing.

"I am convinced that a significant turning point came in 1962 as a result of the Cuban missile crisis. The Soviets recognized that their navy was not capable of supporting their foreign policy and they vowed it would never happen again.

"I believe it was then that they decided to withdraw from the moon race and instead assign national priority to their naval program." Rickover said. The Russians, he added, "are currently graduating ten times as many naval architects and marine engineers as we...They now have a navy capable of backing up their foreign policy decisions anywhere in the world.

"One need only look at the developments of the last year to see how this change has been manifested. During the Middle East crisis of last fall, the Soviets were able to deploy a naval force in the Mediterranean that surpassed that of the United States and the NATO alliance countries. While the influence of the United States in the Mideast, possibly the whole Mediterranean waned, that of the Soviets vastly increased...

"During the height of the Middle East crisis last fall the United States had 60 combatants in the Mediterranean. The Soviets had 70. We were able to move deleted submarines into the area whereas the Soviet had deleted and you should recognize the potential of that difference alone.

"In addition, the Soviets were able to move into the Mediterranean deleted naval units capable of firing surface-to-surface missiles."

Rickover said this situation holds true in varying degrees throughout the world.

Job Hunting Aid Offered

If you are within 12 months of completing your studies, the Career Planning and Placement Staff will help you select your job options today at the following times and places:

		11:15 A.M.	3:30 P.M.
Engin., Nat. Sci. & Math.	Mr. Morrissey	Campus Center Complex, Rm. 163	Campus Center Complex. Rm. 163
Men: Bus., Lib. Arts, Agric. & Stockbridge	Mr. Edwards	Campus Center Auditorium	Campus Center Auditorium
Women not in Teaching	Mrs. Hardesty	Student Union Commonwealth Rm.	Student Union Commonwealth Rm.

Mahalia Jackson Ill

MUNICH, Germany (AP)-Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson is seriously ill with a circulatory ailment and is being treated in the intensive care unit of the U.S. Army hospital here, a spokesman for Miss Jackson reported Sunday.

"She was in considerable pain when she was admitted to the hospital Friday," he said. "She has a history of a heart ailment and has been consulting physicians for some days about her condition."

Lost And Found

University Lost and Found is located in the Campus Center, first floor check room.

All Departments, University personnel, and students are required to submit all lost and found articles to the University Lost and Found operation in the Campus Center.

Do not hold articles more than two days. Most people do not know where they lost their property and if a lost item is held in the department closet, no one is served.

Therefore, see to it that all Lost and Found items are delivered to the Campus Center Lost and Found. Use the campus mail if possible.

Correction

Appearing at the Wednesday night Coffee House this week will be Don Stover and the White Oak Mountain Boys, not Ed Stover and Fred McDowell, as incorrectly reported in Friday's Collegian.

index needs
Mon., Sept. 27 6:30 p.m., Index Office, S.U.
Photographers
If You Cannot Attend Call 6-5439 or 6-5369

Campus Center Program Council presents

"YOU'RE A GOOD MAN CHARLIE BROWN"
THE "PEANUTS" MUSICAL
October 3, 1971 3:30 & 8:30
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets - $2.00
at the S. U. Box Office

In The Nation And The World

Israel Defiant To UN

JERUSALEM (AP)—The Israeli government issued a defiant "no" yesterday to a United Nations Security Council resolution demanding that it halt changes in the status of east Jerusalem.

A communique following a Cabinet meeting on the issue said: "Israel will continue to perservere in the development of the city..."

The Israelis will not change their policy on Jerusalem nor consent to discussion of the U.N. resolution, it added.

At the request of Jordan, the Security Council took up the Jerusalem issue last week and Saturday issued a demand that Israel desist in changing the status of the eastern half of the city.

East Jerusalem, which includes the old city and some of the holiest shrines of Islam, Judaism and Christianity, was captured from Jordan in the 1967 war.

The text of the Israeli communique:

"In the government's opinion, there was no justification for holding the discussion and adopting the resolution on Jerusalem. The government of Israel will not enter into discussion with any political factor on the basis of this resolution.

"Israel's policy with regard to Jerusalem will remain unchanged. Israel will continue to perservere in the development of the city for the benefit of all its inhabitants, in respecting the religious rights of all communities, and in scrupulously safeguarding the holy sites of all faiths and the freedom of access to them. This policy has contributed to the development of fruitful relations among all sections of the population."

The Israelis have pushed forward construction, industry and housing projects in the former Jordanian sector. They have declared they will not give up Jerusalem in any peace settlement with the Arabs, nor will they allow the city to be divided again.

The government enjoys the support of most Israelis on this stand.

Construction activity and expropriation of land in the former Arab sector has been regularly condemned by the United Nations and a number of governments, including the United States. Israel's chief ally.

They contend that Israel is illegally changing the status of the city, creating political factions and endangering the chances for a peace settlement.

The Israelis argue that the Jordanians illegally divided the city after the termination of the Palestine mandate and for 19 years destroyed Jewish property and barred Jews from entering to pray at their holy sites.

In Tel Aviv, military sources reported an Egyptian soldier was killed and another wounded in an apparently accidental explosion on the west bank of the Suez Canal. The incident was observed Friday by Israeli forces on the east bank of the waterway near Port Suez, the sources said.

Students Protest Emperor's Trip

TOKYO (AP)-More than 1,200 leftist Japanese students rallied and marched in heavy rain Sunday, protesting Emporor Hirohito's departure on a sentimental journey to Europe.

The students, members of the radical leftist Zengakuren organization have linked the emperor's tour with what they call a revival of Japanese militarism.

The emperor and empress were embarking on an 18-day tour.

Hirohito traveled through Europe in 1921 when he was crown prince and has said his experiences then provided him with "the happiest moments of my life."

En route to Copenhagen, Hirohito's jetliner will make a refueling stop at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska, where he will meet President Nixon. The meeting will be the first between a U.S. president and an emperor of Japan.

Police increased from 20 to 100 the number of guards at the palace following an incident Saturday in which four protestors forced their way onto the palace grounds and hurled a smoke bomb. A guard was injured slightly in a scuffle and the four youths arrested.

Hirohito has said he is hopeful his trip will help promote friendship between Japan and the nations he will visit. Leftist students claim the trip is aimed at boosting Hirohito's image to the standing he enjoyed before World War II to help revive militarism in Japan.

Before the war, Hirohito was considered a descendant of the sun goddess Amaterasu, and militarists capitalized on this to spur the Japanese to war. Hirohito renounced the claim to divinity at the end of the war.

The royal couple will tour Belgium, France, Britain, Holland, Switzerland, and West Germany. Their appearances in Belgium, Britain and West Germany will be state occasions.

Chinatown Refuses To Bus Children

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—In bustling, congested Chinatown, some 900 Chinese children are beginning their second week in makeshift private schools organized by parents to defy court-ordered busing for integration.

A new group called Chinese Parents for Quality Education is sponsoring the double-shift elementary classes, which are housed rent-free in four buildings where for years children have attended private Chinese language and cultural sessions after regular school hours.

The San Francisco School District assigned nearly 26,000 of the city's 47,000 elementary students to ride buses this fall to schools outside their neighborhoods. The busing is in compliance with U.S. District Court Judge Stanley Weigel's order to remedy what he found to be "racial imbalance" in the district's 97 grade schools.

The NAACP brought suit two years ago on grounds the student population basically was segregated into schools of mostly whites, blacks, Asian or Spanish surname children.

Antibusing sentiment has run strong citywide, with a boycott keeping attendance down nearly 30 per cent throughout the first two weeks of classes. Nowhere has opposition been greater than in Chinatown, where nearly empty school buses have been a common sight on the narrow, tenement-lined one-way streets.

Hurricane Ginger Seeded

MIAMI (AP)—Special military planes bombarded Hurricane Ginger with power sapping chemicals yesterday as the three-week-old storm prowled the Atlantic some 600 miles off the Florida coast.

The seeding, the first of the 1971 storm season, was part of a program called Project Storm Fury, a 10-year-old military-civilian operation used fully only once before to battle a hurricane.

"Everything is going well," said the project spokesman, Herbert Lieb. "The seeders are operating at between 22,000 and 26,000 feet in a portion of clouds about 50 miles from the hurricane center."

Fourteen Air Force and Navy planes from Florida and Virginia took part in the attack on Ginger, monitoring the storm area and radioing information back to weather scientists here and in Jacksonville.

Describing the operation, Jim Trout, research meteorologist with the National Hurricane Center's research laboratory here, said, "It is like pricking a balloon. The silver iodine pellets cause freezing particles to form, releasing the storm's latent heat and dispersing its strength over a wider area."

Yesterday Ginger was located near latitude 27.7 north, longitude 69.7 west, or 675 miles east northeast of Miami and 450 miles southwest of Bermuda.

Ginger's fury continued to be felt yesterday along the east coast of Florida where waves of eight feet were recorded at Fort Pierce and the Bahama Islands.

Morton Says No To Oil Pipeline

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of the Interior Roger C. B. Morton in effect ruled out yesterday any 1971 start on a transalaska oil pipeline. And he hinted strongly that oil from Alaska's North Slope may ultimately go to market through Canada.

Morton acknowledged that he would be unable to meet his tentative deadline of October for a decision on the much-disputed project to bring oil down from the new field on the North Slope. And he implied that it may be months before the decision is made.

He said he would not act until he consults other federal agencies and until "I am sure that the total spirit of the Environmental Policy Act has been complied with."

The Cabinet member gave his assessment in a copyrighted interview in the magazine U.S. News & World Report.

Morton said the one thing holding up the final decision is that in the mass of material submitted by the Alaska Company which wants to build the pipeline there were "some discrepancies and some elements that were not congruent with the stipulations which we had made and which we thought the company had agreed to."

He said another delaying factor is the study of alternative routes as required by the Environmental Policy Act. He added, "The major viable alternative is a pipeline over another route, most of which would actually be on Canadian land." This would be an alternative to the Alaska plan to run the pipeline to the Alaska port of Valdez and then ship it by tanker to the West Coast.

Morton said that a routing through Canada would require extensive negotiations with Canadian authorities and added that, as far as he knows, no application for construction of a pipeline from the North Slope through Canada has even been lodged with the Interior Department or with Canada.

Mao Ill?

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China maintained a lid yesterday on unexplained developments in the country, but Canton television said it would carry a "special and important" newscast Tuesday night about "circumstances of the commemoration" of the Red Regime's National Day.

Abrupt cancellation of the massive celebration led to rumors that Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung was either dead or seriously ill.

Canton radio indicated the telecast would originate in Peking.

It was believed in Hong Kong that the telecast would give Peking's official reasons for sudden cancellation of the traditional celebration and parade, which has been staged in Peking and attended by Mao every Oct. 1 since the Communists took over the mainland.

A Chinese traveler just returned from Canton to Hong Kong said the Sunday television announcement described the telecast as "of great importance to the people" and urged that "all persons should make arrangements to see and hear it."

INTERCOLLEGIATE BOWLING:

All undergraduates interested in competing for a position on the UMass Bowling Team,

please contact Ernie Malagrida
2004 Kennedy
phone: 546-7882.
deadline is Friday, October 1.

Do you believe all of what you hear or all of what you see?

If you think of Greek as straight, you're wrong. If you think of Freak as communist you're wrong. There are no Greeks or Freaks. Just people. Sig Ep accepts men for what they are, not what they look like. If you want to grow with the fraternity, with the university and other men, look at us.

OPEN SMOKER

Sigma Phi Epsilon

9 Chestnut St. Sept. 27, 1971

Call 50070, For Rides 7-9 p.m.

CollegeMaster Salutes
Senior of the Week
OUTSTANDING AGAINST WEEKEND WAS SENIOR
Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co.

News In Brief

JERUSALEM (AP)-The Israeli government issued a defiant "no" Sunday to a United Nations Security Council resolution demanding that it halt changes in the status of east Jerusalem.

A communique said the Israelis will not change their policy on Jerusalem nor consent to discussion of the U.N. Resolution.

•

RICHLAND, WASH. (AP)—President Nixon, heading Sunday for a meeting with the Emperor of the first nation hit by an atomic bomb, promised expanded development of peaceful nuclear energy "that is clean and does not pollute."

The President said the new fast flux test facility now under construction at the Hanford Atomic Works is a major new advance in this program.

•

MOSCOW (AP)-The Soviet Union lodged a strong protest Sunday against Britian's expulsion of 105 Russian officials and threatened "corresponding reply measures" if the expulsion order is not rescinded.

•

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate Labor Committee's is proceeding with plans to try to boost the $1.60-an-hour minimum wage to $2.25 even though this might run afoul of President Nixon's Phase 2 economic program.

Black Caucus Gathers

NORTHLAKE, Ill. (AP)—A meeting of black political leaders ended early yesterday with a decision to expand discussions of a possible national black political convention "early next year." "Further consultations will proceed in every section of the country, involving these and other blacks," said a terse, two-paragraph statement issued late Saturday night.

The gathering of an estimated 50 influential black politicians and political leaders was cloaked in secrecy from start to finish. Despite an official statement that "there will at this time be no public announcement of proposals considered and decisions made," talks with some participants revealed that the group favored calling such a convention.

One eleven-page proposal drafted by Imamu Baraka of Newark, N.J., the poet-political activist formerly known as LeRoi Jones, suggested forming an "African Nationalist Party" to run third party candidates in "every major election in this country."

Inside sources said, however, that most of the two and a half days of discussion focused on how to gain real decision-making power at the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

The sources said delegates seriously considered using 60 recommendations sent to President Nixon by the House Black Caucus in March as the basis for any platform that might come out of a national black political convention.

There was said to be strong support from some delegates to back a possible presidential bid by Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D—N.Y.

Mrs. Chisholm, a member of the Black Caucus, said in August she was considering entering primaries in Wisconsin, Florida and Maryland and her final decision would depend largely on sufficient financial support.

A number of other proposals were known to have been under discussion including one by Georgia State Rep. Julian Bond to run black favorite son candidates in state presidential primaries in an attempt to send large blocs of uncommitted black delegates to the Democratic convention in Miami Beach.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, national director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket, has been advocating a black "third political force" to run black presidential or vice presidential candidates.

Bond's proposal reportedly ran into considerable opposition, while Jackson's excited little interest.

The meeting, fifth in a series, was called by Gary, Ind., Mayor Richard Hatcher, Manhattan Borough President Percy Sutton, Bond and California State Rep. Willie L. Brown Jr.

A title for the meeting was never publicly announced, but participants were given notepads with "National Assembly for Black Political Strategy in '72" printed at the top.

Heavy No. Viet Assault Reported Worst In Months

SAIGON (AP)-Enemy forces yesterday launched their heaviest attacks along the Cambodia-South Vietnam border in nearly four months, hitting 10 South Vietnamese positions and one U.S. base, according to field reports.

At dusk, 18 hours after the first assaults, sporadic contact was reported continuing. U.S. helicopter gunships were attempting to track down North Vietnamese troops.

Initial reports said 58 North Vietnamese troops were killed. These same official reports said three South Vietnamese were killed and 37 were wounded.

Seven Cambodians and a handful of Americans also were wounded, field reports said.

The attacks ranged from 75 to 90 miles northwest of Saigon, and 10 miles across South Vietnam's border.

Most of them were around the Cambodian town of Krek, a key South Vietnamese fortress along Highway 7 that leads into the southern half of South Vietnam.

Other attacks were to the northwest and northeast of Tay Ninh, a South Vietnamese provincial capital and forward headquarters for elements of two Saigon divisions stationed inside Cambodia to block North Vietnamese infiltration.

Field reports said eight South Vietnamese positions were hit with rockets and mortars while two others were assaulted by sappers and infantrymen.

A U.S. artillery base, called Fire Support Base Pace, on the Cambodian border 26 miles northwest of Tay Ninh, was hit by more than 30 rounds of mortars from just after midnight until noon.

The heaviest fighting swirled 3-1/2 miles northeast of Krek. It was triggered by a North Vietnamese infantry and sapper attack on a South Vietnamese ranger battalion and a Cambodian infantry battalion.

Field reports said that as many as 300 enemy troops assaulted the position but were driven back and suffered 51 killed under heavy bombardment by rocket-firing U.S. helicopter gunships.

One prisoner and 16 weapons were reported captured.

Allied losses were six South Vietnamese soldiers and seven Cambodians wounded, Saigon headquarters said.

Currency Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP)-The ten great non-Communist industrial nations agreed yesterday on a three-pronged approach to seek solution of the world's money disorders by year end. And Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally said the United States hopes to diminish the role of gold as a currency standard.

On the eve of the annual meeting of the 118-nation International Monetary Fund, Connally dodged a yes-or-no answer to the direct question whether the United States considers an increase in the price of gold-in effect, a devaluation of the dollar-a non-negotiable issue in international monetary discussions.

His reply was to refer questioners to President Nixon's Aug. 15 statement, that the United States does not anticipate any change in the price of gold.

Connally said the United States "is not committed to the mythology of gold" and wants to decrease , rather than enhance, the metal's monetary role.

In Europe and Japan there is almost unanimous pressure for a dollar devaluation, but the U.S. appeared to have won a tactical point in getting the Group of Ten finance ministers, representing the world's richest non-Communist powers, to omit any reference to devaluation from their communique on a two-hour Sunday meeting attended by Connally.

Hugo L. Black Died Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP)-Former Justice Hugo L. Black, a champion of individual freedom during his 34 trend-shaping years on the Supreme Court, will be buried with simple honors Tuesday.

Black died Saturday in Bethesda Naval Hospital, a week after his retirement from the high court. A spokesman said the 85-year-old jurist died of effects of a stroke and inflammation of the arteries.

After services at the Episcopal Washington Cathedral Tuesday, Black is scheduled to be buried at Arlington National Cemetery at 3 p.m.

Justices of the Supreme Court-Active, retired and resigned-will serve as honorary pallbearers, along with close friends.

Supreme Court police will be active pallbearers. The Rev. Duncan Howlett, former rector of the All Souls Unitarian Church, will preside.

Black's retirement brought a national outpouring of praise for his legal career which was firmly based on the Bill of Rights and the belief the founding fathers clearly understood the English language.

Yom Kippur Services

1. Hillel at U. Mass. will hold services in the Campus Center Auditorium (conservative ritual).

2. The Jewish Community of Amherst will hold services in Johnston Chapel, Amherst College Campus (Union Prayerbook).

Students are invited.

	HILLEL	J.C.A.
Kol Nidre - Tuesday	6:30 p.m.	7:30 p.m.
Yom Kippur Day - Wed.	10:00 a.m.	10:00 a.m.

You'll Like Eating
Bell's Pizza
They're uncommonly good.
65 University Dr.
256-8011 - 253-9051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

Termpapers Unlimited
"WE GIVE RESULTS"
297 Huntington Ave.
Boston, Mass. 02115
(617) 267-3000

"ART BUCHWALD
works in a small airless room on the top of the Washington Monument"
- Art Buchwald

ART BUCHWALD
will speak in a LARGE airless room at the University of Massachusetts —
Curry Hicks Cage

"The Establishment is Alive and Well in Washington"

Tonight! Monday, September 27, 8 p.m.

a dvp Distinguished Visitors Program Presentation

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jerry Lazar
NEWS STAFF — Janet Hughes, Robert Brooks
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
DARKROOM — Al Chapman, Barb Brecher
AD LAYOUT — Jim Gold
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

A Black Day

The weekend marked the passing of one of the great jurists and free-thinkers of our time, Hugo L. Black. For over a third of a decade, his landmark decisions helped direct the course of the nation through his own dedication to the ideals of equality and the sanctity of the Constitution.

Black's most well-known decision, and one that is entering the limelight once again, was that banning government sponsored prayer in the schools saying, "It is no part of the business or government to compose official prayers for any group of the American people to recite." He firmly believed against strict constuction of the Constitution and, with the aid of the document which he constantly carried in his pocket, fought for the guarantee of freedom of speech and press, and opposed antiobscenity and antilibel laws as unconstitutional.

Not only is Black's death a tragedy in its own right, the fact that his absense on the court allows President Nixon to replace him with a man of more "conservative" attitudes only magnifies the trouble. Coinciding with the retirement of Justice Harlan, Nixon now has the power to change the whole nature of the Supreme Court. It is doubtful that the President will be able to replace these distinguished jurists with men of equal ability for Harlan and Black were men of the highest quality due to their extensive experience, training and integrity.

It has been said in many circles of late that the Supreme Court has become too powerful and that with the Executive branch has teamed to dwarf the power of Congress. The "New" Court may lack the strength of men like Black and Harlan but this may well be balanced by the sectional attitudes of their successors. However, history has proven that decisions based on weakness generally are less rational than those based on strength. We shall soon see.

"That Next Appointment Better Be Good"

Don Glickstein

Oasis In A Frenetic Desert

It was frigid and disagreeable by the pond on that November day, eighty-seven years ago, when the cornerstone to the new Chapel of the Massachusetts Agricultural College was laid. A labor of pride, the Chapel, built from granite mined in a Pelham quarry owned by the College, was to house the 2700 books of the library and serve as a focal point on campus for meditation and ceremonies. Those bearded men--Greenough, Butterfield, Chadbourne, Stockbridge--could little foresee what their child of stone would see much of.

Over the decades, as the school became a college, and the college a university, the Old Chapel served as offices for Language, Literature, History, Sociology, and Music, as an all-faith religious center, a theater and meeting-hall. The College's first Ph.D. degree was awarded in the Old Chapel (1902), a Model League of Nations was held there (1936), and a young Senator named John Kennedy addressed a young university there in the Fifties. Not an outstanding history, but at least deserving of an asterisk in future records.

The electric carillon that replaced 12 massive chimes 9 years ago ("bells that will break down barriers through the years"--Pres. Hugh Baker, 1937) seems to chime consistently. The clock, hidden from most angles now by trees or buildings, is still useful, if only for hurried students glaring up from in front of Bartlett Hall. Tarnished trumpets can sometimes be heard from within as not-so-inspired musicians practice. The Old Chapel, measured against the St. John the Divines and the Saint Patricks, or even the Mormon Church off of Sunset Avenue, is not the most beautiful of buildings. But it's the best this University has.

Sometime in the next two or three years, some dean will submit a proposal to Jack Littlefield in the Planning Office, who will push a piece of paper--a recommendation for future use--to Vice-Chancellor Gluckstern for a final decision. As it stands now, when the Fine Arts Center is completed, some still overcrowded department in the Humanities, probably Art or Music, will obtain or retain the Old Chapel.

One proposal for the Old Chapel's future use has not been championed: The conversion of the building into a non-denominational chapel, University museum, and place of study.

In our age of pinball machines, television, stereos, WMUA, conventions and noise, a place of solitude and meditation on Campus is needed. Although the Fine Arts Center will certainly alleviate some space needs for the arts, a place to house a permanent museum is no where to be found. The multi-use of the Chapel in this way will certainly inconvenience some departments, but an oasis in a frenetic desert should be of overriding value.

If it is going to be done, the Student Senate, Faculty Senate, and Alumni should begin now to save something from the benefits of "progress".

Art Buchwald

Mother Rider Of The Year

WASHINGTON—Many politicians talk about school busing, but it is doubtful that any of them has ever ridden on one under actual combat conditions.

Only those who have been on a school bus mission know what busing is all about.

I once took a school bus ride from St. Germain-en-Laye to Paris years ago, and to this day whenever the climate gets damp, my wounds start to ache.

This is what happened. It seems that a group of American mothers who lived in the suburbs of Paris discovered there was no bus to take their children to the American school in town. So they went out and rented one, which would pick up the students in the morning and bring them home in the afternoon.

The first year they tried it without chaperones, and so many bus drivers quit that the bus company said they wouldn't rent them another bus again unless an adult other than the bus driver accompanied the children.

At first the mothers tried to hire chaperones, but they couldn't take it, so finally it was decided a different mother would ride the bus each day, trying to maintain some semblance of order. To give them a certain esprit de corps they called themselves the Mother Riders of School Bus No. 5.

As a young newspaperman on the Paris Herald Tribune, I was always volunteering for dangerous assignments, and when the editor of the paper asked for someone to write a story about what it was like to ride an American school bus in Paris, I asked to go on the mission.

The Mother of the Day was a Mrs. Richard Edelstein, whose husband worked for Paramount Pictures. She had ridden No. 5 six times, which she told me was the equivalent of 50 bombing raids over Dusseldorf during World War II.

We picked up our charges, about 35 girls and boys at 3:15. The bus was fairly quiet when we first started off because most of the students thought I was a detective who had been hired by the parents to keep them in line. (This was a possibility because the school had gone through four bus drivers in five months, and the mothers had threatened to hire a detective after the last driver had slipped on a banana peel on the steps of the bus and broken his back.)

But when they found I was nothing more than a reporter, the wraps were off. The students in the back of the bus started hitting the students in front of them with their school books. The injured retaliated by swinging their lunch boxes at the attackers' heads. Mrs. Edelstein went back to break it up when a boy in the front produced a live frog, which he dropped down a 12-year-old girl's dress.

Her screams brought Mrs. Edelstein to the front of the bus, which gave the students in the middle an opportunity to kick the ones sitting in front of them.

A fire base for spitballs had been set up in the last row, which was targeted in on the bus driver, who like all French drivers, was barreling through the narrow streets of Paris at 60 miles an hour.

Every 10 minutes the bus screeched to a half to discharge some human cargo, which gave the other riders a chance to throw orange peels at pedestrians.

Mrs. Edelstein walked up and down the bus, first threatening, then offering bribes of candy and finally making the driver stop until all her charges had quieted down.

Miraculously we had arrived at the end of the line trip, besides myself, was the bus driver.

Mrs. Edelstein who eventually was voted Mother Rider of the Year with an oak leaf cluster told me, "If you think this was bad, you should have ridden with me through the Bois de Boulogne last week."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Letters To The Editor

Racist Personnel Committees

To the Editor:
Re: "Racism is Everyone's Problem", MDC, September 20, 1971:

Dean Dwight Allen is accorded my highest respect. In my 23 years on this campus, he is the first administrator to publicly and privately acknowledge that racism is highly institutionalized, and to diligently act to diminish racism. Beyond the Department of Afro-American Studies, virtually every Black professor at the University has been hired in the School of Education. Elsewhere what weak efforts are made to hire minorities end in failure (and I suspect deliberately) because candidates are found too qualified or well-placed already (the "Ralph Buche" syndrome), or qualified but "unable to get along with people" (the racial equality prohibition).

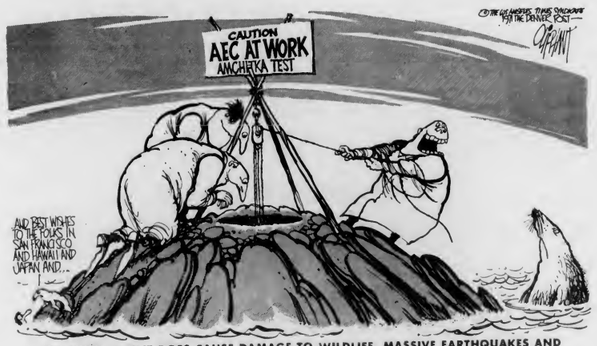
The Trustees of the University in delegating considerable authority to departmental personnel committees for hiring and upgrading have, intentionally or not, strengthened this institutionalized arrangement. Committees act primarily to foster current ethnic and racial concentrations.

Edwin D. Driver
Professor of Sociology

All I Want Is Fun

To the Editor:
I have always been a little dismayed at the Administration's refusal to allow the Stadium to be used for such purposes as concerts. May I suggest to the class governments that they cooperate with each other, pool their financial resources and jointly start applying pressure to the Administration and the Athletic council for use of the UMass Stadium in the spring. The amount of money provided by the four classes could produce two very excellent concerts that the majority of the University could attend. The use of the Stadium (along with a relatively cheap price, if any) would dissuade most gate crashers.

Geoffrey Levine



(Editor's Note: Class governments were abolished last year.)

Lost A Hard Worker

To the Editor:
The Student Senate, by failing to support its President in his nomination of Tom Spriggs as Chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee has again demonstrated its lack of understanding of the priorities before us as members of a university community. Tom Spriggs, as even his angry critics are willing to admit, is one of the most able persons for the job. Tom was anxious to involve all members of the committee, rather than "become" the committee himself, he was hopeful that the committee could work together, could share the workload. For this he was accused of being lazy, lacking direction. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The President is now faced with the problem of finding another person to Chair this vital committee. He will be hardpressed to find someone as qualified as Tom Spriggs.

Robert V. Sprague
Member of the Academic Affairs Committee

'OK, THEN — IF IT DOES CAUSE DAMAGE TO WILDLIFE, MASSIVE EARTHQUAKES AND DESTRUCTIVE TIDAL WAVES, WE PROMISE NOT TO HOLD TESTS HERE AGAIN!'

Editorial Points

Worcester Commons served cottage cheese and peas for lunch last Friday. That's right, cottage cheese and peas. Mixed together. And the peas were cold.

••••

Janis Joplin, Jimi Hendrix and Jim Morrison are dead. Isn't it funny that their names all begin with a jay?

••••

If Nellie Fox, the former second baseman for the White Sox married Richard Nixon, he would be Nellie Fox Sox Vixen Nixon.

••••

The Dartmouth Green showed UMass that you can fool a bad team some of the time, but you can't fool a good team ever at all.

••••

It's rumoured that President Nixon will kow-tow to the demands of women lib and appoint a woman Supreme Court Justice. We feel that the President should appoint someone with intellect, a fine civil rights record, and a good judicial sense--Louise Day Hicks.

••••

Dick Cavett hosted John Lennon last Tuesday night. Funny how the boy from a Liverpool ghetto can outwit an Eli.

••••

The ad read: "HAL is alive and well in front of the Hatch." Glad someone is.

••••

For all the sentimental hype that the Food Services has built up about the Hatch hamburger, pound for pound, they're still pretty raunchy--if they're cooked at all.

••••

Art Buchwald gives a lecture tonite in the Cage. That ought to be good for a laugh.

Snake Eyes

By BILL GORCZYCA
EDITORIAL STAFF

Several days ago Governor Sargent vetoed a bill which would have established a lottery in the state of Massachusetts. This action might have been justified in a time of economic prosperity, but seems unusual when one considers the present conditions. The taxpayers of the state are begging for relief from the burden of excessive taxation and a state lottery could provide this needed relief. But Sarge said no, and he did so for a very interesting reason.

Under the proposed legislation, Robert Crane, the state treasurer, would be given complete control of the establishment and operation of the lottery. Additional state jobs would be created by the lottery and it does not take a genius to understand that Mr. Crane, a democrat, would use his office to award patronage positions to members of his own political party. Well, we all know that Governor Sargent is not a genius and he realized that his position in the Republican party would be weaker if he willingly provided the Democrats with the ammunition which could lead to future defeats for his fellow party members.

Once again the game of political football has been played in the interest of the state Republican party at the expense of the people. But this brand of politics is evident throughout our state and will remain with us until we, the people, can elect officials who are true representatives of public interests. Governor Francis Sargent is not one of these officials.

As in previous years the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letter will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

U.S.C.C.

Voter Registration: Pros & Cons, Heres & Theres

Last spring a Constitutional Amendment lowered the voting age to 18, and the issue of student voter registration has been brewing ever since. The situation should come to a boil within the next few weeks. It has been said many times that the 18 - 20 year-olds could constitute a new power base in this country. In the coming weeks, many varied political organizations, acting in accord with this idea, will attempt to register and corral the votes of this youth group.

The University and State Communications Council (USCC), having acted as a student liaison between the Massachusetts Legislature and the UMass students for several years, feels that it may be able to help clarify for the student some of the conflicting issues behind student voter registration.

In particular, the student will face the decision of whether to register in Amherst or in his hometown. The following arguments have been given to support Amherst registration;

1) Amherst is where most students spend nine out of twelve months of the year. Elected town officials do have an effect on students behavior in the community. The obvious point here is that students should vote in the community where they spend the majority of their time.

2) Were the approximately 20,000 students in Amherst to register here, they could easily outvote the 6,000 or so local residents.

3) This could lead to a student-run town which could be used as a factual model for proposed governing theories.

4) Voting in Amherst would be more convenient for students who do not return home regularly. Absentee ballots are not available for primary elections, although they do exist for final contests.

The following arguments have been given to support home registration:

1) Students registered state-wide in hometowns could establish a new power base which politicians state-wide would have to deal with.

2) Thirty-seven state representatives were elected to the Legislature in 1970 by margins of about 600 votes or less; 16 by less than 300 votes. Holding the balance of power over these seats in the next election, students will be in quite an influential position.

3) To carry this one step further, many important issues in the Legislature last year, including the budget and the lowering of the drinking age, were passed or defeated by very narrow margins. New representatives put into office by students in closely contested elections, could make the difference in many conflicts.

4) The State Legislature controls all UMass funds. Were UMass students to concentrate their votes in Amherst, they would be able to pressure the one or perhaps two representatives with their vote. This could be vital in such issues as another proposed tuition hike, which will undoubtedly come again this year. Last year the Massachusetts Taxpayers Association, chief proponent of a tuition hike, cited student pressure through letters to legislators as the second major reason for the proposed hike failure. Legislators, who felt the weight of the coming right to vote for thousands of students, could relax if 29,000 UMass students (who were the chief initiators of the resistance last year) were to concentrate their votes in one or two Amherst representatives.

Reasons for both sides could be expanded if space allowed. But the above arguments outline the choices open to you, the student, and some of the resulting consequences of your action. This is a debate which most students must enter soon. However, above all else, USCC urges you to register to vote - anywhere the power is yours to use.

What To Look For In A Bike

Because bicycles and bicycling are becoming so popular, the recommendations of the American Youth Hostels (A.Y.H., 20 West 17th St., New York, N.Y. 10011) concerning touring bicycles and equipment would be useful for anyone who is interested in getting involved in this ecologically sound sport.

The specific bicycle type you may want depends on what you're planning to use it for. For just around campus and town, almost any type will serve. Even for short trips within the 5-college area, the bicycle type isn't crucial. But if you might want to do some day touring or simply longer distances, but especially for longer overnight or real distance tours, the A.Y.H. recommendations should be followed--they've had many years experience in bicycling and their conclusions distill much experience.

They mention in the 1971-72 A.Y.H. Hostel Guide and Handbook four types of bicycles; Racing, Club, Roadster, and Balloon tire types. They don't recommend the Racing (too specialized) nor the balloon tire type (not flexible enough--this is generally the type kids have). They say the Roadster type (30-40 lbs. leather or plastic spring saddle, 26"x 1 1/4" or 1 3/8" tube type tires at pressures of 50-70 p.s.i., 3 speed internal hub gear, front and rear rim brakes, flat or slightly upturned handle bars 16" to 18" wide) is acceptable but that with experience you'll probably want to move to a Club machine. The Club or spots-touring type (25-30 lbs., unsprung leather saddle, clincher rim or light sports tire with tubes 26" or 27" x 1 1/4" at 70-90 p.s.i. pressure, 8-15 speed derailleur gears, front and rear center pull rim brakes, dropped handle bars 15" to 16" wide with 4" to 5" drops and all metal pedals; $75-$130) is that funny skinny kind you see all over the place now and which combines the energy saving aspects of the racing bike with a somewhat sturdier frame for heavier loads and is less expensive than the racing type. With the increasing popularity of bicycling, manufacturers have come out with all sorts of models, and the categories A.Y.H. mentions have become blurred somewhat; when buying, look for the features mentioned since the names or categories aren't sharply defined. When buying, A.Y.H. recommends that when you stand flatfooted astride the bike, if you can't lift the bike more than an inch off the ground (while you're astride the frame, not the saddle, you have the right size frame. It may seem awkward, but remember, you'll be on the bike most of the time and the frame size is important. They also recommend that everyone get the "men's" style, since the lack of an upper crossbar in the "women's" frame makes it less structurally sound.

The following are the A.Y.H. suggested adjustments once you get the bike.

Sit squarely on the saddle; at the correct height, your foot should be fully extended when your heel rests on the pedal at its lowest point. Adjust the height so this happens.

The tip of the saddle should be adjusted forward or backwards till it is directly over the crank shaft or less than two inches behind it.

The saddle should be horizontal or tipped very slightly forward for best results.

The handlebars are adjusted so that the top of the center post is the same height as the correctly adjusted saddle.

If you are planning to cycle in New England or abroad, joining American Youth Hostels would be good idea. Hostels are cheap and clean places to stay and while they are fairly plentiful in the Northeast (less common in most other areas of the U.S.) they are very common in Europe (where the movement started) and even in Africa, Asia, and South America. Membership is as follows: Youth (under 18) is $5/year, Senior Youth (18-20 years) is $8/year, and Adult (21 years up) is $10/year.

This may come in handy going from Orchard Hill to Southwest, but the return trip may be somewhat of a hassle. Maybe you'll be lucky and get it ripped off while you're at Southwest.

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

School of Ed Initiates Test Program

The Undergraduate Affairs Office at the School of Education has developed Ed 391 Orientation as a course-experience which will help freshmen to clarify their own goals, needs, and values while at the same time informing them of the various resources and programs available at the School of Education.

The course will aim at enabling students to understand both themselves and their environment. With such understanding a student may be able to become responsible for his own learning experiences and become a self-directed student.

Freshmen Education majors enrolled in Ed 391, Independent Study Orientation will meet Tuesday, in the Ed School Auditorium at 7:30 P.M. This is a general first meeting to describe the course and to divide into smaller groups that will meet at a variety of times throughout the semester. All students enrolled in the course should plan to attend. Those observing the Jewish holiday should ask a friend to relay information about the course.

Ed 391 is seen at this time as a test program which could serve as a model for future efforts of a similar nature.

BITES PIECES
HAMPDEN COMMONS
Breakfast on a cash basis

Drink positive

The first malt liquor good enough to be called BUDWEISER.
ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS

Student Profile

Street Musician Offers Original Songs

By STEPHEN FINE

After an extremely exhausting day of frantically running to class from atop Orchard Hill to Southwest's urban apartment complex, you silently meditate by the pond, contemplating life. Your eyes are cast on a swan gliding sluggishly across the water, sending tiny, rippling waves through the golden reflection of the sun. Soft music, you think, would do nicely now. Some nice relaxing music to add to the moment.

If luck and Pan were on your side, Tobi Saisa would appear and serenade you to your heart's content. "Who's Tobi Saisa?" you ask. Be patient. That's what this article is about.

Tobi Saisa is UMass's street musician in residence. He combs the campus in search of auditors, who'll pay him a nominal fee for him to play an original musical piece.

Tobi markets a wide variety of instruments and musical styles. His repertoire entails rock and jazz on flute, neo-classical interspersed with some Indian sections on recorder, and jazzy blues, neo-seafaring and "a unique classical style" on harmonicas. His musical background consists of six years of flute lessons. Recorder and Harmonica are self taught.

Carrying his instruments in a knapsack, Tobi simply approaches anyone and asks if they'd like to hear an original song for a quarter.

"The songs usually last about three minutes, depending on how many fast sections it has and the person's response. Sometimes people give me a quarter before hearing the song. I'd rather they wait and hear what I play, then pay whatever they think it's worth."

Tobi says most people are very courteous and polite when they turn him down."

"I've only been impolitely refused twice. One of those refusals was from Howard Gadlin. He simply told me to go away in a very condescending tone. It's not so much the words but the tone he used. I came back later to ask him why he felt that way. If he'd convince me I was doing something unethical, I'd stop playing."

Tobi has unsuccessfully tried another technique street musicians usually employ.

"You find a very busy spot, and play with a hat, or an open case in front of you. I found it doesn't work because people are too used to getting things for free," he explained. "All of my songs are original, so I consider them of great value. If I played for free I wouldn't have as much time because of money."

In his first week working he totaled about $40. He only worked about 10 hours.

Tobi encourages competition: "I'll get people used to the idea of street musicians, but it will also depend on how much there is and the quality of it."

With the days growing progressively shorter and colder, Tobi plans to penetrate the walls of the Campus Center and Student Union. "I'm not particularly optimistic about my future in this field, but to quote Calpaldi, 'Who knows what tomorrow will bring?'"

Westfield Drama Reviewed

(Editor's Note: The following drama review was written by Janet, a resident of the Westfield Detention Center. UMass students have been working as volunteers at the Westfield Detention Center since last year, under the guidance of Dr. Larry Dye, from the School of Education.)

The residents of the Westfield Detention Center performed "A Trip for Tina" at the Marks Meadow Auditorium at the School of Education last Tuesday. The story involving Tina, a sixteen year old girl, who runs away from home, becomes involved with a street corner gang and is eventually arrested and sent to the Detention Center. The residents of the center decided upon this theme in order to dramatize what actually happens to many of the teenagers who end up at Westfield.

At the conclusion of the play the actors talked with groups from the audience about what they thought of the play. They came up with some good ideas about how to make the play longer and better and how it should be acted out in front of different groups.

While the play was written and performed by the residents at Westfield, the case was anxious to acknowledge the assistance and encouragement provided by the many volunteers from the School of Education. It is hoped that this successful evening will encourage others within the University to contribute some of their time to the work going on at the Detention Center.

ATTENTION:

The students who responded last Monday evening to the S O S for Westfield Detention Center will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Campus Center room 168. Help us get *J.O.E. into action.

*Juvenile Opportunity Extention

MEET
ART BUCHWALD
TONIGHT!
Coffee Hour following lecture
Colonial Lounge, Student Union
dvp

Learn to Drive
AMHERST
AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

TICKET SALES START TODAY

Presented by the UMass Fine Arts Council
SIOBHAN McKENNA in HERE ARE LADIES
A GREAT LADY! QUITE WONDERFUL!
"A great lady and one of the prides of Ireland. It was mixed and beautiful and most beautiful when it was least mixed. Miss McKenna was superb. Best of all, Miss McKenna out upon the high seas of Joyce's Molly Bloom monologue. Here it all was, and quite wonderful."
--Clive Barnes, New York Times
A THOROUGHGOING PLEASURE!
"There is a stirring amount of eloquence, beauty and humor in 'Here Are Ladies.' It is a thoroughgoing pleasure."
--Richard Watts, New York Post
Thur., Oct. 7
8 p.m. (Sharp)
Bowker Aud.
(Stockbridge Hall)
UMass Undergrads $1.50
Other Full-Time Students $2.50
UMass Faculty/Staff $3.00
General Public $3.50
Tickets available: Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202
Remaining tickets available one hour before performance at Bowker Aud.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1962 VW Sedan (engine has sucked valve) could be repaired or used for parts. Body good and unstripped. Call 253-9605 $75.
tf9-27

1965 VW Bus, excellent cond., rebuilt engine, new clutch, new brakes, great for camping, $900, or best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 268-7265.
tf9-29

'68 Saab and '69 Peugeot. Both 45,000 miles, in good condition. Asking $1,250 each. Call 256-6762 for inquiry or test drive.
tf9-29

1960 VW sedan. Very good condition. $1100 or best offer. Call after 5:30 at 584-7201.
tf9-29

65 Chevy 6 cyl. std. New tires, excel. running. 584-8567 $450 or best.
tf9-30

1961 Jeep FC 150 Pickup/plow/excellent cond. $550; KLH model 11, wooden cab., like new $125; Royal port. typewriter $60. 253-3520 6 p.m.
tf9-28

65 Mustang conv., red, stereo tape deck with deluxe interior. Best offer over $550. Contact Steve, 253-3350.
tf10-1

1966 Pontiac Tempest, standard trans. Call after 8 and ask for Janet, 253-7520.
tf10-1

1966 Dodge Van, $450. 256-6425.
tf9-29

56 MGA Roadster, exc. cond., w/65MGB engine running perf., conv. top, side windows, HTH, Michelin Tires, $850. Eves. 584-6976.
tf10-1

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

1971 GOLD Honda CL350 exc. cond. Need money desperately must sell. Best offer, call Jack 6-7636.
tf10-1

Honda 305, excellent condition, custom sissybar and helmet included. Only 8,000 miles. Call Alrm. 601 J. Adams. 546-8651.
tf9-30

1970 CB350 Honda, excellent mech., less than 6000 mi. Call Bob 665-4752 after 6:30.
tf9-29

1971 Honda CB450, 2 helmets, chain lock cover, 3000 mi., crash bars $875, 323-4430.
tf10-1

FOR SALE

Panasonic 8 track stero system. Carbone model. All speakers, home converter, 21 tapes. Retails at $300 plus, yours, $190 call 546-5000.
tf9-27

66 VW rebuilt engine, new clutch, shocks & front eng. Has 2 small dents, $600. 368-1413.
tf9-27

Great Books of the Western World - complete set - $100. Rt. 1,213-4, Dry Hill Rd. Montague 367-2047.
tf9-27

Forested house lots cleared. Reasonable terms. Call 247-5013 between 7:30 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.
tf9-28

Alto Sax, Harmony Folk Guitar, Clarinet, Electric Guitar, good instruments - low price-584-8537.
tf9-28

Suede jacket for sale. Brand new rust, women's size 9/10 3/4 belted worn only once-too small $50. Call Judi 6-7432.
9-27

Got something to grow? Planter for sale 18 x 21", 8" deep can also be used as aquarium 15.00. Phone 527-9574.
9-27

Canoe, good cond. $140. 586-1075 after 6.
tf9-28

1971 Penton, 125c.c., Enduro 21h.p. The ultimate woods hike. Jerry 253-3740.
tf9-28

1967 BSA 441cc. Shooting Star, excellent condition. Must sell $475.00 Call 586-6927.
tf10-1

Dunebuggy, 3000 mi., needs volks motor, top, special seats, much more $475. Call Cep 665-3129.
tf9-28

Smith Corona Sterling Port. Typewrtr. Excellent cond., $36., or best offer. Call Gail 546-8373 or 546-7532.
tf9-27

Two bureaus $25. each, 3 carpets, fair condition. Call 253-2801.
tf9-27

Ski boots for sale, men's Kuflach, 8 1/2M, White Stars. Call 546-4184 after 7 p.m.
tf9-30

ROOMMATES WANTED

Single girl or couple, own transp., share apt. till Nov. pos. longer; call 584-2273 M-F 6-8, anytime, weekends.
tf9-28

Female roommate wanted. Come over in 146 Mt. Range Apts. MWF after 6, TTH after 10. In an open field 2 miles from campus really nice.
tf9-28

Roommate wanted, male student, to share 1 bedroom Puffton Apt. Call 549-6979.
tf9-28

Roommate wanted to share 5 room apt. in N. Hampton. Rent $80 month. Call Laura 586-3361.
tf9-27

Share my one room apt. in Amherst Ctr. You pay $35/mo., but for first semester only. Message to me, Tom at 6-5208 - 6-5178.
tf9-29

WANTED

Would like info. on Indian reservation schools for educ. project. Anyone who can help please call Irene 546-7065 or Carolyn 533-8867.
tf9-29

Men to erect chainlink fence. Experienced only. Part time. Fitzgerald Fences, 340 Bridge Rd., Florence, Mass.
tf10-1

U.S. and foreign coins. Bought, sold, traded. Contact Bob Murrin, 311 Chadbourne House or write P.O. Box 104, Amherst, Ma. 01002.
9-27

RIDE WANTED

Secretary needs ride from Amherst to Granby weekday evens. Also from Granby to Amherst Fri. morns. Call Dianne 545-0500/367-2107.
tf9-27

SKIERS WANTED

Skiers wanted to share spacious chalet, 5 min. from Mt. Snow. Luxury living, only $250 for season, Dec.-Mar. Call Marty-549-6786.
tf10-1

SERVICES

Need a hand. Dial-a-hand will supply a hand that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9215.
tf9-29

I'll fix your rough, smokey, gas eating car for a reasonable fee. Call 256-8626 ask for Wendell. I make road calls.
tf9-28

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt., all utilities, no lease. Pets & children welcome. Wall to wall carpet, $175 month. Call Kamins Village Apts., Belchertown.
tf9-30

Mt. Range Apt. -1 bdrm.-2 baths-living rm.-kitchen - all new - $185/mo. - available immediately - call Danny 546-7365.
tf9-28

PERSONAL

Marc Richmond - we're having our 24 hour sale next Friday night and need your help. Call Mike at 256-8133.
tf9-27

Tina C. I think I loved you for two years and still think I do even tho it's impossible.
tf9-27

Thinking of having an affair? At least make it cultural. . . call 549-0202.
tf10-1

Hi Janis from Emerson. I warned you. Signed JB.
9-27

TRAIL RIDES

Horseback riding every Sat. & Sun at Spellman Farms, Belchertown. Reasonable rates. Call Spellman Frms. on 3 River Rd. 283-6283.
tf9-28

HELP WANTED

1 or 2 girls wanted to do housework. Hours can be arranged. Walking distance from Southwest.

Phone 253-3429 - 545-0075.
tf9-27

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Call Mary 253-7673. If not there leave message.
tf9-28

Male roomate--I have two bedroom apt.-kitchen-bath-garage-need roomate to pay $60 a mo. Call Mark 253-5313 before 10 a.m.
tf9-27

In desperate need of room or apt., preferably near campus. Call Steph 586-2908. Keep trying.
tf9-29

HOUSE WANTED

Doctoral candidate and teaching wife seek house or nice apartment for this or next semester. Call 582-4871.
tf9-27

COURSE

Last chance this week to learn Silver Jewelry Making. Evening course in town, $40 including silver and materials. Call 253-2077.
tf9-27

LEARN ANY MAIN EUROPEAN LANGUAGE. Understand & read in 10 mos. Course taught by UN Interpreter Indiv. courses by mailed cassettes. 584-9789 or 1823.
tf10-1

BOOKS WANTED

Help! Students in Soc. 292 need used copies of Milensky and Lebeaux. Sell yours at Bookstore Annex
tf9-27

EMPLOYMENT

Live in town or dorms. Make money fighting pollution by selling Shaklee Products to friends & neighbors. 100% organic biodegradable cleaners, beauty aids and vitamins. For more information call 253-2801
tf9-27

Nixon Promises Peaceful Use of Nuclear Energy

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP)—President Nixon, heading Sunday for a meeting with the Emperor of the first nation hit by an atomic bomb, promised expanded development of peaceful nuclear energy "that is clean and does not pollute."

Nixon stopped here for a briefing at the Hanford Atomic Works. He said the new, fast flux test facility now under construction is a major advance in this program.

"This technology," he said in a statement, "will develop into the liquid metal fast breeder reactor, a process that will yield abundant energy that is clean and inexpensive."

Nixon stopped at Hanford on the way from Portland, Ore., where he spent the night, before going to Anchorage, Alaska, where he will climax a three-day aerial expedition to the Northwest by meeting with Emperor Hirohito. It is the first time a Japanese emperor has visited foreign soil in more than 2,500 years of imperial reign.

While Nixon had promised a significant statement at the Hanford facility, he stopped short of saying the center would be the site of one of two projected reactors. He said sites for the reactor prototypes will be announced later.

At an airport reception at Portland, Nixon told a crowd behind a fence, that he was approaching the meeting with Hirohito at a time when there are great opportunities for peace in the world.

He said the meeting with the emperor would underline the fact that these two great peoples are going to be competitors in the world, and we are, but it also underlines another fact: That it is indispensable that we be friends."

Japan has been critical of the President's new economic programs, especially the import surtax.

Nixon also had accepted for his Anchorage stay an invitation to a reception in the home of the man he booted out of his Cabinet. Former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel lost his job last Thanksgiving Eve and has just come out with a book that takes a few critical jabs at what happened to him during his sojourn in the Cabinet.

The arrival time for Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako was on the schedule for 3 a.m. EDT Monday, with full military honors and speeches. The two principals were to talk in private for 25 minutes with members of their official parties joining in later.

The Emperor and Empress are on route from Tokyo to Europe for a visit to seven other nations, and Alaska is a refueling stop going and coming.

Notices

APPLE CORPS:
Apple Corps is again presenting Mirkwood, Orchard Hill's pseudo-Coffee House. Anyone interested in playing or singing, contact Joey at 6-6681...Please...Thank you.

BHAGAVAD GITA COLLOQUIUM:
Study and practice the principles of the science of God realization through the Bhagavad Gita. Mondays at 6 p.m. in Cance House main lounge in Southwest; Wednesdays at 7 p.m. in Grayson 334 in Orchard Hill.

BLACK CORRIDOR:
There are several vacancies on the Black Corridor, 5th floor Grayson House (Orchard Hill). Any brothers interested in living on the corridor, contact John Davis, Rm. 508 or call 546-6985 or 546-6984.
....See What We're About...

BOWLING:
Boyden 10-Pin lanes-Open bowling nightly from 4:30 to 10:30.

COLLIGATE FLYING CLUB:
Ground School at 7:30 p.m., Rm. 162 CC. Bring owners manuals and articles.

BRIDGE CLUB:
There will be an organizational meeting on Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 168 cc. All bridge players, student or faculty welcome. For further information call Lew at 665-3210 evenings.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB:
There will be a meeting for all old members Tuesday at 7:30 in CC 905-909. New officers will be elected.

FINNISH CLUB:
There will be an organizational meeting Monday in Bartlett Rm. 302 at 7 p.m. All invited. For information, call: 6-6709 or 6-8053.

HILLEL:
Executive Board meeting Monday at 6:30 p.m. in Hillel office.

HOCKEY CHEERLEADERS:
Any girls interested in trying out for the Hockey Cheerleading Squad should come to Rm. 803 in CC, at 7:30 Monday. Questions? Call Sue 256-6868.

HOME EC MAJORS:
AHEA membership drive begins Monday in Skinner Hall. If you're action oriented join AHEA and make a difference.

MODEL RAILROADERS:
Anyone interested in building an H-O gauge model railroad layout, please meet on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Colonial Lounge of S.U. Any questions see or call Dean Foster, 209 MacKimmie 546-9772. P.S. Joe Nowak please get in touch.

NAIADS:
Try-outs Thursday at 6 p.m. Instructional sessions Monday and Tuesday at 6 p.m. Both male and female welcome.

PI LAMBDA PHI:
See what a fraternity isn't. The Brothers of Pi Lambda Phi invite all university men to an informal gathering at 14 Elm St. Tonight at 8 p.m.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION:
Freshman Ed. Majors: Ed 391 Independent Study Orientation will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Ed School Aud. If you're observing the Jewish Holiday, send a friend.

WMUA

Tonight on 91.1 FM:

7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS - a complete half hour news report from United Press International, Associated Press, UPI Audio, and WMUA NEWS. Includes a five minute update at 7:25 p.m.

7:30 p.m.-8:00 p.m. CAMPUS WEEK IN REVIEW - a half hour magazine of the past week's campus happenings and events.

8:00 p.m.-11:00 p.m. THE DRUM - black programming for three solid hours presenting black views, jazz, poetry, soul, and black news from the Drum's own news staff and a black audio network.

11:00 p.m. LATE NIGHT NEWS REPORT - a full half hour of news from WMUA NEWS, a completely student run news operation with among the most complete news services outside of Boston behind them–United Press International and Associated Press wire services and UPI World Audio Service. Original reporting of area events is emphasized.

11:30 p.m. - 3:00 a.m. Mr. R. J. (or Rod) Hansen (depending, of course on what mood he's in) brings you some dynamite music to keep you awake.

Freshmen Ed. Majors:

Ed. 391

Independent Study Orientation will meet

Tuesday, Sept. 28, 7:30 p.m.,

Ed. School Auditorium.

If you're observing the Jewish Holiday, send a friend.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Virgo and Gemini persons take first prize when it comes to asking questions. Pisces earns top honors when it comes to perceiving answers. Leo wins when it comes to asserting what the questions should be. Taurus is victorious when it comes to deciding answers before the questions are asked.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on elevating position, improving prospects. Make room for yourself. Depending on promises now could be error. Outline goals. Review ambitions. Take giant step forward. You will get backing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect now coincices with added knowledge, greater sense of direction. You can know where you are going and why. Fine for pursuit of educational projects. Communication from one at a distance indicated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Refuse to be satisfied with second best; you have more on your side than might be imagined. Specifically, an investment opportunity is in picture. Include mate, partner. You need co operation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lie low; do more listening than talking. Time is on your side; play waiting game. Be aware of public relations. Check assertions, promises made in connection with marriage, special contract.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be willing to exchange ideas, knowledge. Some persons will perform special services for you. Show appreciation, but avoid any display of oversentimentality. Key is balance. Maintain self esteem.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spotlight on creativity, enthusiasm in putting across special ideas, programs. Family member is involved. There is plenty of variety; spice is added to your life. Surprise gift may be featured.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't deceive yourself about condition of home, property. Get guarantees on products. Take nothing for granted where values are concerned. Promises are fine- but get them in writing. You will understand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 2.): Serious discussion with neighbor, relative is spotlighted. Be flexible, but stand fast for principles. Avoid trying to do too much at once. Cycle is pleasant, but not necessarily productive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Finish what you start- especially if project involves money. Influence spreads. More people become aware of your needs, assets. Don't hide light. Add to collection of pertinent facts. You gain.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar cycle coincides with new starts, greater display of originality. Stress the new. Discard what is outmoded. Streamline methods, concepts. Highlight more in dependence of thought, action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Overcome tendency to be despondent. Key is obtain proper food intake, to get necessary rest. Emotional batteries may need recharging. Obtain hint from Cancer message. Bide your time.

PISCES (Feb. 18-March 20): Friend could come up with perceptive solution to perplexing problem. Be receptive. Mature attitude will permit you to change course, if necessary. Intuitive flash results in greater security.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are better at helping others than at aiding yourself. You are attracted to law, science. Recent changes will work in your favor. You are due to get a second chance for success, happiness. Pounce on opportunity in October.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Rent
5 Business establishment
9 Secret agent
12 Single item
13 Sharpen
14 Hasten
15 Latin conjunction
16 Son of Adam
18 Cravat
20 Spanish article
22 Girl's name
24 Datum
27 Woody plant
29 Tumbled
31 Preposition
32 Babylonian hero
34 Space
36 Pronoun
37 Sun shade
39 Riddle
41 Note of scale
42 Secluded valley
44 Massive
45 Goal
47 Caudal appendage
49 Sea eagles
50 College officials
52 Small valley
54 Physician (abbr.)
55 Things, in law
57 Containers
59 Babylonian deity
61 Chicken
63 Tiller
65 Musical instrument
67 Abstract being
68 Region
69 Formerly

DOWN
1 Tint
2 Enmesh
3 A state (abbr.)
4 Greek letter
5 Storage space
6 Shout
7 Preposition
8 Fondle
9 Bundle of grain
10 Greek letter
11 Old pronoun
17 Exist
19 Supposing that
21 Spare
23 Century plant
25 Commissioned officers in Navy
26 Handles
27 Paired with
28 Wife of Geraint
30 Lengthy
33 Dilseed
35 Mud
38 Merry
40 Microbe
43 Responsible
46 Mends with cotton
48 South American animal
51 Compass point
53 For example (abbr.)
56 The urial
58 Pronoun
60 Emmet
61 Pronoun
62 Printer's measure
64 Teutonic deity
66 Conjunction

Answer to Friday's puzzle

HER STORK RAG
AWE EAGER IDA
DEPEND PIANOS
EAT TESTS
STAR TAL TEAM
TIL SOB LADLE
AB SAT FIR AT REALM GRATE
TSO POD APES
SOWED RIP
HELPER WILLOW
IRE RITES ENE
PAIS ELATES SAD

27

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 27

- Need Handball Gloves?? See A. J. Hastings newsdealer & stationer 45 South Pleasant St. Amherst

Does Sports Build Character?

NEW YORK (AP)-Two psychologists who have tested 15,000 athletes, worked with 27 professional athletic teams and hundreds of high school and college teams, say they found nothing to support the traditional idea that sport builds character.

Whatever it takes to strive the high attrition rate associated with competition, the psychologists say, those qualities are not the result of the competition, they are there in the first place.

"Indeed", the researchers say, there is evidence that athletic competition limits growth in some areas."

This eight-year study is reported in the October issue of Psychology Today by Dr. Bruce C. Ogilvie, director of the counseling center and psychology professor at San Jose State College in California, and Dr. Thomas A. Tutko, psychology professor at San Jose.

Their research began with the counseling of problem athletes, they write, but was expanded to all levels of competition and sport. They administered a special test, "The Athletic Motivation Inventory," to the 15,000 athletes.

On the evidence gathered, the psychologists make what they call "broad-range value judgments."

"It seems," they conclude, "that the personality of the ideal athlete is not the result of any molding process, but comes out of the ruthless selection process that occurs at all levels of sport.

"Athletic competition has no more beneficial effects than intense endeavor in any other field. Horatio Alger success in sport or elsewhere-comes only to those who already are mentally fit, resilient and strong."

These athletes, the authors report have strong personalities, are well organized and self-disciplined, and were in the first place.

Outstanding women competitors, the psychologists continue are generally more independent than males.

Racing drivers exhibited strong personalities: "More than participants in any other sport, drivers are tough-minded, hard-headed realists. They are reserved and cool."

Athletics is changing with the times, the psychologist found in the study:

"The cultural revolution has penetrated the last stronghold in the American myth-the locker room. Young athletes, having scaled new levels of consciousness, now challenge a long standing article of faith-the belief that competition has intrinsic value."

These young athletes, the psychologists say, go into sports for their own personal aesthetic experience, to enjoy the game, and they no longer accept the authoritarian structure of sports or the great emphasis on winning.

All this change is hard on most coaches, Ogilvie and Tutko reported.

"Most coaches believe that a truly good athlete is also, by definition, a red-blooded, clean-shaving, truth- telling, prepared patriot.

"A top-notch competitor who disagrees with national policy is a heavy thing for a coach who undoubtedly believes that the wars of England were indeed won on the playing fields of Eton."

(Reprinted from the Boston Globe 9/23/71)

Stasz Wins Weekly Race

Peter Stasz of Northampton barely outsprinted Mike Cowles of UMass Sunday to win this year's first weekly cross-country run. Stasz is a graduate of Alfred College and is now associated with Pulp the local underground newspaper. Cowles is a senior phys-ed major from Amherst. Freshman Tom Wilson from Pennsylvania ran third with Wayne Lucas fourth. The first woman finisher in 12th place was Charlotte Lettis, a 20-year old sophomore Theater major who ran just under six minutes per mile for the three mile course around the athletic fields in front of Boyden Gym.

Thirty-two runners finished the race, which is held every week open to the University and the general public. The race is officiated by cross-country coach Ken O'Brien and members of the cross-country team. The race takes place every Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the vicinity of the new all-weather track at the far end of the athletic fields.

The top ten and their times:

1. Pete Stasz	15:43
2. Mike Cowles	15:44
3. Tom Wilson	16:02
4. Wayne Lucas	16:32
5. Steve Libby	16:49
6. Jay Ryan	16:50
7. Al Johnson	16:56
8. Brad Powell	17:07
9. Jim Lineham	17:29
10. Steve Levine	17:33

NFL Weekend Action...

LIONS TOP PATS

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP)-Quarterback Greg Landry's success on key third down efforts and Steve Owens' power running led the Detroit Lions to a 34-7 National Football League victory over the New England Patriots yesterday.

Landry, a former University of Massachusetts star, came through on five of seven third down situations in the first half as the Lions built a 17-0 lead and went on to even their record 1-1.

After the intermission, he set up a 27-yard field goal by Erroll Mann. Then, early in the fourth period, Landry tossed a screen pass to Owens, who broke though a gang of New England tacklers at the Detroit 40 and sprinted the rest of the way to complete a 74-yard scoring play.

A fumble recovery by Tom Vaughn at the New England 28 led to another Detroit touchdown two minutes later. Owens, the 1969 Heisman Trophy winner from Oklahoma, needed just three carries to reach the end zone.

Detroit's defense checked the Patriots except for one lightening strike in the third period. Jim Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, and former college teammate Randy Vataha combined on a 61-yard pass play.

BROWNS EDGE COLTS

BALTIMORE (AP)-The Cleveland Browns beat off a furious Baltimore rally and edged the Colts 14-13 Sunday in a National Football League game yesterday.

After being outplayed through much of the contest as Cleveland's Leroy Kelly scored twice on short runs, the Colts pulled to within a point on a TD following a blocked punt with 4:31 to go and then had two more chances to pull out the victory.

Another rush on punter Don Cockroft, who earlier missed field goal attempts of 44 and 35 yards in the rain, forced a 21-yard punt.

The Colts failed to move, but Clarence Scott made a mistake in intercepting the fourth-and-17 pass on the Cleveland six. That gave Baltimore another chance following a punt, but John Unitas, inserted for the final two series, then threw four incompletions.

Cleveland capitalized on one of many Baltimore mistakes to move ahead 7-3 at halftime, with Kelly going over from the three with 1:10 left.

After the Browns failed on a fourth-and-one play from the Baltimore four, the Colts moved for a first down. But wide receiver Eddie Hinton dropped an Earl Morrall pass and it was intercepted by linebacker Dale Lindsey who returned it to the Baltimore six.

The Browns only had to travel 38 yards for the winning TD in the fourth period.

BEARS UPSET VIKINGS

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)-Kent Nix pulled the Chicago Bears from defeat in the fourth period for the second straight week, pitching touchdown passes of 36 and 19 yards to Dick Gordon in a stunning 20-17 National Football League upset of the Minnesota Vikings yesterday.

Nix, who had passed for the winning touchdown in a victory over Pittsburgh last week in the waning minutes, hit Gordon on the 36-yard play on his first passing attempt after Jack Concannon was injured.

Then Nix, who had come into the game with the score 17-3 Vikings, found Gordon in the corner of the end zone for the winning score with 1:42 left to play.

Mac Percival booted field goals of 44 yards in the third period and 45 in the fourth period as the Bears took a 2-0 record.

Bobby Grim caught touchdown passes of four and 52 yards from Gary Guozzo and Fred Cox kicked a 14-yard field goal for the Vikings, 1-1, who had not lost a regular season game at home since December, 1968.

STEELERS STUN BENGALS

PITTSBURGH (AP)-Terry Bradshaw passed for two touchdowns and John Staggers returned a punt 67-yards for a third, helping the Pittsburgh Steelers defeat the Cincinnati Bengals 21-10 yesterday in a National Football League game.

The Steelers, fused by a defense which held the Bengals to just four first downs and 86 yards in total offense in the first half, scored their first touchdown with 22 seconds left in the opening quarter on a 15-yard pass from Bradshaw to Dave Smith.

Horst Muhlmann booted a 33-yard field goal on the Bengals' first drive of the game, but after that seven-play drive Cincinnati got only two more first downs in the half.

Corner-back Lamar Parrish stole the ball from Pittsburgh running back Preston Pearson on the Steeler 14 early in the third quarter and romped untouched across the goal line for Cincinnati's lone touchdown.

Staggers', a 5-foot-10 speedster, took a punt two series later on his own 33, found an opening up the middle and dashed all the way for a touchdown.

RAMS, FALCONS TIE

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Place-kicker David Ray boomed a 47-yard field goal with no seconds showing on the clock as the Los Angeles Rams battled to a 20-20 tie with the Atlanta Falcons yesterday in a National Football League thriller.

There were 91 seconds remaining when the Rams took possession of the ball on their own 21 after Atlanta gambled and lost-on a fourth and one situation.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel managed to guide the Rams in nine plays, milking the clock all the way, and the Rams reached the Falcon 40.

There was one second showing on the clock when Ray lined up the kick and then sent it sailing directly through the goalposts.

It was a bitter blow for Atlanta, which was near its second major upset in two weeks after beating the San Francisco 49ers last Sunday 20-17.

Falcons quarterback Bob Berry had driven the team 77 yards midway in the third quarter and Joe Profit had scored from the four to pull the Falcons from behind and ahead 20-17.

RAIDERS ROUT CHARGERS

SAN DIEGO (AP)-Quarterback Daryle Lamonica tossed two second-half touchdowns to speedy Fred Biletnikoff yesterday sparking the Oakland Raiders to a 34-0 victory over the San Diego Chargers before a record crowd of 54,084 in San Diego Stadium.

Oakland, upset last week by New England's Patriots 20-6, bounced back behind the accurate throwing of Lamonica and ageless George Blanda's kicking. Blanda got the Raiders off to a 6-0 lead at the half with field goals from 37 and 42 yards out. Lamonica put the game away in the second half.

Lamonica wound up hitting 11 of 17 for 174 yards and two touchdowns. Reserve quarterback Ken Stabler came on late in the final period and ran one yard on a rollout for a touchdown that capped the Raiders' 28-point second-half explosion.

OTHER SCORES

San Francisco 38, New Orleans 20
Washington 30, N.Y. Giants 3
Miami 29, Buffalo 14
Kansas City 20, Houston 16
Dallas 42, Philadelphia 7
Green Bay 34, Denver 13

FRATERNITY RUSH

FRATERNITY	ADDRESS	PUBLIC PHONE
Alpha Tau Gamma (ΑΤΓ)	375 North Pleasant St.	253-9239
Beta Kappa Phi (ΒΧΦ)	401 North Pleasant St.	545-0210
Delta Chi (ΔΧ)	314 Lincoln Ave.	253-9076
Kappa Sigma (ΚΣ)	70 Butterfield Terrace	253-9921
Lambda Chi Alpha (ΛΧΑ)	374 North Pleasant St.	256-6846
Phi Mu Delta (ΦΣΔ	Fraternity/Sorority Park	253-9034 549-0670
Phi Sigma Kappa (ΦΣΚ)	510 North Pleasant St.	256-6863
Pi Lambda Phi (ΤΤΔΦ)	14 Elm St.	253-3176
Sigma Alpha Epsilon (ΣΑΕ)	118 Sunset Ave.	256-6815
Sigma Alpha Mu (ΣΑΜ)	387 North Pleasant St.	253-9957
Sigma Phi Epsilon (ΣΦΕ)	9 Chestnut St.	253-9227 253-9212
Tau Epsilon Phi (ΤΕΦ)	418 North Pleasant St.	253-9971
Theta Chi (ΦΧ)	496 North Pleasant St.	256-6851
Zeta Beta Tau (ZBT)	358 North Pleasant St.	253-9031
Zeta Nu (ZN)	336 North Pleasant St.	253-9232

Monday, Sept. 27	Tuesday Sept. 28	Wednesday Sept. 29	Thursday Sept. 30	Friday Oct. 1	Sunday Oct. 3
ΤΕΦ (7:00)	ΣΦΕ (7:00-9:00)	ΤΕΦ (7:00)	ΤΤΔΦ (8:00)	ΣΑΕ · (3:30)	ΔΧ · (1:00)
ΣΦΕ (7:00-9:00)	ΦΣΚ (8:30)	ΦΜΔ (7:30-9:30)	ΦΣΚ (8:30)
ΦΜΔ (7:30-9:30)	ΚΣ (9:00)	ΖΒΤ (7:30-10)	ΑΧ (9:00)
ΔΧ (8:00)	Δ ΧΑ (9:30)	ΔΧΑ (8:00)	ΚΣ (9:00)
ΒΧΦ (8:00)	ΦΧ (9:30)	ΔΧ (8:10)	ΣΦΕ (9:00- 11:00)
· ΣΑΜ (8-10)	ΒΚΦ (9:30)	ΣΑΜ · (8-10)	ΦΧ (9:30)
· ΑΤΓ (8:00)		ΖΝ (8-10)	ΒΧΦ (9:30)
ΤΤΔΦ (8:00-10:00)		ΦΧ (9:30)
ΖΝ (8-10)
ΔΧΑ (8:30)
*Coed Rush		*Coed Rush	*Exchange with Alpha Chi Omega	*Outdoor Concert	*Barbeque
*Stockbridge Hall

Booters Win; Gridders Routed

By STEVE FERBER

ORONO, MAINE—Dominating throughout the Saturday afternoon contest, the UMass soccer team opened its 1971 season on an extremely bright note. It was UMass 2-UMaine 0, but the final score only begins to tell the story.

Blasting 35 shots at the Black Bears (compared to 15 going the other way) the Redmen controlled the action, and in Coach Berryman's own words "had the ball down at Maine's end nearly the entire ballgame."

It was the type of game that any team likes to open its season with. Everyone contributed, everyone did what was expected.

First there was Lindo Alves, the star forward who scored the first, and eventual game winning goal. Alves had the ball on the right side and beat the wing fullback around the end. Approaching the goal, Alves noticed that the goalie was giving him the short side, and curving it into the right hand corner, Alves had his first, and UMass' first, goal of the year.

That was in the second quarter, after the Redmen had had a few close chances. One of those near misses came in the first minute of play, when a scramble in front of the UMO net almost gave UMass a score. This was particularly pleasing to Berryman, who had seen his team start very very slowly in preseason play. But they came out quickly on Saturday and pressured the Black Bears for most of the 88 minutes.

Half number two saw the second goal of the day, this time by sophomore Mike Nugent. Nugent, a halfback, was dribbling the ball down the left side, and with no one to pick him up decided to carry the ball all the way in. Reaching the top of the penalty box area, Nugent, a righty by nature, made a left-footed boot that found its home in the right corner.

The Redmen suffered a let-down after this goal, similar to one that struck them after goal number one, but neither affected the team for too long, as the Redmen stormed back again and again.

Three times UMass came within inches of scoring. First there was the corner kick that sailed into the goal area and as Gary Hart kicked the ball past the goalkeeper, UMass was called for offsides.

Then there was Alves near miss, when right in front of the goal, with his back turned towards the goalie, he spun around and let one go, but hitting the crossbar, Alves was left with only one score on the afternoon.

Another corner kick nearly resulted in a score (UMass had six corner kicks on the day, to four for Maine) as Jeff Hague headed the ball towards the net, only to have it hit the bottom of the top post and rebound out.

Indeed with some luck it might have been 5-0, but then again UMass was fortunate on one close chance by the Black Bears. It was in the third period, when UMass held a one goal lead. The Redman fullbacks had been playing up close to mid-field all day, keeping the pressure on, when suddenly a Maine forward broke through and sped towards the goal. It was one on one as Redmen goalie John Kiah came out of the net and approached the oncoming linemen. But seemingly flustered about what to do, the Maine player let it fly, and fly it did, right over the goal.

With Maine playing a 4-2-4 alignment, this gave UMass a chance to dominate mid-field, but at the same time this put more pressure on the Redman fullbacks. But they handled it well, as Dick McCarron, recovering from his head injury of 11 days, made his presence noticeable. "McCarron made a big difference on Saturday," said Berryman. "He's been playing right fullback, and having his experience and kicking ability back in the lineup was a big help."

While the defense stayed strong, the Redmen did indeed control the mid-field action. Calheno played all 88 minutes and was doing his "usual great job" and Nugent, a sophomore in his varsity debut, "played very well, helping out on offense and defense, and tackling exceptionally well," noted Berryman. Nugent has improved steadily with each game and Berryman is very enthused about his progress.

Maine, in dropping their first game of the season, put its record at 2-1. Last week the Black Bears defeated Jersey City, 2-0, and Colby 2-1, but Saturday's loss left them little to shout about.

UMass, at 1-0, opens up their home season tomorrow against B.C., and looking more and more like the soccermen of last year, things are looking good for soccer '71.

KLUPCHAK CARRIES: Rick Klupchak, Dartmouth's fine sophomore halfback ran wild Saturday. Klupchak rolled up 184 yards including an 82-yard burst off tackle in the second quarter. He also caught a 24-yard scoring pass. (Photo by Barbara Brecher)

Intramurals

FIELD	TIME	FOOTBALL TEAMS		TIME	Starters vs. Team
1	6:00	(Women)	3		Racoons vs. Deacons
2		(Women)	4		Browns vs. Maurauders
3		Hemlocks vs. Eagles	5	9:00	Bucks vs. Bx
4		Grants vs. Maroons	6		Crushers vs. Trojans
5		Hicks vs. Hilos	1		Lemons vs. Oaks
6		Hickory vs. Hoovers	2		Cans vs. Seagrams
2	7:00	F Troop vs. Swine	4		Ironmen vs. Spartans
3		Stain vs. Hiller	5		Academics vs. Smashers
4		Mac's vs. Raiders	6		SB vs. 49 ers
5		Destroyers vs. Phantoms	1	10:00	Challengers vs. FD
6		Eyes vs. TEP "B"	2		Clouds vs. Roaches
1	8:00	Nation vs. Exp	3		Munchkins vs. Pelicans
2		Sugar vs. Stouts	4		Brownies vs. A's
			5		Freebees vs. Rascals
			6

Notice

NAIADS: Monday September 27, 4 p.m. Compositions--"The Contract", "Living Arch", "Water Painting"—6 p.m. Practice for tryouts.

NFL Results Page 11

Daily Collegian SPORTS

Dodgers Win

ATLANTA (AP)—Richie Allen and Duke Sims smashed solo home runs yesterday as the surging Los Angeles Dodgers downed the Atlanta Braves 5-2 and kept the pressure on the front-running San Francisco Giants in the torrid National League West pennant race.

The victory gave the Dodgers a sweep of the three-game series and kept them a slim one game behind the first-place Giants. Each team has three games left in the regular season.

Claude Osteen, 14-11, had blanked Atlanta on three hits over the first five innings, before Hank Aaron spoiled his shutout hopes with a leadoff homer in the sixth, Aaron's 47th this year.

Allen gave the Dodgers a 1-0 lead in the second with his 23rd home run. Sims rapped one in the third.

The Dodgers tallied an unearned run in the fourth when Manny Mota doubled to right and sprinted home when southpaw George Stone, 6-8, balked and threw wide of third, allowing the run to score from second on the play.

Los Angeles increased its lead to 5-0 in the fifth on a double by Willie Crawford and singles by Sims, Osteen and Bob Valentine.

Veteran reliever Hoyt Wilhelm, a former Brave, closed the door on a budding rally in the seventh when he fanned Aaron with two runners aboard.

Marty Perez started the inning with a single off Maury Wills' glove before Tommie Aaron rapped a pinch-double to left. Wilhelm then relieved Osteen and got Felix Millan on a foul pop, but Ralph Garr singled to left center, scoring Perez. Wilhelm then got Hank Aaron on the strikeout to end the inning.

By EARLE BARROLL

The Ivy League's the Ivy League and the Yankee Conference is the Yankee Conference and never the twain shall meet...And so proved Dartmouth College on Saturday in routing UMass, 31-7, before a crowd of 16,700 for the Redman football home opener.

The Indians were too much football team for UMass to handle and this was the story of the game. The defending Lambert Trophy winners resembled the Big Green powerhouse of last year in amazing 452 total yards while holding the Redmen to only 116 with their vaunted defense.

After the game UMass head coach Dick MacPherson said, "they drove the ball down our throats", and down their throats they did in ripping the Redman defense to pieces with a pulverizing ground attack that was complimented with a better than 50% air game.

On the otherhand UMass was unable to untrack anything resembling a ground attack which made the air route virtually impossible. With this as the case the Dartmouth front four was able to blow in on quarterback Piel Pennington throughout the game while the defensive backfield layed back for the passes that Pennington was able to get off.

Dartmouth scored the first four scores of the game before UMass scored in the third quarter, the first points that were scored on Dartmouth since its fifth game of last season at Harvard.

Mike Klapchak was the star for Dartmouth. Earlier in the week he was a reserve back but due to an injury to Charles Thomas, "we were forced to start Klapchak-the greatest thing to happen to Dartmouth," exclaimed Jake Crouthamel, the Dartmouth coach.

Klapchak scored twice on an 84 yard burst off tackle and a 24 yard pass play and ran for 134 yards on the ground in 12 carries. As a team the Big Green churned out 359 yards on the ground in ridding the UMass defense.

Crouhamel was complimentary of his two quarterbacks, Bill Pollock and Steve Stetson who hit on 8 of 14 passes between them and "called excellent games".

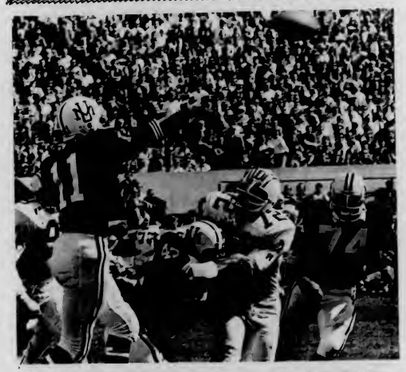
The Indians opened the scoring at 6:56 of the first quarter when Pollock found Stu Simms all alone on the five yard line with a pass, where Simms took it in to complete the 34 yard scoring play.

Five minutes later UMass was forced to punt and Tim Cooper returned it to the UMass 44. Nine playes later Brenden O'Neil plunged over from the one and Dartmouth was up 14-0 at the quarter.

Klapchuk was the Dartmouth scoring in the second quarter with his two td's and at the half the Big Green enjoyed a commanding 28-0 lead.

In the second half Dartmouth moved the ball effectively but only scored on a 31 yard field goal by Ted Perry at 2:14 of the fourth quarter. Crouthamel explained, "We had pre-season problems in scoring. Against ourselves in practice and in our two scrimmages we moved the ball effectively, but we couldn't score and this is how we played in the second half."

Tim Berra accounted for the only UMass score at 12:54 of the third quarter on a two yard run. This play was set up on a bad Dartmouth punt that UMass recovered on the Indians' 27 yard line. Two passes later from Pennington to Cabrelli and Schubert the ball was on the two where Berra punched it over.



MacPherson told Crouthamel after the game, "You did a hell of a job on us., I'll be in shock for a couple of days."

As for his game plan he felt his team was prepared, as "Dartmouth under Crouthamel was like Dartmouth under Bob Blackman last year." That called for many formations a number of shifts and a lot of play action.

"Because of this we had to go to a lot of zone coverage and this took away from our hitting."

Crouthamel was surprised at the relative ease that his team was able to move the ball against UMass.

Of his defense which he himself engineered last year to a NCAA leading 4.7 points allowed per game, Crouthamel said, "the defense did a good job, especially in the defensive backfield where we intercepted four passes.

PENNINGTON LETS FLY: Sophomore quarterback Piel Pennington gets off a pass in Saturday's home opener against the Indians of Dartmouth. Throwing a block on Dartmouth's Frank Lynch is Timmy Berra (42). Tom Mullen (74) is helping out. (Photo by Barbara Brecher)

Giants Keep Pace

CINCINNATI (AP)—Dick Dietz capped a seven-run fifth inning with a grand slam home run and Bobby Bonds and Willie Mays added two-run shots as the San Francisco Giants topped the Cincinnati Reds 12-5 yesterday and maintained their lead in the hot National League West race.

Dietz; out of action earlier this week when struck by a pitch, helped the Giants wipe out a 2-0 deficit with their big fifth inning.

San Francisco then applied the crusher with a four-run sixth as Mays and Bonds each ripped homers with a man aboard.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
Mostly cloudy; temperature in the 70's.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 15 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1971

The Cage was packed as they listened to the man millions read in the papers across the country who told them that "The Establishment is alive and well in Washington." (Photo by Gib Fullerton.)

Buchwald Captivates Cage Audience

By BOB CALLAHAN

"As Spiro Agnew would say, it's a great opportunity to be here at the University of New Hampshire."

For an hour last evening, Art Buchwald entertained a capacity crowd at the Cage with this and other bits of humor which sent the crowd cheering and applauding.

The man who is read by millions, came out of his airless room at the top of the Washington Monument to speak about everything from President Nixon to Sex Education.

Buchwald spent the early part of his speech telling the audience of his earlier years in the Marine Corps and of his attempt at getting into college. Lacking a high school diploma he was unable to get a degree from the University of Southern California. He told the audience that they are all wasting their time in college because even though he never received a degree, he was made Alumnus of the year at U.S.C. last year.

For fourteen years, Buchwald lived in Paris. Speaking about this he said that the farther you get away from Washington, the more things look to be under control.

President Nixon received a large amount of comment from the syndicated columnist. "Nixon has three White Houses, one in San Clemente, one in Key Biscayne...no wonder he feels the strain in Mississippi," Buchwald said.

Mentioning Billy Graham, Buchwald said that the reason that he changes Presidents so often is that Graham's job is saving souls and he has to go where the business is.

"We had fun in Chicago," Buchwald said in talking about a contest which the reporters had in trying to find the best protest sign which characterized the student demonstrations.

Speaking about the candidates in the '68 election, Buchwald said that Nixon looked like a guy that you wouldn't buy a used car from, Humphirey looked like a guy who bought a used car from Nixon, and George Wallace looked like a guy who would steal one.

The man who is against whoever is in power, said, in speaking about the situation of the country, that he considers himself as a cruise director on the Titantic.

Gun registration was another topic that drew a large applause from the audience. "I'm for gun registration," he told the group. "The reason is very personal. My neighbor has a gun and he can't even water his lawn straight."

"The local candy store is where I got my sex education," "Every afternoon at 3:00 we were given a lesson by thirteen year olds. This type of instruction is what kept me out of the back seat of a car until I was 23." He then told the group that when he reached the age of 13 he took on the role of an instructor. "Who knows how many I've destroyed?" he said.

I NEVER HAVE ANYTHING TO DO WITH POLITICIANS-Art Buchwald firmly reassured everyone yesterday that even though he makes his living writing about politicians, he never has a thing to do with them. (Photo by Jim Lavrakas.)

Buchwald is the man with all the answers for the problems which the United States is facing. He has the solution to ending the war in Viet Nam. "We should charter two 747's and fill them up with German and Japanese Industrialists and Bankers and fly them to

Continued on page three

On The Inside:

- Apartments Doomed? See page two
- Voting: How to Register See page three

October 4 Vote

Selectmen May Ban New Apartments

Amherst selectmen will vote October 4 on an article to place a temporary ban on apartment construction in Amherst.

A wide-angled view of the front of a Northampton apartment complex. Future construction of apartment complexes similar to this may face a shaky future in the Amherst area. (Photo credit by Tom Webber.)

The article, presented before the hearing by its author, Raymond Werbe, proposes to see "what the town wanted, qualitatively and quantitatively, in the way of multi-housing structures," according to Werbe.

He commented that "the town should have a say as to how many and what types of units should be constructed.""The ultimate goal," Werbe added, was to achieve "educated and informed" public opinion in regard to housing construction.

"Do you see the article as a permanent exclusion of apartment construction?" inquired Michael Cann of the Planning Board.

Werbe replied that it "was not the intention of the signers of the petition that all multi-housing construction be restricted. We merely want to stop it so that citizens can be informed," he said.

The Rev. Gordon Dean, Associate Director of Grace Church, spoke for the Council on Aging. and expressed concern about specially designed housing for the elderly.

"If Amherst fails to provide for the special needs of the elderly, then many of the older citizens will have to pull up their roots and leave their home town," Dean said.

Board member David Elder added that there were "more applications than space for elderly housing in Chestnut Court."

Selectmen Mrs. Nancy Eddy came out in support of the article, saying "It's the only hope for getting some changes."

According to Mrs. Eddy, a pressure situation would be created if the article was passed. "There would be pressure to get a housing study done to submit recommendations, while at the same time it would take the pressure off the Planning Board from granting permits when they're not sure they should be granted."

Raymond Campbell, representing the Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee, expressed opposition to the article, saying that he "shared with the intent but did not agree with the vehicle."

Campbell voiced concern over the possibility of a monopoly occurring saying that one big outfit could get control of existing apartments and damage the rent market. "We should not eliminate any shelter that could become available," he concluded.

Mrs. Joan Golowich of 20 Duxbury Lane favored the article saying that "it will not stop growth and it is not the intent to do so." She added that Hadley has housing for the elderly units although it does not permit ordinary apartments.

Town Manager Torrey called the article a "drastic measure" and claimed that it would "torpedo the Center School Complex."

"I'm not proud of everything that's been built in Amherst in the way of multi-family housing, but nevertheless people are living in these places and have shelter," he said.

Torrey also expressed worry over the article's possible affect on rents, saying that if the amount of housing was fixed, tenants would be placed in a disadvantaged position.

"There are many worthwhile projects which could come along that we'd hate to have to knock out," Torrey said. He cited in particular the possibility of new housing to replace the old fraternity housing, or architecture of particular merit which might be proposed.

Torrey objected strongly to the imprecise wording of the article, which specifies no time limit for the halt on apartment construction. Since approval of the article requires changes in the zoning bylaws, the vagueness of the article could have important ramifications.

In effect, Torrey pointed out, the article is not a moratorium or temporary arrangement, because it takes a two-thirds majority at a Town Meeting to put something back on the bylaws.

Pufton Village (known in some circles as Southwest North) is positively scenic in this deceptively natural shot. (Photo credit by Barbara Brecher.)

"You can't speak about next March," said Torrey. "Many people are against any form of multi-family housing, so you cannot count on a two-thirds vote at the next Town Meeting."

Read US

INTERCOLLEGIATE BOWLING:

All undergraduates interested in competing for a position on the UMass Bowling Team,

please contact Ernie Malagrida
2004 Kennedy
phone: 546-7882
deadline is Friday, October 1.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Your Activity Tax Could Be $75.50 Next Year

CANCELLED

SENATE ELECTIONS
THURSDAY SEPT. 30, 1971

Commuters! 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. - in front of Bookstore

Residents! 6 p.m. - 9 p.m. - in Dorms

Buchwald Pleases Large Crowd

Continued from page one

Hanoi to explain to the Viet Cong what happens when you loose a war to the United States.

In the closing part of his hour-long speech, Buchwald remarked about Communism and FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover. He called for redistricting of the Communist Party so that each town would have one of its own. This would give anti-Communist groups someone to fight against. He called this idea of his "Bus a Commie."

CIGAR FIRMLY IN HAND, Art Buchwald made the rounds yesterday, stopping in on a journalism class, where he said he likes to think of his satire as sticking a sharp knife into someone and then pulling it out before he realizes it. (Photo by Gib Fullerton.)

The question on many people's minds last night was where does Buchwald get his information. He answered this question by saying that he gets ideas from watching the political activity in Washington, reading newspapers and some he just makes up.

"It really scares you when you make something up and it turns out to be true." Buchwald mentioned that an instance like this happened five years ago. He was in Canada and told the Canadians that the United States doesn't have time to be nice to its friends. He said that the only way to get any attention from the U.S. is to provoke them. "The scarey thing about it is that two weeks after an article appeared about my trip to Canada, they blew out every light in the Northeast part of the Country.

After answering questions from the audience, Buchwald was the guest at a coffee hour held in the Colonial Lounge followed by a visit to the Collegian office.

Viet Students Riot

SAIGON (AP)-Students hurling fire bombs clashed with police in a new flareup of anti-government demonstrations Tuesday and witnesses said one student was shot and wounded by police.

The demonstrations followed a new appeal by President Nguyen Van Thieu Monday for voter support in the Oct. 3 elections. He cited his government's success in pacification and its efforts to help disabled war veterans and other war victims.

The youths, a mixture of some 200 university and high school students, threw dozens of gasoline-filled bottle bombs and damaged four vehicles, two of them believed to be American-owned.

The student was shot in the chest by a policeman during the melee. He was taken by police to a hospital. There was no immediate report on his condition.

South Vietnamese police immediately sealed off the area of the demonstration. Even U.S. military police, seeking to check on the U.S. vehicles reportedly fire bombed, were not immediately able to get into the area.

The protest occurred at Phu Nhuan Market, a congested suburban area 1-1/2 miles north of the center of Saigon.

The students carried banners denouncing Thieu's government and his decision to run unopposed in the election.

Shortly after the Phu Nhuan outbreak, another demonstration occurred in Saigon's central market and police fired tear gas to break it up.

The two demonstrations occurred as Thieu was to make a scheduled campaign appearance at the Saigon zoo, but he did not appear.

Protests were staged in at least five cities Monday. Five policemen were wounded by grenades when a march by 200 disabled veterans erupted into violence in Da Nang.

Vets Take Heed

It is essential that veteran students who are eligible for educational benefits under the G.I. Bill and "war orphans", to re-enroll annually at registration on a VA form in order to insure continuation of these benefits.

It appears that some 400 veterans who were on campus last year under the G.I. Bill have not re-enrolled to have their benefits continued.

These students should immediately complete the prepared VA form, Room 239, Whitmore or their training allowance checks will be delayed until December, or possibly later.

Northshield Lives

TONIGHT
CRADLE
At
The English Pub
9:30-12:30 Dancing 25¢ cover

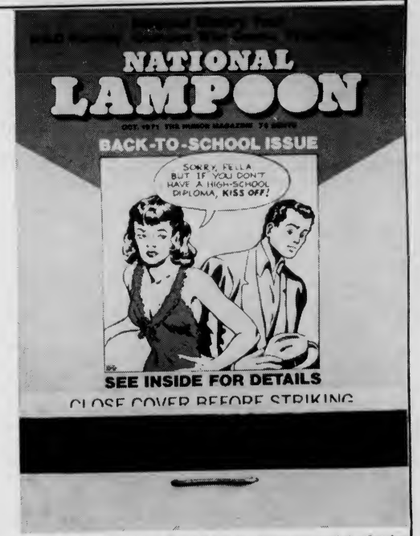
CEQ

Ban The Bomb

By ELISA CAMPBELL

Good old Uncle Sam is generously thinking of providing all of us--peaceniks, ecology freaks, old-fashioned ban-the-bomb enthusiasts, Aleutian islanders, Alaskans of all races, Russians, Japanese. Canadians, Californians, and just plain people interested in living healthy lives and having healthy, unmutated children--with a chance to gather together to celebrate our concern for our world and each other. The party is called Cannikin and will be in October: the place will be a small island in the Aleutian chain, Amchitka. If that means nothing you, that's 1500 miles from Canada, Japan, and mainland Alaska, but only 800 miles from the Soviet Union. Don't be late--entertainment is by everybody's favorite super-heavy group, the Atomic Energy Commission. They make Pacific Gas and Electric look like a light bulb, and Black Sabbath like Easter Sunday.



You remember the AEC's outasite event last December 18, Baneberry at their commune in Nevada. They were so outrageous that their radioactive vibes spread over thirteen states and part of Canada. That makes a total of 17 out of 46 events that got just a little out of control. Heavy! and now they are back again! Only this time, since Cannikin is their biggest gig yet- five megatons-they're holding the festival in a wildlife sanctuary way out on the end of Alaska. They've tried out the place twice already and just know it's the perfect spot for Cannikin. It's a little over half a mile to the two nearest seismic faults. The only really close neighbors who might object to the earthshaking power of the AEC are 44 species of birds (mostly nearly obsolete bald eagles and peregrine falcons), sea otters, sea lions, harbor seals, and a few million fish. Of course, those old men who run Alaska, Japan and Canada have protested, but it's not their property. Amchitka is United States public land, which means it belongs to the U.S. government. If Congress is willing to pay the AEC and Nixon is willing to sign them, the party's on no matter what the neighbors think.

And you know, with the AEC heading the bill, anything can happen. There's still radiation from Long Shot in 1965 and Milrow in 1969. At the least, part of the ground will jump in the air, taking water and fish with it. When it all comes down, the beat may be heard for miles along those groovy faults. Vibration along one of the world's major earthquake zones! Waves of cosmic energy reaching across the Pacific all the way to California, maybe! You may even get a hit off some old World War II mustard gas that's been stashed on the ocean floor in rusty drums for a quarter of a century. Wow!

But what will really take you higher is the intense energy of the cosmic forces that the AEC always generates. Of course, to keep the authorities calm, they insist that everything will be under control. They've moved the stage to over a mile below the surface and about half way between the two nearest known faults. They say they're sure the new vibes won't call back the spirits of those earlier events: "It is not conceivable that Cannikin would cause release of underground radioactivity from the cavities which remain from the earlier Milrow and Long Shot tests." If you make it sound official, you know, government officials will go along with anything. Like, they think this thing is for the national defense. They are going to shoot this monster up in the air in a Spartan rocket to form an x-ray blanket to protect us from Chinese missiles. Buck Rogers! Part of that nation-wide tour called ABM that got cancelled a couple of years ago. Only someone forgot to cancel Cannikin. So all this incredible energy is going to come absolutely bursting out; and even if only "a few percent of the total radioactivity" gets into the audience, just think what a few percent of a five megaton event is bound to be! And stick around after the band's gone, because these vibes could keep on coming out for years. You may be able to snort it, or you may even be able to drink it in water. A whole ocean of electric water!

And the concert is absolutely free.

Light up.

This fall, when you and Sally Torque go to the big game with Purvis U., take along a copy of the October issue of the National Lampoon. For the 75 cents you would have spent on a football program to find out that Billy Glefson, tight end for the Purveyors, hails from Mofongo, Indiana, and majors in port construction, you'll have something to do during half time when the Asher B. Durand High School Large Drum and Aimless Marching Corps slides into John Philip Sousa's "Bataan Death March" for the fourth time. You'll be reading a fifteen-page Mad parody; "125th Street," the educational TV show where those adorable Muthas, Big Rat and the Cocaine Monster, teach ghetto children their place; "Magical Misery Tour," which records the Beatles' trip to a land where all you need is a lawyer; "The Final Seconds," a gridiron gripper starring those inseparable chums, Moose Nixon and Ruff Mitchell; and "Right On!", the same campus war game played for years in army think tanks and radical encounter groups. And much more. The Back to School issue of the National Lampoon is on sale at newsstands everywhere.

In The Nation And The World

Thieu Asks For Support

SAIGON (AP)-President Nguyen Van Thieu appealed anew Monday for voter support in the Oct. 3 election, citing his government's success in pacification and its efforts to help disabled veterans and other war victims.

He also claimed he has brought the country closer to peace and prosperity during his four years in office.

As Thieu delivered his second televised speech of the campaign, officials assessed results of a day of scattered but coordinated anti-government street demonstrations.

Protests were staged in at least five cities and five policemen were wounded by grenades when a march by 200 disabled veterans erupted into violence in Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city.

An estimated 2,000 veterans and students took part in a peaceful anti-Thieu march in the coastal city of Qui Nhon. American vehicles were fire-bombed in Can Tho, and Saigon witnessed the first pre-government demonstration of the campaign.

As was true of most of Monday's protests, disabled veterans led the pre-government demonstration in front of the National Assembly building.

But all evidence-including the fact that the 23 demonstrators arrived and departed in government trucks- indicated it was officially organized in an effort to offset the anti-government activities elsewhere.

Police broke it up after an hour by loosing three tear gas canisters that scattered spectators, who outnumbered the demonstrators.

Thieu's 75-minute television speech was one of the longest he has ever made but contained little that was new.

He outlined his plans if given a vote of confidence next Sunday. Thieu, the only candidate, has said he will resign if he fails to get at least 50 per cent of the votes cast.

The president said security had increased to the point where all but 25,000 of South Vietnam's 17.5 million people live under government control, and predicted that this control would be complete by the end of this year.

Of 10,500 hamlets, he said, only 52-mostly in remote areas-were not controlled by Saigon.

Thieu's figures appeared to contrast sharply with the latest monthly report of the U.S.-devised Hamlet Evaluation System which last week showed a .3 per cent slippage, nationwide, in security.

The HES figures showed a total population of 18.4 million, with 70,000 living under Viet Cong control and another 852,000 in "contested" areas.

Monday's Da Nang demonstration - the most violent yet in South Vietnam's second largest city during the election crisis - erupted when police used tear gas in efforts to drive the veterans back into their shantytown near the Da Nang air base.

Corrupt Doings Swamp Postal Bids

WASHINGTON (AP)-Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., alleged Monday there is "a strong appearance of impropriety" in the selection of underwriters for a $250 million offering of U.S. Postal Service bonds. Parties involved quickly denied any impropriety.

Udall, chairman of the House Postal Service subcommittee, said a two-month investigation by his staff found "no compelling evidence at this time of violations of the criminal code" but accused postal officials of "a lesser degree of misconduct and impropriety."

The Postal Service emphatically denied any wrongdoings in selection of five underwriters for its first bond sale.

"The report gives no support whatsoever to the charge that political considerations were involved," a spokesman said.

Udall's report asserted that Kidder, Peabody and Co., whose board chairman and 13 vice presidents contributed at least $47,893 to GOP campaigns in 1968, was selected even though it had never handled a bond issue of that type. A spokesman for the New York investment firm declined to comment.

Udall's report asserted also that Dillon, Read and Co., Inc., of New York was chosen "largely because of the personal relationship" of senior Asst. Postmaster Gen. James Hargrove, who had dealt with Dillon Read as a former vice president of a company doing business with the banking firm.

Hargrove replied he "consulted with no one outside the Postal Service" on Dillon Read's selection. A spokesman for the firm said "politics had nothing to do with the selection, at least as to our firm."

Udall's report said further that Peter Flanigan, a White House special assistant and a former Dillon Read vice president, had participated in discussions and meetings on the bond sale.

Udall called this "a serious breach of propriety."

Flanigan said he was "in no way involved" in the selection, and added, "I reject entirely any suggestions of impropriety."

Udall's report said the Postal Service "made a serious mistake" in not stopping the underwriters from hiring President Nixon's and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's old law firm of Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander of New York as their legal counsel.

Hargrove said Nixon's old law firm was selected by the lead underwriter, Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, because it is that firm's legal counsel.

International Cooperation Urged On Monetary Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)-The International Monetary Fund urged its member countries Monday to "make every effort to cooperate with the United States" in achieving a basic improvement in the U.S. balance of payments.

Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, the IMF managing director, delivered the appeal to the 118 national delegations opening the week-long annual meeting of the fund, where President Nixon 's pressure play for worldwide currency revaluation is under heavy attack.

A warning that West Germany may be forced to retaliate against what it considers the rigidity of the American stand has been made to Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally by the German finance minister, Karl Schiller.

Schiller notified Connally-according to German sources here-that West Germany "may be compelled to come to a painful reappraisal of the economic and currency policy we have been pursuing."

The circumstances in which Schiller hinted at a rift in the hitherto closely cooperative U.S.-German relationship were not divulged. It was known to have been in direct conversation. The German minister reportedly has used similar language in other discussions here.

IMF director Schweitzer urged prompt and collaborative efforts to solve the currency disorders precipitated by Nixon's Aug. 15 action suspending the convertibility of dollars into gold.

He emphasized that all countries should make contributions-a broad hint that the United States, in addition to insisting that other countries revalue their currencies upward, should go part way by devaluing the dollar-that is, raising the price of gold.

But Schweitzer told the delegates, whose meeting is concurrent with that of the governing board of the World Bank:

"Other countries and the international community at large should make every effort to cooperate with the United States in the task of achieving a fundamental improvement in its balance of payments."

Almost as he spoke, the Commerce Department issued August figures showing a deficit in the American trade balance for the fifth month in a row. The U.S. imported $259.7 million more in goods than it exported. The deficit was $304 million in July.

That brought the deficit for the year through August to $936.1 million, in sharp contrast to a surplus of $2.2 billion for the same span in 1970.

Nixon ordered the import surcharge into effect in mid-August, but it did not significantly affect the month's trade totals because it did not apply to goods in transit.

Red China's UN Seat Probable

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)-The new thinking on China was reflected Monday in the U.N. General Assembly where Iran, a long-time U.S. ally called for the seating of Peking as the only government of China.

Foreign Minister Abbas Ali Khalatbari of Iran was one of the early speakers in the round of policy declarations which will occupy the 130-nation assembly for the next three weeks.

Iran abstained last year in the U.N. China vote, but since then has joined the swing to Red China, which now includes a majority of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

Brazilian Foreign Minister Mario Gibson Barboza, opening the general debate, asserted that "the participation of this new partner is taken for granted, whether it be today or tomorrow."

Without mentioning the United States by name, he criticized big power politics, which he said was mainly responsible for the changed prospects for Red China.

"The very novelty of the situation, which is now in the offing and that fundamentally changes the prospects for membership in the United Nations," he said, "is that a superpower has decided that the time has come to acknowledge the existence of another great power."

Brazil has in the past sided with the United States in opposing Peking's seating. Gibson Barboza did not say Monday how he would vote on the two rival resolutions before the assembly.

Those are the U.S. plan to seat the Chinese Communists while permitting Nationalist China to remain, and the so-called Albanian resolution calling for the expulsion of Taiwan.

The Albanian resolution has picked up three new sponsors, Ceylon, Nepal and Equatorial Guinea, to bring the total to 21.

This appears to be part of a numbers game to put it ahead of two U.S.-backed resolutions.

The U.S. proposal embodying the two-Chinas policy has 17 sponsors and a second one to declare the expulsion of Taiwan an "important question" has 19 sponsors. If the latter is approved, a two-thirds majority would be required for action.

Later in the day, Japan outlined its new policy as a cosponsor of the two-Chinas resolution. Former Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi told the assembly that the expulsion of Taiwan would upset the international balance in the Far East and increase tensions.

One country which stood pat was India. Her foreign minister, Sardar Swaran Singh, declared that only Peking is entitled to occupy the China seat.

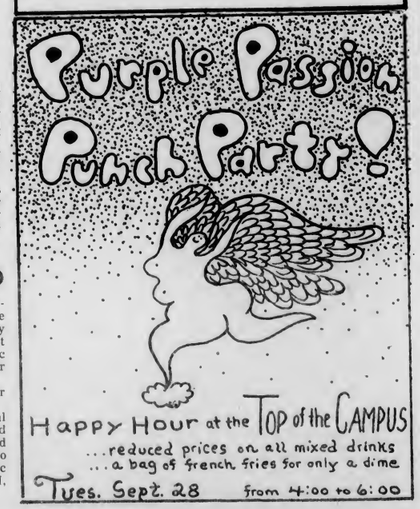
Our Hirohito

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)-President Nixon headed home today after a whirlwind three-day tour of the Pacific Northwest that was climaxed by a historic meeting with Japanese Emperor Hirohito.

Nixon departed Anchorage for Washington at 2:21 p.m. EDT.

Earlier, about midnight local time Sunday he and Hirohito stood stiffly at attention as red-jacketed U.S. Marines, heirs to men who fought Japan on dozens of Pacific battlefields in World War II, passed in review.

MDC Classifieds Pay



For Rides call 545-2163 253-9034

Open Rush Tonite 9:30

Frat. - Sor. Park

Phi Mu Delta

Be different. Make your own decision. Come and see what it's all about.

Library Stacks Center Of Campus

South College takes on a new perspective from the top of the new library, 28 stories up. Work was recently completed on the concrete part of the world's tallest library. Why 28 stories? Officials say it was the only way to fit a 600,000 square foot building in the assigned space. (MDC Photo by Steve Schmidt.)

By KAREN PEARSON

A terrifying explosion of searing metal permeates the campus, accompanied by an excruciating brightness. A small passenger plane has flown too low and the pilot is unable to see the ominous form of the library. There are no survivors. Why?? Because someone had ripped off the signal globes from the top.

True situation? No. Possible? Yes.

The new UMass library is 532 feet above sea level, 300 feet from top to bottom, which makes it the highest elevated building this side of Boston's Prudential Building and the only library of its kind in the world.

People often query, "Why such a tall library?" The assistant director of planning at Whitmore explains: "We are assigned to build a library in a central location on campus, near the pond. The only way to fit a 600,000 square foot building in the assigned lot is to build up."

Two other sites were considered, one where Dickinson Hall is now, but they were finally considered inadequate.

Because of the 28-story library's unusual character, building procedure goes beyond the ordinary aspects of labor division and construction. According to Paul St. Martin, superintendent for D. O'Connell's Sons, Inc., the contractor "The biggest problem is providing safety for the workmen. There are people working over people, and there's a constant danger of falling objects." He stated that safety bulletins are published and regular meetings on the subject are held for the UMass crew.

Landlord-Tenant Group Working Quietly But Well

By STEPHEN SMITH

The Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee is alive and well in Amherst.

Because it operates behind the scenes with little public fanfare and because it respects the anonymity of those involved in disputes which come before it, the landlord-tenant group is the phantom committee of the town.

The relative obscurity of its operational procedures makes it difficult to assess what the committee is doing., how they're doing it, and what they ultimately accomplish. Closer examination reveals that the committee is playing an increasingly important role in solving Amherst's rental housing problems.

The Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee was established by 1970 Town Meeting vote to deal with complaints of unfair and unreasonable practices in private rental units in Amherst. Selectmen appoint the committee, which is composed of five members and two alternates. At least one member must be a tenant, and one a landlord.

No Judgements

"The intent of the committee is not to pass judgement," said committee member Raymond Campbell. "Our object is to get landlords and tenants together."

The committee's goal is to solve complaints in a way that is agreeable to both parties. It is hoped that this can be done as amicably as possible. According to Campbell, the committee "doesn't want an confrontations." Campbell estimates that 80-90 per cent of the complaints are solved in this fashion because "the people are usually reasonable."

If a voluntary agreement is impossible, the committee can request the building inspector or the board of health to make an inspection and take action if necessary.

When the complaint doesn't involve living conditions per se, however, a complainant's only recourse is often taking the matter to court. This would occur when the complaint involved such things as security deposits, rent raises, and written or understood terms of the lease.

The biggest problem confronting the committee is lack of enforcement powers, according to alternate Richard Howland. "There seems to be a serious problem getting enforcement out of certain town offices," he said.

Act Reluctantly

Howland, who is the attorney for students and general counsel for the student senate at UMass said that an effort was now underway to expand the enforcement capabilities of the committee. This might be done by having the committee assume complete responsibility for whatever action town officer might recommend, thereby overcoming the latter's reluctance to take strong action.

Howland expressed hope that in the future the committee could be replaced by a kind of tenant court, a quasi-judicial body with strong enforcement powers. There is an experiment along these lines planned in Brookline.

What is the general nature of the complaints which come before the committee? Howland pointed out that it was difficult to generalize, but speculated that "landlords who do not make the proper initial investment are the source of most of the complaints."

Landlords who proceed on the premise that a "well spent buck is cheaper in the long run" are less likely to be the target of complaints, he said.

The Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee is also trying to extend its jurisdictional bounds into apartment construction planning. The committee "input" would deal with the "improvement of apartment living."

Noise, Aesthetics

Such things as aesthetics, noise level, operating procedures, recreation facilities and possible interplay between tenants would be the committee's responsibility, according to chairman Steven Fletcher and Campbell.

Letters relating to this matter have been sent to the Planning Board and the Zoning Board of Appeals but have not yet been answered. It is the hope of the committee members that their consideration and approval of matters pertaining to the quality of apartment life will eventually be made a requirement of building permits.

Student Flu Shots Given At Infirmary

Influenza, a common respiratory illness occurring in the United States each year, is periodically in epidemic form. Influenza vaccines have been variably effective and have offered a rather brief period of protection against this disease.

Control of epidemic influenza in the general student population is, therefore, not possible through routine vaccinations.

The Health Services, therefore, recommends that influenza vaccine be administered only to certain individuals who are at a greater risk because of chronic medical conditions.

Annual vaccinations are recommended for persons who have the following chronic conditions:

—Congenital and rheumatic heart disease
—Hypertensive heart disease
—Chronic pulmonary diseases such as asthma, chronic bronchitis, cystic fibrosis, bronchiectasis, and emphysema
—Diabetes and other chronic metabolic conditions

Those students who would be eligible for vaccination under the above mentioned criteria and who have never received an influenza vaccine before should come to the Health Services for a primary series of injections. Two injections must be given six to eight weeks apart and should be concluded by mid November.

For those who have received influenza vaccine in the past year, only a single booster dose is required. Because the vaccine is prepared from viruses grown in embryonated eggs, persons who are allergic to eggs should not receive the vaccine.

Students with questions about influenza vaccines may consult Mrs. Adair at the Health Services.

Kosher Food Offered

Due to the many new food services present on campus this year, even the most meticulous food nut can find something to his preference. Among the new innovations is a "Kosher Kitchen".

Kosher, meaning ritually proper, is an ancient way of preparing foods in which only certain products are used. The program here on campus consists of lunches served on a weekday basis in the Hillel office. The foods are prepared in the Governor's lounge kitchen, which has been made available by the student union planning board.

Although the types of foods used are limited, selections are not. Foods ranging from French to Chinese can be prepared.

TUESDAY NIGHTS

THE COMPARATIVE LITERATURE FILM SERIES

presents

Sept. 28: Children of Paradise one showing at 8 p.m.
Oct. 5: Phaedra 8 and 10
Oct. 12: Last Year at Marienbad 8 and 9: 50
Oct. 19: Hiroshima, Mon Amour 8 and 9: 45
Oct. 26: Les Liaisons Dangereuses 8 and 10
Nov. 2: Apu Trilogy: Pather Panchali at 8, Aparajito at 10
Nov. 9: The World of Apu 8 and 10
Nov. 16: The Hawks and the Sparrows 8 and 9: 45
Nov. 23: Joan of the Angels? 8 and 10
Nov. 30: Before the Revolution 8 and 10
Dec. 7: The Grand Illusion 8 and 10
Dec. 14: The Trial 8 and 10
Dec. 21: The Sky Above, the Mud Below 8 and 9: 45

ALL FILMS IN THOMPSON 104
FOR INFORMATION: 5-0929

Season Tickets - Any Six Films for $3.00 or single tickets - $.75 at the door.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

NEWS STAFF — Bob Nesti, Nance Smith, Bob Scheier
SPORTS — Fred Rosenthal
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Carl Nash, Bob Lake
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Where Power Lies

With the drive for voter registration enlarging daily, many people are overlooking another political problem which stretches deep into the roots of the Campus community. The fact is that Student Senate elections have had to be postponed a week due mainly to a lack of candidates around the campus.

It was less than a year ago when the campus was engulfed in the controversy centered around the payment of Student Senate officers. It seemed then, and it appears more evident now, that the only things students care about is conserving their money and remaining removed from all campus problems. However, the fact remains that these goals are not and can not be mutually exclusive.

Though many may shun the troubles of the campus, there are a few, as there must be, who feel they must take up the slack of their less interested neighbors. However, it seems that their numbers are declining every year. The end result of this decay is that the student role in campus governance will gradually be handed over to other sources of power and though these new sources may have the desire to do their job well, they will not have the vested interest in protecting the pocketbooks of the students that their own representatives have.

In a more short range view though, Student Senators are important for the mere fact that the Senate possesses a lot of power and whether you're happy with this arrangement of not, it is hopeless to deny that fact. The only way to get in on the power so that you can direct some of its energy in the directions you desire is to become a member of that body. We urge anyone who has any interest in the present and future of UMass to run for the Student Senate.

The New American Movement

Part I

As far as the eye can see...desk. Women sitting behind them, backs straight and stiff, transfering from one sheet to another something someone else has written, and someone else will receive, but no one really needs.

Men and women on an assembly line...putting together a product that will fall apart, will blow up, will cost many times more than it is worth; men and women with no say in the building of the product, or where it will go.

In the factory and the field, in classrooms and coalmines, in hospital and home...Americans toil. For what? For the next meal, the next paycheck, the next promise, for the shoddy goods and polluted air, for their children who will rebel at the prospect of being part of this meaningless and empty life? For the profit of the few, the many give their lives in this dull routine. Many people anxiously watching the clock at work, only to be so exhausted during their leisure, that TV becomes the only way to pass the time.

America is soaked with alienation; with people who can't afford to be sick and can't find a way to be healthy; with poverty and hunger, drudgery and boredom; with veterans returning from an immoral war who can't find jobs; with racism; with heroin; with despair.

That despair is not just the depair of the poor and those who toil endlessly. That despair extends to those whose basic material needs have been met as well. The vast majority of people are prevented from realizing their human potentials in freedom and creativity. The technology and wealth that could be used to liberate us from toil and allow us to meet everyone's basic human needs is used, instead, to enslave us to a life of drudgery. Nothing is more clear in America today than the huge distance between the actuality of America in the 70's and its potential. And nothing is more frustrating than the endless line of politicians and opportunists, some of whom recognize the existence of a problem, but none of whom dare offer any real alternative.

America is run by a small group of people whose economic power gives them political power. These people control all the basic decisions that affect the lives of most Americans, and through an elaborate system of military and economic arrangements, control the destinies of most people in the world. That control is exercised not for the benefit of the majority, but in order to increase the wealth and power of that small minority. We believe that power must be redistributed to all people so that they can control their own lives. In practical terms, this means putting most questions directly to the people. It means ending a phony electoral system in which one gets to chose between personalities who agree on the basic questions. It means ending the advertising industry's job of creating needs in people for products that they would otherwise never buy. It means ending the manipulative techniques employed in the media to 'engineer consent-manage elections.' It means democratization of the economy, from the local level on up, and abolition of the power of the corporations. In short, we are for a totally democratic socialism.

Democratic socialism has little in common with the bureaucratic regimes of Eastern Europe or the welfare statism of Sweden. It is true that the advance of the welfare state and the advent of communist dictatorships have helped raise the material standard of living in many countries. But at the same time, the bureaucracies that have developed have taken on many of the features of previous class societies--using their special power to exploit workers and to create a sense of powerlessness and alienation that undermines the freedom and creativity that must be an essential part of human life. We do not want to substitute a new bureaucracy for the old--we want a totally new society in which the people control their own lives and are free to develop themselves in ways which they themselves choose. Hence, while we are concerned to eliminate the poverty and degradation of a society run by the capitalists, we want simultaneously to be preparing people to govern their society for themselves.

(A feature of Alternative Features Service)

Town And Gown

We have all read much about the friction between town and gown, particularly as it relates to housing but in other matters as well. That is one reason why it was so refreshing yesterday to hear the remarks of Chancellor Francis L. Broderick of the University of Massachusetts in Boston before the Dorchester Board of Trade.

For two years from now, UMass in Boston will move to a brand new campus at Columbia Point, Dorchester, and what Dr. Broderick talked about with considerable foresight was, quite plainly and simply, being a good neighbor.

It was good to hear that UMass in Boston already has a working relationship with the Columbia Civic Assn. and with the Columbia Point Action Coalition, and hopes soon to have such a tie with the South Boston Citizens' Assn. But Dr. Broderick called for more than this — for anticipating problems instead of merely responding to them after they arise.

The state university, he warned, cannot build housing, or establish day care clinics or health centers solely as community services nor undertake projects in economic development. Yet these are eminently desirable, and he pointed out a way to realize them.

One, he said, could be a non-profit, tax-exempt community development corporation, separate from the Dorchester, South Boston and Columbia Point communities and from the university as well, and yet including them all, drawing on private investment, foundations and Federal money to develop new community facilities.

Such an agency or agencies could create new housing to prevent "blockbusting" and encourage new business activities, with the university making available its staff resources for much of the organizational administrative work. And one result could be the kind of community services to be needed by the neighborhoods involved.

But merely an exchange of good intentions will not deal with the coming problems and opportunities. Dr. Broderick is right in urging that a working partnership be started now to set up the capacity to plan together, and he has offered to make available to a joint planning group within 90 days the technical staff needed to translate plans into action.

This was the forward-looking speech of a good neighbor, and his invitation for cooperation ought to be accepted enthusiastically by all concerned.

(Reprinted from the Boston Globe, 9/21/71.)

Editorial Points

It seems to be a truth that all big newspaper men smoke cigars.

•••••

How can people be surprised at what happened at Attica when a 1970 Justice Department survey of the nation's 4,037 jails indicated that 89% had no educational facilities, 86% lacked recreational or exercise facilities, 49% lacked medical facilities, 26% lacked visiting facilities, and 1.4% were even without toilets. In addition, only 2% of the jail population was exposed to any kind of innovative rehabilitation program.

•••••

The following news item caught our interest:

A policeman resigned from the Philadelphia police force after saying that he smokes marijuana. Soon after, a sergeant in the same district was arrested for selling heroin--to one of his own patrolman, a three-bag-a-day addict.

•••••

Isn't it strange that you see everyone you know in the Hatch but never see anyone you know in the Concrete Coffee Pot?

Something Missing

By DONNA HODGSON
EDITORIAL STAFF

... And something should be said in regards to the absence of that dear old institution once located in the hub of Southwest - that being the Little Hatch - better known as "the hatch" to us bums too lazy to walk all the way to the Campus Center. Maybe you're thinking I'm a sentimental slob - but I've heard many under the collar comments since arriving back regarding "something missing" in the aforementioned region and the entire campus. could this possibly be the atmosphere? The second home to us bored studiers taking a fifteen minute coffee breather before heading back for several more hours of exhausting work (that is, if we ever go back!). Somehow I don't believe the loss has yet been fully realized by the majority since everyone's into jaunts to the bookstore and Whitmore and Zayres - getting settled back into the routine of college life - changing schedules, roommates - visiting lost acquaintances - breaking in new bluejeans ----

But think of the boredom that will eventually set in a month or so from now - when we tire of old friends and desire new - when it's too cold to sit outside after supper - too cold to play frisbee amidst the first snowfall - when we feel the need to get away from a crabby roommate or an incomprehendable chem. lab - Where can we go?

But yes - you say - The Food Services - living up to the betterment of Campus existence for us homeless creatures - has created a brand new "Bites and Pieces" - now occupying Hampden upstairs dining commons - which is just what it sounds like - a converted dining commons still possessing a very dining commons appearance - Dull, dark - and unfriendly.

The question of approaching another person is answered by the dull expression promoted by the surroundings. Think of how great it used to be walking into the Hatch at 10:30, panicking at the thought of having nowhere to sit - every table occupied - but then a friendly vocal invitation to sit with him or them --- I wonder if "Bites" will ever be full?

Anyways, I guess this a lost lament for the past - take it with a "Piece" of salt .....

A Lonely Midnight Ride

Peeking up a dozen yardlong stairs,
while sitting on my only window-sill;
Reaching to restore what was not there,
and hoping in a dozen years it will...
Bleached white beams in darkness had me
gasping for my every little dream;
Incarcerated in a foul dungeon,
my desecrated mind could only scream...
My trembling hands did pull me slowly on,
dragging every bruised and aching limb;
My eyes were linked with chains to one last dawn,
but every endless hour grew more dim...
Silently the night's mist built a stream-
erosive, leaving gutters in my brain;
The light I saw was from my own eyes' gleam,
and not a dozen suns would dry the rain...
For twelve long, lonely, empty, listless years
I'd built myself to what I thought I'd be-
But each year was an hour filled with fears, and now I'm facing midnight without Me...
A day or so has passed since when I fell from off the top of all those yardlong stairs,
And still I'm at the bottom of the well-
that goes to show you can't believe in prayers...
I don't know what I'd do without my love,
but now at least I'm swimming, and not drowned;
The sun's moon's tide might some day lift me up-
I might, some day, just once more touch the ground...

T. David Barrett

Letters To The Editor

Clearing The Air

To the Editor:

In the spring of 1970, four fraternities on the UMass campus died. Some attributed this fact to the fraternities' reluctance to change, others to decreasing campus interest; many believed that this was the beginning of the end for the Greek system at UMass. Although those four casualties decreased the overall fraternity membership on campus, the sixteen survivors have held their own or increased in size over the past year and a half.

With the fraternities now involved in their rush period, it seems appropriate to comment on the system as it is today. There was a time that when someone mentioned "fraternity", the word was automatically associated with paddling, harassment, physical hazing, discrimination, drunkenness and vulgarity. Drunkenness (and the like) can be found in any dormitory; vulgarity can be seen anywhere on campus--yes, even in the fraternity system. But the likes of physical hazing and discrimination are no longer a part of fraternity life. As it is natural for an individual to adapt himself according to the changing times, so it is with the fraternity system. Today the emphasis is on establishing comparability, responsibility and respect among the members and striving towards the achievement of the common goals of working, living and learning together. Overall participation is a key factor. Fraternity houses are in themselves autonomous living units, each independently owned and operated. The University does not supply such luxuries as daily maintenance or convenient food service. But rather, the members of each individual house are responsible for their building's upkeep as well as the hiring of their own cook and the supervising of their own kitchen. And with each individual having an equal voice, the direction of the house heads to where the majority may point it. But not only does it lean towards the much played upon social and sports programs, but also towards scholarship and service. Some fraternities have their own scholarship chairman; others have private house libraries and study hours at the Newman Center. Each year various fraternities willingly donate their time and effort in entertaining underprivileged youngsters, giving a party at an orphanage or collecting for Muscular Dystrophy or the Heart Fund. And for years fraternity men have volunteered their junior year for Arcon, the University Guide Service, to operate an outstanding public relations arm of the University.

But little is ever heard of this aspect of fraternity life. Instead the pictures in the Index show the fraternity men passed out on the floor and the articles in the Collegian tell of the beer-swilling jocks cheating in Micro 140. But those pictures could not have been taken in Southwest and the other 500 people in Micro must have had their eyes glued to their paper, for the deviant behavior is reserved only for the chosen few. But through it all, they've survived, and we hope that we've cleared the air just a little and that in the future, people will look beyond those funny shaped letters on the jacket and take that guy for the person he is and not for what someone else says his organization makes him.

Rick Pine
Steve Jones
Steve Cleary
Paul Stevens

Unity Among All

To the Editor:

The forces of peace and justice in the United States are in motion now at a level unprecedented in our history. There is a real possibility that an end to the war in Indochina can be forced on Nixon by the people, now that the present U.S. foreign policy has proven itself bankrupt.

The administration's determination to deal with all social problems with guns, clubs and gas is also being rejected by the people.

The racist genocidal actions against the Black community on the street corners and in the courts and prisons has been exposed for what it is-murder. Murder in Attica. Murder in San Quentin. Murder in the ghettos and the barrios of the Nation.

The resistance by the Black community has been overwhelming. Nowhere has the brutal, racist attacks succeeded in crushing the movement for Black Liberation.

In fact the insane desperate acts of those in power point clearly to their inability to deal with the problems they have created.

The once mighty U.S. economy is now collapsing. Unemployment is heading toward 6.5%. This figure is higher in many areas (50% of Black youth in major cities are unemployed). Inflation continues unabated. The wage freeze is on-freezing the poor in poverty. We are in the midst of a housing crisis. The inner-cities are disintegrating.

Yet here again resistance is seen. More resistance than we have seen in decades from the ranks of labor. Labor has joined the fight for peace and justice and against racism, repression and poverty.

Millions of people have come to the realization that the policies of Nixon and the Robber barons of finance capital for whom he works are on all levels anti-people policies.

This fall will see an offensive against war, repression, racism and poverty beginning with a moratorium and local demonstrations on October 13. We can move qualitatively forward in changing the priorities of the Nation, if we act in unity.

Unity among all oppressed peoples and all progressive groups is now needed more than at any other time in our recent history. And also more possible.

It is in this spirit we invite all interested groups to a meeting:

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28 AT 8:00 pm.
CAMPUS CENTER-ROOM 811-814

to form a coalition that can move the campus and community on October 13 and throughout the fall offensive toward peace and justice.

Robert Davidson

The Real Truth

To the Editor:

In today's issue a couple of your staff members displayed their ignorance concerning the state lottery bill and the meaning of strict construction of the Constitution. The question of the state lottery bill is not "the interest of the State Republican party", as Mr. Gorczuca contends. The bill the Governor vetoed gives control of the lottery to the chairman of the state Democratic committee. The issue is one of partisan politics being played by the Democratic State Legislature. The highly successful lottery in the state of New Jersey is controlled by a board including their equivalent of our State Treasurer and appointees of the governor approved by the Senate. I think this is much more desireable than having the state Democratic committee chairman awarded a number of positions in the state government to be dispensed at his pleasure.

You also ran an editorial on the occasion of the death of one of the truly great justices of the Supreme Court. But the author of this piece grossly misrepresented Justice Black by saying "He firmly believed against strict construction of the Constitution". When Nixon talks about a "strict constructionist" he means someone who interprets the Constitution strictly according to his own personal philosophies (Nixon's, that is). In the history of the Supreme Court the U.S. Constitution has been ripped apart that strict construction doesn't even exist any more, at least, not as it was originally interpreted. But Hugo Black was stricter than most. The First Amendment begins, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging" freedom of speech and the press and the right to assembly and petition. Mr. Justice Black said that "no law" means just the: NO LAW. I submit that this is very strict construction.

Joe Boynton

Draft Counselor's Corner

There's A Price On Your Neck

By GILBERT SALK

One problem about the current draft system (excluding all the obvious ones) is that many people, whose lives it's going to affect, don't know a fucking thing about it. What's worse is that people who don't know what they're talking about, but think they do, are busily spreading misconceptions about the draft.

If you want to know more about it; or if you just want to help your brothers then come to our Draft Counselors Training session. The Draft Counseling Services is sponsoring a training session to begin on Tuesday, September 28, in room 917 Campus Center.

The fee is $5; this is to cover the cost of all materials that you will receive. It starts at 7:00 and will run for two or three hours for the next four weeks.

If you want to sign up, then stop by at the Draft Counseling office in 923 of the Campus Center, or just show up the first night that we meet. Check with Gil Salk for an alternate night, if you can't make it on Tuesdays.

Also, if you've got a personal appearance scheduled with your local board and you want to run through the procedure, we have mock draft board meetings in 902 Campus Center on Thursdays between 10:00 - 12:00.

The important thing is to know what you're doing. Bother to find out.

Peace.

Job Hunting Aid Offered

If you are within 12 months of completing your studies, the Career Planning and Placement Staff will help you select your job options today at the following times and places:

		11:15 A.M.	3:30 P.M.
Engin., Nat. Sci. & Math.	Mr. Morrissey	Campus Center Complex, Rm. 163	Campus Center Complex. Rm. 163
Men: Bus., Lib. Arts, Agric. & Stockbridge	Mr. Edwards	Campus Center Auditorium	Campus Center Auditorium
Women not in Teaching	Mrs. Hardesty	Student Union Commonwealth Rm.	Student Union Commonwealth Rm.

Open Rush

THETA CHI

496 No. Pleasant St.

Next to Newman Center

Tuesday night, Sept. 28 9:30-11:00
Thursday night, Sept. 30 9:30-11:00

Why not treat yourself to a better, richer pizza at

Bell's Pizza

65 University Dr.
256011-2539051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

Believe all of what you see and none of what you hear!

If you think of Greek as straight you're wrong. If you think of freak as Communist you're wrong. There are no "Greeks" or "freaks." just people.

Sig Ep accepts men for what they are not what they look like. If you want to grow with the fraternity, with university and with other men, look at us.

Open Smoker

Tues., Sept. 28, 1971
7 - 9 p.m.
Call 5-0070 for Rides

Sigma Phi Epsilon
9 Chestnut St.

DARE

If You Care...

about tuition increases
day care centers
day care centers
loneliness
an education-not just a piece of paper teacher evaluation decent food and housing waiting 3 hours in line at registration each other area govt. becoming a reality living on Orchard Hill and getting V lot stickers concert facilities paying $70 a year for the use of two floors of the CC living not just existing

How?

30 commuter seats open

1 seat - Brooks, Butterfield, Chadbourne, Greenough, Hills So., Van Meter. No. and So., Wheeler, Crabtree, Dwight, Hamlin, Johnson, Knowlton, Leach, Lewis, Mary Lyon, Thatcher, Emerson James, Melville, Thoreau, Crampton; each division of the towers also.

2 seats - Baker, Hills No., Brett, Gorman, each dorm on the Hill, MacKimmie, Patterson, Cance, Pierpont and Moore-Prince.

3 seats - Brown, Cashin and the John Adams lower and middle combination.

When?

1) Nomination papers due on October 1st. They may be picked up outside the RSO offices - 1st level CC
2) Elections - Thursday - October 6, 1971

If You're Thankful for...

coed housing
pass-fail options
smaller room rent increases
10 meal plan
being alive and healthy
new grading policy

Why?

On September 15, 1971, a group of people sat down in a small room in the basement floor of the Campus Center to discuss the problems of being a student at this University. Thirty men and women, the remnants of a once 100-plus Student Senate. What had happened to the other 70? Graduation.. disgust.. impatience.. and maybe just growing up. Yes, they were a motley looking bunch - these here who proposed "to represent the student body." They had one outstanding quality however that should have endeared them to everyone - they recognized themselves for what they were and so charged the SGA committee to hold general elections on the 30th of September--less than two weeks away.

The rest of this saga is the history of a couple of beleagered students - including one very young and politically naive chairwoman who'd only served on the committee 3 1/2 weeks before becoming chairman - trying to run a campus-wide election. If the election is held as planned, it will be without doubt the most undemocratic and unrepresentative election since the 1968 presidential race. With 30 commuter seats open only 13 people had returned nomination papers by the deadline. Moreover, many dorms have only one person running with two seats open.

Therefore, on my own initiative and drawing upon my last strongholds of authority, I have decided to push the election date back one week to OCTOBER 7, 1971, with nomination papers due on October 1, 1971.

Mary Silveira
Chairman, SGA

TO RUN
for
STUDENT SENATE

Daring is the only real caring

"You're A New Man Charlie Brown"

Richard Whelan as Charlie Brown in "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown", the long-running, off Broadway success, will be performed October 3, at the Campus Center Auditorium for two performances only. Admission, $2.00.

"YOU'RE A GOOD MAN, CHARLIE BROWN," the hit musical based on Charles M. Schulz' beloved "Peanuts" comic strip which plays on October 3, 1971 at the Campus Center Auditorium for 2 performances is acknowledged as the most successful stage version of a comic strip, but not popularly known is the fact that comic strips were being adapted for the stage as early as 1900. "YOU'RE A GOOD MAN, CHARLIE BROWN" is produced by Gordon Crowe, Arthur Whitelaw and Gene Persson. Clark Gesner wrote the music and lyrics for the musical romp for which Alan Kimmel designed the sets and costumes and Jules Fisher the lighting.

Before Charlie Brown ever devoured his first peanut butter sandwich, before Snoopy had his first run-in with the Red Baron, before Charles M. Schulz created the characters-before there was a Charles M. Schulz, the first stage version of a comic strip made its debut. "THE KATZENJAMMER KIDS," a farce in three acts based on Rudolph Dirk's famed strip, premiered in New York at the Third Avenue Theatre on November 26, 1900, and scored equal successes in its New York run and road tour. "THE NEWLYWEDS AND THEIR BABY" adapted from David Warfield's strip, opened and closed quickly on Broadway in 1909 but was successful on tour. This was the first musical comedy based on a comic strip. The second, "LITTLE NEMO," based on the still reknowned strip by Windsor McCay, was distinguished by its composer-none other than Victor Herbert.

Next came the New York Herald's cartoon by George Totten Smith, "BUSTER BROWN," a comedy, and a musical version of Bud Fisher's "MUTT AND JEFF," followed by "BARNEY GOOGLE AND SPARK PLUG." The biggest comic strip hit of its day, however, was "BRINGING UP FATHER" based on cartoons by George MacManus, featuring the song "My Wild Irish Rose."

Czech Leader to Speak

The former chairman of the Czech Writers Union, which worked to bring Czech leader Alexander Dubcek to power and spectacularly resisted the 1968 Soviet occupation of his country will speak at Smith College.

Eduard Goldstucker, Czechoslovakian political leader and visiting professor of Germanic literature, University of Sussex, England, will speak at the college today. He will give a lecture titled "Reflections on Kafka's 'The Trial' " at 8 p.m. in Wright Hall auditorium on the campus.

Apart from his membeship in the Dubcek parliament, Goldstucker did not hold public office in connection with the "Prague Spring" of January-August, 1968. However he is regarded by the present Czech leadership as the gray eminence of the Dubcek regime. Certainly as writer and lecturer he was one of its main proponents. His dedication to "socialism with a human countenance" is indicated by his sponsorship of the international Kafka conference of 1963 and his books on Kafka, Rilke, and Werfel. His awards include the Goethe Gold Medal of the Goethe Institute.

Officially declared an emigre by the government of Czechoslovakia since 1969, he is subject to a prison term of up to five years and loss of his Czech citizenship because of his refusal to return home under government orders. A member of the Communist Party of the C.S.S.R. since 1933, he was expelled last spring.

Born in Slovakia in 1913, Goldstucker studied at Prague's Charles University where he received a Ph.-D. in 1936. He was secretary of the League for Human Rights in Prague, and taught secondary school there. He emigrated to England in 1939, where he did postgraduate work at Oxford.

From 1942 to 1944, he was in the foreign office of the Czech Exile Government in London, and then was ambassadorial secretary of his country's exile embassy in Paris. In 1947 he was appointed deputy ambassador to London and later served as minister to Israel and as a U.N. delegate.

Goldstucker was appointed minister to Sweden shortly before his arrest in December, 1951, in connection with the preparation of the Slansky show-trials. Eleven of the 14 defendants were hanged; Goldstucker was sentenced to life imprisonment in May, 1953. He spent two years in a Slovakian fortress prison and the uranium mines of Bohemia. At the onset of de-Stalinization he was freed and "rehabilitated."

If you're going to let other people make your decisions for you don't come down to . . . . . .

OPEN SMOKERS
at
Phi Sigma Kappa

Tues., Sept. 28 8:30 p.m.
Thur., Sept. 30 8:30 p.m.
Mon., Oct. 4 8:30 p.m.

(N.F.L. Football Game)

Open minded Freshmen and Upperclassmen Invited.

510 North Pleasant St.
545-0174

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

68 Ford Galaxie, 40,000 miles, excellent conditions, stereo, yellow with black interior, asking 1,500, Call 256-8297.

1965 VW Bus, excellent cond., rebuilt engine, new clutch, new brakes, great for camping, $900, or best offer. Call after 6 p.m. 268-7265. tf8-29

'69 Saab and '69 Peugeot. Both 45,000 miles, in good condition. Asking $1,250 each. Call 256-6742 for inquiry or test drive. tf8-29

1969 VW sedan. Very good condition. $1100 or best offer. Call after 5:30 at 584-7201. tf9-29

65 Chevy 6 cyl. std. New tires, excel. running. 584-8567 $450 or best. tf9-30

1961 Jeep FC150 Pickup/plow/excellent cond. $550; KLH model H, wooden cab., like new $175; Royal port. typewriter $60. 253-2538 6 p.m. tf9-28

65 Mustang conv., red, stereo tape deck with deluxe interior. Best offer over $550. Contact Steve, 253-5350. tf10-1

1966 Pontiac Tempest, standard trans. Call after 8 and ask for Janet. 253-7520. tf10-1

1966 Dodge Van, $450. 256-6425. tf9-29

56 MGA Roadster, exc. cond., w/63MGB engine running perf., conv. top, side windows, BTH. Michelin Tires. $850. Exes. 584-0976. tf10-1

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

1971 CB175 Honda CL350 exc. cond. Need money desperately must sell. Best offer, call Jack 6-7636. tf10-1

Honda 305, excellent condition, custom sissybar and helmet included. Only 8,000 miles. Call Al rm. 601 J. Adams, 546-8651. tf10-30

1970 CB750 Honda, excellent mech., less than 6000 mi. Call Bob 665-4752 after 6:30. tf9-29

1971 Honda CB450, 2 helmets, chain lock cover. 3000 mi., crash bars $875, 323-4430. tf10-1

FOR SALE

For sale, Guild Polara elec. Guitar. Good action & sound. Can be seen at Faces of Earth in Amherst must sell! Will bargain? tf10-1

Tent - 10 x 12' littrick used 1 week purchased in June ask $90.
Typewriter-portable underwood exc. cond. $20. PH. 546-2967.

10 speed Schwinn Sports Tourer. New $175, call Mike 549-6412, 301 Puffton. tf10-1

Schwinn 10 spd. $90 firm; rectilinear mini, 111 speakers 50-1000 4Z13DR $120, Fischer Alphahris 223cm Wild Man's Ski. 586-3868.
K.F.

Hanging Planters-other ceramic ware made to order, Fred Englander 549-1051, 15 Fearing St. tf10-1

67 VW Bug only 47000 miles, excellent condition, 2 extra snow tires $825. Firm 549-3833. 9-28

Forested house lots cleared. Reasonable terms. Call 247-5012 between 7:30 p.m. - 9:00 p.m. tf8-28

Alto Sax, Harmony Folk Guitar, Clarinet, Electric Guitar, good instruments - low price-584-8537. tf9-28

Canoe, good cond. $110. 586-1075 after 6. tf9-28

1971 Peuton, 125c.c., Enduro 21h.p. The ultimate woods bike. Jerry 253-5780 tf9-28

1967 BSA 441cc, Shooting Star, excellent condition. Must sell $175.00 Call 586-6917. tf10-1

Dunebuggy, 3000 mi., needs volks motor, top, special seats, much more $475. Call Cep 665-3129. tf9-29

Ski boots for sale, men's Kollach, 8 1/2M, White Stars. Call 546-6181 after 7 p.m. tf9-30

Waterbeds-Now all sizes $19.95! Factory warranty. Also, frames, liners and pads in stock. Call Mark at 546-5450.

ROOMMATES WANTED

Single girl or couple, own transp., share apt. 'til Nov.-pos. longer; call 584-2273 M-F 6-8, anytime, weekends. tf9-28

Female roommate wanted. Come over to 146 Mt. Hange Apts. MWF after 6, TTH after 10. In an open field 2 miles from campus really nice. tf9-28

Roommate wanted, male student, to share 1 bedroom Puffton Apt. Call 549-6979. tf9-28

Share my one room apt. in Amherst Ctr. You pay $35/mo., but for first semester only. Message to me, Tom at 6-5208 - 6-5178. tf9-29

WANTED

Would like info. on Indian reservation schools for educ. project. Anyone who can help please call Irene 546-7093 or Carolyn 533-0967. tf9-29

Men to erect chainlink fence. Experienced only. Part time. Fitzgerald Fences, 340 Bridge Rd., Florence, Mass. tf10-1

Compatable female, Nymphs wanted by 2 insatable males. Experience unnecessary. Call 256-6408 ask for Dereck tf9-28

RIDE WANTED

From Boston to U. Mass. Fri. nites & back to Boston on Sun. for 1 person, will share expenses please call Mike at 665-3083 6-28

SKIERS WANTED

Skiers wanted to share spacious chalet, 5 min. from Mt. Snow. Luxury living, only $250 for season, Dec.-Mar. Call Marty 549-6765. tf10-1

SERVICES

Need a hand, Dial-a-hand will supply a hand that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9215. tf9-29

I'll fix your rough, smokey, gas eating car for a reasonable fee. Call 256-8628 ask for Wendell, I make road calls. tf9-28

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt., all utilities, no lease. Pets & children welcome. Wall to wall carpet, $175 month. Call Kamins Village Apts., Belchertown. tf9-30

Mt. Hange Apt. -1 bdrm.-2 baths-lvng. rm.-kitchen - all new - $185/mo. - available immediately - call Danny 546-1365. tf9-28

Xmas, with 6 bed rms. 14 miles from U of M. Furniture, 2 baths, all utilities paid $350 per month, Call 323-7003. tf10-1

HELP WANTED

Campus Reps - opportunity for business-minded student to earn top cash and get unparalleled experience working for self on campus. Start immediately. Send brief resume and phone number to: Mr. C.R. Danforth, Box 75, Swampscott, MA 01907. tf9-29

Help wanted! Need reliable students male or female for delivery and sales work. If you are really interested call 549-3916. tf10-1

PERSONAL

Girls 121 and over! We need you to dance for us. Call Jerry at 1 Pelts Thl. 546-7780. tf9-28

Bisexual male would like to meet bi male or female for tea and sympathy. Reply in classifieds. tf9-29

Hey all young sensuous numismatists. I need someone to scrub my pennies. Call 6-5321. tf9-28

You-Male chauvinist interested in mindless chick for a warm, sincere relationship. Send resume and photo or $1.00. tf9-29

I need an eager beaver to keep me warm these cold nights. If you think you can help call me. tf9-29

Brilliant handsome young man needs someone to keep him humble and satisfied. Call 212-848-2761. tf9-29

Sue, 215 B'field: sit down young stranger, Gordon is alive and well and hiding behind a cannabis plant in an sho washroom, Publius. 9-28

Commuters if rent is a big issue with you let me make it a big issue with the Student Senate vote. Nell Kerstein for Senator. tf9-30

Josh is coming! 9-28

Happy 21st Dor! Sorry it's a day late. Love from the kids in 1709. 9-28

TRAIL RIDES

Horseback riding every Sat. & Sun. at Spellman Farms, Belchertown. Reasonable rates. Call Spellman Frms. on 3 River Rd. 283-6283. tf9-28

ROOM WANTED

Need place to live with other females near campus. Call Mary 253-7673. If not there leave message. tf9-29

In desperate need of room or apt., preferably near campus. Call Steph 586-2008. Keep trying. tf9-29

LECTURE NOTES

Lecture notes are now available in room 318 in the Student Union Lobby for all sections of Anthro 101, Botany 101, Econ. 125 and 126, Geology 101, Govt. 100 and 150, Hist. 151, Human Dev. 270, Micro 140, Phil. 105, Psych 101, 262, 263, 270, 280, 301, and 302, Soc. 101 Zoo. 101 and 153. One section of Hist. 150 and Psych. 325 also in.

COURSE

LEARN ANY MAIN EUROPEAN LANGUAGE. I understand & read in 10 mos. Course taught by UN Interpreter Indiv. courses by ovalled cassettes. 584-9749 or 1827 tf10-1

Notices

AGRICULTURAL & FOOD ECONOMICS:
The A.&F. Ec. Dept. is sponsoring an informal get together for all members of the dept. including all students and faculty, Oct. 6 at 8 p.m., Rm. 1009 CC. Refreshments will be served and friends will be made.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA:
The National Service Fraternity. Informal smokers. Open to all University men on Sept. 28 and 30 at 8 p.m., Memorial Hall.

ANGEL FLIGHT:
Meeting tonight, 7 p.m., in 210 Dickinson Hall.

BAKER SALES:
Please bring back my Honda Manual at least 6 6005.

BICYCLE CLUB:
Meeting tonight, 7 p.m. in Rm. 162 CC; Quabbin Tour discussed, future tours and activities planned.

COMMITTEE ON NUTRITION AND HUMAN NEEDS:
Open meeting in Rm. 103 CC at 7 p.m. New members welcome.

CEQ:
Steering Committee meeting 6:30 p.m. tonight at the office (Rm. 124) in CC. Officers please attend; anyone else may observe.

ECONOMICS MAJORS:
There will be a meeting of the undergraduate economics liason committee and all economic majors on Tues. at 7:30 in CC 175. All economics majors are urged to come and plan the future of your dept. Student representatives to the dept. will be elected.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB:
Attention all old members. Important meeting tonight at 7:30 in CC 905-909.

GSS:
GSS meeting 6:30 in CC 805-9.
Help us help others. Gamma Sigma Sigma Service Sorority.
Informal Coffee hour on Tues. at 7:30 p.m., Colonial Lounge, SU. All welcome.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB:
The regular square dance lesson will be held tonight in the Student Union Ballroom. Lessons will be continued for the old class members.

HILLEL:
Sign up for the Computer Dance in the office.
Sign up for the Friday evening dinner in the office this week.

ITALIAN CLUB:
Interested in Italian conversation and culture? Come join us at the Italian table on Tues. at 5 p.m. Berkshire Commons in Southwest.

MARKETING CLUB:
There will be a marketing club meeting Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. in SBA 102. All Frosh and Soph business majors and Junior and Senior mktg. majors should come to see what we can offer you.

PLACEMENT MEETING:
Engin, Nat. Sci. & Math: Mr. Morrissey, CC Rm. 163.
Men: Bus., Lib. Arts, Agric. & Stockbridge: Mr. Edwards, CC Aud.
Women not in Teaching: Mrs. Hardesty, Student Union Commonwealth Rm.

UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN:
Questions or problems concerning sorority rush? A Panhellenic representative will be on hand in Rm. 108 CC from 1-4 p.m. weekdays during rush. Drop by or call 5-2957.

VIET NAM VETERANS AGAINST THE WAR:
Tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 174-6 CC. Any and all veterans, Viet Nam or others and any interested supporters, drop down and let us know how you feel about future actions. Speakers, and film will be shown.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION:
Meeting Tues. at 7:30 in Rm. 903 CC. All women welcome to come and join in an informal discussion of basic issues.

RIDE NEEDED:
Anyone traveling to U. Maine? If bound for Orono or Bangor area the 21st or 22nd of Oct., call Betsy 6-7193.

LOST:
One billfold-type wallet belonging to Jeff Kelly; if found please return to CC lost and found.
Small straw shoulder bag containing brown wallet and glass case. Need ID's desperately. Call Diane 6-8092.
Golden retriever, 1 1/2 years old, is not wearing a collar; answers to the name Pocco. Call 549-0599.
Black & white male cat lost in Orchard Hill/Central Area. Call 6-6856.

Service Sorority Seeks Member

"The more man is man the more he will feel the need to devote himself to something which is greater than he is."

Most students on campus would probably agree with this statement. They like to feel they are concerned about, involved in issues vitally relevant to improving our society. It is not always easy, though, to get personally committed and know the deep sense of accomplishment that comes from giving one's energies and talents to help someone else. On a campus this size, it is easy to see there is a lot that can be done. Knowing where to start isn't as obvious.

GSS is a good place to start. It is the National Service Sorority, open to any coed who wants to join its members in serving people. It is devoted entirely to serving our campus and community. GSS performs such meaningful services as assisting with foreign student orientation, organizing a used book exchange, working at the Bloodmobile, ushering, working with the Hampshire County Public Health Office, visiting nursing homes and hospitals in the area.

Anyone interested in learning more about how GSS serves is cordially invited to coffee hours held this week and next. Time and place are in today's notices.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Capricorn individuals are fond of summing up their "life and times," no matter what their chronological age happens to be at the moment. Of all the zodiacal signs, natives of Capricorn are apt to be the most conscious of time. Some famous persons born under this sign include Henry Miller, Marlene Dietrich and Howard Hughes.

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Ambitions may conflict with legal commitments. Be willing to spend, but get money's worth. Build toward security. Finish important projects, assignments. Key is to clearly blueprint ultimate goal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Desires fulfilled if health factors are considered. Means avoid taking on too much at once. Check diet. Keep recent resolutions. Accent on travel, submission of formats, manuscripts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Creative drive is highlighted. You get things done. Be ready for sweeping changes, added opportunities. Aquarius person plays prominent role. Aim toward future, not past. No more self recriminations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Some habit patterns subject to revision. Don't attempt to block progress. Family member may be sincere, yet misinformed. Be loyal without being foolish. Legal counsel requires review. Act accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be selective. Actions based on impulse could be costly. Choose quality. Applies to professional and personal areas. Basic issues are to be considered with care. Be thorough. Brighten surroundings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Intuitive flash enables you to outline correct course. Perceptiveness becomes your ally. You begin to discern difference between reality and wishful thinking. Someone wants something you possess.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Many comment that your appearance has changed. You are more vital, definite, decisive. One who formerly complained that you lacked direction now claims you are being too serious. Get additional facts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may have to embark on short journey to verify information, message. Refuse to be held back by one who constantly complains. Live your own life. Then you will also make loved ones happier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money opportunity due. Key is to follow through on friendly advice, suggestions. New outlook is called for; take a more independent stance. Associates may have dispute. Remain objective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your goal may be expensive. Get facts, figures. Leave speculation to others. Be sure of where you are headed—and why. Welcome truth if really can set you free. Judgment, intuition work now in your behalf.

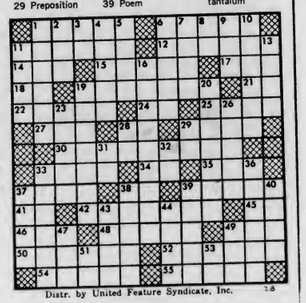
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Break free from restrictions. You have a right to enjoy yourself. Added privileges are due. Sagittarius person could play prominent role. Be versatile. Make intelligent concessions, but stick to basic principles.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotional involvement indicated. Romance is in picture. Don't neglect responsibilities. If you do, you will pay price. Some wishes are fulfilled. Member of opposite sex is involved. You will understand.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an original thinker. You seldom follow crowd. You are concerned with welfare of others, you could exhibit special interest in chemistry. Start made this year business or personal will flourish in your behalf. Old patterns change. You will be making a new path for yourself perhaps a new name in a different professional endeavor

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Boy attendants
6 Heaped
11 Dispossess
12 Style of printing
14 Anger
15 Name
17 Residue
18 Parent (colloq.)
19 Great nuisances (colloq.)
21 Exclamation
22 Beef animal
24 Latin conjunction
25 Told falsehood
27 Organ of hearing
28 Cooled lava
29 Youngsters
30 Reverse sequence of
33 Hawaiian wreaths
34 Guido's low note
35 Possesses
37 Keen
38 Teutonic deity
39 Waistcoats
41 Part of "to be"
42 Renovated
45 Exclamation
46 Plunge
48 English royal family
49 Greek letter
50 Lethargy
52 Regard
54 Rock
55 Fur-bearing mammals



DOWN
1 Buccaneer
2 Hail!
3 Earth goddess
4 Chemical compound
5 Mix
6 Heimsman
7 Roman road
8 Note of scale
9 Guido's high note
10 Pieces of dinnerware
11 Obscures
13 Country of Africa
16 Held in high regard
19 Breed of dog
20 Cut in long slits
23 Consumed
26 Mental images
28 Indefinite article
29 Preposition
31 Conjunction
32 Liquid measure (abbr.)
33 Boundaries
36 Declares
37 Novelties
38 Habituate
39 Poem
40 Pretense
43 Short jacket
44 Sorrows
47 Place
49 Lamprey
51 River in Italy
53 Symbol for tantalum

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

H	I	R	E		S	H	O	P		S	P	Y
U	N	I	T		H	O	N	E		H	I	E
E	T		A	B	E	L		T	I	E
T	E	L	E	L	A		F	A	C	T
T	R	E	E		F	E	L	L		F	O	R
E	T	A	N	A		R	O	O	M		M	E
A	W	N	I	N	G		E	N	I	G	M	A
M	I		D	E	L	L		G	R	E	A	T
E	N	D		T	A	I	L		E	R	N	S
D	E	A	N		D	A	L	E		M	O	D
		R	E	S		B	A	G	S		E	A
H	E	N		H	E	L	M		H	O	R	N
E	N	S		A	R	E	A		E	R	S	T

28

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Freshmen Ed. Majors:
Ed. 391
Independent Study
Orientation
will meet
Tuesday, Sept. 28, 7:30 p.m.,
Ed. School Auditorium.
If you're observing the Jewish Holiday, send a friend.

October 3, 1971
3:30 p.m.
&
8:30 p.m.
C. C. Program Council
presents
"YOU'RE A GOOD MAN CHARLIE BROWN"
A NEW MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT BASED ON THE COMIC STRIP "PEANUTS"
at.
Bowker Auditorium
tickets - $2.00
On sale at S. U. Ticket office starting 12:00 noon, Sept. 22.

Berra Chosen Again

Amherst, Mass-Rhode Island quarterback Bob Erhardt (Flushing, N.Y.), Holy Cross linebacker Dan Harper (Rome, N.Y.) and Massachusetts running back Tim Berra (Montclair, N.J.) have been chosen as the top offensive, defensive and sophomore players in the Yankee Conference for their performances last Saturday.

Erhardt, a 6' 185 lb. senior, completed 16 of 24 passes for 210 yards and 2 touchdowns, averaged 40 yards punting and ran for the winning score in URI's 34-21 victory over Brown.

Harper, a 6'1 220 lb. senior, intercepted a pass on the Holy Cross line with 1:06 left to preserve the Crusaders' first win since 1968, 21-16 at Harvard.

Berra, a 5'11 180 lb. sophomore, gained 66 yards on 13 carries, caught one pass, returned five kickoffs for 133 yards and scored the only UMass TD in a 31-7 loss to Dartmouth. It was Berra's second selection.

Other nominations were: Offense-hb Ray Tellier (Connecticut), hb Bill Swadel (Maine), qb Colin Clapton (Holy Cross), qb Bill Poole (Boston U.), kicker Paul Jakubielski (Vermont) and tackle Tom Mullen (Massachusetts); Defense -E Alan Akowitz (Connecticut), T Dick Todd (Maine), lb Bill McMullen (Rhode Island), cb Paul Rostowsky (Vermont), T Rick Versocki (Boston U.) and T Bill Deflavio (Massachusetts); Sophomores-lb John Filloramo (Connecticut), fb Sylvester McGee (Rhode Island) and flanker Mark Sheridan (Holy Cross).

Although new Yankee Conference members Holy Cross and Boston U. do not play enough league games to qualify for the Conference championship their players will be listed in the weekly award winners and statistical rankings.

Alston: Dodgers Need Sweep

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston feels his Dodgers may have to win all three season-ending games with Houston here to win the National League West.

"I'd like to win three in a row and take our chances and that's just about what we'll have to do," the veteran skipper said Monday.

However, shortstop Maury Wills noted the San Francisco Giants, who lead by one game, are in a pressure situation. "The pressure is on the Giants, but it's not all on them," said Wills. He admitted San Francisco has some advantage in playing a three-game set with the last-place San Diego Padres.

Three weeks ago, the Dodgers trailed the Giants by 8-1/2 games. First baseman Wes Parker summed up the situation this way.

"We are one game behind with three to play so it's quite simple. The Giants will have to lose at least one game and beyond that we're absolutely helpless to do anything."

The Dodgers are 8-7 against Houston this year, 3-3 here. The Giants are 11-4 against the Padres.

Many of the Dodgers would have preferred to face the Giants in the final three games, especially in view of Los Angeles' success in the last five meetings between the clubs. The Dodgers ripped the Bay Area club 5-2, 9-3 and 3-0 in games here, then 5-4 and 6-5 in San Francisco.

The Dodgers have won five of their last seven games and 13 of their last 19. Four of the last five triumphs have been shut-outs and in the weekend series with Atlanta, the Dodger starters-Al Downing, Don Sutton and Claude Osteen-all won.

Bill Singer, who's been fighting illnesses and injuries all season long, starts Tuesday night for the Dodgers against the Astros' rookie James Rodney Richards. Singer, 9-17, has had a pulled groin muscle, a broken finger, muscle spasms in his back and the flu.

He's been beaten in his last two starts, 9-6 to Atlanta and 4-1 to Cincinnati.

Wednesday, Don Wilson of Houston faces Downing and in the finale Thursday, Sutton tackles either Wade Blasingame or Ken Forsch.

After a successful opener against Maine on Saturday the Redmen booters open their home season today against Boston College. See preview on page 12.

Head football coach Dick MacPherson during Saturday's loss to Dartmouth. For interview with Coach MacPherson see page 12.

College Football

(AP)-It's Nebraska by a runaway in this week's Associated Pre college football poll, with Michigan's mighty Wolverines supplanti hardpressed Notre Dame in second place.

Notre Dame's fourth-quarter 8-7 squeaker over Purdue sent the Iri reeling from second to fourth while Michigan jumped from fourth second in the wake of 38-0 pounding of UCLA. Nebraska's defendi national champions, 34-7 winners over Texas A&M, received 44 first pla votes and 1,064 points from a 55-man nationwide panel of sports write and broadcasters. That was 224 points more than Michigan's 840.

Last week, Nebraska led runnerup Notre Dame by only 42 points.

The remaining 11 first-place votes were divided as follows: Michig and Texas, three each; Auburn and Colorado, two, and Notre Dame, o

Texas held onto third place with a 28-0 rout of Texas Tech and Auburn 10-9 victory over Tennessee kept the Tigers fifth.

Colorado, which beat Ohio State in Columbus 20-14, climbed from 1 to sixth place, supplanting the Buckeyes, who dropped all the way to 14 Alabama trimmed Florida 38-0 and moved from eighth to seventh wh Oklahoma blasted Pitt 55-29 and leaped from 11th to eighth.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Penn State and Stanford, winners o Iowa and Oregon by respective scores of 44-14 and 38-17. They ranked 1 and 13th a week ago.

Arkansas, stunned by unheralded Tulsa 21-20, slipped all the way fr seventh to 18th while Tennessee slipped from ninth to 12th.

Georgia thumped Clemson 280 and shot from 14th to the head of Second Ten in 11th place, followed by Tennessee. Arizona State was from 15th to 13th after whipping Utah 41-21, trailed by Ohio State Washington, which trounced Texas Christian 44-26.

The rest of the Second Ten consisted of Louisiana State, up from 18 Southern California, down from 16th; Arkansas, down from seven Duke, up from 20th, and North Carolina, a newcomer. The Tar He replaced Toledo, which fell from the Top Ten despite its 26th consecut triumph.

Sports Notices

ENTRIES DUE-Intramural entries are due on September 29th for Women's Badminton Singles and Women's Turkey Trot.

*****

WRESTLING-All freshman and varsity wrestling candidates should attend the organizational meeting today at 4:30 p.m. in the Boyden Gym.

*****

ENTRY DATES CHANGED-The intramural Metawampe 500 Bike Race entry due date has been moved back to Thursday, October 7 and the Paddleball tournament entry due date has been moved back to Wednesday, October 6.

All Handball, Paddleball, Cross Country and Metawampe 500 entries will be accepted up until 9 p.m. tonight at the Intramural Office.

*****

NO PARKING-All parking of vehicles for Intramural Contests should be located in lot 5. Vehicles parked on road adjacent to the Intramural fields will be ticketed starting Wednesday evening. We ask your cooperation so that we may provide maximum safety.

Tonight's Intramurals

FOOTBALL

FIELD	TIME	TEAMS
2	6:00	(Women)
3		(Women)
4		Orbitals vs. Education
5		Conglos vs. Burners
6		Civil Eng. vs. Zeroes
1	7:00	(Women)
2		(Women)
3		PSD vs. PSK
4		APO vs. SAM
5		PLP vs. TEP
6		DC vs. KS
1	8:00	AN vs. TC
2		LCA vs. PMD
3		Cult vs. Mouse
4		Bulldogs vs. Felias
5		Acme vs. Orcs
6		Bunch vs. Heads
1	9:00	Dildoughs vs. JM's
2		Heads vs. Terrors
3		Senators vs. Bulldozers
4		Monuments vs. Mags
5		Broncos vs. Buffaloes
6		Chestnuts vs. Bruins
1	10:00	Machine vs. Tubes
2		Brother vs. VVV
3		Gypsies vs. Kumquats
4		Lions vs. Comanchees
5		Leopards vs. Cougars
6		Jaguars vs. Marauders

College Master
Salutes
Senior of the Week
Outstanding Against Dartmouth This Weekend Was Senior Steve Greaney
Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co.

Want to help somebody?
Learn about GSS Service
Thurs., Sept. 23 Colonial Lounge 7:30 - 8:30
Sun., Sept. 26 Memorial Hall 10:30 - 1
Tues., Sept. 28 Colonial Lounge 7:30 - 8:30

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Yom Kippur Services

1. Hillel at U. Mass. will hold services in the Campus Center Auditorium (conservative ritual).

2. The Jewish Community of Amherst will hold services in Johnston Chapel, Amherst College Campus (Union Prayerbook).

Students are invited.

	HILLEL	J.C.A.
Kol Nidre - Tuesday	6:30 p.m.	7:30 p.m.
Yom Kippur Day - Wed.	10:00 a.m.	10:00 a.m.

Booters Host Eagles

By STEVE FERBER

With an expected crowd of over 3000 people, the UMass soccer team opens their home season with Boston College, this afternoon at 3 p.m. Boston College will be playing their first game of the season, facing a Redmen squad boasting a 1-0 mark.

The Redmen know very little about their opponents this afternoon, and thus will be starting out with their 3-3-4 alignment, used throughout most of the Maine contest, over this past weekend. The home squad will also be going with the ten men that saw most of the action in the 2-0 win on Saturday.

At attack will be Lindo Alves, Tom Coburn, and Jeff Hague. Alves was said to be "finally playing up to his potential" in Coach Berryman's eyes, as Alves had a tremendous game three days ago. Coburn is the freshmen who has had little chance to work with the squad, but this exceptionally talented youngster is catching on rather fast. Hague will be playing one of the wings and hopefully against B.C. When he shoulders the ball off of a corner kick, it won't hit the bottom of the crossbar.

In the middle will be Calheno, Doherty, Grandonico, Grom, and Nugent. Only three of these men will necessarily be playing at one time, but all five will be seeing action.

Back at the helm John Kiah will be looking for shutout number two, as Gary Hart, Dick McCarron, Dave Ouellette and Paul Slack will be giving Kiah all the support he needs.

B.C. is a vastly improved team, one that fell to the Redmen 3-0 last year, and 5-0 the year before. But just glancing over the past two years, and years before that shows a distinct decline in the Redmen's domination.

Last year's shots on goal were 16-3, and quite evidently the Eagles are a defensive ballclub. The three shots taken by the Eagles last year were the lowest allowed by the Redmen all year, and to begin to approach last year's B.C. performance would be something indeed.

Over the weekend, second ranked Brown (in New England) knocked off Rhode Island 5-3, and although Brown did pummel URI shotwise, the fact that the Rams scored thrice off of the Bruins is significant in that URI is not ranked within the top ten in New England.

The only other Yankee Conference team to see action was UConn, as they fell to Williams by a 1-0 score, losing to a penalty kick. UConn was ranked sixth, to Williams' 8th position, a ranking that is likely to change come this Wednesday, when the listings come out.

Presently the Redmen are atop the Yankee Conference, having played the only inter-conference game of the season. The Redmen shutout Maine and do indeed pride themselves on defense. Undoubtably this afternoon's match-up will be defensive in nature, and it remains to be seen if Kiah can chalk up number two.

UNCONTESTED-The UMass varsity soccer team, pictured here in action from last year, will open up their home season with a game against Boston College today at 3 p.m. The game, which is the second for UMass this fall will be played across the street from Boyden Gymnasium. Last Saturday the Redmen defeated Maine by a score of 2-0.

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Baltimore Fans Help Defeat Colts

CLEVELAND (AP)-Baltimore's noisy fans forced the Cleveland Browns to change their routine Sunday, and they may have contributed to the Colt's 14-13 defeat.

Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich told newsmen at his weekly briefing Monday that Browns' quarterback Bill Nelson had to repeat signal calls at the line of scrimmage, turning his head one way and then the other, to make sure everyone heard the numbers above the crowd noise.

It's murder going into Baltimore," said Skorich. "Everyone will tell you, don't try to use audibles....

"The fans know it, and they enjoy the reputation," the Cleveland coach added.

In the closing minutes, said Skorich, the Colts lost one precious minute because of the noisy crowd.

That was when Nelson, unable to call signals because of the noise, took his team back into the huddle twice in a row.

"The clock was running part of that time, and the loss of the minute hurt the Colts later because they had to use up their three time outs when the Browns had the ball on their last series of plays, Skorich said.

Then, when the Colts finally did get the ball for one last scoring effort, they couldn't stop the clock.

Skorich said Nelson had been instructed "don't go in there if you can't hear yourself think."

He said Nelson used audibles frequently, checking off at the line of scrimmage, changing plays and sometimes calling his plays right at the line after checking the Colts defense, rather than in the huddle.

The coach said Nelson was "calling plays around Bubba Smith," checking off whenever Smith shifted from his regular defensive end position.

Net Stars Dispute $

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)-Tennis stars Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casals said Monday they have hired an attorney to help them in their fight for prize money from last weekend's Southwest Open Tennis Championships in Los Angeles.

The two, here for Tuesday's opening of the Virginia Slims Thunderbird Tennis Tournament, walked off the court in Sunday's final match when tournament officials refused to dismiss a linesman whose call drew objections from both women.

Tournament director Jack Kramer said the two women should "grow up" and withheld prize money. Winner of the match would have received $4,000 and the runnerup $2,500.

Miss Casals said she and Mrs. King hired the attorney to defend their rights in the case and obtain the prize money.

"Kramer is being silly about the whole thing," Miss Casals said.

Mrs. King said she had already been advised she and Miss Casals would be fined. She blamed the incident on Kramer, charging that "I think Jack Kramer basically doesn't like women's tennis. If he'd just come out and say that, it wouldn't be so bad, but he doesn't.

Kramer said he would "recommend that they get the stiffest penalty possible...and that includes a suspension of their prize money. They'll get nothing if I can help it."

Mrs. King was seeded No. 1 and Miss Casals No. 2 for the Phoenix tournament, which runs through Sunday. A first or second-place finish by Mrs. King would make her the first women athlete in history to earn more than $100,000 in a single year.

Bears Nix Vikings

CHICAGO (AP)-He's only a relief quarterback turned into an instant hero, but Kent Nix is beginning to count scalps.

"That's two down and one to go," said Nix after coming off the bench Sunday to pilch the Chicago Bears to an unbelievable 20-17 fourth-quarter victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

The previous week, Nix had come off the bench in the final period and, with 44 seconds to play, tossed a touchdown pass to George Farmer for a stunning 17-15 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers who four minutes earlier had led the Bears 15-3.

That "two down and one to go" bit concerns the National Football League teams which have cut Nix.

He's a former member of both Pittsburgh and Minnesota and was originally signed as a free agent by Green Bay.

The Packers have until Nov. 7 to prepare for Nix.

With the quarterbacking problems which have plagued the Bears in recent seasons, one would suspect they'd jump at the chance of giving the reins to Nix. But no.

"I'm happy the way our quarterbacks have worked out," said Coach Jim Dooley, who again will start Jack Concannon at Los Angeles next Sunday.

LONE SCORE-Tim Berra scores only touchdown of the game for UMass in Saturday's 31-7 loss to Dartmouth. Check tomorrow's Collegian for an interview with Head Coach Dick MacPherson. (Photo credit by Carl Nash.)

for Nix to get his chance against the Vikings, even after his heroics against Pittsburgh.

Quite candidly, Dooley said he had "no intention of sending in Nix" for Concannon. But Concannon got the wind knocked out of him and Nix had to come in. On his first play, Nix hit Dick Gordon with a 36-yard touchdown pass to make the score 17-10.

With the defense putting up another great performance, Chicago got the ball back but the Bears' drive stalled and, with less than four minutes to play, Mac Percival booted a 45-yard field goal

The defense did get the ball back, Cecil Turner returning the punt 10-yards to the Minnesota 37. After Nix was dumped for an eight-yard loss, Bob Wallace caught a deflected Nix pass, then Nix sealed the upset with a 19-yard touchdown pass to Gordon.

The Bears are 2-0 in this young season, the same record they had last year at this stage, but they've done it without running back Gale Sayers, who has not completely recovered from knee surgery.

Top 20

The [illegible] with first place votes in parentheses and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8, etc.:

1.	Nebraska (44)	1,064
2.	Michigan (3)	840
3.	Texas (3)	835
4.	Notre Dame (1)	710
5.	Auburn (2)	649
6.	Colorado (2)	638
7.	Alabama	547
8.	Oklahoma	411
9.	Penn State	316
10.	Stanford	303
11.	Georgia	249
12.	Tennessee	193
13.	Arizona State	155
14.	Ohio State	120
15.	Washington	98
16.	Louisiana State	70
17.	Southern California	62
18.	Arkansas	52
19.	Duke	31
20.	North Carolina	22

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Gray skies above, gray moods below—another Wednesday kids.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 16 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1971

UM Vets Attempt To Join Together

By ROBERT SPRAGUE

More than 200 angry Vietnam Veterans jammed into Room 174 of the Campus Center at the first meeting of the Viet Vets Against the War and heard Paul Whithers of Cambridge, Massachusetts, claim that he and fourteen other disabled veterans were denied the chance to apply to UMass. Michael Roach of the Boston Office of the anti-war organization made a brief address and two anti-war films prepared by the Vets were viewed.

Roach, who has been associated with the anti-war group for almost four years, challenged the Veterans to "use your bitterness and make your presence known."

"Screw all of these politicians, man," he said, "we've been there; we have seen our buddies shot, and we've seen all the shit this country has pulled over there."

Roach, who served in the I—Corps in Vietnam in 1968, explained that over 70,000 returning Vietnam Veterans have joined the group, and "thousands of others are helping out, including hundreds of G.I.'s on active duty.

Roach, who took nips of Ripple wine between sentences, then introduced the UMass Coordinator of the Viet Vets, Brian Mulcare. Mulcare began his remarks by criticizing the Veterans Administration Office on campus. "This Emery clown is a sweet old guy, harmless if you know what I mean, but a real zero who does nothing for us," he said as the crowd cheered. "We need a young guy in there, somebody with some fking energy who can do the job, who can handle our problems."

The phrase "Emory clown" was apparently a reference to Mr. George E. Emory of the Placement Office at Whitmore.

Mulcare continued, saying "we need somebody who will have the guts to fight these VA people and pipe some money down here from Boston." He alluded to the "well-known fact" that the VA likes "us to beg for our bread."

In the general discussion that followed, Whithers described the problems he has experienced since returning from Vietnam. "I needed a brace, see, but the VA people thought that this brace was too fking expensive; so I waited for four years and finally I went to my Congressman; he got me the brace."

Whithers, who is also associated with the Boston Office of the Viet Vets against the War, explained that he and fourteen other disabled veterans came to the Amherst Campus and spoke with the Director of Admission in February of 1968. "They wouldn't even take an application from any of us because they said they didn't have any facilities for disabled people and that we would miss too many classes during the winter."

The group responded angrily to Whithers' story and Mulcare screaming over the noise added, "We might as well face it, man, nobody was waving a flag or banging a drum when we came home."

William D. Tunis, of the Admission Office, reached at his home late last night expressed concern about Whithers' charges. "I cannot remember if I ever met with this veteran," Tunis said, "but I do deny that I ever told anyone that they could not come to school because of a disability."

Tunis explained that the procedure would have been to call in Dr. Robert W.Gage of the University Health Department who would make any decisions about the disabled students' ability to attend the university. The Director of Admissions said that he was anxious to talk with any of the disabled veterans who had supposedly talked with him in 1968.

Roach explained the several goals of the organization: "First we want to make the people of this country aware of what is really going on over there by open investigations where Viet Vets can testify without fear of prosecution. Second, we want to push for legislation on a national level to help make the life of the returning Viet Vet a little easier." He described several pieces of legislation which the anti-war group has introduced through friendly law-makers, including improved G.I. Bill benefits, governmentally stimulated jobs and job-training, and free drug rehabilitation programs.

Following the discussion, two films, both produced by the veterans' organization were screened. The first, "Winter Soldier Investigation," showed highlights of hearings held by the Viet Vets Against the War in Detroit where members of the First Marine Division testified about atrocities they had allegedly seen committed.

The second film, "Only the Beginning," showed several aspects of the War in Vietnam, and included some 8 MM film taken by G.I.'s and smuggled out of Vietnam.

The 200 UMass veterans watched the films in silence, occasionally laughing at a particular sequence. Yet even the laughter seemed angry, and the viewers quickly returned to silence.

THE UGLY DUCKLING AND THE SWAN - When the picture was taken, the photographer wasn't too sure whether or not this fine feathered creature was swimming or walking upon the glimmering waters of Lake Metawampe. But it really didn't matter, for it was discovered that there is still a little beauty and majesty on Campus. And we're not referring to the library, either. (MDC photo by Alan Chapman.)

BEARDED BRAIN MULCARE, UMASS COORDINATOR FOR THE VIETNAM VETERANS AGAINST THE WAR, listens intently to Veterans' complaints at last night's meeting of the Viet Vets. (Photo [illegible] Jan.)

On The Inside:

- Voting Qualifications Reviewed — See page two
- Rent Question Before Senate — See page three
- Nixon Signs Draft Bill — See page four

Northampton Volunteers Meet Oct. 6

The Northampton Volunteers will hold an orientation meeting Wednesday night October sixth at 7:00 in Northampton State Hospital. The Volunteers are a group of students from five area colleges who spend from one to two hours each week visiting with mentally disturbed patients at Northampton State Hospital.

There are no restrictions to becoming a Volunteer; everyone is welcome, although the program is especially recommended to Psychology, Sociology and Education majors. The Volunteers provide a good chance for people to see what actually happens in a mental hospital and to get some first-hand experience in dealing with the mentally disturbed.

The Volunteers help to resocialize patients, some of whom have been in the hospital for several years. When patients are isolated from the community for that long, they have a harder time getting adjusted to society.

The problem is especially bad at Northampton, where the ratio of patients to staff is 150:1. The Volunteers help the patients to re-orient themselves to the outside community by talking to them and helping them to realize that they are people and that somebody cares about them.

The Hospital staff is very happy with the Volunteers, and there is supposed to be a great letdown among the patients when the students leave in the summer. It has been a rewarding experience to Volunteers who did not expect overnight miracles and who stuck with the program.

During the first part of the orientation meeting next week, a patient will speak to all the Volunteers about what it is like to be a patient at the Hospital and what to expect from the patients there. The Volunteers will then split up into smaller groups and visit the various wards, where any questions will be answered.

A bus will leave every Wednesday night beginning October sixth from in front of Hasbrouck Lab and in front of Patterson House at about 6:30. Volunteers will be in the Hospital during the visiting hours from 7:00 to 9:00 and will arrive back at UMass around 9:30.

Registration Procedure Explained

By KARL GERDES

Under Attorney General Mitchell's recent ruling, college students are eligible to vote in the towns in which they attend school. A number of UMass students have decided to take a part in the governmental affairs of Amherst and have gone down to the Town Hall to register. Registering is a simple procedure - all one has to do is give his name, birth date, and address, and swear that all information given is the truth.

Students should take special care to ensure that they are not registered in two towns simultaneously, as the penalties for this can be very severe, according to Richard Howland, counselor-at-law and student attorney for UMass.

He states, "It is unlawful to deliberately ..... maintain the right to vote in more than one place."

The penalty, besides possible fines and jail terms, includes loss of the right to vote, for periods up to and including life, he also noted.

In order to avoid the possibility of losing their votes, Howland suggests that students write a letter to the Town Clerk of the place where they were previously registered, and ask that they be removed from the list of voters.

Senate Questions Free U.

A dispute is brewing between the Student Senate and the Free University over the allocation of a portion of the Free University's funds.

According to Lee Sandwen, Senate President, the Free U had requested three one hundred dollar checks from a fund for technical consultants. Sandwen said the fund was started to pay outside professionals to give advice to the Free U on the use of video-tape equipment.

Sandwen claims, however, that the persons to whom the money was to be paid were members of the Free University, and therefore ineligible for money from the fund, which, was to partly pay for plane fare to Spain for some Free U'ers attending an international conference on alternative architecture.

Representatives of the Free University said the whole problem was one of defining membership to the Free U. The persons in question, they said, had no connection with the University, and were helping to operate video equipment at the conference in Spain. They also stated that the conference and subsequent information received from it would benefit the entire school.

Student Volunteers Needed

A College Student Companion Therapy Program was established at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Northampton, Mass., in 1966. It was started with the realization that people with mental and emotional problems needed an understanding person to talk with in order to learn to meet and deal with people outside the hospital.

The patients are not much different from anyone else you may meet on the street. They are found to be coherent and generally quite reasonable. Many of the patients have problems which are often not apparent to the occasional visitor. Some patients are at the hospital because of an inability to keep a job, others because they cannot control their emotions in certain situations, and still others because they could not tolerate the misery of being alone in the world.

This program needs volunteers. It's only one night a week, but it means everything to the patients visited. Essentially the student is asked just to be with the patient--as a friend--to show the patient there is someone who cares about him and believes in him as an individual.

Students interested in participating in this program, should call either Cheryle at 546-8427 or Beth at 546-6225.

Elections Postponed

By BOB CALLAHAN

The reason for the postponement of the Student Senate elections was explained last evening in an MDC interview with Senator Bill Spinn of the Senate Governmental Agency Commission.

Spinn said that the Senate thought that everything was in order for the election but a few days ago they encountered several problems.

The student senator cited several major problems which have caused the election re-scheduling. The first major one was due to a lack of publicity about the election which was originally scheduled to take place this Thursday, Sept. 30.

Another reason mentioned by Spinn was that if the elections were held as formerly scheduled, they would not have been equitable.

Due to the election postponement, candidates for Senate office have an extra week in which to file nomination papers for the October 7 election.

Nomination papers for the office may be picked up outside the Student Activities office in the Campus Center. Each candidate must collect the signatures of 25 of his constituents. If a candidate is running for senator from a dorm all signatures must be from dorm residents. A commuter who is running for the position may have his papers signed by any commuter.

Spinn said that the only requirement is that the papers be filed properly and that the signers be residents of the appropriate residential areas. The campaign is left up to the individual.

Students are needed with the energy and intelligence to make student representation meaningful on various committees and governing bodies throughout campus. They are needed to improve present student services and to continue making the Student Senate more responsive to the needs of students today.

In the closing part of the interview, Spinn stated that there are no residential area senatorial positions in this election.

Refugees Homes Destroyed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)- Israel ignored yesterday a U.N. request to cease destruction of refugee homes in the Gaza Strip and defended the action as necessary to end terrorism against the Arab inhabitants of Gaza.

Ambassador Tekoah said the destruction had been necessary because the overcrowding and congested layout of the refugee quarters invited terror operations. He said no demolition took place unless alternative housing was provided.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

INTERCOLLEGIATE BOWLING:
All undergraduates interested in competing for a position on the UMass Bowling Team,
please contact Ernie Malagrida
2004 Kennedy
phone: 546-7882
deadline is Friday, October 1.

Fridays fling
Not just this Friday, but every Friday from now on, most downtown stores will be open until 9:00 p.m. for your shopping convenience. This is just one of the ways your Amherst Chamber of Commerce is helping you.
Remember--Fridays until 9:00

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. zip code 01002 Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Is Freeze Exemption Valid?

Senate to Hear Report on Rent Hike

By ROBERT SCHEIER

The future of the Student Senate's challenge to the University's raise in room rent and assorted fees will remain undecided at least until Thursday, when the Senate Rents and Fees Committee will report on negotiations with the administration.

Robert Chiller, chairman of the committee, is negotiating with Vice-Chancellor for Administrative Affairs Thomas B. Campion to determine the validity of the University's exemption from President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

The Senate has challenged the University, which obtained the exemption on the basis of 10% rents and fee deposits received before the freeze to prove that it actually did receive that amount of deposits before August 15 when the freeze went into effect.

"Our committee is checking into the procedure used by the University in receiving and processing the checks," said Chiller. "The University assumes that it received 10% of the deposits, but we want them to prove it."

Vice-Chancellor Campion appeared before the Senate Sept. 22, and produced University records to prove that the University had indeed received the amount of deposits it claimed.

Any check dated August 11 or before was assumed to have been received by the University before the deadline, Campion said, regardless of when it was finally processed by the University.

"We had boxes and boxes of checks on hand at the time of the freeze," Campion said, "and we just couldn't process them as they came in. So we just used a common sense approach, and assumed that not many students would write out a check and then not send it for a week or more."

Another complication is that the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) which is administering the freeze, did not define "deposit" as money received by the University or money which the University received and deposited in a bank.

Chiller will meet with Campion again Thursday, and the committee will report its results to the Senate that night.

Parking Committee Formed

By ROBERT SCHEIER

The future of parking procedures at UMass has come under the scrutiny of an ad hoc parking committee which will in effect by-pass the University Parking Commission and suggest changes in the school's system of fees and ticketing.

According to Robert Chiller, the Student Senate representative on the committee "Everyone knows a little about the parking situation on campus, but nobody knows a lot about it and can really coordinate it."

The committee was formed upon the request of the Faculty Senate, and consists of three administration members, three students, a member of the University security police, and two employees of the physical plant, and a member of the botony department.

"It's a temporary committee, and will probably not meet beyond October," said Chiller. "Right now, we have yet to decide exactly what action we're going to take on parking."

The parking Commission, set up by Chancellor Tippo, consists of three students, two engineers, Randy Dahl, assistant to the dean of students, and Robert Ferriter, coordinator of parking on campus.

"The Parking Commission set the parking fees last year, and they were then sent to Jack Littlefield, the director of planning, who made up his own," said Chiller, who is also a member of the Parking Commission.

He explained that there are currently three different fee systems-a flat parking fee, a higher fee according to which lot a car is assigned to, and different fees for students and faculty and staff members.

Typical of the overcrowded parking conditions which the new committee will study is this lot behind the library. (MDC photo by Alan Chapman.)

Violence Disrupts Springfield Schools

Springfield was quiet yesterday morning after 13 people were injured and three were arrested on Monday when the violence that began in the schools spread to the streets.

Trouble started last week after several incidents in which outsiders entered Tech High and assaulted students.

Police were then stationed outside the schools. On Friday, a gang of white non-students waited outside Tech and threw stones and bottles at black students when they left at the end of the school day. Blacks responded by assaulting white passers-by along State St. In all, 12 persons required hospital treatment, although none were seriously injured.

Black students from the city's four high schools met over the weekend and decided to boycott classes on Monday. More than 1,700 students were absent from the four schools Monday and over 2,000 stayed away Tuesday.

Monday morning, black youngsters, parents, and community leaders held a meeting that lasted until noon. Mayor Frank Freedman and School Supt. John Deady attended for about two hours.

Students and parents prepared separate lists of grievances. Included in the demands, were the need for more black teachers, re-evaluation of the schools suspension policy, expansion of the black studies program, action against police and school bus officials who allegedly discriminate against blacks, and more help for blacks trying to get into college.

Deady said after the meeting that many of the grievances had been presented before and that although he felt significant action had been taken on them, they would be discussed.

The mayor signed a statement at the request of those attending the meeting to show that as far as he knew, the trouble outside of Tech High on Friday had been touched off by white non-students.

There was a misunderstanding about whether the mayor read the statement to the press. in protest, about 500 students marched down State St. It was at this time and later when students left Trade High that the major outbreaks of violence occurred.

In response, more than 150 black parents met Monday night to discuss strategy in securing conditions for their children to return to school.

Many black parents accompanied their children to school Tuesday and remained in the buildings as observers. Helmeted police were stationed outside the schools as they were on Monday.

MDC Classifieds Pay

SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE Redeem Coupons at the STUDENT UNION HATCH
between 5 p.m. - 8 p.m.
Mon. - Sat.. Sept. 29 - Oct. 16
With This Coupon
2 HAMBURGERS
FRENCH FRIES
8 oz. SOFT DRINK for only 75¢
($1.00 value)
At Student Union Hatch
from 5 p.m. — 8 p.m.
Mon. - Sat.
Sept. 29 — Oct. 16
SUNDAE of your choice for 10¢ less than posted price with this coupon.
at Student Union
Ice Cream Bar
Mon. - Sat.
5 p.m. — 8 p.m.
Sept. 29 — Oct. 16

TONITE
BLUE GRASS
WITH DON STOVER
AND
THE WHITE OAK MOUNTAIN BOYS
AT
The Wednesday Nite Coffee House
8:30 - 1:00
ONLY 25¢

Introducing stationery for people who think saving a tree is important.
Earthnotes is 100% recycled quality stationery. It's made entirely from waste material. Trash.
Using recycled paper saves trees, reduces pollution, and cuts down on waste.
But recycling only works when there is a demand for waste material. And this demand is created only when people buy recycled products.
By buying Earthnotes, and other recycled paper products, you create a market for recycled paper. And help to save more trees.
Each box contains 50 Monarch size sheets, 30 matching envelopes and 30 "Save-a-Tree" stickers so you can spread the recycling message. It's available in white or pastel "earth colors".
buy EARTHNOTES and help save-a-tree
Andrews / Nelson / Whitehead
7 Laight Street
New York, New York 10013
a Boise Cascade Division

In The Nation And The World

Nixon Signs Draft Bill Into Law

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon signed Tuesday the bill extending the military draft until June 30, 1973. But he froze until Nov. 13 a $2.4-billion military pay raise included in the measure.

The act, passed Sept. 21 by Congress after a five-month battle, contains the largest military pay raise in history and authority for Nixon to order an end to deferments for college undergraduates, effective with this year's entering freshmen.

The President had said he will use the authority to end undergraduate deferments.

The $2.4 billion pay raise in the bill, was to have taken effect Oct. 1.

The measure also includes a statement calling on President Nixon to terminate U.S. operations in Indochina "at the earliest practicable date"-the diluted version of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's Senate-passed amendment for total U.S. withdrawal in nine months if American prisoners are freed.

Other main provisions of the draft extension measure include:

—A ceiling on draftees of 130,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1972, and 140,000 in the year ending June 30, 1973.

—An authorization for armed forces manpower of 2,553,409 men in the current fiscal year.

—Two years' alternative service for conscientious objecters, under direct jurisdiction of the Selective Service System's national headquarters.

—Extension of procedural rights for draftees before their local boards.

—A limit of 20 years on service on a local draft boards with boards required to reflect racial religious breakdowns of their communities.

In a statement issued in connection with the signing, Nixon said the new legislation is "a significant step toward an all-volunteer armed force as it remedies the long-standing inequities in military pay for the lower grades."

While the President made the military pay raises subject to the present freeze, the White House said they would take effect on Nov. 13.

But press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said this should not be considered as a precedent for what will happen in the second phase of the President's economic stablilization effort.

My Lai Inquiry Record Altered

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)-The three-star general who conducted the Pentagon inquiry into the My Lai massacre testified Tuesday that "corrections"-possibly into the thousands-were made in the official record of Col. Oran K. Henderson's seven appearances before his panel.

But despite these alterations, Lt. Gen. William R. Peers said, the transcript is an accurate document of what Henderson stated in his inquiry, which resulted in the colonel being accused of covering up the massacre.

The general told Henderson's court-martial that while the 406-page transcript is not word for word, it contains the essence of what was said.

Peers made the statements during cross-examination by civilian defense laywer Henry B. Rothblatt into the accuracy of the inquiry transcript and the voluntary nature of Henderson's statements to the investigation.

The military judge, Col. Peter S. Wondolowski ordered the 406 pages admitted into evidence against Henderson, a 51-year-old much-decorated combat veteran of three wars.

Rothblatt told Peers that a comparison of the tape recording of the proceedings and the official, still classified transcript showed that 37 corrections were made in the written record of a warning of rights administered to Henderson on Dec. 2, 1969 and taking up three pages of the transcript.

"That's conceivable," Peers replied, a remark he repeated when Rothblatt said the defense found there was an average of 12 such corrections a page throughout the balance of the record dealing with Henderson.

Peers said the bulk of the changes was made "for grammatical reasons." He said most were made by editors but that others were done by his top aides who were present during testimony.

Henderson is accused of intentionally failing to make a proper investigation of atrocity reports brought back from the March 16, 1968 My Lai operation conducted by troops under his 11th brigade.

The colonel also is charged with not reporting actual or suspected war crimes and with lying to the Peers inquiry on Dec. 2 and again during his final appearance on Feb. 17, 1970.

Inmates Continue Work Stoppage

(AP)-A work stoppage by inmates moved through a second day at a Massachusetts penitentiary Tuesday while in Kansas prison cooks ended an unexplained job boycott that cost 900 fellow inmates a day's meals.

Authorities said most of the 764 inmates at the state prison in Norfolk, Mass., were refusing to do all but critical work to press demands for better food, medical treatment, training for guards, an end to mail censorship and amnesty for protestors

"Until we get action on these demands, there will be no more work," said Lester Richards, a spokesman for the prisoners.

The inmates continued, however, to man the prison's hospital, kitchen and power station.

Officials at the intermediate security institution made no move to halt the protest.

Theodore Ristaino, acting superintendent, began meetings with representatives of 11 inmate reform committees Tuesday morning. He said the session would continue until a solution was reached.

The protest began Monday when 50 inmates refused to work. It quickly spread through the prison population.

As the protest gained strength, inmates clustered in the grassy prison yard. Newsmen were permitted to wander freely among them.

Officials at the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing said about 100 inmate cooks refused to work Monday, but gave no reason for their action. With the cooks off the job, the prison's 900 inmates were locked in their cells and no meals were served during the day, officials said.

The kitchen workers returned Tuesday, but officials said most of the prisoners would not eat.

They refused comment on the extent of the protest.

Warden R. J. Gaffney said the guards were in full control.

China Mystery Continues

HONG KONG (AP)—A Canton television announcement expected to explain on Tuesday recent puzzling events in Red China has been postponed for 24 hours.

A Canton telecast seen in Hong Kong said "the special and important news program" about "circumstances of the Oct. 1 Communist National Day celebration" would be released at 9 p.m. Wednesday, or 8 a.m. EDT Wednesday.

While making no mention of the reason for the postponement, Canton television told viewers the program would be of great importance and everyone within range should arrange to see it.

Westerners in Hong Kong expect the special telecast will give a clue to why Friday's big celebration and parade was abruptly cancelled Sept. 22. Peking said the reasons were economic.

This did not quiet speculation that Mao Tse-tung was dead or dying. He had reviewed the parade annually since the Communists conquered the mainland in 1949.

After Chinese embassies in various world capitals insisted Mao was in good health, there was speculation that a power struggle was in progress in Peking.

SPEAK FOR YOURSELF

on the

SUG/Campus Center Board

Athletic Council

Fine Arts Council

CASIAC Curriculum Committee

Applications available in the Student Senate Office due by 5 p.m., Friday, Oct. 1.

(Athletic Council applicants see Lee Sandwen)
(All other applicants see John Hogan)

FACES OF EARTH

159 NORTH PLEASANT STREET, AMHERST

Next to the Post Office

OPEN TILL 10 P.M.

10% OFF EVERYTHING

WEDNESDAY TODAY ONLY WEDNESDAY

BRING THIS AD

Pope Urges Cardinal Mindszenty

Hungarian Cardinal Gives Up Hope For Freedom

ROME (AP)-At the urging of his Pope, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty gave up Tuesday his hope of freedom in Hungary and flew to Rome under a Communist stipulation that he never return to his native land.

"I am ready to say goodby to my country and to continue in exile a life of prayer and penitence," the cardinal told Pope Paul VI.

The cardinal, who is in his 80th year, is primate of Hungary but he has been unable to carry on his office first because he was imprisoned and later as he spent 15 years in asylum at the U.S. mission in Budapest.

A new agreement between Hungary and the Vatican-terms not revealed-led to his departure Tuesday morning from his lonely life in the mission.

Cardinal Mindszenty left Budapest by automobile, then flew from Vienna. By agreement between Budapest and the Vatican, his departure was kept secret until shortly before he landed in Rome.

The cardinal, fatigue showing in his pale face, drove directly to a moving meeting with Pope Paul in Vatican City's historic St. John Tower. The Pope embraced him and gave him a gold ring and a cross.

Later a statement issued by the Vatican said Pope Paul had asked the cardinal to accept "an honorable solution" to his battle with Hungarian authorities by leaving his homeland and coming to Rome.

The statement quoted Cardinal Mindszenty as saying the agreement making this possible was "perhaps the heaviest cross of my life."

Hungary in 1949 sentenced the cardinal to life in prison on charges of treason because he opposed the Communist takeover after World War II.

Freed during the Hungarian uprising in 1956, he fled to the U.S. mission when Soviet tanks put down the rebellion.

Subsequent attempts to get Cardinal Mindszenty to come to Rome failed because, in the words of Franziskus Cardinal Koenig of Vienna last January, "he does not accept being 'pardoned' like a common criminal while he knows he is innocent." The Hungarian government declined to take back its 1949 verdict.

While terms of the Hungarian-Vatican agreement were not disclosed, the cardinal's statement indicated he had agreed to Budapest's demands that he not carry on from abroad his condemnation of the Hungarian government.

The official Hungarian news agency MTI said: "In accordance with an agreement between the government of the Hungarian People's Republic and the Holy See, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty left the territory of Hungary for good on Tuesday and traveled to Rome."

In Washington, Charles Bray, a State Department spokesman, said: "We did not play an active role in the negotiations which led to his depature. We were essentially a bystander in these negotiations."

The United States granted Cardinal Mindszenty asylum in its legation Nov. 4, 1956, on humanitarian grounds.

Juvenile Opportunity Extension Meets

The organizational meeting of the Juvenile Opportunity Extension (JOE) attracted about 50 students to the Campus Center last night. The director of the meeting, John Schieffelin, with the aid of representatives of the Westfield Detention Center, acquainted the listeners with JOE's role in renovating the Westfield Detention Center (a detention center for the holding of juveniles either awaiting a court appearance or serving their court commitments).

JOE was organized by Larry Dye and by mid-June of this year the organization began actual operation.

Since their involvement, according to Schieffelin, a whole new atmosphere has been established at the Center.

"There is a new feeling, and the system cares about the kids," he stated.

During the course of the meeting, he told of JOE's plans to alleviate the stilted curfews, overcrowding, and general boredom by introducing plans for students to volunteer their time in tutorial and recreational aid.

As the center stands now, the kids still feel useless; but it is changing.

"We're looking for a time when we can operate the place on trust," Schieffelin proposed.

Room To Move Drop-In Center 5-0400, 5-0401

Correction

The Amherst Town meeting will vote on the temporary ban on apartment construction, not the selectmen as reported in yesterday's Collegian.

Voter Registration Set

The Amherst Board of Registrars has scheduled a voter registration session at the University Campus Center on Thursday, October 14, 1971 on the main level of the Concourse. The session will be held between the hours of 1:00-9:00 p.m. The qualifications for registering are as follow: Citizenship - U.S. citizen by birth or naturalization; age - 18 years or older; Resident of Amherst for six months prior to the date of election. Proof of residency must be presented at the time of registration. This could be a letter from the student's Dean, Housing or Registrar's office, or rent receipts.

Regular registration opportunities are available in the Town Clerk's office every weekday between the hours of 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Get A Sticker

All motor vehicles owned, operated or parked on the UMass campus by University Staff, faculty or students must be registered with the Office of the Parking Coordinator.

All members of the campus community who plan to use a motor vehicle on campus must register those vehicles prior to October 1, 1971; any cars registered after that date will be subject to a $5.00 late registration fee.

Beginning Friday, October 1, 1971, tagging of all illegally parked vehicles will commence.

Sylvan Affairs

The Student Affairs Center for residents of the Sylvan area has been set up in the bottom floor of Cashin. Students with any administrative questions or ideas for future activities may call 545-1391, 545-1392, or 545-1393. A Human Relations Center has also been set up in the bottom floor of McNamara to help students with their personal problems.

Sail On...

An organizational meeting of those interested in forming a U of Mass Sailing Club will be held on Thursday at 6:30 in room 174-6 of the Campus Center. It is a follow up meeting to a late Spring gathering for the pre-organization of the club. Thursday's meeting will be a follow up to the Spring meeting. Planned are discussions of policy, and the choosing of groups to look into various aspects of programing. The meeting is open to the entire University community.

Josh is coming!

Learn to Drive

AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL

34 Main Street

256-6066

Campus Cinemas 256-6411

Amherst - Hadley Line - Route 9 In The Zayre's Shopping Center

Mon Night Ladies Adm $1.00

CAMPUS I

the panic in needle park

7:00 9:00

my night at maud's

"By far the best picture in the entire competition (Academy Awards 1970). One of the biggest thrills of this or any other moviegoing year." Andrew Sarris The V...

CAMPUS II

In everyone's life there's a 'SUMMER OF '42'

Screens: 7:15 9:15

—marvelously sophisticated judith crist, new york magazine

Campus III Screens: 7:00 & 9:00

FRATERNITY RUSH

FRATERNITY	ADDRESS	PUBLIC PHONE
Alpha Tau Gamma (ΑΤΓ)	375 North Pleasant St.	253-9239
Beta Kappa Phi (ΒΧΦ)	401 North Pleasant St.	545-0210
Delta Chi (ΔΧ)	314 Lincoln Ave.	253-9076
Kappa Sigma (ΚΣ)	70 Butterfield Terrace	253-9921
Lambda Chi Alpha (ΛΧΑ)	374 North Pleasant St.	256-6846
Phi Mu Delta (ΦΣΔ	Fraternity/Sorority Park	253-9034 549-0670
Phi Sigma Kappa (ΦΣΚ)	510 North Pleasant St.	256-6863
Pi Lambda Phi (ΤΤΔΦ)	14 Elm St.	253-3176
Sigma Alpha Epsilon (ΣΑΕ)	118 Sunset Ave.	256-6815
Sigma Alpha Mu (ΣΑΜ)	387 North Pleasant St.	253-9957
Sigma Phi Epsilon (ΣΦΕ)	9 Chestnut St.	253-9227 253-9212
Tau Epsilon Phi (ΤΕΦ)	418 North Pleasant St.	253-9971
Theta Chi (ΦΧ)	496 North Pleasant St.	256-6851
Zeta Beta Tau (ΖΒΤ)	358 North Pleasant St.	253-9031
Zeta Nu (ΖΝ)	336 North Pleasant St.	253-9232

Monday, Sept. 27	Tuesday Sept. 28	Wednesday Sept. 29	Thursday Sept. 30	Friday Oct. 1	Sunday Oct. 3
ΤΕΦ (7:00)	ΣΦΕ (7:00-9:00)	ΤΕΦ (7:00)	ΤΤΔΦ (8:00)	ΣΑΕ - (3:30)	ΔΧ - (1:00)
ΣΦΕ (7:00-9:00)	ΦΣΚ (8:30)	ΦΜΔ (7:30-9:30)	ΦΣΚ (8:30)
ΦΜΔ (7:30-9:30)	ΚΣ (9:00)	ΖΒΤ (7:30-10)	*ΔΧ (9:00)
ΔΧ (8:00)	Δ ΧΑ (9:30)	ΔΧΑ (8:00)	ΚΣ (9:00)
ΒΧΦ (8:00)	ΦΧ (9:30)	ΔΧ (8:10)	ΣΦΕ (9:00-11:00)
ΣΑΜ (8:10)	ΒΚΦ (9:30)	ΣΑΜ - (8:10)	ΦΧ (9:30)
*ΑΤΓ (8:00)		ΖΝ (8:10)	ΒΧΦ (9:30)
ΤΤΔΦ (8:00-10:00)		ΦΧ (9:30)
ΖΝ (8:10)
ΔΧΑ (8:30)
*Coed Rush		*Coed Rush	*Exchange with Alpha Chi Omega	*Outdoor Concert	*Barbeque
*Stockbridge Hall

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITORS — Emory Rounds, Bob Sprague
NEWS STAFF — Jan Auman, Charlie Berkow, Aline Routhier
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh, Al Chapman
AD LAYOUT — John Mullen

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"I Guess It Depends On Whether You're Dressed For It"

The New American Movement

Part II

Socialism, then, is just the opposite of what has gone on in this country during the New Deal or in England or Sweden. It does not mean more power for the government but means total power directly to the people. The people who run this country have done a good job of confusing Americans about what socialism really is. The word conjures up visions of a vicious state bureaucracy taking away your car or stereo or your refrigerator. But when socialists talk about the elimination of property, they do not mean the property that you have to live on or the material comforts that people have worked hard to earn. Rather, they mean that private ownership of the means of production will end, i.e., production will no longer be geared to making profits for a few, but instead towards producing goods that people actually need. Its the less than 1% of the population in this country that own the majority of stock in the majority of large factories who, afraid they are going to lose control, try to scare everybody else into thinking that everyone is going to lose control over their own homes and lives. But nothing could be further from the truth.

Socialism has also seemed a bit dubious because there are countries around the world that call themselves socialist that don't really give their people any control over their own lives. But before we discard the notion of socialism on this basis, we should ask ourselves how this happened and why. Remember, America calls itself a 'democracy' and yet the only parties that can ever afford to buy newspaper ads and t.v. time are in exact agreement on virtually every fundamental question and only disagree on the TACTICS of how to best preserve the current maldistribution of power and wealth. We wouldn't want to throw away the concept of democracy just because the U.S. which calls itself democratic doesn't have real democracy. Similarly with socialism. The countries of the third world and the Soviet Union had their 'socialism' develop under extreme conditions of hardship which made any real socialism virtually impossible. For one thing, the capitalist countries including the U.S., tried to encircle and starve to death each of these countries, from Russia to China to Cuba. Eventually the U.S. had to change its policies when they didn't work in destroying these countries, but still, the hardships that these countries faced made the question of democracy much less relevant than the question of mere physical survival. Even more important, all these countries were starting out from a basically feudal, agrarian economy. They had to go through a long period of industrialization before they could really be ready for socialism. It's a tragedy that they took that title to describe the process by which they went through industrialization, but if we consider the brutalization of black slaves in America and of tens of millions of peasants in Western Europe, we realize that the process of industrialization was just as brutal in the west, though spread over a longer period of time. In any event, socialism in an advanced society would have very little in common with what happened in the so-called socialist countries of the third world. In the United States it is possible to build a democratic socialism in which the vast potential of this country can finally be applied to solving our problems instead of making a few men wealthy and powerful.

To remake American society along democratic socialist lines will take a very hard struggle. Not only must we undermine the tremendous military and economic power of the ruling class, but we must also combat the defeatism and feelings of powerlessness that keep many exploited groups from confronting their exploiters.

One of the main ways in which people are kept in line in America is through the prevalence of false ideas that the system inculcates in the people to keep us passive. We are taught that we are incapable of running things for ourselves; that we cannot trust our own intelligence or our own feelings. The ideas that whites are better than blacks, that men are better than women, that Americans are better than foreigners, all divide working people among themselves and make us accomplices in the exploitation of others. We are taught that competition and mutual exploitation are indelible parts of 'human nature.' We feel an unhappiness and alienation and lack of fulfillment both in our work and in the general tenor of our lives. Yet we are made to believe that this is our own personal problem and not at all attributable to aspects of a social order that could be arranged differently. We want to change all of these ideas, and to show the majority of the American public that a just and fulfilling social order is possible if we will struggle for it. And we are intent upon recapturing the revolutionary spirit that was such a basic element in the American self-identity in the past, though always stunted and misdirected by the capitalist system of which it was a part.

The process of making a social revolution is not like a coup d' etat: it is not just a question of seizing state power out of the hands of the exploiters and putting power into the hands of the people. It is also a question of building institutions in the economic and political arena in which people are already exercising power or have some idea of how to do so. Our strategy is to begin this task by a series of struggles in which the people begin to force changes in the economy and the political order that serve their needs and in which they exercise some power.

Whenever possible, we will seek to build institutions that formalize a transfer of power from the rulers to the people. But since this will often be met with extreme resistance, we will build temporary institutions as well that prepare people to make the decisions that effect their lives and from which we can launch struggles against the established order. These institutions we shall call 'people's councils,' and we shall build them both at the places where people work and in the community at large.

A people's council at work will develop plans for how the factory or office should be run, what it should be producing, and how. A people's council around a school or hospital or police department or housing authority or transit authority would develop plans about how these institutions should be run. And each will struggle to switch power from its current locus to the councils themselves, or to otherwise institutionalize real power over decisions in the hands of the people. Not every struggle, however, will be a struggle for institutionalizing new power arrangements. For instance, if the people succeed in forcing the rulers to end the war in Vietnam and to stop financing future military adventures to support the American economic empire, that would be an important success even if it did jot institutionalize some mechanism for popular control over foreign policy. OUR PROGRAMS WILL BE ADOPTED IN ACCORD WITH ONE SIMPLE CRITERION: WE ASK OURSELVES WHAT CHANGES ARE NECESSARY IN THE AMERICAN SOCIAL SYSTEM TO ALLOW PEOPLE IN THIS COUNTRY AND AROUND THE WORLD TO ACHIEVE FOR THEMSELVES A LIFE OF DIGNITY, SELF—REALIZATION, SELF—DETERMINATION, AND ADEQUATE MATERIAL GOODS. We must realize that America is not one homogenous society: what people need depends a great deal on their economic class and their sex, and race.

(A feature of Alternative Features Service)

The Co-Optation Of UMass Students

By RICK VERROCHI
STUDENT SENATE TREASURER

Within the past few months, we seem to be witnessing the decline and fall of Student Activities and Student Government. More and more, there seems to be an attitude of complacency and apathetic disregard for the problems and controversies of our campus. Students have come to accept being fed concerts and services without their own personal involvement, and this had led to a great sweep of apathy which seems to have overcome almost every traditional area student activity--antiwar demonstrations, Student Senate, concert committees, grievance committees, etc.

The question that remains to be answered, of course, is why this wave of apathy has pervaded almost every aspect of traditional student involvement. The answer is not an easy one, and must be a matter of conjecture on the part of anyone who attempts to write or speak about the problem.

We can, however, look at the University as it presently stands, and compare it with the situations which were current during the peak time of the Student Power movements---1968-1970. Rather than to speak in generalities, we can easily focus on the radical change in situation here at the University of Massachusetts, and ask ourselves what has happened.

The Student Movement seems to be, or to have been, an issue-oriented force. Open house, drinking, coed dorms all presented to us social issues of an immediate perspective with which we could identify, and for which we could fight a tangible enemy. And the fight was a successful one, in that today UMass is respected as one of the most progressive Universities in the area of student rights and prerogatives. Those issues for which we could all fight a few short years ago are now matters which have become commonplace. The days of having to have a girl out of the dorm by 10 p.m. on a Wednesday night have now become merely fond memories in the same manner of most fond memories---forgotten.

If we accept this assumption that the Student movement was issue-oriented, we can come to fully appreciate the inertia which has now overtaken the campus. The change from the Lederle/Johnson era to the Tippo/Campion/Bromery/Gluckstern period has given radical change to the focus of attention for student interest. No longer are there social objectives withheld by the whims of intransigent administrators and Trustees. To take a phrase from history, the Tippo era is an "Era of Good Feeling". Chancellor Tippo has been taken up by the paternal instinct, in that he is honestly and sincerely concerned about "his" students on "his" campus. This, of course, is a most laudable attitude for any college administrator to take. But what does it mean for the Student movement on our campus?

We have been co-opted. The co-optation has been complete. The Student cannot call Oswald Tippo a pig, simply because Tippo espouses a philosophy which is to the Left of most of his students. Dr. Tippo, in a real sense, has become a "Brother" to the movement.

Again, I ask, what does this mean for the Student movement on this campus. It means simply that every student organization has suddenly become the political and activist eunuchs of the University. Student Government has become a bureaucratic hassle to provide more and increasingly more services to the University and the students. No longer can anyone get together a demonstration on the scale of the room rent demonstrations of 1970. No longer can a successful moratorium have an impact on our campus.

The problems of the world are too far away and too intangible for the UMass student to grasp and take action upon. Outrages against the student and the Leftist movement have become more philisophical and political, and less tangible and immediate.

We can look to the Student Senate of years previous, and compare it to what we have today. Previously, there was major competition to become involved in the problems which were affecting the campus. Today, there are thirteen students vying for thirty seats as commuter senators. It makes you comprehend, perhaps, the magnitude of the new student apathy. Even in the area of concerts, the one thing for which you can get together literally thousands of people, you can't get together even ten to organize a committee to sponsor the music of the people.

As the University has expanded to include more thousands of students, anonymity and complete loss of identity has washed through the crowd. It would seem as though we don't care anymore. We don't care that there still exists what one student has called "academic fascism", or that there are needs within the surrounding communities that students can fulfull in an attempt to reshape the social system.

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst has one of the highest suicide/attempted suicide rates in the nation. Have you ever given thought as to why this is so?

Happy Loser

In a unique session before a three-man "revolutionary tribunal" in New York, the case of Abbie Hoffman versus former UPS staffer Tom Forcade was decided against Hoffman.

The tribunal sentenced Hoffman to pay Forcade $1,000 for work performed on Steal This Book and to furnish Forcade with several thousand copies of the book "at cost."

According to CBS news, Hoffman professed delight at the results of the arbitration and reportedly commented that this was the first time he had gone before a court and been unable to hate the judge.

In a recent radio interview with Realist editor Paul Krassner, Hoffman had asserted the tribunal was a good thing and a much-needed substitute for the slow imperfect justice of the courts.

'BY ALL THE INDICATIONS I THINK WE CAN NOW GET RID OF THESE RIDICULOUS LITTLE RED BOOKS!'

Letters To The Editor

The Source Of The Problem

(Ed. note-The following letter has been sent to Mayor Freedman of Springfield.)

Dear Mayor Freedman:

In recent news articles from Springfield regarding the Springfield Tech. violence, I read how the mayor and school officials would meet with community black leaders to "soothe the feelings of the black community, and make sure there would be no reprisals." (Springfield Union, Saturday September 25, morning paper).

My concern is that we always talk about getting the black people together to soothe their feelings and make things better, when in fact it is the white people of the community that we need to get together. It seems to me that here is the source of our problems, the attitudes of those young and old whites who are unwilling to deal with the black community. It is the attitudes of these whites which must be changed before we have a right to go to the black community.

I suggest that it is our responsibility to talk to these people and to educate them about the facts of black oppression in the past and present in this country. It is the white people of America who need help understanding the oppression of blacks and other minority groups. It is our responsibility to devote our efforts to this task.

Many of the areas we use to reach black people can be used to reach white people as well: our schools, boys and girls clubs, YMCA, YWCA, churches, etc.

I cannot stress enough the fact that as important as it is for black people to have opportunities, it is equally important for the white community to learn to accept black people.

I offer any support I can in getting a city-wide project started in this area.

Thank you.

Alis Glazier

More Dependable

To the Editor:

In trying to organize a free outdoor concert featuring local groups, I met with a lot of resistance from the Students Activities Staff. It seems, as reported last Wednesday in the Collegian, that the Activities Staff was unwilling to assume responsibility for this type of event, even one with only local groups because of problems experienced in the past with crowd control. This is not at all unfounded, the students haven't given these people any reason to believe that they can conduct themselves reasonably. Everyone realizes that there are only a few people that are disruptive, but it is time for the majority to restrain these few from behaving in a manner that is going to limit the activities for us all. Obviously at an outdoor concert people riding motorcycles and driving cars should stay off the area where people are sitting. The fact that temporary staging is not suitable for supporting large numbers of people should also be apparent. Picking up your own trash is always a good idea. Maybe if we, the students, were a little more dependable, then we would be able to entertain ourselves more often.

John Donahue

To Steven John

My heart is breaking because he is making sound around corners of the room
and hands are clapping,
fingers snapping -
Green eyes close in pain.
saltears rain
on hillside cheeks
and dry in streaks
and turn to brown.
It tumbles down
(this music-noise)
This crazy boy's
a chord machine,
a long and lean
and black-eyed song.
It can't be wrong.
The way he sings
cannot be wrong.
He's making wings
and flying strong with wingspread five and seven span
- a musicman.

(A soaring voice
-he leaves no choice
but listen)

Dear Paul

Listen. I know a wintry place where, though it never snows, no one ever goes.
S.P. I know a wintry place where, though it never blows, flowers never grow.
I know a wintry place where,
though the moon is grown, sea waves never roll.
I know a wintry place where,
thought a candle glows, no one cares to see what I alone must know.
Love sometimes reveals in me depths of both fear and ecstasy.
Thank you, Paul, but I'm only twenty years old.
And I'm still but on my way from the ultimate Hell of life to the infinite Heaven of death.

T. David Barrett

Letters

As in previous years the MDC will continue to print letters to the editor. The only requirements are that they be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced and absolutely no longer than two pages in length. All letters must be signed and the author's address and telephone numbers must be included. No letter will be published without this information. Also, no letters will be printed without the name of the author. Please note this change in policy.

All letters are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgment of the editors. Also, due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

THE EDITORS

Editorial Points

According to "Screw", "A busty young lady, nude from the waist up, strolled down the streets of Copenhagen while window shopping. She had been hired by a local newspaper to determine just what would constitute an 'outrage to public decency.'" She wasn't arrested. Copenhagen police inspector Viggo Christensen said there's no reason to arrest a person who walks the streets nude unless a crowd gathers and traffic is disrupted. "Who is to say what offends public decency? That is an individual matter." Of course, it depends a lot on what the individual looks like.

****

Art Buchwald thinks that writing these short one-liners is more difficult than writing a column. Then again, what does he know about it?

Art Buchwald

TV Reality

WASHINGTON--We're never going to close the credibility gap in this country until the television programs become more honest. No TV show tells it like it is.

If the TV producers were really mirroring life, this is how some of their programs would go:

"Chief, I'm stumped on the Logan murder case. We've tracked down every possible clue and hit a dead end. There are no motives, no fingerprints and the guy had no enemies. It's baffling."

"Did you check the wife's whereabouts on the night of the crime?"

"I didn't have time to. It meant going out to her aunt's house on Staten Island, and so I said the hell with it."

"What about Logan's business partner?"

"We asked the West Coast police to check out his alibi. They never replied to our query."

"Any women in his life?"

"There was a Miss Fan Fan La Tulipe who danced at the Pink Gypsy. Kelly was supposed to find out her connection with the victim, but he was suspended last week during the graft scandal in the 12th precinct."

"From what you've told me, you seem to have done a thorough enough job. I guess we'll put this down as an unsolved murder. If we spent all our time on one murder, we'd never get anything done around here."

"I was hoping you'd say that, Chief. The case was really becoming a drag."

*****

The hospital shows aren't much better at telling the truth about what happens in a large medical center:

"Dr. Edwards, come in please."

"Yes sir, Dr. Fauntenroy, you asked to see me?"

"I was curious about that little old lady who almost died in Room 506. They say you forgot to replace her oxygen bottle."

"So I made a mistake. One lousy error and you're going to wash me out?"

"It wasn't just the little old lady in Room 506, Edwards. I was thinking of the man in the emergency ward the other night--the one whose leg you amputated after the automobile accident."

"What was wrong with that? Dr. Peters said it was one of the best operations he had ever seen."

"It was, except you cut off the wrong leg."

"So that's why it took him so long to recover."

"Dr. Edwards, you're an intern, a good intern, but you have to stop making so many mistakes. Now what I've called you in about is that I've heard through the grapevine that you left an instrument in Mr. Cummings' stomach this afternoon."

"But I remembered it as I was washing up and made them bring him back."

"Edwards, you're young, and you're impetuous and you're careless. But I'm going to recommend that you be kept on. Do you know why?"

"You owe my father a favor?"

"No, it's deeper than that. You look like a doctor and that to me is very important. Most of the men trying to be doctors these days have long hair and beards. But you know how to dress and you give the hospital a lot of class. Keep your hair short, Edwards, and you'll have a job here for life."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Culturnatives

Talk Less Do More For Ecology

By GILBERT J. SALK

Ecology. We've heard a lot about it lately, but nobody is doing much about it. We see lots of ads by major corporations telling us what they're doing to help our environment, but most of their claims don't stand up under close scrutiny.

They tell us to buy more of their product because they pollute less or because they give us free plastic trash bags or because they are spending money researching ways of reducing pollution--but not nearly as much as they spend buying advertising to tell us about it. And the real aim of the ad is not to make us more conscious of environmental needs as it is to persuade us to buy more, consume more, throw away more, buy more.

This pill also has a dangerous side effect. It can easily lull us into a belief that something significant is being done to save our air and water.

Most of us, I think, know all of this. The problem is that while we complain about it, we aren't willing to make the personal sacrifices needed to combat it. I stand accused with the rest of you.

So let's rap a little about ecological living.

First, it's a two-part problem, both of which are intertwined. Obviously, the industries must be made to stop their direct and indirect rape of the environment. But we must also understand that they have a perfectly valid excuse: us. They are right when they claim that we demand their products and that we will complain if the costs go up. We're selfish, and we are conditioned to expect to be able to buy anything we decide we want at a "reasonable" price.

In today's column, let's deal with the you-and-me aspect of environment protection. First, we should understand the context in which we live. We have been brainwashed by the mass media (including radio, television, newspapers, magazines, movies, education, and our friends and families) into a psychological dependence on luxuries which we perceive as needs. Read that last sentence over and dig it. That's a powerful lot of brainwashing we've been subjected to all our lives. Think about how it has conditioned us to accept certain lifestyles as acceptable, and others as impractical, fanciful, or undesireable.

Make sure that your understanding of those conditioned prejudices carries over to make you react to the rest of this column. See if it can free your mind at all.

For instance:

What would happen if you stopped buying things new? It would mean that much less drain on the earth's raw materials, for a start. As added incentive, it would save you money. There's an incredible number of sources of "used" (recycled) products. Check into tag sales, auctions, places like Goodwill and St. Vincent de Paul, and dumps. Yes, dumps. People throw an unbelievable amount of useable things away, and if you find them, they're yours for free. If you learn to fix up slightly damaged things, dumps will yield an even larger treasure to you. Also check out government surplus sales. Write to the Dept. of Defense Surplus Sales Office in Battle Creek, Mich., or to General Services Administration in Boston for bidders' application forms.

Don't throw things away. First check with your friends to see if they can use whatever it is that you're finished with. If that doesn't work, get rid of it at an appropriate place. Clothes and toys can be given to free stores, rummage sales, Goodwill, or something similar. Use radio outlets such as SWAPs on WTTT. Old newspapers, magazines, bottles, and aluminum cans should be brought to a central collection station for recycling. Northampton provides such a station once each month.

Push the places you eat to start composting their food scraps and giving it away. Go to work on the dining halls, for instance. Offer to help them with the dirty work.

Buy organic foods. As the market increases, prices will come down and more farmers will turn to organic farming.

Get a bicycle instead of a car. Or if you must have a car, make a point of picking up hitchhikers. You will get many more passenger-miles to the gallon of gasoline (or cubic foot of exhaust fumes, if you will) if you always have passengers.

Don't buy notebooks. Use the backs of paper printed on only one side. Ask a secretary in some office to save you the unneeded copies of mimeod paper, and do your term papers on the unused side.

Use your imagination. Find as many ways as you can think of to reduce or stop consuming, and use them. You doing it alone won't save the planet, but your example might get some other people to try it, and start a spiral. This is political, by the way, because if enough people start consuming less, it will force a reduction in production which will eventually force a three- or even a two-day work week.

Read some books for imagination-stimulation. Let me list a few which I think are particularly helpful.

BOOK REVIEWS

Ecological Living Handbook by Dan Clancy and Karen Jensen ($1.00, Center for Ecological Living, 246 Center Ave., Pacheco, Cal.) is an excellent booklet on how to relate to your environment. It covers the home, the school, the job, noise, travel, purchasing, interpersonal relations, and a wide range of actions. The actions are viewed on several levels, including social, political, educational, and life-style. It's a beautiful, loving book.

The Environmental Handbook, edited by Garrett de Bell ($.95, Ballantine Books, Inc., NYC.) was put out by Friends of the Earth as an aid to the National Environmental Teach-in. It contains articles by many long-standing ecology heavies, and deals with the meaning of ecology and personal and political eco-tactics. It's a fine source of factual information on what the crisis is all about and what you can do about it.

The Earth Tool Kit, prepared by Environmental Action, ($1.25, Pocket Books, NYC.), is a similar book, also prepared for Earth Day. It deals in more depth with heavier tactics, and is concerned with building organizations designed to fight a long-range battle. It's a fine organizers' book.

Environmental Action also compiled Earth Day--The Beginning ($1.25, Bantam Books, Inc., NYC.), another collection of articles by some heavyweights. Section headings will give you an idea of the impressive range of this book: Earth's Last Stand. Promises, Promises. Black Survival. Business as Usual. Lawnorder. and more. It's an excellent collection of the thoughts of some of the more outspoken of those concerned about tomorrow.

I don't usually urge readers to go out and buy every book I review, but this is an exception. Each of these is a very important contribution to environmental information--data which we must have if we are to act with intelligence. Read them. Then remember that unused information is no better than no information. Do something.

Peace.

In future columns, CULTURNATIVES will deal with many aspects of cultural alternatives. If you want to rap about some possibilities, or get a copy of Mother Earth News, drop in at the Draft Counseling Office in 923 CC. Draft counseling comes first, but if I'm free, I'd enjoy hearing from you.

Airlines Scared

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pan American and Trans World, the two U.S. airlines providing scheduled service across the North Atlantic, have appealed to the U.S. government for quick action to avert a general transatlantic air fare war.

At a closed meeting with the Civil Aeronautics Board, officials of the two airlines said that unless positive steps are taken before Oct. 15, disastrous fare cuts of the type already proposed by Lufthansa German Airlines will broaden into a variety of costly traffic-promotion projects by many airlines.

They proposed that the CAB, through the State Department, notify the West German government that the Lufthansa fare proposal is improper and unacceptable under terms of the U.S. — German bilateral air agreement. They said Canada already has taken such action.

BUS SERVICE SCHEDULE

LV. U-Mass. for No. Amherst - 8:24 a.m., 11:54, 12:54 p.m., 3:56, 6:01

LV. U-Mass. for Amherst Center, Hadley and Northampton 7:31 a.m., 8:36, 10:01, 12:06 p.m., 1:06, 2:01, 4:09, 5:04, 6:14.

Connections at Northampton for Easthampton, Florence, Leeds, Haydenville and Williamsburg

LV. U-Mass. for Worcester, Belchertown, Ware, Brookfields, Spencer and Leicester

Fridays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 4:50 p.m
Saturdays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m.
Sundays: LV. U-Mass. 12:45 p.m., 6:25 p.m.

For Tickets and Information
The Lobby Shoppe, Student Union Bldg. Tel. 545-2006

CHARTER A BUS
call our office for rates and arrangements Tel. 584-6481

Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.
Northampton, Mass.

"Finally" DIRECT SERVICE
BETWEEN THE UNIVERSITY AND NATICK AND BOSTON

Less than 2 hr. nonstop service

FRIDAYS - LV. U of M 2:00 P.M.
AR. Boston 3:55 P.M.
LV. U of M 4:00 P.M.
AR. Boston 6:55 P.M.

SUNDAYS - LV. Boston 6:30 P.M.
AR. U of M 8:25 P.M.
LV. Boston 8:30 P.M.
AR. U of M 10:25 P.M.

There will be one (1) direct nonstop express bus on each of the schedules shown above in addition to our regular service

FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CALL:
PETER PAN OFFICE
AT THE LOBBY SHOP
Tel. 545-2006 or 545-2528

Before seeing Delta Chi eighty-five percent of us were anti-Greek. Come and see the target before throwing stones at it.

Delta Chi

314 Lincoln Ave.

Wednesday
September 29
8:00 p.m.

Campus Center Program Council
presents

October 3, 1971 3:30 & 8:30
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets $2.00
at S. U. Box Office & Door at Performance

Plot To Free Greek Assassin

The Lady Got Sixteen Months

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Lady Amalia Fleming, 62-year-old widow of the discoverer of penicillin, was sentenced Tuesday to 16 months in prison on charges of plotting to free a man who tried to assassinate the premier of the Greek military government.

Lady Fleming, daughter of an Athens doctor, holds dual Greek and British citizenship. The government is expected to take away her Greek citizenship and deport her to Britain instead of imprisoning her. She told newsmen, however, that she would rather go to jail than lose her Greek nationality.

Four others, including two Americans, also were convicted in the alleged plot. The four and their sentences are Athena Psyhogios, 42, of Minneapolis, Minn., 14 months; John Skelton, 26, of Yardsley, Pa., seven months suspended; Constantine Androutsopoulos, 30, of Athens, 15 months, and Constantine Bekakos, 21-year-old Greek soldier, 13 months.

Mrs. Psyhogios was expected to be deported. It was not clear whether Skelton would be expelled from the country or permitted to continue his studies at Athens University's theological school, where he is on World Council of Churches scholarship.

A spokesman for the League for Democracy in Greece said Tuesday in London the sentence imposed on the widow of Sir Alexander Fleming was particularly severe considering her age and health and the harsh conditions of Greek prisons.

"We will campaign unceasingly for her early release," the spokesman said. Four of the defendants were charged with "gathering together to form a gang" and to "assist a prisoner to escape." Bekakos, the soldier, was convicted of not disclosing a prisoners escape plans to his military superiors.

Prosecutor Nicholas Papconstantinou denied Lady Fleming's claims that Alexander Panagoulis, the convicted would-be assassin of Premier George Papadopoulos, had been tortured since his internment in August, 1968.

In testimony Monday night, Lady Fleming admitted her role in the plot to free Panagoulis from prison. "I did it for humanitarian reasons," she insisted.

Soviets Launch Another Luna

MOSCOW (AP)—Rebounding from three consecutive space failures, the Soviet Union launched another unmanned moon probe Tuesday.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the main purpose of the spacecraft Luna 19 "is to conduct scientific investigation of the moon and near-lunar space from the orbit of an artificial satellite."

UCF Plans For Danbury Demonstration

The United Christian Foundation is sponsoring a meeting for all people interested in going to the Danbury Prison Demonstration this Saturday. Rides will be arranged and final details of the demonstration will be given.

This demonstration is going on simultaneously with demonstrations at other Federal prisons throughout the country and is being sponsored by People's Coalition for Peace and Justice. Clergy and Laymen Concerned, Mayday, Committee to Free Angela Davis and other Political Prisoners, and other groups. The demonstrations have been called to demand:

—Major reforms of the parole system that recently has boasted a 12.6% decline in parole grants.

—An early review of the parole application of Fr. Philip Berrigan and a parole grant for Fr. Daniel Berrigan whose ill health makes it imperative that he be released (stated by prison doctors).

—An end to U.S.-funded tiger cages used for political prisoners in South Vietnam.

—The end to U.S. funding and staffing of prisons and interrogation camps for political suspects in South Vietnam.

—The release of all South Vietnamese prisoners who are sick, disabled, and are being held without trial, or whose sentences have now expired.

This demonstration is seen as a start toward a movement of major prison reforms so that instances like Attica and the killing of George Jackson do not occur.

The parole system has been picked out in particular for this demonstration because it holds so much power over the lives of prisoners. There is only one Federal parole board of 8 people that decides upon over 11,000 cases a year. Often only two of the eight make the decision.

Excellent Financial Assistance for Student Nurses

a Representative of the U.S. Army will be at the ROTC Bldg. from 4 Oct. - 8 Oct. 71

No obligation - come and see us.

INTERCOURSE
for all Business Majors !

The Marketing Club will meet tonight in SBA at 7:30 in room 102. Besides membership in a national professional and academic organization: besides an intercourse with the real business world, we have a lot to offer you. Come see!

S.E.S. Going Co-op ! !

All subcribers and all other students are invited to become members of the new Students' Educational System Cooperative.

For two years we have been serving you.

Now we welcome you to share in the ownership and decision-making of our student-centered organization. Become part of our co-op, and help promote your own interests.

HOW?

If you'd like to know how the co-op can work for you, and how you can become a part owner, come to our first meeting:

GENERAL MEETING

Place: Student Union Ballroom
Date: Wednesday, Oct. 6, 1971
Time: 8:00 p.m.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

68 Ford Galaxie, 46,000 miles, excellent conditions, stereo, yellow with black interior, asking 1,500. Call 256-6297.

1965 VW Bus, excellent cond., rebuilt engine, new clutch, new brakes, great for camping, $900, or best offer. Call after 6 p.m., 268-7265. tf9-29

'69 Saab and '69 Peugeot. Both 45,000 miles, in good condition. Asking $1,250 each. Call 256-6762 for inquiry or test drive. tf9-29

1969 VW sedan. Very good condition. $1100 or best offer. Call after 5:30 at 584-7201. tf9-29

65 Chevy 6 cyl. std. New tires excel. running. 581-8567 $150 or best. tf9-30

65 Mustang conv., red, stereo tape deck with deluxe interior. Best offer over $550. Contact Steve, 253-3388. tf10-1

1966 Pontiac Tempest, standard trans. Call after 8 and ask for Janet, 253-7520. tf10-1

1966 Dodge Van, $450. 256-6425. tf9-29

56 MG-A Roadster, exc. cond., w/65MGB engine running perf., conv. top, side windows, HTH. Michelin Tires. $850. Eves, 584-0976. tf10-1

1970 Chev. master 85 Sedan showroom condition. Best offer around $700. Call 584-8017. tf9-30

1911 Chevy in good running condition. New paint job, lots of extra parts. Asking $500. Need money desperately. Call Jeff, 546-5131. tf10-1

61 VW Bus rebuilt engine, new brakes, muffler ex. mechanical some body rst. Good deal at $150 or best offer. Call Hon, 549-0150. tf10-6

MG-A 1950 1600 eng. 80 per cent. Rebuilt $500. 15 Fearing Amherst. 9-29

1967 BMW - 1800 TI 4-door sedan, am-fm, sw hinpunkt, Pirellis, excellent condition-best offer over $1000. 253-2417. tf10-5

1966 Peugot convertible in excellent condition. Call Catherine mornings 549-6012. tf9-30

1959 Chev. conv. Full inspected $175.00. Until 665-1768. tf10-1

1967 Mustang 6 cyl., standard, good tires, snow tires, new battery. 50,000 miles. Ed Tremblay 546-7529. tf10-1

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

1971 Gold Honda CL350 exc. cond. Need money desperately must sell. Best offer. call Jack 6-7626. tf10-1

Honda 305, excellent condition, custom sissy bar and helmet included. Only 8,000 miles. Call Al rm. 501 J. Adams. 546-8651. tf9-30

1970 CB750 Honda excellent mech., less than 6000 mi. Call Bob 665-4752 after 6:30. tf9-29

1971 Honda CB450, 2 helmets, chain lock cover, 3000 mi., crash bars $975, 323-4430. tf10-1

'67 305cc Honda Scrambler, month old valve crankshaft, job bored and stroked knobbies. Can't afford tune-up now $425. Mike 549-6250. tf9-30

FOR SALE

For sale, Guild Polara elec. Guitar. Good action & sound. Can be seen at Faces of Earth in Amherst must sell! Will bargain!

1967 BSA 441cc. Shooting Star, excellent condition. Must sell $475.00 Call 586-0977. tf10-1

Dunebuggy, 3000 mi., needs volks motor, top, special seats, much more $475. Call Cep 665-3129. tf9-29

Ski boots for sale, men's Koflach, 8 1/2M, White Stars. Call 546-4184 after 7 p.m. tf9-30

Guitars, amps, acc., & records, at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop 98 Main St. Northampton 586-1706. tf10-6

Waterbeds-now all sizes $10.95! Factory warranty. Also, frames, liners & pads in stock. Call Mark at 546-5450. tf10-12

Benjamin stereo compacts, miracord and lenco turntables, elac cartridges and FMI speakers. At discount prices. Call 546-4017. tf10-5

Tent - 10 x 12' Hettrick used 1 week purchased in June ask $90.

Typewriter-portable underwood exc. cond. $30. PH. 586-2967.

10 speed Schwinn Sports Tourer. New $175, call Mike 549-6142, 301 Puffton. tf10-1

Schwinn 10 spd. $90 firm; rectilinear mini, III speakers 50-1800 @13DB $120. Fischer Alphirts 223cm Wild Man's Ski. 586-3968.

K.F.

Hanging Planters-other ceramic ware made to order. Fred Englander 549-1851, 15 Fearing St. tf10-1

Durega II-Enlarger voilensack 90mm f/3.5 lens negative carrier for 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 - 2 1/4 x 3 1/4 $80.00 549-0943. tf9-30

Henke ski boots, size 11, bought at the end of last season, used once. Regular $110.00 sell to best offer. Call Rus. 532-8121. tf10-1

COURSE

LEARN ANY MAIN EUROPEAN LANG-UAGE. Understand & read in 10 mos. Course taught by UN interpreter Indiv. courses by mailed cassettes. 584-9710 or 4823. tf10-1

LOST

A maroon and white jacket with name W. Hallow on inside. Call Bill 546-7625. tf10-1

EMPLOYMENT

Sell Shaklee products. Full or part time, 100% biodegradable organic cleaners, beauty aids and vitanslins makers of Basic II. For info. Call 253-2901. tf9-30

MEETING

Business majors! Come to this yr's 1st. Marketing Club meeting, in SBA at 7:30 p.m. in room 102. We have a lot to offer! Come see. 9-29

ROOMMATES WANTED

Share my one room apt. in Amherst Ctr. You pay $38/mo., but for first semester only. Message to me, Tom at 6-5208 - 6-5178. tf9-29

WANTED

Would like info. on Indian reservation schools for educ. project. Anyone who can help please call Irene 546-7083 or Carolyn 533-9867. tf9-29

Men to erect chainlink fence. Experienced only. Part time. Fitzgerald Fences, 340 Bridge Rd., Florence, Mass. tf10-1

Compatable female, N/hyphs wanted by 2 insatiable males. Experience unnecessary. Call 256-6406 ask for Dereck tf9-29

Investment analysis & Portfolio man. Cohen & Zinbarg-cont. Socini prob. Merton & Nisbet-Econ. of Trade & Develop. By Theberge. Call 6-6663. 9-29

RIDE WANTED

Girl desperately needs a ride to Burlington Vt. Fri. Oct. 1. Call Betsy 546-5753. 9-29

Husband and wife need ride to and from around Columbus, Ohio on Oct. 21 will share driving and expenses. Call Bob 549-6761. tf10-1

SKIERS WANTED

Skiers wanted to share spacious chalet, 5 min. from Mt. Snow. Luxury living, only $250 for season, Dec.-Mar. Call Marty-548-6786. tf10-1

SERVICES

Need a band, Dial-a-band will supply a band that your budget can afford. Any variety available. For details, call Stan 546-9215. tf9-29

Will do typing of all kinds. Thesis research dissertations experienced, fast, (electric) foreign, lang. Ger., Dutch. Call 549-6156. 9-29

FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt., all utilities, no lease. Pets & children welcome. Wall to wall carpet, $175 month. Call Kamins Village Apts., Belchertown. tf9-30

Room, with 6 bed rms. 14 miles from U of M. Furniture, 2 baths, all utilities paid $350 per month. Call 323-7803. tf10-4

Townhouse Apt. at Cliffside, 2 bdr., $180 per month incl. util., married only. Call 665-1709. tf10-1

1 bedroom apt., Puffton Village available immediately. 549-1084 after 5 p.m. tf9-30

HELP WANTED

Campus Reps - opportunity for business-minded student to earn top cash and get unparalleled experience working for self on campus. Start immediately. Send brief resume and phone number to: Mr. C.H. Danforth, Box 75, Swampscott, MA 01907. tf9-29

Help wanted! Need reliable students male or female for delivery and sales work. If you are really interested call 549-2016. tf10-1

Art or advertising major needed to help launch sales promotion. Call David, 586-1138. Keep trying. tf10-1

Need money? Earn $25 or more a week? Work your own hours at your convenience. Call Barry or Dave 800-530. tf10-5

PERS PERSONAL

Girls 42D and over! We need you to dance for us. Call Jerry at 1 Fetta Tbl. 546-7789. tf9-29

Bisexual male would like to meet bi male or female for tea and sympathy. Reply in classifieds. tf9-29

Hey all young sensuous numismatists. I need someone to scrub my pennies. Call 6-5327. tf9-29

Yng-Male chauvinist interested in mindless chick for a warm, sincere relationship. Send resume and photo or NL 901. tf9-29

I need an eager beaver to keep me warm these cold nights. If you think you can help call me. tf9-29

Happy birthday Kvetch love me. 9-29

Brilliant handsome young man needs someone to keep him humble and satisfied. Call 212-846-2761. tf9-29

Commuters-If rent is a big issue with you let me make it a big issue with the Student Senate vote. Neil Kerstein for Senator. tf9-30

ROOM WANTED

In desperate need of room or apt., preferably near campus. Call Steph 586-2068. Keep trying tf9-29

LECTURE NOTES

Lecture notes are now available in room 318 in the Student Union Lobby for all sections of Anthro 101, Botany 101, Econ. 125 and 126, Geology 101, Gov. 100 and 150, Hist. 151, Human Dev. 270, Micro. 100, Phil. 105, Psych 101, 202, 263, 270, 280, 301, and 302, Soc. 101 Zoo. 101 and 135. One section of Hist. 150 and Psych. 325 also in.

Harambe Welcomes New Members

Harambe wishes to extend a warm welcome to incoming Third World Students, and welcome back the old ones. Harambe is an organization, principally for Third World Students, although anyone who expresses an interest can become a member.

Last year, Harambe sponsored such events as a National Conference, focusing on Pan-Africanism, social events, etc. Harambe also serves as a funding agency for members who attend conferences and agree to disseminate information to the rest of the community.

Everyone is always talking about the lack of anything to do with themselves, and about all of the things that are being done to them, but who is trying to do anything about it? Harambe provides such an opportunity. It attempts to make people aware of some of the political and social problems in their immediate environment, the university, and their peripheral environment.

There will be an open reception Thursday, Sept. 30, in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. and all members of the Third World Community are urged to attend, as well as anyone who is interested in the organization. Incidentally, refreshments will be served.

Mobe To Conduct Teach-In

The Student Mobilization Committee met last Wednesday night and made important decisions concerning UMass participation in the upcoming anti-war demonstrations. October 13th, National Moratorium Day, was the main topic of discussion. A teach-in will be held on the morning of the 13th and the afternoon's activities will consist of leafleting the Amherst-Northampton area with information regarding the November 6th rally on Boston Common. Five buses have been acquired for transportation to and from Boston Common on November 6th. Bus tickets will be available starting October 13th for a minimal fee.

The next S.M.C. meeting will be held tonight at 8:00 P.M. in the MOBE office on the second floor of the Student Union.

NOTICES

AHEA

Do you still want to make a difference? Come to our first organizational meeting Weds., Oct. 6, 7:30 in Skinner Lounge. Be active!

HILLEL

Sign up now for first nite dinner in office--it's this week.

Breakfast after services, Hillel office. Bagels and cream cheese.

Yom Kippur services 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. in CC Aud.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

International Club coffee house at 8 p.m. in Rms. 168-70 CC on Wed. Two films about Aborigines from Australia: 'Walkabout' and 'Tjurunga' will be shown. Also in attendance will be a Professor from the Anthropology Dept.

MAROON KEYS

Important meeting tonight at 8:30 p.m., Rm 811 CC. This one is for real. Be there, much planning to do.

OMICRON NU

There will be a meeting at 4:00 tonight at Miss Merchant's apt. A buffet will be served. Initiation and plan of work will be discussed.

PARACHUTE CLUB

1st jump course concludes tonight in CC 165, 7:15 p.m.--Everyone else missed a beautiful weekend at scenic Turner's Falls Airport. P.S. We're there every weekend.

REVELLERS

Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in Rm. 174 CC.

SCROLLS

Important meeting tonight at 6:15 p.m. in Rm. 811-815 CC. Attendance is mandatory.

SPANISH-AMERICAN STUDENTS

All Latin-American Students and Peace Corps workers in Latin America are invited to attend a meeting on Mon. Oct. 4. Look for further notice on place of meeting.

TEP

Open House at TEP 8:30 p.m. today at Sept. 29, 1971.

UMASS CHESS CLUB

There will be a meeting of the Chess Club tonight in the New Hatch from 7 to 11:30 p.m. Further information on the chess tournament this weekend will be announced.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

Meeting tonight at 7:30 in Rm. 802 CC. All interested persons are welcome.

LOST

One dorm President in red and blue bathrobe--Last seen about 10 o'clock Saturday night. Anyone with information as to her whereabouts please contact Kennedy 18th floor.

To whoever returned my wallet. Thanks a lot! Reg Knowlton.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

A new device, the Tilt Meter, has been developed by an aircraft company; it can detect the tidal pull of the moon or sun on the liquid in a teacup. Man is made up of 90% liquid. Who, then, is to say that the sun and moon (and planets) have no discernible influence on human life?

***

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spotlight on friendships. You may be called on to make decision which is controversial--no matter what. Realize some around you now are supersensitive. Tread lightly. Exhibit sense of humor.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may feel you have run into an immovable object. Key is recall past lessons, apply experience. Look, plan ahead. Check apparent minor matters. Be thorough. Leave no loopholes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Change, variety, greater communication with opposite sex--these are on agenda. Virgo individual figures prominently. Nail down aspirations. Make position crystal clear. Gain shown through written word.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Delve deep; reject the superficial. Find out the why of events. Scorpio individual intrigues. You exhibit tendency to be overly intense. Don't tear unknown. Ride with tide. You can win.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lie low; do more observing than asserting. You may not be seeing too clearly. Romantic haze could cloud basic issues. Realize this and avoid permanent commitment. Legal counsel would be good idea.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pound home requirements. Means let others know what you need. Taking things for granted would be error. Some associates, co-workers display green streak at envy. Adhere to the basics.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Good lunar aspect now coincides with love interests, relationships with children. Finish projects. Expand personal horizons. Look beyond the immediate. Creative force is in evidence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What was confusing falls into place. You get second chance. Correct previous misconceptions. Attention to details now could make you a winner. Act accordingly. Leo, Aquarius persons are involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on short journeys, development of ideas, ability to communicate with relatives. Trust hunch; follow through. Learn by teaching means share knowledge. Ignore neighbor who talks too much.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, personal possessions these now are emphasized. Figure things out for yourself. Too many helpers prove costly. You can expand activities without being extravagant. Pull in financial reins.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar cycle high; circumstances turn in your favor. Timing improves. Judgment, intuition ring bell. Take initiative. Make new starts, contacts. Personal magnetism rating soars. Get going...to many places!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Look behind scenes for answers. What appears obvious could actually be a deception. Know this and do have second thoughts. Ask questions; persistent effort will pay dividends. Dig deep for information.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, generally gentle in approach to situations and people. Recent changes will work in your behalf. An Aquarius individual could make you happy in upcoming months. Social life is due to be accelerated.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

WMUA

TONIGHT on 91.1 FM:

7:00 p.m. - EVENING NEWS-a complete half hour of comprehensive news from Associated Press, United Press International, UPI Worldwide audio network, compiled by WMUA NEWS. Area news is featured.

7:30 p.m. - 8:00 p.m. -VIEWPOINT-a half hour public affairs program which takes in depth looks at various issues on campus and in the world. WMUA's Marty Waters is the moderator. Tonight's guests will be three representatives from experimental peer sex counseling program in Southwest.

8:00 p.m. - 11:00 p.m. - THE DRUM-complete black programming with poetry, jazz, soul, black news from the Drum's own black news staff and a black national audio network.

11:00 p.m. - LATE NIGHT NEWS-another in depth half hour newscast from Amherst's largest broadcast news operation, WMUA NEWS. Includes a sports report and an update at 11:25.

11:30 p.m. - 3:00 a.m. - Eric Benjamin comes your way with three and a half hours of great progressive music.

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

PAGES PILED DIVEST ITALIC
IRE TITLE ASH
MATTERS HA
STEER ET LIED
EAR AA TADS
TRANSPOSE
LEIS UT HAS FINER VESTS
AMRENEWED AH
DIP TUDOR ETA
STUPOR ESTEEM
STONE SEALS

ACROSS

1 Opening
4 Marks left by wounds
9 Everybody's uncle
12 Goddess of healing
13 Female
14 Arabian garment
15 Surgical saw
17 Expert
19 Cares for 21 Equality
22 Makes lace
24 Organ of hearing
26 Final
29 One, no matter which
30 Antlered animals
32 Guido's low note
33 Pronoun
34 Transgress
35 Symbol for tantalum
36 Sorrow for sins
39 Weight of India
40 Paradise
41 Capuchin monkey
42 Suffix: follows of
43 Devoured
45 Aphorism
47 Clergyman (colloq.)
50 Stylish
53 Before
54 At no time
56 American essayist
57 Armed conflict
58 Sows
59 Superlative ending

DOWN

1 Obtain
2 Ventilate
3 Comely
4 Graceful bird
5 Compresses
6 Part of "to be"
7 Male sheep
8 Break suddenly
9 Petty ruler
10 Man's nickname
11 Deface
16 Footlike part
18 Drawing room
20 Posed for portrait
22 Yellow in hue
23 Put up stake
25 Abrogated
27 Mediterranean vessel
28 Former Russian rulers
30 River island
31 Falsehood
33 Clues
37 Closer
38 Scold
39 Russian plain
42 Demon
44 Vast ages
46 Paddles
47 Church bench
48 Macaw
49 Born
51 Dawn goddess
52 Soak
55 Brother of Odin

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Motorcycles Repaired & Serviced.
Lowest Prices Anywhere
Parts & Accessories
MIRACLES Performed Daily
Motorcycles Unlimited
401 Ingleside St.
(Texaco Sta.)
Holyoke, Mass.
533-8517

Writing Paper and Postal Cards
MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE
next to Amherst Tower

Alston: "Dodgers Must Sweep"

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Manager Walter Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers, dean of major league managers, remained calm yesterday as his club opened its final bid for the National League West title.

"Tell me what San Francisco will do and I'll tell you what we have todo," Alston observed.

Then, seriously, he concluded the Dodgers probably would have to win all three final games against the Houston Astros to beat out the Giants who lead by one game and finish up with three at San Diego.

Odds favor the Giants. Some sources in Las Vegas, Nev., make them 5-1 favorites to cop the West crown.

Opening the series at Dodger Stadium, injury-plagued Bill Singer carried the Los Angeles pitching hopes against recently recalled James Rodney Richard, a towering 6-foot-8 fast-ball thrower.

Tonight, Al Downing, the little left-hander with a 20-8 record, goes against Don Wilson, 16-9, with Don Sutton, 16-12, winding up the regular season campaign against either Wade Blasingame or Ken Forsch.

Last weekend, the Dodgers went into Atlanta three games out of first place and then swept the series while Cincinnati was taking a pair from the Giants.

If, after the final regular season, the Giants and Dodgers wind up in a tie, the issue will be decided Friday afternoon in a single game at San Francisco.

Richie Allen, the slugger who joined the Dodgers this season, predicted it will take a Friday game to decide the issue.

"We'll win two out of three from Houston and the Giants will lose two out of three at San Diego, Allen predicted.

The present situation is opposite of one in 1962 when the Dodgers were fading and the Giants charging. That time it took a two-to-three playoff to decide which would face the New York Yankees. In the finale, the Giants scored four runs in the ninth inning for a 64 victory.

Although Houston arrived in Los Angeles 10 games behind the Giants and in fifth place, the Astros could move up in the standings if they knock down the Dodgers. Only 1-1/2 games separate Houston from third place Atlanta and they are only one-half behind Cincinnati.

Alex Johnson Is Reinstated

NEW YORK (AP)—An emotional disturbance should be treated no differently than a physical ailment in baseball, an impartial arbitration board ruled Tuesday in ordering the California Angels to restore full pay to their recalcitrant outfielder, Alex Johnson.

The verdict, which is binding, was termed a "landmark decision." Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said he had no immediate comment.

"The commissioner wants to read the report before expressing any reaction," said Monte Irvin of the commissioner's staff.

Dick Walsh, general manager of the Angels, called it "Totally inconsistent with the facts and completely without justification."

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said the finding was an historic one.

"It means that a man who is emotionally disturbed is just as ill as one who has sustained an injury or has an ailment," Miller said.

"He should not be suspended or disciplined. He should be placed on the disabled list."

A player on the disabled list receives full pay.

Johnson, 28, the American League batting champion in 1970, was suspended by the Angels on June 26 for what they described as "not hustling and not showing the proper mental attitude."

A player who has been with four teams-Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati and California-in his seven years in the majors, Johnson was benched several times during the current season by Manager Lefty Phillips for failure to hustle.

Once he accused teammate Chico Ruiz of pulling a gun on him in the Angels' clubhouse-a charge Ruiz denied. The two got into a fight at the batting cage last season and Johnson's wife apologized to the wives of some other players for his actions.

In May, Phillips benched Johnson for several days. Later Angels players failed to invite him to a team meeting after he had apparently loafed in chasing a fly ball, costing the team three runs.

When he was suspended in June, his salary was cut off.

The arbitration panel ordered the restoral of Johnson's salary for the rest of the season amounting to $29,970. But it upheld the 29 disciplinary fines totaling around $3,750. The estimate was made by the club.

A formal report issued by the Players Assocation, said the panel placed great weight on the report of two psychiatrists-Dr. Lawrence E. Jackson of Wayne State University in Detroit, retained by Johnson, and Dr. Jonathan H. Himmelhoch of Yale University, retained by the Angels.

Scoring Freeze Applies Breaks To Collegiate Pigskin

NEW YORK (AP)—Along with the nation's economic freeze, brakes have been applied to the runaway scoring trend in college football.

Latest statistics by the National Collegiate Sports Services, the NCAA arm which keeps up with such things, reveals that last Saturday's games were the lowest in scoring in three seasons.

There were 16 shutouts among the major teams, the most since Nov. 17, 1965. The early season scoring averages are well below last year.

In 66 games last week the major colleges produced an average of 37.6 points a game, the smallest since Sept. 28, 1968. The season's average is 38.6 compared with 42.6 last season and the record 43.2 in 1969.

The only explanation by observers is that coaches have turned greater attention to the defense.

An Ivy League school, Cornell, with an outstanding back in Ed Marinaro, is leading the country in both total offense with 611 yards and rushing offense with 431 yards for the single game it has played Penn State follows in both categories with a 548 average overall and 384 yards rushing in two games. Bowling Green is third, averaging 505 yards in total offense.

The top passing is another Ivy League member, Princeton, with 328 yards in the air for the only game it has played - a losing one to Rutgers. Washington, with Sonny Sixkiller at the throttle, follows with a 307 average in three games.

Orioles Pound Sox 10-2

BALTIMORE (AP)—A two-run Homer by Ellie Hendricks capped a three-run rally in the fifth inning yesterday as the Baltimore Orioles downed Boston 10-2 in the first game of a twin-night doubleheader.

Dave McNally, due to start Saturday's opening game of the American League playoffs against Oakland, brought his record to 21-5 as the Orioles won their ninth in a row and ended a six-game Red Sox winning streak.

Hendricks' homer off Ray Culp, 14-16, came after a run-scoring single by Boog Powell had snapped a 2-2 tie. Powell's hit scored Don Buford, who opened the inning with the second of his three singles.

Buford also drove in a run in the sixth and scored in the first on an infield hit by Merv Rettenmund. A throwing error by Boston catcher Duane Josephson allowed Baltimore to score an unearned run in the second. The Orioles wrapped it up in the eighth on two-run doubles by Powell and Jerry DaVanon.

Rico Petrocelli drove in both Red Sox runs with a first-inning sacrifice fly and a third-inning single.

Sure you can do without the best, but you don't have to
Bell's Pizza
65 University Dr.
256-8011 - 253-8051
Free Delivery of Pizzas

Ruggers Open With Three Wins

The UMass Rugby Football Club opened its fall season last weekend with three big victories. The ruggers travelled to Kingston and took on the U.R.I. club. The UMass first XV took command early in the game on two penalty kicks by Mike Donnell. Later in the first half, great open field ball handling by UMass forwards broke standout Brian Curry for a try. Donnell converted and UMass led at halftime 12-0.

Rhode Island reformed its forces at halftime and played sound defense for the greater part of the second half. The continual pressure applied by forwards Curry, Kesgen, and Piepul cracked the U.R.I. defense. UMass closed out the scoring when the centers Asa Glaser and Steve McElroy each scored from twenty yards out. Mike Donnell converted both tries. This set the final score, UMass 24, U.R.I. 0.

The second XV took the field and were not to be outdone. Scoring came early and often. After driving the ball deep into Rhody territory, the UMass forwards simply walked in for a try when the UMass lock fell on the ball. The lock, Pete Herrmann, had one of the best individual performances in UMass rugby history. He scored three tries, converted one, and made a goal kick for a total of 17 points. Herrmann had scored two tries in the first half.

Freshman Don Madder playing his first game at flyhalf broke in for a try from 15 yards out and UMass led at halftime 14-0. The scoring continued as the novice UMass ruggers gained in confidence. Herrmann made the penalty kick, and another try. In the waning minutes, Bob Watson set up Art Shelley for a 40 yard gambol down the sidelines for a try setting the final score UMass 26, U.R.I. 0.

Sunday, Holy Cross C's met UMass C's here in Amherst. Buoyed by the Saturday's victories and led by veteran back Don Joyce, the UMass third XV dumped the Purple Gang 20-4

This weekend, the three UMass teams travel to South Boston to take on perennial power Beacon Hill. Last fall, a cocky Beacon Hill team was crushed by the foot of UMass' back Mike Bull and an aggressive set of forwards. The forwards are still here and a new set of backs are beginning to jell, but Beacon Hill will be ready.

Sports Notices

NO PARKING - All parking of vehicles for Intramural Contests should be located in Lot 5. Vehicles parked on the road adjacent to the Intramural Fields will be ticketed starting tonight. We ask your cooperation so that we may provide maximum safety.

****

ENTRY DATES - Intramural entries are due today for Women's Badminton Singles and Turkey Trot. All Handball, and Cross Country, entries will be accepted up until 9 p.m. at the Intramural Office.

Metawampe 500 entries are due on Thursday, October 7th; and Paddleball entries are due on Wednesday October 6th.

****

VARSITY M - The UMass Redman Quarterback luncheon will be held at the Newman Center today at 12:15 p.m. Coach Dick MacPherson and members of this coaching staff and team will present films and commentary on last Saturday's Dartmouth game and a scouting report on Boston University who the Redmen play on the ninth of October. There will also be a door prize, a raffle of two choice B.U. seat and excellent food. Everyone is invited; price is $1.50 or take advantage of the reduced rate season tickets.

Tonight's Intramurals

TUG-OF-WAR

PIT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:30	TC VS. PMD
2		LCA VS. APO
1	6:45	PSD VS. SAE
1	7:00	BKP VS. SPE
2		TEP VS. PLP
1	7:15	LIONS VS. SEAGRAMS
2		SENATORS VS. SMASHERS
1	7:30	TERRORS VS. HEADS
2		TROJANS VS. LEMONS
1	7:45	HOOVERS VS. REDWOODS
2		MAROONS VS. PIPERS

On Pn Page 12:
Soccer MacPherson, Donlin

Get Your Footballs From A. J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
45 South Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Booters Bombard B.C., 3-0

By STEVE FERBER

Had last year's soccer match against Boston College been videotaped, one would have sworn that that was what they saw yesterday afternoon, as the UMass booters kicked their way to a 3-0 win in their home opener.

Chalking up shutout number two was John Kiah, who had what is likely to be his easiest day of the season. In 88 minutes only three shots were taken at the UMass goalkeepers, and coincidentally, last year's B.C. soccer team also managed that incredibly low total of three shots on goal.

On the offensive side UMass let go 25 shots, compared to 16 one year ago, and again like last year scored three times, once in each of the first three quarters.

Jeff Hague began the scoring mid-way into the first period. Mike Nugent had the ball near mid-field and sent it down near the right side of the goal. Amidst a bit of confusion, Lindo Alves tapped the ball over to Hague who slammed it home, giving the Redmen the only goal they really needed.

From that point on the game was rather ridiculous, not really a question of who would win, but of how many goals would UMass score against the visitors. To say that UMass dominated the action would be an understatement as B.C. spent most of their time simply kicking the ball away from their goal, not even setting up any passes or plays.

As the statistics ran up on the Redman side of the slate, so did the missed goal opportunities. Augie Calheno's corner kick came the closest of all, as he sent one of 11 corner kicks towards the far side. Deflecting off the inside of the far post, Calheno was denied as the ball was immediately fallen upon by the Eagles goalkeeper. Numerous chances followed, but it was not until the 20 minute mark of quarter number two that the Redmen scored again.

It was the same combo, Alves to Hague, only this time it was one of those picture plays that the fans, and the players for that matter, really get a kick out of. Calheno had the ball near mid-field and sent a pass up on the right side of Alves who had the ball ahead of the field. Slowing down so as to set up the play, Alves spotted Hague speeding down into the center of the penalty box, and passing to perfection, fed the ball onto Hague's foot who banged it away into the upper left hand corner. The goalie had absolutely no chance at all, and it was 2-0.

THE START OF SOMETHING GOOD-Mike Nugent evades the B.C. defense on route to first UMass goal by Jeff Hague. Nugent fed Lindo Alves who fed Hague for the goal. (MDC Photo by Ed Mangiaratti.)

Half number two didn't differ much at all, as UMass kept forcing the Eagles to play defense and defense and more defense. As the 16-2 halftime margin of shots on goal got wider and wider, Alves ended the days' scoring, with his third point, and second goal of the year. It came off of a penalty kick which resulted from an Eagles infraction after Calheno had booted his eighth corner kick of the afternoon. Similar to Hague's second score, Alves put it in the upper left corner, thus giving UMass its highest goal production to date.

There wasn't much a coach wouldn't be happy about after a performance like this, and indeed Coach Berryman had good words for all. Berryman was especially pleased by the way that Alves and Hague were working together, and the work that his halfbacks were doing in controlling the ball.

In support of Kiah, Berryman cited the play of Dick McCarron, who was doing just about everything right. "Everytime he got near the ball he was doing a great job. He played really well," noted the coach.

Where Do Gridders Go From Here?

By DAN KAMAL

The Dartmouth game is over. The bad memories (bad for UMass fans, that is) however will linger.

The Redmen are an injury-plagued team as was very evident in the game Saturday. In fact, the injury situation was magnified a thousand times when tackle Bob Donlin was forced out of action for the rest of the season. So, with the prospect of playing some fine football teams the rest of the way coupled with the crushing defeat Saturday, where does the team go from here?

According to Head Coach Dick MacPherson, "We're going to have to play them as they come. For one thing Dartmouth was better than anyone thought they would be; for another thing, we are not as bad as we looked. I think we went into shock, but we'll come out of it; I think we'll be all right.

"I was disappointed in every aspect of our game Saturday, but we've got to recognize that we won't find many teams on our schedule better than Dartmouth."

To make things even worse as far as injuries go, sophomore running back Tom McMahon was lost to the team for the rest of the season when he suffered a compound fracture of a bone in his leg in yesterday's practice session. This depletes even further the already paper-thin backfield corps. It leaves the Redmen with exactly two healthy runners, Timmy Berra and Rick Cronin.

On the subject of his backfield, MacPherson had this to say, "We haven't been able to put one backfield together on the football field yet. We have some fine breakaway threats in Steve Schubert, Paul Metallo, and Angie DiNardo when they're healthy, but they haven't been healthy. That's why we need the week off. The players are down mentally and physically--Dartmouth was a shock to us. But with the week off we might be at our best physically, discounting permanent injuries, for the Boston University game. Billy DeFlavio's injury (he suffered an ankle injury against Dartmouth) Dartmouth was a shock to us. But with the week off we might be at our best physically, discounting permanent injuries, for the Boston University game. Billy DeFlavio's injury (he suffered an ankle injury against Dartmouth) should not be a nagging one."

The lack of potent running game has naturally hurt the UMass passing attack, but MacPherson is confident that with a healthy backfield and with a more experienced Piel Pennington, the air game will come around. "The lack of a running game has hurt; also, Pennington is showing the effects of not playing football for two years. He's only a sophomore and you're going to get inconsistency from a sophomore, but we're still very high on him."

As for Donlin's replacement on the offensive line, the first-year coach said, "We have three good guards in Ron Marino, Dick Etna and Clarence Brooks, and we'll move one of them to Donlin's spot. The injury to Bob will definitely hurt, and this is the best adjustment we can make right now.

There would appear to be an obvious disparity between the football programs of the teams that played on Alumni Field a few days ago. Will the trend continue? Can a football program like the one at UMass ever expect to fare consistently well against an Ivy League program? According to MacPherson the best way to find the answer to that question is to wait. "We're going to try real hard to get the top athletes in Massachusetts to attend their state school. This is the basis we work on; we play Dartmouth again in three years and Harvard in the next two years--let us find out then just where our program is going."

Does this mean that Coach MacPherson is looking past this year? Not a chance. "We're playing for this year. We're definitely not giving up on these youngsters. There's a lot of character on this football team and they're going to bounce back; they want to win. In fact, they wanted to win them all, and it's going to take a couple of days for them to get over this loss.

"I'm not down on the team; I am discouraged, but I think we're going to be all right."

"It Felt Like I Got Shot"

By EARLE BARROLL

UMass punter Jack O'Neil drove his third punt of the first quarter in Saturday's game with Dartmouth towards the Indian's punt return tandem waiting near the goal line.

As in the previous two punts Bob Donlin was the first UMass player down the field on coverage. As the play turned up field all eyes were on Tim Copper who returned the ball 30 yards through the maze of would be Redman tacklers.

But back at the five yard line Donlin was left behind, writhering in pain, his season over, his professional career possibly shot to pieces.

Yesterday at the Infirmary Donlin recalled that particular play; "I was the first one down the field and went to make a break to the outside as I usually do. I went to plant my foot to make the cut and it felt like I got shot.

"I knew it was all over when I got hit. I tryed to drag myself off the field as I'm not one to stay there and wait to be taken off while the fans applaud. But when I tried to get up I couldn't make it and I didn't really know how bad the injury was until I got to the bench and almost fainted."

The big tackle was rushed to Cooley Dickinson Hospital where he was operated on for over an hour. Donlin diagnosed the injury, "the doctor took the cartilage out of my knee and removed some tendons which were pulled in two different places."

On that final play of his football career at UMass Donlin said of the shot he took, "I was clipped and a head or shoulder hit me under the knee and ripped the top of the knee apart."

In looking back at Saturday's game Donlin regressed, "When I was still in there I thought we had a chance. But after Ron Marino and myself got injured everyone was playing out of position on the offensive line and this definitely hurt the offense."

Donlin was noticeably down about his future, "I haven't had much of a chance to think about the future. I'm definitely done for the season, but I hope to do something for the team like scouting."

This was to be a big season for the All-East offensive tackle, "This was my last year-and I wanted it to be my best. I worked hard all summer and felt I was right on schedule until I got injured."

Right now Donlin's main concern is with his school work, I'm scheduled to graduate this year and I hope I can get back on my feet soon to make the work up."

Donlin has not given up all hope at a shot at the pros. The doctor said that his leg would have 90% stability back if everything turns out OK and all that remains is if Donlin can get back into shape.

WHAT'S TO SMILE ABOUT?-UMass offensive tackle Bob Donlin doesn't seem to be in too much pain under the care of his trusty nurse, Sue Mahoney. The big tackle sustained a knee injury in Saturday's game vs. Dartmouth which has cut his outstanding grid career short. He said of football, "It's not a game for boys, you got to take the pains when you get them." (MDC photo by Gib Fullerton.)

More Sports-P. 11

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather
More of the same, plus rain.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 17 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1971

Dug Dirt Will Return

Ditch To House Steam Pipes

The Big Ditch is raising dust, and questions.

The Ditch runs by Sylvan Residence Halls these days and its "dust" has crossed the road to a clearing in the orchard area.

Dirt excavated for the Big Ditch has been temporarily stored in the two-three-acre clearing on the south side of Eastman Lane. Some people seeing the dirt-piled clearing have been concerned that the clearing would become a parking lot. Not so, according to the University's engineering office.

UMass engineers explain the situation this way: The excavated dirt will be used to refill The Big Ditch and to raise a portion of Eastman Lane by WOPE from four to five feet.

Since the contractor needed a temporary storage area for the dirt, he prepared the clearing. To prepare his storage site, he pushed aside the top soil in the clearing, so that when the excavated dirt is returned to the Ditch, the topsoil can be respread on the clearing and the area will be reseeded.

Work specifications for The Big Ditch require the contractor to restore the area to its original condition.

The Big Ditch will be in some part of campus or another for the next 18 to 24 months. In the fall of 1973 a new boiler plant will begin work at Tillson Farm in the Northeast Corner of campus. From that new plant steam will flow through the pipes being installed in The Big Ditch and will be distributed throughout campus. One section of the Ditch will be dug and completed at a time.

Steam generated on campus provides heat throughout campus. It also supplies air-conditioning systems and supplementary electric power to keep utility costs down. The steam also operates special equipment for laboratories, dining commons, and the infirmary.

DIGGING IT UP—Sylvan area dorms get the bite (above) as the big ditch works its way through campus. Steam pipes will be laid in the trench. (right and lower right) After the pipes are placed, top soil will be put back over it all. (MDC Photos by Carl Nash)

On The Inside:

- Senate Meets See Page Three
- Nixon-Gromyko Meet, Too See Page Four

DO YOU GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR?—The packaging is different, but if you buy it in the Hatch, you get the small size at the same price you would pay for the large size at retail stores in the area. (MDC Photo by Gilbert Fullerton)

Snacks Cost More On Campus Than Off

By WILLIAM MANBURG

Beware of the desert snacks with no price on the wrapper. Either you will be getting less product for equal money, or you'll pay more for the same product revealed an MDC spot check.

Students are being sold undersized Hostess snacks at inflated prices and identical Drakes snacks are being sold for different prices around campus by University Food Services.

If you buy a package of Hostess Twinkies at any of the local supermarkets you pay 15¢ for 3 ozs. of product. (see picture) But if you purchase a package of Twinkies in the Hatch or Coffee Shop for 15¢ you get only 2-3/4 ozs. in return.

When you pay 15¢ for a package of Hostess chocolate or orange cupcakes off campus you get a 3-1/2 oz. package. For the same 15¢ price in the Hatch or Coffee Shop you get only 2 oz. of cupcake. Not only that but you don't get that squiggly white line down the center, either. Identical Drakes snacks are being sold for different prices.

The Drake's Devil Dog (2-1/4 ozs.) sells for 10¢ at Munchy's in Worcester Dining Commons and 15¢ in the Campus Center restaurants. The Drake coffee cake (2-1/4 ozs.) and oatmeal cookies that cost 12¢ at Munchy's, cost 15¢ in the Campus Center and the Yankee Doodle (3 ozs.) is 13¢ at Munchy's, 15¢ at the Campus Center.

Student Affairs Reorganization Brings Power Decentralization

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

"Decentralization of power and money among the five residential areas has been one of the results of the reorganization of the Office of Student Affairs," stated Michael West, the Assistant Dean of Students.

This plan of decentralization has long been in the minds of the administration. This particular plan of decentralization has also been practiced on a limited use, and has shown successful results. The Administration feels that the Area Directors and students can work together to form and exercise their own administrative policies.

West has occupied a newly formed position in the Office of Student Affairs. He will serve his new post as coordinator of all five residential areas. His main duty will embrace the "forcing of decisions out of Whitmore and into the residence halls." West will also be responsible for keeping Dr. Bromery, Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs up to date with the functioning of the residence halls.

West touched on one of the major problems facing the resident areas and the town of Amherst-the expanding student population at the University. The University's previous policy was to accept an extra increase of 1500 students over the previous year. West commented that the number has now been reduced to 860 in order to check the problems that have accompanied the rapid growth of the UMass community.

One of these problems associated with the unchecked growth of the University has been the tripling of students which has always produced much dissatisfaction in the student body. West was not able to promise that there would be no triples in the future, but felt confident that it would not be a factor for the next two years.

Two of the biggest complaints heard at West's office are concerned with the high cost of student's personal environment, for instance, living in a dorm. There is also the common complaint of the high cost of living in a residence hall. West believes that will be impossible to keep the student's expenses down in the residence halls as far as room fees are concerned. He is confident that the food services are making a concerted effort to keep the student's expenses in this area at the present plateau.

West also summed up his thoughts about the campus center. "My feeling is that if you built a building that the students pay for, then it should be the student's building."

He also feels that he has been in many good restaurants that have been geared to the student, and that there is no reason why the Top of the Campus restaurant can't satisfy the same set of circumstances.

West termed the Southwest residential area as being "crowded, cement and no place to let off steam." He felt that the complex should never have been built. He further reiterated saying that Dr. John Hunt, master of Southwest, has the ability to turn Southwest into a success.

UNMOVED--Although this fence has been temporarily removed, it will not be relocated. (MDC photo by Carl Nash)

Library Fence Will Remain

By CHRISTINE TESSIER

Contrary to a current rumor, the fence bordering the new library construction site, on the Old Chapel side, will not be moved.

The rumor held that the fence was to be moved five feet, taking more of the almost rare lawn on the UMass campus.

E.J. Ryan, Head of the Project engineering, was contacted in reference to this.

He said, "To my knowledge, the contractor had not requested us to move the fence."

He indicated that there may be some grading work which may necessitate the temporary removal (not relocation) of the fence.

Draft Call-Up Comes Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The three month draft holiday longest since 1948, will end Thursday with a call-up of fewer than 15,000 men for the remainder of the year, the Defense Department said Wednesday.

Pentagon spokesman said there is no firm figure on last-quarter calls but said they might run as low as 12,000.

Selective service authorities have said they anticipate the first men inducted will come from among a pool of college and junior college graduates and dropouts whose draft deferments expired in June.

MDC Classified Ads Get The Message Accross

MDC Classifieds Pay

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

ONCE AGAIN !!

THE CHEQUERS

PRESENTS

THE DYNAMIC

COLORADO ODYSEY

TONIGHT

(9:30 - 12:30) Thursday

Senate Rejects Area Government Reps

By DONALD BISHOP

In it's major business consideration last night, the Student Senate refused to approve a motion to allow for the election of "one senator per area government, elected by the respective area government."

In other significant business concluded, the Senate froze certain funds of the Greenough Snack Bar. They also passed an amendment to the Student Government Association. Constitution, which makes mandatory the prior public announcement and eventual approval by the SGA, of any future tax or fee increase. Finally the Student Senate refused to consider a bill which would urge the Chancellor and Board of Trustees to approve the building of a "convocation center."

Bud Demers, of RSO, testified at closed executive session.

At one point, the Senate went into closed Executive session to discuss an undisclosed topic.

The motion for the election of a senator from each of the University's five area governments was introduced by Senator Bruce Bernstein. He and other senators urged the bill's adoption, because as Bernstein put it, "this move will strengthen the area governments and it will open up lines of communication between them and the Senate."

Opposition to the bill came from various senators who felt that this move would give Senate representation to a "vested interest" (the area governments), and not to the student body as a whole. Senate Vice President Larry Ladd pointed out that in giving each area government one Senate representative, there would be a great disproportion in the number of students each one would represent.

In the final vote the majority of senators supported the opposition opinion, and this bill was defeated.

The Greenough Snack Bar issue centered on the proposed freezing of $500 in Snack Bar funds. The freeze came at the request of Campus Center Director Gerald Scanlon.

This R.S.O. held money, according to Scanlon, is being sought after by two different groups. Neither of these groups has yet been given control of the Snack Bar operation. They voted to freeze the funds until the matter has been resolved, but they added the stipulation that this money can only be spent on the Snack Bar.

The amendment to the S.G.A. Constitution makes it necessary for there to be prior public announcement of any future fee or tax increase. It also requires that approval for these increases be granted by the Student Government Association. This motion was introduced by Student Senate President Lee Sandwen. According to Sandwen this measure was a reaction to last May's room and board increases which were not announced or approved by the SGA.

The bill calling the urging of the creation of a "convocation center" was "removed from consideration" due to the feeling of the Senate that funds for this structure would be likely to come from student's pockets and not from the State Legislature.

As the Collegian went to press the Senate was debating the possibility of granting funds to the Day Care Center from the Commuter Assembly budget, which is presently frozen.

Senate Treasurer Rich Verucchi raises point during last night's Senate meeting.

Town Takeover Called Unlikely

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This article has been printed so that students can note the nationwide attention focused on the voter situation in Amherst.)

AMHERST, MASS. (AP)-The newly enfranchised student voters of Amherst have the potential, but not the likelihood, of controlling town elections and taking over local government.

There are approximately 20,000 undergraduates at the UMass campus here, and about 2,000 at Amherst and Hampshire colleges.

As first semester got underway, a coalition of five political groups united to form the "Amherst Registration Drive," aimed at getting students to register to vote, either in Amherst, or their home towns.

Comprised of the Young Republicans, the Young Democrats, the Anti-War Fund, the Committee for McGovern for President and the People's Community Union, the coalition has a goal of registering 5,000 students this fall at the rate of 100 a day.

There are slightly more than 6,000 registered voters in the town.

"We don't want to give the Amherst community any feeling that we want to take over the town," said drive coordinator John Stevens of UMass.

As of the end of September, the town had nothing to worry about, with students registering at the rate of six a day.

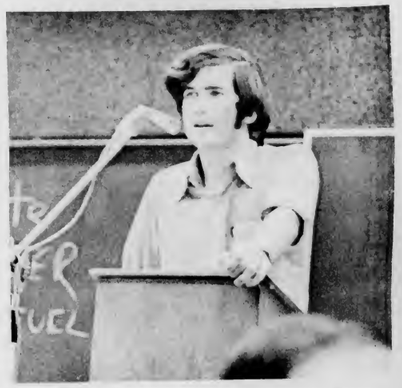
"They've not turned out in the great numbers we anticipated," said Amherst Town Clerk Estelle Matusko.

"We've heard that carloads and busloads of them intend to register," she said but reported that only about 150 students have done so, and half of them live with their families in Amherst.

For out-of-towners, Mrs. Matusko said, "We have post cards we send to their own town clerks, giving the date they registered here, and we receive like post cards in return" to prevent double registration.

To prove eligibility, students must present evidence they are 18, American citizens, and have lived in Amherst for at least six months. Mrs. Matusko said acceptable proof would include a letter from a college dean, registrar or housing office, or rent receipts.

She predicted a total of 2,000 to 3,000 students would register this year, and become eligible to vote in the town's next election, Feb. 22, 1972.



Students hope to get a registration table set up on the UMass campus. "Unless we can show them that they don't have facilities enough to handle student voter registration at town hall," said drive organizer Larry Ladd, "they don't see any reason to bring a table on campus."

There is a three-quarters of a mile distance between the campus and town hall.

"I see the student vote as a big pie with every political group around trying to get as big a slice of it as they can," said Ladd. "But, right now we're not worrying about that. We're just trying to get the kids registered."

UMass English professor John Clayton said, "We don't want to create an issue of townspeople versus the students."

No major political candidates have appeared on area campuses this fall. Democratic presidential candidate George S. McGovern of South Dakota recently cancelled scheduled Western Massachusetts visit to tour Vietnam.

Vice President H. John Hogan presided at last night's Student Senate meeting. In the course of the night the senate passed an amendment to the constitution, froze Greenough's Snack Bar Funds, and rejected a convocation center support motion. (All MDC Senate picture photos by Barbara Brecher)

Women May Lose Tavern Rights

Gov. Sargent recommended to the Legislature yesterday that the doors of taverns remain closed to women for another 16 months.

He sent back to the Legislature for amendment a bill that would keep women permanently out of taverns, recommending that the exclusion continue only until Jan. 1, 1973.

Massachusetts liquor laws have since 1935 barred admission of women from taverns, but women gained admission legally last week when a new law barring discrimination on the basis of sex in public accommodations took effect.

The bill Sargent sent back to the Legislature yesterday would create a specific exception to that law. It was filed in midsummer when tavern owners discovered the potential effect of the new anti-discrimination act on their business. They claimed that taverns would lose many of their customers unless they remained a male refuge.

EARLIER this year, the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission unsuccessfully sought repeal of the tavern law on the grounds it was unconstitutional.

Sargent, in his message to the Legislature yesterday, said the constitutionality issue "is at present unresolved."

He recommended that taverns be allowed to close their doors to women again until a court test has resolved the issue and to "minimize disruption of existing policy with respect to admitting women as customers in taverns."

Sargent, whose staff consulted with Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn on the issue, said the attorney general advised: "If an exemption is to be made, there must be some basis in fact to show that the exemption is different in a material way from the areas which are regulated."

"In the present bill, that means there must be a basis in fact to show that taverns are different from all other places of public accommodations, with respect to discrimination based on sex."

Until the Legislature acts on Sargent's recommendations and the newest bill comes back to his desk for signature, however, the new status quo remains—women may legally patronize taverns.

PRICES ARE RIGHT

Footwear for Men & Women

Boots
Shoes
Mocs
Sneakers
Hikers
Hikers
Work Shoes
etc.
etc.
etc.

THE SHOE-BIN "In the Alley"

A 24 Hr. Sale - Amherst Audio - Fri. 10/1

In The Nation And The World

Administration Wins On Weapon Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate shot down Wednesday an effort to ground the Navy's F14 fighter plane and the Safeguard Missile System.

It also agreed to a vote Thursday on the latest effort to force a deadline for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

The votes on the F14 and Safeguard, latest in a string of victories for the Nixon administration on major weapons proposals, appeared to insure approval without major reduction of the $21-billion military procurement bill. Final action is likely next week.

First, by a vote of 61 to 28, the Senate shot down a move by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to cut $801.6 million for procurement of 48 of the carrier-based F14 planes.

Then, by a 64-21 margin, it rejected an amendment by Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, to cut $639 million from the bill and bar funds for deployment, construction and procurement of the antiballistic missile ABM.

Several long time arms-control advocates abandoned their opposition to the Safeguard and supported the Nixon administration's position that it is needed as a bargaining chip in Strategic Arms Limitation talks with the Soviet Union.

In arguing for his amendment, Proxmire said that with some slight modification the present F4 would outperform the F14.

The defeat of the amendment came after Sen. John C Stennis, D-Miss., read the Senate a letter from Rep. F Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of the House armed Services Committee, saying "I now have no reservations concerning this program and urge its approval by Congress."

Hebert had sponsored a House amendment to hold up funds pending completion of a Pentagon examination of the program but told the Senate further study has convinced Defense Department officials the work should proceed.

Proxmire said the F14 is "the most expensive fighter plane ever built" and ultimately will cost $15 billion. He called it an "exercise in gold-plated unilateral disarmament" because the program would only produce 300 planes to replace the 1,500 current Navy fighters.

Sen Howard Cannon, D-Nev., rejected Proximire's contentions and said Navy studies indicate the F14 "will offer a dramatic improvement in fighter capability over the current F4 aircraft."

The Senate agreed to vote Thursday on a plan by Majority leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., to force total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in six months provided all American prisoners are freed.

The Nixon administration reportedly wanted the vote delayed until after Sunday's presidential election in South Vietnam but Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania told reporters "the administration is doing nothing whatever to seek a postponement of the vote."

Witness Picks My Lai Officer

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)-A key prosecution witness was not prompted before he identified Col. Oran K. Henderson as the officer to whom he gave an eyewitness account of atrocities at my Lai, a former Army lawyer testified Wednesday.

Albert W. Dillard told an out-of-court hearing on Henderson's My Lai cover-up trial that he was careful about the way he interviewed the witness, former Spec. 4 Lawrence M. Colburn

Dillard, now in private practice in Laddonia, Mo., said that when he showed Colburn a series of photos, some of which pictured Henderson, he kept names on the photos concealed and never suggested which ones showed Henderson.

It was not until Colburn saw Henderson in person several days later in October 1970, that he identified the defendant as the officer he talked to in Vietnam, Dillard testified.

Colburn, a helicopter door gunner on the My Lai operation, is considered an important witness by both the prosecution and defense with regard to one of two charges that Henderson lied to a Pentagon inquiry into the massacre.

Colburn, of Mount Vernon, Wash., is the only one of three men to positively identify Henderson as the officer they reported to about My Lai on March 18, 1969, two days after the killings of Vietnamese civilians.

The defense is trying to bar Colburn's appearance before the jury on the grounds that his identification of Henderson is tainted because the government improperly showed him photographs of the defendant.

Dillard said Colburn first identified Henderson when he saw the 51-year-old colonel at a deposition-taking session at Ft. Lewis, Wash., last October.

Henderson is accused of lying when he told the Pentagon inquiry Feb. 17, 1970, that he was positive he never talked about My Lai with either Colburn or a helicopter pilot, Capt. Jerry R. Culverhouse.

In earlier testimony before the seven-man jury, neither Culverhouse nor the third man, Capt. Hugh C. Thompson, Jr., identified Henderson as the recipient of their reports on My Lai.

Henerson, a much-decorated combat veteran, also is accused of willfully failing to properly investigate atrocity reports and of not informing superiors about actual or suspected war crimes.

Tension-Ease Seen As Nixon-Gromyko Meet

WASHINGTON (AP)-Amid talk of new East-West negotiations, President Nixon met Wednesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on disarmament and other major issues concerning the two superpowers.

Shortly before the White House session, Nixon in a separate event bestowed a medal on NATO's retiring secretary-general with praise for the Western alliance as "an instrument for peace as well as an instrument for freedom."

The NATO secretary-general, Manlio Brosio, in turn saw the Western nations "as near as we have ever been" to fundamental negotiations with Communist East Europe.

Gromyko too sounded a let's-ease-tensions theme in his policy speech to the United Nations Tuesday, portraying the time ripe for a world disarmament talks and for a European security conference.

The Washington meeting was Nixon's first with the high Soviet envoy since Gromyko was at the United Nations a year ago-and Washington is particularly interested in what practical terms the Kremlin may have in mind on disarmament negotiations.

Nixon wants more progress at the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks SALT. SALT negotiators recessed at Helsinski last week still some distance apart on proposals to curb antiballistic missiles ABMs and offensive missiles.

On the European security question, the United States wanted more specifics on Moscow's avowed interest in mutual force cuts in Europe. The Soviets have been vague so far on how negotiations to accomplish this might be carried out.

No Clues Yet In China Mystery

HONG KONG (AP)-Canton television failed to deliver its promised "important news program" Wednesday, disappointing Western observers who hoped to get a clue to recent unusual events in Red China.

Peking's announcement a week agothat the National Day parade this Friday had been canceled stirred speculation that something was happening inside China.

Canton television had announced the special news program would deal with "circumstances of the Oct. 1 National Day program." Instead it reeled off three routine films from Peking, including one showing Premier Chou En-Lai watching an Albanian gymnastics exhibition.

The only explanation Western specialists on China in Hong Kong could give was that for some unexplained reason the program was a fill-in for the one Canton had announced.

There was nothing in Peking's broadcasts to indicate anything was amiss. Radio Peking filled the airwaves with reports of preparations for National Day.

Peking broadcasts made no mention of the cancellation of the parade and the fireworks, which Chinese officials said were called off to save money.

Japanese press reports from Peking said, however, that Chinese authorities had confirmed again that the parade was canceled.

Japan's Kyoko news service in a dispatch from Peking noted that the mystery remains as to why the Chinese leaders canceled the parade after workers and peasants had been engaged for two weeks in parade rehearsals.

The cancellation led to speculation that Mao was ill or dying, but Chinese officials insisted he was in excellent health.

Two other recent events also puzzled Western specialists. One was the grounding of all planes in China for several days this month.

The other was an order canceling all army leaves and furloughs, intercepted in Tokyo by Japanese government monitors of interior Chinese radio broadcasts.

This led to much theorizing, including a possible power struggle in Peking, and trouble on China's long border with the Soviet Union.

News In Brief

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—A bomb wrecked a crowded Belfast bar Wednesday night, killing two persons and wounding 25, as terrorists spurned appeals for peace issued by the prime ministers of Britain, Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic.

Spokesmen for the outlawed Irish Republican Army vowed Wednesday to continue the fighting which has blazed in the British province for the past two years.

• • •

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon, decrying what he called "growing and disturbing isolationism in our country," told international finance leaders Wednesday the administration will continue to press for a strong world economic role.

Nixon's statement followed a prediction by the head of West Germany's federal bank that the United States would devalue the dollar in terms of gold if international agreement is reached on an upward revaluation of other major currencies.

• • •

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Cost of Living Council Wednesday allowed what it said were the first exemptions to the wage-price freeze by allowing new government-funded group-insurance benefit programs to go into effect in Florida, Texas and Missouri.

• • •

TAY NINH, Vietnam (AP)—Reinforced government troops launched a counteroffensive Wednesday against parts of two North Vietnamese divisions along the South Vietnamese-Cambodian border, and the United States hurled its air might into the drive.

The U.S. Command moved about 1,500 American troops and a squadron of armored vehicles from rear bases to the front.

• • •

SAIGON (AP)—President Nguyen Van Thieu surprised supporters and foes alike by ordering police to "shoot to kill" antigovernment demonstrators who throw fire bombs or endanger lives by other means.

Thieu's unexpected crackdown came as new disturbances flared in Da Nang, the nation's second largest city.

For
Diamonds - at moderate prices
Visit
BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
31 South Pleasant St. "Everyone's Favorite Jeweler..." Amherst

PROGRAM COUNCIL
Presents
"The Madwoman of Chaillot"
Thursday, September 30
S.U. Ballroom 50¢

Promoters Exploit POW Issues

WASHINGTON (AP)-The young woman seemed to be fighting back tears as she talked on the telephone about the prisoners of war in Vietnam.

"Well, the publishing charge runs a total of $5, and God knows we need the help if we're ever going to get our men out of there," she said.

That appeal broght in thousands of dollars from residents of Orange County, Calif., who thought they might help the POWs by placing their names, for $5 each, in an obscure tabloid called Veterans News.

The Orange County district attorney's office closed the operation by court injunction this summer, charging it with "false, fraudulent, deceptive, or misleading" representations, and found a convicted armed robber in charge.

The incident is just one of an increasing number where self-promoters have capitalized on public sympathy for the plight of the POWs or on the tendency for families of prisoners or men missing in action to grasp at any hope.

In recent months:

—A California promoter now in jail on a bad-check conviction gained the cooperation of POW-MIA family groups in California and Arizona for fund-raising activities which left our organization holding the financial bag.

—A Texas promoter lured an Atlanta POW group into grandiose plans for a benefit show, then abruptly departed town, leaving a string of unpaid bills behind him.

—A man who claims he's a lawyer and lists addressed in Idaho and Amsterdam has approached POW family groups in Miami, Norfolk, Va., and Phoenix, asking $25,000 to finance negotiations with Buddhist monks to care for prisoners in North Vietnamese camps. So far as is known, he hasn't collected a dime on his pitch.

—Four men and a woman hired teenagers to solicit on street corners in Jackson, Miss., for the POW cause, and got out of town a stop ahead of the police after three days of collections.

As the petition-signing and letter-writing for the POWs and MIAs has mounted nationwide this year, so has the fund-raising.

The State Department privately takes a dim view of most of the fund-raising activities. Officials question what could be done with the money that would benefit imprisoned or missing men. The exception is the National League of Families of Prisoners and Missing, to which the government lends its tacit support as representing POW and MIA relatives.

Another group which has had some success is the Committee of Liaison, headed by Cora Weiss, in New York. Mrs. Weiss says the committee has spent $10,000 over the past 18 months. Most of the money, she said, has come from small, unsolicited donations.

Veterans News opened its Orange County operation in May. Its leader, Jack K. Armstrong, served time in jail during 1965 after pleading guilty to armed robbery. His record also lists a bad-conduct discharge from the Marines and court-martial convictions for unauthorized absence and theft of a .45 caliber pistol.

A pool of 70 telephone girls solicited funds for Veterans News and a team of runners picked up donations, said James J. Shaw, investigator for the district attorney.

The girls, each of whom used the name Kathy Johnson, told people: "What we're doing is printing a special edition of the Veterans News for the POWs. We're sending copies to every congressman, senator, as well as to President Nixon, the pope and world leaders everywhere.

"The reason I called was to find out if we could print your name in a special edition for the POWs and also if we might be able to ask you to help us out on the printing costs."

After the district attorney's office filed its complaint in Superior Court, Veterans News agreed July 21 to quit the solicitation and to pay $1,500 to two recognized POW-MIA organizations.

The activities of promoter Al Edwards also centered partly in Orange County. Mrs. Stephen Hanson, wife of a missing Marine pilot and board member of POW-MIA International Inc., of Tustin, Calif., said Edwards came into touch with her group last February through aiding a restaurateur who sponsored a fund-raising dinner for the organization.

"Then he came in and said he wanted to help us," said Mrs. Hanson. "After the successful dinner, we had no reason to doubt him. He was going to initiate some fund-raising projects."

"He was going to revamp the organization and go national. We were going to raise millions, and he would receive 10 per cent of the proceeds from the projects he started.

"But he began to claim 10 per cent of other projects we had already started," she continued. "The volunteers and families were upset."

About this time, the neighbor of the POW wife saw Edwards by coincidence and recognized him under a different name.

A police check showed Edwards was wanted on charges of passing bad checks. With the collaboration of POW-MIA International, Edwards was arrested in mid-April. "Except for the time, worry and trouble, we didn't lose vast sums of money," said Mrs. Hanson.

Soon after, free pending a court appearance, Edwards showed up at the Phoenix Area Families of POWs, and persuaded that organization to sign a contract for a benefit performance. The POW organization lost $750 for renting a colliseum and also used its $1,382 share of the $6,168 gross to pay other bills.

Drug Program Aims To Shut Asian Flow

WASHINGTON (AP)-The United States is undertaking a new international drug-control program aimed at shutting off the flow of heroin to the United States from Asia before it assumes serious proportions.

The plan involves several U.S. agencies under State Department guidance and is based on the assumption that the expected drastic reduction in the opium-poppy crops of Turkey and other East Mediterranean areas will force drug dealers to seek alternate sources for their product, particularly in Southeast Asia.

The new program is under the working direction of Philip Vandivier, a 25-year State Department veteran and Asian specialist who was given the assignment early last month as part of the Nixon administration's stated goal of eliminating drug traffic into the United States.

Vandivier returned last week from nearly a month's tour of Asia to "find out exactly what the problems are and that resources are available from both the United States and other governments."

His organization still is formulating its role and working on a system, but Vandivier said he did learn the Asian problem requires an approach different from that taken in Turkey.

The basic theme of the Turkey program is the elimination of the opium poppy, a major cash crop for farmers there. The United States has promised Turkey financial and advisory aid to compensate for any economic loss resulting from eliminating poppy growing.

But in Asia the situation is more complicated, Vandivier said. In Burma, for instance the problem involves growing poppies, in Thailand and Laos it is one of traffic, in Hong Kong production and shipping.

Differing solutions are thus required, including use of helicopters to provide surveillance of growing regions in out-of-the-way areas.

Nixon Admin Proposes To Pay For Cyclamate Loss

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Nixon administration proposed Wednesday to pay out-of-pocket losses to companies hurt by the sudden 1969 ban on the artificial sweetener, cyclamates.

Officials endorsed legislation to permit the companies to file suit before the U.S. Court of Claims and to give the court authority to set the amount of compensation.

"We believe that all provable out-of-pocket losses should be reimbursed, not lost profits," William N. Letson, general counsel of the Commerce Department, testified before a House Judiciary subcommittee.

The food-and-drink industry has estimated it suffered losses of about $120 million because of the government ban on the sweetener, which had been judged safe for 18 years prior to 1969.

The ban followed a report to the Food and Drug Administration by Abbott laboratories that a two-year study showed that rats fed with cyclamates had developed cancer of the bladder.

Rep. Charles S. Gubser, R-Calif., a sponsor of the reimbursement legislation, said the FDA proposed a phased withdrawal from the market of products containing cyclamates, but the public reaction was to stop buying them at once.

THE IMPORT SHOP
Dresses from India
Wall Furnishing's
Pipes and Incense
Wall Hangings and Bedspreads
64 Green St. Northampton

— SUNGLASSES
Bausch & Lomb
American Optical
Sunvogues
Ray-Ban
Always Available at
don call
Amherst's First Optician
56 Main St. Tel. 253-7002 Amherst

THE PROBLEM:
Today's Men Need to Extend Their Individuality
THE SOLUTION:
Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity
9 Chestnut St.
9 - 11 p.m.
Call 50070 for rides
Thurs. Sept. 30
Open Smoker

WHAT'S HAPPENING?

The Fine Arts Council is sponsoring more than fifty great events!
Among artists visiting UMass. this year. . . . .

DANCE
Murray Louis Dance Co.
Rod Rodgers Dance Co.
Alvin Ailey Co.

THEATRE
Andre Gregory's Manhattan Project "Alice in Wonderland"
Charles Ludlam's Ridiculous Theatrical Company Presenting "The Grand Tarot" "Eunuchs of The Forbidden City" and "Bluebeard" Siobhan McKenna in "Here Are Ladies"

MUSIC
Swingle Singers
Preservation Hall Jazz Band of New Orleans
Lorin Hollander
John Williams
Kuentz Chamber Orch. of Paris
St. Louis Symphony
Boston Symphony
Collage
Berlin Philharmonic Octet
Tokyo String Quartet
Juilliard Quartet
Amadeus Quartet
David Amram
etc. etc.

Have you received your fine arts council brochure yet?

If not, stop by the council office soon to be sure you know

WHAT'S HAPPENING!

Seats still available For Siobhan McKenna in "Here Are Ladies;; next Thursday, October 7- Bowker

Celebrity Series and/or Chamber Music Series Tickets just $3 (five events) to UM undergraduates! Orders yours today!

Call Fine Arts Council 545-0202 or stop by 125 Herter Hall

THIS IS WHAT'S HAPPENING

Public PCB Alarm Called Unjustified

WASHINGTON (AP)-The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration declared Wednesday there has been unjustified public alarm over discovery of the industrial chemical PCBs in food. He blamed alarmists and what he called unbalanced reporting.

"We still have as many questions as answers but we do have some answers," said Dr. Charles C. Edwards. "We do know that as a toxic substance PCBs are a potential but not immediate health hazard."

The FDA announced Monday it had discovered PCBs, which have been implicated in human skin and liver ailments as well as in birth defects in animals, in seven packaged foods and was surveying 15 foods nationwide for PCB contamination.

So far this year, PCBs have forced the destruction or detention of chickens, eggs, turkeys and fish.

"Public confusion has created public alarm and a feeling of still another crisis in the food supply," Edwards told a news briefing.

Edwards did not name the alarmists nor cite the unbalanced reporting he blamed for the confusion. Consumer advocate Ralph Nader and Rep. William F. Ryan, D-N.Y., have been critical of the FDA's handling of PCBs.

Dr. Albert C. Kolbye, Jr., deputy director of FDA's bureau of foods, noted that someone would have to eat a half-pound of food contaminated at the highest level permitted by the agency every day for six months to show ill effects from PCBs.

"But human exposures to food contaminated to this extent are infrequent and sporadic," said Kolbye. "To our knowledge we are not aware of any foods contaminated at significant levels on a regular and consistent basis."

Dr. Claton Yeutter, administrator of the consumer and marketing service in the Department of Agriculture, reported the department is convinced it was an isolated incident which forced the detention of 50,000 turkeys in Minnesota earlier this month because of PCB contamination.

Yeutter said a three-state survey failed to turn up the cause of the contamination. He said the turkeys will be released gradually on a lot-by-lot basis as laboratory tests show them to be safe.

Hurricane Ginger Threatens Coast

(AP)-Island folk fled to the mainland and disaster relief crews assembled at strategic locations Wednesday as Hurricane Ginger swirled toward the North Carolina and southern Virginia coasts.

The main brunt of the storm, with winds as high as 90 miles per hour, were expected to hit the coast between Wilmington, N.C., and Virginia Beach, Va., about daybreak, a spokesman for the National Hurricane Center in Miami said.

Ginger's eye was expected to hit the North Carolina coast just north of Wilmington after daybreak. The spokesman, Neil Frank, predicted that the storm would sit over coastal areas with gale force winds for up to 50 hours because it was so large.

Red Cross disaster releif specialists and emergency crews hurried into the strategic locations along the coast between Wilmington and Virginia Beach.

In Florida, Ginger was blamed for one drowning in St. Augustine, and two young swimmers were missing in the heavy surf off Neptune Beach.

In its 80th advisory on the 20-day-old storm, the hurricane center said Ginger was about 200 miles southeast of Wilmington, N.C., heading toward land at 12 m.p.h.

WMUA Warpath

Tune into WMUA, 91.1 fm tonight for "Warpath" with Marty Kelley and Ken Best hosting UMass football coach Dick MacPherson and sophomore starters, quarterback Peil Pennington and halfback Tim Berra. They will discuss the Dartmouth game and look ahead to next week's game with Boston University.

SATURDAY Is The LAST Day!
BASEMENT SALE
Everything Must Go!!
Prices Reduced Now - Everything (Blue Jeans Cords)
Only $3.95
WEAR-HOUSE
Wear-Else ??

Campus Cinemas 256-6411
Amherst - Hadley Line - Route 9
In The Zayre's Shopping Center
Mon Night! Ladies Adm $1.00
CAMPUS I
7:00
9:00
the panic in needle park
my night at maud's
"By far the best picture in the entire competition (Academy Awards 1970). One of the biggest thrills of this or any other moviegoing year." Rex Reed, New York Daily News
CAMPUS II
In everyone's life there's a
'SUMMER OF '42'
Screens: 7:15 9:15
—marvelously sophisticated judith crist, new york magazine
Campus III Screens: 7:00 & 9:00

VOTE
SOUTHWEST ASSEMBLY ELECTIONS
THURSDAY
SEPTEMBER 30, 1971
6-9 P.M.
IN YOUR DORMS

FBI Reports Violent Crime Increases 11%

WASHINGTON (AP)—Violent crime increased 11 per cent in the nation during the first half of this year, outpacing a 7 per cent rise in all serious crime, the FBI reported Wednesday.

The over-all 7 per cent increase in serious crimes compares with an 11 per cent increase recorded during the first six months of 1970, but the jump in violent crimes exceeds the 10 per cent hike recorded last year.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who released the FBI's six-month crime figures, took note of the lesser increase in overall crime as compared with early 1970.

"The continuing upward trend illustrates that crime is still one of our foremost problems," Mitchell said, "but the decelerating rate of increase provides a basis for cautious optimism."

In a new addition to its mid-year crime report, the FBI noted that 80 law-enforcement officers had been murdered in the first eight months of 1971.

One hundred officers were murdered during all of 1970, 67 of whom were killed in the similar eight-month period, the FBI said.

Police death information has been made available in the past only in the agency's annual crime report which are issued seven to eight months after the close of a calendar year.

Of the 80 officers murdered between January and August of this year, 96 per cent were killed with a firearm, the FBI pointed out.

Thirty-three of the victims came from the Southern states, 18 from the North Central states, 16 from the Northeastern states and 13 from Western states.

A 14 per cent increase in robbery, 10 per cent increases in murder and assault and a 7 per cent increase in rape made up the average 11 per cent hike in violent crimes reported during the six-month period.

Increases of 7 per cent for burglary, 6 per cent for larceny and 2 per cent for auto theft averaged an over-all property-crime increase of 6 per cent.

In the mid-year report, the FBI does not provide actual numbers of crimes reported in the country as a whole. The percentage increases reflect comparisons of numbers reported in the six-month period this year with the numbers reported during the six-month period last year.

The nation's largest cities, those with a population of 250,000 or more, experienced an over-all 3 per cent increase in the number of serious crimes reported, the FBI said.

Suburban areas surrounding large cities reported an increase of 10 per cent in serious crime, and crime in the rural areas was up 8 per cent.

By geographical region, the Western states experienced an 11 per cent increase in serious crimes, the Northeastern states 10 per cent and the North Central and Southern states 3 per cent.

Dr. Kendrew Speaks On Population Control

Doctor Leroy Kendrew of the Infirmary Staff spoke to over fifty students about population control in the Berkshire Clubroom last night.

A film called "The Case for Population Control" was shown. Afterwards, Doctor Kendrew talked about various methods of birth control. He illustrated the talk with drawings and slides.

He then answered questions from the audience concerning the film and his talk.

nonesuch
OUR ENTIRE STOCK OF NONESUCH RECORDS

SALE $1.89 ea. 3 for 5.47
Capitol
THE BEST OF TODAYS MUSIC ON CAPITOL And APPLE

JOHN LENNON IMAGINE

ALL OF THE BAND

ALL STEVE MILLER

ALL SEATRAIN
RECORDS D 5.98 List 3.39 TAPES G 6.98 List 4.49
Sale Thru Sat. Oct. 2
THE LISTENING POST AUDIO CENTRE
25 So. Pleasant St., Amherst 186 Main St., Northampton

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — David D. Williams
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jim Gold
NEWS STAFF — Jeannette Martineau, Emory Rounds, Jerry Lazar
SPORTS — Earle Barroll
DARKROOM — Barbara Brecher, Joanne Stiles
AD LAYOUT — Jim Gold

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Still Shooting

Back in 1966 Lyndon Johnson had already managed the Vietnam War into the bloody mess it is now. The big news magazines were quoting high ranking civilian and military officials as saying the U.S. would be able to win the war before 1970 and most everybody who is alive now was sitting back watching the evening news accounts of helicopter raids in the Mekong Delta.

With the exception of the date, things haven't changed much since 1966. People still watch the news films of U.S. Armed Forces shooting up the Southeast Asian countryside.

One could view the present day American scenario as the results of our capitalistic, aggressive, and inhumanly oppressive nature as a modern nation-state.

On the other hand, we do not reserve these traits for foreigners only. American Blacks, prisoners and laborers also feel our violence.

Every year, it seems, at just about this time Americans are given an opportunity to make themselves felt in government; the time to demonstrate is here. Leadership in this country proves when ever it can, that it will not be caught working for the best interests of human beings, who are only trying to earn a living or have its sons stay home from war.

New economic policies and a continuing war seem to always benefit only those who are already powerful.

As long as the war in Vietnam continues it will be the most important issue. It has been since we started shooting those million Vietnamese.

Decision Maker

Point Blank

Rebels In Chains

By WILLIAM KUNSTLER

For anyone with the slightest degree of sensibility, Attica will forever symbolize the ultimate in human tragedy--the controlled catastrophe that could so easily have been avoided.

I wish to address myself exclusively to the citizens of Cell Block D, because I was honored among men to be named their attorney. And I will confine myself to what I saw, heard and felt during my dozen or so hours in what I choose to regard as a sublimely liberated zone.

When I initially passed from official to inmate control, deep in my white middle-class subconscious, I half expected to see a replica of every prison movie I had ever witnessed. I was reasonably sure that power would be wielded by a few psychopathic killers with little or nothing to lose, who had terrorized their fellow convicts into seizing the cellblock and committing unspeakable crimes of violence along the way. It would hardly have surprised me if the yard had been the scene of impromptu executions, medieval torture, and brutal and bloody struggles for suzerainty.

Instead, I was to have every such ugly stereotype swiftly and totally shattered. The rebels were superbly organized; inmates inclined to violence were quickly subdued and incarcerated; and an acceptance of all shades of opinion was promoted and encouraged. With much sophistication and even some genius, the leadership speedily established an Athenian democracy freed from the racism and class lines of the outside world, which could and did survive everything--but bullets and buckshot.

From the moment the members of our observers' committee first entered the yard, we were aware that we were in the middle of an ongoing community. There was a command post, complete with conference table, loudspeaker system, floodlights, and typing pool. Even the most critical of us could easily see that everyone had been assigned a task--whether it was to dig a defense trench, guard the hostages, man the perimeter, or stand impassively in the long lines of marshals protecting the entrances and exits to the compound.

Even the occasional flurries of panic that, every once in awhile, rippled insidiously through the yard did not seriously disrupt communal organization. Sensible precautions were taken at once; rumors tracked down to their sources; and their spreaders sternly admonished.

Once, when it was feared that an attack was imminent, lights were quickly extinguished, visitors escorted to a relatively safe and out-of-the-way spot, and everyone cautioned to act only when ordered to do so.

I am a veteran of hundreds of endless movement meetings, and I marvelled that these men--given their socioeconomic backgrounds and the tension and uncertainty that pervaded their newly found freedom--could have so quickly learned to rule themselves with efficiency, dispatch, and bedrock fairness. Their essential politeness toward each other and their visitors, and their easy tolerance of all points of view, however strange or unorthodox, made me realize that necessity is as much the mother of accomodation as she is of invention.

Our negotiation sessions were reasonably businesslike and, with rare exceptions, rhetoric was kept to an irreducible minimum. Although we were asked for our opinions, it was obvious to us from the beginning that they would be advisory only. All final decisions were to be made, not by outsiders or those in leadership capacities, but by the entire constituency.

The fabled New England town meeting had at long last suffered a latter-day revival in, of all places, a cluttered prison yard.

Most of the observers were startled to find how versed our hosts were in the art of practical politics. They understood full well how power is gained and utilized in contemporary society and never lost sight for a moment of the fact that their only leverage lay with the blindfolded hostages, who sat on the ground within a demarking circle of wooden benches.

But of even more importance, the inmates, despite the uncertainty of their collective survival, relied heavily on the basic humaneness of the world without and were genuinely and deeply shocked when they began to sense it was as illusory as everything else in their lives had been.

In the end, it was they and not their oppressors who yielded to the pressures of harsh reality. Of their two "nonnegotiable" preconditions--total amnesty and the removal of Superintendant Mancusi--they were prepared to drop the latter if assured of the former.

"We are ready to give up the Mancusi thing," Brother Richard Clark told us as we left the yard for the last time on Sunday night, "if we are guaranteed amnesty."

In the last analysis, they failed because they, as well as most of the observers, so tragically misjudged their society's devotion to its own expressed values. From the beginning they were truly convinced that, given a choice between life and death, the high and the mighty would always opt for life.

Even up to the awful moment of truth on Monday morning, most of them simply refused to believe that their fellow countrymen could so easily forsake even their most cherished shibboleth--the myth of our common humanity--in the face of political expediency.

It is perhaps more ironic than we yet realize that the men of Cell Block D, convicted felons all, yearned so fervently, out of the depths of their own desperate need, for an up-to-date certification of our national credo, while those most publicly committed to its sustenance rushed to nullify it. Men who may have once taken life, molested children or cracked safes understood more about shining ideals and elemental truths than those who professed to judge and condemn them.

Men died at Attica, to be sure, but innocence itself lay unnoticed among the victims.

Copyright 1971 by William Kunstler

William Kunstler, a champion of individual rights, was defense counsel at the trial of the "Chicago Seven." He was a member of the observers' committee at the Attica Prison uprising. Distributed by Access-The Communications Corporation.

The New American Movement

Part III

There are large numbers of young people who have 'passed through affluence' and find the quality of life in America profoundly alienating. Programs designed for their needs will concentrate on maximizing their possibilities for self creation and for non-alienating social relations. While these needs will be shared by all other sectors of American society as well, the forms that these needs will seek expression in is likely to be different.

For many working people, especially those who have received higher levels of education and training, the work situation is totally frustrating: their intelligence and creative talents are stunted in the interests of profits and a mystique of efficiency and professionalism and respect for authority. What they get in compensation for a life full of meaningless labor is a bit of money, which is quickly taken away from them through a series of expenses for transportation, housing, medical care, and vital social services which have increased in cost as they have become more necessary; and through a desperate desire to escape the frustration of a seemingly meaningless existence in the frenzied consumption of goods. Increasingly, they are exposed to food and air that are poisoned, and to an environment made ugly and drained of its natural resources by the capitalists' endless search for profits.

Then there are those who live on the margins of society, the over twelve million Americans on the verge of physical starvation; the tens of millions who are hungry; those who live in squalor and physical misery; the aged who have been used and then tossed aside--all of whom need a higher level of material well-being, ways to get meaningful labor, health care, housing, etc.

Although women and blacks are specially exploited economically, they are also exploited as women and blacks regardless of their economic positon, so that they have special needs for human relations devoid of sexism and racism.

It is unlikely at this time that an effective struggle against sexism can be waged without independent, anti-capitalist women's and gay liberation movements. But we also need a larger anti-capitalist movement that continually raises and confronts the problem of sexism in the context of programs ranging over broader interest and includes both men and women.

It is important for us to realize and fully understand the sexism that permeates and helps maintain capitalist domination. The system would not be able to function nearly so efficiently if one section of the population was not taught to accept all the menial work of the home without wages; if there were not isolated family units to purchase the stream of useless products dreamed up by the producers to keep the economy running; if there was not an available and cheap reserve supply of labor; and if men and women were not divided against each other. Women are often the last hired and first fired, paid lower wages for equal work, taught to think that their 'true' role is in the home as a mother, housekeeper, and husband-tender, and discouraged and often prevented by discriminatory practices from developing into full human beings.

From an early age, men and women are taught sex stereotypes--women are mentally and physically weak, to be governed by men, while men are taught to be aggressive, skilled and dominating. Women are turned against one another as they compete for men and affection and security. Sexism continues to divide men and women. We must realize that we can never truly eliminate sexist institutions and ideologies until we have eliminated the exploitative domination of capitalism which continues to foster sexist attitudes for its own maintenance. But we must also understand that we will never achieve a full socialist society as long as sexist oppression exists. That is why the struggle against sexism is INTEGRAL, not just a side effect, to the development of a socialist society.

(A feature of Alternative Features Service.)

Forever

By T David Barrett

Started not, will never end...
Looking out will never see
Straight and true, from star to star,
Forever travels on, my friend,

Like neon signs up in the sky-
Shimmering in emptiness...
Each dying match becomes a puff
Like sulfur in the night, my friend...

Remote nowheres of time reveal
Built from unknown pasts in space,
Passing by through endless time,
Everything mistaken, now,

Break the patterns of your mind-
Apathetic mystery,
Running faster than your mind,
But endless motion, losing time,

Exhaustion of the heart and mind,
Pheidippides a thousand times,
Monuments built up to Him-
Never any guarantee, tomorrow,

Generations gloating by-
Milleniums unknown from now,
Slowing to an easy walk-
Realization that the end

A man of thoughts, without a tongue-
Can't write or speak his happy thoughts,
Beyond our dream of starting
Forever's shell lies here within-

Don't care to leave, you'll just as far
Eternity remakes itself
Like Heaven's eyes, each crying loud,
Time itself is infinite-

Time and space alone lack bounds,
Words of love afloat sweetly on,
More complete than the soft, smooth surface the lives themselves set cruelly from

Explore the universe in your mind...
But Nothingness you will never find...
An endless hopelessness toward which
A goal beyond our reaching minds,

A search without for what's within-
Love is all that's real, my friend-
An endlessness of in-betweens,
The past and present: meaningless-

Speed across an endless day,
Out or in, it matters not-
Dare you go until the end?
Take away 'til Nothing's left-

Forever travels on.
my past, nor your anon.
each flicker but a day.
so try and find your way.

like sulfur in the night;
the blessedness of sight.
in Heaven's endless cloud.
the empty day's own shroud.

what never was before;
once locked behind a door.
reviewing what will be;
for islands in an empty sea.

perfection in a God.
with newer roads to trod.
and closing up the pace.
trapped in a hopeless race.

an endless, pounding beat.
bearing home defeat.
castles strong and sure;
they'll endure.

ten-thousand to the mile;
intact in Heaven's file.
striving to endure;
is never really there.

nor even eyes to see;
so sits and grins contentedly lies the nature of our walk;
time's everlasting clock.

without a single step;
each time you take from it.
producing twice the tears-
twice any number years.

of a clear, blue-morning sky.

though love, too, it would seem.

peer into that soupy mist-
Nothingness doesn't exist.
I often turn my thoughts;
meaninglessly sought.

the love that's found in gold;
the other but its mould.
and one before your eyes;
the future: full of lies.

and vanish in the void;
your mind's a timeless toy.
Or say you, "Never so!"
but Nothing's Something, too.

Photos by Alan Chapman

Space's matter, matter's space-
Increase, now, the less of one-
Will you take away what's there,
And then be left with Nothingness,

Peer, then, into tinyness.
Deeper into something small...
Drifting down the airy sky
Down you drift, and down you drift-

Vanish'd in an empty wild,
You're in a world, now, of your own-
Reality of Nothingness
All else that you might conceive

Try counting all the trees some night.
Cold stars rolled by overhead,
Cold, and dark, and faraway,
Like candlesticks in place of leaves-

To travel on through space
To climb the falling grains of sand
They fall so slow through time and space-
Each one, a world, now but a link

Watch a bullet pass you by-
Hear it whistle through your eye-
Relative to slower than,
Twisting grossly in a fit,

Like the axe that cut my tree,
I stood and watched my lonely stars
Shattered world without an end,
Lightened of his burden, now,

On and on speeds every day,
Configuration underneath
Sound replaced by sight of mind-
Back, again, to sound at night-

Have you found that niche of yours,
You, within, and me, without...
Unattached, unknown to most,
Nothingness has claimed the rest,

You're still within, trying out to squirm-
Meet me in the in-between...

Chasing sheep across the fence,
Trying to remember
Measuring time with beems of light
No fast, nor slow, nor victor

All emotion is but love;
All sight is but beautiful;
All color is but black as night-
Knowledge bound like balls of yarn

Empty hearts of loneliness,
As infinite as Nothingness,
Time and space, the only food,

You tried to fill that space for us.
Stuck, was I, on Nothingness,
Beginnings are continuous...
Starting 'bove the bottom, here,

It hurts to have to start anew.
I want to write your name, but can't.
Experience is not enough.
I'm going to give it one more bout,

one, but not both;
'tis but the other's growth.
and put it in a jar?
like Heaven's face a-scar?

What is it that you find?
closed eyes, but open mind.
to cotton beds below;
a speck, and then unknown.

Nothing to the eye;
a dew-drop in the sky.
is all that non-exists;
is held in Heaven's fist.

Was on my way home once;
like days of every month.
each twig was set aflame;
my planetarium.

instead of floating here within;
to the hourglass's rim;
you watch in heavy pain;
upon your watch's chain.

catch it if you can;
fast is faster than.
that whistling ball of lead;
and falling, ever dead.

and sent it to the ground;
come crashing all around.
though life no longer is;
that tattered world of his.

a meaning, somewhere, hid;
halucination's lid.
the burning eyes of day;
the jungle's only way.

Forever in your hand?
two desert grains of sand.
we may as well not be;
and set them cruelly free.

I, out, still squirming from there we'll then begin.

and listening in the night;
what tomorrow will be like.
seen zooming on through space;
runs Forever's hopeless race.

all feeling is but joy;
all sound, but music's toy.
that's all we'll ever know;
that melt like balls of snow.

as meaningless as wealth;
and just as void of self and mind, the only mouth.

I'm sick. I couldn't help.
and now your loss is felt.
once started, never stop.
and ending 'neath the top.

It seems to never end.
The letters will not bend.
Imagination, try.
and then I'm going to die.

Nov. 1968-Mar. 1969

Bombs Rock Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—A bomb ripped through a crowded Belfast bar Wednesday night, killing two persons and wounding 14, as terrorists spurned appeals for peace.

Fearing the blast might set off rioting, police and British troops sealed off the area around the Four Step Inn in the Protestant Shankill road district.

The bomb went off when the bar was packed with soccer fans on their way home from a game.

Another bomb wrecked a trucking warehouse in the Roman Catholic Lower Falls Road area of the strife-torn capital.

Defying appeals by three prime ministers for an end to the violence, terrorists launched other attacks, including sniper fire on troops patrolling the Catholic Ardoyne area, hitting one soldier in the lower abdomen. He was taken to a hospital.

AFL-CIO Leader Knocks Possible Court Nominee

NEW YORK (AP)—George Meany, president of the AFL—CIO, described Rep. Richard Poff, R—Va., as a racist and indicated Wednesday night that the labor organization might oppose a nomination of Poff to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I understand Mr. Poff is a very nice gentleman, but on his record he's a racist," Meany said at the taping of a television interview for the David Frost program for broadcast Oct. 7.

Poff has been mentioned as a possible choice of President Nixon for the seat of the late Justice Hugo Black.

Meany's opposition to Poff echoed in some particulars criticism of the congressman by Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Mitchell indicated Sept. 22 that his organization would oppose a Poff nomination. Mitchell cited, as did Meany in the interview, Poff's signing of the so-called Southern Manifesto as a hallmark of his civil rights record.

Lockheed Accuser Threatened

WASHINGTON (AP)-A former Lockheed-Georgia aircraft production manager testified Wednesday that men with "murder on their minds" threatened his family after he accused the firm of gross mismanagement and waste in the C5A project.

The witness, Henry M. Durham, was guarded by U.S. marshals while he accused Lockheed and the U.S. Air Force of "what appears to be collusion...to receive credit and payment to work on aircraft which had not been accomplished."

Durham's principal accusations at a hearing of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, were immediately denied by Lockheed executive Vice President H. Lee Poore as "positively incorrect."

Durham, who said he had been officially hailed as an outstanding employe during his 19 years with Lockheed, said his status changed overnight when he put pressure on company officials to correct what he said he viewed as gross abuses.

Durham was called as a witness by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who first reported nearly two years ago that the cost of the C5A cargo plane would exceed contrast figures by more than $2 billion.

Durham said that when he made his accusations public, his family was ostracized by friends in Marietta Ga., and subjected to "an apparent organized telephone attack threatening in almost every instance my life and frequently the lives of my wife and children. "We took these cases rather lightly at first, but the offensive language and brutal tones of the voices we listened to quickly made us realize that some of these people, at least, had murder in their minds."

Poore, the Lockheed vice president, said the firm deplored such tactics and had urged all employes officially not to harass the Durhams.

Once, Durham said, 42 1/2 tons of costly assorted pieces of material were scrapped because they had become so rusted and corroded they could not be identified.

He said parts were frequently installed on one aircraft only so it could pass inspection by the Air Force.

He said the parts were later removed and installed on the next plane coming up for inspection.

He said thousands of installation documents were fraudulently drawn up to show parts had been installed even though they had not been.

"It was deliberate subterfuge on the part of the company, and I believe the Air Force also," he said.

President To Press For Strong World Role

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon, decrying what he called "growing and disturbing isolationism in our country," told international finance leaders Wednesday that his administration will continue to press for a strong world role.

In urging International Monetary Fund governors and foreign finance ministers to seek permanent solutions to world financial problems, Nixon said political differences that divide the nations can be substantially reduced if the monetary crisis is eliminated.

"There is a growing and disturbing isolationism in our country," the President said in remarks to a White House reception for those attending this week's IMF meeting here. But he told the foreign leaders: "Those are not views that I share."

"A weak United States will be isolationist without question," Nixon continued, "but a strong United States will continue to play a responsible role in the world."

He said his Aug. 15 action in letting the dollar float in international money markets and the 10 per cent import surcharge were intended to keep the United States in a strong position.

"Looking to the future," Nixon said, "you can be assured of our cooperation in reducing barriers and our cooperation in areas of international monetary affairs."

nixon made his comments a few hours after the head of West Germany's central bank had predicted the United States would devalue the dollar in terms of gold if agreement is reached on an upward revaluation of other major currencies.

Student Shoots Jr. High Mates

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP)-A 14-year-old student burst into an 8th grade math class at a city junior high school Wednesday, pulled a pistol and fired four shots that left one boy dead and two other children wounded, school officials said.

Police identified the dead boy as Dorsey L. Wiles, 14, a white student at predominantly black Peabody Junior High. The alleged assailant and the two wounded students are black.

School officials said they had no immediate explanation of the gun-wielding student's actions, but said it did not appear the slaying was racially motivated.

Petersburg police refused to identify the student taken into custody other than to say he was not a member of the math class. The boy was arrested after being subdued by school personnel following the shooting outburst.

School officials, identified the wounded students as Audrey Elaine Webb, 17, treated for a bullet wound in the right jaw, and Harold C. Smith, 14, who was shot in the left shoulder. Both were treated at a hospital and released.

Police said the youthful gunman sprayed four shots into the classroom, one shot striking a wall, before he was subdued.

Rail Strike Unlikely As Law Runs Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor Department sources said Wednesday there appeared little likelihood of a national railroad strike when the law banning a strike by signalmen expires at midnight Thursday. A union official also indicated there would be no strike.

The signalmen walked out last May 17, precipitating a shutdown of all railroad activity. Other unions, honoring picket lines of the 13,000 member AFL—CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, effected the actual closings.

Within a day, Congress passed emergency legislation banning a strike until Oct. 1. President Nixon signed it immediately, and workers returned May 19.

Talks have been carried on since then, but the status of negotiations has been kept under wraps.

Though no official Labor Department word was available on the talks, a source said it seems unlikely the union would strike while negotiations continued. The wage-price freeze and Nixon's request for no new strikes during the freeze also were expected to influence any strike decision.

In Chicago, Melvin B. Frye, union vice president said Wednesday night a wildcat strike was possible but he didn't expect one.

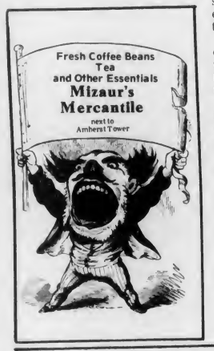
Women's Church Role to Widen May Become Priests, Not Pope

NEW YORK (AP)-A leading Catholic theologian, the Rev. Bernard Harring, asked once about the possibility of women being priests, said it is bound to come since there are no basic religious reasons against it, but he added:

"Don't expect a woman to be Pope in our lifetime."

However, gradual, sporadic changes are going on in Roman Catholicism to enhance women's rights, and the Synod seems likely to ratify some of these advances, and perhaps spur new ones.

It "can be expected to provide that women will have a greater share within the church in responsibility and in decision-making," says Sister Carroll.



Only two women will be attending the Synod as advisors, both picked by Pope Paul VI as experts on world justice, another main topic for consideration. They are Barbara Ward of Great Britain and a South American woman. They'll have no vote.

Nevertheless, moves are afoot to widen the role of women in the church, including at the parish level, where women in some cases now serve as lectors to read Scripture lessions-a function previously reserved to men.

In the diocese of Bridgeport, Conn., Bishop Walter W. Curtis recently approved changes, backed by voting of lay members, to increase their function in church affairs and to allow women lectors.

Similar steps have occurred elsewhere, although not without strains.

Recently, at St. Matthais church in Bala, Pa., four altar girls-instead of boys-were designated to assist at Mass, but archdiocesan authorities quickly stopped it, saying canon law forbade it.

Look Ma! It's the Revolution!

"WILD IN THE STREETS"

(1969; In Color)

• Plus "ANNIE OAKLEY" TV Episode

TONIGHT - Thurs., Sept. 30

Thompson 104 7:00 & 9:30

MDC Classifieds Pay

Take The Time

and the initiative and the patience

To Be a Student Senator

Nomination Sheets Due Fri. Oct. 1, by 5 p.m.

(available outside RSO offices, 1st level, CC)

POSTERS

Wide variety, many new things. 10% U. Mass. discount with this ad closed Tues. & Wed.

MERCURY GALLERIES

11 Bridge St., Northampton
(facing Jack August's Seafood Restaurant)

CEQ Leads Opposition Against 'Fields'

"Amherst Fields" will be discussed Monday evening in the Junior High School. If you plan to vote in Amherst, and call yourself a resident of this town, you should be there," warns the Coalition for Environmental Quality.

"The Coalition feels the proposed planned unit development in east Amherst needs far more study, analysis, and publicity. Therefore, we seek postponement of construction or irrevocable actions on the part of the developer and the town of Amherst until a public consensus is achieved concerning such large scale increases in town size."

CEQ explained the development of this situation: "In East Amherst on Belchertown Road near the WTTT radio towers, are 640 acres which have been bought by Paparazzo Associates for almost $2.3 million. Otto J. Paparazzo is planning a 2,172 unit development there, at first called Amherst Commons, now known as Amherst Fields."

"The completed project", CEQ continued, "will increase the population of Amherst by 50%. The plans call for a 'village' concept, with commons, small business district off the main road and intended for residents only (not like the Hadley strip), cluster housing and lots of open space."

According to the original plans, the "fields" would have become a golf course, but the concern about possible pollution by pesticides, fertilizers and herbicides of the brickyard wells, which supply up to 10% of Amherst's water, cancelled that idea."

Mr. Cormack, spokesman for Paparazzo, argues that Amherst Fields is far better than any previous development in Amherst—or any that anyone else would build on the land if Paparazzo is denied necessary permits.

"Eventually the Village will be half the population of the town," CEQ warned. "As of now, drainage is bad because the architects were from California and didn't like gutters, so there aren't any, and the storm drains are faulty. The town charges the developers with changing plans and building sites after getting approval. And the supposed great tax relief to the town has not appeared. Instead taxes have gone up, partly because Heritage-Paparazzo and their financial backer, Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance comapny of Philadelphia, have twice held back 25% of their taxes, claiming overassessment. The cases are in court; in the meantime, Southbury is short of money and has had to raise the tax rates."

"So Paparazzo's record raises some doubts about whether the glorious plans can be believed. But the real questions," CEQ insists are more fundamental: how much and what kind of growth does Amherst want and need? Who is going to decide? To some people, the idea of a town refusing to let someone make a lot of money through development is un-American. There are no laws which give the town a right to say no; as Chairman Rhodes of the Amherst Planning Board said, 'No subdivider has to prove there is a need for what he's doing.' But there are two things a subdivider does have to do:" CEQ continued, "he has to get permits to build from the Zoning Board of Appeals (there are already almost 1,000 permits valid on some of the land from previous owners), and he has to get his plans for streets, utilities, etc., approved by the Planning Board."

The biggest problem is sewers CEQ explained. "The Stanley Street station is already overloaded. Paparazzo spokesmen claim they would hook up the first 150 units to the South East Street station while Amherst enlarges its sewage treatment facilities. But those who want to stop Paparazzo hope to use the sewer issue as their legal weapon."

"The other weapon opponents have is the Town Meeting," CEQ concluded. The Town Meeting itself has no legal power to stop the development; but it is where the Town can express its opinion."

Satellites Enter Orbits; Experiments Can't Run

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Two new American satellites shot into wayward but acceptable orbits Wednesday-one to test the Apollo tracking network, the second to create artificial solar eclipses in a unique study of the sun's corona.

Both went aloft in the same two-stage Delta rocket that propelled them toward intended circular orbits 345 miles high. But a control problem in the second stage sent them into elliptical paths ranging from 204 to 357 miles above the earth.

Officials reported that because of the abnormal orbit, the solar probe at first was not in proper position to aim its six experiments at the sun. But ground stations in Ecuador and South Africa, using well-practiced emergency procedures, radioed steering commands to realign the craft.

"I am confident we can meet mission objectives fully," said project official Bob Davis.

The primary payload was OSO7, also called a "sunwatch" satellite.

It was the seventh in a series of orbiting solar observations designed to probe the sun throughout an 11-year solar cycle.

The series, dating back to 1962, has made a comprehensive investigation of this seething sphere of hot gases and how its turbulent energy controls what happens on earth and other planets.

At 1,400 pounds, the $28-million OSO7 weighs more than twice as much as any of its predecessors. It contains more advanced instruments, including an occulting disk the size of a silver dollar on the end of a two-foot boom.

When the satellite is aligned properly, the disk will produce artificial eclipses which will enable a camera and other instruments to view the sun's corona, the faint, outermost layer of the solar atmosphere that normally is seen from earth only during a total eclipse by the moon.

The second satellite is a 45-pounder carrying radio equipment to simulate signals from a manned Apollo moonship, including medical data, systems status, mission events and conversations.

Day School Enrolls Children For Fall

The University Day School, a day care center for the children of students and staff of the University, is now enrolling children for both the afternoon and morning sessions of the fall semester.

The center is open to children between the ages of two years, nine months and five, and the program provides a varied educational experience.

Part-time students as well as full-time undergraduates, graduate and post-doctoral candidates may apply for their children, and, as of October inquiries may be made at Bowditch Lodge, on the southwest corner of campus, or at 545-2466.

The Day School is also soliciting any used furniture, toys, books, records, appliances or other usable paraphernalis that might be donated.

Collegian Staff:

Meeting tonight with Printer for all those interested.

Stop by.

October 3, 1971
3:30 p.m.
&
8:30 p.m.
C. C. Program Council
presents

at.
Bowker Auditorium
tickets - $2.00
On sale at S. U. Ticket office starting 12:00 noon, Sept. 22.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Be an early bird!

Cliff's Notes are great any time you need help in literature! We recommend buying early so that you can use them as you study the assigned play or novel and as a helpful review prior to exams. Get the Cliff's Notes you need today. You'll see why they're the preferred study aid of millions of students nationwide. (P.S.) If your dealer's out of a title, he can get another fast with Cliff's "Hot Line"

Cliff's Notes

Nearly 200 titles—always available wherever books are sold.

Only $1 each

THE BROTHERS OF Sigma Alpha Epsilon

wish to introduce ourselves and our Fraternity to you. To help us, we are presenting

CLEAR SKY - in Concert

on Friday,
October 1,
2:30 - 5:30 p.m.

We are at 118 Sunset Ave.-
down the street from Kara Mia
Please come.

FACES OF EARTH

159 NORTH PLEASANT STREET, AMHERST

Next To The Post Office

OPEN 10 A.M. TO 10 P.M. MONDAY THRU SATURDAY

NEW INDIAN DRESSES
Short and Floor Length
Heavily Embroidered
All Colors
Some with Hoods

TOPS
Ribs
Jersey
Stars and Stripes
Turtle Necks
Hand Dyed Colors
Wallace Beerys

PATCHES
Bed Spreads
Rugs
Lamps
School Bags
Knapsacks
Pipes

COATS
Air Force Parkas
Field Jackets
Peacoats
Over Coats

STUFF
Flight Suits
Belts
Used Jeans
Blankets

FREE PAPERS AND SCREENS

Germans Predict U.S. Devaluing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of West Germany's federal bank predicted Wednesday the United States would devalue the dollar in terms of gold if international agreement is reached on an upward revaluation of other major currencies.

Bundesbank president Karl Klasen told reporters at the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank that "there is no specific commitment." But he added:

"If there is an agreement this will not be an obstacle."

U.S. agreement to raise the price of gold would in fact remove the largest obstacle to settlement of the global money impasse, since Japan and the principal European powers insist that America should contribute in some part to the currency overhaul designed to benefit its own trade.

Klasen's forecast raised the hopes of IMF delegations for a restoration of monetary stability and lifting of the U.S. 10 per cent import duty surcharge this fall.

But the White House has denied contemplating any increase in the historic $35 an ounce gold-dollar level. Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally so stated last Sunday, and a White House spokesman said just before Klasen's comment that "there is no change in our policy on this matter."

Earlier the White House said President Nixon was encouraged by an apparent growing recognition of the need for general currency revaluation and reform of the international monetary system.

Nixon conferred for 45 minutes in mid-morning with Pierre-Paul Schweitz and two of his own top financial advisers, Connally and Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board.

Reporters pelted presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler with questions on the devaluation issue. He insisted the U.S. policy had not changed and added:

"I would pull you off the speculation and the question of whether gold was discussed."

Meantime, speakers for the smaller and less-developed nations at the IMF sessions implored the wealthier powers to hasten their efforts to break the currency impasse. Nineteen nations were heard, most of them sounding this theme.

DEERFIELD
Drive-In Theatre
Route 5 & 10
South Deerfield, Mass.
Tel. 665-8746
FRI. SAT. SUN.
HIDEOUS AND SHOCKING!
HORROR OF THE BLOOD MONSTERS
ALL NEW/ALL COLOR GP
FIVE BLOODY GRAVES
Technicolor & Techniscope
STARRING ROBERT DIX
JIM DAVIS SCOTT BRADY
Showtime 7:30
Feature First Sunday

Adult Ed Meeting Slated

President Salvatore W. Simone of the Adult Education Association/Massachusetts, has announced that the annual meeting AEA/Mass will be held at the Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center at UMass Oct. 28 and 29.

"Learning Strategies for Adult Education," is the conference theme. A broad spectrum of lectures and workshops is scheduled for those in public and private colleges and universities, public schools and private industries, governmental agencies and religious and social organizations.

The keynote speaker will be Dr. Daniel Jordan, director of the Center for the Study of Human Potential at the School of Ed. Prof. Jordan's topic, "An Overall Model of Learning," will furnish a frame of reference for subsequent speakers. Aspects of the keynote speech will be developed by panelists who follow immediately.

At the banquet closing the first day's program, UMass Associate Provost Robert Woodbury will speak on the new University Without Walls program at UMass.

An important workshop on communications will open the second day of the meeting. Prof. Nathaniel Rutstein, director of the Media Center at the School of Education, will speak on "Effective Communication," Carrol Twohey of the United States Office of Education will deal with specifics in "Writing Proposals" and Prof. Mark Rossman of the School of Education will conclude with a paper on "Effective Use of the Media."

Individual workshops oriented to interest specific groups will complete the morning. The luncheon speaker will be Dr. Malcolm S. Knowles, general consultant in adult education at Boston University. His paper, "A Systems Approach to Adult Education," will be followed by the annual business meeting and remarks by the president of AEA.

The planning committee includes Dean Donald Ruhl of Northern Essex Community College, Mrs. Molly Charters, Professor Rossman and AEA/Massachusetts Executive Vice-President William C. Venman.

U.S. Supports Viet War Drive

TAY NINH, Vietnam (AP)-Reinforced government troops launched a counteroffensive Wednesday against parts of two North Vietnamese divisions along the South Vietnam-Cambodia border, and the United States hurled its air might into the drive.

The U.S. Command moved about 1,500 American troops and a squadron of armored vehicles from rear bases to the front.

They reinforced two U.S. artillery bases on the Cambodian border and filled avoid at the Tay Ninh West base camp and another fire base left vacant by South Vietnamese troops pushing out of the counteroffensive.

South Vietnamese Lt. Gen. Nguyen Xuan Thinh said three days of North Vietnamese attacks had subsided after scores of U.S. B52 heavy bombers and tactical fighter-bombers unloaded hundreds of tons of explosive on enemy troop positions and rocket and mortar launching sites, menacing six allied bases.

The B52 bombers, making their first concentrated close-in raids, flew through heavy monsoon clouds and were guided to targets within 1,000 yards of allied bases by radar.

Thinh said South Vietnamese forces may have to retreat from their bases on both sides of the border unless the massive U.S. support is continued.

Maj. Gen. Alton D. Slay, who directs all U.S. bombing raids throughout Indochina, flew to this forward command post from his 7th Air Force headquarters in Saigon to arrange for increased American bombing raids.

"The situation looks better," said Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of the South Vietamese forces. "First reports indicate everything is stable."

Slay was among nine U.S. and South Vietnamese generals who held day-long strategy meetings here as the counteroffensive kicked off, underscoring the seriousness of the situation.

Minh said the North Vietnamese 5th and 7th divisions-perhaps 10,000 combat troops-had launched an offensive from Krek along Highway 7 in eastern Cambodia southward along Highway 22 on the Vietnamese side of the border.

American officers aid, however, only elements of the two North Vietnamese divisions were involved in the offensive. One estimate said only one regiment from each division was committed, plus separate sapper units.

Minh already had the equivalent of two divisions in the region, about 20,000 troops, and moved in about 4,000 reinforcements, including two brigades of paratroopers from the Saigon area.

The objective of the South Vietnamese counteroffensive was to reopen Highway 22 and restore the overland supply route to Saigon forces in Krek. Highway 22 connects with Highway 7 at Krek.

Minh said the North Vietnamese drive was timed to coincide with South Vietnam's presidential election Sunday and to exploit political unrest in Saigon.

There have been three weeks of antigovernment demonstrations in major cities in South Vietnam in protest against the election, in which President Nguyen Van Thieu is running unopposed.

Auto Safety Still Required

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Department of Transportation reaffirmed today its decision to require installation of passive-restraint systems such as air bags in all 1976 model automobiles.

The new ruling by Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe means that starting on Aug. 15, 1975, no passenger car may be manufactured for sale in the United States that fails to provide complete passive protection for all seating positions.

Continuing Ed. Offers Special Course

The Division of Continuing Education at UMass has announced that a special course will be offered this fall for adults in the area interested in the study and performance of Renaissance vocal music.

Prof. Alan Harler of the UMass department of music said that the course, available both for credit and for audit, will be concerned with the rehearsal, study and discussion of Renaissance vocal ensemble literature. The only prerequisite for the course is an elementary music reading ability.

The course will be limited to an enrollment of 30, and will be offered on Monday nights beginning Oct. 18. Registration closes Oct. 15, and the cost for one credit is $25. Participants who wish to take the course on a non-credit basis will be charged $15.

Prof. Harler is the director of University Chorus, the Women's Choir and the Madrigal Singers and also the Collegium Musicum, which specializes in Medieval and Renaissance music. He has his master's degree in music from the University of Cincinnati and has been at UMass for five years.

Registration may be done by mail or in person at the Division of Continuing Education, 920 Campus Center. The telephone number is 545-0905.

Bomb Professor At Hampshire

"The Scientist and the Decision to Bomb Hiroshima Without Warning," by David Frisch, is the second event of the Science and Public Policy Lecture Series at Hampshire College.

It will be presented at 8 p.m., tonight in the East Lecture Hall.

Professor Frisch, a nuclear and particle physicist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was associated with the Los Alamos bomb project from 1943 through 1946. He later did nuclear research at Bohr's Institute in Copenhagen.

In 1961 Professor Frisch edited a book on arms reduction, and he is currently on the Executive Committee of the Civil Liberties Union.

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742
10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

THE CHOPPING BLOCK

The Chopping Block is located at 26 Main St. Amherst, second floor. Open 9:00 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Mondays thru Fridays; 9 to 5 Saturdays. For appointment call 253-9293 or 253-9271.
Continental Culture
We cut hair perfectly!!
Women's or Men's

COMING DOWN-Visiting UMass last night was the famous Peanuts character Charlie Brown promoting the play, "Your a Good Man, Charlie Brown." The play will be presented at Bowker Auditorium October 3rd.

Berger Receives Award

Bernard B. Berger, director of the UMass Water Resources Research Center, has received the 1971 Rudolph Hering Medal for the paper "Engineering Evaluation of the Virus Hazard in Water."

The paper was prepared by the Environmental Quality Management Committee of the American Society of Civil Engineers, with Prof. Berger as chairman. The Hering medal, named for a pioneer in water quality research, is awarded annually by the society for the most valuable contribution to increase knowledge in or otherwise advance the sanitary branch of the engineering profession.

The paper states, according to Prof. Berger, that the public threat of pathogenic viruses in drinking water has not yet been eliminated. The findings show, however, that known control techniques, if rigorously applied, can be depended on to protect the public health. "Unfortunately few water suppliers observe the necessary vigilance to this end." Prof. Berger commented.

Some important questions remain to be answered, he added. "Is there in fact, a disease entity that may properly be classified as viral gastroenteritis? Can it be transmitted by drinking water? What safety and detection procedures are applicable to the quantitative determination of viruses in water? How can the virus of infectious hepatitis, the most significant water-borne viral pathogen, be identified?" Until answers to the above questions are available, according to Prof. Berger, the water works engineer cannot prove that his treatment processes will destroy all viruses, and the fear of viruses in drinking water will persist.

Prof. Berger was deputy chief of the Office of Resource Development of the U.S. Public Health Service when he was appointed to his present post at UMass in 1966. He holds professorships in public health and civil engineering at the Amherst campus. The UMass Water Resources Research Center is concerned with all elements of water resource planning and management and currently has a dozen research projects going on various phases of water resource development.

WAMH Expands Area Service

Larry Wissow, General Manager of WAMH, Amherst College's student run radio station says that he's pleased with its operation so far this year.

"For the first time in a long time, we've managed to be on the air for freshmen orientation, mostly because of a smoother operating plan devised last Spring. The executive staff really got itself together last May and came back to Amherst this fall with excellent preparations for incorporating new Freshmen and old members into the station quickly," Wissow explains.

While the freshmen spend a month learning about all facets of station work both on and off the air, upperclass station members will be broadcasting the latest in progressive 1 rock, jazz and folk. In addition to the standard musical offering, says Wissow, "we hope to become a source of community affairs programming by offering a full fifteen minute comprehensive news and commentary show at 11 pm Sunday through Thursday. Jim Warren will be back for his second year of Midnight Sports, and several students are working full time on public affairs and special interest programming. This is in addition to the standard information service we have always offered both over the air with community announcements and over the phone with a number (542-2283) to dial that will connect you with someone who can tell you exactly what's going on in the community."

Essex Teachers Study Ecology

A group of Essex county teachers are learning about the environment from the ground up this year through a seminar supported by the UMass Cooperative Extension Service.

The program is "Field Work in Ecology," an 18-session series of field trips, panels, workshops and other meetings. It is designed to give 100 high school and elementary school teachers basic units in environmental education.

Cooperating in the combined seminar and field work program are the Cooperative Extension Service, Essex Agricultural and Technical Institute, and the Massachusetts Department of Education.

Field trips to such sites as Misery Island, the Western Electric waste water treatment plant in North Andover, and the Merrimac River are scheduled. Panels will discuss pesticides and pollution, the population crisis, proper land use, ecology projects for students and other topics.

Certificates of achievement will be presented to persons attending a minimum of 13 out of the 18 sessions offered and who complete the policy evaluation. Except for field trips, sessions are at the McNamara-O'Shea Science Building, Essex Agricultural and Technical Institute, Danvers

INTERCOLLEGIATE BOWLING:
All undergraduates interested in competing for a position on the UMass Bowling Team,
please contact Ernie Malagrida
2004 Kennedy
phone: 546-7882
deadline is Friday, October 1.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

68 Ford Galaxie, 10,000 miles, excellent conditions, stereo, yellow with black interior, asking 1,500. Call 256-6297.

65 Chevy 6 cyl, std. New tires, excel. running. 581-5567 $150 or best.
tf9-30

65 Mustang conv., red, stereo tape deck with deluxe interior. Best offer over $550. Contact Steve, 253-7359.
tf10-1

1966 Pontiac Tempest, standard trans. Call after 5 and ask for Janet, 253-7526.
tf10-1

56 MG A Roadster, exc. cond., w/65MG-B engine running perf., conv. top, side windows, DTH, Michelin Tires. $950. Eves. 584-0976.
tf10-1

1970 Chev. monter 85 Sedan show room condition. Best offer around $700. Call 584-8817.
tf9-30

1911 Chevy in good running condition. New point job, lots of extra parts. Asking $500. Need money desperately. Call Jeff, 546-5131.
tf10-1

61 AW Bus rebuilt engine, new brakes, muffler ex., mechanical some body rot. Good deal at $150 or best offer. Call Ron, 549-0150.
tf10-6

1962 BMW 1800 TI 4 door sedan, am-fm, sw blaupunkt, Pirellis, excellent condition-best offer over $1600. 253-2112.
tf10-5

1966 Peugot convertible in excellent condition. Call Catherine mornings 586-6012.
tf9-30

1958 Chev. conv. Full inspected $175.00. Call 665-7766.
tf10-1

1967 Mustang 6 cyl., standard, good tires, snow tires, new battery, 50,000 miles. Ed Tremblay 536-7529.
tf10-1

Bread truck-walk in body, great condition. Call Gary at 528-6063 after 8:00 p.m.
tf10-4

67 Mustang conv. V8 3 spd., 4 new tires, excellent condition, $1050. Call 253-7940 after five.
tf10-5

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

1971 CB 175 Honda CL350 exc. cond. Need money desperately must sell. Best offer, call Jack 6-7636.
tf10-1

1971 Honda CB450, 2 helmets, chain lock cover, 3000 mi., crash bars $765, 323-4139.
tf10-1

'67 305cc Honda Scrambler, month old Valve crankshaft, job bored and stroked knobbies. Can't afford tune-up now. $125. Mike 549-6270.
tf9-30

Honda 305, excellent condition, custom sissybar and helmet included. Only 8,000 miles. Call Al rm. 601 J. Adams, 546-8651.
tf9-30

1967 BSA Ultra Shooting Star, excellent condition. Must sell $175.00 Call 586-6972.
tf10-1

FOR SALE

For sale, Guild Polara elec. Guitar. Good action & sound. Can be seen at Faces of Earth in Amherst must sell! Will bargain!
tf10-1

Ski boots for sale, men's Kollach, 8 1/2M, White Stars. Call 546-8181 after 7 p.m.
tf9-30

Guitars, amps, acc., & records, at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop on Main St. Northampton 586-1206.
tf10-6

Waterbeds-now all sizes $19.95! Factory warranty. Also, frames, liners & pads in stock. Call Mark at 546-5350.
tf10-12

Benjamin stereo compacts, mirarord and lenco turntables, elac cartridges and FAL speakers. At discount prices. Call 546-8917.
tf10-5

1971 Honda CB 450 red-ex. condition, new tire & chain. Must sell before snow. $950 or haggle. Call Joel after 6 p.m. 1-567-5764.
tf10-1

Guitar-12 string Rickenbacker, good condition. $200 or best offer. Steve 6-6583.
tf10-1

KLH model 24 (FM & changer) with 2 big KLH 17 speakers. Exc. cond. $210. Call Steve 256-8061.
tf10-6

Two single beds $25 each or best offer. Olympia portable typewriter $20 or best offer. Call 256-6032 evenings.
tf10-1

Gibson '63 J50 Snowflake inlays-fixed bridge-a fine guitar-$200. Grets cb. 1960 Chet Atkins elec. W/hard case-$250. Al 549-0547.
tf10-4

Brown suede pants, skirts, skins, top quality, wholesale. Pants $27, skirts $9.40, skins $5. Stop by to look Jon-424 Claflsbone 5-2630 leave number if not in.
tf10-4

We undersell all. Any and all top name appliances, stereos, radios, refrigerators, anything. Call Larry 6-5090 or come to 250 Cance.
tf10-13

Just like people: bruised on the outside, but beautiful inside. 1965 Chevy convert. Call 586-2780.
tf10-6

Typewriter-portable underwood exc. cond. $30. PH. 586-2967.
tf10-1

10 speed Schwinn Sports Tourer. New $175, call Mike 549-6112, 201 Puffton.
tf10-1

Schwinn 10 spd. $90 firm; rectilinear mini, III speakers 50-1000 IZ/3DIR $120. Fischer Alpfabrits 223cm Wild Man's Ski. 586-2968.
K.F.

Hanging Planters-other ceramic ware made to order. Fred Unglander 549-1651, 15 Fearing St.
tf10-1

Omega B-1 enlarger w/lens-sack 90mm f4.5 lens negative carrier for 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 $80.00 549-6913.
tf9-30

Henke ski boots, size 11, bought at the end of last season, used once. Regular $130.00 sell to best offer. Call Hap 532-8121.
tf10-1

COURSE

LEARN ANY MAIN EUROPEAN LANGUAGE. Understand & read in 10 mos. Course taught by UN Interpreter Indiv. courses by mailed cassettes. 581-9749 or 1825.
tf10-1

LOST

A maroon and white jacket with name W. Ballou, on inside. Call Bill 546-7625.
tf10-1

Gold wire rim glasses. Lost Sat. night Quad area. Call 546-7425, reward.
tf10-1

$5 reward. Blue notebook lost in area of school of Ed. I am mainly interested in notes & loose papers. 774-3611 or 545-1582 George P.
tf10-1

EMPLOYMENT

Sell Shaklee products. Full or part time. 100% biodegradable organic cleaners, beauty aids and vitamins makers of Basic H. For info. Call 253-2981.
tf9-30

ROOMMATES WANTED

Male share 2 bdrm. apt. in sund. with 2 others. $60 Mike 665-3012, 545-1318.
tf10-4

Roommates wanted, 6 bdrm. house furnished in So. Leverett Apt. $55 per mo. Call only 323-4055.
9-30

WANTED

Flute teacher for intermediate student. If interested call Mary at 546-5278.
tf10-1

